CIBOLA, or Civola, a Province of Northern America in New Mexico, call'd New Granada by the Spaniards, who built a Town there of this Name. This Country, though without Mountains, is very cold; the Inhabitants are the Whiteſt, the Wittieſt, moſt Sincere and Orderly of all the Americans; they have each but one Wife, and are exceſſively Jealous; and for Religion, they worſhip Water, and an old Woman that was a Magician, made uſe of by the Devil to delude them; they believe ſhe lies hid near one of their Lakes. Herrera.

CICERO (Marcus Tullius) Prince of Latin Eloquence, was born in the 648th of Rome, in the CLXVIIIth Olympiad. His Father was a Roman Knight, deſcended of Titus Tatius, King of the Sabines, the Mother's Name was Helvia. In his very Youth he pleaded with ſo much Freedom againſt Sylla's Friends, that fearing the Reſentment of one that ſpar'd no body, he travelled into Greece, heard Antiochus of Aſcalon, an Academick Philoſopher at Athens; thence he paſſed to Aſia, ſeeking ſtill the Perfection of his Eloquence; became Diſciple of Xenocles, Denys, Menippus, and afterwards ſtudied at Rhodes under Apollonius Molon, the eloquenteſt Man of his Time, who being at one of Cicero's Orations, could not avoid crying aloud, That he deplored the Misfortune of Greece, which being already conquered by the Romans, was then like to loſe, by his Scholar's Eloquence, the only Advantage it had over that Victorious Enemy. Hence Cicero came to Rome, where, in conſideration of his great Parts, he obtained Sicily, and was made Queſtor of Rome; when he was choſen Ædilis, he condemned Verres to make Satisfaction for the Violences and Extortions he committed in that Province. In 691 he was Conſul with C. Antonius Nepos, during which Conſulſhip, he diſcovered Catilina's Conſpiracy, and puniſhed the Accomplices, for which he was ſtiled Preſerver of the Commonwealth; yet in 696 he was baniſhed, through the Envy, and by the Practices of Claudius and others; but the People ſhewed ſuch Concern for this Misfortune, that he was recalled the next Year after at the Requeſt of Pompey, who had a hand in his Exile. After this, Cicero, at his Return from Cilicia, where he was Proconſul in 702. followed Pompey in the Civil Wars; after whoſe Death, in 706. he was pardoned by Cæſar, whom he reconciled to Ligarius. He had no Hand in that Prince's Death, though he was an intimate Friend of Brutus; but after this Murder, he favoured Auguſtus, who deſired to be Conſul with him, had not his Intereſt made him take other Meaſures, and joyn with Anthony and Lepidus to be of the Triumvirate. Anthony making uſe of his Power, and hating

Cicero extreamly, by reaſon of the Orations he wrote againſt him, which we call the Philippicks, got him Purſued and Beheaded in the 711th Year of Rome, 43 before the Chriſtian Æra, and in CLXXXIV. Olympiad, in the 64th Year of his Age. His Executioner being one Popilius, whom he had formerly defended againſt ſome who accuſed him of having killed his Father. His many Works are well known, as his Books, De Inventione, De Oratore, &c. His Orations; Epiſtles; Academical Queſtions, De Finibus; his Tuſculan Queſtions; with his Works, De Natura Deorum, De Amicitia, Senectute, &c. And it's ſaid, he writ three Books in Verſe of what had befallen him during his Conſulſhip. Plutarch.

CICERO (Quintus) Brother to the Orator, Cæſar's Lieutenant General in Gaul, and afterwards Prætor in Aſia, was put in the Number of thoſe Proſcrib'd by the Triumvirate, and killed in 711 or 12 of Rome, with his Son, who, as Plutarch and Appian affirm, deſired the Murtherers, as a great Favour, to be diſpatch'd before his Father, who alſo beg'd to be kill'd before him, but they were both cut off juſt at the ſame time.

CICLUT is a ſmall Town in Dalmatia, ſituated upon the River Narenta, for a long time under the Dominion of the Turks, but the Venetians, in 1694. having landed an Army of 12000 Foot and 1000 Horſe within a Mile of it, under General Zeno, on the 15th of June, preſently rais'd two Batteries, and play'd upon the Two Towers that ſecured the Bridge, and they were ſurrendred to him, as was the Town by the 21ſt, wherein, among divers pieces of Canon, they found one very large one, with this Inſcription, Carolus Archidux Græciæ. The Turks ſoon after endeavoured to regain it in vain, and were forced to yield all their Pretentions to the Republick by the Peace of Carlowitz, in 1699.

CICONES, People of Thrace, near the River Hebrus, vanquiſhed by Ulyſſes, who was driven thither by a Storm in his return from the Siege of Troy, and plundered their Town Iſmarus with the loſs of very few Men in the Attempt. Ovid in his Metam. ſpeaks of a River of the Cicones, which turn'd any thing it touch'd into Stone.

Flumen habent Cicones quod potum Saxea reddit
Viſcera, quod tactis inducit marmora rebus.

It's thought it was in this Country that Orpheus was diſmembred by the Bacchantes.

CICULES, or Zeckles, Tranſilvanians, who live in the North part of the Country, upon the Confines of Poland; Newmark is their Capital, as for their Religion, they are moſt of them, either Socinians or of Calvin's Perſuaſion.

CIGALE (John Michael) who was at Paris in 1670. under the Name of Mahomet Bey, called himſelf a Prince of the Ottoman Blood, Baſſa and Sovereign Plenipotentiary of Jeruſalem, the Kingdom of Cyprus, Trebezonde, &c. yet this pretended Prince was born of Chriſtian Parents in the Town of Trogoviſti in Valachia, where his Father being much eſteemed by Matthias Vaivode of Moldavia, he got him into this Prince's Favour, who ſent him along with his Reſident to Conſtantinople, whence he came back again after Matthias's Death full of great Hopes; but being diſappointed he returned to Conſtantinople, and became Turk; after which time he travelled in Countries where he was not known, publiſhing his Fabulous Hiſtory with the greateſt Impudence Imaginable; talked of the Antiquity of the Family of the Cigales in Sicily, pretended his Deſcent from Scipio, Son to the famous Viſcount Cigale, taken Priſoner by the Turks in 1561. He ſaid that Scipio was Priſoner with his Father, and that to pleaſe Solyman II. he took the Turban, whereupon he was raiſed to the greateſt Places in the Empire, and married Sultana Canon Salie, Daughter to Sultan Achmet, and Siſter of Oſman Amurat IV. and Abrahim Mahomet the Fourth's Father: He ſaid this Princeſs was his Mother, and told how he was made Vice-Roy of the Holy-Land, afterwards Sovereign of Babylon, Caramania, Magneſia, and at laſt Vice-Roy of Trebezonde, and Generaliſſimo of the Black Sea: Adding, That he ſtole away ſecretly to Moldavia, whence he went to the Coſaques Army, who were then in War with the Muſcovites. After that he went to Poland, where he was honourably received by Queen Mary de Gonzagues, who perſwaded him to be Baptized in the Cathedral of Warſaw, where he received the Name of John, and afterwards that of Michael at his Confirmation. Some time after this he came to Rome (but made himſelf known to none but Pope Alexander VII) whence, as ſoon as he was returning back again into Poland, he heard that the Emperor was in War with Sultan Mahomet, which obliged him to fight in his Army in Defence of the Chriſtian Religion; where having ſignalized his Courage, and Peace being concluded, he returned to Rome, made his publick Entry and had Audience of Pope Clement IX. who received him very kindly; then he went to Venice, and came thence to Paris, where he alſo met with good Reception, both from the King, the Dauphine, and Nobility of the Court, but eſpecially from the great Prior of France, who honoured him with a Place in the Aſſembly of the Chapter of the great Priory in the Temple at Paris. This falſe Prince paſſed afterwards into England, and appeared there very great at Court, until his Cheat was diſcovered by a Perſon of Quality, that had ſeen him at Vienna, which was likewiſe confirmed by a Perſian Gentleman then in England, who gave this true Relation of the Family of the Cigales. Scipio Cigale, who was called Sinan Baſſa, when he took the Turban, had but two Sons, Ali and Mahomet, whereof the Eldeſt died ſoon after his Father, and Mahomet Married Mahomet the Third's Daughter about 1595. of whom he had a Son called Mahomet too. This Youth did not affect Command, but contented himſelf to accompany the Sultan in his Diverſions, was in Favour with the Emperors Achmet, Oſman, Amurat and Ibrahim, and no leſs beloved by Mahomet IV. Depoſed in 1687. He made him his Capu Baſſaci, that is, Captain of the Porters, or Guard of the Seraglio; afterwards his General in Candia, and at laſt Grand Viſier; but he did not enjoy this Place any long time, for he died during the Wars of Candia, in 1658. which is all that can be ſaid of that famous Renegado Scipio Cigale. Rocôles, Les Impoſtures, &c.

CILICIA, a Province of Aſia Minor, that ſtretches along the Mediterranean Sea, which binds it on the South, having part of Cappadocia and part of Armenia to Mount Taurus, that border it to the North. This Country is now comprehended in Carmania, and ſubject to the Turks. It's Towns are Tarſus, Pompeiopolis, Adena, Lajazzo, which gives its Name to the Gulph Aiazzo, or Lajazzo, the Sinus Iſſicus of the Ancients. Mercator.

CILLEY, call'd in Latin, Celia, a German Town in Stiria, upon the Confines of Carniola; It ſtands upon the River Saana; is a very ſtrong and ancient Town, and the Capital of a conſiderable County belonging to the Houſe of Auſtria.

CILO, an Athenian of an Ancient, Noble, and Powerful Family, of whom it's reported, that having gone off Conqueror at the Olympick Plays, and married the Daughter of Theagenes, Tyrant of Megara, he conſulted the Oracle of Delphos, to know when to attempt the Deſign he had of making himſelf Maſter of the Fortreſs of Athens, and was adviſed to execute it in the moſt Solemn Times of Jupiter's Feaſts; he choſe the Olympick Plays, believing both that they were the great Feaſt of that God; and beſides that, they had ſome relation to himſelf upon the Account of his late Victory at them; and ſo, with the Aſſiſtance of ſome Friends, and part of his Father-in-Law's Troops, he ventured, and carried the Fortreſs, during the XLV. Olympiad, and in the 154th Year of Rome; but being beſieged by the Citizens, he and his Brother, with the reſt of the Party, were forced to fly for Refuge to the Altar of Eumenides, where they were all ſlain. This was looked on to be ſo great a Sacrilege, that both they that committed it, and their very Deſcendants were eſteemed impious, and therefore baniſhed Athens. Thucydides. Plutarch.

CIMABUE (John) nobly deſcended and born at Florence, in the Year 240. was the firſt who reviv'd the Art of Painting in Italy; He gave ſomething of Strength and Freedom to his Works, which was above the Talent of thoſe Times, and though he wanted the Art of managing his Lights and Shadows, and was but little acquainted with the Rules of Perſpective, and in divers other Particulars but indifferently accompliſh'd; yet the Foundation which he lay'd for future Improvement, entitled him to the Name of the Father of the firſt Age or Infancy of Modern Painting. A ſhort Account of the moſt Eminent Painters, &c. Printed with the Tranſlation of Freznoy.

CIMBELINE, King of Britany in the Reign of Auguſtus, he pretended to refuſe the Emperor Tribute at firſt, but when he ſaw his Forces ready to march, he came too, and entreated his Protection. The Reign of this Prince was both long and fortunate, but his Three Sons he left behind him, embroyl'd the Country with Civil Wars for a great while. Dion. Caſſius. Polydor. Virgil. Du Cheſne. Hiſt. d'Angl. &c.

CIMBRI, People, about whoſe Original, the ancient Authors, Strabo, Pomponius Mela, Plutarch, Pliny and Tacitus much differ, for ſome will have them come from the Scythians, others confound them with the Cimmerians, and many take them to be Danes or Saxons originally: But Cluvier's Opinion is, that they came from the moſt Northern Parts, and firſt of all poſſeſſed that whole Peninſula, which ſtretches it ſelf into the German Sea, and tis now called Jutland or Cherſoneſus Cimbria. This is confirmed by the Teſtimonies of Velleius, Paterculus, Eutropius, and Oroſius. Theſe ſame People, about the Year 639 of Rome, or the 3940th of the World, left this Place, whether becauſe the Sea had gained upon it, or that it began to be over-ſtocked, and receiving all ſuch as would join with them, ſought a new Habitation; ſo that joining with the Teutons, Ambrons, and Tigurians, People of Germany, they made a formidable Body, ſome computing the Number of the very Cimbrians to have exceeded 500000, beſides Women and Children, over-ran and ravaged Germany, Iſtria, Sclavonia, the Griſons, and all Swiſſerland, whence they fell into Dauphine, Languedoc and Provence, to paſs into Italy. The Romans being ſurprized at ſuch a vaſt Inundation of Barbarians, ſent their Armies againſt them, which were often defeated; but at laſt Marius beat them near Arles, in the Plains of Camargue, and gave them a general Rout between Aix and St. Maximin; the Signs of which great Victory are yet to be ſeen upon the ſame Road, where the Romans erected Pyramids in Memory of this famous Battel, fought the 652d Year of Rome, and 102 before the Chriſtian Æra. Some Authors think that the Cimbrians invented Drums; at leaſt Strabo remarks, that they ſtretched Skins over their open Chariots, and did beat them at the beginning of the Fight.

CIMMERIANS, People come out of Scythia, to live near the Boſphorus, which was called Cimmerian, from their Name, and is now inhabited by the little Tartars. Strabo writes, that their Country was all Woody, and generally ſo covered with Clouds, that the Sun appeared but very little in it. There were alſo Cimmerians in Italy, that liv'd at Baya, near the Lake Avernus, where ſome ſay, Sibylle's Den or Cavern was. However, theſe Cimmerians had their Dens wherein they hid themſelves in Day-time, and uſed the Night to Plunder and Steal from their Neighbours, which gave occaſion to the Proverb, In the Cimmerian Darkneſs, uſed by ancient Authors, and makes ſome think that theſe people derive their Name from the Phœnician word Camar or Cimmer, that ſignifies to become Obſcure or Dark. They were extream Superſtitious, to which the Nature of their Country, where they Worſhip Trees, Rivers, and Fountains, contributes much. They alſo had a famous Den, by which they held, People went down to Hell, after they had Sacrificed to the Infernal Gods: It was on this Fancy that Homer founded his Fable of Hell, imitated by Virgil in his Sixth Book of Æneids.

CIMON, a Captain of Athens, Son to Miltiades, being in the 266th of Rome, kept Priſoner in a place where his Father Died, and not having wherewithal to pay his Ranſom, his Siſter and Wiſe Elpinies, (for in thoſe days ſuch Marriages were reckoned Lawful among the Athenians) deſired him to give her Leave to Marry Callias, who loved her, and would pay the Sum, to which he was very loath, yet at laſt Conſented; ſo having his Liberty, by his Eloquence and great Wiſdom, he ſoon got into great Imployments, and being a perfect Maſter of the Politicks of Athens, and very underſtanding in Military Affairs, becauſe brought up from his Youth in his Father's Armies, he ſoon became very conſiderable, both amongſt the Citizens and Soldiers. He put the Thracians to Flight near the River Strymon, re-eſtabliſhed the Town Amphipolis, which he Peopled with ten Athenian Colonies; gave a ſecond defeat to the Fleets of Cyprus and Phœnicia, compoſed of Two hundred Sail, and on the ſame day gain'd a Victory by Land. This happened on the 28th of Rome, and was followed with ſeveral others on the Ægean Sea, where he took the Iſle Scyros, with that of Thaſos and its Dependencies; at his Return, he found the Government of Athens quite Popular, which he endeavoured to Redreſs, but failed in the Deſign, and was baniſhed in the 294th of Rome; he went over to the Lacedæmonians, whom he brought to Terms of Friendſhip with the Athenians; ſo a Peace being concluded for five years, he was made Admiral of the Grecian Fleet, which he commanded to Cyprus; and here he gained ſeveral Battles, but before he could Conquer all, he fell ill, and died at the Town of Citium, in the LXXXIId Olympiad, four hundred and fifty years before Jeſus Chriſt, according to Salian's Supputation. This Cimon is very famous in ſeveral Hiſtories for his great Liberality and Charity towards the Poor, whom he clad when he met them Naked, and would give them his Cloak if he had nothing elſe: He alſo buried them at his own Charges, and made himſelf Priſoner to redeem his Fathers Corps; as Juſtin obſerves in his Second Book. Valerius Maximus, Nepos, Plutarch, &c.

CIMON, a poor old Man, who being Sentenced at Rome for ſome Crime, to be ſtarved to Death, was fed by his Daughter, who came daily to the Priſon to give him Suck, which doubly Saved his Life, for the Judges being informed thereof, pardoned the Father and Daughter, and got the manner of the Action drawn, and placed the Picture in their Temple of Piety. Valer. Max.

CINALOA, a Province of New Mexico in America, 'tis Bounded with Guadalajara to the South, and the Sea of Vermeia to the Weſt.

CINAN, a great Town of the Province of Xantung, in China, with ſeveral fair Palaces, and ſumptuous Temples; the moſt Magnificent whereof is that of Tungo, where the Chineſe ſay above Seventy two of their Kings have lived Retired. This City has Juriſdiction over Twenty nine other, the Jeſuits have a Church in it. Near one of the Cities called Taigan, is the Mountain Tai, in which, being five Miles high, are ſeveral Caverns, and many Temples, where great numbers of Chineſe lived retired like Anchorites. Martin Martini in Thevenot.

CINCA, in Lat. Cinga, a River of Spain, in the Kingdom of Arragon, riſing in the Pyrenæan Mountains, upon the Frontiers of France, which after having joined ſeveral Rivers in its Courſe, diſcharges it ſelf into the Ebro, or Iberus, a little below Frage.

CINCHU, a great Town in China, in the Province of Quangſi. It is the Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, and Commands over Three Cities. The Town is Rich, and the Buildings are fine. This Country produces excellent Cinnamon, much better than that of Ceylon: Here likewiſe grow the Iron Trees, as the Chineſe call them, becauſe of the extraordinary hardneſs of the Wood. The Inhabitants alſo make a ſort of Cloath of the Herb Tu, which is better, and dearer than Silks. Martin Martini, Deſcrip. China, in Thevenot, Vol. 3d.

CINCIBILIS, King of Alpes, ſent Ambaſſadors to Rome, to make Complaint of the ill Uſage ſome of his Allies received the year before from the Conſul C. Caſſius. The Senate made Anſwer, That they did not approve his Proceedings, but nevertheleſs, thought it unjuſt to condemn him without hearing him ſpeak for himſelf, eſpecially ſince he was abſent upon Publick Concerns; and intimated, that at his Return, they might lay what things they could to his Charge, and promiſed them Juſtice; in the mean time, to ſhew the eſteem they had for Cincibilis, they diſpatch'd C. Lelius, and M. Æmilius, in Quality of Ambaſſadors, to acquaint him with the Reſolution they had taken, and ſent the Gauls back with rich Preſents. Titus Livius, Lib. 43.

CINCINNATUS (Lucius Quintus) a Roman Dictator, Diſinherited his Son for being frequently Reprimanded by the Cenſors. In the 296th year of Rome, he preſerved the Army Commanded by the Conſul Marcus Minutius, which was Beſieg'd in their Trenches by the Æqui and Volſci, and very near a total Defeat. In this Extremity, the Lictors were ſent to Rome, to beg the Aſſiſtance of Cincinnatus, who was then Ploughing in his Fields, on the other ſide of Tyber: Upon the News, he poſted immediately to the Army, routed the Enemy, entered Rome in Triumph, and in about a Fortnight's time was jogging at the Plough again. Liv. Lib. 3. Dec. 1. Florus, Lib. 1. c. 11. &c.

CINCIUS, a Roman Senator, brought in the Bill for the Lex Fannia, and got it paſſed, which was a kind of Sumptuary Law, to check the unneceſſary Expence of Entertainments. He likewiſe got the Lex Muneraria to be Paſſed, to prevent Bribery and Corruption, in the Election of Civil Officers; by this Law, thoſe who ſtood for any Office or Poſt of Government, were obliged not to come to the place of Election, with one Gown over another, or Lin'd, that ſo they might have no conveniency of bringing Money into the Field with them, to purchaſe Votes. Macrob. Lib. 15. c. 18. Alex. ab Alex. Lib. 3, c. 17.

CINGCHEU, a great Town in the Province of Xantung, in China, which commands over thirteen others, though the Country hereabouts is all full of Mountains, yet the Sea and River ſupplies this City with all ſorts of Neceſſaries, eſpecially Fiſh. The Inhabitants make great Profit of Skins called Segrin. Their Cows have a Stone in their Belly, about the bigneſs of a Gooſes Egg, of a yellowiſh Colour, not altogether ſo ſolid as Bezoar, but is ſmoother, and perferred by Phyſicians to it, for the Cure of Defluctions and Catarrhs. Deſcription of China. Second Volume of Thevenot's Collections.

CINNA, Son of a Grand-Daughter of Pompey, convinced of being one of the eagereſt for Auguſtus's Death, was thus pardoned. The Emperor ſent for him to his Chamber, and after making him ſenſible of his many Favours to him, and reproaching him with his Ingratitude, he pardoned him. This Generoſity made ſuch an impreſſion upon Cinna's Heart, that he ever afterwards ſerved this Prince with all the Zeal imaginable, and made him Heir of what he left at his Death. Plutarch ſpeaks of another that was torn in pieces by the people, who thought he had a hand in Julius Cæſar's Death. Seneca.

CINNA (Lucius Cornelius) a Roman Conſul, who being often raiſed to the higheſt Dignities, oppreſſed the Commonwealth with the greateſt Cruelty. During his firſt Conſulſhip, in the 667th of Rome, he made a Law to re-call all the Baniſhed, but Cneius Octavius, his Colleague, generouſly oppoſed their Proceedings, and forced him to withdraw out of the Town, whither he returned again with the help of Marius Sertorius, and the Slaves, to whom he promiſed their Liberty; overcame his Enemies, killed Octavius, and made himſelf Maſter of Mount Janiculus. And after this he made himſelf Conſul in 668. and 669. and a fourth time in 670. about which time, being grown inſupportable to his Army, by his frequent baſe Cruelties, he was ſtoned to death at the Town of Ancona, as he was preparing to make War againſt Sylla. Tit. Liv. Aurelius Victor., Paterc. &c.

CINNADON, a young Man of Sparta, who, through his great Ambition to come to the Government, deſigned the death of the Ephori. Ariſtotle ſays, that the Plot was diſcovered, and that he was ſeized at Aulone, where having diſcovered his Accomplices in his Torments, all was preſently diſſipated. But Xenophon will have it, that this Treaſon came to be known by the Victims at a Sacrifice that Ageſilaus Offered the Gods, called Alexicaci by the Greeks, and by the Latins, Averrunci, that is, Preventers of Evils; and adds, That when Cinnadon was asked, what his Aim was in that Undertaking; he anſwered, It was becauſe he could ſuffer none above him in Sparta. Xenophon.

CINNAMUS (John) a Greek Hiſtorian, Stil'd himſelf, The Royal Grammarian. He Liv'd about the year 1180. and wrote a Hiſtory of the Reign of Johannes Compenus, and his Son Emmanuel Comnenus. This Book was printed in one Volume in Quarto, at Utrecht, in 1652. with a Latin Tranſlation, and Cornelius Tollius's Notes. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc.

CINYRAS, King of Cyprus, was ſo unlucky, as to have his Daughter Myrrha in love with him, and at laſt ſhe came to bed to him in a Diſguiſe, and made him the Father of Adonis. There are probable reaſons to believe that Cinyras is the ſame with Noah, and that Myrrha or Mor, was Cham's Wife. Explication cation of the Fable of Adonis in Biblioth. Univerſe, T. 11. *Ovid. Metam. Lib.*10.

CINYSCA, Daughter to Archidamus, King of Sparta, and Siſter to Agis and Ageſilaus; ſhe was the firſt Woman that entered the Ring, at the Olympick Games, where ſhe carryed off the Prize at the Foot-race, and had a Statue ſet up for her upon this Score, by the Lacedæmonians. Pauſan. in Lacon.

CIOUTAT, a Town and Port of the Sea of Provence, between Marſeille and Thoulon, though it has not been known but of late, yet ſew doubt but it's the Port Catharitta, mentioned by Pliny and other ancient Authors. It lies ſo well for the Sea, that people reſolved to build a Town there, which Commerce has rendred one of the beſt on thoſe Coaſts: The Port is defended by a good Fortreſs, and there is a good Mole for the Conveniency of Veſſels. Pliny. Bouche Deſcr. de Provence.

CIPPUS Genucius, a Roman Pretor, who perceived, as he went out of the Town to fight the Enemy, that Horns grew out of his Head; ſuch an extraordinary thing made him Conſult the Southſayers, who ſaid it ſignified that he would be made King, if he had the good Fortune to return again to Rome. But after he had gained the Victory, he ſent for the Roman people out of the Town, and told them, that he had rather Condemn himſelf to perpetual Baniſhment, than to aſpire to the Glory that the ſtrangeneſs of what befel him portended to. Hereupon the Romans, to honour the Memory of ſo generous a Pretor, put a Braſs Head to repreſent his, on the Gate he went out at, which ſince was called Rauduſculana, becauſe the Romans called braſs Raudus. Val. Max. Lib. 5. Chap. 6.

CIRCASSIA, or the Country of the Circaſſes, or Circaſſians, a vaſt Place in Aſia, which for the greater part belongs to the Czar, or Great Duke of Muſcovy. The Black Sea, and Mont Caucaſus, parts them from Georgia to the South, and the River Don or Tanais to the North, where they have the little Tartars their Neighbours; on the Eaſt they have the Caſpian Sea, and the Mouths of the River Volga, and at the Weſt the Palus Mæotis, and the Streights of Caſſa. Here are ſeveral petty Princes, but all Subject to the Great Czar, who is alſo Maſter of the Town of Teiki, Fortified after the Modern way by a Dutch Engineer. The reſt of the Country has hardly any Towns at all, and is but thinly inhabited, for the Circaſſians keep generally in Foreſts to be out of the Tartars reach, who hunt after them to make Slaves of 'em, becauſe it's a Nation much eſteem'd, the Men being very handſome, and well Limb'd, and ſo ingenious withal, that they generally ſucceed in whatever they are put to; beſides they are excellent Horſemen. They Traffick moſt in Slaves, Honey, Wax, Cow-Hides, Buck and Tigers Skins, &c. and uſe no Money, but Trade altogether by Exchange. They Howe their Grounds. Their Horſes are very lively, and in far greater Eſteem than the Tartar Horſes are; they themſelves are held to be the faireſt and handſomeſt people in the World, and the kindeſt to Strangers. They have been formerly Chriſtians, but are now many of them, for want of Inſtruction, become Mahometans; but becauſe they have no written Laws, they content themſelves with the Profeſſion they make of being Chriſtians or Mahometans, without exerciſing either. Theſe Circaſſians ſpeak a particular Language beſides Turkiſh. The Grand Seignior is Maſter of Taman and Tameruck, to the Weſt of them, to ſecure the Paſſage to Azac, at the Mouth of the Don or Tanais. Olearius's Voyage of Perſia. Herbert. Sanſon.

CIRCE, a famous Witch, often mentioned by Poets: ſhe Poiſoned her Husband the King of the Sarmatæ, and was therefore Baniſhed by her Subjects, whom ſhe deſigned to Govern her ſelf. In her Exile ſhe came to Italy, and kept her Reſidence on a Promontory, which was called by her Name; It was here ſhe changed Scylla into a Sea-Monſter, looking upon her to be her Rivaleſs for Glaucus. She entertained Ulyſſes when his Fleet was caſt away upon the Coaſts near her Houſe; Made the Stars come down from Heaven in his Preſence, and Metamorphoſed his Companions into different ſorts of Beaſts. Mythogoliſts will have Circe to be a lively image of Senſual Pleaſures, that change Men of the greateſt parts into Beaſts. *Ovid. Lib.*14. Hom. Odyſſ. 10.

CIRCENSES, Plays and Combats us'd at Rome, like the Olympicks in Elis, a Province of Greece, Dedicated to Jupiter, the firſt kept in Honour of Conſus, God of Counſels, were called Circenſes, from the Latin Word Circus, a place hedg'd in where the Antagoniſts ran from one Liſt to another, ſometimes with one Horſe, at other times with a Chariot, and two or four Horſes, to ſhew their Fleetneſs and Dexterity; and this place was called the Cirquus, whence he that won the Prize was led to the Temple in great Pomp, and Crown'd with Myrtles. The Roman Emperors in ſucceeding Ages, kept theſe Sports with much Magnificence, carrying the Images of their Gods, Emperors, and great Commanders, as in their great Triumphs. Alexander ab Alexandro, l. 5. c. 8.

CIRCUMCELLIANS, a Sect of the Donatiſts in Africa, in the fourth Century, they were ſo called, becauſe they rambled from one Town to another, and pretending to publick Reformation, and Redreſſing of grievances, they Manumis'd Slaves without the leave of their Maſters, forgave Debts, which were none of their own, and committed a great many other Inſolencies. They were headed by Maxides and Faſer. At the beginning of their Diſorders they Marched only with Staves, which they called The Staves of Iſrael, in alluſion to the Cuſtom of the Iſraelites eating the Paſchal Lamb, with Staves in their hands, but afterwards they made uſe of all ſorts of Arms againſt the Catholicks: Donatus called them the Saints Chiefs, and revenged himſelf upon the Catholicks by their Aſſiſtance: A miſtaken zeal for Martyrdom made theſe People deſtroy themſelves; ſome of them threw themſelves down Precipices, others leap'd into the Fire, and ſome cut their own Throats; ſo that their Biſhops, not being able to prevent ſuch horrible and unnatural violences, were obliged to apply to the Magiſtracy to put a ſtop to their Frenzy. St. Auguſtin, Hereſy 69. Baron. A.C. 331. *N.*9. &c. Philaſtrius, &c.

CIRCUMCISION, a Ceremony of the Jews, which has not been particular to them alone, but us'd by ſeveral other People, as may be ſeen in Herodotus; and hence it is, that the Æthiopians have always obſerved it, and do ſtill, notwithſtanding of their being Chriſtians: It's alſo well known, that the Mahometan, Turks, Perſians and Arabians, practice it ſtill; but the laſt not until they come to the Age of Thirteen years, becauſe Iſmael, from whom they derive their Origin, was not Circumcis'd before that Age, according to Joſephus, l. 1. of the Jewiſh Hiſtory. R. Leo of Modena gives us the following Account of the Ceremonies us'd by the Jews, when they Circumciſe, which they never do before the eight days mentioned in the Law, but they defer it when the Child happens to be Ill or Weak. There is a Godfather to hold it during the Operation, and the reſt of the Ceremony: And a God-mother who brings it from the Houſe to the Synagogue, and carries it back again. He that does the Operation is called Mohel, that is, Circumciſer, and may be whom they pleaſe to chuſe; for the Child's Father, if Dexterous enough can be admitted; the place is not determined, but may be in any Houſe as well as the Synagogue. The place pitch'd upon is made ready very early, and two Seats prepared with Silk Cuſhions, one for the Godfather to ſit on, the other deſign'd for the Prophet Elias, who is thought to aſſiſt Inviſibly at all theſe Ceremonies; a great many people flock thitherto along with the Circumciſer, who brings a Diſh, wherein his Inſtruments, and other Neceſſaries are; as his Raſor, Aſtringent, Powder, Rags, Cotton, and Oil of Roſes; ſome ſay there is alſo a Porringer, with Sand or Earth, to receive the Prepuce; whilſt they expect the Godmother, who comes accompanied with other Women, and delivers the Godfather the Infant at the Synagogue Door, for no Woman comes in; they within ſing ſome Hymn or Cantique, and when the Child is come they all cry, Baruc Habba, or Welcome. The Godfather places the Child on his Knees, the Circumciſer undoes the Clouts, and taking his Raſor ſays, Bleſſed be thou O Lord who haſt commanded us to Circumciſe, in pronouncing theſe words he cuts the thick skin of the Prepuce, and with the Nails of his Thumbs tears the other thiner; then twice or thrice ſucks the Blood that runs out, and Spits it into a Cup of Wine: After that he dreſſes the Wound with Dragons Blood, Coral Powder, and what other things are moſt proper to ſtop the Blood, laying Clouts on, ſoak'd in Oil of Roſes, and then ties it up. This ended, the Mohel takes a Cup of Wine, and after Bleſſing it once, repeats a ſecond Benediction for the Child, giving him the Name they have choſen for him, and then pronouncing theſe words of Ezekiel, Live in thy Blood, he moiſtens his Lips with the Wine that he had Spit the Blood into; after which they repeat the 238 Pſalm, &c. Happy are thoſe that fear the Lord, &c. This being ended, the Godfather gives the Godmother the Child to carry it home, and give it to its own Mother. If a Child chances to die before he is Circumcis'd, there are ſome that do the Ceremony upon him when Dead with a Reed; but if it be a Daughter, there is no more done, but at the beginning of the Month, when the Mother is up, and goes to the Church, the Singer Bleſſing the Child, gives it the Name that the Father deſires. All this is out of Leo of Modena's fourth part of his Book Of Ceremonies, Chap. 8.

CIRENCESTER, Lat. Corinium, Durocornovium, Cornovium, an old Roman City in Gloceſterſhire, ſituate upon the River Churne, about twelve Miles South Eaſt of Gloceſter. Here the four Proconſular Ways made by the Romans croſs'd each other; and vaſt numbers of Roman Coins, Inſcriptions, &c. have been digged up; but it was ſo ruined by the Saxons and Danes, that what is Wall'd in there is not a fourth part of it Inhabited, the reſt being Fields and Orchards: The Inhabitants ſubſiſt moſt by Cloathing. It was taken by Prince Rupert by Storm in 1643. It is 68 miles from London.

CIROLA, an Arian Biſhop of Africa, who being ſupported by Huneric, perſecuted the Orthodox. In a Conference that the Catholick Prelates deſired he made them all ſtand, and got himſelf a Throne erected, upon which he ſat in as great Pomp as a Prince. The Biſhops bore this uſage without Complaint, but when they heard the King's Secretary give Cirola the Name of Patriarch, they could not forbear asking, that it might be ſhewn what that new Dignity was founded on, which ſo nettled the Hereticks, that they got them ſeverely Baſtinadoed, deprived them of their Goods, and perſecuted them with an incredible Fury. Baron. Victor Utic.

CIRQUE, or Circus, a ſpacious place at Rome, between Mount Palatin and Aventin, environed with Buildings, in form of a Circle or Oval. This was for the publick Plays; and in the Amphitheatre that was quite round it, were Galleries and Boxes for the Spectators to ſit or ſtand in: Some ſay, That Tarquinius Priſcus, the Fifth King of Rome, built this Cirque, though he did nothing but juſt point the Place; for in his time it was environ'd with Scaffolds of Wood covered with Boards, and Benches. It was after his days that the fine and lofty Buildings were finiſhed, and the place embelliſhed with the great number of Marble Buts, round which the Courſers ran. There were alſo Pillars and Obelisks, adorned with Hieroglyphicks. The Emperor Claudius, to render it more Beautiful, got moſt part of the Marks and Obelisks gilt with Gold. Caligula Paved it with Vermillion Stone, ſoadered with Gold. Heliogabalus added the Filing of Gold and Silver. Nor did the Galleries want their Beauty neither, for in them hung up the Images of their Gods, with the richeſt Spoils of the Enemy. They had other Cirques at Rome, but this was called The Great one, becauſe it was the moſt Spacious and Beautiful. Roſin. Lib. 5.

CIRRHA, a little Town in Phocis, upon the Gulf of Corinth, now called the Gulf of Lepanto, near Delphos: The Ancients believe there was a Cavern in it, from whence proceeded Oracular Exhalations, which inſpired People with Predictions: This Town was the Port to Delphos, and gave the Name of Cirrhæus Sinus to part of the Gulf of Lepanto. Plin. Ptolem. &c.

CIRTA, an Ancient City in Numidia, in Africa, called afterwards Conſtantine, being the Capital of the Province of Conſtantine, in the Kingdom of Algier. In this City, we read in Salluſt, that Jugurtha killed Adherbal, the Son of Micipſa, King of Numidia. It became an Epiſcopal See, in the Primitive Ages of Chriſtianity. A Council was held at it, by Secundus, Primate of Numidia, wherein moſt of the Biſhops of that Province were Convicted of being Traditores, i. e. delivering up their Bibles to the Infidels in the Diocleſian Perſecution: A Second Council was held there in 412. under Sylvanus their Primate, but the Acts of this Synod are loſt; the only remains of it are in an Epiſtle of St. Auſtin's who aſſiſted at it; 'tis written in the Name of the Fathers of the Aſſembly. St. Auguſtin Ep. 152. Lib. 3d. Cont. Creſc. c. 26. &c. Optat. Lib. 1. Cont. Parmen.

CISTERCIANS, or Citeaux, a religious Order ſprung from St. Benet's, and is famous ſince the XIth Age, when it was founded in 1098. by Robert, Abbot of Moleſme, in the Dioceſs of Langres, who built the Firſt Abbey of this Name in the Dioceſs of Chalons, by the great Gifts of Otho I. Duke of Burgundy, and the Aſſiſtance of two Prelates, Gautier of Chalons, and Hugues of Lyons, who being then Legate of the Holy See, approved the Inſtitution. Robert returned to Moleſme, leaving Alberic, Abbot of Citeaux, in 1099. Stephen Succeeded him Ten Years after, Received St. Bernard with his Companions, which rendred the Order ſo powerful, that it Governed moſt part of Europe a whole Age, both in Spiritual and Temporal Concerns. Baronius, St. Marthe.

CITTA-DUCAL, or Reale, a City in the further Abruzzo, in the Kingdom of Naples, being a Biſhops See, under the Arch-biſhop of Chieti: It ſtands upon the River Velino, Fifteen Miles from Aquila, within the Eccleſiaſtical State.

CITTA-NOVA, a City of Iſtria in Italy, with a Biſhop's See, under the Arch-biſhop of Aquileia, at the fall of the River Quieto, into the Adriatique. It ſtands in a bad Air, and conſequently little Inhabited, 'tis called Nova, becauſe Built ſince the ancient Æmonia, a little below the Ruins of which Town it now ſtands.

CITTA-VECCHIA, Medina, or Melita, a City in the Iſland of Maltha, with a Biſhop's See, under the Arch-biſhop of Palermo, Situated upon a Hill, in the middle of the Iſland, having formerly been the Capital thereof.

CIVDAD-REAL, a City in the Province of Chiapa, (thence commonly it ſelf called Chiapa) in the Northern America, being a Biſhop's See, under the Arch-biſhop of Mexico, whereof the famous Bartholomeo della Caſa, was Biſhop in the laſt Age. There is a Town of this Name in New Caſtile in Spain, upon the River Guadiana, between Calatrava and Almagra. 'Tis ſituate in a very fertil Country, and of a large Circumference, but thinly Inhabited, by reaſon of the Scarcity of good Water.

CIV DAD-RODRIGO, a Town in the Kingdom of Leon in Spain, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Compoſtella, ſuppos'd to have been built by Ferdinand II. in the year 1200. for a Rampart againſt the Portugueze.

CIVENCHEU, a great Town in the Province of Fokien in China, inferiour to no other in Stately Houſes, Magnificent Temples, Palaces, and Triumphal Arches, of an admirable Structure. The Conveniency of the Sea, which is not far from it, renders its Commerce very conſiderable; yet it is more famous for the Bridge Loyang, built upon a River of that Name, to the North of the Town. This World is hardly able to match this Sumptuous Work, being three hundred ſixty Perches in length, and one and a half broad, ſupported in lieu of Arches, by three hundred great Pillars that form ſharp and acute Angles to break the ſtrength of the Water; five great Stones take up all the breadth from one Pillar to another, and each of the five is eighteen Foot long; the ſides are adorned with Sculpture, and Embelliſhed with ſeveral Figures; nor is this but one part of the Bridge that ends at a Caſtle; on the other ſide whereof is another almoſt as long as this, and built the ſame way. Coll. of Thevenot.

CIVILIS (Claudius) a prince of Batavia, very Famous, not only for his Royal Extraction, but alſo for his Valour, and great Wiſdom, he lived in 70. and deſerved to be compared for his rare Qualities to Sertorius and Hannibal, whom he alſo reſembled in ſome Deformity that appeared in his Face. He made his Country Men and Neighbours revolt againſt the Roman Empire, and managed the Affair with ſo much Policy, in the beginning, by chuſing a General amongſt the Caninefates, that the Romans did not look upon him as a declared Enemy, but ſome time after, when he could no longer keep on his Vizard, he gave them ſeveral Battles, and being beat home, contriv'd his Buſineſs ſo well, that he came off clear, perſwading them to a Peace, and pretending that they were obliged to him for favouring the Legions, alledging, for the Occaſions of the War, his ill Uſage from Vitellius, together with his ſecret Inclination for Veſpatian, who had honoured him with his Friendſhip when but a private Man, and the frequent and preſſing Requeſts of Antonius Primus, who thought thoſe Troubles the only poſſible means to retain the Legions that were on the Rhine, and hinder the Gauliſh Youth from croſſing the Alpes in favour of Vitellius, whom he always conſidered as his Enemy. Tacit. Hiſt. l. 5. Sup.

CIVITA Vecchia, a Town of Italy, with a famous Port in St. Peter's Patrimony. Some Authors take it to be the Centum-Celles of the Ancients. See Centum-Celles.

CIVITELLA, a Town of Italy, in the farthermoſt Abruzza, in the Kingdom of Naples, ſituated on a place called Caraceno, upon the North ſide of a rugged and ſteep Mountain, towards the Adriatick Sea. There has formerly been a Cittadelle at the Foot of this Mountain, Fortified with five Baſtions, but now demoliſhed. Some ſay the Inhabitants deſtroyed it about the time that Charles the VIIIth paſs'd into Italy. On the Weſt which is the ſteepeſt Side, is the River Librata; yet the French attempted to take this place in 1557. under the Duke of Guiſe, but were forced to quit the Undertaking. M. de Thou. l. 18.

CLADIN, Sultan of Iconia, who being Baniſhed his Country by the Tartars, made himſelf Maſter of Aſia Minor, where he became very Powerful, and laid the Foundation of the Turkiſh Empire, in 1296. gave the Government of Carmania to Otrugarelus, and was himſelf ſucceeded by his Son Ottoman, with the Title of King. Calviſius in his Chronology.

CLAES (Chriſtian) an Inhabitant of Leckerkerck, a Town in Holland, eight or ten Leagues from the Hague, whoſe Wife was brought to bed on the 21ſt of June, 1686. of a Son, that lived almoſt two Months; 17 hours after ſhe was laid of a ſecond Son Still-born, and 24 hours after of a third, that lived two hours; at the end of 24 hours more, ſhe had another Still-Born, but died in Labour of the fifth.

CLAGENFURT, Lat. Clagefurtum, formerly called Claudia, is a Town of Germany, Capital of the Dutchy of Carinthia, and was in times paſt the Reſidence of the Ancient Dukes: It lies about two Leagues from the Drave, and is as far off from St. Vier. Its form is ſquare, all environed with a ſtrong Wall, and ſome other Fortifications; the Streets are narrow, but regular; and not far from the Town is a great Lake. Cluvier.

St. CLAIRE, a Religious Order of Women, the ſecond that Saint Francis Founded about 1213. and was Confirmed by Pope Innocent IIId. and afterwards by Honorius IIId. in 1223. It was called St. Claire's Order, from its firſt Abbeſs and Nun Clara of Aſſiſe, and was afterwards divided into Damianiſts and Urbaniſts. The firſt follow the ancient Diſcipline in all its Rigour: but the others the Rule with Urban IVth's Allowance. Spondan. Wading, &c.

CLAIR-VAUX, Clarevallum, a famous Abby of Champaign, upon the River Aube, in the Dioceſs of Langres, and about Five Leagues from that City. It was founded in the year 1115. by the famous St. Bernard; himſelf being the firſt Abbot, who left above 700 Religious in it, at his Death. Nicholas de Clairvaux, Ep. 37. & 45. Robert d'Auxerre in Chron. &c.

CLARE, Clarence, Lat. Clarentia, a Country Village in the County of Suffolk, about ſix miles Weſt of Sudbury, upon the River Stoure, which divides Eſſex from Suffolk. It had once a Caſtle, but now ruined, yet famous for the great Men who have Born the Titles of Earls or Dukes of it. The laſt of which was George Duke of Clarence, Brother to Edward the IVth, King of England, who in 1421. was drowned in a But of Malmſey. The ſecond King at Arms retains the Surname of Clarencieux, as appertaining formerly to the Dukes of Clarence. At preſent the Title of Earl of Clare is in the Family of Hollis. There is alſo a Town and County in the Province of Connaught in Ireland of this Name. The Town ſtands on the North ſide of a Lake, made by the River Shannon, near three Miles South of Eniſtown. The County, otherwiſe called the County of Thomond, took the Name of Clare from [illegible] de Clare, one of the younger Sons of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Glocester, on whom it was conferred by King Edward I. It lies between the River Shannon on the South, and the Weſtern Ocean on the Weſt.

CLARENDON, a Noble Country-houſe and Park, belonging formerly to the Kings of England, about two Miles North of Salisbury, in Wiltſhire, famous for a Parliament held there, in 1164. King Charles II. made it the Title of an Earldom, in the Perſon of Sir Edward Hide, Lord Chancellor, who upon the 20th of April, in 1661. was created Earl of Clarendon, Viſcount Cornberry, &c.

CLARENTIA, or Clarenza, a Country in the Morea, ſuppoſed to contain the ancient Achaia, (properly ſo called) Cicyonia and Corinth, heretofore famous under its own Dukes. The Capital City bears the Name of Clarenza.

CLARIO, in Latin Clarius, (Iſidore) Biſhop of Fuligno, in Umbria, a Perſon of Note in the 16th Century. He aſſiſted at the Council of Trent, and harrangued there with Reputation. He made Notes or Scholia upon all the Old Teſtament, where he pretends to Correct the Vulgar by the Hebrew, but has, in effect, done nothing more than Tranſcribe Sebaſtian Munſter. See Father Simon's Critical Hiſt. upon the Old Teſtament. Lib. 2. c. 20.

CLAUDE of Lorrain, firſt Duke of Guiſe, Peer, and great Huntſman of France, Count of Aumale, Son to Rene II. Duke of Lorrain, was Born in 1496. He gave ſuch Proofs of his Courage and Conduct in the Battle of Marignan, and at that of Heſdin, in the Conqueſt of Luxemburg, and in relieving Landrecy, that Francis I. to manifeſt his eſteem of him, erected the Land of Guiſe into a Dutchy and Peerage in his Favour, in 1528. Claude died two years after at Joinville. Hiſt of France, Geneal. of Lorrain.

CLAUDE (John) Miniſter of Charenton, well known this Age by his Writings and Diſputes of Religion, againſt M. Arnaud, was born in 1618. in the Lower Guienne, where his Father, Francis Claude, Miniſter of Montbaziliac, improv'd his good Genius, by the Great Care of his Education. At firſt he Exerciſed his Miniſtry at Treyne, whence he paſſed to St. Afrique in Rovergne, and thence to Niſmes, where he taught Divinity with great Applauſe for eight years, until his Zeal in oppoſing the Project of Re-union, which was only a Pretext to ruin the Proteſtant Religion procur'd him to be ſent for to Paris, where he Compos'd his firſt Anſwer to M. Arnaud's Treatiſe, Intituled, The Perpetuity of the Belief of the Catholick Church concerning the Lord's Supper. He went hence to Montauban, which he was forced to quit four years after by an Expreſs Order from the King; and being come to Paris, was choſen Miniſter of Charenton, in 1666. where he preached many ſound good Sermons, and publiſhed his Learned Anſwers againſt Novet the Jeſuit, M. Arnaud, and Nicole, in all which he ſhewed a profound and high Genius, a rich and fertil Imagination, with a Majeſtick and Lofty Style, always ſuiting the Subject he handled. All his Works ſeem well Meditated, and furniſhed with a force of thought and Expreſſion not commonly met with in others; for he had form'd a Syſtem of Notions, to which he was always conſtant, never Writing any thing inconſiſtent with his Principles, which with his exact and ſuccinct Style, renders the whole judicious, and clears him from the vain imputation of an expert Sophiſter, and cunning Orator, which Character Morery would fix upon him. As for the reſt, his Life was ſo pure, that his very Enemies did never accuſe him of any thing but his pretended Errors. The great Deference the French Proteſtants had for him, and his vigorous oppoſition of the Project of Re-union, expos'd him often to Court Storms; as when he was removed by an Order of Council out of Niſmes, he came to Court to get this Revoked, but was ſo far from embracing the Re-union, or providing for himſelf, as was falſly given out, that it was at that very time he publiſhed his firſt Work againſt M. Arnaud, and ſhew'd clearly by his manner of diſpute againſt the Roman Church, how little he was enclined to enter into her Communion. The ſecond piece he was preparing againſt M. Arnaud, drew another trouble upon him; for they that had a Concern for Arnaud's Reputation, to interrupt the Work, got him baniſhed from Montauban, whither he was invited when he loſt all hopes of returning to Niſmes; but this new Diſgrace, and cunning Practice of the Janſeniſt Party, contributed to his Glory. For the Jeſuits, who were not at all troubled to ſee M. Arnaud Mortify'd by M. Claude's Reply, diſingaged the Preſs from the Embargo, which M. Arnaud's Friends had laid upon it; and the good acceptance this met with in the World, got him the Chair of Charenton, where he diſtinguiſh'd himſelf more and more, both by his Sermons, and other Treatiſes, which gain'd him a Reputation that will make his Name Immortal. In fine, His Conduct was ſteady and firm amidſt the great Troubles and Perſecution of thoſe of his Party in France, which he aſſiſted with his Advice, and had his ſhare in their Misfortunes. He was a Man of too much Sincerity to deſire Conferences out of a Principle of Vanity. Theſe are only Fictions to ſtain his Credit: As for that he had with the Biſhop of Condom, now Prelate of Meaux, it's well known he was againſt it a long time; and that Madam Duras was reſolved to change her Religion before ſhe ſent for him, but was willing to make a noiſe to render it more plauſible, by pretending it was becauſe ſhe could not be ſatisfied. But ſince both Parties have publiſhed a Relation of this Conference, 'tis in the Reader's power to pronounce upon the Victory. Morery obſerves, that in this Diſpute, M. Claude was preſſed by the Biſhop, and forced to own the perpetual Viſibility of the Church, which is not unlikely. As for what is ſaid concerning M. Claude, and the Arch-biſhop of Paris, there is no man of ſenſe will believe that M. Claude would engage himſelf, as was pretended, with a Prelate of ſo great Eſteem and Power at Court, at leaſt, in M. Le Clarke's Opinion. Beſides the Books before-mentioned, M. Claude Publiſhed one himſelf, Entituled The Proteſtants Complaints, which is a kind of Proteſtation againſt the Revocation of the Edict of Nants, and the Privileges allowed the Reformed of that Kingdom; and his Son Publiſhed five other Tomes of his after his Death. Le Clarke.

CLAUDE, Duke of Aumale, Peer and Grand Veneur of France, &c. Son of Claude, Duke of Guiſe, and born in the year 1526. He was bred a Soldier, was a Perſon of great Courage, and not to mention his other Exploits, he diſtinguiſh'd himſelf at the Battles of Dreux, St. Denys, and Moncontour, and was killed in the Trenches, with a Cannon Ball, at the Siege of Rochell, in 1573. Davila, Thuan, &c.

CLAUDE, Biſhop of Turin, Lived in the IXth Cent. He wrote againſt the Worſhip of Images, the Invocation of Saints, and Pilgrimages. Wallafridus Strabo. De Offic. Eccl. cap. 8. Mabillon in Analect. &c.

CLAUDIA, a Veſtal Virgin amongſt the Romans, was accuſed of Incontinency, becauſe ſhe ſpent much time in Dreſſing her ſelf; but was abſolved by this ſtrange Adventure. At the time that Hannibal ravaged Italy, they read in the Sibylles Books, that they ought to carry Cybele's Statue to Rome, and as they deſign'd to bring it up upon the Tyber, it ſtopped on a ſudden, and could not be mov'd if ſome pure Virgin did not lend her help; whereupon Claudia preſented her ſelf, and begged of the Goddeſs, if ſhe had any Knowledge of her Virtue, to vouchſafe to follow her, ſo faſtning her Girdle to the Veſſel that had the Statue in it, drew it after her. This ſame Virgin at another time, ſeeing a Tribune of the People, out of a grudge he bore her Father, pull him violently out of his Triumphal Chariot, ſhe ran and oppos'd it with ſo much Courage, that in ſpight of the Magiſtrate, her Father went in Triumph to the Capitol.

CLAUDIAN Mamertus, Brother and Vicar to Mamertus, Biſhop of Vienne, liv'd in the Fifth Century, about the year 460. He wrote Three Books concerning the State of the Soul, which he Dedicated to Sidonius Apollinaris, who gives him the Character of a Perſon of great Learning and Piety. In this Book Claudian endeavours to Confute a Treatiſe ſuppoſed to be written by Fauſtus, Biſhop of Riez, in which the Biſhop denies the Immateriality of all Created Beings, and thus by deſtroying the Spirituality of the Soul, he conſequently deſtroy'd the Proof of its Immortality. 'Tis ſaid likewiſe, That Claudian wrote a Poem againſt the Prophane Poets. *Sidonius Apollinaris, Lib.*4. Ep. 3. 11*th*, &c. with Sirmondus's Notes. Bellarm. de Script. Eccl. &c.

CLAUDIAN, (Claude) a Latin Poet that Lived under Theodoſius, and his Sons Arcadius and Honorius in the IVth Age; and though the Learned do not agree about his Country, they all do in this, that the Style of his Poems draws nigher that of Virgil's, than any one that has imitated that Prince of Poets; and Scaliger ſays, That he ſupplied the meaning and bareneſs of his Subject, with the Fruitfulneſs of his Fancy and Wit. Proſper is alſo of the ſame Opinion. Orrſius, Voſſius.

CLAUDIUS, Herminianus, Intendant of Cappadocia, for the Romans; was ſo great an Enemy to the Chriſtians, that by God's juſt Puniſhment he was Eaten alive with Worms, which he endeavoured to keep as ſecret as poſſible, ſaying, That it would be a Satisfaction to Chriſtians ſhould they know it. This happened, An. J.C. 208.

CLAUDIUS Pulcher, a Roman Conſul, Son to Appius Claudius Cæcus. He was Conſul in 505. year after the Foundation of Rome, with L. Junius Pullus, and loſt the Sea-fight in Sicily againſt the Carthaginians, which Misfortune was attributed to his ſlighting the Popular Superſtition of the Sacred Birds. The thing was thus: C. Attilius Regulus, and L. Manlius Volſo, Conſuls in 504. laid Siege to Lilybeum in Sicily, and Claudius Pulcher at the ſame time deſigned an Attempt upon Drepanum, which was not carried on ſo ſecretly but Aſdrubal, Governour of the Place, had notice of it, and put his Ships in Line of Battle, at the Mouth of the Port. Claudius was ſurprized to find him in that Poſture, but withal thought he could not in Honour withdraw, wherefore he raſhly ſets upon Aſdrubal, who made ſuch good uſe of his Advantages, that he Sunk ſeveral of the Roman Ships, took 93. and purſued the reſt almoſt as far as Lilybeum. This was believed a juſt Puniſhment upon Claudius, for deſpiſing the Sacred Birds; which when they were preſented him to obſerve, that they would not Feed, he took the Cage in Anger. and flung it into the Sea, crying, Let them Drink ſince they will not eat. Claudius at his Return to Rome, was Depoſed and Fined; and being obliged to Name a Dictator, in Contempt of the Senate, he choſe one C. Glaucia, a poor Wretch, the object of all Peoples Deriſion, whom the Senate forced to Abdicate in favour of Attilius Collatinus. The Family of the Claudians was very famous and conſiderable at Rome, being ing come of Appius Clauſus, or Claudius, that lived at Regille, a Town of the Sabins, which he quitted to ſettle in Rome. Urſinus de Famil. Roman.

CLAUDIUS, Tiberius, Druſus, Nero, Emperor, Son of Druſus, who was ſecond Son of Livia, Daughter of Auguſtus, Claudius, was alſo Brother to Germanicus, and Nephew to Tiberius, was Born at Lyons, the ſame day that an Altar was Conſecrated to Auguſtus, which Sixty different Nations had Erected for him. Whilſt he was young, he was ſo weak in Body and Underſtanding, that he was thought incapable of exerciſing any publick or private Charge, which was the reaſon that neither Auguſtus nor Tiberius gave him any Employment. Antonia his Mother uſed to ſay, he was a Monſter only begun by Nature; and when ſhe found fault with any one, ſhe generally ſaid, He was as great an Aſs as her Claudius. In the 37th year of Chriſt he exerciſed the Charge of Conſul for Two Months, but was nevertheleſs ſtill the Object of the Contempt and Deriſion of all the World. He afterwards came to the Crown by a very ſtrange Adventure; for having hid himſelf to eſcape thoſe that had Murthered Caligula, he was diſcovered by a Soldier, who ſaluted him Emperor, and carrying him to his Companions, they led him to the Camp, and kept him the whole Night on the Guard; the next Morning they Swore Allegiance to him, and he promiſed them 15 Siſterces each. Being thus ſettled on the Throne, he made it his chief Care to aboliſh altogether the Memory of what had paſſed, and provide the City with Neceſſaries, which with his Moderation and Contempt of Honour, gain'd him the Love of all the People: He finiſhed ſeveral conſiderable Works, as the Aqueducts to bring Water to Rome, which was called for that reaſon the Claudian Water; made a Sluce to Drain the Fucian Lake; finiſhed the Port of Oſtia, &c. The Rebellion of the Inhabitants of Great Britain made him leave Rome to reduce them, which he ſoon did in 43. and it was the only Expedition he was in Perſon in all his Life. Afterwards ſuffering himſelf to be Governed by thoſe he had made free, his Weakneſs became ſo apparent, that all People laugh'd at it: And the Power he gave theſe mean People, continued to diſhonour the Empire with all ſort of Vice, frequent Baniſhments, Murthers, and Proſcriptions, whereof they were the only Occaſions. This Emperor was four times Married; firſt to Plautia Urgulanilla, and was promiſed before he Married her to Æmilia Lepida, Auguſtus's Grand Daughter; was alſo contracted to Livia Medullina, who died the very day appointed for the Wedding; Plautia bore him a Son and a Daughter: The Son was choak'd when a Boy, by a Pear he threw into the Air, to receive in his Mouth; and the Daughter, after he had turned the Mother away for Adultery, was expoſed at her Door. His ſecond was Elia Petina, whom he alſo Repudiated, after ſhe had bore him a Daughter, called Antonia, who was Married to Pompey, and afterwards to Sylla. Meſſalia, famous for her Impudicity, was his third Wife: This was ſo bold and extraordinary Impudent, and withal ſo confident of her Husbands Stupidity, that ſhe Married another even in his Life time, but paid for it: For he ordered that ſhe ſhould be put to Death in 48. and ſome days after called for her as if ſhe had been ſtill alive. He had a Son and Daughter by her. The laſt named Octavia, was married to Nero, who firſt Repudiated, and then put her to Death, after Poiſoning her Brother Germanicus. Claudius took Agrippina for his fourth Wife, which was his own Neece, being Daughter of his Brother Germanicus, but ſhe ſoon rid her ſelf of him, by mixing Poiſon with his Muſhroms: This happened in the 54th year of Chriſt; he being then ſixty three years old, whereof he Reigned thirteen. Seneca, out of a Complacency to Nero, takes notice of an infinite number of Faults in Claudius; but Suetonius affirms, that he was not Deformed, it's true, ſays he, he had weak Legs, and his Head always ſhaked; but theſe Infirmities were the effects of Poiſon given him in his Youth, which rendered him fearful, ſimple, and extraordinary forgetful, the reaſon why he was ſo great a Slave both to his Paſſions and mean Favourites. His fat Neck and ſlavering Lips, with other Signs of the Infirmity of his Body, mark'd alſo the weakneſs of his Brain; though if we believe Suetonius, he undertook to write a Hiſtory at Tit. Liv. and Sulpicius Flavius's Requeſt, who helped him, and alſo the Defence of Cicero againſt Aſinius Gallus, with other Pieces, and ſome Letters. Dion. Tacit. Sueton.

CLAUDIUS II. or Marcus Aurelius Claudius, called by others, Flavius Aurelius, Emperor, lived in the IIId Age, was General of a Roman Army, and choſen Emperor at Pavia, in 268. after the Murther of Gallienus, and his Brother Valerian, to which it's ſaid he was Acceſſary. He beat the Goths, the Scythians, the Herules, with other Barbarians, that made a Body of above 300000 Men, and had 2000 Ships, which they that eſcaped the Fight, hardly recovered to carry them back into their Country. Before this great Victory he had defeated Aureolus, when declared Tyrant by Claudius, and worſted the Germans, which made Trebellius Pollio ſay in his Commendation, That he had the Moderation of Auguſtus, the Vertue of Trajan, and Antonin's Piety. Eutropius adds, That the Commonwealth found his Government ſo mild after the Troubles it had underwent, by the Factions of its ſeveral Provinces, that as a mark of their extraordinary Eſteem, they made him put on a Golden Buckler in the Palace, and erected him a Statue of the ſame Metal in the Capitol; they alſo ranked him amongſt their Gods after his Death, which happened in 270. at Sirmich in Pannonia, after a year and ten Months Reign. Euſebius, Trebellius Pollio.

CLAUDIUS Marius Victor, or Victorinus, a Rhetorician of Marſeilles, lived in the fifth Century, about the year 425. was one of the beſt Poets of his time; he has left us three Books in Hexameter Verſe, Dedicated to his Son Ætherius, in which he writes upon the Hiſtory of Geneſis, from the Creation of the World to the Deſtruction of Sodom; there is likewiſe an Epiſtle of his to Salmonius, extant, in which he declaims againſt the Immorality of that Age. Gennadius, C. 60: *Tom.*8. Bibliotheca Patrum.

CLAVIUS (Chriſtopher) a Jeſuit, born at Bamberg, in Germany, lived towards the latter end of the XVIth Century; he had a ſtrong Genius for Mathematicks, and Cultivated that Study to Perfection, and was looked upon as the Euclide of his time. His Works are in Five Volumes; the firſt contains theſe following Treatiſes, Commentarius in Euclydis Elementa Geometrica. In Sphærica Theodoſi; Sinuum, Tangentium & Secantum Ratio & Tractatus Triangulorum. In the Second Volume, we have his Geometria Practica. Arithmetica Practica. Algebra. The Third contains his Commentarios in Sphæram Johannis de Sacro Boſco. Aſtrolabium. In the Fourth Volume are, Gnomices, Lib. VIII. Fabrica & Uſus Horologiorum. Horologiorum Nova Deſcriptio, &c. In his Fifth Volume we have his, Romani Calendarii à Gregorio XIII. reſtituti Explicatio. This Treatiſe was written by the Order of Pope Clement VIII. to which he added his Computus Eccleſiaſticus, Novi Calendarii Romani Apologia & Appendix ad Apologiam. Clavius died at Rome, in the year 1612. being 75 years of Age. Ribadiniera. Alegamb. Deſc. Soc. Jeſus Voſſius de Scient. Mathem, &c.

CLAUSEMBOURG, called by Latin Authors Claudiopolis, and by them of the Country Coloſwar, a Town of Tranſilvania, with Title of the Biſhoprick, ſituated upon the little Brook Samos, at the Foot of the Mountains towards the Frontiers of Hungary, three Leagues from Waradin. It's encompaſſed with very thick Walls, and the Houſes are very well built; it's defended by an ancient Fortreſs; the Suburbs are ſo large and well peopled, that it ſeems to be another Town. The Inhabitants are both Hungarians and Saxons, who live in a good Unity and Correſpondence, ſo that both are equally capable of offices and Places of Truſt in the Government. The Duke of Lorrain in 1687. forced it to receive a Garriſon of Germans, for the Emperor.

CLAZOMENE, a Town in Ionia, in Aſia Minor, 'twas Built about the 98th year of Rome, in the 31*ſt Olympiad*, Situated upon the Ægean Sea, between Smyrna and Chio, 'twas famous for the Birth of the Philoſopher Anaxagoras, and ſeveral other great Men, Strabo, Lib. 14. *Plin. Lib.*5.

CLEANDER, Miniſter of State to the Emperor Commodus, Lived in the IId Age, and from Valet de Chambre to this Prince, ſucceeded to Perennis in Favour and Power, who was put to Death for his Crimes, and became Miniſter of State in 186. but was as immoderate as his Predeceſſors in Selling of Places, Recalling and Preferring the Baniſh'd for his proper Gain, for which he alſo put People but juſt made free into the Senate, Revers'd and Annull'd the Magiſtrates Sentences, rendring thoſe he ſuſpected his Enemies, Criminal before the Prince. Byrrhus the Emperor's Brother-in-law was put to Death upon his Accuſation, that he aſpired to the Empire, and many other innocent and good people were involved in this pretended Conſpiracy. At laſt his Inſolence and Cruelty went ſo far, that the People reſolved not to ſuffer it any longer, and were ready to Rebel, for Arius Antoninus's Death, whom he had Condemn'd, until the Emperor, to appeaſe them, put Cleander to Death. This happened in 190. whereof Herodius ſpeaks thus: Cleander, a Phrygian by Birth, of that ſort of People that are Sold in publick Sale, being received at the Emperor's Court as a Slave, found the way to Ingratiate himſelf ſo much with Commodus, that he came to be Captain of his Guards, afterwards great Chamberlain, and ſole Colonel of the Pretorian Troops; ſo that ſeeing himſelf both Rich and Powerful, he began to have thoughts of the Empire; for which reaſon, having gathered a vaſt Sum of Money, he bought a great quantity of Corn, which he hid, in hopes, that if a Famine ſhould happen, he might gain himſelf the Soldiers and Peoples Affection, by diſtributing it to them. Herodian, Lampridius.

CLEANDER, an Arcadian, Head of the Slaves of Argos, kept up the War a great while, which the Slaves there had begun againſt their Maſters. The Story runs thus: After Cleomenes, King of Lacedæmon, had extinguiſh'd about Six hundred Families in Argos, the Slaves ſeiz'd upon the Eſtates of the Town, and Abdicated their Maſters, who were Minors; Cleander headed the Slaves in this Revolution; but after a long Conteſt, the Uſurpers ſunk, and the Right Heirs were reſtored.

CLEANTHES, Son to Phanias, a Stoick Philoſopher, lived in the CXXXIVth Olympiad, in the 510th year of the Foundation of Rome, and 240th before the Chriſtian Æra, was Native of the Town of Aſſon in Epirus, and firſt of all a Wreſtler, afterwards went to Athens, and having but four Drachmas, applied himſelf entirely to the Study of Philoſophy under Zeno, where he deſerved, by his great Aſſiduity and Labour, bour, the Name of Hercules; for being very poor, he was forced to draw Water in the Night-time for his Maintenance, that he might ſtick cloſe to his Study all the day. It's alſo reported of him, that being queſtioned before the Magiſtracy, how he maintained himſelf, he brought a Gardiner, whom he wrought for, and a Woman who uſed to imploy him to knead her Bread; upon whoſe Teſtimony, the Areopagites cleared him, and offered him a Preſent, which he refuſed: For want of Money to buy Table-Books, he made uſe of Tiles and Bones, to mark what he learned of Zeno, whom he ſucceeded, and amongſt other Diſciples, had King Antigonus, and Chryſippus, his own Succeſſor. He died very old; 'tis ſaid he ſtarved himſelf, being convinced of the Immortality of the Soul; for he made this Anſwer to his Phyſicians, who told him he might eat, after he had faſted two days for the Cure of his ſwoln Gum, My time is come. Diogenes Laertius cites ſeveral Works of Cleanthes, of which we have nothing remaining, excepting ſome Fragments in Stobæus, and in the fifth Book of Clemens Alexandrinus's Stromata. Diogenes Lib. 7. Cic. Lib. 3. De Nat. Deor. &c.

CLEARCHUS ſent by the Lacedæmonians to appeaſe the Troubles of the Byſantins, and to ſettle the Affairs of that State, became a down-right Tyrant as ſoon as the People had put the Power and Authority into his hands. The better to eſtabliſh his Sovereignty, he rais'd a Company of Guards to ſecure his Perſon, put all the Magiſtrates and Judges to death at a Sacrifice to the Gods, ſtrangled Thirty of the chief Men of the City, and afterwards pick'd out the rich People of Byzantium, charged them with Crimes, that he might have a pretence to Baniſh or put them to Death, and ſo Confiſcate their Goods. The Lacedæmonians hearing of his Proceedings, ſent to him to quit that uſurped Domination, but he ſlighted the Meſſage, retiring to Selymbria with his Riches, where finding that he was purſued, he came to meet his Enemies, loſt the Battle, and being uncapable to defend the Town, fled to Ionia, to young Cyrus, and was afterwards at ſeveral Fights, in which he ſhewed great Courage. Greek Hiſtorians ſay farther of him, that being Chief Commander of the 10000 Greeks that went to ſerve young Cyrus, and ſeized, contrary to promiſe, by Tiſſaphernes, one of Artaxerxes, King of Perſia's Generals againſt Cyrus, he was carried before that Perſian Prince, who ordered he ſhould be Chained, and ſoon after Condemned him and the other Captives to die, and that their Bodies ſhould lie unburied, but only his, that was to have Earth caſt over it, out of which grew a Palm-Tree.

CLELIA, a young Maiden of Rome, one of the Hoſtages that were given to Porſenna, when to Reſtore the Tarquins he laid Siege to the City in the 247th of its Foundation. It's ſaid, ſhe Stole away from his Camp by Night, and that having got a Horſe by Chance, ſhe croſſed the Tiber, but was ſent back again to Porſenna, who diſpatched his Ambaſſadors to demand her, yet diſmiſſed her and all the reſt for the great eſteem he had for her Vertue. The Senate Erected her a Statue on Horſe-back in their publick Market-place. Tit. Liv. Aurelius Vict.

CLEMANGIS (Nicholas de) Doctor of the Sorbonne, at Paris, and Arch-Deacon of Bayeux, in Normandy; He was Secretary to the Anti-pope, Benet XIIIth, and wrote a Treatiſe, De Corrupto Eccleſiæ Statu, together with ſome other Pieces. Spondan, A.C. 1381. N.6. &c.

CLEMENCE, worſhipped by ancient Pagans as a Goddeſs, repreſenting her with a Branch of Lawrel in one hand, and a Lance in the other, to ſhew that Mildneſs and Mercy belonged properly to Victorious Warriours. The Romans Dedicated her a Temple after Julius Cæſar's Death. Claudian deſcribes her as the Guardian of the World; and the Emperors Tiberius and Vitellius had her Engraven on their Coyn.

S. CLEMENT I. of this Name, Diſciple of St. Peter; We have nothing that is truly his, but his firſt Letter to the Corinthians. See the Criticks of Rivet. Biſhop Pearſon believes that he kept the See of Rome from 67. to 69. and Mr. Dodwell thinks it was from 64 to 81. who alſo ſuppoſes his ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians to be rather a fragment of a Homily, than a Letter, or that it was writ by ſome body that heard Clement pronounce it. Irenaic. Diſſ. 1.

CLEMENT II. a Saxon by Nation, named Suidger, or Singer, Biſhop of Bamberg, choſen Pope by the Council of Sutri, aſſembled by the Emperor Henry IIId. in 1046. where Gregory VI. was depoſed. He Crowned the Emperor, and his wife Agnes, Daughter of William IV. Duke of Guienne; he followed them to Germany, where he died in 1047. nine months after his Election. Leo of Oſtie, Baronius.

CLEMENT III. a Roman, called before by the Name of Paulinus, or Paul Scholari, ſucceeded Gregory VIIIth, from 1188. to 1191. after whoſe Example he promoted a war againſt the Saracens, who became very ſtrong in Palæſtina, after the taking of Jeruſalem by Saladin. King Philip Auguſtus, and Henry II. of England, met between Giſors and Trie, and reſolved to take the Croiſſade, the firſt raiſed Contributions, under the Name of Saladins Tiths, Baronius, Du Cheſne.

CLEMENT IV. a French man, ſucceeded Urban IV. in 1265. his own Name was Guy the Groſs; he was firſt a Soldier, and afterwards ſtudied with ſuch Succeſs, that he paſſed for one of the beſt Lawyers of his Age, which made St. Lewis make him his Secretary, but his wiſe dying ſoon after, he turned Clergy-man, was Arch-Deacon, then Biſhop of Puy in Velay, and at length Arch-biſhop of Narbonne, where he received the Cardinal's Hat, ſent him by Urban IV. who alſo employed him as Legat in England, whence, as he returned, he was choſen Pope in 1265. and Crowned at Viterbo, where he died in 1268. having Reigned three years, nine Months, and twenty five days. His works are Quæſtione Juris de Recipiendarum Cauſarum Ratione. Epiſtolarum Volumen, &c. Genebrard, Onuphrius, Platina.

CLEMENT V. a Frenchman of the Province of Gaſcoigne, Archbiſhop of Bourdeaux, called Bertrand de Gout, or of Agou, Son to Beraut Lord of Gout, Rovillac, and Vilandrade, was choſen Pope after Benet XI. the See being vacant about a Year before. He was the only Man of that Nation that the Italian Cardinals would hear talk of, looking upon him as Subject to England, and an ill Wiſher to France, for the bad Uſage his Family received from Charles of Valois during the Wars againſt the Engliſh; yet Philip the Fair conſented to his Election, ſome ſay, after a private Conference with him, wherein the Archbiſhop ſwore to keep the Promiſe which he then made him. The Ceremony of his Coronation was kept the 14th of November, 1305. at the Church of St. Juſt at Lyons, Philip the Fair, Charles of Valois his Brother, and ſeveral other Princes aſſiſting at it, which is remarkable for a ſad Accident that happened by a Wall, that, being overburthened with Spectators, yielded, and killed John II. Duke of Britany, Gaillard the Pope's Brother, with many more, the King and his Brother were alſo ſlightly hurt, the Tiara or Crown fell off Clement's Head, and loſt a Carbuncle of great Price. This Accident was looked upon as an Omen of the Misfortunes of Italy under him, by the Civil Wars occaſion'd by his removing the See to Avignon, where it remained 70 Years, called by the Italians, The Captivity of Babylon. Clement died in 1314. after he had held the See almoſt Nine Years. Poſſevin, Genebrard.

CLEMENT VI. a Frenchman of Limoſin called Peter Roger, Son to William Roger Lord of Rozez in the Territories of Malemont, ſucceeded Benet XII. the 7th of May 1342. brought the Jubilé of the Holy Year to be kept every Fiftieth, oppoſed Lewis of Bavaria in his Pretenſions on Italy; and died at Avignon in 1352. Ten Years Seven Months and Two Days after his Election. Poſſevin, Arnoul. Petrarch, who lived in his Time, gives him the Character of a very learned Pope, and commends him for his extraordinary Memory, which retained every thing with ſuch Exactneſs, that he had not ſo much as the Power of Forgetfulneſs, and which is ſtill more remarkable, this prodigious Memory was gain'd by a Fall, which was ſo great, that the Scar always continued upon him.

CLEMENT VII. believed Antipope, was called Robert of Geneva, and was Son to Amadeus III. Count thereof. See Schiſm of the Weſt.

CLEMENT VIII. Antipope, called before Giles of Munion, was of Arragon and Canon of Barcelona, but received only by the King of Arragon, who had him choſen to be revenged of Pope Martin V. This Antipope begun to create Cardinals, but in 1429. having called an Aſſembly, he abdicated the pretended Dignity, proteſting that he conſented to his Election only for the Peace of the Church. Du Puy.

CLEMENT VII. Lawfully choſen, called Julius de Medicis, was Son to Julian de Medicis, killed at Florence by the Pazzi in 1478. He was Knight of Rhodes, afterwards made Cardinal by Leo X. and ſucceeded Adrian VI. in 1523. His Reign is remarkable for what happened during it, for all Germany being divided about Luther's Reformation, and Clement fearing Charles the Fifth's Power, entered into a League with the French and Venetians, and writ to the Emperor ſomewhat in too high a Strain, who returned him an Anſwer in the ſame Style; and the Coloneſi that were of his Party roſe againſt the Pope; the Cardinal of that Name cited him before the Council that Charles intended to call at Spire, forcing him to retire to the Caſtle of St. Angelo in 1526. The next Year Charles of Bourbon, General of the Emperor's Army, took and plundered Rome, ſo that Clement was obliged to pay 40000 Crowns of Gold for his Ranſom, and to make his Eſcape incognito, after which he made a Peace with the Emperor in 1529. by the Marriage of Alexander de Medicis created Duke of Tuſcany, with Margaret, Charles's Baſtard Daughter. This Alliance was followed by another, viz. the Marriage of Catharine de Medicis to Henry II. afterwards King of France. During theſe Tranſactions, Henry VIII. of England Divorces his Queen Catharine of Auſtria, and is excommunicated by Clement, whereupon that Prince declares himſelf Head of the Church in his own Dominions, and gives way to the Reformation, which he was againſt until then. This Pope died Sept. 1334. having held the See ten Years, ten Months, and ſeven Days. It's obſerved that he was the firſt that wore his Beard long, which happened by his neglect to get himſelf ſhaved the ſeven Months that Charles V. kept him confined in the Caſtle of St. Angelo; his Succeſſors in imitation of his, let theirs grow too. Paul. Jovius. Ciaconius. Genebrard.

CLEMENT VIII. Native of Fano in the Patrimony of St. Peter, was choſen in 1591. after the Death of Innocent IX. abſolved Henry IV. of France in 1595. notwithſtanding the Spaniſh Intrigues, forwarded the Peace concluded at Vervins in 1598.

and after the Death of the Duke of Ferrara, united that Dutchy to the See of Rome. At the beginning of his Popedom he viſited the Pariſh-Churches and Monaſteries of Rome, and proteſted, in this Viſitation, That he intended to bring the Clergy of this City up to ſuch a pitch of Innocency and Piety, that they ſhould ſerve for a ſort of Pattern to the whole World. Afterwards he made a very commendable Order againſt Duels. He would determine nothing upon the famous Queſtion De Auxiliis, or concerning Grace and Free-Will. He created at ſeveral different Promotions above 50 Cardinals, whereof Baronius, Bellarmin, Perron, Oſſat, Tolet, and De Sourdis, were the moſt conſiderable. He held the See 13 Years and 33 Days, and died in 1605. Spond. Ciaconius. In 1667. the Hiſtory of the Congregation De Auxiliis was publiſhed in Flanders, with part of the Original Memoirs, in which there are a great many honourable things ſaid of this Pope.

CLEMENT IX. called before Julius Roſpiglioſi, deſcended of a Noble Family of Piſtoie in the States of the great Duke of Florence, ſucceeded Alexander VII. in 1667. and died in 1669. of Grief to hear that Candie was taken, notwithſtanding his great Care and expences for its Relief.

CLEMENT X. of the ancient Family of Altieri of Rome, ſucceeded Clement IX. in 1670. who made him Cardinal on his Death-Bed, and foretold him then that he would be his Succeſſor. He was a peaceable Man, and died in 1676.

CLEMENT, one of Agrippa's Slaves, Poſthumus Son of Marcus Agrippa, knowing that he was very like his Maſter (who was baniſhed by his Grandfather Auguſtus to the Iſle of Planaſia near Corſica, and murthered by Tiberius his Order at his coming to the Crown) let his Beard and Hair grow, and would fain have paſt for the true Agrippa. His Boldneſs might have troubled the Empire had not Tiberius taken Care to ſeize and put him to Death. Tacit. l. 2.

CLEMENT, Titus Flavius, called Alexandrinus, becauſe he was Prieſt of the Church of Alexandria, lived in the Third Age in 205. and 214. under the Empire of Alexander Severus, and his Children Geta and Caracalla. He is thought to be a Native of Athens, whence he travelled, and became Pantænus's Diſciple, whom he ſucceeded in the School of Alexandria, where Origen ſtudied under him. His Works are, Protrepticon, ſive Oratio Exhortatoria ad Gentes Pædagogia, Lib. 3. Stromatum, Lib. 8. There are ſome other Works aſſign'd this Author, but not with the ſame certainty. They that have a mind to ſee his Life, and the Criticks upon his Works, may conſult the Tenth Tome of the Univerſal Bibliothec.

CLENARD, a famous Grammarian born in Brabant, lived in the Sixteenth Age. He writ Inſtitutiones Linguæ Græcæ, Meditationes in Linguam Græcam, Tabula in Grammaticen Hebræam, &c.

CLEOBIS, Brother to Bito, Sons to Juno's Prieſteſs, who, when their Mother wanted Horſes for her Chariot, ſet their Shoulders to the Coach and drew her to the Temple, which was forty eight Furlongs. The old Lady being much affected with this Inſtance of Duty, pray'd the Goddeſs Juno to bleſs 'em with the beſt Fortune which was poſſible to happen to Mankind: The next Morning after this Devotion, they were both found dead in the Temple: Which Story is mention'd by Tully in his Tuſculan Queſtions, to ſhew, That Death is to be look'd upon rather as an Advantage, than an Evil. Herod. l. 1. Cic. Valer. Maxim. l. 5, &c.

CLEOBULINA, Daughter of Cleobulus King of Rhodes, and only Heireſs of his Crown, which ſhe abdicated in favour of Eraſtides, to apply her ſelf to Philoſophy, and the Study of other Sciences, which ſhe preferr'd to the Throne. Suidas.

CLEOBULINA, Daughter to Cleobulus of Lindus, call'd by ſome Authors, Eumeta. She was a good Poeteſs, and was wonderfully ſubtil at propoſing and inventing of Riddles, which made her famous as far as Egypt, where theſe Subtilties were much in vogue. This Lady had a great Delicacy of Genius, the Courage of a Hero, a ſound Judgment, and a charming Humour, inſomuch that ſhe mollified the rigorous Temper of her Father, and made him more mild in the Government of his Subjects. Euſebius mentions her under the LXXXIId Olympiad, though 'tis probable ſhe lived a great while before. Diog. Laert. Athenæus, l. 10. c. 15. Plutarch in Convivio Sapient. &c.

CLEOBULUS, Son of Evagoras, Native of Lindus, or, according to others, of Caria, deſerved to be named amongſt the Seven Sages of Greece. He was Courageous, Handſom, a great Lover of Learning, and as great an Enemy to Ingratitude and Perfidiouſneſs. He always adviſed to oblige Friends, to preſerve them, and Enemies to gain them; and placed Vertue in an Averſion to Vice, and in ſhuning Injuſtice. He died in the LXX Olympiad at 70 Years of Age. Diogenes Laertius.

CLEOMBROTUS I. of this Name, King or Commander of Sparta, was Son to Anaxandrides, and begun to govern in the 270th of Rome. It's ſaid that he quitted the Deſign he had form'd of building a Wall in the Iſthmus of Corinth againſt the Incurſions of the Perſians into the Peloponneſus, upon an Eclipſe of the Sun that happened the 2d of October at One in the Afternoon. This was according to the Computation of the learned'ſt Aſtrologers in the LXXV. Olympiad, and Cleombrotus died about the LXXVII. Pliſtarchus, Son to Leonidas, ſhould of Right have ſucceeded him, but being a Child, Pauſanias manag'd the publick Affairs. Herodotus, Plutarch.

CLEOMBROTUS II. Son to Pauſanias II. ſucceeded his Brother Ageſipolis King of Lacedæmon, who died in the War againſt the Olinthians. He was ſent twice againſt the Thebans, and the 3d time loſt the famous Battel of Leuctres in Bœotia, by the Valour of Epaminondas, who commanded but a handful in compariſon of the great Number of the Lacedæmonians, who, beſides their Credit, loſt their beſt Men, with their King Cleombrotus, after a Reign of 9 Years. This Battel was fought in the CII Olympiad, the 382 Year of Rome. Xenophon l. 5.

CLEOMBROTUS, Native of Ambracia, an Academick Philoſopher, who reading Plato's Book of the Immortality of the Soul, threw himſelf headlong into the Sea. It's not known what Age he lived in, but Plutarch ſpeaks of a Philoſopher of this Name in his Treatiſe of the Reaſons why the Oracles have ceaſed to give Anſwer.

CLEOMEDES of Aſtipalæa, a Man of that Strength, that he beat down a Pillar with his Fiſt in a School, where the Ceiling cruſh'd all the Children to Death; being purſued, he got into a Cheſt, which could not be opened until broke in pieces, and then he was not to be found, upon which the Oracle being conſulted, it anſwered, that he was the laſt of the Demi-Gods. Plutarch compares this Fable to the Romans Belief that Romulus was carried to Heaven. Plutar. in Rom.

CLEOMEDES, One of the Thirty Tyrants ſet up by Lyſander the Lacedæmonian to govern the Republick of Athens, after he had taken that Town. This Cleomedes, with the reſt of his Colleagues, was baniſhed by Thraſybulus the Athenian, after he had routed 'em in Battel. Xenophon.

CLEOMENES I. of the Name, King of Lacedæmonia, lived in the LXXth Olympiad, ſucceeded his Father Anaxandrides, ſubdued the Argians, and freed the Athenians from the Tyranny of the Piſiſtratidæ, and would have puniſhed the Eginetæ for their Treachery in ſiding with Darius, had not Demaratus, King of another Family, oppoſed the Revenge, and obliged him to return, which troubled Cleomenes ſo much, that for Revenge he got Demaratus declared Illegitimate, and put Leutychides in his Place, having gained Pythia, or the Oracle at Delphos, to ſpeak againſt his Adverſary, who withdrew to Perſia, leaving Cleomenes to puniſh the Eginetæ; after which he grew ſo furious and mad, that he rip'd his own Belly, and died in this ſtrange Action. Herodotus.

CLEOMENES II. Son to Leonidas King of Lacedæmon, begun his Reign in the 518th of Rome; his Tyranny put him and the Spartans at difference, but he got the better of them, put four of the Ephori to Death, divided the Land, remitted Debts, and allowed the Strangers the ſame Privileges with the Native Burgeſſes, as Agis had promiſed, and reſtored the Laconique Diſcipline to the ancient Method; after that he marched againſt the Achæans, and defeated them in a pitched Battel about the 530th Year of Rome. Aratus being Jealous of his Succeſs, raiſed Antigonus the Tutor againſt him, who after different Fortune, took Sparta, and forced him to fly to Egypt, where he was kindly received by King Ptolemy Evergetes; but this Prince happening to die, Ptolemy Philopater his Son and Succeſſor acting by Soſibius's Advice, retained Cleomenes Priſoner at the time he expected his Aſſiſtance to be re-eſtabliſhed. This Uſage caſt him into a Deſpair that was the Occaſion of his utter Ruine, and of the Death of many of his Friends in a great Tumult of the People, which he fooliſhly following the Advice of Nicagoras, his underhand Enemy, endeavoured to raiſe againſt their Prince in making his Eſcape. Ptolemy ordered his Body to be tied to the Gallows, and put his Mother, Children, and his Wife to Death. This happened in the CXL Olympiad, and the 535 Year of Rome, and 16th of the Reign of this unfortunate Prince. Polybius. Juſtin.

CLEON, a very troubleſom Athenian Orator, Enemy to the beſt Generals of the Republick. Ariſtophanes accuſes him alſo of cheating the Publick in his Comedy called Equites, which is a bitter Satyr againſt him. Yet, though he was little verſed in war, having the Command of the Athenian Army, he took Torone in Thrace, and marched with a Deſign to beſiege Amphipolis, but upon Advice that Braſidas, General of the Lacedæmonians, was not far off from that place, he quitted the Undertaking;

Braſidas purſued and gave him Battel, wherein both he and Cleon were killed. This happened in the third Year of the LXXXIX Olympiad, which was the 3632 of the World, 332 of Rome. Thucyd. l. 4.

CLEON, a Famous Pyrate, who by his Power and Riches made himſelf Sovereign of the Town of Sicyone after Ariſtratus's Death, but his Tyranny did not hold long, for he was killed by the Townſmen.

CLEONYMUS, Son to Cleomenes II. King of Sparta, being concerned that Areus, Son to his Brother Acroatus, was preferr'd to him in the Kingdom of Sparta, brought Pyrrhus into the Country; having a Deſign alſo to revenge the Affront his Wife received from the young Nephew. This was about the CXVIII Olympiad. Diodorus ſpeaks of the ſame alſo, who being ſent to Sicily to relieve them of Tarentum, then in War with the Romans, took Thurium in the Country of the Salentins, but was afterwards beaten by the Conſul Æmilius, in the 452 Year of Rome.

CLEOPATRA, Attalus's Niece, was Married about 416 of Rome, to Philip of Macedon, after he had repudiated Olympias, whoſe Pride and ill Humour rendred her inſupportable. But Philip being killed by Pauſanias in the CXI Olympiad, the cruel Olympias made Cleopatra hang her ſelf, and exerciſed the like fury upon all that belonged to her. Plutarch, Diodorus.

CLEOPATRA, Daughter to King Philip of Macedon, and Siſter to Alexander the Great, married Alexander, whom her Father made King of the Epirotes. She made a very conſiderable Faction after her Brother's Death, and brought all Macedonia under her Power, ſo that Perdiccas and ſeveral other Princes ſought her in Marriage, but Antigonus put her to death at Sardis, in the CXVIII Olympiad, the 446 of Rome. Juſtin.

CLEOPATRA, Daughter to Ptolemy Philometor King of Egypt, much admir'd for her Wit and Beauty, and no leſs hated for her vile Cruelties; ſhe firſt married Alexander Bela King of Syria, whom ſhe quitted for Demetrius Nicanor; and hearing that he being Priſoner in Perſia, had married Rodogune, ſhe ſent for his Brother Antiochus Sidetes, whom ſhe married, but put him to Death; and was ſo angry that her Son Seleucus had put himſelf upon the Throne againſt her Will, that ſhe ſhot him dead, ſubſtituting Antiochus VIII. firnamed Gryphus in his Place, who underſtanding that this Bloody Megera had prepared him Poiſon, forced her to drink the Potion her ſelf. This was in the CLXIV Olympiad, and 630 of Rome. Joſeph. Appian. Juſtin.

CLEOPATRA, Daughter to Ptolemy Phyſcon King of Egypt, was married the firſt time to Ptolemy Lathurus, her Brother, but being repudiated by him, ſhe married Antiochus Cyzicenus King of Syria, who war'd a long time againſt Antiochus Gryphus his Brother, married to Gryphine another Daughter of Ptolemy Phyſcon. Theſe Princeſſes always accompanied their Huſbands, and in a Battel that Antiochus of Cyzicum loſt, Gryphine ſtrangled Cleopatra with her own Hands, after ſhe had drawn her from under an Altar, whither ſhe went for ſhelter, but her Cruelty did not remain long unpuniſhed, for Antiochus of Cyzicum, getting the better afterwards, took Gryphine and ſacrificed her to Cleopatra's Ghoſt. Juſtin.

CLEOPATRA, Daughter of Ptolemy Epiphanes, and of another Cleopatra Siſter and Wife to Ptolemy Phyſcon or Euergetes, King of Egypt. This laſt died in the 637 of Rome, ſo that Cleopatra impowered by his Will to make choice of which Son ſhe pleaſed to ſucceed him, deſigned the Crown for her youngeſt Son Alexander; but the People unwilling to conſent to ſuch Injuſtice, forced her to give it to the right Heir Ptolemy Lathurus. All ſhe could do then was to croſs him in making him put away his Wife and Siſter Cleopatra, to take the younger Celene; but ſome time after, in 654, ſhe made him leave the Crown to Alexander, whom ſhe alſo uſed ſo unworthily, though her beſt beloved, that he quitted the Throne to be rid of her Trouble. Cleopatra recall'd him, but he knowing her Deſign, got her cruelly murthered in the 664 of Rome. The Alexandrians being diſpleaſed at ſo unnatural an Action, and beſides, weary of his ill Life and Conduct, baniſhed him in 665. The other Cleopatra, Wife to Ptolemy Lathurus, was afterwards married to Antiochus of Cyzicum King of Syria in 641, and was the ſame that was aſſaſſinated in a Temple by her Siſter Gryphine or Tryphine, Wife to Antiochus Gryphus, her Father's Couſin, and Husband's Brother by the Mother's ſide. Juſtin. Joſephus.

CLEOPATRA, Queen of Egypt, ſo much ſpoken of for her Beauty and looſe Life, was Daughter to Ptolemy Auletes King of that Country. She Reigned in 703. of Rome jointly with Ptolemy Denys her Brother, and ruled alone after that Prince, who ſhunning J. Cæſar's juſt Reſentment, was drowned in the Nile. Cæſar left the Kingdom to the Siſter, and had, as it's ſaid, a Son by her called Cæſareon. However, after Julius's Death, Marc-Anthony marching againſt the Parthians in 714. ſent to her to meet him in Cilicia, and anſwer to what was ſaid of her aſſiſting Caſſius and Brutus. This Princeſs, who beſides the Charms of her Beauty, had a very engaging Genius, could ſpeak 7 or 8 different Languages, and withal was the beſt bred, and moſt pompous Lady of the whole World, reſolved to ſubmit to this Conqueror, and for that end put her ſelf upon the River Cydnus in a Boat which had a Golden Stern, Purple Sails, and Silver Oars, with a Concert of ſeveral Inſtruments that kept Time with the Oars, ſhe her ſelf lying under a Canopy of Cloth of Gold, dreſs'd extraordinary rich. The ſame Night ſhe arrived ſhe invited Anthony to a magnificent Treat, who was ſo taken with her Charms, that he married her without any regard of his Wife Octavia, Auguſtus's Siſter, who would fain have followed him to the Eaſt, but he ordered her to ſtop at Athens, becauſe Cleopatra deſired it. This was in the 719 of Rome, and in 722 Auguſtus declared War againſt Anthony, beat him, and at laſt reduced him ſo low, that he killed himſelf, believing that Cleopatra had done the like; but ſhe ſoon followed, being ſtung by a Serpent which ſhe held to her ſelf, that ſhe might not be carried to Rome in Triumph, where People were very deſirous to ſee her. The Hiſtorians that ſpeak of this Queen accuſe her of being extraordinary Voluptuous, and ſo exceſſively Profuſe, that to ſupply her vaſt Expences, ſhe would put Anthony upon carrying the War into the Richeſt Countries, to have the Spoils. She Reigned about 24 Years after her Father's Death, and died the 723 or 24 of Rome, being the 4024 Year of the World. Appian, l. 5. Florus.

CLEOPATRA Selene (that is Moon) was firſt of all married to Antiochus Gryphus King of Syria, after him to Antiochus Cyzicenus his Brother, and the third time to Antiochus Euſebius Son to this latter. This Inceſtuous Princeſs was at laſt taken in a Battel againſt Tigranes King of Armenia, and condemned to die to expiate her Wickedneſs; for though ſuch Marriages were allowed then amongſt thoſe People, yet they ſeemed horrid when ſo frequent. Strabo, Joſeph.

CLEOPATRA Selene, Daughter to Mark Anthony and Cleopatra Queen of Egypt, was married to Juba Queen of Mauritania. She had part of the Realm of Cyrene in Dowry; and after the Defeat of Juba, ſhe was led in Triumph to Rome. Plutarch.

CLEOPHANTE of Corinth, one of thoſe that invented the firſt Embeliſhments of Painting, and drew Faces with Powder of Brick.

CLEOPHE, Queen of the Maſagues or Aſſacanes in the Indies, defended the Capital of her Kingdom Courageouſly againſt Alexander the Great's Army, until ſhe could hold no longer, and then diſpatched Heralds to the great Conqueror for Peace, and came her ſelf in Perſon to ſubmit to him, who left her the Poſſeſſion of her Kingdom. Some ſay he loved her, and that ſhe bore him a Son called Alexander, who was Poiſoned or Murthered by Caſſander's Orders. Diodorus, Q. Curt.

CLEOSTRATUS, a Native of Tenedos, the famous Aſtrologer that firſt diſcovered the Signs of Aries and Sagittarius in the Zodiack; he alſo corrected the Errors of the Grecian Year. He lived about the CXI Olympiad in Tarquinius Superbus's Days, 220 Years after the Foundation of Rome.

CLEPHIS King of the Lombards ſucceeded Albain in 574. and was killed by one of his Servants after a Year and 5 Months Reign. There was no King choſen after him, for there was an Interregnum for 10 Years; 30 of the chief Officers divided the Towns of Italy, committing all manner of Wickedneſs, without reſpect to Place or Perſon, ſo that it was as bad as the Perſecutions of the Pagan Emperors. Baronius, Paul. Diacon. Gregor. Magn. Dial. Lib. 3. c. 26, &c.

CLERAG, or Clairac, a Town of France in Guienne, four Leagues from Agen, and is far from Nerac upon Lot, which joins the Garonne a League below it.

CLERC (John) of Buſſy, Attorney of the Parliament of Paris, and Governor of the Baſtille for the Duke of Guiſe during the Ligue. It was he that undertook to ſeize the Principal Members of that Aſſembly ſuſpected by the Faction of 16. To compaſs it, he entred Armed into the Parliament Houſe, delivered a Writing, by which he deſired that the Court would join with the Provoſt of the Merchants, the Sheriffs and Burgeſſes of Paris, for the Defence of their Religion, and then withdrew, but finding 'em linger too long, he came back like a Madman, accompanied with 25 or 30 more all Armed, and order'd thoſe he ſhould name to follow him immediately upon pain of being ſeverely handled if they refuſed it; ſo he named the firſt Preſident Achilles of Harlay, the Preſidents Potier, Blanc-Meſnel, and De Thou, with the ancienteſt Councellors, and all the reſt to the Number of 60 followed their Head, Buſſy lead 'em in Triumph to the Baſtille, but confined none but thoſe he knew to be moſt in the King's Intereſt. Maimbourg Hiſtoire de la Ligue.

CLERMONT upon Acier, a Town in France, Capital of the Province of Auvergne, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Bourges. It was firſt call'd Gergovia, afterwards Auguſtonemetum, and at laſt Arvernum,Averna Civitas, and Clarus Mons, which laſt Name is thought it received from a high Caſtle built in it; nor is it doubted but it's built upon the Ruines of the ancient Gergovia, ſo much commended by Cæſar in the 7th Book of his Commentaries, though he had the Confuſion of being forced to raiſe the Siege he laid to it. Though this Place has at ſeveral times ſelt the Violence of the Goths, Alains, Vandals, and other Barbarians, yet it's ſtill a great and fair Town, ſituated upon a height, having on one ſide Vines and Hills, on the other fine Meadows, and moſt fertil Plains, and within it ſpacious Squares, Fountains, and ſumptuous Buildings. Here is alſo a very wonderful Bridge, if what is ſaid concerning it be true, that it was formed naturally of the little River Tiretaine, whoſe Water is ſaid to petrefie or harden into Stone. It's about 30 Fathoms long, 6 thick, and 8 wide. Here have been ſeveral Councils held, whereof the moſt remarkable is that of 1095. where Pope Vrban II. preſided, and moved for the firſt famous Croiſade, commanded by Godfrey of Bouillon. Du Cheſne.

CLERMONT, a Town of France in the Dutchy of Bar, with the Title of an Earldom, is built upon a little Hill over the River Air, 5 or 6 Leagues from Verdun to the Eaſt, and towards the Frontiers of Champagne; it has been well fortified,but in this Age the very Walls were demoliſhed. The Pyrenean Peace in 1659. confirmed the ſeveral particular Treaties by which it was yielded to France.

CLERMONT, a little Town of France in the Country of Beauvoiſis, famous becauſe Robert Count of Clermont, Son to St. Lewis, gave a beginning to the Royal Houſe of Bourbon. This Town is ſituated upon a height between Beauvais, Senlis, and Compeigne.

CLESIDES, a famous Painter, lived in the CXXVIth Olympiad, and the 480th of Rome, under the Reign of Antiochus, the firſt of that Name, King of Syria. It's ſaid, that being diſſatisfied at the Reception which he had from Stratonice, that Prince's Wife, he painted her in the moſt offenſive manner to her Honour poſſible, that is, in a Fiſher's Arms; then expoſed the Picture, and made his eſcape in a Veſſel that was ready to ſet Sail: And that the Queen ſeeing her ſelf advantageouſly drawn, choſe rather to have the Marks of Cleſides's Affront ſeen, than to ſuffer that ſo curious a Piece ſhould be burnt.

CLEVELAND, a Tract in the North Riding of York-ſhire, of good Extent, taking its Name from the Clifts running along the ſide of it, near which the Country ſpreads its ſelf into a fine fruitful Plain, King Charles I. did this Place the Honour to make it give the Title of an Earl to Thomas Lord Wentworth, who died without Iſſue.

CLEVES, a County of Germany, with the Title of a Dutchy, lies part on this, and part on the other ſide the Rhine, having the Dutchy of Berg, County of Mark, and ſome of Weſtphalia to the Eaſt, Brabant and part of the Dutchy of Gueldres to the Weſt, the Biſhoprick of Cullen and Territory of Aix-la Chapelle to the South, Over-yſſel,and the Province of Zutphen to the North. This Country is about fifteen Leagues in length, and four or five broad, the Capital is called Cleves too, from the Latin Clivis, which ſignifies a Sloping or Deſcent, becauſe it's built in a Place near the Rhine, where there are three ſuch deep Deſcents. This Derivation of Name from the Latin, makes ſome think that the Town was built by the Romans. However, it's but little, yet well Peopled, and lies upon a little River near the place where the Rhine divides its ſelf into two Branches, and where the Fort Schenk ſtands; there is a ſquare Tower, and other remains of old Buildings ſeen near it, which ſhew that it has formerly been far greater than it is now. The other Towns of this Country are, Emerick, Weſel, Burich, Santen, Orſoi, Rhinberg, &c. The Soil, though hilly, and much covered with Wood, is very fruitful in all kind of Grain, and abounds with good Paſture, and great quantity of Game. The Elector of Brandenbourg is now Duke of Cleves; he pawn'd Emerck, Rinberg, Orſoi and Weſel to the Dutch, who rendered him them after the War in 1672. By the taking of theſe the King of France began his Conqueſt on the United Provinces in 1672.

CLEVES, a Sovereign Family of Germany, extinct by the Death of John William Duke of Cleves, Juliers, Mons, &c. in 1609. without Iſſue by either of his Wives, Jacquelin of Baden, Daughter of Philibert Marquiſs of Baden, or Antoinette de Lorrain, Daughter to Charles II. Duke of Lorrain. This Death was the Source of the Civil Wars of Germany; for Mary Eleonor, the Duke's Eldeſt Siſter, left four Daughters, the Eldeſt called Ann, was married to John Sigiſmond, Marquiſs of Brandenbourg, and Elector of the Empire. This Elector, the Duke of Newbourg, the Duke of Deux Ponts, and the Marquiſs of Burgaw, which three laſt married the three younger Siſters, pretended all to the Succeſſion. John George of Saxony, who married one of Eleonor's Daughters, laid his Claim, and Charles of Gonzague and Cleves, Duke of Nevers, appear'd alſo, becauſe he was Couſin by the Mother's ſide, and bore the Name too. In the mean time the Emperor Rodolphus II. would Sequeſter the Eſtate, pretending alſo that it was a Fief, with an Intention perhaps to appropriate them to himſelf. It's thought Henry IV. was about taking the Field to decide this Quarrel, when he was murthered in 1610. Afterwards the Marquiſs of Brandenbourg, aſſiſted by the Dutch; and the Duke of Newbourg, ſupported by the Spaniards, diſputed the Succeſſion, which they divided at laſt. The Dutchy of Cleves the Counties of Marck and Ravensberg falling to the firſt: The Dukedoms of Juliers and Bergue being left to the Duke of Newbourg. The Spaniards under Spinola, made themſelves Maſters of Juliers in 1622. but it was reſtored to the Duke again in 1659. Sainte Marthe, &c.

CLIFFORD (Richard) Earl of Cork in Ireland, in conſideration of his real Aſſiſtance, and the ready Supply by him given to King Charles I. and by reaſon of his Marriage with the Lady Elizabeth, ſole Daughter and Heireſs to Henry late Earl of Cumberland, was by Letters Patents, bearing Date the 20th Year of his Reign, advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Clifford of Lansborough, in Com. Ebor. and afterwards, in farther Conſideration of his faithful Services, both in England and Ireland, as alſo for the great Merits of the ſaid Henry Earl of Cumberland, who, at the very beginning of thoſe Troubles, raiſed a conſiderable Power in Oppoſition to thoſe Forces then appearing againſt the King, was by other Letters Patents, bearing Date upon the 20th of March, in the 16th Year of the Reign of King Charles II. created Earl of Burlington, alias Bridlington, in Com. Ebor. This Earl had Iſſue by the ſaid Elizabeth his Wife, 2 Sons, Charles and Richard, and 5 Daughters, Frances, married to the Earl of Roſcomon in Ireland; Catherine, who died in her Childhood; Elizabeth, Wife to Nicholas Earl of Thanet; Ann, married to Edward Earl of Sandwich; and Henrietta, to Lawrence Hide, ſecond Son to Edward Earl of Clarendon. Which Charles, commonly called Lord Clifford of Lansborough,married Jane,the youngeſt Daughter of William late Duke of Somerſet, and had Iſſue 4 Sons, Richard, Charles, Henry, and William; and 4 Daughters, Frances, Elizabeth, Jane, and Mary. Dugdale.

CLIFTON (Sir Gervaſe) of Layton Bromſwould, in Com. Hunt. Knight, being a Branch of the ancient Family of Clifton, of Clifton, in Com. Not. had the Title of Lord Clifton by Writ of Summons to Parliament, 9 Jul. 6 Jac. and 15 Jac. was committed to the Tower for expreſſing, that he was ſorry he had not ſtab'd Sir Francis Bacon, Knight, then Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, for Decreeing a Caſe in Chancery againſt him, and in 1618. he murthered himſelf, leaving Iſſue by Catharine his Wife, ſole Daughter and Heireſs to Sir Henry Darcie of Brimham, in Com. Ebor. Kt. Son and Heir to Sir Arthur Darcie, Kt. a younger Son to Thomas Lord Darcie, one ſole Heir, called Catharine, who became the Wife of Eſme Steward, Lord D'Aubigny, a Place of the Dutchy of Auvergne in France, Son to John Lord D'Aubigny, younger Brother to Matthew Earl of Lenox in Scotland, who being afterwards Earl of March, as alſo Duke of Richmond and Lenox, had Iſſue divers Sons, of whom there is no Iſſue remaining, but Catharine, the Daughter of George Lord Aubigny (the 4th of them) Siſter and ſole Heir to Charles Duke of Richmond and Lenox her Brother lately deceaſed; which Catharine, the Wife of Henry Lord O-Brian, Son and Heir to Henry Earl of Thomond in Ireland, making her Claim to the Title and Dignity of Baroneſs Clifton, as ſole Heir to Catharine her Grandmother, Daughter and Heir to the before ſpecified Gervaſe Lord Clifton, in the Parliament begun at Weſtminſter 3 Car. II. and held by Prorogation for divers Years after, had, in 1674. that her Claim allowed. Dugdale.

CLIMAT, The Space of Land comprehended between two Circles, parallel to the Æquator, and ſo far diſtant one from the other,that there is half an Hour's difference in the length of their longeſt Day. Ancient Geographers, who did not know any Land to the North beyond the Baltick, and were but little acquainted beyond the Elbe, marked but 7 Climats from Meroe in Æthiopia, to the Mouth of the Boryſthenes, now called Nieper, northwards of the Black Sea. But ſince all the Earth was diſcovered almoſt near the Arctick Pole, Modern Geographers have divided it into 24 Climats, from the Æquator to the Polar Circle, where the longeſt Day, when the Sun is in the Tropick of Cancer, and the longeſt Night when it's in that of Capricorn, is of 24 Hours. This is ſo in Lapland, where the Sun never ſets in Summer, but only edges the Horizon, and on the contrary, never appears in Winter, or if it does, it diſappears immediately. There are ſome that add 6 other Climats, where the length of Days and Nights is of whole Weeks and Months; ſo that when the Sun is come to that Point of the Firmament which we call Summer Solſtice, there is a Day of 6 Months under the Arctick Pole, and a Night of that length when the Son is in the Winter Solſtice. There are alſo the ſame Number of Climats from the Æquator to the Antarctick Pole, or South; and becauſe the Ancients did not know Æthiopia, they would not call the 7 Climats there by their proper Names, but made uſe for their diſtinction, of the ſame Names they had given theſe on this ſide the Æquinoctial, oppoſing them to the other. As for the great Southern Continent on the other ſide of the Cape of Good Hope, which is the moſt Southern Point of Africa, as this part of the World is undiſcovered excepting ſome Coaſts that are not inhabited neither. The Climats cannot be named but by the contrary of ours in Europe, as the Ancients have done in relation to the 7 firſt. The Climats, the more they draw near the North or South, are the narrower, and they draw ſo near each other towards the Polar Circle, that they almoſt touch. Clavius in Sphær.

CLINIAS, Son of Alcibiades II. renewed the private Friendſhip of Entertainment of Gueſts between the Athenians and Lacedæmonians: He fought againſt Xerxes, in a Galley rigg'd out at his own Charges, and died at Coronea in Bœotia, in the Battel between the Athenians and the Bœotians. Plutarch. Thucid. l. 6.

CLINIAS, a Pythagorean Philoſopher and famous Muſician, liv'd about the LXVth Olympiad. He was extreamly paſſionate, and when he was in the height of his Paſſion, he us'd to bring himſelf to temper again by playing upon his Harp. Athenæus l. 14. c. 10. Ælian Var. Hiſt.

CLINTON, of this Noble and Ancient Family, the firſt Dugdale finds mentioned, is, Jeffery de Clinton, Lord Chamberlain, and Treaſurer to King Henry I. Grand-ſon to William de Tankervile, Chamberlain of Normandy; his Deſcendants continued in great Favour with the ſucceeding Princes. Sir William Clinton was the firſt who had Summons to Parliament about the 6th Edw. 3. and for his ſucceſsful Services was ſoon after advanced to the Dignity of Earl of Huntingdon. John de Clinton, Couſin and Heir to the Earl, had Summons to Parliament from the 31 Edw. 3. till 20 Ric. 2. and his Son from 23 Ric. 2. till 9 Hen. 6. His Son John ſucceeding him, revolted from King Henry VI. to the Houſe of York, for which his Lands were ſeized, and he himſelf attainted in the Parliament then held in Coventry; but upon the Change of that Scene, 1 Edw. 4. was reſtored, and Thomas his Son and Heir was ſummoned to the Parliament held in 7 Hen. 8. but died within 2 Years after, leaving Iſſue, Edward his Son and Heir, who being the next Heir to the then late Lord Say, was in the 28 Hen. 8. ſet in the Place of the ſame Lord, next before the Lord Rivers (who ſat next before the Lord Bergavenny) and ſo, for want of Information, loſt his Place of Lord Clinton, which his Anceſtors had enjoyed for a long time before, in 4 and 5 Phil. and Mary, being then Knight of the Garter, and ſtil'd Lord Clinton and Say: He was by Letters Patents, bearing Date the 10th of February, conſtituted Lord Admiral of England, Ireland and Wales, in which Year, the Parliament held at Weſtminſter; there being a Diſpute betwixt him and the Lord Stafford for Preheminence, it was found upon Search, that his Anceſtors, the Lords Clinton, by long Continuance, and great Antiquity, had Place next above the Lord Audley. He was advanced 14 Eliz. to the Title of Earl of Lincoln; in which Dignity, Henry his Son and Heir Succeeded him, who left by Catharine, Daughter to Francis Earl of Lincoln of Huntington, beſides other Children, Thomas, who ſucceeded him in his Honour, and married Elizabeth, one of the Daughters and Coheirs to Sir Henry Knevet of Charlton, in Com. Wilts, Knight, by whom he had Iſſue 7 Sons and 9 Daughters, departing this Life in 1618. Theophilus ſucceeded, who was made Knight of the Bath at the Creation of Prince Charles, An. 1616. and married Bridget, one of the Daughters to William Viſcount Say and Seal, by whom he had Iſſue. Dugdale.

CLIO, the Muſe of Hiſtory, called the Daughter of Jupiter, and of Memory to mark the Office of an Hiſtorian. She is call'd Clio from the Greek Word, which ſignifies Glory, to ſhew that which famous Writers reap by a Work of this Nature, and is generally repreſented in the Shape of a young Maiden Crowned with Lawrel, holding a Trumpet in her Right, and a Book in the Left-hand, with Thucydides's Name written in it.

CLISTHENES, an Athenian, Grand-Father to Pericles, was the firſt that invented the Ban or Ordinance of Oſtraciſm, by which they might baniſh a Citizen for his too great Power, leſt he ſhould become Tyrant of his Country. It was by this means that Hippias, Son to Piſiſtratus, was baniſhed Athens, his Tyranny aboliſhed, and the Commonwealth re-eſtabliſhed in the LXVIII Olympiad. Herodotus ſpeaks of one Cliſthenes, Grand-Father to this, and Prince of Sicyone, and afterwards Tyrant of Corinth, according to Pauſanias, one of the two perhaps is the Orator whom Cicero ſpeaks of.

CLITOMACHUS, a Philoſopher, Native of Carthage, lived in the CLX. Olympiad, in the 614th of Rome. He went to Athens at 40 Years of Age, and became Carneades's Diſciple, who obſerving his Genius, took a particular Care of his Inſtruction himſelf, and proſpered ſo well, that Clitomachus ſucceeded him and explained his Opinion by many Works of his own, being perfectly verſed in the Opinions of the three Sects, Academick, Peripateticks, and Stoicks. He is different from another Clitomachus Thurianus, Diſciple of Euclides.

CLITOR, King of Arcadia, ſucceeded his Father Azan, with his Brothers Alphidas and Elatus, kept his Court at Lycoſura, and built the Town Clitora, where was a Well that made People hate Wine.

Clitorio quicunque ſitim de fonte levarit
Vina fugit gaudetque meris abſtemius undis.

CLITUMNUS, a River, now call'd Clitumno, in Tuſcany. The Ancients thought this Water had a Quality to make their Beeves or great Cattle White. Virgil mentions it in the 2d Book of his Georgicks,

Hinc Albi Clitumni Greges, & maxima Taurus

CLITUS, Brother to Hellanice, Alexander the Great's Nurſe, accompanied this great Warrior in his Conqueſts, and had the Honour of ſaving his Life at the Battel of Granicus, in the 420th of Rome, by cutting off one Roſacez's Hand, that was ready to kill him, for which Alexander lov'd him much, and truſted him with the Government of one of the moſt important Provinces of his Kingdom, and invited him the Night before he was to go to take Poſſeſſion of his Charge, to ſup with him. Clitus drinking a little more than ordinary, began to deſpiſe Alexander's Exploits, and extol the great Actions of his Father Philip, which vexed the young Prince ſo much, that he killed him with his own Hand, but repented it extreamly afterwards. This happened in the 426th of Rome. Quint. Cur.

CLODION, call'd the Hairy, the 2d King of France, ſucceeded Pharamond in 428. He paſs'd the Rhine about the Year 441. with a Deſign to break into Gaul, but was beaten by Ætius the Roman General. Clodion made a 2d Attempt from Germany, march'd through the Foreſt of Charbonnier in Hainault, and made himſelf Maſter of Cambray, Tournay, and ſome other Neighbouring Places. The Roman Empire being much embroil'd, he puſht on his Conqueſts farther, but was a 2d time defeated by Ætius in Artois. However, this General being otherwiſe employ'd, did not purſue him ſo far as to break him all to pieces. By this Reſpite he recovered his Spirits, made himſelf Maſter of Artois, and advancing as far as the River Somme, took Amiens, and made it the Seat of his Kingdom. He died in 447. or 448. after having reign'd 20 Years, and was ſucceeded by Meroveus. Gregor. Turon. Haymo. Proſper in Chron.

CLODIUS, a Roman Senator, of the ancient Family of the Clodians, ſo extraordinary Lewd, that he was accuſed of debauching his three Siſters, and was found in Woman's Apparel at a Religious Meeting, where none were admitted but Women. Being choſen Tribune of the People, in the 696th of Rome, he condemned Cicero to be exil'd, who being afterwards recalled, got all revoked that Clodius had done againſt him; and defended Milo, who afterwards kill'd the ſaid Clodius, in the 701ſt, or ſecond of Rome. Cic. pro Domo ſua. Pro Milon. &c.

CLODOMIR, or Clodemir, ſecond Son of Clovis and Clotilda, not being content with Orleans, Bourges, and ſeveral other Provinces for his Share, pretended Right to Burgundy by his Mother's Side, ſo joining his Brothers, Thierri, Childebert, and Clotaire, they ſet upon Sigiſmond, Son to Gondebaud, and upon his Brother Gondemar, defeated them in 523, took the firſt Priſoner with his Wife and Children, whom Clodomir ſent to Orleans, and ſoon after ordered that they ſhould be thrown into a Well. After this he joins his Brother Thierri again, marched againſt Gondemar, and defeated him near Vienna, but ventured too far in purſuit of the Enemy, and loſing his own Party, was taken and Beheaded by the Burgundians near Vocron in Dauphine in 524. He had three Sons, Thibauld, Gontier, and Clodoalde. His Brother Clotaire married his Widow, and killed two of the Nephews: The Soldiers ſav'd the third, which the common People call St. Cloud. Gregory of Tours, Lib. 3.

CLOGHER, Lat. Cloceria, a ſmall City and Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Armagh, in the County of Tyrone, and Province of Ulſter in Ireland, ſeated upon the River called Blackwater, 15 Miles Eaſt of the Lake Earne, and 25 Weſt of Armagh.

CLONMEL, a Market and Borough Town of the County of Tipperary in the Province, in the South of Ireland, ſeated on the River Shure, 80 Miles South of Dublin. This Town is conſiderably ſtrong, handſome and rich; it made a gallant Defence againſt Cromwell, and killed a great Number of his Men.

CLOISTRES, certain ſquare Galleries in Monaſteries, with a little Flower-Garden in the middle; in former times they were uſed as Schools for the Inſtruction of Youth, and were many of them well endowed, and allowed ſeveral Privileges, amongſt others, that they ſhould be a ſafe Shelter for thoſe that came thither: Princes alſo looked upon them as ſecure Priſons, which made the Greek Emperors to confine their rebellious Sons, or any elſe they ſuſpected, in Cloiſters. Lewis the Debonnaire was ſhut up in one by his Children, and Hiſtory furniſhes us with many other Examples of the ſame Nature.

CLOTAIRE, the firſt of the Name, called the Ancient, Son to Clovis I. had at firſt the Kingdom of Soiſſons, but after the Death of his Brothers and Nephews, enjoyed Auſtraſia, and the whole Kingdom of France. He made War twice in Burgundy, in 523, and 25, and cut off his Nephews, Sons to Clodemir, whom he had cunningly enticed from his Mother, Clotilde, under pretext of putting them in Poſſeſſion of their Father's Eſtate. He aſſiſted his Brother Thierry in the Conqueſt of Thuringia, and afterwards, falling out with his Brother Childebert, a great Storm parted their Armies as they were juſt ready to engage; after which the Difference was made up, and both joined in an Incurſion into Spain, whereof they ſubdued a great part: This was in 543. about which time Thierry and his Son died; ſo Clotaire became King of Auſtraſia, and beat the Saxons and Thuringians that had revolted; but whilſt he was taken up in reducing them, Childebert, being jealous of his Succeſs, ſeduced his Son Cramne, yet had not the Satiſfaction to ſee the end of his Plot, for he died a little after, leaving Clotaire ſole Monarch of all France, who then pardoned his Son; but finding him a ſecond time in Arms againſt him, he burnt him and his whole Family in a thatcht Cabbin, but was afterwards very ſorry for this Violent Action, and died of a burning Fever that ſeized him a Year after in the Foreſt of Guiſe, where he was Hunting, in 561. It's ſaid, he was an able, judicious, valiant and liberal Prince, but withal, very Cruel and Ambitious. He pronounced this memorable Sentence as he was juſt parting this Life; Alas! Who do you think the King of Heaven is, that has Power to make ſuch great Monarchs of the Earth die. Mezeray.

CLOTAIRE II. Sirnamed the Great or Young, came to the Crown of France after the Death of his Father Chilperick I. in 584. being then but 4 Months old; Fredegonda his Mother, fearing the cuſtomary and deſigning Practices of Brunehaud, and the Power of Childebert King of Auſtraſia, begg'd Gontran King of Burgundy, Clotaire's Uncle, to be his Protector, which this good Prince readily agreed to, and got him baptiz'd in 591. After Gontran's Death, Fredegonde ſupported her Son againſt Childebert, and beat him at the Battel of Soiſſons, carrying the young Prince at the Head of her Army, to animate her Men by his Preſence. This was in 593. Fredegonde dying two Years after, Clotaire was attack'd by Theodebert and Thierry, Childebert's Children, who, had not they fallen out amongſt themſelves, would have been very troubleſom to him; but the firſt being kill'd in 611. and the ſecond dying the next Year of a Dyſentery, Clotaire inherited both their Eſtates; after this he ſubdued the Saxons, kill'd Duke Bertoald, with his own Hand, and having puniſhed Brunehaud, employed himſelf to ſecure his Kingdom, and reform the Subjects Lives and Manners. He died in 628. Greg. de Tour. Haimo. Mezeray.

CLOTAIRE III. King of France and Burgundy, ſucceeded his Father Clovis II. His Mother Batilda Governed with much Prudence during his Minority, until Ebroin, Major of the Palace, forced her to retire into the Abby of Chelles, and taking Advantage of the King's Youth, he rendred himſelf formidable both to the French and Strangers, by his Cruelties and Injuſtice. Clotaire died at Seventeen, without Iſſue.

CLOTHO, one of the Siſters of Deſtiny, which Heſiod ſays, is one of the Daughters of Jupiter and Themis, and according to Pagan Divinity, ſpun the Thread of Mens Lives. She was the third that held the Diſtaff.

CLOTILDE, or Chrotilde of Burgundy, Queen of France, wife to Clovis, the firſt of this Name, was Daughter to Chilperick, Niece to Gondebaud, Godegiſile, and Gondemar, Kings of Burgundy. Gondebaud, the eldeſt, joined with the ſecond in 490. to diſinherit the other two; Gondemar was burnt in a Tower, Chilperick murthered with his Sons and wife, was caſt into the Rhone, but the Daughters were ſpared. Clotilde, the youngeſt, lived with her Uncle Gondebaud, who did not conſent to her Marriage with Clovis, but barely through Fear; the Match was brought about through the Mediation of Aurelian, a French Lord, who diſguiſed himſelf in Beggars Garments, to be theleſs taken notice of, and they were Married in 492. This wiſe Princeſs ſpoke ſo much to her Husband of Jeſus Chriſt, that he invoked him at the Battle of Tolbiac, and being Succeſsful was Baptized. After his Death, in 511. the Queen had the Misfortune to ſee a Civil War amongſt her Children, without being able to make them agree, though ſome attribute the great Storm that hindered the Ingagement of Childebert's and Theodebert's Army againſt Clotaire, to her Prayers. She died at Tours in 543. or 548. being ſeventy years of Age. Sigebert, Cauſin's H. Court.

CLOTILDE, Daughter to Clovis, and St. Clotilde, was Married to Amaury, King of the Viſigoths in Spain, in 517. This Arian Prince endeavoured firſt of all by his Careſſes, to make her change her Religion; but finding his endeavours ſucceſleſs that way, he imploy'd Violence and Affronts, beating her ſometimes to that degree that ſhe ſpit Blood, and daſh'd her with dirt as ſhe went to Church. Clotilde being tired with theſe Abuſes, acquaints her Brother Childebert with her Uſage, who, entring with a powerful Army into Amauray's Territories, defeated him, and delivered his Siſter, but ſhe died in her Journey to France in 531. See Gregory of Tours.

CLOVIS I. Clodovix, Ludovin or Lewis, for it's the ſame Name, was born in 467. and ſucceeded his Father Childerick in 481. He employed the beginning of his Reign in War, which Siagrius, (Son of that Gillon, who Uſurped his Father's Crown) overcame and put him to Death. It's taken notice of, that it being then a Law in France, to divide the Booty amongſt the Soldiers, Clovis begg'd as a Favour, that they would put a Holy Veſſel apart, which St. Rheims had a deſire to have, but one of the Soldiers that was againſt it, ſtruck his Ax into the Veſſel, and cryed he would have his Part. The King diſſembled his Anger, but a year after, taking a Review of his Army, picks a Quarrel with this ſame Man, upon pretence his Arms were not in good Order, clove his Head with his own Ax, crying, You did ſo to the Veſſel at Soiſſons. After this he Married Clotilde, promiſing he would become a Chriſtian, but did not fulfil it until he had experienced the Power and Goodneſs of God, and the Vanity of his Idols: For the Germans being Confederated, came towards the Rhine, upon the Territories of Clovis Allie, and he fearing an Incurſion into his own, met them, and came to a Battle at Tolbiac, thought to be Zulpick or Zulg, ſixteen Leagues from Cullen; in the midſt of the Choque, his Men were routed, until he bethought him to invoke his Wive's God, vowing, if he were delivered from the Danger he found himſelf in, he would own him, and become of her Religion. This Reſolution was no ſooner taken, but his Men ralſied, and returned to the Charge, and quite routed the Enemy. At his Return from this Expedition, he got himſelf inſtructed by St. Remigius, Biſhop of Rheims, and having obtained his Army's Approbation of the Change, was Baptized at Rheims, on Chriſtmas-day, 496. his Siſter Alboſlede, and 3000 of his Soldiers became Chriſtians the ſame day, and the reſt ſoon after followed ſo famous an Example. If we will believe French Hiſtorians, God, in favour of his Converſion, has honoured him, and the Kings his Succeſſors with many miraculous Gifts, as Curing the King's Evil, which he made Tryal of on his Favourite Lanicet, with other Relations ſomewhat extraordinary, viz. That the Holy Ampoule, or Veſſel that contained the Liquor he was Anointed with, was brought by a Pidgeon; the Flower-de-Luces and Oriſlame, or Fiery Standard, brought and given by an Angel into the Hands of an Hermite in the Wilderneſs of Joyenval. After this he revenged the Murther of his Father-in-Law on Gondebaud, King of Burgundy, and kill'd Alaric, King of the Goths, an Arian, in the Battle near Poictiers, in 507. It was here that the Doe ſhewed the Ford of the River Vienne, which then had ſo overflown its Banks, that there was no diſtinguiſhing the right Paſſage, which to this very day is called Pas de la Biche, or the Doe's Step. After this Victory Clovis ſubdued ſeveral Provinces, but was at laſt worſted at the Battle of Arles, by Count Ibba. The Emperor Anaſtaſius was ſo great an Admirer of his Valour, that he ſent him a Crown of Gold, with a Purple Cloak, and begg'd he would be pleaſed to accept the Title of Conſul and Patricius. It's ſaid, he ſent this Crown to Rome, and is the ſame that is ſtill called the Regne. Clovis died at Paris, at the Age of 45. in 511. after a Reign of 30 years. He left four Sons, Thierry, Glodomir, Childebert, and Clotaire. He had the firſt by a Concubine, the other three by Queen Clotilde. Gregory of Tours, lib. 2. Hincmar, &c.

CLOVIS II. Son of Dagobert, and Queen Nantilda, was declared King at 11 years of Age, under the Regency of his Mother, and the Guardianſhip of the Majors of the Palace, who began to Rule according to their Fancy and Intereſts. Some Authors ſay, this Clovis was mightily Debauched; others, that he governed very prudently; what makes them believe it, is, that after he had emptied his own Coffers to relieve his needy Subjects, in an univerſal Famine, he diſtributed the Silver amongſt them, wherewith his Father Dagobert had covered the Church of St. Denys. He died in 660. being 27 years of Age, whereof he Reigned 17. leaving Clotaire III. Childerick II. and Thierry I. by his Wife Batilde, or Badeur, an Engliſh Woman by Extraction.

CLOVIS III. Son of King Thierry I. Reigned four years, under the Guardianſhip of Pepin de Heriſtel, Major of the Palace, who beat the Suevians and Saxons, being in Rebellion againſt their Prince. Clovis died in 694. being 14 years of Age. Haimo, Fredegarius, &c.

CLOVIS, Son of King Chilperick I. and Andovere his firſt Wife, obſerving that all his Father's Sons by Fredegonde, were dead of a Flux that raged through France, and ſeeing none to diſpute the Crown with himſelf, began to ſhew his Reſentment againſt Fredegonde for what ſhe had made his Mother Suffer. This cruel Woman, foreſeeing by that what ſhe was to expect if he came to Reign, accuſed him to his Father Chilperick, of having put his Children to death. The credulous Father abandons him, his only Son, to the Revenge of a Barbarous Step-Mother, who got his Throat cut at Noiſs, near Chelles, in 580. and threw his Body into the River of Marne, where, being known by its long Hair, a Fiſher put it into a Tomb, and King Gontran, his Uncle, ordered it to be brought to St. Vincent, now called St. Germain des Pres, where it was Buried in 585. Gregory of Tours, Lib. 5. 8.

CLUENTIUS, a Roman, accus'd by his Mother Soſia, of the death of his Father-in-Law Oppianicus; he was defended by Tully. Cic. Orat. pro Cluent.

CLUNY, a famous Abby in Maſconnois, in Burgundy, and Head of a Religious Order: This Abby was founded upon the Rule of St. Benet; in 910. by Pernon, Abbot of Gigniac, by the Aſſiſtance of William the Firſt, Duke of Aquitain, and Count of Auvergne. In 1562. the Huguenots took Cluny, and as our Author affirms, plundered the Abby, and burnt the Library. Pet. Bleſen. Ep. 79. Baron. A. C. 1245. Thuan. Lib. 41. &c.

CLUSIA, Daughter of King Thuſcus, is famous in Hiſtory for her Chaſtity. Valerius Torquanus, General of the Romans, was ſo charmed with her Beauty, that he begged her of her Father, and being refuſed, began to force the place where ſhe was which when ſhe obſerved, ſhe threw her ſelf down from the top of a high Tower, to avoid falling into his Hands; but received no harm by the Fall, for her coats ſtretching out, carried her eaſily down. Plutarch in Parall.

CLUSIUM or CHIUSI, a Town of Italy in Tuſcany, with a Biſhoprick, under the Arch-biſhop of Siena, 'twas formerly the Capital of Hetruria, under King Poſenna. Livy, Leand. Albert Deſc. Ital.

CLUVIER (Philip) a famous Geographer, born at Dantzick, in 1580. His Father, a conſiderable Man, took great Care of his Education, ſent him to Poland, then to Germany, and at laſt to the Low Countries, to ſtudy Law at Leyden; but this not ſuiting his Genius, which inclined him to Geography, Joſeph Scaliger adviſed him to apply himſelf to the laſt, which he did accordingly, after he had ſpent two years in the Wars of Bohemia and Hungary. And having travelled through England, France, Germany, and Spain, he ſettled to teach at Leyden, where he died in 1623. in the 43d year of his Age, much lamented by all the Great Men his Contemporaries. He could ſpeak ten different Languages readily, viz. Greek, Latin, High Dutch, French, Engliſh, Flemiſh, Italian, and the Hungarian, Poliſh, and Bohemian Dialects. The Works we have of his are, De Tribus Rheni alveis. Germania antiqua. Sicilia antiqua, Italia antiqua. Introductio in Univerſam Geographiam tam veterem, quam novam. Meurſius Ath. Bat. &c.

CLYDSDALE, Lat. Clydeſdalia, and Cludeſdalia, a County in the South Parts of Scotland, ſo called from the River Clyde, running through the midſt of it. Out of a Hill in this Country ſprings three Rivers, which run into three divers Seas, viz. the Tweed into the German See, Anan into the Iriſh, and Clyd into the Deucaledonian Sea. Glaſgow, ſeated upon this laſt, is the Chief Place of the County, which by reaſon of its length, is divided into two Prefectures or Shires.

CLYFFORD, (Lord Hugh) Baron of Chudleigh. The firſt of this Ancient and Noble Family, mentioned by Dugdale, was called Ponce, who had Iſſue three Sons, Walter, Drogo, and Richard. The Conqueror's Survey takes Notice, that the two Eldeſt were poſſeſſed of ſeveral Lordſhips, in the Counties of Oxon, Worceſter, and Hereford; but the Line was preſerved in Richard, the youngeſt, whoſe Son Walter was poſſeſs'd of ſeveral Lordſhips in the Reign of Henry II. & Father to the Fair, but infamous Roſamond. Walter de Clyfford, Eldeſt Son to this Walter, was Sheriff of Herefordſhire, in the 1ſt, 8th, 9th, and 17th of King John, whoſe Son Walter, was in the 12th of Henry IIId. Conſtituted Governour of the Caſtles of Caermardin, and Cardigan in Wales, and in the 13 of Henry IIId. was, upon Levying the Scutage of Kery in Wales, Acquitted for nine Knights Fees; but in the 17th of Henry IIId. adhering to Richard Marſhal, Earl of Pembroke, then in Arms, he was Outlaw'd, and his Lands beſtowed on the Poictovins, but the year after, his Eſtate was Reſtor'd to him again. At the Coronation of Queen Eleonor, Wife to King Henry IIId. he with the reſt of the Barons Marchers, claimed the Right of carrying the Canopy, which belonged to the Barons of the Cinque Ports. He Married Margaret, Daughter to Llewelyn, Prince of Wales, and dyed in the 48th of Henry IIId. He was Succeeded by Roger his Brother, from whom the following Barons of this Family Deſcended; This Roger had nineteen Knights Fees, by Sibyll his Wife, Daughter and Co-heir of Robert de Ewyas, a great Baron in Herefordſhire: This Roger was Succeeded by his Son of the ſame Name, who, in the 43d of Henry IIId. attended the King in his Expedition into France. He was afterwards ſeduc'd by the Rebellious Barons, under the uſual pretence of Aſſerting the Laws and Liberties of the Conſtitution, and committing great diſorders in the Inſurrection, was, together with Simon Montford, Earl of Leiceſter, Excommunicated by the Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, but the next year he Recovered his Loyalty, quitted thoſe pretended Patriots, and was with the King at the Siege of Northampton, being ſoon after made Governour of the Caſtle of Gloceſter, and Sheriff of that County; and having done conſiderable Service for the King againſt the Barons, he accompanied Prince Edward, in his Expedition to the Holy Land; and in the firſt of Edward the Firſt, Married the Counteſs Lauritana, and afterwards was Conſtituted one of the Juſtices of the King's Foreſts in Hantſhire, and likewiſe Juſtice of Wales. He dyed in the 14th of Edward the Firſt, to whom ſucceeded Robert, his Grandſon and Heir, who in the 22d of Edward the Firſt, was one of the Peers in the Parliament then held at Lincoln, who Subſcribed that Letter to the Pope, in which they declared King Edward chief Lord of the Realm of Scotland, where he Subſcribed himſelf Robertus de Clyfford Caſtellanus de Appleby; and in the 24th of Edward the Firſt, was with the King at the Fight of Dunbar, where he diſtinguiſhed himſelf very Honourably, and had a conſiderable ſhare in the Victory, then gained by the Engliſh, and having done other Signal Service to the Crown, and been imployed in many places of Honour and Truſt, was at laſt ſlain in the 7th of Edward the Second, at that Unfortunate Battle of Banockmoor, near Striveling in Scotland. He married Iſabel, Daughter and Co-heir of Robert de Vipont, a Baron of great Note, in the Reign of Henry the Third. Roger his Son and Heir, was Summoned to Parliament, in the 13th and 14th of Edward the Second; to whom ſucceeded Robert his Brother and Heir, who ſerved King Edward in the Wars in Scotland, with very liberal Supplies, and in the 8th of Edward the Third, was joined in Commiſſion with Ranulph de Dacre, in the Government of Carlile, and in the Wardenſhip and Marches adjacent; and the year following was Conſtituted ſole Governour of the Marches of Cumberland and Weſtmorland, and alſo Captain General of all the Forces of thoſe Counties, for making Head againſt the Scots. In the 15th of Edward the Third, he was again in the Scottiſh Wars, and dyed in the 18th of that Reign, being ſeized of ſeveral Mannors in the Counties of Hereford, York, Weſtmorland, Cumberland, and the Biſhoprick of Durham. His eldeſt Son Robert dying a Minor, was Succeeded in the Inheritance by Roger his Second Brother, who in the 30th of Edward the Third, amongſt other Northern Barons, had Orders to Repair to the Marches of Scotland, to defend the Borders. He likewiſe aftewards made a Campaign with Edward the IIId, in France, was Conſtituted one of the Wardens of the Eaſt and Weſt Marches in Scotland, made Sheriff of Cumberland, and Governour of the Caſtle of Carliſle. He had Summons to all the Parliaments, from the 31ſt of Edward the IIId, till the 12th of Richard the IId; and in the 13th of that Reign Departed this Life, being ſeiz'd of a vaſt Eſtate in Mannors. Thomas, his Son and Heir ſucceeded to his Honour and Eſtate, was a Military Man of great Reputation, and had Summons to ſeveral Parliaments under Richard the IId. This Thomas had two younger Brothers, Sir William, and Sir Lewis Clyfford, from which laſt Branch, the Clyfford's of Devonſhire are Deſcended, amongſt whom Sir Thomas, Father to the preſent Lord Clyfford, was, upon the ſcore of his great Abilities and Merit, firſt made Comptroller, then Treaſurer to King Charles the IId, afterwards advanced to the Dignity and Title of Lord Clyfford of Chudleigh, and laſtly, to the Office of Lord High Treaſurer of England. His Lordſhips Arms are, Checky, Or, and Azure, a Feſſe, Gules. The Motto, Semper Paratus. Dugd. Baron.

CLYMINE, a Nymph, wife to Apollo, and Mother to Phaeton, ſhe perſwaded her Son to go to Apollo's Palace, to ſatisfy himſelf about his Extraction. Ovid. Metam.

CLYTEMNESTRA, wife to Agamemnon, King of Mycenæ. 'Tis ſaid, when her Husband was at the Siege of Troy, ſhe fell into an amorous Correſpondence with Ægiſtus, and perſwaded her Spark to kill her Husband at his Return, which he did, and ſeiz'd upon the Kingdom; ſoon after, Oreſtes, Agamemnon's Son, diſpatch'd the Uſurper, and unnaturally Murther'd his Mother. Vel. Paterc. Lib. Euſeb. Chron. Sophoc. in Elect. &c.

CNEF, a Deity Worſhipped by the Egyptians, to whom they attributed the Creation of the World, as we learn from Plutarch, in his Iſis and Oſiris. Porphyry, as he is cited by Euſebius, in his Third Book, De Præparatione Evangelica, is of Plutarch's Opinion; and reports, That the Egyptians. repreſented this Cnef, with an Egg coming out of his Mouth; an Egg, with them, being an Emblem of the World; 'tis probable that Cnef is the ſame with Cnuphis in Strabo, Lib. 17. who had a Temple in Syene, in the Country of Thebais, or the Upper Egypt.

CNEUS, a Roman Surname, given to ſuch as were born with a particular mark upon them.

CO, Coa, Coes, or Cos, an Iſland of the Archipelago in Aſia, towards the Coaſts of Caria, famous for the Birth of Hippocrates, Apelles, and a certain Maiden named Pamphila, who invented the way of making uſe of Silk-worms. The Inhabitants of the Iſland Communicated it to their Neighbours, and theſe to the reſt of the World. The Turks call the Iſland Stanco, or Stankon, but it goes commonly by the name of Lango, and has a City called ſo too, that lies over-againſt Halicarnaſſus, near Cnide, and the Iſle Palmoſa. It has been very famous in former times for its riches and the fruitfulneſs of the Soil, alſo for the famous Temple of Æſculapius, where was formerly a very fine Statue of Venus, that was carried to Rome in Auguſtus's time, who to recompence the Inhabitants, remitted 'em the yearly Tribute of 100 Talents they were obliged to pay. This Iſland did belong to the Knights of Rhodes, but now the Turks are Maſters of it.

COANZA, a River of Africa, in the Southern parts of the Kingdom of Congo towards Angola, has its ſource in the Lake Zaite, runs through that of Aquilonda, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Æthiopian Sea, near the Iſle of Loande.

COBALES, certain Demons in Humane ſhape, were called Satyrs, and ſaid to keep Bacchus Company. The Greek word κόβαλοι is derived from the Hebrew Chebel, ſubtle Tricks and Inventions. Some ſay there are many of 'em to this very time in Sarmatia, hide themſelves in Houſes, and ſhew much affection for them, whoſe ſervice they have embraced; ſteal from the Neighbours what they ſee wanting at home; dreſs the Horſes, and do any thing whatſoever, that can be expected from the beſt Servants. Noel le Comte, Mythol. L. 5.

COBLENTZ, a Town of Germany, in the Arch-biſhoprick of Treves, upon the Confluent or Meeting of the Moſelle and Rhine, for which reaſon it's called in Latin Confluentes or Confluentia. It's a pretty place, with fine Churches and ſtately Houſes along the River. On the other ſide the Rhine is the ſtrong Fortreſs Hermenſtein, which paſſes for very regular. The Arch-biſhop of Treves, Elector of the Empire, has a Palace at Coblentz. There was an Aſſembly of the Clergy held here in 860. to regulate the agreement made between Charles II. called the Bald, Lewis, ſurnamed Germanique, and Lothaire, King of Lorrain: There was another held in 922. in the Reign of the Emperor Henry Oiſeleur, or the Fowler. Coblentz ſtands 12 miles N.E. of Trier, and 10 from Cologne, to the S. Gaſpar à Petra, much improved its Fortifications, by drawing a Line from one River to the other, with Fortifications after the moſt regular modern way.

COCALUS, King of Sicily, lived in the fabulous Ages, receiv'd Dædalus and his Son Icarus, in their flight from Minos, but ſome time after ſmothered Dædalus in a Stove, leaſt Minos, who was very urgent to have him, ſhould declare War againſt Sicily. Others ſay, That it was Minos was ſtifled in a Bath by Cocalus's Daughters when he came againſt their Father that refuſed to deliver up Dædalus. Poets report this Adventure very differently.

COCCEIUS AUCTUS, an excellent Architect of Italy, who carried on the ſeveral Works that Agrippa made about Naples, amongſt others, the ways wrought under Ground, that reach from the Town to Puteole, or Pozzuole, and from the Lake of Pozzuole, which the Ancients called Avernus, to Cumæ. Strabo, Lib. 5.

COCCEIUS (John) of Bremen. He was born in 1603. Profeſſor of Hebrew in his own Country, in 1630. and went to Leyden in 1650. where he was Profeſſor of Divinity. He wrote Commentaries upon moſt part of the Old and New Teſtament, and upon the Talmud, which he Tranſlated into Latin. He likewiſe made a Hebrew Dictionary. His Commentaries upon the Bible are ſomewhat too much amplified, and beſides, his Method is a little Singular, it being his way to expound Scripture by ſome Principles or Poſtulata, taken from the Revelations. There is an Abridgment of his Life, in the 7th Tome of the Bibliotheque Univerſel, and in the firſt and fifth Tomes. The Singularity of his Sentiments concerning the Covenants of God and the Sabbath, are related.

COCCEIUS (odochus) a Jeſuit born at Treves, he Profeſſed Philoſophy and Divinity, and was afterwards Confeſſarius to Leopold the Arch-Duke. He dyed in 1622. and wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, as Theologicarum Theſium Libri III. Dagobertus Rex Argentinenſis Epiſcopatus Fundator, &c. Alegamb. de Script. Soc. J. Miræus de Script. Sæc. XVI.

COCHIN, a Kingdom of the Indies in the Peninſula, on this ſide Ganges in Malabar, takes its name from the Town their King reſides in. The Portugueze had another of the ſame name, inhabited by Chriſtians, with a Biſhoprick depending on the Arch-biſhoprick of Goa, but the Hollanders are now Maſters of the Town. The Chriſtians which are called by the Name of St. Thomas, have had time out of mind a Prelate, and their Office in the Chaldæan Tongue here.

COCHINCHINA, a Kingdom of the Indies, beyond Ganges, upon a Gulph of its own Name. The Inhabitants call it Cachu, or Cacbochin, which ſome Authors think ſignifies Weſtern China; but others are of Opinion, That the Portugueſe called it Cochinchine for its great reſemblance with Cochin in Malabar. It's bound to the Eaſt with the Sea that forms the Gulph called Cochinchine, to the Weſt with the Kingdom Camboia, has Tunquin to the North, and is bordered with Chiampa to the South. It has about 50 good Sea-ports. Is divided into Six Provinces, whereof each has its own Governour and particular Juriſdiction. The Capital where the King keeps his Reſidence is Caccian; his Court is very fine, the number of Lords great. The Traffick is alſo very conſiderable, which conſiſts in Gold, Silver, Porcelain, Eagle-wood, Silks, &c. the Country Commodities. Here are Miſſionaries, but have ſuffered much under the late Kings of Cochinchine. P. Alexander of Rhodes.

COCHLEUS, (John) born at Nurenburgh in Germany, and Canon of Breſlaw in Sileſia, an eminent Divine in the XVIth Century. He diſputed publickly with Luther, Bullinger, Oſeander, Bucer, Melanchton, Calvin, &c. Thuanus in the 11th Book of his Hiſtory, gives him a great Character for his Talent in managing a Conference. Miræus de Script. Sect. XVI. &c.

COCYTUS, (Cocyte) a certain River of Epirus, one of the four that Poets feigned belonged to Hell, becauſe its name which ſignifies groaning and complaining, denotes the pains of the Sufferers there. It gave its name to the Cocytian Feaſts kept in Hell in honour of Proſerpina, and is different from another of the ſame name that was in Italy, near the Lake Avernus, and emptied it ſelf into the Lake Lucrino, or Mar Morto, now almoſt filled up by a Mount thrown into it by the Earthquake in 1538.

COCKERMOUTH, a Market Town in the County of Cumberland, ſituate upon the River Cocker, near its fall into the Derwent, by which two Rivers it is almoſt ſurrounded, about 8 miles from the Sea, with a Caſtle upon one of the Hills adjoyning to it. From London 226 miles.

CODE, a Collection of the Conſtitutions of the Roman Emperors. The Roman Republick being chang'd into a Monarchy, the Conſtitutions of the firſt Emperors were afterwards Collected into two Codes, by two eminent Lawyers, Gregorius and Hermogenes, in the Reign of Diocleſian, about the year 290. This body of the Law they called the Gregorian and Hermogenian Codes. In 435. Theodoſius the Younger, made another Collection, which he called the Theodoſian Code, in which all the Imperial Conſtitutions, from Conſtantine till his own time, were inſerted; The Laws contained in theſe three Codes, claſh'd ſo often with each other, that they were in a manner impracticable; inſomuch, that in the year 534. the Emperor Juſtinian, thought it neceſſary to Collect a new Body, in which, all the ſignificant and conſiſtent Part of the Law, contained in the three Codes above-mentioned, was comprehended: This he call'd the Juſtinian Code, from his own Name.

CODIN (George Curopalates) one of the Officers that had the care of the Emperor of Conſtantinople's Palace, wrote of the original of Conſtantinople, of the officers of the Palace, and places in the great Church. Leo Allatius.

CODRUS, Son of Melanthus, XVIIth and laſt King of the Athenians, begun his Reign A. M. 2962. It's ſaid, that being deſirous to ſave his Country, which was beſet by the Heraclides, who for ſome time were Maſters of Peloponneſus; he conſulted the Oracle about the Succeſs, and underſtanding that that party would be Victorious whoſe Commander ſhould be killed, diſguiſed himſelf, and ruſhed into the midſt of the Fight, where he was ſlain the 21ſt year of his Reign, being the fifth of David's, according to Euſebius, and the 2985 of the World. The Athenians put ſo great a value on this generous Action, that fearing they ſhould never find ſo good a Prince, choſe to have their Commonwealth govern'd by Magiſtrates called Archontes. Medon, Son of Codrus, was the firſt, and govern'd 20 years. Juſtin, l. 2. Pauſan. l. 1. &c.

COEFFETEAU, (Nicholas) a Divine, of the Order of St. Dominick, and Biſhop of Dardania, a Perſon of great Elocution, both in his Sermons and in his Writings. Henry IV. of France pitch'd upon him, by Cardinal Perron's Recommendation, to anſwer King James I. of England his Book; but this Task being undertaken by the Cardinal, Coeffeteau wrote an Anſwer to Mornay du Pleſſis Treatiſe de Euchariſtia; and at the inſtance of Pope Gregory the Fifteenth. He wrote an Anſwer to Marcus Antonius de Dominis, Arch-biſhop of Spalatro, Entitling it, De Sacra Monarchia Eccleſiæ, &c. Adverſus Rempublicam Marci Antonii de Dominis, &c. He Died in 1623. St. Marth. Gall. Chriſt.

COELUS or COELIUS, Son of the Day, Husband of Veſta, that is, the Earth, as Cœlus Heaven. Fable gives them many Children; Saturn the youngeſt of them all, maim'd his Father with a Steel Sithe, and it's of his Blood that the Furies ſprung. Lactantius in his Book of Falſe Religion, ſays, that Cœlus was a very powerful Man, and therefore not only honoured and feared as a King, but alſo adored as a God, which made them derive his Extraction from the higheſt and moſt illuſtrious thing in the World. As for Saturn, it was he that uſurp'd his Father's Kingdom.

COERANUS, a Native of the Iſle of Paros, in the Ægean Sea, ſeeing them fiſh one day at Conſtantinople, bought ſeveral Dolphins and let them go again, and ſome time after being at Sea and caſt away, none of the company was ſaved but he, who was carried off by a Dolphin, and Landed againſt a Creek of the Iſle Zacynthos, called to this very day Cœranion. They further add, That Cœranus's Body being burned near the Sea after his Death, the Dolphins appeared along the Coaſt, as it were to honour his Funeral. Plutarch.

COESFELDT, a Town of Germany, in the Dioceſs of Munſter, in Weſtphalia; it's ſmall but well fortified. The Biſhop of Munſter has a Palace in it, where he reſides for the moſt part.

COETINI, (Alain) Biſhop of Dol, afterwards of Cornoüaille, and at laſt of Avignon; was Native of Bretany, where he was born in 1407. It was he that oppoſed the Deſign of chuſing Beſſarion after the Death of Nicholas V. looking upon it as an injury to the Latin Church, who had ſeveral worthy Members of its own, to ſeek one in the Greek Church, though he could not deny, but the Perſon preſented was a Man of excellent Parts. After this he boldly, and in a full Conſiſtory, reproached Paul II. with his great Vanity, Diſſimulation, and Contempt of others, adding, that he had mortified his Inclinations for 20 years to cheat the Sacred College. This Cardinal died in 1474. the 67th of his Age.

COEVORDEN, a place in the Low-Countries, in the Province of Overyſſel, capital of the Country of Drente: it very well fortify'd, forming a regular Pentagone, lies near Bogs towards Waſtphalia and the Dioceſs of Munſter. Coevroden ſuffered much during the Civil Wars in the Low-Countries, being often taken and re-taken. The United Provinces made themſelves Maſters of it in 1575. and for the importance of the paſſage fortified it; yet Count Reneberg, a Spaniard, re-took it, and Prince Maurice took it again from them in 1592. The Biſhop of Munſter made himſelf Maſter of it 1672. but the Hollanders re-took it, and the Dutch Governour ſurpriz'd Groeningue for his Maſters.

COEUR-DE-ROI, one that ſerved in the Proteſtant Army during the Civil Wars of France, being taken Priſoner by the Papiſts, and led to Auxerre, he was there torn in pieces, his Heart cut in ſmall bits and ſold to the People, in revenge of his Barbarities in the War.

COGGS, a well-built Seat, not leſs fair in Structure than pleaſantly ſituated upon the River Windruſh, and adjoining to the ancient Town of Whitney in Com. Oxon. heretofore the chief place of the Barony of Arſic, the Lords whereof branched out of the ſtock of the Earls of Oxford, who being many years ago utterly extinct, this Manſion-houſe, with the Mannors, have for ſome time paſt been in the name of Blake, the preſent Poſſeſſor whereof is William Blake, Eſq; eldeſt Son of Francis, by Catharine, Daughter of Sir Valentine Brown, of Croft in Com Linc. Knight, his firſt Wife (Mary Daughter to Sir William Cope, of Hanwell, in Oxfordſhire, Bar. the ſecond died without Iſſue) lineally deſcended from the Blakes of Eaſton-Town Com. Southampton, and they from thoſe of Pinehills near Calne in Wilts, a Knightly Family of great Antiquity, remarkable for its many Noble and Honourable Alliances, having ſucceſſively matched into the principal Houſes of theſe and divers other Counties, as appears by the Records in the Tower, and Manuſcripts remaining in the Herald's-Office, London.

COGNAC, upon Charante, a Town of France in Angoumois, towards the Frontiers of Xaintonge, between Jarnac and Xaintes, ſituate in a very fertil Soil, eſpecially in Vines, famous for being Francis Iſt's Birth-place, who built the Fortreſs; yet the Proteſtants made themſelves Maſters of it in 1562. and kept in againſt the Duke of Anjou, who laid Siege to it after he had won the Battle of Jarnac.

COGNI, Lat. Iconium, a Town of Lycaonia, in Aſia-minor, now Capital of Caramania, and the Reſidence of a Beglerbeg, being formerly an Archbiſhoprick under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople. The Cataphryges re-baptizing them that changed the Catholick Communion for theirs, ſome Orthodox Biſhops of Cilicia, Cappadocia, Galatia, and other Neighbouring Provinces met in 256. at Cogne; and declared, that the Hereticks Baptiſm was invalid, and that ſuch of them as changed their Faith ought to be baptized again. Firmilian Biſhop of Cæſarea in Cappadocia, was the greateſt Promoter of the Decree. This Proceeding made Pope Stephen declare theſe Churches Schiſmatick, but St. Cyprian defends them. See Biſhop Pearſon's Annales Cyprianici.

COHEN, the Jews ſtill make uſe of this word, which ſignifies a Prieſt; at preſent it being only a Title of Honour and Reſpect, they being now in no condition to diſtinguiſh the Tribe of Levi, and the Line of Aaron from the reſt, , and indeed have neither Temple nor Sacrifice. However, Leo of Modena in his Book of Ceremonies, part I. ch. 12. obſerves, That there are ſtill Jews who pretend they are deſcended of Prieſts and Levites, and have an undoubted Tradition of the truth of their Genealogies, notwithſtanding the Removals and mixed Matches; yet theſe have no other Preheminence amongſt them, excepting ſome Privileges of the Firſt-born, and are the firſt that read the Pentateuch in the Synagogue. They alſo in Solemn Feaſts give a Benediction in the words of Numbers, ch. 6. 14. The Lord bleſs and preſerve you.

COIMBRE, or COIMBRA, a Town of Portugal in the Province of Beira, with Title of a Dutchy and Biſhoprick, Suffragan of Brague, famous for its Univerſity, founded by John III. King of Portugal. Some take it for the Coimbra of Antonin, and Pliny, tho' others are ſatisfied, that it's Condexa la Vieja, and that Coimbre, which they call Coimbrica nova, was built on the Ruins of the other. However, this is a great and fair Town, built upon the River Mondego, five or ſix Leagues from the Sea.

COINTE (Charles le) an Orator, born at Troyes, in 1611. He wrote the Annales Eccleſiaſtici of France, a Voluminous, and very Learned Work. He was very much eſteem'd by the great Men of France and Italy, and dyed in 1681. Memoirs du Temps.

COIRE, Curia, a Town of Swiſſerland, Capital of the Griſons, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Mayence, is ſituate upon the River Pleſſur, a little above the Rhine, which thereabouts begins to bear Boats. It's in this Town the Griſons generally keep their Aſſemblies; for it lies between Chiavene, Glaris, and Appenzel. The Inhabitants follow the Opinion of Zuinglius. The biſhop of the Town, tho' ſuffragan to the Arch-biſhop of Mayence, is Prince of the Empire, has his Seat and Voices in their College of Princes, and has withal ſeveral powerful Vaſſals, tho' the Revenues of his Church amount but to 15000 Crowns or thereabouts. Here is found in the Neighbourhood of this place ſome Chamoys, a kind of wild Goat that have certain round balls, about the bigneſs of Tennis-balls in their ſtomach, which the Germans pretend have the ſame Virtue with Bezoar, which is found in the ſame Manner in the Paunch of certain Indian Goats; and here are alſo of the Alps Rats which are as big as Pole-cats, and have this admirable Induſtry, that when they make Proviſions of Graſs and Herbs for Winter, there is one that lies on its back to receive and hold the Load, whilſt another drags this by the Tail to the hole; and this, they ſay, is the reaſon why their backs are always bare.

COLALTO, a Town and Caſtle in Italy, in Marca Treviſana. The Earls of this Town acquired great Reputation in the Wars of Italy.

COLAN, a ſmall Kingdom on the Coaſts of Malabar, in the Peninſula, on this ſide the Gulph, ſcarce 20 Leagues long from North to South, and but eight or ten broad from Eaſt to Weſt; was formerly the Seat of the Religion of the Brachmans, which was afterwards removed thence to Cochin. De Refuge Geogr. Hiſt.

COLBERG, a Town of Germany, in the Electoral Pomerania, ſituated on the Baltick Sea, at the Mouth of the River Perſantz, between Coſlin and Trephew, is pretty ſtrong, and conſiderable for its Salt Mines. The Swedes took it in 1631. after a Siege of five Months, but it was afterwards delivered to the Elector of Brandenburg, with the Lower Pomerania, and Biſhoprick of Camin, by the Peace of Weſtphalia, in 1648.

COLBERT (John Baptiſt) Marquiſs of Seignelai, &c. chief Miniſter of State to the French King, a Scotch Man Originally; ow'd his great Preferment to Cardinal Mazarin, who made him his Controuler, and afterwards recommended him to the King at his Death, in 1661. who having made Tryal of his great Parts, intruſted him with the Management of all his Concerns. He us'd, at the beginning of every year, to give his Majeſty a ſmall Agenda, containing all the Sums that were to be received during that year, with an Account of the Funds that were already made, and marked in that Memoir the new ones as ſoon as ſettled; ſo that the King knew what he ſpent, and had to lay out very exactly. Being made Superviſor of the Royal Buildings, he immediately propos'd finiſhing the Louvre, and eſpecially Building the Principal Front, with all the Magnificence imaginable, after the Deſign propos'd by Mr. Peraut of the Academy of Sciences, which the King liked much better than what the other chief Architects, eſpecially Bernin the Italian had pitched upon: He alſo promoted Painting, Sculpture, and all other Arts that could be gainful to the Country, or a Credit to the Prince; eſtabliſhed the Royal Society in 1666. chuſing the ableſt Men in the Kingdom to be Members thereof, and invited the famous Hugens, inventer of the Pendulum from Holland, and Caſſini, the great Aſtronomer from Italy, built an Obſervatory for this in the Convenienteſt place about Paris; and an Elaboratory for the uſe of the Society in the King's Library, where they meet. It was he alſo, that by his great Care and Induſtry made the French ſo ſtrong and able at Sea; finiſhed the Canal of Languedoc; for the Communication of the two Seas, eſtabliſhed the Indian Companies, and Manufactures of all ſuch things that carried moſt Money out of the Country, and ordered Funds for all theſe ſeveral Inventions, as alſo for the Frontier Fortifications, the Buildings, Expences of the King's Houſe, payment of the Navy and Army, and other Charges of the State; ſo that it muſt be allowed, he was a happy Projector for the Prince. He had this particular Property, That he never neglected what he once undertook; and that notwithſtanding his many, and thoſe different Undertakings, he applyed himſelf to each Particular, as if he had no other to Mind. He died at Paris of the Stone, in 1682. being Sixty four years of Age, and leaving many Children all well preferred before his Death. Memoirs du Temps.

COLCHESTER, Lat. Colceſtria, Colonia Camelodunum, the chief place of Eſſex, is (by common Computation) forty three Miles North Eaſt from London; ſeated upon the Riſe of a Hill, on the South-ſide of the River Coln, about Six Miles from its Fall into the Sea. A Town of great Antiquity, and built, (as ſome Authors write) by the Britiſh King Coilus, one hundred twenty four years after our Saviour's Birth: But yet more Remarkable, for giving Birth to Lucius, Helena, and Conſtantine, the Firſt Chriſtian King, Empreſs, and Emperor in the World. The ſame is to this day a large and populous Town, encompaſſed with an old Wall, with Watch-Towers upon it, beſides an old Caſtle on the Eaſt. Within the Walls it contains eight Pariſhes, beſides two in the Suburbs. The principal Trade of it conſiſts in making of Cloath, Bays, Says, and other ſuch Stuffs. But it's of ſome Note beſides, for the large and excellent Oyſters that come from thoſe Parts, known by the Name of Colcheſter-Oyſters; and much admired by the ancient Romans. The Siege this place endured in the year 1648. makes it alſo memorable in Hiſtory; it being the laſt Refuge of the Royaliſts, where they held out to the laſt Extremity, and did not ſubmit till conſtrained to it by Famine. Here thoſe two worthy Knights, Sir Charles Lucas, and Sir George Liſle, the one a Commander of Horſe, the other of Foot, were ſhot to Death by the Rebels.

COLEBROOK, a Market-Town in Buckinghamſhire, in Stock Hundred, ſituate upon the River Coln. From London eighteen Miles.

COLESHILL, a Market-Town in Warwickſhire, in the Hundred of Hemlingford, upon the River Cole. The Lord Digby has a Seat near this place. From London an hundred and one miles.

COLET (John) Eldeſt Son of Sir Henry Colet, twice Lord Mayor of London, was born in London in the year 1466. and Educated at Oxford, where he made a very conſiderable Progreſs in Logick, Philology and Mathematicks. After theſe Improvements at Home, he Travelled into France and Italy, Studied Divinity, and was very much admired by Foreigners, for his Learning. In 1504. having been, for ſome time come back into England, and Commenced Doctor in Divinity, he was by King Henry the Seventh, preferred to the Deanry of St. Paul's, and in 1512. he Founded St. Paul's School. Dr. Colet was a Perſon no leſs Remarkable for the Regularity of his Life, than for his Learning and Munificence. He Died of the Sweating-Sickneſs, in 1519. Athen. Oxon. Hiſtory of Saint Paul's Cathedral, by Sir William Dugdale.

COLIGNI (Barthelimy) a great General, Lived in the Fifteenth Age, ſerved the Venetians againſt Philip Duke of Milan; but when this Prince Died in 1447. Coligni Commanded the Milaneſe, and afterwards was employed by Francis Sforza, until the Venetians enticed him back to their Party again. They named him their General againſt the Turks in 1475. but he died ſoon after.

COLIGNI (Francis) Lord of Andelot, &c. General of the French Foot, Son of Mareſchal Coligni, and younger Brother to the Admiral, was born at Chatillon-ſur-Loing, in 1521. ſerved in the Wars of Italy and Picardy, under Henry the Second, and was made General of the Foot in 1558. when his Brother, the Admiral, laid down his Commiſſion. This Andelot was a great Reader, and correſponded with the Proteſtants of Germany, and at laſt embraced their Religion, perſwaded his Brothers to do the like. In 1557. he followed his Brother, who threw himſelf into St. Quintin, where both were taken, but he made his eſcape into France, and was at the Siege of Calais, in 1558. was ſeiz'd by the King's Orders, upon the Information the Cardinal of Lorrain gave him of his new Sentiments concerning Religion, but was ſet at Liberty upon his Uncle the High Conſtable Montmorency's Requeſt. During the Civil Wars, he ſided with the Proteſtants againſt the King, was at the Battle of Dreux in 1562. and Defended Orleans the year after. The taking of this Town was followed by a Peace that laſted but until 1567. and it was on the Tenth of November that the Battle of St. Denys was fought, but he was not there, being kept on the other ſide the Seine, by the Troops Commanded by the Sieur Matignon, the Night after he joined the Proteſtant Army, which put it ſelf in Battle, where they were beat before. Coligni was alſo in the Wars of Bretany and Poictou, in 1568. and preſent at the Battle of Jarnac, March the 13th, 1569. died the May following of a Peſtilential Fever at Xaintes. M. de Thou ſpeaks of his Death thus: When Andelot had ſhewn his power in the Province, he returned to Xaintes, where falling ill of a Contagious Fever that was very rife at that time, he died, that was one of the greateſt Men in France for his Moderation, Prudence, and Knowledge in Military Diſcipline. Thuan. Davila.

COLIGNI (Gaſpar the Second of the Name) Count of Coligni, Lord of Chatillon-ſur-Loing, Knight of the King's Order, Governour, and Lieutenant General of Paris, Iſle of France, &c. General of the French Foot, Lord High Admiral of the Kingdom; one of the beſt Officers of his time, Son to Gaſpar de Coligni, Mareſchal of France, and of Loüiſe de Montmorency, was born in 1516. brought up in the Army, and from his very Youth, gave great Proofs of Courage and Conduct, in and before the Civil Wars of France. Henry the Second made him Lord High Admiral after the death of Annebaut, in 1552; the next year he led the Van Guard of the Army, that Prince Commanded to Flanders; and in 1554. contributed much to the Victory at Renti, afterwards he managed the Treaty of Peace concluded with the Emperor in 1556. and was the firſt that broke it again by the King's Orders. His deſign upon Doway, the Sixth of January at Night, when all the Inhabitants were dead Drunk, was diſcovered by an old Woman, who waked the Guard with her crying out; but he took and burned Lens between Liſle and Arras, over-ran the Frontiers, and returned with a great Booty. It was the ſame year 1557. that he threw himſelf into St. Quintin, but this place being Forced, he was made Priſoner of War. After Henry the Second's Death, he undertook the Protection, and made Profeſſion of the Proteſtant Religion, in 1560. In the mean time he is accuſed of the Conſpiracy of Amboiſe, whereof he juſtified himſelf, came to the Court to ſollicit the Queen Mother to ceaſe the Severity uſed againſt his Party, and delivered the King their Petition in the Aſſembly of the Notables held at Fontain-bleau the twenty fourth of Auguſt, 1562. afterwards declared openly againſt the Houſe of Guiſe, and formed a very powerful Party. He Fought Couragiouſly at the Battle of Dreux, in 1562. but loſt it. And the Prince of Condé being taken Priſoner, he rallied his Men, and endeavoured to return back to the ſame Place the next day; but did not ſpeed. He led his Army into Berry, where he took Celles, and ſome other Places. Afterwards he came to Gergeau, thence to Orleans, and thence to Normandy; took Caen, Havre de Grace, &c. He was accuſed of having a Hand in the Duke of Guiſe's Death, when he was Murthered by one Poltrot, as he laid Siege to Orleans, in 1563. but he cleared himſelf upon Oath from being Privy to the Deſign. The Edict of March having put an end to the Wars, they began again with more Fury than before. In 1567. the Battle of St. Denys was Fought, and the Admiral, who commanded part of the Proteſtant Forces, was worſted, tho' his Uncle, the Lord High Conſtable, Montmorency, that Commanded the King's Army, was killed in the Fight. Coligni then took ſeveral Places, Commanded the Vangard in the Battle of Jarnac, in 1569. was afterwards forced to Raiſe the Siege of Poictiers, loſt the Battle of Moncontour the ſame year, and was Out-lawed, and deprived of his Place of Admiral by an Act of Parliament. But upon the Peace in 1571. Charles the ninth gave him one hundred thouſand Livres, to repair the Loſſes he had ſuſtain'd during the War, reſtor'd him to his former Place in Council. Being at his Houſe at Chatillon-ſur-Loing, he was invited to Court, to aſſiſt at the King of Navarre's Marriage; and upon a Friday, as he was returning from the Louvre, he was dangerouſly hurt by a Muſquet-ſhot out of a Window. The King of Navarre and Prince of Condé made their Complaint to the King of this Aſſault, who ſeem'd to be much concern'd, and ordered a Search for the Author of ſo black a Deed. And to make it appear the better, went in Perſon, with the Queen-Mother, his Brothers, the Dukes of Anjou and Alenzon, and the greateſt Lords of his Court, to viſit him; but all this Honour did not ſecure the Admiral in the bloody Maſſacre of St. Bartholomew's day, in 1572. His Body was caſt out at a Window, where it lay expoſed to the Fury of the People for three days, and then tied to the Gallows of Monfaucon, until his Couſin, Montmorency, had it brought and buried ſecretly in the Chapel of Chantilly. Thuan. Davila.

COLIGNI (Odet de) Cardinal of Chatillon, &c. was Brother to the Admiral, and to Francis, Lord of Andelot. He was brought up with a great deal of Care, which improved his great Wit, and forwarded his Inclination for Learning, whereof he afterwards became a conſiderable Protector, embraced the Reformation with his Brothers, and was very ſerviceable to his Party. Pope Pius the Fourth, in a private Conſiſtory depriv'd him of his Purple, whereat he was not much concerned; but Married Elizabeth of Hauteville, Lady of the Loré, and died afterwards in England, in 1571. Thuan. Spondan.

COLIGNI (John) Earl of Coligni, and Lieutenant General of the Forces of France, Son to Gaſpar the Third, Marſhal of France, whoſe great Actions he imitated, acquitting himſelf with much Reputation, in thoſe ſeveral Poſts he enjoyed under the King. In 1664. he was pitched upon to Command the Auxiliaries, which the King ſent into Hungary againſt the Infidels, and gain'd a Famous Victory at the Paſs of Raab, where the Grand Viſier was in Perſon; This Advantage, by the Emperor's own Confeſſion, prevented the Ruin of Germany, his Imperial Majeſty doing him the Honour to ſend him three Letters in Acknowledgment of his Service, together with his own Picture. Memoirs du Temps.

COLISEUM, or COLOSSEUM, an Amphitheatre, Built at Rome by the Emperor Veſpaſian, and called Coloſſeum, becauſe it was near a Coloſſus Dedicated to Nero. The Form of this Building was Oval, and the Structure Admirable, and there was room enough in it for near a hundred thouſand Spectators, who ſat round the Arena, that is, the Place where the Beaſts were let looſe. It was here Saint Ignatius the Martyr was expoſed to the Lyons. When the Emperor Titus Dedicated it, he Sacrificed above four thouſand Beaſts of different Kinds. The Goths have much damaged this Building, which continues to decay daily, the greateſt part being already fallen down. Du Cange.

COLLADO (Diego) a Spaniſh Dominican, and famous Miſſionary into China and Japan, Lived to about the year 1630. He wrote ſeveral Pieces, as an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of Japan, called La Hiſt. Eccleſiaſtica del Japan, deſde el Annode, 1607. Haſta Annode 1622. Ars Grammatica Linguæ Japonicæ. Modus confitendi, ac Modus Examinandi Pænitentem Japonium. Dictionarium Japonicum. Dictionarium Linguæ Sinenſis, &c. Leo Allatius in Apib. Urban. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

COLLAO, a Town of America Meridionalis in Peru. It's properly the Port of Lima, being but two Leagues from it, in a very fertil Soil. This Port is very ſafe, and can receive a great number of Ships, which contributes much to enrich the Town.

COLLATIN, or Lucius Tarquinius Collatinus, a Roman Conſul, Son to Egerius Tarquinius, Couſin to Tarquinius Priſcus, the ancient King of Rome, and of a Siſter to Tarquinius Superbus, married Lucretia, Daughter of Spurius Lucretius, and commending her Beauty to Sixtus, one of Tarquin's Sons whom he alſo carried to his Houſe to ſee her. Sixtus liked her very well, and it's ſaid, was ſmitten with her Charms ſo much, that viſiting her one Night at Collatia, where ſhe Lived, he forced her. This made Lucretia kill her ſelf for Grief. And the Tarquins being Baniſhed Rome, Collatinus and Brutus were choſen Conſuls; but the firſt was ſoon Depoſed, out of the general Hatred to the Royal Family whereof he was Deſcended. This happened about 245 of Rome. *Livy, Lib.*1. *Dec.*1.

COLLE, or COLLO, CULLU, and CULLUS, a Town of Africa, in the Kingdom of Tunis, on the Mediterranean Sea, with a convenient Port, and a Gulph of the ſame Name; it lies towards the Frontiers of the Kingdom of Bugie, near the River Suffeamar, between Hipone and Bugie.

COLLE or COLLI, known under the Name of Hippolytus à collibus, Son to Paul Colli, a Native of Alexandria de la Paille, who having embraced the Reformation, quitted his Country to ſettle at Zurick, where his Son Hippolytus was born in 1561. who being brought up in Swiſſerland and in Italy, became ſo profound in the Law, that he was choſen to teach it at Heidelberg, where he was alſo Rector of the Univerſity, as he was afterwards at Baſil, and other Places, until the Prince of Anhalt made him his Chancellor, and employed him in ſeveral Negotiations in France, Germany, England, &c. He died in 1612. His Works are, Conciliarius Principis. De Nobilitate. Commentarius ad Tit. F. de diverſis Regulis Juris, &c. Melchior Adam in Vit. Juriſc. Germ.

COLLENUCCIO (Pandolpho) born at Peſaro, living in the 16*th Cent.* a Perſon of extraordinary worth, well skill'd in the Languages, the polite part of Learning, and in the Civil and Canon Law; Angelus Politianus, and Lilius Gyraldus mention him with advantage. He wrote a Hiſtory of Naples, an apology for Pliny; and Leandr. Alberti aſſures us, that he wrote a Treatiſe concerning the invention of Cannon. Paulus Jovius in Elog. l. 46. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. &c.

COLLINA, a Goddeſs whom the ancient Heathens ſuppoſed to have the Sovereignty of the Hills. St. Auſtin mentions her in his Civitate Dei, and Varro obſerves, that the Hills were called Colles à Colendo.

COLLINA Regio, a Name of one of the four parts that Rome was firſt divided into. It was called thus, becauſe it comprehended five of the ſeven Hills that were within the Walls of the City. The five were, the Viminalis, the Querinals, Salutaris, Mutialis, and Latialis. The Tribe alſo that lived in this part was called Colline, or Tribus Collina, and each other Quarter was alſo inhabited by a particular Tribe. *Varro de Ling. Lat. lib.*4.

COLLINA Porta, one of the Gates of Rome, at the foot of Mons Quirinalis. It was afterwards called the Salt-gate, and the Street Via Salaria, becauſe the Sabins, that brought Salt to Rome, came in at that Gate. It was alſo at the Porta Collina, that the Veſtals were wont to be buried, according to the Teſtimony of Plutarch in the Life of Numa.

COLLIRIDIANS, Hereticks that Worſhipped the Holy Virgin as a Goddeſs, and offered a Cake in Sacrifice to her. They appeared in the Fourth Age, about 373. Epiphan. Hær. 78, 79.

COLLIS Hortorum, a little Mountain of Rome, where Salluſt's Gardens were. The Emperor Aurelian incloſed it in the City. It was famous both for Nero's Tomb, and that there was a Law by which it was ordered, That all ſuch as aſpired to any Preferment in the Commonwealth, ſhould appear upon this Hill before the People, before they came into the Campus Martius, to make their Demand.

COLLIURE, or COLLIOURE, Lat. Coccliberis, a Town of France in Rouſſillon, upon the Mediterranean, near Elne, with a very good Port. It formerly belonged to the Spaniards, but was given the French, by the Pyrenæan Treaty, in 1659.

COLLOREDE, (Rodolphus) Count of Walls, and Knight of Maltha, ſignalized himſelf in the Wars of Germany, ſerved alſo under the Emperor againſt Wallenſtein; his Merit raiſing by Degrees, until at laſt he became General; in which Poſt he continued, under Ferdinand IId. and IIId. until he was made Governour of Prague; after the Peace of Weſtphalia, in 1648.

COLLUTHUS, a Prieſt of Alexandria, and Rector of one of the Pariſhes of that Town, began a Schiſm about the year 316. He was ſo hardy, as to encroach upon a branch of the Epiſcopal Juriſdiction, and Ordain Prieſts; Teaching beſide, that God was in no wiſe the Author of the Troubles and Afflictions of this Life. Hoſius Conven'd a Council in the year 319. or 320. at Alexandria. Here Colluthus was brought to underſtand his Duty, and the Prieſts ordained by him Degraded; However, ſome of his Party continued Refractary, and joined with the Arians and Meletians. St. Athanaſius Apol. 1. Epiphan. Hær. 69. St. Auſtin de Hær. Philaſtrius, &c.

COLMAN, ſurnamed the Wiſe, an Engliſhman, Living in the Thirteenth Century. He wrote a Chronicle, a Catalogue of the Kings of England, a Dialogue of the Daniſh Wars, and ſeveral other Pieces, which gain'd him great Reputation. Leland, Bale, Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat.

COLMAR, in Latin Colmaria, and Columbaria, or according to others, Argentuaria, an Imperial Town of Alſace, belonging to France, ſituate upon the River Helle, three Leagues from Briſac. The Duke of Weymar, aſſiſted by the Troops of France, made himſelf Maſter of this Town in 1633. But this Duke Dying, Colmar was yielded to the King by the Negotiation of the Mareſchal of Guebriant, and confirmed upon him by the Forty ſeventh Article of the Peace of Weſtphalia, where it's named among the Imperial Towns of Alſace. Yet afterwards during the Wars of 1674. it was demoliſhed and abandoned. Berthius.

COLMARS, a little Town of France in Provence, ſituate upon the River Verdone, in the Dioceſs of Senez, and is well known by its Fairs and Manufactures of Cloth.

COLNE, a Market-Town in Lancaſhire, in Blackburn Hundred; ſituate upon a Hill. From London one hundred fifty three Miles.

COLOCZA, or COLOCZ, Lat. Colocia, Coloza, and ad ſtatuas Coloſſas; a Town of Hungary, with the Title of an Arch-biſhoprick, ſituated near the Banks of the Danube, between Buda and Five Churches. It has been formerly far more conſiderable than 'tis at preſent.

COLOGNE, upon the Rhine, Lat. Colonia Ubiorum, and Colonia Agrippina; an Imperial, and one of the four Capital Hance Towns, with an Univerſity and Arch-biſhoprick, whereof the Prelate is Prince, and Elector of the Empire, takes the Title of Arch-chancellor and Legate of Italy, and Duke of Weſtphalia, &c. This Place is very ancient, derives its Origen from the Ubiens, who ſought Julius Cæſar's Alliance, to reſiſt the Suevi their Mortal Enemies. In Auguſtus's Reign they put themſelves under Agrippa's Protection, and paſſing the Rhine, they founded on the left Bank the Town of Cologne, which they then called the Colony of Agrippa. Some ſay, the Place was built before they came, and that they only enlarged it, about Twenty or Twenty Five years before our Saviour's Birth; and afterwards Agrippina, grand Daughter of this Agrippa, and Nero's Mother, to ſhew her Power, when Married to the Emperor Claudius, made the Circuit of the City far wider than it was before, and eſtabliſhed a Colony of Veterans in it, about forty eight years after our Saviour's Birth, Anno Chr. 69. when Vitellius and Veſpaſian diſputed the Empire, this Town was Beſieged by Tutor and Sabinus, who had Revolted againſt the Romans. She obeyed the preſſing Neceſſity, received their Garriſon, which ſhe afterwards Maſſacred, when Cerealis had beaten the Rebels. King Meroüe beat the Romans hence, in the Reign of Valentinian the Third, and ſoon after Attila Ruined it. But being Rebuilt by the Romans, Childeric, Son to Meroüe, took it from them a ſecond time, and gave it to a Prince his Couſin, Father to Sigebert, called The Lame King of Cologne, and Ribarols, who was killed in 599. by Cloderick his Son. It was then that Clovis the Great, who for this Murther put the Executioner to Death, united the People of Cologne to the Crown of France, under which it remained during the Reigns of the Kings of the firſt Race. Under them of the ſecond it fell to the Princes of France, Kings of Germany. In 881. when Charles the Big went to have himſelf Proclaimed Emperor beyond the Alpes, Godefroy and Sigefroy, Kings of the Normans, took and burned Cologne, with fifteen or twenty of the beſt Cities in Gallia Belgica. The Emperor Otho the Great, under whom it was repaired, ſubjected it to his Prelates about 950. but ſucceeding Emperors made it free. Frederick the Firſt allowed it large Privileges, ſince which time it increaſed Mightily, eſpecially when in Anno 1260. it entred into the League of the Hance Towns, and became Capital of the Fourth of their Provinces. After this it was Governed by Senators until the Senate was changed in 1513. by a Riſing of the People, who Maſſacred the Conſuls, Treaſurers and ſome other Magiſtrates, accuſed to have cheated the Publick. The Senate is much like that of old Rome. It governs and judges in Civil Matters; but for Criminals, it only has Power to ſeize and examine them, without the Authority of Acquitting or Condemning them. For the Elector reſerves this to himſelf as the higheſt degree of Sovereign Authority; and it's for this Reaſon, that though the Town is free, yet it does him homage, and ſwears Allegiance, upon condition that he will preſerve the Privileges it enjoys. As for the reſt, Cologne is called the Rome of Germany, for its Greatneſs, its Senate, and fine Buildings. For it is certainly one of the fineſt, ſtrongeſt, and biggeſt of all Germany, environed with ſtrong Walls, that have above eighty three Towers, a tripple Ditch that ſurrounds it, in form of a half Moon. Its Metropolitan Church, Saint Peter's, would be one of the moſt Magnificent in the whole World, if quite finiſhed. Beſides which it has ten Collegiate, nine Pariſh-Churches, Thirty ſeven Monaſteries, ſeveral Hoſpitals, Chapels, and other Churches. This Univerſity was Re-eſtabliſhed in 1388. Beſides which, there is a Jeſuits College built after the Italian Faſhion, with a very fine Dome. There are five great Squares, or principal Places in this Town, where, beſides its Bigneſs, the Cleanneſs of its Streets, the Magnificence of both its private and publick Structures, the Sweet Humour and Civility of the Inhabitants, amongſt whom there is a great number of Learned Men, contribute much to render it conſiderable. It has been a Biſhoprick in former times, ſuffragan of Treves, but was erected into an Arch-biſhoprick, in 755. ten years after Mayence was made one, in favour of Boniface. The firſt Arch-biſhop was called Adolph; who amongſt other Succeſſors had St. Anno, who about 1055. got the Judges Eyes plucked out, for pronouncing an unjuſt Sentence againſt a poor Woman, leaving but an Eye to one that was to lead the reſt to their Homes. Hiſtory adds, That to the end this Puniſhment ſhould ſerve as an Example to others, he ordered Brick-heads, without any Eyes, to be nailed over their Doors. This Dignity had for Suffragans the Biſhopricks of Munſter, Liege, Oſnabruch, Minden, and Utrecht; but the two laſt being become Secular, there are but the three firſt that depend on it now. The Arch-biſhop is great Chancellor of the Empire in Italy, but never Exerciſes the Functions of his Office; for Princes that hold any Principalities of the Empire in Italy, are its perpetual Vicars, in which Quality they can do in all Places in their Juriſdictions what the Emperor could do in Common Caſes, and in higher Points have recourſe to the Imperial Court. Wherefore the Arch-biſhop of Mentz, who is great Chancellor of Germany, is Keeper of the Archives, and the Titles that concern Italy. The Golden Bull declares, That the Arch-biſhop of Cologne has the Privilege of Crowning the King of the Romans, that is, the Emperor; Nevertheleſs it ſeems this does not belong to him, but when the Ceremony is performed in his Dioceſs, or in the Suffragan Biſhopricks; for the Arch-biſhop of Mentz diſputes it with him, when it's done elſewhere. This does not hinder, but the Arch-biſhop of Cologne goes before him of Mayence, within the Diſtricts of his Metropolitan, and Chancellorſhip of Italy, where he puts himſelf on the Emperor's Right, leaving the Elector of Mayence, who precedes him in all other Places, the Left. The Archbiſhop of Cologne has alſo by the Golden-Bull, the ſecond Suffrage in the Electoral College, with Privilege to vote immediately after the Archbiſhop of Treves, exerciſe Juſtice by his Officers in all criminal Caſes in the Town, though otherwiſe free and immediately depending on the Empire. But the Towns-people do not ſuffer him to make any long ſtay with them, nor come with a great Train, which has been the Occaſion of ſeveral Debates theſe many Ages, and is the Reaſon why that Prelate keeps his Reſidence for the moſt part at Bonne. The great Chapter of Cologne conſiſts of Sixty Canons, all Princes or Counts; for they receive no common Gentlemen, nor any ſo low as a Baron; quite contrary to that of Treves and Mayence, where they receive neither Princes nor Counts, unleſs for ſome weighty Reaſons. The twenty four Eldeſt of the ſixty, form a particular Chapter for the Election of the Archbiſhop, and have their active and paſſive Votes, having Power to chuſe any of the Colleagues, or be choſen themſelves to the vacant Dignity. The ancienteſt Aſſembly of the Clergy held at Cologne was that of 346. wherein Euphrates, then Biſhop of the Town, was depoſed for ſiding with the Arrians, and Severinus put in his place. Charlemagne ordered another there in the Eighth Age; and there were others held in the Ninth, for the Reformation of Manners, againſt the Oppreſſors of the Poor, and Inceſtuous Marriages, &c. The Arms of the Archbiſhoprick of Cologne are a Field Argent charg'd with a Croſs Sable. Heiſſ. Hiſt. Imper. Lib. 6.

COLOMAN, ſucceeded his Father Ladiſlaus in the Kingdom of Hungary, notwithſtanding the Oppoſition of his younger Brother Alme, whoſe Eyes he ordered to be pluck'd out. And to ſecure himſelf the better, he would have his Nephew Bela gelt; but the Hangman that was to do this, deceived him, by ſhewing him a little Dog's Teſticles inſtead of his Nephew's. He died in 1114. after twenty one Years Reign. This Prince, beſides his Cruelty, was very much deformed, being lame, crooked, ſquint-eyed, &c.

St. COLOMB in Cornwall, ſeated on the top of a Hill, the Meeting-place of the Juſtices of Peace for the South-diviſion; 260 Miles from London.

COLOMB, a Military Order inſtituted by John I. of this Name, King of Caſtile, in 1379. but did not continue long.

COLOMBAN, Abbot of Luxëuil in Burgundy; a Perſon of Conſideration towards the end of the VIth and the beginning of the VIIth Century. His Canones Pœnitentiales were publiſhed at Louvain, though ſome are of Opinion that theſe Canons do not belong to St. Columban. There have been ſeveral of this Name, which we muſt take care not to confound with each other; for that Purpoſe, Columban the Abbot of Luxëuil, is not the ſame with the Iriſh St. Columban, who converted part of Scotland, as appears by Archbiſhop Uſher's Antiquitates Britannicæ. *Sigebert de Script. COLOMEY, in Latin Coloma, a Town in Poland, in Pocutia, a ſmall Country of Black Ruſſia, ſituate upon the little River Prat, towards the Frontiers of Moldavia, and at the foot of the Mountains.

COLOMIERS, or Columiers, Lat. Colomeria and Colomeriæ; a little Town of France in Brie, with a Court and Election. It is ſituate upon the River Morin, 5 or 6 Leagues from Meaux.

COLONA, or Colonna, a very Noble and Ancient Family of Italy, fruitful in famous Men.

COLONEL-GENERAL of the French Infantry: The Title of a great Officer of the Kingdom, who commands all the French Foot, having the Camp-Maſters, Lieutenant-Colonels under him; all Military Orders are publiſh'd in his Name. P. Anſelm. Hiſtoir. des Grands Officers de la Couronne.

COLONNA (Stephen) a great Commander, Father of J. Cæſar, Prince of Palæſtrina, ſerv'd the Emperor Charles V. After, in 1527. Pope Clement VII. againſt the Spaniard. The Year after he commanded the French in the Kingdom of Naples, under Lautréc, then under the Admiral of Bonnivet, and coming into France, was employ'd againſt the Emperor in Provence; but being not us'd as he deſerved, he paſs'd into Italy, where Pope Paul III. made him General of his Troops, to recover Camerino. Hence he paſs'd into Coſimo de Medicis's Service, and commanded at laſt in Quality of Mareſchal de Camp under Charles V. againſt the Duke of Cleves, and died at Piſa, in 1548. Roſcio & Maſcardi.

COLONNA (Fabricio) a great Commander, Native of Rome, liv'd in the XVth and beginning of the XVIth Age, was at the taking of Otranto from the Turks, which they made themſelves Maſters of the Year before, as they returned from Rhodes; afterwards ſtuck to the King of Naples, and became ſo inveterate an Enemy to the Houſe of Urſin, that when theſe ſided with Charles VIII. of France, Fabricio and Proſper Colonna quitted his Service, and join'd with Ferdinand King of Naples. After this they happened to have ſome difference with Pope Alexander VI. who baniſhed them out of Rome in 1499. at which they were but very little concerned, taking for Device, the Bulruſhes which the Wind bends without breaking, with theſe Words, Flectimur, ſed non Frangimur. After ſeveral Adventures, Fabricio was at the Battel of Ravenna, in 1512. and being taken Priſoner was in great Fear of being put to Death by the French; but the Duke of Ferrara, that was in their Army, ſecur'd him, and got him his Liberty. He return'd the Obligation in procuring the Duke's Eſcape notwithſtanding all the Pope's endeavours to ſeize him, for ſiding with the French. Charles V. the Emperor, had great Eſteem for this deſerving Man, continued to him the place of High-Conſtable of Naples, given him by Ferdinand, King of that Kingdom. He died in 1520. Guichardine, Paul. Jov. &c.

COLONNA (James) Cardinal, Native of Rome, Archdeacon of Piſa, received into the Sacred College by Nicholas III. who to defend himſelf againſt the Urſins, was the kinder to the Houſe of Colonna. Martin IV. Honorius IV. and Nicholas IV. this Pope's Succeſſors, gave Colonna the marks of their Eſteem and Affection, in making his Nephew, Peter Colonna, a Cardinal, who was married; but his Wife took the Veil, and made a Vow of Chaſtity. Nicholas IV. dying in 1292. and Cæleſtine the Vth. his Succeſſor, dying in Priſon in 1296. after his Abdication, his Succeſſor, Boniface the Eighth, was publickly blam'd at Rome for his violent and unjuſt Proceeding; and he, purſuaded that the Colonna's exaſperated the People, and rais'd Rumours that were ſo diſadvantageous to his Honour and Dignity, beſides, for the old Grudges of their Family, and becauſe theſe Cardinals oppoſed his Promotion, and refuſed to wait on him according to his Orders at Rome, could not diſguiſe his Reſentment; whereupon they who were well acquainted with his haughty and paſſionate Temper, to avoid falling into his hands, withdrew to Nepi, where John Colonna, a Couſin of theirs, commanded. This enraged the Pope to that Degree, that he publiſhed a Croiſade againſt them, and laid Siege to Nepi, which he reduced to that Extremity, that the Governor for its Security was forced to ſend the Cardinals away, who were received at Palæſtrina by another Colonna that commanded there. This enraged the Pope ſo much, that to be revenged, he came before this Place in Perſon; ſo that the three Colonna's were forced to make their Eſcape, diſguis'd, to a Friend's Houſe at Perouſe. The next Morning, the Town being ſurrendred, Boniface gave Orders to demoliſh it, with ſome others that received the Colonna's. Then he thundred againſt them with his Cenſures, depriv'd the Cardinals of their Benefices and Dignities, excluded Sciara Colonna from the Communion of the Church, and was ſo extravagant, that he publiſhed a Price for their Heads, and Excommunicated all thoſe that ſhould bear the Name or Arms of that Family. Sciara Colonna ſhunning this Perſecution, was taken at Sea by Pyrates, who Anchoring at Marſeille, Philip the Fair procured Sciara's Liberty, and ſent him and William Nogaret to Italy in 1303. They ſurprized Boniface at Agnania, where it's ſaid Colonna gave him a Blow on the Face with his Hand armed with a Gauntlet. This happened the ſeventh of September. And the Pope, after he came back to Rome, died of Rage and Deſpair the 11th of October following. Benet the Eleventh his Succeſſor, re-eſtabliſhed the Colonna's, who continued in great Eſteem under Clement the Fifth, and John the twenty ſecond. The Cardinal Peter died at Avignon in 1326, and his Body was removed to Rome. Spondan. Ciaconius.

COLONNA (John) Cardinal, famous in the thirteenth Age, being declared Legate to the Chriſtian Army, was ſent to the Holy Land. He was at the taking of the Town of Damieta after a Siege of twenty two Days, in 1219. by John King of Jeruſalem, and the reſt of the Croiſade, and contributed much to the good Succeſs, by forwarding and encouraging the Men. It's ſaid, That being taken afterwards by the Saracens, they reſolved to have ſawed him in the middle, as a Puniſhment for what they had ſuffered through his Preſence and Conduct, but was ſet at Liberty when they had obſerved his Reſolution and Conſtancy. After his Return hence, Pope Gregory the Ninth gave him the Command of his Army, to diſpoſſeſs the Emperor Frederick the Second of the Kingdom of Naples; but this had not the Succeſs they promiſed themſelves, and the Cardinal died in 1244. Onuph. Ciacon. &c.

COLONNA (Mark Antony) Son to Peter Antony, Prince of Salerno, and Nephew to Fabricio and Proſper, and nothing inferior to any of the Name in Courage or Conduct. He diſtinguiſhed himſelf much in the Wars of Italy, eſpecially at the Battles of Barlette and Gariglan, where the French were defeated, yet took part with thoſe at laſt, and was killed at the Siege of Milan, in 1522.

COLONNA, (Mark Antony) Duke of Palliano and Marſi, Lord High Conſtable of Naples, and Viceroy of Sicily, Commanded as Lieutenant-General, at the famous Battle of Lepanto, in 1571. and was received in Triumph at Rome. At his Return he died in Spain, in 1584. Guichardin, &c.

COLONNA (Pompey) Cardinal, Son to Jerom Colonna, Nephew to Cardinal John, and Proſper the famous General, who became his Guardian when his Father was killed in a Tumult of the People. His Inclinations were quite for the Army, but was forced by his Tutor to become of the Church, to have the profit of part of his other Uncle's Benefices. It's ſaid, That ſoon after this he accepted a Challenge ſent him by a Spaniard, and came to the Place appointed; but being hindered to fight, tore his Saoune or Gown in Pieces, out of mere Rage. Some time after this, he differed with Pope Julius the Second; for this Prelate paſſing for dead, Pompey put himſelf at the Head of ſome of the young Men of the Town, and ſeized the Capitol. This Boldneſs coſt him his Livings, which were diſtributed amongſt his Couſins; but he was ſoon received into favour again; and Leo the Tenth made him Cardinal; after which he ſubſcribed to the Election of Adrian the Sixth, in oppoſition to the Deſigns of Julius de Medicis, whom he could not abide. So that after Adrian's Death, the Intreagues and Jealouſies of theſe two Cardinals kept the Seat vacant for two Months, which gave occaſion to the Latin Epigram.

Ecce iterum è ſummo dejectam culmine Romam
Pompeii & Julii mens furioſa premit.
Brute pium, Photine pium, nunc ſtringite ferrum,
Quid ſervâſſe juvat, ſi peritura fuit.

At length the Election of the Cardinal de Medicis, under the Name of Clement the VIIth, calmed the Animoſities for a time, but they renewed again, and were the occaſion of the taking of Rome twice; the firſt time by this Cardinal and Hugues of Moncado, in 1526. and by the Conſtable of Bourbon, the year after. The Pope had deprived him of his Cardinalſhip and Livings; but was forced to have recourſe to him when kept Priſoner in the Caſtle of Saint Angelo, and Colonna Generouſly Laboured for his Liberty; for which Kindneſs the Pope Re-eſtabliſhed him in all as before, and gave him the Legation of the Marche of Ancona, the Biſhoprick of Averſa, and Arch-biſhoprick of Montreal. After that he was Vice-roy of Naples, where he died in 1532. He made a Poem intituled, De Laudibus Mulierum. Guichardin.

COLONNA (Proſper) Lord of Palliano, and one of the greateſt Men of his time, ſided with Charles the Eighth, when he undertook the Conqueſt of the Kingdom of Naples, but left him to join Ferdinand of Arragon, and did great Service upon all occaſions againſt the French, who at laſt Surprized him at Dinner, at Ville Franche du Po, where he was in 1515. to defend the Paſſages of the Alpes; but he was Revenged of the Affront, when he was ſet at Liberty, defeated the French at the Battle of Bicoque, in 1522. and contributed much to the taking of Milan, after which he died in 1524. being ſeventy one years of Age.

COLONN (Victoire) Daughter of a Roman Lord of the Family of the Colonna's, and Wife to Ferdinand-Francis d'Avalois, Marqueſs of Peſquaire. She was very well verſed in all Sciences, but excelled in Poetry. After her Husband's Death, ſhe would not hear of any Propoſal of a ſecond Marriage, but imployed her ſelf wholly to deſcribe his great Actions in a Poem ſhe made to honour his Memory. This made Muſconio, a famous Poet of that Age, prefer her Affection to that of Porcia, Cato Uticenſis's Daughter, for her Husband Brutus, in theſe Verſes;

Non vivam ſine te, mi Brute, exterrita dixit

Porcia, & ardentes ſorbuit ore faces.

Te, d'Avale, extincto, dixit Victoria, vivam

Perpetuò mœſtos ſic dolitura dies.

Utraque Romana eſt; Sed in hoc Victoria Victrix:

Perpetuò hæc luctus ſuſtinet, illa ſemel.

She died in 1541. Hilarion de Coſta, &c.

COLONY, a Detachment of People which the Romans ſent to Inhabit and Cultivate, either a new or a Conquered Country. There were two ſorts of Colonies Roman and Latin: The Roman Colonies, were Roman Citizens, and had the Right of Suffrage, or giving their Vote in the Election of the Magiſtracy, but with this Limitation, of being uncapable of enjoying the Offices, and Honours of the Common-wealth. The Latin Colonies had the Right of Election, if the Magiſtrate permitted it, and were Incorporated into the Roman Republick, after having born ſome Office in a Latin Town. There were likewiſe Military Colonies, for the entertaining of old Soldiers, when they were incapable of doing further Service. Both the Romans and Greeks us'd to Ornament their Colonies with Temples, and other magnificent Buildings, to give Satisfaction to the new Inhabitants. They likewiſe gave the Mountains and Rivers the ſame Names, of thoſe they had quitted at Rome, or in other Places of Italy. Thus Cologne, Treves, Toulouſe, &c. had their Capitol like that at Rome. Verona, Lyons, &c. had their Circus and Amphitheatre, of which, at preſent, there are conſiderable Remains. Roſin. Antiq. Rom. Lib. 10. Adr. Valeſ. Not. Gall. in Præf.

COLOPHON, a Town of Ionia, ſuppoſed by ſome to be the Birth-place of Homer; 'tis called, at preſent Altoboſco, or Belvedere; The Colophonian Cavalry were, as Strabo Reports, ſo extraordinary, that they gave occaſion to the Proverb, Colophonem Addere, i. e. To finiſh an Enterprize, becauſe the Colophonian Horſe us'd to Rout the Enemy, and decide the Fate of the Battle where-ever they Charged. Colophon was formerly a Biſhop's See, under the Arch-Biſhoprick of Epheſus. Strabo, Lib. 14. Plin. &c.

COLOSSUS, an ancient City of great Phrygia, in Aſia Minor, on the Frontiers of Caria, was firſt a Biſhoprick, and afterwards became a Metropolis. It's particularly known by the Epiſtle Saint Paul writ to the Coloſſians, Inhabitants thereof; though ſome think that this Letter was Addreſſed to the Rhodians, called Coloſſians, from the great Coloſſus Erected at the Port of that Iſland, in Honour of the Sun. However, the Town of Coloſſus in Aſia, lies on the River Licho, and is what the Greeks call Chonos.

COLOSSUS, a Braſs Statue Seventy Cubits high, Erected at the Port of Rhodes, in honour of the Sun, and eſteemed one of the Seven Wonders of the World. After it had ſtood Fifty years, an Earthquake overthrew it. Few could embrace or girt its very Thumb. It was of ſuch a vaſt Bulk, that when the Saracens made themſelves Maſters of Rhodes, An. Dom. 667. they Loaded Nine hundred Camels with the Braſs. Nero built a Coloſſus at Rome with his own Head upon it. Veſpaſian removed his, and put a Sun thereon. Commodus diſplaced this, and ſet his Head on; and Lampridius ſays, he added Inſcriptions of his own Name and good Parts, according to the Cuſtom of thoſe times.

COLUMBUS (Chriſtopher) a famous Pilot, was born in 1442. Ferdinand, his Son, who writ his Life, ſtrains himſelf to derive his Deſcent from great People. Yet it is certain his Father was a Wool-Comber, and he himſelf was of that Calling too, until, being ſome time at Sea, he fanſied that Occupation, and applied himſelf much to the Study of Geography. Then underſtanding by a certain Sea-man called Andaluza, or as ſome will have it, he himſelf concluding from the Poſition of the World, that there were ſome habitable Parts in the other Hemiſphere, reſolved to go to diſcover them. Accordingly he addreſs'd himſelf to ſome Princes, who laugh'd at the Enterprize, and ſtil'd it a Dream. But Ferdinand and Iſabella, that Reigned then in Spain, received him more favourably, and gave him three Ships, with which he ſet forth from Port Palos de Moger in Andaluzia, Auguſt 3. 1492. and ſailed until at laſt he found the Iſlands, and landed at Guana Bay, one of the Luccaies. The Iſlanders, frighted with an unwonted Sight, gain'd the Mountain with ſuch ſpeed, that the Spaniard could take but one Woman, whom he let go again after he had given her Bread, Wine, and ſome Jewels. This good uſage made the reſt leſs wild; ſo that they did not ſhun the Chriſtians ſo much, who did all they could to gain the Affection of their Cacique, for ſo they called their King, who gave Columbus leave to build a Wooden Fort on the Sea-Coaſt, where he left thirty eight Spaniards, and returned in all haſte to acquaint the King with his happy Diſcovery. So arrived in the Month of May, the Year after, being fifty Days in the Voyage to port Palos again. When he had acquainted the Council with the Means to conquer theſe rich Provinces, they reſolved to ſend him back in quality of Admiral of the Indies, and allowed him all the Privileges he would deſire. The King ennobled him and all his Poſterity, and gave him for Arms A Sea Argent and Azure, Six Iſlands Or, under the Cope of Caſtile and Leon, the World as Creſt, and theſe Words,

Por Caſtilla, y por Leon,

Itala Nuevo Monde Halto Colon.

After this, ſome that envied his Succeſs, repreſented him ill to King Ferdinand and Iſabella, but he was received into Favour again, and died in 1506. being ſixty four Years of Age. Thuan. Spondan.

COLUMPTON, an indifferent Market-Town in Devonſhire, ſeated near the River Colum, where it hath a Bridge, 134 Miles from London.

COLURI, formerly Salamine, an Iſland in the Gulf of Engia, famous for the Defeat of the Perſian Fleet commanded by Xerxes. Some Authors have thought that Homer was born in this Iſle.

COLYBES. The Greeks gave the Name of Colybes to a certain heap of Corn and Pulſe which they boiled and offered in Honour of their Saints, and for the Dead; and have particular Prayers for this in their Euchologium, wherein addreſſing themſelves to God, they ſay, they offer their Colybes for his Glory, and in Honour of ſuch a certain Saint, and in Memory of the Dead. Rich. Simon. in Opuſc.

COLZIM, a Mountain of middle Egypt, in the Deſart of Gebela, a Day's Journey from the Red Sea. There is a famous Monaſtery of St. Anthony, with a great Number of Religious People. Here is no Door to be ſeen to this Building. People are drawn up over the high Walls with a certain Invention manag'd within, as in the Convent of S. Catharine in Mount Sinai in Arabia Petræa. Vanſleb. Relat. Ægypt.

COMACCHIO, in Latin Comacum and Comacula, a Town of Italy in the Dutchy of Ferrara, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Ravenna, lies amongſt the many Ponds formed by the Po, which the Country People call Valli di Comacchio, about three of four Miles from the Adriatick-ſea. The Air being very bad here, the Town is not conſiderable, being for the moſt part inhabited by Fiſhermen, who through the abundance of the Fiſh thereabouts live pretty well. Here are alſo ſome Salt-Pits, whence the Pope draws great Revenues.

COMAGENA, a little Country in Aſia, which made part of Syria, and was changed into a Province by the Romans. The chief Town is Samoſata upon Euphrates, famous for Lucian's and Paul Patriarch of Antioch the Hereſiarch's Birth. It alſo had particular Princes, as Antiochus, King of Comagena, defeated by Marc Anthony, and another who led Succours to Veſpaſian.

COMANIA, a Town of Aſia, in the Province of Pontus, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Neocæſarea, ſituate on the River Iris, and different from Comania in Cappadocia, upon the River Sarus. Strabo ſpeaks of a Temple in the former dedicated to Bellona.

COMANIA, the Country of Georgia, taken in General, ſituate on the Caſpian Sea, towards the Eaſt; has Mountains that part it from Circaſſia on the Weſt, Gurgiſtan on the South, and Muſcovy on the North. The Soil is extraordinary good, though but little looked after, by reaſon the Inhabitants live moſt by Robbing and Plunder. They Live at the Foot of the Mountains both for the Conveniency of the fine Springs, and that they may retire at pleaſure into the Hills, when purſued by the Enemy, for all they that live round them, as the Georgians, Mingrelians, Circaſſians, Tartars and Muſcovites, prey daily upon one another. The Komouchs poſſeſs the Eaſtern parts of Comanie, towards the Caſpian Sea. They are Mahometans, and under the protection of the King of Perſia, who ſets a great value on them, becauſe they defend that part of his Country againſt the Kalmouchs, and his other Enemies. Theſe Kalmouches are Tartars, who live on the other ſide the Caſpian Sea, under the Protection of the great Duke of Muſcovy. Tavernier.

COMANUS, Son of Nannus, King of the Segobrigians, gave the Greeks of Phocide, the place where they Built Maſſilia, now called Marſeille. Yet a little after was deſired by a Neighbouring Prince to hinder the farther increaſe and power of thoſe Strangers. And the better to perſwade how neceſſary it was to check a Foreign Power in its Infancy, he made uſe of the Fable of a Bitch, which being big with Whelp, deſired a Shepherd to let her have ſome place to lie-in in; having obtained it, ſhe ſued for leave to bring her young ones up in the ſame place, until theſe being grown up, and thinking that with their help ſhe might keep Poſſeſſion, ſhe begun to look upon that as her Right, which ſhe only had on Courteſie. Comanus finding by this that it was his Intereſt to Deſtroy the Town, thought to have Surprized it on a day that they Celebrated the Goddeſs Flora's Feaſt, when the Inhabitants were taken up with Mirth and Paſtime; but was ſurprized himſelf and killed, with Seven Thouſand that had accompanied him in the Undertaking. From this time forth the Maſſilians kept upon their Guard, ſo that in all their Feaſts they ſhut their Gates, took Notice of what Strangers they had in the Place, and ordered Guards on their Ramparts. Juſtin, Lib. 45. We are to obſerve, That the Phocenſes received the Privilege of Ground to build a Town upon, not from Comanus, but from his Father Nannus: And Secondly, The Prince who inſtigated Comanus to Attack the Maſſilians, is no more than a private Ligurian, or a Genoeſe, in Juſtin's Hiſtory.

COMBEFIS (Francis) a Dominican, a Perſon of great Learning in the Seventeenth Century. In 1644. he publiſhed the Works of Amphilochius, Biſhop of Iconium, of Methodius and Andreas, Biſhops of Creet. The year after he Publiſhed ſome new Pieces of Saint Chryſoſtom, Printed from Manuſcripts in the King's Library, with a Defence of the Scholia of Maximus upon Saint Denys. In 1648. he Publiſhed a new Edition of the Greek Fathers, with Additions in Folio: In the latter Volume he has given us a true Hiſtory of the Monothelites, which Performance was diſliked at Rome, only upon the Account of the Freedom he has taken with Cardinal Baronius, whom he has proved, to have been ſometimes clearly Miſtaken. In 1672. he augmented the Bibliotheca Patrum, with a new Volume in Folio, call'd Noviſſimum Auctarium Bibliothecæ Græcorum Patrum. Before this time, in 1653. upon Father Goar's falling ill, he was, by the King's Order, put upon Reviſing the Byzantine Hiſtorians, in that Father's room. Combefis Reviſ'd the whole Work, and added ſome Notes and Corrections of his own. He publiſhed ſeveral other Works of Antiquity, and a Book of his own called, Eccleſiaſtes Græcus, for an Aſſiſtance to the Pulpit. He Dyed at Paris, in 1679. being the Seventy fourth year of his Age. Memoirs Hiſtoriques.

COMBMARTIN, a ſmall Market-Town in Devonſhire, on the Severn-Sea, where it hath an in-let, which runs through the Town. From London one hundred forty nine Miles.

COME, a certain Captain of Robbers; being taken and examined before the Conſul Rupilius, he deſired a little Reſpite to Anſwer, and then putting himſelf on his Knees, held his Breath ſo long that he died upon the ſpot. Valer. Maxim.

COME or COMO, Lat. Comum, or Novocomium, an Epiſcopal Town of Italy in the Dutchy of Milan, built, according to Juſtin's Opinion, by the Gauls when they invaded Italy under Brennus. This Town being once demoliſhed, was re-built, and then received the name of Novocomium, ſince which time there has been Alterations, both under Anſelmo di Poſterula, Arch-biſhop of Milan, who lived in 1123. and in the beginning of the Sixteenth Age, during the Wars of Italy; For Charles the Fifth having Taken it in 1520. ſuffered great Diſorders there, to Puniſh the Inhabitants for ſiding with France. It is built on the Banks of a great Lake, above one hundred Miles round, to which it gives its Name; for it's called the Lake of Como, and has ſeveral good Boroughs along its Banks: The River Adde runs through it, and has the Fort Deſluents built juſt upon the place it enters the Lake. Como, is a great, rich, and well peopled Town, with a great Number of fine Churches and other good Buildings. The Poets Cecilius, Pliny junior, Paul and Benet Jove were born here. Strabo. Liv. Leander Alberti.

COMEDIE, a Performance for a Play-Houſe, wherein Peoples Actions, and the common Occurrences and Accidents of Humane Life are repreſented. Athenæus gives it the ſame beginning with Tragedies, ſaying, they were firſt of all nothing but a kind of Hymn the Pagans ſung to Bacchus, dancing about the Altar, on which they Sacrificed a He-goat to this God. Clemens Alexandrinus attributed the Invention to Siſarion of Icaria, becauſe, in all likelihood it was he Compoſed the firſt Hymns of Bacchus, that were ſung at the Sacrifice of the Goat Inſtituted by Icarius, about Anno Mund. 2700. It received the Name of Comedy when the Athenians made uſe of this Ceremony in their City, and added the Chorus or Quires of Muſick, with Set and Figure Dances. Then this was called Tragedy, and the Ceremony, as practiſed abroad in the Country, retained the Name of Comedy or Village Song, from the Greek word κώμη, which ſignifies a Village, and ᾠδὴ a Song, or Hymn. It had not the ſame Progreſs that Tragedy had, for in Ariſtophanes's days, who lived Anno Mund. 3630. after Sophocles and Eurypides it was Compoſed of nothing but Raillery and publick Satyr, though it began to have Actors about the ſame time with Tragedy: That is, in the Poet Epicharmus's time, a Sicilian, who flouriſhed Anno Mund. 3600. Hence it is, that the Sicilians endeavour to maintain, That Comedy had its Original in Syracuſa, under their Epicharmus, though we have Fragments of Alceus's Comedies, who Lived Two hundred years before him; but they would have it ſo, becauſe he was the firſt that added Actors to the Chorus. As ſome would have given Theſpis the like Honour for the ſame reaſon, in reſpect of Tragedy. Thus Diomedes gives the Names of the firſt Comick Poets to Sannyrion, who invented Maſquerades and Poſtures in Comedy; to Cratinus, who improved it to three Actors, and ordered the Form of its Compoſition, and to Ariſtophanes, who gave it a fuller Perfection. The Comedy of the Greeks is diſtinguiſhed into Old, Middle, and New. The Poets of the Old were they that handled People without any Diſguiſe, and called them by their Names, as Horace informs us in ſpeaking of Eupolis, Cratinus and Ariſtophanes, where he ſays, That theſe three, with the other Poets of the ancient Comedy reprimanded with a great deal of Liberty, all them that deſerved to be taken notice of for their Malice, Extortions, Debaucheries, and other Crimes, which rendered thoſe kind of Poets formidable to all ſorts of People. But though this Method of ſpeaking Truth was received with much Applauſe by the Common People, and was pleaſing enough to Perſons of Quality for a time, yet they began to be tired of it at laſt, and Alcibiades Publiſhed an Order to forbid any Comick Poet to make uſe of any ones Name in his Work. This produced a new kind of Repreſentation called a Middle Comedy, whereof Ariſtophanes was the firſt Inventor, and was followed by Philemon, Plato the Comick, and ſeveral others; who, after his Example, obſerved a mean between Severity and Complaiſance; But at laſt, becauſe though no Body was nam'd, yet the Parties Concerned were eaſily diſcovered, there was a Third kind invented, called The New Comedy, wherein they endeavour to ſuit themſelves to the general Temper and Reliſh of the Times, making uſe of feigned Subjects, and new invented Names. Menander was looked upon as Author of this, or at leaſt, as he that Succeeded beſt in the Deſign. The Poets of the Old Feigned nothing, the Subjects were always matter of Fact, and the Names the true ones. Poets of the Middle ſort made uſe of Real Subjects, but Counterfeit Names; and they of the New invented both Subjects and Perſonages.------ As Tragedy is a Grave and Serious Repreſentation of a ſad Action or fatal Accident befallen Perſons Raiſed by their great Quality or extraordinary Merit, above the Common ſort; ſo Comedy is an ingenious and merry Repreſentation of a pleaſant Adventure between ordinary People, with ſome mild Satyr for Correction of Manners. Tragi-comedy exhibits noble Adventures of Perſons of great Quality, Threatned with ſome great Misfortune, but that come off with happy Succeſs. The Paſtoral has for Object ſome Amorous Adventure between Shepherds and Shepherdeſſes, and is thought to derive its Origin from the Eclogues, or, at leaſt, ſeems to be made in imitation of them. Touching theſe Diverſions, ſome are of Opinion, they are an Effect of the profound Wiſdom of the Grecians, as great Maſters of Politicks as they were of other Sciences; For their prudent Legiſlators applying themſelves Seriouſly to inſtruct and poliſh the People by all poſſible means, countenanced publick Spectacles, to divert them from Private Contrivances, and Secret Plots againſt the State, and to move them by the Examples there ſhewn them to abhor Vice, and practice Vertue. Hence it came, that ſome Fathers, to beget an averſion to Drunkenneſs in their Children, made their Servants drink to an extraordinary height, & brought 'em into the Childrens preſence in that Condition; who obſerving the ridiculous, and ſometimes naſty effects of too much drink, had juſt reaſon to hate, and ſo decline the Cauſe. Pliny remarks, That there were two Places on the Lake Larius, now called the Lake of Coma, in Italy, one called Comedy and the other Tragedy, from the Spectacles or Sights repreſented in them. Athenæus, Diog. Laert. Lilius Gyraldus, Hiſt. Poet. Jul. Scalig. lib. Poet. &c.

COMENIUS (Amos) born in Moravia in Bohemia, was forced to quit his own Country upon the account of his being a Proteſtant, and retiring with ſeveral of his Countrymen into Holland, he was generouſly entertain'd by Lawrence de Geer. Comenius was a conſiderable Maſter in the Latin Tongue, and beſides ſeveral other Pieces, has publiſh'd, Janua Linguarum, Veſtibulum, Atrium, Didactica, &c. He died at Amſterdam about the middle of the Seventeenth Century. Memoirs Hiſtoriques.

COMER, a Scythian, coming to Italy taught the way of making rouling or portative Towns, by building Houſes on Chariots, according to the cuſtom of his Country. This was in 1360. before the Foundation of Rome; and it was from this that the Name of Vejæ, an ancient People of Etruria came, becauſe the Scythians in their Language called a Chariot ſo.

COMES, Natalis, or de Comitibus, was born at Venice and liv'd to the latter end of the ſixteenth Century. He was very well accompliſhed in the Belles Lettres, and tranſlated Athenæus into Latin. He likewiſe wrote thirty Books of the Hiſtory of his Time, ten Books of Mythology, and ſome other Treatiſes. Joſeph Scaliger had no great Opinion of his Performances, as appears from the fourteenth Book of his Epiſtles, Epiſt. 309.

COMET, is a luminous Body which appears ſometimes amongſt the Stars, of different bigneſs. Aſtrologers diſtinguiſh it into three kinds, viz. the Hairy, the Bearded, and Comet with a Tail; the Hairy ſpreads its Rays on every ſide, the Bearded darts 'em towards that part it moves to; that with a Tail caſts it behind. The Ancients were always of Opinion, That theſe uncommon Sights were the fore-runners of ſome great diſaſter, and ſome of our Moderns cannot yet be beat out of this Opinion, which they endeavour to confirm by alledging the Death of Princes and ſeveral ſad Accidents that have been obſerv'd to follow theſe Appearances, without taking notice that theſe are common events, and Comets but very rare, which ſhews their little Connection and Dependance on each other; but when they appear it's eaſy to make applications enough, according to one's Fancy.

COMINE, Lat. Cuminum, a little Iſland in the Sea of Sicily, between Malta and Goze; it belongs to the Knights of Malta, who have a Caſtle in it built by the great Maſter Vignacour.

COMINGE, a Country and Town of France in Gaſcony. The Country has the Title of an Earldom, the Town generally called St. Bertrand de Cominges, or Comengo, in Latin Convenæ or Lugdunum Convenarum, has a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Auſch. This Town was demoliſhed in 585 by Gontram's becauſe it received the falſe Gondebaud, who called himſelf Clothaire's Son, but was rebuilt in 1085. by Bertrand its Biſhop, which is the reaſon it's called Bertrand Cominge. It had the Latin Name Convenæ from its firſt Foundation; for Pompey having worſted Sertorius in Spain, he forced the People of the Pyrenæans, who then liv'd without any Order or Diſcipline, to come and live together in one place, which for that reaſon was called Convenæ. Du Cheſne. Strabo lib. 4. Itinerar. Antonin. &c.

COMITIUM, a place where the Roman People kept their Aſſemblies near the great Hall for publick Orations or Speeches, called Roſtra from the Ships Stems taken by C. Mænius, Conſul, in the Battel againſt the Antiates in 416. of Rome. Here they propos'd the Laws, made Speeches, and pleaded Cauſes. There was another place called Roſtra at the foot of Mount Palatin.

COMMANDERIE, Livings or Benefices belonging to the Knights of the Order of Malta, or other Military Orders. The chiefeſt Commanderies are for Knights who can prove themſelves Gentlemen from four Families; there are others for Chaplains. Commanderies of Juſtice is that a Knight obtains by his long ſtanding; and Commanderies of Favour which are at the great Maſter or Prior's diſpoſal by a privilege belonging to his place according to the Statutes of the Order.

COMMELIN (Jerom) a famous Printer, born at Doway in the ſixteenth Century. He was a learned Perſon as appears by his Notes upon ſeveral Greek Authors, as Heliodorus, Apollodorus, &c. Joſeph Scaliger gives him a great Character for his Talent in Greek.

COMMENDON (John Francis) Cardinal, a Venetian, Son to Anthony, a Philoſopher and Doctor of Phyſick, was in great eſteem in the ſixteenth Century, and employed in ſeveral Legations by Julius the Third, Marcellus the Second, Paul the Fourth, Pius the Fourth and Fifth. He was choſen, though abſent, by the Council of Trent, to give the Emperor Ferdinand the Firſt an Account of their Proceedings. It's thought he died of Grief to ſee Gregory the Thirteenth recover, being full of hopes to ſucceed him if he had died when almoſt given over.

COMMINES, a Borough of Flanders with a good Caſtle near Meſſines on the Lys, has given its Name to the Family of Commines.

COMMINES, (Philip de) Lord of Argenton, an Hiſtorian, of a Noble Family of Flanders, much eſteem'd by Charles the Hardy of Burgundy, and afterward by Lewis the XIth. who invited him to his Court, and employ'd him in ſeveral Negotiations of which he acquitted himſelf very well. He was perfect Maſter of the French, Dutch and German Tongues, but not extraordinary skill'd in the Latin; for all that, being a Man of Experience and good Judgment, he undertook to write the Hiſtory of his Time; and did it ſo very well, that the Work was tranſlated into ſeveral other Languages out of the French. He died in 1509. Juſtus Lipſius. Le Mire. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg, &c.

COMMODUS, or L. Aurelius Commodus Antoninus, Son of Antoninus the Philoſopher, and of Fauſtina, was born in 161. his Father and Uncle being Conſuls, and was declared Emperor immediately after his Father's Death in Germany, which happened in 180. Oneſicritus Altejus and Antiſtius were his Tutors, theſe learned and wiſe Philoſophers had the Care of his Education, yet his evil Inclinations prevailed over Inſtruction; ſo that from his very Infancy he was given to all ſorts of Vice. Rome found a ſecond Nero in his goodly Perſon, who had no Devotion for the Gods, nor Reſpect for the moſt inviolable Ties of Nature; was ungrateful to his Servants, unfaithful to his Friends, and neither regarded Mens Innocence nor Merits. The Miniſters and Favourites of this vitious Prince did incredible harm too. Commodus had a mind to ſet up for Hercules, and appeared with the Lion's Skin and Club, quitted the Name of Marcus Aurelius's Son, to be called Hercules Son of Jupiter; would have Altars and Sacrifices, which the Senate conſented to, rather than irritate his furious Temper. The Chriſtians were much perſecuted for not obeying the ſame Law. In the mean time he uſed the great ones of the Kingdom ſo barbarouſly, that it could hardly be credited if it were not confirmed by all Hiſtorians of his and ſucceeding Times. Upon the leaſt Pretences, whether true or falſe, he would put the Roman Senators and chief Officers of the Empire to Death: When he wanted plauſible pretexts he feign'd imaginary Plots againſt his Perſon, and ſo without any Reaſon or Form of Juſtice, would cut off thoſe he either fear'd or hated. When he had made an end of the moſt famous Senators he debauched his own Siſters, gave his Mother's Name to one of the three hundred Concubines he entertain'd, having alſo as many young Boys for his deteſtable Pleaſures. He gave the Government of his Provinces to Perſons noted for Vice or Infamy, and made it his chiefeſt Pleaſure to murder the Innocent, and Men of Parts; was always at the Combats of Beaſts and Gladiators, and took vanity in ſhewing his Addreſs in killing Lions, Tygers, Leopards, and in acting the Gladiator. But at laſt, having deſign'd the Death of Martia, whom he kept, of Lætus Captain of his Guards, and Electus his Lord Chamberlain. Martia, to prevent the fatal ſtroke, gave him as he came out of the Bagnio ſome Wine mix'd with very violent Poiſon; and becauſe this did not work as quick as they would have it, they had him ſtrangled by a Wreſtler with whom he us'd to exerciſe himſelf ſometimes at that Sport. This happened in 192. the thirty firſt of his Age, and twelfth Year and ninth Month of his Reign. Lampridius, Eutropius, Onuphrius.

COMPANY of the Indies, or Eaſt-India-Company; in Holland is a Society of that Country for the Commerce of the Indies, and conſiſts of ſix Chambers, which have ſixteen Directors, which makes ſeventeen Voices, becauſe the Preſident has two. The City of Amſterdam alone has the one half of this Company, Middlebourg a quarter, Rotterdam, Delft, Enchuſen and Hoorne the other fourth part; and therefore Amſterdam has eight Directors, Middlebourg four, and each of the other four has one. They keep the general Chamber at Amſterdam four Years ſucceſſively, two at Middlebourg, and are not obliged to meet at all in any of the other four. This Company loſt much in loſing the advantageous Poſt it had in the Iſle Formoſa. Tavernier.

COMPIEGNE, in Latin called by many Compendium, is a Town of the Country of Valois, ſituate upon the Confluent of the Rivers Aine and Oyſe, between Noyon, Soiſſons and Senlis, and is famous for having been the Reſidence of many Kings. Charles the Sixth took it in 1415. from the Duke of Burgundy, who laid Siege to it fifteen days after, and took the Maid of Orleans in a Sally there, and ſold her to the Engliſh. Compiegne is a fine Town with pretty good Houſes, a King's Palace and Town-houſe that are very magnificent; beſides, it's of good Traffick, having ſeveral ſorts of Manufactures, and being the place where they load Wood for Paris, from whence it's but eighteen or twenty Leagues. Authors ſpeak of ſeveral Councils held at Compiegne, eſpecially of one in 833. wherein Lewis the Meek was forced to quit his Crown, by the Conſpiracy of his three Sons, and the Sentence of the Biſhops aſſembled there. But it pleaſed God to reſtore him to his Crown again, notwithſtanding this unjuſt Diſpoſſeſſion, which Hiſtorians confeſs was a Blemiſh to the French Nation. Du Cheſne.

COMPITALES, Feaſts which the Romans celebrated in their Croſs-ways to the Honour of their Houſhold-Gods, called Lares and Penates, whom they made to preſide not only in their Houſes but alſo in publick Places, and in the Streets. This Name comes from the Latin Word Compita, which ſignifies the meeting of Ways that croſs one another. The Feaſt was inſtituted by Servius the Sixth, King of Rome, who ordered that the Slaves ſhould do the Ceremonies with the Prieſts, ſo that they enjoyed a kind of Liberty during that time. They alſo kept Plays, and ſacrificed for the Health and Proſperity of Families. Tarquin the Haughty conſulting the Oracle upon the Subject of theſe Sacrifices, was anſwered, That he ſhould offer Heads to the Gods Lares and their Mother Mania; wherefore for ſome Years they preſented young Childrens Heads, until Junius Brutus taking compaſſion of thoſe innocent Victims, ordered Poppy-Heads inſtead of theirs. Theſe Plays and Sacrifices being diſcontinued, were re-eſtabliſhed by Auguſtus, and kept twice a Year. Pliny, Ovid, Sueton.

COMPLUTUM, vulgarly, Alcala de Henares, a Town of Spain in New Caſtile, famous for its Univerſity founded by Cardinal Ximenes, to whom we are oblig'd for the Bible in ſix Volumes, called, Biblia Complutenſia, wherein, beſides the Hebrew, are the Chaldee, the Greek and Latin Tongues.

COMPOSTELLA, which the Spaniards call, San Jago de Compoſtella, Capital of Galicia in Spain, with an Archbiſhop's See and an Univerſity; is famous for the extraordinary Concourſe of Pilgrims that reſort thither to viſit the Apoſtle St. James's Body, which the Spaniards pretend they have there. Compoſtella is taken for the Brigantium of Antoninus of Dion and Oroſius; others take it to be the Janaſum of Pomponius Mela. The Town is environed with Hills, and watered with ſeveral Brooks; has a ſtately Metropolis, and ſeveral other ſumptuous Buildings. Mariana.

COMPOSTELLA, formerly called, Villa de Spiritu Sancto, a Town of America Septentrionalis in New Spain and Province of Xaliſco, which is part of Audiance of Guadalajara or New Gallicia. The Town is ſituate near the Sea to the North of Xaliſco and Weſt of Guadalajara: This Neigbourhood to the Water makes it ſubſiſt notwithſtanding that the Soil is ſteril and Air unhealthy. It was built by a Spaniard called Guſman.

COMPS (Arnaud de) fourth great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, followed King Amauri the Firſt in his War againſt the Caliph of Egypt, who refuſed to pay the Tribute his Treaty with Baudoüin the Third, Amauri his Predeceſſor, obliged him to. The Battel was fought upon the Frontiers of Egypt, and won by the Chriſtians. Comps, after this and many other memorable Actions, died in 1167. and was ſucceeded by Gilbert of Aſſale. Boſio. Hiſt. Ordin. &c.

COMPTON (William) deſcended of the ancient Family of Compton in Com. War. in 8 H. VII. became firſt a Page to Henry Duke of York, ſecond Son to that King, and afterwards, ſo ſoon as the ſame Henry aſcended the Throne, being one of the Grooms of his Bed-chamber, ſtood ſo high in his Favour, as to be made Groom of the Stole; and had other eminent Preferments, with very conſiderable Grants of Lands, &c. from the ſame King. He died in the 20th of Henry VIII. and his Son Peter in the 35th of the ſame Reign, leaving Iſſue, Henry, who was ſummoned to Parliament 14 Eliz. and afterwards aſſign'd one of the Peers for the Tryal of Mary Queen of Scots. William, Son and Heir to Henry, was made Knight of the Bath at the Creation of Charles Duke of York, and in 16 Jac. advanced to the Title of Earl of Northampton, and ſoon after inſtall'd Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. He died in 1630. Spencer his Son ſucceeding him in his Title, took Arms for King Charles the Firſt againſt the Rebellion, and was killed at Hopton-Heath near Stafford in 1642. leaving Iſſue by Mary his Wife, Daughter to Sir Francis Beaumont, ſix Sons, viz. James his Son and Heir, Sir Charles, Sir William, Sir Spencer and Sir Francis, all Knights, and Henry Doctor of Divinity, firſt Biſhop of Oxford, now of London; and two Daughters. James now Earl of Northampton firſt married the Lady Iſabella, one of the two Daughters and Co-heirs to Richard late Earl of Dorſet, by the Lady Ann his Wife, ſole Daughter and Heir to George Earl of Cumberland, by whom he had Iſſue two Sons, William and James, who both died in their Childhood; and three Daughters, Ann and Iſabella, who alſo died young, and Alathea. To his ſecond Wife he married Mary, Daughter to Baptiſt Viſcount Campden, and by her hath Iſſue, two Sons, George and Spencer, and two Daughters, Juliana and Mary. Dugdale.

COMUS, a certain Deity which the Ancients made to preſide at their Feaſts and other Solemnities.

CONAN I. of this Name Count of Bretany, Armorica and Rennes, Son of Juael or Beranger, Count of Rennes, and ſaid to be deſcended of a Daughter of Salomon, took Poſſeſſion of this County after the Death of Drogon, and baniſhed Hoel and Gueric the Baſtard Sons of Alain the Firſt. It's ſaid he cut them both off, one he got kill'd by a Soldier, the other he contriv'd to kill by a poiſoned Lancet with which he was bled, but fell himſelf in the Battel fought in 992. againſt Foulgues Count of Anjou. Conan II. Count of Bretany, Son of Alain II. founded Trinity-Church at Breſt, and was poiſoned at Chateau Gontier in 1067. by the Contrivance of William Baſtard Duke of Normandy. Conan III. ſurnamed the Fat or Big, Son to Alain III. ſerv'd under Lewis the Burly againſt Henry I. King of England, his own Father-in-Law, for he married this Prince's Baſtard Daughter Mahaud. He built the Monaſtery of Langoüet, and died in 1148. Conan IV. Count of Bretany and Richemont, Son to Alain called the Black, and of Berthe of Bretany, was ſurnamed the Little. He died February 20. 1170. Orderic. Vital. &c.

CONARUS, the twenty fourth King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Father Mogaldus about the ſixth Year of the Emperor Antoninus Pius; he was partner in the Conſpiracy againſt his own Father, and with the Aſſiſtance of the Picts fought the Romans and Britains, who paſs'd Adrian's Wall, and had driven away great Booties. The ſlaughter being near equal on both ſides, a Peace followed for one Year, but Lollius Urbicus being ſent over to re-inforce the Romans, overcame the Scots in a bloody Battel, drove them again over Adrian's Wall, which he repaired, and then there was a Ceſſation of Arms for many Years; during which, Conarus drown'd himſelf in all manner of Vices, by which he exhauſted his Treaſures, and calling an Aſſembly of the States, demanded Money under pretence of maintaining a Royal Port, which was ſo ungrateful, that the Aſſembly voted, That he ſhould be kept Priſoner as unfit for the Government, till upon his Abjuration they ſhould ſubſtitute another; and meeting next day, they agreed, that the Revenues were as ſufficient for him as for his Predeceſſors, who had lived ſplendidly at home, and been formidably abroad; and that thoſe Villains upon whom he had conferr'd the publick Patrimony, and for whoſe ſakes he had ruin'd many Perſons of Quality, ſhould not only be obliged to refund, but condignly puniſh'd. The King was ſo far from endeavouring to allay thoſe Heats by gentle Words, that he uſed fierce and minatory Expreſſions; whereupon thoſe who were next ſeiz'd him, and thruſt his Majeſty, with ſome few others into Priſon, putting the Authors of his wicked Councils to death; and to prevent Tumults, choſe Argadus for Vice-Roy, till they ſhould chooſe another King; ſo that Conarus, partly by Diſeaſes and partly by Grief, ended his Days in Priſon, in the Fourteenth Year of his Reign, about the Hundred and Fiftieth of Chriſt. Buchan.

CONCA, a River of Italy which has its Source in the Dutchy of Urbin, towards the Borough of St. Leon and Macerata, croſſes Romandiola, and empties it ſelf into the Adriatick-Sea. It's the Cruſtumium or Cruſtumenius of the Ancients. It was alſo the Name of a Town that was drowned in the twelfth or thirteenth Age. This town lay near the Borough Catolica, and it's credibly reported, That the Tops of the high Houſes and Points of Steeples can ſtill be diſcern'd in calm Weather.

CONCARNEAU, a Town of France in Bretany, upon the Sea, between Blavet and Penmark, with a good Caſtle that renders it very ſtrong.

CONCEPTION, a Town of Southern America in the Province of Chili, the moſt conſiderable of that Country, and Reſidence of the Governor of the Province, built upon the Pacifick-Sea, over againſt the Iſle of Quiriquina or St. Vincent, environed with a good Wall, and has a Citadel built by the Inhabitants for their Defence againſt the Arauques, that make frequent Incurſions on that ſide.

The CONCEPTION, a little Town of America Meridionalis in Paraguay, ſituate where the River Urvaig joins the Rio de la Plata.

The CONCEPTION, called of Salaya, a little Town in America Septentrionalis, in the Province of Mechoacan in Mexico, built by the Spaniards as well as the Habitations of St. Michael and St. Philip, to ſecure the Road from Mechoacan to the Silver Mines of Zaca- techa. They have alſo given this Name to ſeveral Burroughs of America, as to that in the Spaniſh Iſſe or Hiſpaniola, and to a Sea-port of California, &c.

CONCEPTION, a Religious Order of Nuns, founded by Beatrix of Silva, a Portugueze, and confirm'd by Pope Innocent the Eighth, who gave them the Rules of the Ciſtercian Order in 1489. but they, after Beatrix's death, changed them for St. Claire's, retaining the ſame Name and Habit as at firſt. Julius the Second drew them quite from the Direction of the Ciſtercians, and recommended them to the Franciſcan's Care in 1511.

CONCEPTION, a Military Order, founded by Ferdinand Duke of Mantua, Charles of Gonzague Duke of Nevers, Adolph Count of Alva, &c. Pope Urban the Eighth confirmed it in 1624. and gave the Croſs to the Duke of Nevers.

CONCEPTION, Immaculate, or The Immaculate Conception; ſo the State of our Bleſſed Virgin's Body and Soul is call'd, before her Birth. John Moncon, a Dominican Doctor of Divinity at Paris, publiſh'd a Theſis in 1387. in St. Thomas's Hall, maintaining that our Bleſſed Virgin was conceived in Original Sin, and that it was an Error in point of Faith to aſſert the contrary. This Opinion was ſolemnly condemn'd by the Univerſity of Paris, and afterwards by the Pope. Maimburg. Hiſtoire du Grand Schiſm d'Occident.

CONCLAVE, a Place where the Cardinals meet for the Election of a new Pope. The Aſſembly is alſo called by this Name, and it depends of the Members themſelves to pitch upon a Place, for the Conclave has no determin'd one; yet, ſince ſome time the Palace of St. Peter, otherwiſe called the Vatican, is always made uſe of, both for the greatneſs of the Place and other Conveniencies; ſo that the Cardinals never ſtand to deliberate now, but only for Form's ſake. They build then in a great Apartment of this Palace as many Deal Cellulæ as there are Cardinals, with Lodges and Places for the Conclaviſts that ſhut themſelves in to wait and ſerve the Cardinals. Theſe little Chambers have their Numero or Number, and are drawn at hazard; ſo that it happens very often, that Cardinals of different Factions lodge near one another. Theſe are made up during the nine days of the Ceremony of the Pope's Funeral, all which time any body may go into the Conclave, and ſee the Cellulæ, which are hung on the outſide with green Serge or Camblet; only thoſe that belong to the deceas'd his Favourites, or to them promoted by him, who have theirs covered with deep Violet-colour'd Cloth, and over each is the Cardinal's Arms that lives in it. Between the Cellulæ and the Windows of the Palace is a long Gallery for the Conveniency of the Conclave, and it's from this the Cellulæ receive their Light. The next day after the Pope's Burial, that is, the 10th after his Death, the Cardinals having heard a Maſs, they call the Holy Ghoſt's, go in Proceſſion two by two to the Conclave, where they all meet in the Chapel every Day Morning and Evening for a Scrutiny, which is done by writing their Suffrages in little Billets, and putting them in a Chalice that ſtands upon the Altar; when all are put in, two Cardinals are choſen by the reſt to read openly them that are named, and keep an account of the Number for each; and this is done until two thirds join for the ſame Perſon, but a Pope is ſeldom choſen after this manner; whence it happens that after the Scrutiny they come to what they call an Accez, that is, a Tryal, Whether he that has moſt Voices in the Scrutiny could come to two thirds; but it's abſervable, that they cannot give their Suffrages in the Accez or Acceſs, to thoſe they have appeared for in the Scrutiny. If this does not ſucceed, they have recourſe to the way of Inſpiration, which is an open Declaration, or rather, a Conſpiracy of many Cardinals to cry together, Such a Cardinal is Pope; as for example, Altieri Papa is begun by one or two, chief of a Party, when they find Suffrages enough to aſſure them that this method will not fail, and then the reſt of the Cardinals are forced to join, that they may not incurr the Pope's Diſpleaſure, who would be choſen in ſpight of them. As for the Scrutiny it is done thus, Each Cardinal prepares his Billet, wherein he writes his own and his Name he is for, and another word of Device. The Cardinal's Name is writ under a fold of the Paper, and ſealed with a Seal for that Purpoſe. The Name of the Choſen is writ by a Conclaviſt under another fold without Seal, & the Word by which the Cardinal knows that it's his Name that is read, is writ on the outſide; as, Deo volente, or ſome ſuch like. The fold that covers the Cardinal's Name is never opened until the Pope is choſen, who to know them that help'd towards his promotion unfolds all. The Motto ſerves in the Accez, that it may appear, that each Cardinal has given another beſides that they gave in the Scrutiny, ſeeing two Billets with different Perſons under the ſame Name; and at the end of the Scrutiny and Accez, if the Suffrages be not ſufficient for the Election they burn all the Billetings, that the chuſers names may be kept ſecret. During the Conclave each Cardinal is allowed but two Servants, or three at moſt, and this only to Princes, or for ſome particular Privilege. Several preſs for this Employment, becauſe the new choſen Pope gives each Conclaviſt three or four hundred Livres, and they have the Pleaſure of ſeeing all that paſſes; yet the place is troubleſom enough, becauſe they muſt take in the Meat and Drink from a certain place common to all that live in the ſame part, muſt wait at Table, and be as ſtreightly confin'd as their Maſters. Hiſtoire du Conclave.

CONCORDAT, by this is generally underſtood Francis the Firſt's Agreement with Pope Leo the Tenth, in 1516. to aboliſh the Pragmatick Sanction: To underſtand both theſe things the better, we muſt obſerve with Maimbourg, that Clotaire the Second iſſued out an Edict in 615. approv'd by all the Biſhops of his Kingdom, aſſembled at the fifth Council of Paris, by which he order'd, That no Biſhop, though choſen by the Clergy and People, ſhould be conſecrated, if the King did not approve of him, and he that ſhould be named by the King ſhould be accepted, if the Metropolitan did find no juſt Cauſe to reject him. Thus did the Prince ſupport the Intereſt of the publick good in ordering things ſo, that Eccleſiaſtical Dignities ſhould not be conferred but upon worthy perſons, and ſuch as were faithful to the King. King Charles the Seventh, in the Council of Bourges in 1439. eſtabliſhed the Pragmatick Sanction, by which, part of the Clergy, without conſulting with the People, or the Archbiſhops, or other Biſhops of Provinces choſe their Biſhop, leaving the King the Privilege of conſenting to, and confirming the Election if he lik'd it. This diſpleaſed the Court of Rome, which firſt deſired, and afterwards in the Lateran Council cited the King and Clergy of France to appear and give their Reaſons why they did not aboliſh that Pragmatick; whereupon King Francis the Firſt made this Agreement, called Concordat, with Pope Leo the Tenth, by which the King has the Power to name ſuch as he thinks fit for Biſhopricks, &c. and the Pope, if he finds no fault either in the Capacity or Life of the nam'd, is to give his Bulls, in virtue of which he is conſecrated. The Parliament, Clergy and Univerſity of Paris were much againſt regiſtring this Agreement, pretending it contrary to the Privileges of their Church, and Laws of the Kingdom; yet conſented to it at laſt, proteſting ſolemnly, That they did it but in Obedience to the King's repeated Commands. This Concordat differed in this from Clotaire's Edict of 615. That by his the Pope had no power to examine the Ability of the Choſen, ſo that in his time they conſecrated their Biſhops, without troubling themſelves to ſend to Rome for Bulls. See PRAGMATICK SANCTION.

CONCORDAT Germanick, or the Concordat of Germany, a Treaty made in 1448. between Pope Nicholas Vth, and the Emperor Frederick IIId, confirmed by Clement VIIth, and Gregory XIIIth. This Concordat comprehends four parts. In the firſt, The Pope reſerves the conferring of all vacant Benefices at Rome, and two days journey from it, of whatever Degree, either ſecular or regular, which before went by Election, without exception of Cardinals,or other officers of the Holy See. The ſecond concerns the Elections that are to be confirmed by the Pope, as, Metropolis's, Cathedrals and Monaſteries, depending immediately on the Pope,and have the privilege of a Canonical Election.The third concernsLivings that are ſucceſſively given by the Popes and their proper Patrons; thus,the Pope has the privilege to confer both ſecular and regular Livings for the months of January, March, May, July, September, November, and the Biſhop or Archbiſhop within the Diſtricts of their Dioceſſes,during the other months. The fourth and laſt part ſpeaks of the Annates or Firſt-fruits, after the Death or Removal of the Incumbent. Blondeau.

CONCORDE, Lat. Concordia, a Goddeſs much eſteem'd amongſt the ancient Romans. Julius Cæſar and Tiberius built her a Temple. She was generally repreſented under the ſhape of a young Girl clad in the old faſhion, crown'd with a Garland of Flowers, holding a Baſin with a Heart in it in her right hand, and in the left a bundle of Rods. There is an old Medal of the Emperor Nerva, wherein Union is repreſented by a woman who bears a Lance in her left Arm, and a Buckler in the other, and by a Ships Stern and Colours with theſe words, Concordia Exercitum, S. C. Angeloni mentions this laſt in The Hiſtory of the Cæſars, p.102. In other Medals they repreſent Union with two Horns of Plenty in one, and a Veſſel of Fire in the other hand. When Concord is invincible ſhe is repreſented by an armed*Geryon*, a golden Crown on his head,with ſix Arms and ſo many Feet; in three of its hands it holds a Lance, a Sceptre and a Sphere, and lays the other three on a Shield. Tit. Liv.

CONCORDE, or Country of Concord, which the Hollanders call Clandt van Eendracht, a Coaſt at the end of the Indian Ocean, in the Southern Lands, diſcovered by the Hollanders in 1618. when they ſought a Paſſage to the Molucca's.

CONCORDIA, an Epiſcopal Town of Friuli, which was abandoned and demoliſhed in Attila's time. Its Biſhop, who is ſuffragan to the Patriarch of Aquileia, reſides at Porto Gruato, or Romatino, near the place where the former was. Strabo, Blondus.

CONDALUS, Governour of Lyſia, for Mauſolus king of Caria, obſerving that the people of the Country took great delight in fine hair,took occaſion thence to draw a great Sum of money from them, by feigning he had an order from the king to make them all cut off their Hair; but added, That perhaps he could ſhun his maſters diſpleaſure for delaying the execution of the Order, by ſending him ſome contribution. This was joyfully received, and they readily conſented to pay a Poll, which amounted to a very conſiderable Sum. Ariſtot.

CONDAPOLI, a Town of the Indies in the Peninſula on this ſide Ganges, in the kingdom of Golconda, ſituate pretty far in the Country, upon a mountain with an indifferent good Fortreſs, between the Town of Golconda and Candavera.

CONDè, a Town of the Low-countries, in Hainault, Lat. Condatum, or Condate, ſituate on the Banks of the Scheldt, two Leagues from Valenciennes. The French took it in 1676. and the king was at the charge of fortifying it regularly, and ſo rendred it a very important place. It has given its Name to many of the Royal Houſe of Bourbon,ſince Francis of Bourbon, Count of Vendôme, &c. married Mary of Luxemburg, eldeſt Daughter, and chief Heireſs of Peter of Lunenburg, ſecond of the Name, Count of S.Paul, Converſan, Soiſſons, Viſcount of Meaux, Lady of Anguien, Condè, &c. Miræus Not. Eccl. Belg.

CONDè upon Nereau, Lat. Condæum ad Norallum, a little Town of France in Normandy, ſituate on the River Nereau, near the place it joins Orne, &c.

CONDOM upon Baiſe, a Town of France, in Guienne, with a Biſhops-ſee ſuffragan to Bourdeaux. It is the capital of a little Country called Condomois,three Leagues from Nerac; and it's the Condomium Vaſconum of the Latins. Formerly it has been of the Seneſchalſhip and Biſhoprick of Agen; but ſince it had its particular Biſhops, it was alſo allowed a Præſidial. The Town is great, but thin of Inhabitants.It was taken in 1565. by Gabriel of Montgomery, who was General of the Proteſtant Army; but as Dupleix relates, plundered and burnt the Churches with great Barbarity.

CONDORA, a province of Muſcovy towards Petzora and Tartaria Deſerta, bordered with the Province of Permski to the South, with part of Petzora to the Eaſt, Juborski to the North, and Dwina, or the Province of Arch-Angel to the Weſt. Its Capital is Wergaturia. Moſt of the reſt of the Country is covered with Hills, and over-grown with Woods.

CONDREN (Charles de) ſecond General of the Congregation of the Oratory, and Succeſſor to Mr. de Berulle, Founder of this Society in France, was conſiderable for his Humility, in refuſing a Cardinals Hat, which Lewis XIIIth promiſed to get for him; and declining the Offers made him by Cardinal Richelieu, of the Arch-biſhoprick of Rheims or Lyons, for his Learning and great Parts. He died in 1641. He did great Service for his Order, by his Foundations at Paris, Langres, Nants, and Poictiers; and more for his Country, in reconciling the King and his Brother the Duke of Orleans.

CONDRIEU, or CONDRIEUX, Lat. Condriacum, or Condrievium, a Borough of France, in Lyonnois, built on a pleaſant Hill upon the Rhone, ſeventeen Leagues below Lyons, and two from Vienne. It's a pretty big Borough, famous for its excellent Wine.

CONEI, in Lat. Conæus, (George) a Scotchman, of a good Family; he Studied in Italy, and afterwards was preferr'd at Rome, in the Reign of Pope Paul Vth, and Urban VIIIth, dyed in 1640. and wrote De Inſtitutione Principis. De Duplici Statu Religionis apud Scotos. Demonſtratio Religionis. The Life of Mary Stewart, Queen of Scots, &c. Janus Nicius Erythreus, Pin. I. Imag. Illuſt. c.74. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 17.

CONETTE, (Thomas) a famous Carmelite, that appeared in 1428. and preached in ſeveral parts of Europe, with ſuch Applauſe, that People looked on him as a New Apoſtle, and flocked from far and near to hear him. The Women were ſo moved with his Inſtructions, that they uſed to bring their Jewels and other Ornaments to be burned in open aſſembly, on a Scaffold made up for that purpoſe. At laſt he went to Rome, where he preached with ſome Paſſion, and ſhewed his Doctrine was not Orthodox; whereupon the Pope cauſed him to be ſeized and impriſoned, and ordered the Cardinals of Rouen and Navarre to examine and ſentence him. They found him an Heretick, and he was therefore condemn'd to be burn'd,which was executed publickly at Rome. Paradin, Annal. &c.

CONFALON, a Confraternity of Seculars, called Penitents, eſtabliſhed firſt of all by ſome Roman Citizens. Henry IIId begun one in Paris, in 1583. and aſſiſted himſelf in the Habit of a Penitent, at a Proceſſion, wherein the Cardinal of Guiſe carried the Croſs, and his Brother the Duke of Mayenne, was Maſter of the Ceremonies. The extraordinary Devotion of the Prince was cenſured as Hypocriſy by ſeveral.

CONFESSION de Ausburg, or the Auguſtan Confeſſion, a Profeſſion of Faith, drawn up by Melancton, which Luther and he Preſented to Charles V. at Ausburg, in 1530. 'Twas divided into two Parts, with a Deſign to ſupport all the points of the Lutheran Reformation, and to ſhow the Unorthodoxy of the Roman Catholicks: The firſt part contain'd 21 Articles. The I*ſt*. Article acknowledg'd and agreed to all the Deciſions of the Firſt Four General Councils, concerning the Trinity. The II*d*. own'd Original Sin, but differ'd ſomewhat from the Church of Rome, in the Definition of it, affirming it to conſiſt wholly in Concupiſcence. The III*d*. Article contain'd the ſubſtance of the Apoſtles Creed. The IV*th*. Declar'd againſt the Pelagians, that a Man could not be Juſtified by the meer force and capacity of Nature, but withal maintaining againſt the Roman Catholicks, that Juſtification was the effect of Faith, Excluſive of Good Works. The V*th*. agreed with the Church of Rome, That the Word of God, and the Sacraments, were the means of conveying the Holy Spirit, but differ'd from that Communion, by aſſerting, This Divine Operation was never preſent without Faith. The VI*th*. affirmed, That our Faith ought to produce Good Works, purely in Obedience to God, but not in order to the Meriting our own Juſtification. The VII*th*. Article made the True Church conſiſt of none but the Godly. The VIII*th*. acknowledg'd the validity of the Sacraments, tho' adminiſtred by Hippocrites, and ill People. The IXth Declar'd the Neceſſity of Infant.Baptiſm, againſt the Anabaptiſts. The X*th*. acknowledg'd the Preſence of the Body and Blood of Chriſt under the Conſecrated Elements, adding withal, That this Myſterious Preſence in the Holy Sacrament, continued with the Elements only during the time of Receiving, and that the Euchariſt ought to be given in both Kinds. The XI*th*. Granted the Neceſſity of Abſolution to the Penitent, but deny'd themſelves oblig'd to make a particular Confeſſion of their Sins. The XII*th*. condemn'd the Anabaptiſts, which affirm that whoever was once juſtify'd could not fall from Grace, together with the Novatians who refuſed Abſolution to Sins committed after Baptiſm, aſſerting withal againſt the Church of Rome, that a Repenting Sinner was incapable of Meriting Forgiveneſs, by performing any Acts of Penance. The XIII*th*. requires Actual Faith from thoſe who participate of the Sacraments. The XIV*th*. forbad thoſe who had no lawful Calling, to teach publickly in the Church, or adminiſter the Sacraments. The XV*th*. orders the Obſervation of the Holy-days, and the Ceremonies of the Church. The XVI*th*. Acknowledg'd the Obligation of Civil Laws, approv'd the Magiſtracy: Propriety of Eſtates and Marriage. The XVII*th*. acknowledged the Reſurrection, the Laſt Judgment, Heaven and Hell, and condemned the Two following Errors of the Anabaptiſts, and Fifth-Monarchy-Men, (viz.) That the Puniſhment of the Devils and Damn'd would have an end, and that a Thouſand Years before the Reſurrection, the Saints ſhould Reign with Chriſt upon the Earth. The XVIII*th*. declar'd, That our Will was not ſufficiently free, in Actions, relating to the promoting of Salvation. The XIX*th*. maintains, That notwithſtanding God has created Man, and ſtill continues to preſerve him, yet he neither is, nor can be the Author of Sin. The XX*th*. That Good Works are not altogether unprofitable: And the XXI*ſt*. forbids the Invocation of Saints. The Second Part of the Auguſtan Confeſſion, is altogether oppoſite to the Church of Rome, containing the Seven Principal Abuſes upon which the Lutherans founded the Neceſſity of leaving the Old Communion. The Firſt Argument enjoyns Communion in both Kinds, and forbids the Proceſſion of the Holy Sacrament. The Second condemns the Celibacy of Prieſts. By the Third, Private Maſſes were Aboliſh'd, and ſome part, at leaſt, of the Congregation were oblig'd to Communicate with the Prieſt. The Fourth declar'd againſt the Neceſſity of being particular in the Confeſſion of Sins to the Prieſt. The Fifth refuſed to admit Tradition. The Sixth diſallowed of Monaſtick Vows. And Laſtly, by the Seventh they aſſerted, That the Power of the Church conſiſted only in Preaching the Goſpel, and Adminiſtring the Sacraments. This Confeſſion of Faith was Sign'd by the Elector of Saxony and his Eldeſt Son, by the Marquis of Brandenburgh, by Erneſt and Francis, Dukes of the Houſe of Lunenburgh, by the Landgrave of Heſs, the Prince of Hainault, and the Republicks of Nuremburgh and Rutlingua. The Four Imperial Towns of Strasburg, Conſtance, Nemigen, and Linden preſented a Confeſſion of Faith at the ſame time, which was the ſame with the Auguſtan or Lutheran, excepting in the point of the Euchariſt, in which they followed the Opinion of Zwinglius, aſſerting nothing more in the Sacrament, excepting the Figure or Sign, of the Body and Blood of our Saviour. This Confeſſion was preſented by the Elector of Saxony, together with the Princes and States above-mentioned, to the Emperour Charles V. before whom 'twas afterwards argued; and the Roman Catholicks, being a Majority upon the Vote, 'twas rejected; however, the Emperour gave Order for a Conference between ſeven Deputies of each ſide, conſiſting of two Princes, three Divines, and two Lawyers: They met on the 16th of Auguſt, 1530. and Luther being abſent, Melanchton was then the Head of the Party, who by his mollifying Explications, brought both Parties, the next day, to an agreement of Fifteen of the Firſt Twenty one Articles; for not to mention the Agreement of the Lutherans and the Church of Rome, in Points relating to the Trinity, they declar'd in their II*d*. Article, That Original Sin is remitted in Baptiſm, tho' Concupiſcence, the effect of it, is ſtill remaining. In the IV*th*. V*th*. & IV*th*. the Lutherans, in this Conference, acknowledg'd, that it is not Faith alone, but Faith and Sanctifying Grace by which we are juſtifyed. In the VII*th*. and VIII*th*. they acknowledg'd, That the Church conſiſted of Sinners as well as juſt Perſons; and in the XVII*th*. That we have the Faculty of a Free-Will; but that we can do nothing in the way of Salvation, without the Grace and ſupernatural aſſiſtance of God. The Three following Articles were agreed to but in part: For as to the XII*th*. the Proteſtants were willing to admit of Satisfaction as a Part of Penance, in Order to the Performance of Chriſtian Obedience; but not as neceſſary for the Remiſſion of the Puniſhment due to our ſins. For the XX*th*. they conſented to the neceſſity of Good Works, but declar'd againſt the Merit of them. And as to the XXI*ſt*. They own'd the Saints and Angels interceded for us, and were willing to honour their Feſtivals and Memory, but refus'd to come up to the Practice of Invocation. The Three other Articles, i. e. the XI*th*. XIV*th*. and the XV*th*. relating to that which the Church of Rome calls Sacramental Confeſſion, to Orders, and to the Ceremonies and Uſages of the Church, were reſerv'd, with the Seven Articles of the Second Part, for further Examination; but upon theſe laſt Points they could never agree perfectly upon any one Article: At laſt they reſolved to Retrench the Number of the Deputies, to Three of a Side, (viz.) Two Canoniſts, and One Divine: The Divines were Eckius for the Roman Catholicks, and Melanchton for the Lutherans, but this Conference broke off, without adjuſting the Differences between them. Varillas Hiſt. des Revolutions en Mattiere de Religion. Maimburgh Hiſtoire du Lutheraniſm.

CONFLENT, or The Confluent, Lat. Confluentes, a little Country now of France in Rouſſillon, towards the Pyrenæan Mountains. It was yielded to the French by the Pyrenæan Peace, in 1659.

CONFUCIUS, a famous Chineſe Philoſopher, born 551 before our Saviour's birth, in the Kingdom of Lu, now called the Province of Xantung, of an Antient and Noble Family, his Father Xoliam-hé, having a conſiderable Office in the Kingdom of Xum. The great vivacity of his Wit and his ſolid Judgment, got him great Reputation from his very Youth; and being Mandarin, and employed in the Government of the Kingdom of Lu, he ſoon made appear how important it was that the Kings themſelves were Philoſophers, or made uſe of Philoſophers to be their Miniſters. The Knowledge of Morals and Politicks, whereof he was a perfect Maſter, made him be much admired in the Government of the State and Eſtabliſhment of Laws. Yet notwithſtanding his Care, his Prince's Court was much diſordered by ſeveral young fair Ladies ſent on purpoſe by the King of Xi, to effeminate, and make the Monarch of Lu neglect the Care of his Kingdom. Confucius finding the Prince would not liſten to his Advice, quitted his Place and the Court, and retir'd to the Kingdom of Xum, where he taught Moral Philoſophy, with ſuch extraordinary Applauſe, that he ſoon had above 3000 Scholars, whereof Seventy two ſurpaſſed the reſt in Learning and Vertue, for whom the Chineſe have a particular Veneration ſtill. He divided his Doctrine into four Parts, and his Scholars into ſo many Claſſes, or rather Schools. The firſt Order was of thoſe, who ſtudied to acquire Vertue. The ſecond, That learned the Art of Reaſoning well and Eloquence, that is, Logick and Rhetorick. In the third, they treated of the Government of the State, and the Duty of Magiſtrates. The fourth was taken up wholly in Noble Diſcourſes of all that concerned Morals. This great Man was extraordinary Modeſt, declaring openly, That he was not the firſt Inventor of this Doctrine; That he only Collected it out of his Predeceſſors writings, eſpecially the Kings Yao and Xun, who lived above 500 years before his time, and uſed to ſay, There was a very holy Man in the Weſtern Lands, That he was called Siſam Zen Ximgim, but ſaid no more of him. In the year 66 after Chriſt's Birth, the Emperor Mim-ti, ſent Ambaſſadors towards the Weſt to ſeek this holy Man, but theſe ſtopped in an Iſland near the Red-Sea, to conſider a famous Idol, named Fé, repreſenting a Philoſopher that lived 500 years before Confucius. They carried this Idol back along with them, with inſtructions concerning the Worſhip rendred to it: and ſo introduced a Superſtition that aboliſhed in ſeveral places the Maxims of Confucius, who always condemned Atheiſm and Idolatry. It's ſaid, that this great Man, fore-ſeeing his End, and conſidering the diſorders of the Court, ſighing, ſung ſome Lines to this purpoſe, Great mountain, where art thou fallen! The vaſt Machine is overthrown! the Wiſe and Vertuous have fail'd. He was buried in the Kingdom of Lu, whither he had gone back with his Scholars: and near the Town Kio-fu, upon the Banks of the River Xu, his Tomb is in the Academy where he taught. This great place is all wall'd in like a Borough. This Philoſopher has been in great Veneration in China above 2000 years, and is ſtill ſo eſteemed, that none can come to the quality of a Mandarin, or to an Office, or Charge of the Gown, without paſſing Doctor in his Doctrine. Each Town has a Palace Conſecrated to his Memory; and when any Officers of the Robe, or long Gown, paſs before them; they quit their Palanquin, and go ſome way a-foot, to ſhew their Honour for his Memory. The Frontiſpieces of theſe fine Buildings have his great Titles in Golden Letters, as To the great Maſter, the Famous, the Wiſe King of Learning. And in all theſe praiſes they never make uſe of the word Yun proper to Idols, by which they ſhew that Confucius his Doctrine condemns Idolatry. There was one of his Deſcendants that was very conſiderable in the Kingdom in 1646. whom X*anchi*, King of Tartary, who then Conquered China, received with a great deal of Honour. All thoſe of this Family are Mandarins by birth, and have a Privilege common with the Princes of the Blood, that is, not to pay any Tribute. Beſides which, all received Doctors are obliged to make a preſent to a Mandarin of Confucius's Race. All this makes the Miſſioners learn his Doctrine, and make uſe of his Authority to gain Credit amongſt the Chineſes, and diſpoſe them for the Light of Faith. His Principles are moſt of them very reaſonable; and the Learned of the Country will not as much as hear any that deſpiſes his Tenets. M. Thevenot, P. Couplet Confucius Sinarum.

CONGALLUS I. the 44th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Conſtantine I. his Uncle. He applied himſelf to reform the peoples Manners, and reſtrain Thefts and Robberies. He endeavoured to reclaim others to a Civil Courſe of Life by his own Example; and thoſe who were refractary, he either chaſtiſed or deſpiſed, and ſo reduced all things to their firſt ſtate. The Britains perceiving that he was a peaceable Prince, ſollicited Aurelius Ambroſius to recover Weſtmorland from the Scots, which was like to have begun a War; but the matter was adjuſted. Congallus was in War with the Saxons all his time, infeſting them continually with Light-horſe-men, and ſent part of his Army to aſſiſt the Britains. In his time lived Merlin and Gildas, the two famous Britiſh Prophets. Congallus died Anno 500. in the 22d of his Reign. Buchanan.

CONGALLUS II. the 47th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Eugenius III. Anno 558. He was a peaceable and pious Prince, and recommended himſelf to Poſterity by his Vertues. He vy'd with the Clergy of thoſe times for ſtrictneſs of Life, tho' they had then a very ſevere Diſcipline. He enriched them alſo with Lands and Revenues; reſtrained the Licentiouſneſs of the Soldiers and others, more by the Authority of his own Life, than the Severity of his Laws. He aſſiſted the Britains againſt the Saxons; and died in 568. Buchan.

CONGALLUS III. the 66th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Achaius, and having reigned five years in peace, he died in 814. Buchan.

CONGLETON, in Cheſhire, a large and noted Town, ſituate on the Dane, govern'd by a Mayor and ſix Aldermen; the Inhabitants make a great Number of Gloves, Purſes and Points. From London 123 Miles.

CONGO, a Kingdom of Africa, bordered to the Eaſt with Abyſſinia, on the Weſt with the Ocean, has Monomotapa and the Coaſts of the Cafres to the South, and the Country of the Negroes to the North. The Soil is very fruitful by reaſon of a great number of Rivers which over-flow the Country in Rainy weather. Citrons and Oranges grow there in abundance, and are very good. Their Date Trees furniſh much fruit, whereof they make Wine. The Banks of the River Lelunde, as far as San Salvador, are full of Cedar and other odoriferous Trees. The Hollanders have moſt of their Caſſia and Tamarinds out of this Country; where there are many Elephants of ſuch a prodigious Bulk, that one of their Teeth will weigh above 200 weight. They have a kind of wild Boar called Emgalo, much eſteemed for his Teeth, becauſe their ſhavings boiled in Broth, prove an excellent Antidote and aſſured Remedy againſt Fevers; for which reaſon the Portugueſe buy great quantities of it. There is alſo ſeen on their Trees a very pretty Beaſt called Entiengie, ſpotted with ſeveral Colours, which never comes to the Ground; and it's ſaid, it dies as ſoon as it touches it. It has always other little black Creatures about it, as its Guard, whereof ten go before, and ten more follow; but as ſoon as the firſt fall into the Hunters Nets, they that come behind ſhift for themſelves, and leave the little Entiengie to be taken. Its Fur is ſo eſteemed, that none but Kings or Princes, and great Lords who have their Leave, can wear it. And the Kings of Lovango, of Cacongo, and Goy, ſend to the King of Congo for ſome, and value them as great Preſents. Moſt of the Inhabitants of Congo are very black, but not ſo deform'd as the Negro's of Nubia and Guinea. They are proud and inſolent to their Neighbours, but civil and obliging to Strangers. Their Wit is quick, and Humour fiery; yet have no great Courage, for 20 Europeans would make 200 of them run. Before the Portugueſe introduced the Chriſtian Religion, great Perſons had no other Name but that of Their Lordſhips, as Mani Songo, Lord of Songo, &c. and the Common People took the Names of Beaſts and Plants. But ſince that time they have received new Names at their Baptiſm, like other Chriſtians. The King of Congo's Revenue conſiſts in a certain yearly Tribute which the Dukes of Bamba, Batta, and Sunda, the Counts of Pembo and Pango, and his other Vaſſals pay him in Cattle, Millet, Simbo's, which is a kind of ſmall Shell that they uſe for Money, with ſome Preſents of Wine, of the Oyl of Palm and Dates, and other Fruits. Their Soldiers Equipage is very ſingular. Their Captains wear four corner'd Caps, with Peacocks and Oſtriches Feathers in them. The upper part of their Body is naked, which makes them carry Iron Chains a-croſs over their Breaſts and Backs. Their Arms are the Bows and Arrows, with a Hatchet and a Dagger. They alſo have Bucklers made of the Bark of Trees, and covered with Buffle Skins. Others make uſe of Guns and Muſquets. All their Army are Foot for want of Horſes. And thoſe that begin an attack, wear Bells round their Belts, to encourage the Men on by their Noiſe. The Governours have the Title of Mani, with the Name of the Province they Command. So the Governour of Congo is call'd Mani-Congo, the Lord of Vamma, Mani-Vamma, &c. Beſides theſe, there are ſome Lords that have the Title of Dukes, others of Counts; and Lords of leſſer Quality are onely called Mani. The Portugueſe call them all Soua's. Their King takes theſe following Titles in his Patents, Mani-Congo, by the Grace of God, King of Congo, Angola, Macumba, Ocanga, Cumba, Lulla, Zouza; Lord of the Dutchies of Batta, Sunda, Bamba, Ambuille, and their Dependencies; of the County of Songo, Angoy, Cacongo; of the Monarchy of the Ambondes, and Maſter of the great River Zaire. One of his chiefeſt Paſtimes is to treat his Pages and the Nobility of his Court, and wait on them himſelf after he has dined. The Queen is called Mani-Monbanda, that is, the Chief of the Women; for though the Prince is a Chriſtian, yet he ſtill keeps his Concubines. The day of his Marriage he gets all his Subjects Beds meaſured, and makes them pay a certain Sum according to their Bigneſs, as the Princeſs's Fees. Formerly the Duke of Bamba was preſumptive Heir to the Crown. But now the Election goes by plurality of Votes, and depends on the chief Lords and Portugueſe. The Count of Songo is the moſt powerful of the Vaſſals of the King of Congo, and ſeems inclin'd therefore to withdraw himſelf from his Obedience, and that becauſe his Country is almoſt inacceſſible to great Armies. In 1644. and 47. the Pope, at the Requeſt of the King of Congo, ſent a Miſſion of Capuchins, who were received very well by the Count, and ſoon ſpread themſelves over the ſeveral Provinces of the Kingdom. D'Apper's Deſcription of Africa.

CONGREGATION of the Rites, a Juriſdiction of Rome, compoſed of Cardinals deputed by the Pope, to obſerve the Ceremonies of the Church, over-ſee the Divine Service, what concerns the Canonization of Saints, the Privileges of Precedence, &c. This Congregation is held at leaſt once a Month, in the Palace of the Cardinal Dean. Onuph, &c.

CONGREGATION of the Holy Office, a Juriſdiction of Rome compoſed of Twelve Cardinals and ſeveral Prelates who are ſtyled Conſultors. It informs it ſelf of Matters of the Inquiſition, what Concerns Hereſy, and hath its Palace, Officers, and Priſons. This Congregation generally meets on Wedneſdays, at the Palace of the ancienteſt Cardinal, and on Thurſday before the Pope. Onuphr. Panvin.

CONI, Lat. Cunæum, a Town of Italy, in Piemont, ſituate upon a Hill, at the Confluent, or meeting of two little Rivers, the Stur and Ges, ten or twelve leagues from Saluſſe. Its ſituation renders it naturally ſtrong. It held out againſt Francis I. But in 1641. the Count de Harcourt, under Lewis XIIIth made himſelf Maſter of it. Lewis the XIVth was not ſo ſucceſſful in 1691. for he was forced to raiſe the Siege.

CONINK, or Regius (Giles) a Jeſuit, Born at Bailleul in Flanders, in 1591. He writ ſeveral Learned Works, as, Comment. & Diſput. in Univerſam Thomæ Doctrinam, De Sacramentis Accenſuris, De Mortalitate, Natura & Effectibus Actuum Supernaturalium, Spe, Charitate, &c.

CONISALUS, a God of the Pagans, whom the Athenians adored in the ſame manner the Lampſacians worſhipped Priapus. Several think that both were the ſame Deity, adored in different places. Strabo, Lib.3.

CONNAUGHT, Lat. Connaica, is one of the four great Provinces in Ireland, bounded on the North by Ulſter, on the Eaſt by Leinſter, on the South by Munſter, and on the Weſt by the great Weſtern Ocean. It contains Seven Counties, Slego, Mayo, Roſcommon, Letrim, Longford, Gallway and Clare or Thomond. Ptolemy calls its ancient Inhabitants Gangani and Concani. Strabo, Coniaci, and Coniſci. When the Parliamentarians had fully ſubdued the Iriſh, about 1655. they took a reſolution to Tranſport all the Heritors of the Romiſh Religion into this Province, which is ſeparated from the reſt of Ireland by the River Shannon, and the Curlewe Mountains, reſerving to the Engliſh the Forts, Cities, and Fortified Towns, the Paſſes, and the Sea-ſhoars for Garriſons, to ſecure them from any farther Attempts of that Nature; a Deſign which had been propoſed before by Spencer, and thought eaſy, but it proved otherwiſe. Cambden Britan.

CONNESTABLE, an Officer of the Crown of France, who was formerly in great Conſideration. The laſt Emperors had their Comites Stabuli, or Counts of the Stable, which paſs'd to the firſt Kings of France, and had the Charge of the King's Horſes and Stables; after that their Charge reached the Army; ſo that from Officers of the King's-Houſhold, they became Officers of the Crown. Their Perſons were Privileged, and during the King's Minority, they were named next to the Princes of the Blood. The Army obey'd them next the King. They managed all that belonged to War, either for puniſhment of Delinquents, diſtribution of Booty, Surrender of Places, &c. This Office of Conneſtable was put down by Lewis XIII. and the Juriſdictions and Functions of it are now in the Mareſchals of France. Du Tillet. Vignier. Godefroy, &c.

CONNOR, Lat. Coneria, a ſmall City in the Province of Ulſter, in the County of Down in Ireland, upon the Lake Cone, towards the N. W. Corner of the ſaid Lake. The Biſhoprick is united to that of Down, under the Archbiſhop of Ardmagh.

CONON, or Cunon, Pope, Native of Thrace, brought up in Sicily, and afterwards made Prieſt at Rome, where he ſucceeded John Vth, in 686. which appeaſed the Schiſm of Peter the Arch-prieſt, and Theodorus the Prieſt, one choſen by the Clergy, and the other by the Soldiers then at Rome. Yet Conon did not enjoy it any conſiderable time; for he died about 11 months after his Election, in 687. Baron. Annal.

CONON, General of the Athenian Army, was beat at Sea by Callicratides, with the Loſs of thirty Gallies. This happen'd in 347. of the Foundation of Rome; and he was worſted a ſecond time by Lyſander, General of the Lacedæmonians, in a certain place of the Cherſoneſe of Thrace, called the Goats River. So that ſeeing all loſt, he fled to Evagoras, King of Cyprus; after which he put himſelf under the Protection of Artaxerxes, King of Perſia, with whoſe Army he delivered Athens from the Oppreſſion of Strangers, and rebuilt its Walls. In 360. of Rome he beat the Lacedæmonians in a Sea-fight, near Cnidus, upon the Coaſt of Aſia, deprived them of the Sovereign Rule they had on the Sea ſince the taking of Athens, and had ſome other conſiderable Advantages over them. But falling afterwards into the hands of Teribazes a Perſian who envied his Glory and good Succeſs, he was put to Death. Xenophon.

CONON, a famous Aſtrologer of the Iſle of Samos, lived in CXXth Olympiad, in Ptolemy Philadelphus and Euergetes's days, made Obſervations on the Eclipſes of the Sun and Moon, and gave Berenice's Hair or Treſſes a place in the Heavens. Voſſius, Photius.

CONQUEST, or, The Conqueſt, Lat. Conqueſtus, a little Sea-port in Bretany in France, at the extremity of this Province, called The End of the World, Ad Fines Terræ. Conqueſt is 4 or 5 Leagues from Breſt, over againſt the Iſles of Oveſlant, and it's in this Port that Ships Anchor for the moſt part.

CONRAD, I. of the Name, believed to have been Son of another Conrad Duke or Governor of Franconia, Heſſe, Wetteravia, with ſome other neighbouring Provinces, and put in the number of the Weſtern Emperors, by our Hiſtorians, on this ſide the Mountains, for Baronius, and the Italians own none for Emperors, but ſuch as were crowned by the Popes. Lewis King of Germany, laſt of Charlemaign's Race, died in 912. leaving Two Daughters, Plaude or Plaiſance, that was married to Conrad Duke of Franconia, and Matilde Wife to Henry the Fowler, Duke of Saxony, and Son to Otho. Some German Lords deſpiſing the Youth and little Courage of Charles the Simple, King of France, to whom this Country belong'd, as lawful Succeſſor to Pepin, Charlemaign and Lewis the Meek, would give the Crown to Otho of Saxony; but he refus'd it on Account of his Great Age, and adviſ'd them to chooſe Conrad, though his Enemy, which was done. In the mean time all the Lords being not ſatisfy'd with this Election, Arnoul called the Bad, Duke of Bavaria, proud that he had beaten the Hungarians out of his Country, rais'd an Army againſt him with a deſign to make himſelf King; but unable to accompliſh it, he pretended to eſpouſe Charles the Simple's Quarrel, who ſtill had thoughts of Recovering his Right; ſo making uſe of the Conjuncture of Affairs, he got Poſſeſſion of part thereof, with the Aſſiſtance of Renier Count of Ardenne, whom he made Governor and Duke of the new Acquiſition. Henry Duke of Saxony revolted alſo againſt Conrad, beat his Lieutenant Everard, and put himſelf to flight; whilſt, on the other ſide, the Hungarians broke in as far as Alſace in 914. and could not be ſatisfy'd by any other means but the payment of a Sum of Money. Some time after, Conrad died of a Fever, occaſion'd by a Wound which he receiv'd in the Bavarian War. At his Death he generouſly commanded his Brother Everard to carry the Royal Ornaments to Henry Duke of Saxony, though he was always in War with him; ſo requited the Father's Kindneſs to himſelf, in giving the Son the Gift he receiv'd of him. Marianus Scotus.

CONRAD, II. called the Salique, Son of Herman Duke of Worms and Franconia, was choſen Emperor after the Death of Henry II. called the Saint, in 1024. The Houſe of Saxony was againſt his Election, pretending that the Imperial Dignity was Hereditary to their Family as it was to Charlemaign's; yet he got the better of them though their Reſentments involv'd Germany in Troubles, which in ſucceſs of time became fatal to themſelves and the Empire. On the other ſide, the Italians, e're the Prince could come to Rome to receive the Imperial Crown, endeavoured to ſettle it on ſome other, out of their Averſion to the German Nation; wherefore they ſent to Robert King of France, to offer him the Kingdom of Italy for his Son Hugues, and upon his refuſal they addreſs'd themſelves to the Duke of Aquitane, who laugh'd at their ridiculous Propoſals and Conditions; ſo that at laſt Conrad coming into Italy, was crowned by Pope John the XXth in 1027. He appeas'd the Troubles of Hungary and Poland at his return. Rolphe or Raoul King of Burgundia Transjurana made him his Heir in 1033. becauſe he married his younger Daughter Giſele. Eudes Count of Champagne, Son of Bertha, eldeſt Siſter of Raoul, put in for part of the Inheritance, and made a cruel War againſt the Emperor, but was worſted and killed at laſt in the Battel near Bar le Duc, in 1037. After this the Emperor paſs'd into Italy againſt Pandulph Prince of Capua, who fled at his coming. Heribert Archbiſhop of Milan was in this Rebellion, which was quite ſuppreſs'd, and Conrad return'd into Germany, where he died ſuddenly at Vtrecht, in 1039. Glaber. Genebrand.

CONRAD III. Son of Frederick Duke of Suabia, and Agnes, Siſter to Henry V. was choſen in 1138. after Lothaire II. Henry the Haughty, Duke of Saxony and Bavaria, ſeeing himſelf fruſtrated in his Deſign of becoming Emperor, march'd with a powerful Army, and came to attack Conrad in Augsbourg; the Emperor made him retire, follow'd him, confiſcated all his Eſtate, which occaſion'd a long and cruel War, until King Lewis the Young having croſs'd himſelf at St. Bernard's Solicitation for the Voyage of the Holy Land, Conrad did the like; and crowning his Son Henry, who died ſoon after, he paſs'd through Hungary with 50000 Horſe, and a great Number of Foot, and arriv'd at Conſtantinople about the end of May, 1147. This Journey was very unfortunate, through the Malice and Treachery of the Græcians, who mixed Lime with the Meal they furniſhed the Army with: ſo that the Emperor, after having laid Siege to Damaſcus without any good Succeſs, and having marched to Jeruſalem, was forced to return into Germany, where he died in 1152. after a Reign of 12 Years, 10 Months, and 15 days. Sigonius ſays, It was he gave the Genouſes the Privilege of Coining; and other Authors add, That having reduced the Rebellious Town of Veinsberg to great Extremities, he would only conſent, That the Women ſhould go out with what they could carry on their Backs, deſigning thereby to keep the Men Priſoners; but the generous Women, inſtead of loading themſelves as he expected, with their beſt Moveables, took their Children in their Arms, and their Husbands on their Backs, and ſo marched out. This Sight ſo ſurpriz'd the Emperor, that ſeeing the great Tenderneſs of the Women for the Men, he pardoned all together. He had Two Sons, Henry ſpoke of before, and Frederick who died at the Siege of Rome in 1155. under Frederick I.

CONRAD of Suabia, Son of Frederick II. was made King of the Romans by his Father, and proclaimed at the Age of 8 Years, firſt at Vienna in 1233. and afterwards at Spire. He governed in his Father's Abſence with much Prudence, and bore Arms with Reputation, though not with ſo much good Succeſs; yet he had good Fortune in eſcaping the Murtherers ſent by Albert of Portingau, Biſhop of Ratisbonne, to be revenged of what his Eſtate had ſuffered by that Prince. After Frederick's Death in 1250. Conrad endeavoured to keep the Empire, but was oppoſed by the Pope, who expected no better uſage from him than he had received from Frederick. Conrad, either for revenge, or to invade the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, came into Italy, took Naples after Eight Months Siege, then Capoüa and Aquino, committing great Cruelties on every ſide, until Mainfroy, his Baſtard Son, who made his Father Frederick away, gained his Phyſician to poiſon him with a Gliſter. This happened in 1254.after he had reigned three Years and five Months. Conrad was married to Elizabeth Daughter of Otho Duke of Bavaria, but had no other Child by her but the unfortunate Conradin that was beheaded at Naples. Villain. S. Antonin. Platin in Innocent IV.

CONRAD, Son of the Emperor Henry the IVth, a wiſe Prince, and of great Valour, yet revolted againſt his Father, when his Lieutenant General in Italy, in 1093. and got himſelf crowned King of the Lombards by Anſelm Archbiſhop of Milan, reigned Nine Years, and died in 1101. Vrſpergenſis in Chron. &c.

CONRAD, ſurnamed the Peaceful, King of Burgundia Transjurana and Arles. He was but fourteen Years of Age when his Father Rodolph died in 937. which gave the Emperor Otho I. occaſion to invite him to his Court, under pretext of becoming his Guardian; but when he had him there, he ſeized him, and made the Palace his Priſon. This Confinement turned to Conrad's Glory and Advantage; for beſides the Art of Ruling well, which he could not chooſe but learn under ſo famous a Prince, his Eſtate was kept entire and unmoleſted, none daring to attack it for fear of incurring the Emperor's Diſpleaſure. He begun to rule himſelf in 951. when Otho having paſs'd into Italy, firſt ſecured his Siſter Adelaide from Beranger's Purſuits, and then married her himſelf. The beginning of his Reign was troubled by the Huns, who made Incurſions into his Territories; and by the Saracens of Traſſineto, who ravag'd all Provence and Lower Dauphine: He had the good fortune to vanquiſh both; after which the reſt of his Reign was very peaceful. He paſs'd for one of the moſt Vertuous Princes of his Age, and died after a Reign equally long and happy, in 999. Du Cheſne. Rodolphus.

CONRAD, Marquiſs of Montferrat, Lord of Tyre, in great Reputation in the Eaſt for his great Courage and Conduct in the Wars againſt the Infidels. He married Iſabella, Daughter of Amauri King of Jeruſalem, who died in 1173. Iſabella, after her eldeſt Siſter Sibylle's Death, took the Title of Queen of Jeruſalem, and he of King; but was murthered in 1192. by the Baldwins. Some accuſe Richard King of England of conſpiring his Death, becauſe he refuſed to marry his Siſter; and others attribute it moſt to Humfrey or Anfroy of Thoron, who was mad that Iſabella had preferr'd Conrad to himſelf. However, he had a Daughter by this Wife that was alſo called Iſabella, who carried the Title of the Kingdom of Jeruſalem to her Husband, John Count of Brienne, called the King of Acre, who was alſo Adminiſtrator of the Empire of Conſtantinople, as was ſaid elſewhere. Gal. Tyr. Baron. &c.

CONRAD, who bore the Title of Prince of Antioch, was Son to Frederick Baſtard Son to Frederick II. When he underſtood that his Couſin Conradin took the Field in 1266. to beat Charles of Anjou the Iſt of the Name out of the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily; the great Deſire he had to ſee the Princeſs of Suabia poſſeſs'd of this Eſtate, made him come out of Syria with conſiderable Strength into Sicily, where he made moſt of the Towns revolt. Meſſina, Palermo and Syracuſe were the only Places that ſtuck to Charles, who having defeated Conradin, ſent a powerful Army againſt Conrad, forced him in the Caſtle of St. Orbe, then put out his Eyes, and afterwards ſtrangled him: Yet ſeveral Authors pretend, That on Pope Clement IV's Requeſt, he had got his Life, and was put in Poſſeſſion of ſome Land in Sicily; and that having rebell'd againſt the lawful Prince, he was often cited, and at laſt Outlaw'd and Excommunicated by Martin IV.

CONRAD, Cardinal, Archbiſhop of Mayence in the Twelfth Century, was Brother to Otho Count of Wittelsbach, of the Houſe of Bavaria, and a near Kinſman of the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa who contributed much to his Election, and pretended, That for Acknowledgment of the Obligation, Conrad ſhould be for the Antipope Octavianus, whom he got nam'd Victor; but the Archbiſhop refuſing to condeſcend,, was forc'd to quit Germany and come to Tours, where Alexander III. held a Council. Frederick hearing he was gone, made Chriſtian of Buche Archbiſhop in his place, and the Pope made Conrad a Cardinal, who after Chriſtian's Death, in 1183. returned again to his Dioceſs, and croſs'd himſelf for the Holy Land, where he conſecrated Leon King of Armenia, and died at his return in 1200. Vrſpergenſ. &c.

CONRAD, de Lichthenaw, known by the Name of Abbas Vrſpergenſis. He liv'd in the 13th Century, and wrote a Chronicle, beginning with Belus King of the Aſſyrians, to the Year 1229. This Work is made up of a Collection of a great many Authors, which he makes uſe of according to the particular Reliſh of his own time; ſome People charge him with partiality towards the Emperors againſt the Popes, and that he has treated Pope Innocent III. and Pope Gregory IX. with too much Freedom. Trithem. Bellarm. de Script. Eccl. Voſſius, &c.

CONRADIN, or Conrad the Young, Son to Conrad, and Grandſon to the Emperor Frederick II. of the Houſe of Suabia; he was but three Years old when his Father Conrad died, who not knowing that Mainfroy had a Hand in his Death, gave him the Government of the Kingdom of Sicily. This wi[illegible]d Man endeavoured all he could to get his Nephew poiſoned, (who kept in Germany,) uſurp'd the Kingdom of Sicily, and made ſuch Incurſions into the Territories of the Church, that Vrban IV. preach'd a Croiſade againſt him; and inveſted Charles of Anjou, St. Lewis's Brother, in the Kingdom of Sicily. Clement IV. his Succeſſor, ratify'd this Choice, upon which Charles paſs'd into Italy, and won the bloody Victory in the Plains of Benevento, where Mainfroy was killed in 1266. In the mean time Conradin accompanied with his Couſin Frederick, Son of Herman, Marquiſs of Baden, who call'd himſelf of Auſtria, rais'd an Army; and notwithſtanding his Mother's ſage Advice, who dreaded the Succeſs of his unexperienc'd Youth, for he was but 16 Years old, againſt the good Fortune and Experience of Charles, he ſpent the Winter at Verona, and deſpis'd the Pope's Thunder-bolts; afterwards he embark'd at Genoua, and went into Tuſcany. Conrad, Prince of Antioch, ſpoken of before, had made all Sicily, to a few Towns, revolt. This promiſing beginning undid Conradin, and led him to his Death; for Charles met him as he was coming into Sicily, and defeated his Army near the Lake Fucin, now called Celano. Conradin and Frederick were taken in the Retreat, and condemn'd by the Syndicks of the Towns of the Kingdom as Diſturbers of the Peace of the Church, and were beheaded on a Scaffold in the middle of the City of Naples in 1269. After Conradin had made ſad Complaints, he threw his Glove amongſt the People, as a Mark of the Inveſtiture of the Kingdom in any of his Family that would revenge his Death; a Horſe-man took it, and carry'd it to James King of Arragon, who married Mainfroy's Daughter. Fazel. Villain. Spondan, &c.

CONRART, (Valentin) Councellor and Secretary of the King's Family, Crown of France, and French Academy, was a Pariſian, and one of the chief Founders of that Society, which begun and kept its Aſſemblies in his Houſe, from 1629. to 1634. This was their Golden Age, during which, they enjoyed all the charming Advantages of ingenious Converſation, and Philoſophy brought up to practice, together with the Innocency and Liberty of the firſt Ages, without any Noiſe or Pomp, or a Subjection to any other Laws but thoſe of Friendſhip. Perſons of the higheſt Rank had a great deal of Conſideration for Conrart, both for his good Humour and Nature, as alſo for his uncommon Skill in the French Tongue, whereof he was thought an infallible Oracle. Though he was of the Reformed Religion it was not known which of the two parties had moſt value for his Perſon and Merits. He died in 1675. about 74 Years of Age, ſhewing a great deal of Patience the laſt 30, being forc'd to keep his Houſe all that time through the vehemency of the Pains he ſuffered. Peliſſon Hiſtoire d' l'Academie Franc.

CONRINGIUS (Hermanus) a learned Profeſſor of Helmſtadt in theCountry of Brunſwick,compos'd ſeveral Works of Law, Hiſtory, and chiefly conſidered for his extraordinary Knowledge of the Affairs of Germany and Modern Hiſtory. He died about the middle of the ſeventeenth Age.

CONSENTES, Lat. Dii Conſentes, were, according to the Superſtition of the Romans, certain Gods of the firſt Order, who compoſed the Council of State of Heaven; their Name was deriv'd from the ancient Verb Conſo, which ſignify'd to Counſel, or Conſult; whence came the Name of the God Conſus. Others called them Conſentes for Conſentientes, becauſe they had the privilege of giving their Conſent to the Cœleſtial Deliberations. There were Twelve of theſe Deities, Six Gods, and as many Goddeſſes, with their Statues guilt with Gold, and put up in the great Square of Rome, according to Varro's Teſtimony. The Six Gods were, Jupiter,Neptune, Apollo, Mars,Mercury and Vulcan; the Goddeſſes, Juno, Minerva,Venus, Diana, Ceres and Veſta; and each preſided over its Month; as Minerva over March; Venus, April; Apollo, May; Mercury, June; Jupiter, July; Ceres, Auguſt; Vulcan, September; Mars, October; Diana, November; Veſta, December; Juno, January; and Neptune over February. The Poet Manilius in his ſecond Book of Aſtronomy, gives each Conſtellation of the Zodiack, the Deity that preſides its Month, to regulate its Motions and diſpence the Influences; viz. Minerva to Aries, Venus to Taurus, Apollo to Gemini, &c. There were alſo Twelve Deities which the Ancients look'd upon to have a particular Care of the Neceſſaries of a peaceful and happy Life. Jupiter and the Earth were reverenced as the Producers of all that ſerves our uſe; the Sun and Moon as having the Management of Time; Ceres and Bacchus as the Furniſhers of Meat and Drink; Robigo and Flora as the Preſervers of Fruits and Flowers; Minerva and Mercury as the Maſters of the Arts and Sciences that improve the Underſtanding, and of Commerce that increaſes Riches; and finally Venus and Succeſs, as the Authors of our Joy and Happineſs, by the gift of a good Off-ſpring and accompliſhment of our Wiſhes. The Græcians, to theſe Twelve, added Alexander the Great as the God of Conqueſts; but this laſt was not own'd by the Romans, who carried the other Twelve out of Greece into Italy, where they were adored in a Temple conſecrated to the Twelve together at Piſa. Feſtus, Pauſanias.

CONSTANCE, an Imperial or Free Town of Germany in Suabia, with the Title of a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Mayence, is ſituate upon a Lake to which it gives its Name, as the Lake of Conſtance, Lacus Conſtantienſis, which the Ancients called Lacus Venetus, Brigantinus and Bodanicus. The Town is built juſt at the Spring-head of the Rhine. Ortelius thinks it's the Ganodunum or Harudunum of Ptolemy; and that it received the Name of Conſtance, which has render'd it ſo famous,from Conſtantius Chlorus, Conſtantine the Great's Father, or Conſtance the Daughter of this latter. The Biſhoprick now of Conſtantia was once of Windiſch or Vindiniſſa, demoliſhed by Childebert II. in 594. to puniſh the Rebellion of the Varnes, a People of Germany. The Biſhop is Lord of above 100 Caſtles and Villages, Prince of the Empire, keeps his Chancellors and Officers, and was formerly Prince and Lord of Conſtance; takes generally the Title of Baron of Richenaw, and keeps his Reſidence at Mersbourg and Petershauſen. This laſt is a Suburb of Conſtance that was fortify'd in 1634. when the Town was Beſieged by the Swedes, who were forced to retire, being unable to make themſelves Maſters of it. The Cathedral of St. Stephen, is very magnificent; the great Altar very Curious. Beſides this and ſeveral other fine Churches and Monaſteries, the Exchange where the Merchants meet, the Town-houſe, the Streets, Market-places, Bridges and Fortifications, have their particular Curioſities. After the Rhine has run through the Lake of Conſtance, below this Town, it falls into the Lake of Cel, anciently call'd Acronius, upon which Lake, which ſome miſtake for the Lake of Conſance, the Town of Schafhauſe in Switzerland is built. There was a Council held at Conſtance in 1414. to put an end to the Schiſm which divided the Romiſh Church that then had three Popes all at a time; all the Acts are comprehended in 45 Seſſions. The Emperor came on Chriſtmas-Eve to Conſtance, and ſung the Goſpel in a Deacons Habit at the Mid-night Maſs celebrated by the Pope. The ſecond Seſſion was held the ſecond of the following March, 1415. where the Pope renounced his Papacy on condition that Gregory and Benet would do the like; but whether what he did was through conſtraint, or done without previous conſideration, he ſtole away in the Night and came to Schafhauſe, whence he was carried back again and depoſed in the twelfth Seſſion held the 29th of May the ſame year; and two days after, he abdicated of his own accord; and Gregory made his Submiſſion alſo by Charles Malateſta, Lord of Rimini, in the fourteenth Seſſion, ſo that there was only Benet that proved obſtinate. In the fifteenth Seſſion Wicliff's Memory was condemn'd, and John Hus burn'd the 6th of July the ſame year, notwithſtanding his Paſs or Protection from the Emperor. Jerome of Prague abjured his doctrine in the nineteenth Seſſion, but reſuming it again, he was taken and burn'd. Saturday the 30th of May, 1416. in the twenty firſt Seſſion; in the 41ſt held the 11th of November, 1417. Otho Colonna was choſen Pope, and took the Name of Martin V. He concluded the Council the forty fifth Seſſion, held Friday, April 12. 1419. the Cardinal Umbaldo pronouncing theſe words, Domini, ite in Pace, the reſt crying, Amen.

CONSTANCE, Son to Conſtantius Chlorus by his Wife Theodora, and Brother to the Emperor Conſtantine the Great, who gave him great Imployments. He married Galla and Baſilina, by the firſt he had Gallus, whom Conſtantius created Cæſar; and by the ſecond Julian, ſurnamed The Apoſtate. The ſame Conſtantius his Nephew put him and Dalmatius to death, accuſed of having fomented a Sedition in the Army. This happened in the 338 of Rome. Zoſim. Lib. 2. Eutrop. Lib. 1.

CONSTANCE, born at Niſſa, a Town of Servia, and General of the Roman Army, the Empires Buckler againſt the Tyrants in the Vth Century. During the Emperor Honorius his Reign, he overcame Conſtantine, Conſtance, Gerontius, Jovinus, and a great number of others, in 412. and the following years. Honorius gave him his Siſter Galla Placidia, Widow of Ataulpe, and aſſociated him in the Empire in 421. yet he did not enjoy the Dignity any long time, for he died ſeven Months after his Election of a pain in his Side, leaving Valentinian by his Wife Placidia, who was afterwards the third Emperor of that Name. Sozom. Lib. 9.

CONSTANCE, Lord of the King of Siam's Court, and his Miniſter of State, born in Greece, at Cephalonia, of a Noble Venetian,the Governour of that Iſland's ſon,and of a Lady of one of the ancienteſt Families of that Country: about 1660. being then but Twelve years of Age, he foreſaw that the Condition his Family was in, could not ſupport his Quality. This put him on ſhipping with an Engliſh Captain that was going back for England; here his Wit, Complying, and Winning ways, gained him the affection of ſome of the Court; yet he had no hopes to ſucceed to his mind, and therefore Imbarks again to go to the Indies. Having lived ſome years at Siam, and got ſome Money by his Induſtry, he quitted the Service of the Engliſh Company, to have a Veſſel of his own, and deal for himſelf; but having put to Sea, he was Ship-wreck'd on the Coaſt of Malabar in the Indies, on this ſide the Gulf, and loſt all his Goods, excepting the value of 2000 Crowns. As he was walking on the ſhore, after this Misfortune, he met a Man with a very ſad and mournful Countenance, who was the King of Siam's Ambaſſador, and lately Caſt away, as he was returning out of Perſia. Conſtance, profer'd to carry him to Siam, and bought a ſmall Barque, and what was neceſſary for their Paſſage. The Ambaſſador, to requite his kindneſs, recommended him highly to the Barcalon, or Miniſter of State, who, though he underſtood Buſineſs very well, was over-joyed to meet with an able and faithful Servant, that ſo he might have ſome reſt from his Imployment. It happened alſo about the ſame time, that the King had occaſion to ſend an Ambaſſy into a Foreign Kingdom, and made uſe of Conſtance, who acquitted himſelf ſo very well of the Commiſſion, that the Barcalon happening to die ſome time after, the King choſe Conſtance in his place. He excuſed himſelf, upon pretence that ſuch a Quality would gain him the ill will of all the great Perſons; yet at laſt he did the Function, without taking the Title of Miniſter of State, and exerciſes it ſtill with great Applauſe. P. Tachard.

CONSTANCE, or Coûtance, a Town of France in Lower-Normandy, with a Bailiwick, Preſidial, and a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Roan, ſituate on the Burd, and is Capital of a little Country called Conſtantin, or Coûtantin, which Robert, Duke of Normandy, pawn'd, when he undertook his Voyage to the Holy Land with Godfrey of Bouillon. Some antient Authors imagin this is the Auguſta Romanduorum; and that it received the Name it now has from Conſtantine or Conſtantius, Emperors. However, it's an ancient Town, as may be ſeen by the Aquæducts found in and about it. It's pretty big, and well peopled; but without Walls, ſince Lewis XI. demoliſhed them, becauſe the Inhabitants had declared for his Brother Charles. This made it ſuffer much during the Wars of the Engliſh, and expoſed it to the Incurſions of the Bretons in his own Reign, yet notwithſtanding this, and its being taken by the Huguenots in the year 1562. there are ſtill good Buildings, as our Ladys-Church, the Cathedral, that is very Magnificent, ſeveral Pariſh-Churches, Monaſteries, and a College- Thuan. Du Cheſne.

CONSTANS I. of this Name, Third Son of Conſtantine the Great and Fauſta, was made Cæſar in 333. by his Father, after whoſe death, in 337. he had Italy, Africa, and Illyrium, for his proportion of the Inheritance. He preſently overcame the Francs, and brought them to ſeek his Alliance; but was forced to defend himſelf againſt his Brother Conſtantine, who deſign'd to invade his Territories, until kill'd, as a juſt puniſhment for his Covetouſneſs, at Aquileia in 340. leaving Conſtans to inherit Gaul, Spain, and Great Britain. This good Prince ſtood by the Orthodox, againſt the Arians, and writ threatning Letters to his Brother Conſtantius the Emperor, who favoured the laſt, and perſecuted St. Athanaſius and his Party, and did what he could to ſuppreſs the Schiſm of the Donatiſts in Africa. In the mean time, by a ſecret judgment of God, Magnenſius, who had uſurped the Empire of the Gauls, got him killed in the beginning of 350. in the Town of Elne, in Rouſſillon. He was thirty years old, whereof he Reigned 13. St. Athanaſius ſpeaks of him as a Martyr, and in this ſhews his Gratitude to a Prince that had defended him againſt the Arians, and reſolved to declare War againſt his Brother, if he did not re-eſtabliſh him in his See. Athanaſ. Apol. ad Conſtant. Socrat. Lib. 2. Baron. Annal, &c.

CONSTANS II. Emperor of the Eaſt, Son to Conſtantine III. and Grandchild to Heraclius, was ſubſtituted in his Uncle Heracleonas's place, about the end of 641. As he was raiſed by the Monothelite Hereticks, he followed and profeſſed their Errors. Paul, who was engaged in this Hereſy, was through his Care placed upon the See of Conſtantinople. And it was by the perſwaſion of this Heretick Prelate, that he publiſhed his Edict or Formulary, call'd The Type, in 648. to impoſe Silence both upon the Orthodox and Hereticks. Martin I. who ſucceeded Theodorus, called a Council at Rome in the Lateran Church, in 649. wherein this was Condemn'd, which put the Emperor into ſuch a Paſſion, that he ſent Theodorus Calliopas, Exarch of Ravenna, to ſeize the Pope, which was executed 653. The Pope died in his Baniſhment two years after. In the mean time Conſtans was worſted by the Saracens; ſo that he himſelf was forced to put on a Diſguiſe, to make his eſcape with more Security; yet after this he took his advantage of their Civil Wars, and forced Mahuvias, their Prince to come to a Peace, and pay him a Tribute. His deſire to appear a good Catholick, or at leaſt to deceive the Pope, made him preſent Vitalianus's Nuncio's, ſent to acquaint him with his Election, with a Book of the Goſpels covered with Plates of Gold, and enriched with Pearls of an extraordinary bigneſs, for St Peter's Church. This was in 656. Four years after, being diſſatisfied with his Brother Theodoſius, he made him to be firſt ordained Deacon, and then put him to death. God was pleaſed to ſuffer him to be troubled with ſuch a Remorſe of Conſcience, for this unnatural Murther, that he imagin'd Theodoſius always before him; and being in his Deacons Habit, with which he officiated at the Communion, he gave him the Cup, and ſaid, Drink Brother. Afterwards went into Sicily, whether out of a Deſign to remove the Seat of the Empire thither, or to watch an Opportunity to ſurprize the Lombards, is not known. And after Beſieging Benevento, and taking Luceria, he entred Rome in 663. and brought all the Braſs which he found in the Temples, and upon the Houſes, thence. But coming into Sicily he was killed by his own Valet de Chambre, in one of the Baths of Syracuſe. This happened in 668. after he had reigned twenty ſix years, and ſome months. Anaſtaſ. Bibliothec. Paulus Diaconus, &c.

CONSTANS, Son to the Tyrant Conſtantine, choſen Emperor by the Army of England in 407. ſome time after his Father made him Cæſar, and ſent him to Conquer Spain. He was lucky enough in the beginning, but periſhed at laſt miſerably. Some ſay he quitted the Habit in hopes of the Imperial Diadem. Proſper & Marcellin. Chron. &c.

CONSTANTIA, Daughter of Roger I. King of Sicily, married when an old Maid, the Emperor Henry VI. in 1186. Her juſt Pretenſion to the Kingdom of Sicily were always diſputed by Tancrede, who kept her Priſoner when taken by thoſe of Salerno. But Pope Cæleſtine III. who crown'd her Empreſs, procured her Liberty. After her Husband's death ſhe ſtill continued to preſs the Popes for the Inveſtiture of Sicily, for her and her Son Frederick. Innocent III. ſeem'd to incline to a Compliance with her deſire, but ſhe died e're ſhe could receive his Bull, and left him Tutor to her Son for that Kingdom. Farel. l. 6. Hiſt. Sic.

CONSTANTIA, or Conſtantia, Daughter of the Emperor Conſtantius Chlorus and Theodora, married Licinius, who revolted againſt Conſtantine the Great, and had another Licinius by him that was afterwards Cæſar. After the laſt Battle that Conſtantine the Great gained of her Husband, ſhe begged, and obtained his Pardon; but rendring himſelf unworthy of ſuch a Favour, by his Correſpondence with the Barbarians, whom he deſigned to raiſe in Rebellion, was ſtrangled in the year 325. Then Conſtantia having effectually gain'd her Brother's Ear; Euſebius of Nicomedia, an Arian, inſinuated himſelf ſo far into her Favour, that ſhe became Protectrix of Arius for his ſake. Theod. Lib. 2. Socrat. Lib. 1, &c.

CONSTANTIA, Queen of France, Daughter of William I. of this Name, Count of Provence, was very handſom, but as proud, capricious and inſupportable, as ſhe well could be. The good Prince, King Robert, her Husband, uſed all poſſible means to reform her humour, but to no purpoſe; for after his death, ſhe imbroiled the kingdom ſtrangely, by endeavouring to deprive her eldeſt Son Henry, whom ſhe did not love, of the Crown, to ſettle it on her younger Son Robert. To compaſs this Deſign the better, ſhe rais'd againſt Henry, Baldwin IV. Count of Flanders, Eudes II. Count of Champagn, to whom ſhe delivered the Town of Sens; yet for all this her unjuſt Deſigns had no Succeſs, and ſhe was forced to Compound with her Son. She died in 1032. and lies buried with her Husband, King Robert, at St. Denys.

CONSTANTIA, Queen of Arragon, Daughter of Mainfroy, Frederick the Second's Baſtard, and Wife to Peter III. King of Arragon, lived about 1284. in great eſteem for her Piety, and Magnanimity in Sicily, whereof ſhe was Sovereign. For having determined with the Magiſtrates to put Charles, Prince of Salerno, to death, to revenge the untimely end of Conradin of Suabia, ſhe ſent to him on a Friday Morning to prepare, for that he was Condemned to die after the ſame manner that Conradin ſuffered, that is, on a Scaffold. To which that Prince anſwered with great Courage; That his death would be by ſo much the more acceptable to him, that it was to be on a day that Jeſus Chriſt was pleaſed to ſuffer on. When the Queen heard this pious anſwer, ſhe ſaid, That ſince the Prince of Salerno accepted his death ſo freely for the Days ſake, ſhe would pardon him for his Love that ſuffered for our Redemption. Louis de Mayerne. Turquet, Hiſt. d'Eſpagne.

CONSTANTINE, Pope, Native of Syria, was choſen to govern the Roman Church in the eighth Age, after Siſinnius, a Syrian alſo, who held the Seat but twenty days. In the beginning of his Reign, Felix, Arch-biſhop of Ravenna, refuſing to own him, and having raiſed the Inhabitants of his City againſt him, had his Eyes put out, and was Exiled into the Province of Pontus, by the Emperor Juſtin the Young, ſurnamed Rhinotmete, who prayed the Pope to go into the Eaſt, to accommodate the Affairs of the Church. He was received with all imaginable Magnificence at Conſtantinople, whence he went to Nicomedia, and at his Return oppoſed Philippicus, who had invaded the Empire, baniſhed the Patriarch Cyrus, and ſubſtituted John, an Hereſiarch Friar in his place, who ſent his erroneous Propoſitions to Rome to be approved. Conſtantine condemned them in 712. and had the Pictures of all the Fathers that aſſiſted at the Six Firſt General Councils drawn in St. Peter's, which the Emperor had ordered to be defaced in the Church of St. Sophia at Conſtantinople, and forbad that that Prince's Name or Authority ſhould be made uſe of in publick Acts, or his Image put upon Coyn, ſince he was againſt the Images of their Saints. Felix of Ravenna, as blind as he was, was Re-eſtabliſhed, upon his Submiſſion to Conſtantine, who died in 714. after he had held the Sea ſix years. Platina, Zoſimus, Baron.

CONSTANTINE, Anti-pope, forced on the Papal-chair, after Paul I. in 767. For whilſt this Pope was ill, Tolon, or Teuton, Duke of Nepi in Tuſcany, entered Rome with a powerful Army, and obliged the Pope and Clergy to chuſe his Brother, who was not ſo much as a Clergy-man, and got him ordained and conſecrated by George, Biſhop of Palæſtrina. Conſtantine kept Poſſeſſion for a year and a Month, until his Brother being kill'd in 768, he made his Eſcape out of Rome; but being taken, after the Election of Stephen III. his Eyes were put out; and being Condemn'd in a Council held in 769. was baniſhed out of the Church, and all his Regiſters burned. Baron. Annal.

CONSTANTINE I. Patriarch of Conſtantinople, lived in the ſeventh Age. Authors do not agree about his being Orthodox. He died in 666.

CONSTANTINE II. Patriarch of Conſtantinople, was an Iconomach, and the Emperor Conſtantine Copronymus, choſe him of his own proper Authority, and without the Conſent of the petty Council held by thoſe of his Sect in our Lady's Church, called the Blachernes, in 754. Theophanes ſays, He hindred that Emperor to publiſh Neſtorianiſm, as he deſign'd. That this want of Compliance diſpleaſed the Prince, who thereupon Baniſhed him; but having a mind to make an end of him quite, he recalled him in 766, ordered he ſhould be ſhav'd and dreſſed up in a Gown without ſleeves; and after he had cauſed him to be put on an Aſs, with his Face towards the Tail, and that in his hand; and expoſed over all the Town, to be laughed at by the Rabble, he ordered him to be beheaded, and his Body to be dragged to the Dunghil. Zonaras, Baronius.

CONSTANTINE THE GREAT, Firſt Emperor of the Name, Son to Conſtantius Chlorus and St. Helena, was born at Naiſſe, a Town of the Province of Dacia, the 24th of July, about the year 272. when but young, he had Criſpus by Minervina; after her he married Fauſta, Daughter to the Emperor Maximian. Hercules Galerius kept him Priſoner at Rome, under pretence of Religion, when his Father was in England; but his real Deſign was, to hinder that he ſhould ſucceed him, which Conſtantine, underſtood, and found means to make his Eſcape in 305. killing the Poſt-horſes that he ſhould not be followed, and arrived in Britain time enough to cloſe his Father's eyes, who died in 306. after which the Army proclaimed him Emperor; but he would take only the Title of Cæſar. At the ſame time Maxentius, Son of Maximian Herculeus, hearing of Conſtantine's Election, got himſelf proclaimed too by the Soldiers of the Prætorian Guard. Conſtantine, to avoid the ill Conſequences of a Civil War, would fain make an Accommodation with him, offering to aſſociate him to the Empire; but he refuſed all, ſtrangled Severus Cæſar in 307. whom Armentarius ſent againſt him, and baniſhed his Father out of Italy, who came to Conſtantine, his Son-in-law, to Treves; but he made his Eſcape thence, and fled to Marſeilles, where he ſtrangled himſelf, for fear of falling into Conſtantine's hands, who had diſcovered the Deſign he had to take away his Life. After this, the Prince employed himſelf altogether how to compaſs his Journey into Italy againſt Maxentius, whither his own Intereſt and the Senate invited him. Maxentius had great Forces, and he had the difficult Paſſage of the Alps, where the Enemy had three or four Armies to encounter with; yet he had God on his ſide, and then it was he received a particular Aſſurance of the Protection he intended to give him; he ſhewed him a ſhining Croſs in the Air, round which were theſe words in Greek Letters, ἐν τούτῳ νίκα, Conquer in this Sign. This is ſaid to have appeared near the Town of Autun, in 312. The Emperor did not underſtand at firſt what it meant. But the next night Jeſus Chriſt appeared, and bid him make a military Sign, like to what appeared to him the day before, which he did; paſſed the Alps, and defeated Maxentius's Troops in ſeveral Rencounters; and reſolved to march directly to Rome. Maxentius who had ſhut himſelf up there, ſeeing Conſtantine draw near, came out with 172 thouſand Foot, and 20 thouſand Horſe. Conſtantine routed this Army, with his of 8 thouſand Horſe, and 90 thouſand foot. And Maxentius, making his eſcape, was drown'd in the Tyber, the 24th of September, 312. The Emperor, to ſhew his gratitude to the Croſs by which he Conquer'd, got his Statue made at Rome, holding that Fortunate Sign in its hand, with five Inſcriptions round it, publiſhed ſeveral Edicts in favour of the Church, and exempted the Clergy from publick Taxes. After this he joined Intereſts with Licinius, who married his Siſter Conſtantia; and whilſt this laſt beat Galerius Maximin in Illyrium, he drove the Francs out of Gaul, in 313. and at the ſame time aſſembled a Synod at Rome, to adjuſt the difference of the Biſhop of Carthage with the Donatiſts; and uſed all poſſible expedients to compaſs it; but finding them ſucceſsleſs, he called a Councils at Arles, where he aſſiſted in perſon; and at laſt pronounced Sentence againſt the Donatiſts at Milan. Thus did this godly Emperor labour for the good of the Church in the Weſt, whilſt Licinius perſecuted it ſo in the Eaſt, that he forced him to turn his Arms againſt him, over whom he gained two memorable Victories; one in Hungary, in 315. near the Town of Cibale, now called Palme; and the other in Thrace, in the Plain of Mardie, and had by the Peace, that ſoon followed this War, Illyrium, and all the Weſt. Licinius broke it upon a very light occaſion; but was beaten at Sea and Land with the Loſs of above 100000 Men; yet his Wife Conſtantia obtained his Pardon of her Brother; but his Correſpondence and Intrigues with the Barbarians coſt him his Life. Soon after, Licinius his Death gave Peace to the Eaſtern Church, which Conſtantine ſtrengthen'd with his Laws in its favour, and uſed all his endeavours to ſupport it by his Care, and the Privileges he beſtowed upon it; though in the mean time his domeſtick affairs did not go right. His Wife Fauſta, in love with his Son Criſpus, and willing to revenge his denial of a reciprocal in that kind, pretended, That he ſought to debauch her. The Emperor believed her, and put him to death; but the Falſhood of the Accuſation being diſcovered; ſome time after he got her ſmothered in a hot Bath. Conſtantine built at Rome, and in other places, very magnificent Churches, furniſhed them with very coſtly Ornaments, and endow'd them for the keeping of Lamps, and Maintenance of their Miniſters; as may be fully ſeen in the Work Athanaſius Bibliothecarius made of Conſtantine's Magnificence. After this, this Emperor, willing to build a City that ſhould bear his own Name, laid the Foundation of one near old Ilium; but changed his Deſign, and built one at Byzantium, in the fineſt ſituation of the whole Univerſe. He firſt called it New Rome, and then Conſtantinople. Whilſt he was taken up about this great Undertaking, the Hereſy of Arius, a Prieſt of Alexandria, infected the moſt part of the Eaſtern Church. The Prelates propoſed the calling of a general Council, which the Emperor approved of, and writ to the Biſhops of all Provinces, to meet at the Town of Nice, choſen for this Aſſembly. After the Celebration of the Council, he treated all the Prelates very magnificently, and recommended Peace and Union to them; giving Orders at the ſame time to the Governors of Provinces to furniſh Widows, Virgins, and Miniſters of Churches with a certain quantity of Proviſions writ to King Sapor of Perſia, and recommended the Chriſtians to him that liv'd in his Territories, adding to all his other Cares for the Church, his Edicts againſt the Arians and Schiſmaticks. Having found out our Saviour's Sepulchre, he built a very magnificent Church in the place, and put a piece of the Croſs he ſuffered on upon the top of a rich Pillar, which he cauſed to be built in the middle of the great Square at Conſtantinople. Afterwards he worſted the Sarmatians, Scythians, and Perſians, and divided the Empire between his three Sons, Conſtantine, Conſtantius, and Conſtans; then being in the 65th year of his Age, and feeling ſomething of a Fever, he had a mind to try whether changing the Air would eaſe him, ſo went to Helenopolis, thence to Nicomedia, where it's ſaid he was baptized and confirmed, and alſo received the Communion or the Euchariſt, and died ſoon after at Achiron, near the Suburbs of this Town, on the 22d of May, 337. after a Reign of 39 years, 9 months, and 27 days, to count from his Father's death, which happened the 25th of July, 306. Socrates, Zonaras, Eutropius.

The Hiſtory of this Emperor has been treated of in the precedent Article; however, it may not be improper to add ſomething here concerning the famous Donation, which he is ſaid to have made to Pope Sylveſter, of the City of Rome, and ſeveral Provinces of Italy. Hincmar, Arch-biſhop of Rheims, who lived about the year 850. is the firſt who makes mention of this Grant. Pope Leo IX. afterwards gives an Account of it, in a Letter to Michael, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, in 1053. as he is cited by Petrus Damianus; Anſelm Biſhop of Lucca, Ivo Carnutenſis, and Gratian, have inſerted it into their Collections, notwithſtanding the greateſt part of the Roman Catholicks do not believe the Hiſtory of this Donation, and particularly all the French are of this Opinion. To give the Reader ſome Proofs of its Forgery; after the Death of Conſtantine the Great, the Emperor Conſtantius being at Milan, ordered Leontius, Prefect or Governour of Rome, to ſeize Pope Liberius, and guard him off to Milan, whither he was ſent to the Emperor, who not prevailing upon him to conſent to the Condemnation of St. Athanaſius, Baniſh'd him to Berrhea a Town of Thrace. Now, ſince the Emperor had a Governor in Rome at that time, and ſentenced the Pope to Baniſhment, it follows clearly, That the Pope was not then the Sovereign Magiſtrate of Rome. The Emperor Valentinian, ſent ſeveral Orders to Prætextatus, his Governour of Rome, to ſupport Pope Damaſus againſt Urſicinus the Anti pope, which Urſicinus was expelled the Town, and baniſhed into Gaul, in the year 381. To proceed, the Emperor Honorius interpoſed his Authority, and ſuppreſſed the Schiſm, which Eulalius had fomented againſt Pope Boniface the I. Symmachus Governour of Rome abetted Eulalius at firſt, and procured an Order from the Emperor, to oblige Boniface to quit the Town, but afterwards Honorius being better acquainted with that affair, recalled Boniface in the year 419. and ſent inſtructions for the expelling Eulalius; upon this Pope Boniface returned the Emperor thanks, in a Letter, in which there are theſe remarkakable words; In your Majeſty's Imperial City (ſpeaking of Rome) or as the Latin has it, In Urbe Veſtræ Manſuetudinis. In the year 476. Odoacer, having routed the Emperor Auguſtulus, made himſelf King of Italy, and abſolute Maſter of Rome; and Theodorick, King of the Goths, who defeated Odoacer in 493. did not only Reign in Rome, but claim'd the Privilege of confirming the Elections of the Popes, which pretention was likewiſe kept up and exercis'd by Athalaricus and Theodatus. After the Emperor Juſtinian had in the year 539. recovered Rome and Italy from the Goths, he changed the Form of the Government, and made an Exarch at Ravenna, who was his Vice-Roy in Italy; this Exarch had ſeveral Deputy-Governours in the principal Towns, as at Rome, Spoleto, Benevento, &c. As for the Emperor Juſtinian, he was not only ſatisfied with confirming the Popes, but likewiſe demanded a conſiderable ſum for their Confirmation. Pope Agatho, who was choſen in 678. got a Releaſe of this ſort of Tribute, of Conſtantine Pogonatus, with this proviſo, that the Inſtrument of the Election ſhould be ſent to the Emperor, according to ancient cuſtom, and the Conſecration of the Pope deferred till his Imperial Majeſty had ſignified his conſent to it. Afterwards, the Emperors Authorized their Exarchs to confirm the Popes Election, as we may learn from Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius, who tells us, Pope Conon was Confirm'd by the Exarch Theodorus, in 686. and that Pope Sergius pay'd a hundred pound in Gold to John, Exarch of Ravenna, upon this ſcore. About the year 725. Pope Gregory II. wrote a Letter to the Duke of Venice, by which it plainly appears, that R*ome* was, at that time, under the Emperors Juriſdiction; ſpeaking of the Town of R*avenna*, and the State of Italy, he delivers himſelf in this manner, To the End (ſays he) the Town of Ravenna may return to the obedience of our Lords, Leo and Conſtantine, and that we may ſtill remain under the Emperor's Authority. To go on, in the year 752. Aiſtulphus, King of the Lombards, took the Town of Ravenna, and wreſted all Italy from the Exarch Eutychius; Pope Stephen II. perceiving the Lombard Marching up to Rome, wrote to Conſtantine Copronymus for Relief, but this Prince, inſtead of ſending an Army, only diſpatch'd an Embaſſy to Aiſtulpus, upon which the Pope applyed to Pepin King of France, who marching into Italy in 755. made himſelf Maſter of all the Towns of the Exarchate, and then made a Grant of them to St. Peter, and the Church of Rome: For after Pepin had taken poſſeſſion of theſe Towns, he gave the Keys of them to his Chaplain Fulrald, Abbot of St. Denys, with inſtructions to lay them upon the Altar of St. Peter and Paul, together with a Deed of Gift, and by which they were conveyed to the Church: Theſe Inſtruments, as Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius Relates were afterwards lodg'd in the Archives or Regiſtry of Rome. In the Year 774 Charlemagne King of France conquer'd Deſiderius King of the Lombards, and putting an End to that Kingdom, not only confirm'd the Donation, which Pepin his Father had made to the See of Rome, but likewiſe gave him an Additional Grant of Terra Sabina, The Dutchy of Spoleto, the Dutchy of Benevento, with ſeveral other Towns and Juriſdictions, mentioned by Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius, in the Reign of Pope Adrian I. In the Year 817. Lewis the Debonnaire confirm'd the Grants of Pepin and Charlemagne, his Predeceſſors, to Pope Paſchal, to which that Prince likewiſe added new Endowments. K. Charles the Bald ratified all theſe Donations, and gave the See of Rome the Dutchy of Capua, with a great many other Towns, as appears by a Letter of Pope John the VIIIth. to Landulphus Biſhop of Capua. From the Year 755. in which Pepin the Short, gave the Exarchate to the Pope: The Kings of France and the Popes were Joint-Governors of the Exarchate, Rome being then under the Juriſdiction of Two Patricii, the King of France One, and the Pope the Other. This is ſufficiently clear from a Letter from Adrian I. to the Emperor Charlemaigne, from the Annals of Eginhardus, and ſeveral other ancient Records, but Charles the Bald gave up all his Share of the Authority to Pope John VIII. in 876. There are ſeveral other Reaſons and Chronological Demonſtrations to prove the Forgery of Conſtantine's Donation; but what has been ſaid may be ſufficient. Peter de Marca De Concordia Sacerdotii & Imperii. P. Alexander Selecta Hiſtoriæ Eccleſiaſticæ.

CONSTANTINE II. called the Young, Son to Conſtantine the Great, was born at Arles the 7th of Auguſt, and made Cæſar the firſt of March 317. He was Conſul at leaſt four times, and had after his Father's Death in 337. the Gauls, Spain and Great Britain for his ſhare. He was kind to Athanaſius Patriarch of Alexandria; for when he was baniſhed to Treves he ſent him back to his Church again; yet was not ſo juſt to his Brother Conſtans, for he would diſpoſſeſs him of the Inheritance left him by their Father. Leading his Troops into Italy he was killed at Aquileia, in 340. being then but 25 Years of Age, whereof he reigned three. Zoſim. l. 2. Victor. &c.

CONSTANTINE III. Son of Heraclius by his firſt Wife Eudoxia, ſucceeded his Father in 641. reigned but Three Months and ſome Days, being poiſoned by his Step-mother Martina, countenanced by the Patriarch Pyrrhus. Theophanes. Paul. Diac.

CONSTANTINE IV. commonly called Heracleonas, Son of Heraclius and Martina his ſecond Wife. He was but about Six Months in Poſſeſſion of what he got by Conſtantine III's Death, for his Noſe was ordered to be cut off, and the Senate baniſhed him and his Mother about the latter end of December, 641. Baron.

CONSTANTINE V. the Young, ſurnamed Pogonate, that is, the Beardy, becauſe being beardleſs at his going from Conſtantinople, he returned with a great one. He was Conſtans II's Son, and underſtanding that one Mizize, an Armenian, had kill'd his Father in 668. at Syracuſe, he poſted thither, put him to Death though proclaimed Emperor by the Army, and ſo render'd himſelf peaceful Poſſeſſor of the Empire. He undertook a very ſucceſsful War againſt the Saracens, which held ſeven Years both by Land and Sea, and at laſt oblig'd them to pay him Tribute. After this he ſolicited Pope Agatho to call a Council that was held at Conſtantinople in 680. by 125 Biſhops. This was the 6th General Council, wherein the Monothelite Hereſie was condemned, and an Edict publiſhed to acquaint the Empire with it. Some accuſe him of being too great a Tyrant to his Brothers Heraclius and Tiberius, whom he in the beginning aſſociated to the Empire, but afterwards, upon ſome Suſpicion, cauſed their Noſes to be cut off. Juſtinian his Son was taken into the Government, and Conſtantine died the 17th Year of his Reign, 685. Theoph. Cedrenus.

CONSTANTINE VI. Son of Leo Iſauricus, was ſurnamed Iconoclaſtes, becauſe he ſupported the Image-breakers, Copronymus, becauſe he beray'd himſelf when he was Chriſten'd, and Caballinus, becauſe he was a great Lover of the ſmell of Horſe-dung, which he alſo cauſed to be burn'd in his Chamber, and rub'd himſelf over with it. He was crown'd, as little as he was, in 720. and begun to reign all alone, after his Father's Death, in 742. he not only had no regard for the Images, but trod them under foot, and burn'd the Reliques of pretended Saints, put Two Biſhops to Death, and ſeveral other Clergymen, after he had perſecuted and treated them ignominiouſly. He made War againſt the Bulgarians with very different Succeſs. In the beginning of his Reign he was baniſhed by Artabaſdus his Brother-in-Law, but having taken Conſtantinople two Years after, by Famine, he got Artabaſdus and his Two Son's Eyes put out, and uſed the falſe Patriarch Anaſtaſius but little better. He died in 775. in his Expedition againſt the Bulgarians, being mad before he expired, and crying, He was burned alive through the pain he ſuffered by the Plague-ſore he died of. Cedrenus. Theoph.

CONSTANTINE, VII. Son of the Emperor Leo the IVth, begun his Reign in 780, at the Age of Ten Years, under the Guardianſhip of his Mother Irene, a Woman of great Beauty and extraordinary Wit; ſhe got the ſeventh Council, or ſecond of Nice held in 787; but in the mean time, Conſtantine coming to rule, depriv'd her of the Government, and made her become a private Perſon in 790. He put his Uncle Nicephorus's Eyes out, and cut out his Four Brothers Tongues that endeavoured to raiſe him to the Empire. He alſo blinded one Alexis Patricius becauſe the Legions of Armenia had ſome Kindneſs for him. Afterwards put his lawful Wife, call'd Mary, away, and took Theodora a Waiting-Woman. Theſe Proceedings got him the Hatred of the Great Ones; and his Mother, through her great Ambition to govern, moſt barbarouſly put out his Eyes in the very Chamber he was born in, and on the ſame day that he did the like to Nicephorus. Thus Conſtantine loſt both Sight and Life in 797. Theophanes, Cedrenus, &c.

CONSTANTINE VIII. Son of Baſilius the Macedonian, was created Auguſtus by his Father in 868. There are many Conſtitutions that bear the Names of both theſe Emperors, yet the Modern do not put them in this Rank, becauſe this Conſtantine died before his Father, about 878. Theophanes.

CONSTANTINE IX. ſurnamed Porphyrogeneta, Son of Leo the Wiſe, begun his Reign under the Guardianſhip of his Mother Zoe, the 7th of June 912. The War he was forc'd to declare againſt the Bulgarians would have been happily ended had not the Soldiers ran away from their Victory. Another Expedition againſt the ſame People was attended with a like diſgrace through the Imprudence of the Commanders, which encouraged the Bulgarians to lay Siege to Conſtantinople, and obliged the Emperor to purchaſe Peace by a large Sum of Money. Buſineſs ſtanding thus, Conſtantine was as it were neceſſitated to make Lacapenes, an Armenian, a Man of Fortune his Coadjutor; he was General of the Emperor's Army, who had married his Daughter Helena; ſo that with the Authority of Father-in-Law to the Prince he baniſhed his Mother Zoe, and governed all himſelf, ſtill abuſing his Son-in-Law's Simplicity: He made his Son Chriſtopher Auguſtus in 920 and ſoon after his Two other Sons, Stephen and Conſtantine, thinking to ſettle the Empire in his Family; but God croſs'd his ambitious Deſigns, for his own Son Stephen depriv'd him of the Purple, and then ſhav'd and ſent him into Exile into an Iſland; and as this Stephen diſputed the Authority with his Brother, Conſtantine Porphyrogeneta opened his Eyes, ſhook off his Lethargy, ſeiz'd them both, ſent them into the Iſlands, and governed his Empire with great Commendation, ſubduing ſome Tyrants of Italy, took Benevento from the Lombards, contriv'd it ſo, that many of the Turks who plundered the Frontiers of his Kingdom, embraced the Chriſtian Faith. This Prince was a Lover of Learning, left his Son Romanus a Book that treated of the Affairs of the Empire, of Leagues, and contained ſeveral other important Advices. This Romanus, weary of his Father's long Reign, poiſoned him in 959. the 54th of his Age, and 15th Year of his Reign. This Emperor caus'd an extract to be drawn from many Hiſtorians, digeſted it into common Places, and divided it into 55 Books. This Collection occaſion'd the loſs of the Original Authors, which were neglected after the drawing up this Epitome. Zonaras. Glycas.

CONSTANTINE X. Son of Romanus and Theophania, ſucceeded Joan. Zimiſcus with his Brother Baſilius the Young, and reigned 50 Years with him, from 975. to 1025. during all which Time he was rather Companion of the Dignity than of the Power of Baſilius; for he prefer'd his Pleaſures to the Government. After his Brother's Death he held the Empire about Three Years, during which Time Conſtantine Diogenes, Governor of Smyrna, defeated the Boſſinians on the other ſide of the Danube, and the Governor of Samos diſperſed the Saracens Fleet which plundered the Cyclades, and took 12 of their Ships. Conſtantine died in 1028, leaving Two Daughters, Theodora and Zoe; this laſt married Romanus Argyropylus, his Succeſſor. Zonaras.

CONSTANTINE XI. ſurnamed Monomachus or the Fencer, was recalled from Baniſhment, where he was ſent by Order of John Brother to the Emperor Michael the Paphlagonian; and having married Zoe, Daughter of Conſtantine X. and Widow of Two Emperors; he put himſelf on the Throne in 1042. This Prince was very lazy, and quite buried in Vice; kept a Concubine, Siſter to Romanus Sclerus, which was like to occaſion his deſtruction; for the People continually murmured againſt him, but Zoe and her Siſter Theodora ſav'd him. He was forced to ſuppreſs Two Civil Wars, the firſt againſt George Manaſſes, who having commanded the Troops in Sicily, and being generally attended with good Succeſs, deſigned to make himſelf Emperor, but was killed in Epirus. Leo, called Tomitius, his Rebellion was much longer, yet came to nothing, becauſe this Rebel being taken Priſoner had his Eyes put out in 1046. Conſtantine alſo maintain'd the War againſt the Roxelans, whom he defeated; and againſt the Boſſinians, over whom he alſo had ſome Advantages; but his natural Lazineſs, or his want of Money gave the Turks opportunity to begin to extend their Power in Aſia in his days. He reigned Twelve Years, and died in 1054. Curopalates.

CONSTANTINE XII. ſurnamed Ducas, Son of Andronicus, was choſen by Iſaac Comnenus to govern the Empire, and was crowned in 159. The beginning of his Reign was troubled by a great Conſpiracy fomented by his own Party, but he prudently ſuppreſs'd it, and employ'd himſelf wholly to the good of the Commonwealth. He was eſteem'd a good Catholick; but all that could be ſaid of his Juſtice and Equity could not exempt him from the Imputation of Avarice, which render'd him contemptible to his Subjects. In his time the Uſians, People of Scythia, to the number of 500000, broke into the Empire, and threatened it with no leſs Ruine than it had ſuffered by the Goths, Huns, Vandals and Lombards; they cut the Bulgarians and Romans in pieces that oppoſed their Paſſage, and deſpiſed the Offers of Peace, and a Tribute that were made them. In this Calamity the Emperor apply'd himſelf to Heaven, ordered a General Faſt, and took the Field with a Hundred and fifty thouſand Men, in this Enterprize God was pleas'd to aſſiſt him, for the greateſt part of the Uſians were deſtroyed by the Plague, and the reſt eaſily cut in Pieces by the Bulgarians. Greece was afterwards ruin'd by the Incurſions of its own proper Inhabitants, and the frequent Inroads of the Turks. The Cities of Conſtantinople, Cizicum, Nice, and ſeveral others were terribly ſhook with an Earthquake that overthrew ſeveral fine Buildings. Conſtantine, after a Reign of Seven Years and Six Months, died in 1067. 60 Years of Age, leaving his Wife Eudoxia Guardian of his Three Sons, having made her ſwear ſhe would not marry after his Death. Curopalates, Glycas.

CONSTANTINE XIII. which they call the XVth. that number ſome Cæſars amongſt the Emperors, was of the Family of the Palæologi, and ſurnamed Dracoſes or Dragoſes, during the Wars of Peloponneſus, to intimate he was as ſtrong as a Dragon. He was Manuel Palæologus's Son, and Brother to John, whom he ſucceeded in 1445. or according to ſome Modern Authors, in 1448. The beginning of his Reign was ſomewhat embroil'd by his Brothers Demetrius and Thomas, to whom he gave ſome Lands in Morea and elſewhere. Afterwards he render'd the Croiſade ſucceſsleſs that was publiſhed in Germany againſt the Turks, by his hindring the Union of the Greek and Latin Churches, which his Brother J. Palæologus promiſed to receive according to the Decrees of the Council of Florence. Nicholas V. ſurpriz'd at this Oppoſition, ſent Cardinal Iſidore, Biſhop of Sabine, to conclude the Union. The Legate ſped according to the Pope's Deſire; but notwithſtanding the Succors being retarded, Mahomet II. Emperor of the Turks ravag'd all Greece, and at laſt laid ſuch a cloſe Siege to Conſtantinople by Sea and Land, that he carried it the firſt of May, after 58 Days Siege, in 1453. The Emperor Conſtantine fighting valiantly, was ſmothered in the Throng at one of the Gates, after he had received a Wound in the Shoulder; his Body being found and diſtinguiſhed by his Armour, the Head was cut off and carried over all the Town on the top of a Lance; the Children and Women that were left of the Royal Family, were either butchered in the Revels and Debauches of the bloody Conquerors, or kept to ſatisfy the Tyrant's Luſt. Æneas Sylvius. Chalcondylas.

CONSTANTINE I. the 43th King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Brother Dongardus. While he was a Subject he lived temperately, but when mounted on the Throne he immerſed himſelf in all manner of Debauchery. He was cruel and haughty towards the Nobility, but familiar with the Vulgar, and ſneakingly ſubmiſſive to his Enemies. The Nobles being offended with his Carriage did admoniſh him often, but to no purpoſe, ſo that they were ready to revolt; and the Picts made a League with the Saxons; but Dugal of Galloway, a Man of great Authority among the Commons, reſtrained them from Inſurrection, alledging, that now when the Picts were alienated, and the Britains their uncertain Friends, ſuch Commotions would endanger the Kingdom. But Conſtantine was at laſt ſlain by a Noble-man, whoſe Daughter he had forced; or, according to Fordon, died of a lingering Diſeaſe. In his Reign Aurelius Ambroſius came from Bretany in France into Great Britain, to claim his Crown from the Uſurper Vortigern, and ſent to renew the ancient League with the Scots againſt the Saxons, the common Enemies of the Chriſtian Name. The Embaſſy of the Britains was kindly received, and the League renewed, which continued till the Britains were ſubdued by the Saxons, and the Picts by the Scots. Conſtantine died about 479. Buchan.

CONSTANTINE II. the 71ſt King of Scotland, ſucceeded Kennethus. He was a Prince of a great Spirit, and very Valiant; ſo that he deſigned to enlarge his Kingdom to the ancient Extent, but the Soldiery being ſlain, and the Youth corrupted in former Reigns, he was adviſed by the Nobility to deſiſt till the ancient Diſcipline could be reſtored. He made his young Soldiers lie on the Ground, and eat but once a Day; puniſhed Drunkards with Death, and forbad all Exerciſes but ſuch as might adapt both the Body and Mind for War; by which Methods he brought the Youth to be very fit for Military Undertakings. Evenus, whom the King had made Governor of Loghaber, knowing this Severity to be diſreliſhing to the corrupted Youth, did thereupon Foment a Rebellion, but was quickly ſuppreſſed, and himſelf taken and hanged. About this time, the Danes being ſollicited by the Picts, invaded Scotland, and landed in Fife, where they cut off all from their inveterate Hatred againſt the Name of Chriſtians. Conſtantine marched againſt them, and defeated one of their Armies under Hubba, Brother to the King of Denmark; but attacking the other commanded by Humber in their fortified Camp with too much precipitancy, and the Picts deſerting him in the mean time, he was defeated and ſlain near Carail in Fife; and the Danes gathering up the Spoil, ſhipp'd off. The King's Body being found, was buried in Icolmkill, An. 874. and the 16th of his Reign. Buchan.

CONSTANTINE III. the 75th King of Scotland ſucceeded Donald VI. An. 903. The Danes, who could never prevail with Donald and Gregory, the Two laſt Kings of Scotland, to take Arms againſt the Engliſh, who were then Chriſtians, prevail'd with Conſtantine by Gifts and Promiſes, but in Two Years Time deſerted him, and made up a League with the Engliſh, who Four Years after having ſpoiled their Countries, the Danes renewed their League with the Scots, and promiſed to obſerve an Inviolable Amity; ſo that together they invaded the Engliſh with a numerous Army; and having ravaged the Country without Oppoſition, they became ſo arrogant as to deſpiſe their Enemy. But the Engliſh, being fewer in Number, had recourſe to Policy; and Athelſtan the Baſtard, who commanded them, having fought a while ſtoutly, feign'd a Retreat, and abandoned his Camp to the Danes and Scots; and as they were intent upon the Prey, ſurpris'd and cut them off like ſo many Beaſts. In this Battel moſt of the Scots Nobility fell, and their General Malcolm was carried off much wounded; and Athelſtan, during the Conſternation, took Weſtmorland and Comberland from the Danes, and Northumberland from the Scots: And Conſtantine afterwards being diſcontented, reſign'd his Crown, and retir'd to a Monaſtery amongſt the Culdees, or Monks of that Time, at St. Andrews, and Malcolm the Son of Donald was declared King. It is further obſerved of this Conſtantine, That he invaded the Peoples Right of Suffrage as to the Succeſſor of the Crown, by making the Title of the Earl of Cumberland denote the Succeſſor, as Prince of Wales does in England. Buchanan takes Occaſion here to refute the Engliſh Hiſtorians, who alledge, That Athelſtan reign'd ſole Monarch over Britain, and that the other Kings held their Title precariouſly from him, and cite Marianus Scotus for their Author. Firſt, he ſays, That by Britain, Bede, William of Malmsbury, and Geoffry of Monmouth, do commonly underſtand that part of the Iſland in which the Britains rul'd, viz. South of Adrian's Wall; and as for Marianus Scotus, there is no ſuch thing to be found in that Edition of his Book Printed in Germany. Buchan.

CONSTANTINE IV. the Eighty firſt King of Scotland, ſucceeded Kennethus III. An. 994. he made a greater ſtir about getting Poſſeſſion of the Crown than ever any had done before him, and inveighed againſt Kennethus I's Law about making the Succeſſion Hereditary, which he ſaid left the Government to the Capricio's of Fortune, and expos'd it to the Management of Children, who perhaps might be rul'd by ſome Woman, or have ſome Imperfection of Body or Mind; adding, What would have become of it, if a Woman Child, or unqualify'd Perſon had been entruſted with the Adminiſtration during the Invaſion of the Romans, Britains, Picts, Engliſh and Danes; and that it was the greateſt Madneſs in the World to run into that by a Law, which God had threatned as the greateſt of Judgments, and which excluded wiſe and vertuous Men from the Government; therefore he preſs'd the Abolition of that Law. This was a handſom rebellious way of Arguing. And having thus drawn over ſome of the Nobles and a great many of the Commons to his Party, he was declar'd King Twelve Days after Kennethus's Death. Malcolm, Kennethus's Son oppos'd him, but being inferior in Strength, disbanded his Army, and retir'd into Cumberland; while his natural Brother Kennethus diſputed Conſtantine's Paſſage over the Forth; but Conſtantine having paſſed that River, was fought, defeated, and killed by Kennethus at Almond-water in Lothian, and he himſelf died of his Wounds. Conſtantine uſurp'd only One Year and Six Months. Buchan.

CONSTANTINE, a Soldier of Fortune, whom the Army of Great Britain made Emperor in Honorius's Reign. He enter'd Gaul, made himſelf Maſter of ſeveral Provinces, and depending upon his good Underſtanding with Alaric he was preparing to go into Italy; ſome things hindered him, ſo that, after making his Son Conſtans Cæſar, he withdrew to Arles, where he eſtabliſhed the Seat of his Empire. Conſtans, who had already gained conſiderable Victories over the Abettors of his Rebellion, came to beſiege him himſelf in Arles, which made Conſtantine have himſelf ordained Prieſt, thinking to ſecure his Life by that Character; but being taken and ſent into Italy with his ſecond Son Julian, they were both killed by the way, either by Conſtans's or the Emperor's Order in 411. Caſſiodor. Proſper Chron.

CONSTANTINE, ſurnamed African, becauſe he was a Native of Carthage, liv'd about the Year 1070. Leo Oſtienſis ſpeaks thus of him, This Conſtantine having quitted Carthage came to Babylon, where he became very famous in the Knowledge of the Arabick, Chaldæan, Perſian, Egyptian and Indian Tongues; as alſo in Phyſick and other Sciences, ſo that when he came back again to Carthage, the Citizens would put him to Death becauſe he was too learned; this made him hide himſelf to make his Eſcape in a Ship that was bound for Sicily; where, though he diſguis'd himſelf in a Beggars Garb, he was known by the King of Babylon's Brother then at Salerno, who recommended him to Duke Robert as a Man of great Parts, and very well worthy his Protection. Conſtantine turn'd Monk of St. Benet's Order. He writ Diatæ Univerſales; De Ponderibus medicinalibus. Trithemius. Genebrard.

CONSTANTINE, a Heretick of the Manichæan Sect, pretending to be Sylvanus St. Paul's Diſciple, perverted the Armenians in the Seventh Century. The Emperor Conſtans II. put him to Death in 653. by means of a Palatin called Simeon, who being ſeduc'd by this Impoſtor's Cheats, pretended he was Titus, another Diſciple of that great Apoſtle. Baronius.

CONSTANTINE (Manaſſes) a Greek Hiſtorian, liv'd about 1150. in the Emperor Emanuel Comnenus's Reign, and writ an Abridgment of Hiſtory in Verſe, under the Title of Synopſis Hiſtorica. This contains all memorable Occurrences from the beginning of the World to the Reign of Alexis Comnenus; that is, to 1081.

CONSTANTINE (Robert) was born in Caen, where he profeſſed for ſome time in the Univerſity. He was a Phyſician, and withal very ſkilful in Languages, in Hiſtory, in Plants. He lived to the Age of 103 Years, without any extraordinary diminution of the Vigour of his Body, the Force of his Underſtanding, or any ſenſible decay of his great Memory, and at laſt died of a Pleuriſie in 1605. His chief Works are his Dictionarium Græcum & Latinum; Theſaurus rerum & verborum utriuſque linguæ; De antiquitatibus Græcorum & Latinorum libri tres.

CONSTANTINE, which the Arabians call Cucuntina, a Town and Kingdom of Barbary in Africa. This Kingdom that now is but a Province of that of Algier, had in former times its particular Kings, and was properly the new Numidia of the Ancients. It now comprehends three parts. Conſtantine, which ſtretches by the Sea-ſide, and reaches far into the Land, Bonne, almoſt all by the Shore, and Tabeſſe, far in the Land on Biledulgerid ſide. The Town of Conſtantine, which is the Cirta of the Ancients, is pretty big, and ſituate on a Mountain that has but two ways to it, the reſt being inacceſſible and dreadful Precipices. This renders it extraordinary ſtrong; and beſides, there is a Caſtle towards the North, and the River Suffegmar waſhes the foot of the Hill. Collo and Sucaicada upon the Coaſts, belong to the Government of Conſtantine, as well as the Mountains that ſtretch to the Sea. Marmol.

CONSTANTINE, Capital of the Province of Conſtantine, in the Kingdom of Algier; or of Tunis, according to Marmol. Its Houſes are very regularly built, and at a certain diſtance from one another, ſo as not to touch. The Streets and places are well contriv'd. The Town is rich. Its principal Traffick conſiſts in ſending Caravans into Biledulgerid, and into the Negroes Country with Cloath, Silks and Oyl, which bring back the Gold of Tibar in Powder, ſome Dates and Negro Slaves. The Land is ſo fruitful that it will return thirty Buſhels of Corn for one that is ſown. Without the place are very many curious Antiquities, the Ruins of ſeveral Buildings that have been very magnificent, with a Triumphal Arch like thoſe at Rome near the Capitol. There is another curious Work, which is a Subterranean-way, by which one may deſcend to the River with ſteps cut in the Rock; and at the bottom is a great Vault, whereof the Walls and Pillars were alſo worked out of the Rock. In this ſame Rock, about three caſts of a Stone from the Town, is a hot Bath which forms a Fountain falling in upon a Rock; and here do ſeveral Tortoiſes breed, to which People carry ſome food when they go to bathe themſelves, believing them to be Evil Spirits that have remained there ſince the Romans were Maſters of the Province. Marmol.

CONSTANTINOPLE, a famous City of Europe, the ancient Byzantium, Capital of Romania, formerly Thrace, and now the Seat of the Ottoman Empire. The Turks call it Stamboul. Its ſituation is the moſt advantageous of any in the World, for it's built on the Boſphorus of Thrace, which command over the White and Black-ſea, and the pleaſanteſt and moſt convenient Port that can be imagin'd: for it lies in that Peninſula, which ending in a point, ſtretches at the extremity of Thrace into the Sea, where the Boſphorus begins, which joins the Propontis to the Euxin-Sea, and parts Aſia from Europe; ſo that it forms, as it were a great Triangle, whoſe Baſe has Thrace to the Weſt, the right ſide the Propontis to the South, drawing towards the Eaſt to the mouth of the Boſphorus; the left-ſide towards the North, ſtretches along the Gulph, which the Boſphorus forms in Thrace, from Eaſt to Weſt, winding ſomewhat towards the North to make that admirable Port. Of theſe three Angles, the firſt is towards the Eaſt, at the point of the Promontory of the Boſphorus, now called The point of the Seraglio. The ſecond is to the South, upon the Propontis, where the Walls end that are double towards the Land, and fortifyed with good great Towers pretty near one another. The third is the lower end of the Port, and turns from Weſt to North, upon that part of the Gulph which is called the Blaquernes; this was a Suburb where there formerly ſtood a very magnificent Palace, and a Church built by the Empreſs Pulcheria in honour of the bleſſed Virgin. And it's in this part that the two Rivers Cidatus and Barbiſes diſcharge themſelves into the Gulph. Here blow but 2 winds, the North and South. When the firſt blows, there is nothing can come from the Sea of Marmora, but then the Veſſels that come from the Black-ſea have the faireſt Wind that can be, and ſupply the Town with all neceſſary Proviſions: On the contrary, when a Southerly Wind blows, no ſhip can come from the Black, but all may come from the Sea of Marmora or the White ſea; ſo that both theſe Winds are as the two Keys of Conſtantinople, that open and ſhut the paſſage for ſhips, and when both ceaſe, ſmall Bottoms are driven by Oars. The great Baſſin which is between Conſtantinople and Galata, forms the fineſt Port in the Univerſe. It's round this Baſſin that Conſtantinople is ſeen to the South, and to the Weſt Galata; the two Boroughs Fondukli and Tophana to the North, and the Town of Scutari to the Eaſt, which gives the Eye the moſt magnificent object that can be ſeen or imagined; the Buildings of this Neighbourhood being in form of an Amphitheatre, ſo that they can be diſcovered all at a time; the mixture of Cypreſs-Trees, and the Houſes of painted Wood, with the Domes of the Moſques which are on the higheſt places, contribute much to the beauty of this marvellous Aſpect. Conſtantine the Great, Founder of this great City, called it Conſtantinople, and took ſuch care to enrich and embelliſh it, that he diſfurniſhed other Towns of their fineſt Ornaments to bring them hither. He raiſed ſeven Mountains, built a Capitol, a Circus, and an Amphitheatre, Market-places, Portico's, and other publick Edifices, according to the Model of thoſe of ancient Rome; ſo that there was reaſon enough to call this the New. He alſo eſtabliſhed a Senate, and drew the great Men of all parts of the World thither, by his great gifts and Liberalities to them; built magnificent Churches, and endowed them proportionably; founded Colleges, and took a particular care to furniſh them with able and learned Profeſſors; begun a Library, and ſtocked it with a great Number of Volumes, which his Succeſſors increaſed to 120000. before it was burned under the Conſulſhip of Baſiliſcus. Though this were enough to render this City beautiful and magnificent, other Emperors added yet as well to embelliſh, as fortify and make it greater, ſo that in the Eighth Age, the double Walls that environ'd it towards the Land were almoſt two Leagues round; thoſe of the Sea, towards the Propontis, a little more; and thoſe that were of the Gulph and Port ſide, ſomewhat leſs; which in all made above ſix Leagues Circuit beſides the Suburbs, each of which would make a good Town; and what is more ſingular, is, that the Emperor Anaſtaſius ſhut in theſe Suburbs, and all the Houſes within 20 Leagues of Conſtantinople, with a prodigious Wall, 20 foot broad, that begun at Pont Euxin, and reached to the Propontis; and yet this prov'd but a weak Bulwark againſt the Barbarians. Conſtantine divided his New Rome into fourteen Quarters, like the Old. The Fortreſs which commanded the Entrance of the Port, and which the Gracians called Acropolis, was in the firſt Region or Ward, where the Seraglio is now; and there is the Pharos or Light-houſe, the Arſenal, the Baths of Arcadius, the Gallery of Juſtinian, &c. The famous Temple of St. Sophia, the wonder of the World, the Senate-houſe, the Baths of Zeuſippus, re-built by Juſtinian, were in the ſecond Region. The Hippodrome or great Cirque, the Church of St. Euphemia, with the Palace of Pulcheria were in the third. The fourth comprehended the Imperial Square encompaſſed with a double rank of Galleries ſtanding upon Pillars. The Palace of Conſtantine, the Golden Mile where all the Roads begun, &c. In the fifth, and in the ſixth was the Palace of Theodoſius, with the great Obeliſque of Thebes in Egypt, and that of Conſtantine the Great, in the midſt of which he raiſed that famous Pillar of Porphyry, which ſupported his own Statue made of a Coloſſus of Apollo, brought from Athens to Conſtantinople. The Church of Anaſtaſia, and the Pillar of Theodoſius the Great were in the ſeventh, which is now the place called Bezeſtan. The eighth had the Theodoſian Baſilique, the Palace of the Capitol. The Anaſtaſian Baths and Palace of Arcadius were in the ninth. The Baths of Conſtantine, the Palace of the Empreſs Eudoxia, and the Church of St. Martyr Acacius were in the tenth. In the eleventh were the Temple of the Apoſtles built by Conſtantine, and re-built by Juſtinian, where were the Emperor's Tombs, and upon the Ruins of which Mahomet II. built the magnificent Moſque that bears his Name; the Pillar and Statue of Arcadius that was on Mount Xerolophus, and was thrown down in the Reign of Leo Iſauricus, were in the twelfth. In the thirteenth, on the other ſide the Gulph, where Galata is, was formerly a Town called Juſtinian. In fine, the fourteenth comprehended the Suburbs. Theſe were the Quarters of Conſtantinople, ſo often expoſed to incredible Misfortunes; for in Arcadius's Reign, about 396. it was threatned with Fire from Heaven, and did not eſcape but by God's particular Mercy. In 446. it was afflicted with Plague and Famine, the chief Church was burn'd, and in a Tumult that happen'd in the Cirque, abundance of People were kill'd. The next year was an Earthquake which laſted ſix Months, during which time ſeveral Houſes were over-thrown. The Emperor, who repaired it afterwards, with the Patriarch Proclus, and moſt of the Inhabitants went out into the Field, and a ſurprizing Prodigy of a Child rais'd up into the Air, when they had ſung the Hymn it learn'd them, put an end to this Deſolation. Under the Reign of Leo, and the Conſulſhip of Baſiliſcus, which was in 465. this Town was almoſt deſtroyed by Fire, which reached five Furlongs in length and fourteen in breadth, and in all that compaſs left neither Palace, Temple, Pillar, Statue, nor Houſe, ſo that they were forced to build it all anew. When Juſtinian govern'd the Empire about 557. a furious Earthquake almoſt quite Ruin'd it. A ſtrange noiſe was heard under the Earth, and when that ceaſed the Air was agitated with horrible Whirlwinds that made a dreadful noiſe; ſeveral Temples were quite over-thrown, which gave occaſion to Juſtinian to re-build them more magnificent than they were. Procopius gave an exact deſcription of that of St. Sophia, which was one of the Maſter-pieces of Architecture. It would be tireſome to make an exact Narration of all the Accidents that befel this City ſince its Foundation by Conſtantine, to the time it was taken by the Turks, there being never an Age that it was not afflicted with a Plague, an Earthquake, Fire, Civil-Wars, Incurſions of the Barbarians, and 1000 other Calamities; for the Saracens and other Barbarians have often beſieged it. It has been alſo often taken; as by Conſtantnius Copronymus, in 744. by the French in 1204. who kept it under Emperors of their Nation for 58 years. Alexis Angelus, called The Tyrant, had uſurped the Crown from Iſaac Angelus, in 1195. Alexis, Iſaac's Son, implored the aſſiſtance of the French and Venetians that were going to the Holy Land, and theſe took Conſtantinople after eight days Siege, in 1203. The year after Alexis Ducas Murzuffe put the Emperor to death that the Croiſade had eſtabliſhed. They returned upon this News, made themſelves Maſters of the Town a ſecond time, and made Baldwin, Count of Flanders Emperor thereof; Henry, Peter, Robert, Baldwin II. ſucceeded him; but Michael Palæologus ſurprized the Town under this laſt, in 1261. at which time it ſtill had its particular Imbelliſhments, which are quite ruin'd and defaced ſince it fell unhappily into the Turks hands, only a part of S. Sophia's Church that is to be ſeen ſtill, & ſome remains of the Porphyry Pillar, ſome of the Ruins of the Palace of Blaquernes, and two or three more: Beſides theſe, there is now hardly the ſign of that Conſtantinople built by Conſtantine, but the place it was built in, which is now but a confus'd heap of Cabins rather than Houſes, they are ſo very low; yet ſome Moſques are pretty ſumptuous, the Seraglio's, Carvanſera's, and publick Baths are pretty tolerable ſtill. Some, perhaps, will be glad to hear the Circumſtances and Particulars of its taking by the Turks. Mahomet II. Emperor of the Turks, Beſieged it in 1453. Conſtantine Palæologus being then Emperor; and after lying before it above 45 days, news came to his Camp about the 25 of May, That a powerful Fleet of the Chriſtian Princes of the one ſide, and a formidable Army of Germans and Hungarians on the other, Commanded by the famous John Hunniades, were ready to fall on the Beſiegers; this put them into ſuch a panick fear, that they were for raiſing the Siege immediately, and begun to be very angry with the Sultan, who had a mind (as they ſaid) to deſtroy them. This Prince, as Couragious as he was, had ſuch an Impreſſion made upon him by this terrible mutiny, that he was ready to give way to the unmanageableneſs of the Army and retreat, as his Grand Viſier, Hali Baſſa, who favoured the Chriſtians underhand, adviſed him, until Zagan Baſſa, confirmed him in his firſt Reſolution, and deſired him rather to venture an Aſſault, and to promiſe the Soldiers the Plunder of that rich Town, to hearten them on. This advice that agreed with Mahomet's Humour, was ſoon put in execution; ſo he ſent to all parts of his Camp, and told the Janiſaries that were about him, that he left them all the Wealth of that City, and deſired nothing for himſelf but the bare Walls and Houſes. The hopes of this Booty diſſipated the Fear the Soldiers were in, and all cryed out to be led quickly to the Breach. A little after they ſent to ſummon the Emperor who was within the Town, to ſurrender it, and have his Life and Liberty; but upon his reſolute anſwer, all the Turkiſh Camp, by the Sultan's Order, was full of Lights, and their Ships likewiſe, in order, the next day, to keep a Solemn Faſt, in waſhing and purifying themſelves according to Mahomet's Law, that ſo God might bleſs them with Victory. The Emperor ſeeing by that, that what Hali Baſſa acquainted him with before was true, viz. that the next day he ſhould be attacqued by Sea and Land, gave all neceſſary orders for a vigorous Defence, and after a general Proceſſion this Couragious Prince animated the moſt conſiderable of his Court and City to fight like Men of Courage in defence of their Country and Religion; and after his other Devotions, he withdrew to the great Palace, took his leave of all his Officers, fore-ſeeing that would be the laſt time he ſhould ſee them; then took his Arms, and put himſelf at the Head of ſome choice Men, and marched towards Porte Karſie to defend the Breach. The Sultan begun the Attack at three in the Morning, and the Chriſtians had the better for a time; but the Janiſaries poured themſelves in with ſuch fury, that the Græcians were forced to give way in ſeveral places. In the mean time, Juſtinian, the Emperor's Lieutenant being wounded in the Thigh and Hand, inſtead of growing hotter on ſight of his Blood, quitted his Poſt, and croſs'd to Galata, where he died ſoon after; not of his Wounds, but of Grief for his ſhameful Cowardice. The Emperor, accompanied with Theophilus Palæologus, Francis Comnenus, Demetrius Cantacuzenus, John of Dalmatia, and the reſt of the ſtouteſt of the Nobility, did more than could be well expected of Man, to oppoſe the inundation of the Barbarians that came in on every ſide, but he was forced to yield to their infinite Number; and it's ſaid, when he ſaw all his Companions killed, he cryed out with a doleful tone, What, ſhall not I find a Chriſtian that will cleave my Head? and then one of the Enemy, that did not know him ſtruck him full in the face, and as he intended a ſecond blow, another Turk came behind him and ſtruck him dead. Thus died Conſtantine XVth. and laſt Emperor of the Græcians, defending that famous Town that the firſt Conſtantine built to be a ſecond Rome. Mahomet, to honour the Courage of ſo great a Prince, commanded, That all Funeral Honours due to Emperors ſhould be paid him. After his death there was no more reſiſtance; the Turks enter'd on every ſide, and committed (for the three days the Sultan allowed them to plunder) all the wickedneſs and cruelties that can be thought on, only they burned no place becauſe they had an expreſs command to the contrary. The Græcians that had fled to St. Sophia's Church for ſhelter, were all maſſacred there or made ſlaves. The famous Notaras, who had ſaid publickly, He had rather ſee a Turk's Turban than a Cardinals Cap or Hat at Conſtantinople, found ſome means to make his eſcape, and preſent himſelf before the Sultan with all his Treaſures; but was received as a Traitor, and beheaded the next day with his two Sons, by Mahomet's Orders: He alſo made moſt of the Peers of the Empire away, and forced the Genoeſes that had held Galata a long time before, to ſurrender it. After the three days plunder the Sultan brought things to quietneſs, and promiſed his Protection to all thoſe that ſhould return thither again, and leave for a free exerciſe of Religion: And to people it the better, he ſent for the Inhabitants of the little Kingdom of Trebizonde, and other Towns of Aſia: So having made his Entry in Triumph, he choſe this for the Seat of the Empire, changed the Church of St. Sophia into a Moſque, and gave orders for publick Rejoicing to celebrate his Victory. Some Hiſtorians relate, That after Byzantium was almoſt deſtroyed by the Emperor Severus in 197. the Dioceſs was transferred to Perinthe, a Town of Thrace, ſince called Heraclea, and Pope Gelaſius I. writing to the Biſhops of Dardania, Ep. 3. ſays, That Byzantium was then but a ſimple Pariſh of that Dioceſs. Zonaras and Cedrenus agree, That Domitius, Brother to the Emperor Probus, leaving Rome about 280. for the love of the Chriſtian Religion, withdrew to Byzantium, where he was made Biſhop; and that his two Sons, Probus and Metrophanes ſucceeded him. This Biſhoprick was ſuffragan to that of Heraclea, but the Town becoming the Seat of the Eaſtern Empire, its Church in ſucceſs of time became Metropolis to that of Heraclea, to which it was ſubject before; and the Prelates of Heraclea had the privilege to Conſecrate thoſe of Conſtantinople, as the Biſhops of Oſtia did thoſe of Rome; and this is the reaſon why Polyeuctus, who ſucceeded Theophylact in 956. in the See of Conſtantinople, was Cenſured, becauſe he was ordained Biſhop by him of Cæſarea, and not by him of Heraclea. As for what concerns the Patriarchal Dignity, the third Canon of the ſecond Council of Conſtantinople gives the Prelate of this Town the firſt place after the Biſhop of Rome, becauſe it's the ſecond Rome. M. de Marca, in his Diſſertation about the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, thinks this Church had no more than the Honour or Precedence of a Patriarchate, by this Canon of the ſecond Council, but that the Patriarchal Right and Juriſdiction was granted to that See by the fourth Council, which was held at Chalcedon; and that the 28th Canon of this Synod ordained, That according to the Deciſion of 150 Biſhops who compoſed the firſt Univerſal Council of Conſtantinople, that Church ſhould enjoy the Privileges that were allowed it, and hold the ſecond place, after that of old Rome. After this, the Ambition of the Biſhops of Conſtantinople increaſing daily, John, ſurnamed The Faſter, having found means to exerciſe his Authority over an Eaſtern Patriarch in Gregory of Antioch's Cauſe, took the title of Oecumenick or Univerſal Pope. Gelaſius oppoſed this, terming it A new Vſurpation. St. Gregory oppoſed it with more Paſſion, calling it A proud Name, full of Blaſphemy, Error, Venom, and what not. This happened in 595. and the Diſſention grew greater and greater, being fomented by the Complaiſance of ſome Emperors; eſpecially Maurice, Juſtinian the Young, and Baſil the Macedonian, after the eighth General Council, in 869. Photius was properly the firſt Author of the Schiſm between the Greek and Latin Church; yet the entire Separation was not before the eleventh Century, and the time that Michael Cerularius was Patriarch. For after this time, the three other Eaſtern Patriarchs, though Superiors in their own Dioceſſes, owned him of Conſtantinople for Univerſal Paſtor.

The firſt Council of Conſtantinople, which is the IId. General, was held by 150 Biſhops, in 381. under the Pontificate of Pope Damaſus, and in the Reign of Theodoſius the Great. The Deſign of this Aſſembly was, to ſupport the Doctrine of the Council of Nice, which ſeveral falſe Synods had rejected, and alſo to condemn the Error of Macedonius, and eſtabliſh Orthodox Prelates in the See. All theſe things were concluded with pretty good Succeſs; For the Fathers received the Nicene Creed, upon which ground they made their Canons, relating to Faith, and publiſhed a Creed which Gregory Nyſſen drew up; wherein, having clearly expreſſed the Conſubſtantiality of the Son with the Father, they added, for the holy Ghoſt, proceeding from the Father, and co-adorable with him and the Son, becauſe of the Hereſy of Macedonius. In the Latin Verſion of this Synod, which appear'd a long time after in the Weſtern Church, they read, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, as may be ſeen in the Acts of the IId. General Council of Lyons, held in 1274. under the Pontificate of Gregory Xth. This Confeſſion of Faith being publiſhed in that Synod of Conſtantinople which ſpeaks of the Hereſies of the Eunomians, Arians, and Semi-Arians; of the Sabellians, Marcellians, Photinians, Apollinariſts, with their ſeveral Authors were condemned. From the Points of Faith the Fathers paſſed to the Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline, and made a Canon that regulated the Juriſdiction of the Superiors of Dioceſſes.

The Second Council of Conſtantinople, which is the Vth. General, was aſſembled in 553. under Pope Vigilius, and in the Reign of Juſtinian, to put an end to the troubles and diviſions of the Church, occaſioned by the three Chapters, and by the Books of Origen. The Council aſſembled, deſired the Pope, by three Patriarchs, and ſixteen Metropolitan Prelates, to come thither and take his place, but he excuſed himſelf, becauſe he had but few of the Weſtern Biſhops with him; ſo they went on, and in their eighth Seſſion condemned the Hereſies of Neſtorius, Eutyches, Origen, and the Writing of Theodorus Mopſueſtenus, of Theodoret, againſt Cyril of Alexandria, with the Epiſtle of Ibas of Edeſſa. Pope Vigilius before this had made a Conſtitution wherein he anſwered the Errors Juſtinian had obſerved in the Books of Theodorus. But when he came to the three Chapters, ſcil. to the perſons of Theodorus, Ibas, and Theodoret ; he ſaid, That ſince the Councils of Epheſus and Chalcedon had not ſubjected them to an Anathema, or Excommunication, he could not do it : And alledging the Teſtimonies of the Popes, Leo, and Gelaſius , he ordained, That none ſhould preſume to condemn the fore-mentioned. This was Dated the 13th of May, on which the fifth Seſſion was held. The moſt underſtanding part of Men are of Opinion, that the Emperor, to whom the Pope ſent this, did not ſhew it the Prelates, though Cardinal Baronius does not think ſo. However, it's certain that this Council, which was called to put an end to this Schiſm, increaſed it in ſeveral places ; for neither Vigilius, nor the Biſhops of Africa and Illyrium, did acquieſce in the determination of the Eaſtern Biſhops. But Juſtinian, who executed the Decree, baniſhed the Pope and ſome Prelates. The Pope, whether it was to return again, or for ſome other Reaſon, condemned the three Chapters afterwards. This Vth General Council, being one of the Principal Records of Hiſtory, to determine the Diſputes concerning the Authority of Popes and General Councils: The inquiſitive Reader, (beſide the Acts of this Synod ; The Abridgment of Liberatus, Evagrius, Photius, Zonaras, Cedrenus, Nicephorus, and the Epiſtle of the VIth Council to the Emperor Pogonatus) may conſult what the Cardinals Baronius and Bellarmin have writ upon this Subject. lib. de Conc. ch. 5. & 19. Du Perron in his Anſwers to the King of Great Britain, Mr. De Marca in his Diſſertation of this Council, &c. The Hereſy of Eutyches was the Source of that of the Monothelites, who, though they acknowledged two Natures in Jeſus Chriſt, added, there was but one Operation and one Will. Theſe Opinions were condemned, but they begun again more vigorouſly in the Emperor Heraclius's time. This Prince coming by Hierapolis, at his Return from the Perſian War, deſired Athanaſius, Patriarch of the Jacobites, to ſubſcribe the Ordinances of the Council of Chalcedon, which he promiſed to do, yet would admit but of one Will and Operation in our Saviour. Heraclius, having conſulted Cyrus, and Sergius, declared himſelf Defender of this Opinion, and publiſhed an Edict called Ecthesis, or Expoſition, to maintain this Belief. Conſtans, who ſucceeded Heraclius's Son, publiſhed an Edict on the ſame Subject, which he called The Type, and made Pope Martin die in his Exile. Conſtantine, called Pogonatus, or The Beardy , Son and Succeſſor to Conſtans , ſtuck to the right Side ; and Pope Agatho made uſe of this occaſion to call the VIth General Council, which was the third of Conſtantinople. It was begun the Seventh of November, 680. in the Chapel of the Palace which was called Trullus, Secretarium Sacri Palatii, and hither came the Popes Legates , with ſome of the Weſtern Prelates. The Monothelites were condemned in the XVIIth Seſſion , and in the XVIIIth. and laſt. All other things were regulated ; and ſo ended the Aſſembly, September 16. 681.

The Fourth Council of Conſtantinople, which is the VIIIth General one, was held in 869. againſt the Patriarch Photius, under Pope Adrian II. and the Emperor Baſilius, the Macedonian, in the Eaſt, and Lewis, Son of Lothairus, in the Weſt. The Greeks do not admit this Council, but another, that Photius, (replaced in the See of Conſtantinople, after the death of Ignatius) held in 879. where he preſided, as they ſay, over 383 Biſhops, and got his Election confirmed as Canonical, rejected the VIIIth General Council, and raſed the word Filioque out of the Creed of Conſtantinople ; ſaying, It was added by the Latins. Zonaras, Theodorus, Balſamon, Nilus, and many others, defend the Canonicalneſs of this Council. Beſides theſe General, there were ſeveral Provincial Synods, as about the Ordination of Flavian. To put an end to the Differences of Agapius and Gebadius for the See of Boſtra, about the Superiority of the Churches of Antioch and Alexandria, and againſt Eutyches, in 448. &c. the Worſhip of Images was condemned in one called by Conſtantinus Copronymus in 754. conſiſting of 330 Biſhops, and held from the 10th of February, to the eighth of Auguſt. There was another held in 842. in the Reign of Michael Porphyrogeneta, where this Worſhip was re-eſtabliſhed. Phranzes, L. 3. Ducas, c. 39. Maimbourg Hiſtoire du Schiſme des Grecs, L. 6.

CONSTANTINOW, a place of Poland, in Upper Volhinia, upon the Frontiers of Upper Podolia, ſituate upon the River Sluez, which afterwards empties it ſelf into the Boryſthenes, and is five or ſix Leagues from Zeſlaw , and twelve or fifteen from Kaminiec. This Town has been almoſt ruin'd by the Coſſaques during the laſt Wars.

CONSTANTIUS I. of the Name, or Conſtantius Chlorus, Son of Flavius Eutropius, and of Claudia, Daughter of a Brother of the Emperor Claudian II. His Courage render'd him worthy of the greateſt Imployments a Soldier or Warriour could deſerve ; but to keep them he was forced to quit Helena his Wife, to marry Theodora, Daughter of the Wife of Maximianus Herculeus , who adopted and made him Cæſar in 291. as Diocleſian, Emperor with Maximian, did the like Honour to Galerius, ſurnamed Armentarius, and made him take his Daughter Valeria to Wife. Conſtantius had the Gauls for his part, and was attacked by the Germans, who knew Maximian was buſy in Africa. He loſt the firſt Battle, and was wounded in 295. but rallying his Army, he came upon the Enemy about five Hours after, killed 60000. and put the reſt to flight, who were forced all to yield, becauſe the Ice had thawn where they expected to croſs the Rhine : He pardoned all, and imbodied them in his Troops. In 296. he ſubdued England that had revolted. And after in 304. when Maximian and Diocleſian quitted the Purple, he and Galerius remained ſole Emperors. Conſtance had for his ſhare Gaul, Italy , Spain, and Africa, where he treated the Chriſtians with much mildneſs, and Reigned to 306. when he died at York in England, whither he was come upon ſome buſineſs of the Empire. He left Conſtantine the Great , by St. Helena, whoſe Birth and Condition puzzle Hiſtorians very much. He had another Conſtantine by Theodora , beſides Dalmatius and Conſtantius, which Zonaras, and others call Hanniballianus, with three Daughters, Anaſtaſia, Conſtantia, and Eutropia. Socrat. l. 1. Euſeb. l. 8.

CONSTANTIUS II. or Flavius Julius Conſtantius, Son of Conſtantine the Great and Fauſta, was made Cæſar by his Father in 324. married Euſebia, worthy of ſo great a Man, if ſhe had not infected her extraordinary erudition, and the rare qualities of her Underſtanding with the Errors of Arianiſm. After Conſtantine's death, the Empire being divided amongſt his three Sons, Conſtantius had the Eaſt Aſia and Egypt for his ſhare. He diſhonoured this great Power by the Murther of many of his own blood, and by embracing Arius his Hereſy, which to maintain the better, he perſecuted the Church, exiled the orthodox Prelates, and amongſt the reſt St. Athanaſius. He made War in 338. and 348, againſt Sapores, King of Perſia, a great Perſecutor of the Chriſtians ; but was generally worſted in all the Battles and Sieges he undertook. His Brother Conſtans, Emperor of all the Weſt, after the death of Conſtantine II. ſought to remedy the troubles that moleſted the Eaſtern Church, deſired Conſtantius to re-eſtabliſh St. Athanaſius, and conſent to the Convocation of the Council of Sardica, where he began to recal the baniſhed Prelates. But he being killed by Magnenſius in the year 350. Conſtantius begun to repent his former Compliance , eſpecially ſince he had none then to ſtand in fear of ; and as there was a foreign and civil War both together in the Empire, he applied himſelf more carefully to prevent their threatning Effects than to compoſe any differences of the Church. This made him create Gallus his Couſin, Cæſar, under the name of Conſtantius. Vetranio, in the mean time, was ſaluted Emperor by the Army in Pannonia, and Magnenſius uſurped the Sovereign Authority ; all theſe together forced Conſtantius to quit the Eaſt, and prepare for a Journey to Rome, to ſuppreſs this Rebellion in the Bud ; but before he ſet out he publiſhed an Order in his Army, by which he caſhiered all Soldiers, who ſhould refuſe to be baptized. This Law was the occaſion that St. Martin, then a Catechumen, received Baptiſm. This promiſing Action was ſoon ſtained by the Baniſhment of Paul of Conſtantinople, which proved the unhappy ſource of a long train of Evils. He marched to the Weſt, to make War againſt Vetranio and Magnenſius ; and contrived it ſo that by his large promiſes to the one, he diſengaged him from the others Friendſhip ; after which he made ſuch a ſmooth ſpeech to the Armies in Pannonia and Murcia, that they forced the Uſurper to quit the Purple. Magnenſius two years after this killed himſelf at Lyons, ſo that Conſtantius remained ſole Maſter of the Empire , and then begun to perſecute the Catholick Prelates, and brought the Church to a pitiful Condition. But whilſt he was taken up in calling frequent Aſſemblies of Prelates , reſolved to perſecute the Faithful, his Couſin Julian, ſince ſur-named The Apoſtate, being created Cæſar in 355. and having beat the Barbarians out of Gaul, was ſaluted Emperor about 360. and marched with his Army towards the Eaſt. Conſtantius hearing that he was in Illyrium, and by long Marches endeavoured to come into Thrace ; to oppoſe him, changed his deſign of going againſt the Perſians, who had made themſelves Maſters of ſome ſtrong Holds in Meſopotamia. He paſſed the Winter at Antioch, where his Wife Euſebia died, and he married Fauſtina, whom he left with Child of a Daughter, afterwards call'd Conſtantia, and married to the Emperor Gratian. From Antioch he came into Tarſus, from thence he paſſed to Mopſueſtia in Cilicia, and here he died, in 361. 40 or 45 years old, whereof he reigned, 25. Socrat. l. 7. Ammian. Marcellin. Lib. 21. &c.

CONSUL is a Name the Romans gave their firſt Magiſtrates, which they looked upon as the chief of their Council. Lucius Junius Brutus and Tarquinius Collatinus, were the firſt the publick Aſſembly choſe, after they had baniſhed Tarquin the Proud, laſt King of Rome, the 245th of its Foundation, and 509. or 10. before the Birth of our Saviour. The Conſuls were Commanders of the Armies, chief of the Senate, and regulated the Affairs of the Commonwealth. But the Emperor Juſtinian ſuppreſs'd the Dignity, An. Dom. 541. which made him be hated by all thoſe that loved Antiquity. Tribonianus was alſo reflected on as being the occaſion of this Change ; becauſe he had not Intereſt enough in the People to be choſen one himſelf. It's true the Title then was but Honourable, having but the exterior Marks of the Ancient Power of the Roman Conſuls that made the whole Earth tremble. Juſtin, to purchaſe vulgar Favour, re-eſtabliſhed it again in 566 ; and to ingratiate himſelf the more became one ; but it did not take. This is certain, That in all the Hiſtory of the Weſt, there is not a more ſure mark of the Times, than what is taken from the Roman Conſuls, whether we regard the State of the Commonwealth before Auguſtus and the coming of Chriſt, or that we obſerve the different Revolutions of this great Empire, and the ſeveral Tranſactions of the Church to the Time of the Emperor Juſtinian. Corippus lib. 2. See Rome.

CONSULS, Judges conſtituted for the determining Differences between Merchants, for the better Regulation of Trade. There was ſome of theſe Conſuls in Italy in the Fourteenth Century, as appears by Salicetus's Commentaries; there were likewiſe Conſuls in the Republick of Athens, as we may learn by Demoſthenes's Oration againſt Apalurius. There were Judges of this Kind in every Trade or Company at Rome; as alſo to decide the Differences which happen'd between Perſons of the ſame Buſineſs or Employment. But in France, this Juriſdiction was ſet up no longer than about a Hundred and twenty-five Years ſince, in the Reign of Charles IX. Memoirs Hiſtoriques.

CONSUS, a certain Deity of the Ancient Romans, which they believed the God of Counſel. They built it an Altar under the Ground, and called it alſo Neptunus Equeſtris, in whoſe Honour they celebrated Plays in the Month of March, which they called Conſuales, and were like thoſe of the Circus. It was during theſe Feaſts that Romulus and his Companions carry'd off the Sabine Virgins. Dion. Halicarn.

CONTARINI (Gaſpard) a Noble Venetian, Cardinal and Biſhop of Belluno. He wrote a Book againſt Pomponatius, of the Immortality of the Soul: His other Works are, De Septem Eccleſiæ Sacramentis. De Optimi Antiſtitis Officio. Scholia in Epiſt. D. Pauli. Confutatio Articulorum Lutheri. De Poteſtate Papæ. De Prædeſtinatione. De Libero Arbitrio, &c. This Cardinal died at Bologna, in 1542. Paul. Jov. in Elog. Doct. Miræus, &c.

CONTINENT, a Name Geographers give ſome Parts of the Land to diſtinguiſh it from Iſlands, which they look upon as Pieces cut off. According to what Relations we have by late Navigations of the Diſpoſition of the Globe of the Earth, we may count four Continents, whereof there are but two that are well known. The firſt is what we call the Ancient Continent, which comprehends Europe, Africa, and Aſia, three great Parts of the World, ſo united together, that one may go from one to the other without croſſing any Water. It's environed on every ſide with the Ocean, &c. and comprehends almoſt all our Hemiſphere. The ſecond is the new Continent, called America, and takes up almoſt half of the other Hemiſphere. It's called The New World, becauſe it was diſcovered but two Ages ago. The third Continent, which is called the Northern, or Artick, is but narrow in reſpect of the former two, and comprehends Groenland, the Iſle of Iſeland, the Lands of Spitzberg, Nova Zembla, and the Lands of Jeſſo. The fourth Continent, which is called the Southern, comprehends new Guinea, new Zeland, new Holland, and ſeveral others, little known yet beſides the Coaſts.

CONTIUS (Anthony) a Frenchman born in Piccardy in the ſixteenth Century. He profeſs'd the Law at Bourges and Orleans with conſiderable Reputation, and differ'd frequently in his Opinion from Duarenus Hotoman, and ſome others in that Faculty; which Diſputes were the Occaſion of ſeveral ingenious Treatiſes. He wrote Lectionum Subceſivarum Juris Civilis Liber. Comment. in Inſtitut. Ad Legem Juliam Majeſtatis. Diſputationes Juris. Des Mariages Clandeſtins, &c. La Croix du Main. Du Verdier Vauprivas Bibl. Franc. Thuan. Hiſt. &c.

CONTUMELIOSUS, Biſhop of Riez, lived in the VIth. Century, was depoſed in 534. for ſome Miſdemeanour. S. Cæſarius of Arles, preſided in the Council that depoſed him, and wrote to Pope John II. the manner of their proceeding, who in his Anſwer approved of what was done, and ordered that he ſhould be put into a Monaſtery, and a Viſitor appointed to rule his Dioceſs.

CONTY, Lat. Contiacum, a Borough of France, in Picardy, ſituate upon the little River Celle; four or five Leagues from Amiens, and a little leſs from Crevecœur and Montdidier. It belongs now to the Houſe of Bourbon, and has Title of Principality in the Perſon of Francis Lewis de Bovillon Prince de Conty, who in 1697. was one of the Candidates for the Crown of Poland, being ſtrongly backt by Lewis the XIVth. and was proclaimed King by the Cardinal Primate and his Party, while the Biſhop of Cujavia and his Adherents proclaimed the Elector of Saxony; who being near at hand and a Sovereign Prince who had great Riches and many Troops to command, carryed the Crown from him, though the Prince went to Dantzick by Sea towards the latter end of that Year, and returned again without Succeſs. He is a Prince whoſe Valour, Merit, and other excellent Accompliſhments might juſtly entitle him to a Crown; and perhaps had he been ſupported in his Pretenſions by any other Potentate in Europe but the French King, he might have gained his Point, and been now the Peaceable Poſſeſſor of the Poliſh Crown.

CONTZEN, or CONTZENIUS (Adam) a Jeſuit, born at Montjoy in the Dutchy of Juliers. He was a good Linguiſt, and more particularly an Orientaliſt. He died in 1635. and wrote *Commentaria in Evangelia. In Epiſt. D. Pauli ad Romanos & ad Corinthos. Defenſio Lib. Card. Bellarmini. de Gratia Primi Hominis & de Peccato. De Hæreſion Incremento. CONVERSANO, Lat. Converſa, Converſanum, and Cuperſanum; a Town of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, and in the Land of Bari, with the Title of an Earldom. It belongs to the Family of Aquaviva, and has a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Bari; yet is of no great moment. It's five or ſix Leagues from the Adriatick of Monopoli and Medugno ſide.

CONWAY, an indifferent Market-Town in Carnarvanſhire, 174 Miles from London.

CONWAY (John) deſcended of Sir Henry Conway, a Favourite of Richard II. had Iſſue two Sons, Hugh and Edward. Hugh, being Maſter of the Wardrobe to King Henry VIIth. became afterwards of his Privy Council, and Treaſurer of his Houſhold. Edward left Iſſue John, who ſignalizing himſelf in that great Expedition made into Scotland in 1 Edward VI. was made a Banneret; his Son John was made Governor of Oſtend in 1586. Departing this Life 1 Jac. he left Edward, his Son and Heir, Knighted by Robert Earl of Eſſex, at the Sacking of Cadiz in Spain, in 1596. After which he ſerved in the Netherlands, as Governor of the Brill. In 20 Jac. was made one of the Principal Secretaries of State. And in 22 Jac. advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Conway of Ragley. In 1 Car. I. he was conſtituted one of the Principal Secretaries of State. In 2 Car. I. created Viſcount Killultagh of Killultagh, in the County of Antrim in Ireland. Alſo 3 Car. I. Viſcount Conway, of Conway Caſtle, in Com. Carnarvan. He was afterwards made Lord Preſident of his Majeſty's Privy Council, and employed into Germany as Embaſſador extraordinary. He died in 1630, leaving Iſſue three Sons and four Daughters; Edward the Eldeſt ſucceeding him in his Honours, departed this Life at Paris in 1655. leaving Iſſue four Sons, John the Eldeſt dying young, Edward the ſecond Brother ſucceeded, and married Anne, Daughter to Sir Heneage Finch of Kenſington in Com. Midd. Knight, ſometime Recorder of the City of London, by whom he had Iſſue——Dugdale.

CONZA, or CONSA, Lat. Conipſa, a Town of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, with the Title of an Archbiſhop's See. It lies at the Foot of the Appennine Mountains, towards the ſource of Ofante, in the Province of the farthermoſt Principality. It was the Country of the ancient Hirpins; now it's not conſiderable.

COOPER (Sir Anthony-Aſhley) of Wimbourn St. Giles, in the County of Dorſet, Baronet, having in ſundry Reſpects manifeſted his Loyalty to King Charles I. and contributed much by his prudent and ſeaſonable Advices and Conſultations with General Monke and others, to the Peaceful Reſtoration of King Charles II. was in conſideration of theſe Services, by Letters Patent bearing Date the 13th Year of that Prince's Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Aſhley of Wimbourn St. Giles; and after this being made Chancellor of his Majeſty's Exchequer, as alſo one of the Commiſſioners for his Treaſury, and Lieutenant of Dorſetſhire, he was by other Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter, in the 24th of his Majeſty's Reign, created Lord Cooper of Paulet, and Earl of Shaftsbury. He had three Wives, firſt, Margaret, Daughter to Thomas Lord Coventry, ſometime Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England; next, the Lady Frances, Daughter to David late Earl of Exeter; but by neither of theſe had any Iſſue; and laſtly, Margaret, Daughter to William Lord Spencer, by whom he had Iſſue Anthony, who married the Lady Dorothy, third Daughter to John Earl of Rutland, by whom he hath Iſſue two Sons, Anthony and John. The Earl of Shaftsbury was alſo advanced to the Dignity of Lord High Chancellor of England; which Office he executed to general Satisfaction; and, to do him Right, was a Perſon of extraordinary Parts; but his Conduct at the latter end of his Life grew exceptionable, and tarniſh'd his Character, he having then joyn'd a Party of factious Men and concerted an Inſurrection both in England and Scotland; but perceiving the Faction embarraſs'd with new Difficulties, and not ſo forward in executing the Deſign, as he thought neceſſary, he fled to Holland, to ſecure himſelf from Diſcovery and Proſecution; and died there An. 1682. Manley's Hiſt. of Rebellion. Hiſt. of the Horrid Conſpiracy at the Rye-Houſe, Printed 1685.

COP (Nicholas) Rector of the Univerſity of Paris in 1536. kept great Correſpondence with Calvin, which was taken notice of by ſomething he ſlipt in a Sermon he preached at the Mathurins on All-Saints day, &c.

COPA, a Town of Aſia, near the Palus Mœotis, or the Sea of Zabache, ſituate upon a River of this Name, which Authors call by other different Names. It lies under Cagia, upon the ſame River, which has its Source in Circaſſia, near Tzercas.

COPERNICUS (Nicholas) a famous Mathematician, Philoſopher, Phyſician, and afterwards a Canon of Warmie, was born at Thorn, a Town of Royal Pruſſia, 19 Feb. 1473. ſtudied Philoſophy and Phyſick with very good Succeſs in his own Country, but his greateſt Inclination was for the Mathematicks, and particularly for Aſtrology, which made him travel to ſee and converſe with the famouſeſt Men of his Times for that Science. He ſtopped a long time at Bologne in Italy, and went thence to Rome, where he taught, and had very able Scholars. He renewed the ancient Doctrine of the Philoſopher Ariſtarchus, and maintained after him, with a great many other Philoſophers, That the Earth moved, and that its place was not the Centre of the World. It's true, Cardinal Cuſa had moved and defended this Opinion before him; but he had the Honour of the Invention of the Syſtem, becauſe it was he rectified it to that Degree of giving the Reaſons of the Celeſtial Appearances and Motions of the Bodies above. This Opinion was embraced and warmly maintained by Rheticus, Rothmanus, Lansberg, Kepler, and Galilæus, and in our Days, Des-Cartes, Gaſſendus, and the Count of Pagan, have alſo placed the Earth amongſt the Planets. Copernicus makes the Sun the Center of the Univerſe, and holds it's immoveable. Mercury, the next Planet to the Sun, compleats its Circle about it in three Months. Venus runs her Circle which environs that of Mercury in Seven Months and a half. The Earth hers in a Circle that comprehends that of Venus in a Year; but has another Motion upon or round its Axis, which is of twenty four Hours, and is that by which we explain the Succeſſion of Days and Nights. The Moon rowls about the Earth, and compleats hers in twenty ſeven Days or thereabouts. Mars in a fourth Circle comes round that of the Earth, and has the Sun for Center; the time of its Revolution is about two Years. Jupiter in about twelve Years. Saturn, the higheſt of all the Planets, makes its turn about the Sun in thirty Years or thereabouts. above Saturn Copernicus places the Starry Heaven, which is motionleſs in his Opinion. To reſume his Sentiments, The Sun is immovable, and in the Center of the World. Mercury, Venus, the Earth, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, move in their ſix Circles round the Sun; but the Earth has another Motion on its Axis; and the Moon makes its Circuit round the Earth. By this Syſtem we avoid the Difficulty of explaining and giving Reaſons for the daily Motion of the Sun in an immenſe Space, and with an inconceivable Rapidity. But though Copernicus places the Sun in the Center of the World, and allows it no Motion, ſo as not to change one Place for another, yet his Sectators give it a circular Motion round its Axis; and ſay, This Revolution is compleated in twenty ſeven Days. This they do to explain the appearances of Stains or Spots that have been diſcovered by Teleſcopes or Proſpective-glaſſes in its Body, but are obſerved to change their Situation in twenty ſeven Days. As for the Earth, Copernicus gives it three Motions; The firſt that it compleats in a Day; The ſecond the Yearly; And the third, which always keeps the Earth's Axis in the Same Poſition. The diurnal Revolution is that the Earth makes in twenty four Hours upon its proper Axis; ſo that the part that is towards the Sun is always lightned, whilſt the other lies dark. The yearly is, that the Earth runs through the Signs of the Zodiack when between Venus and Mars it takes its round about the Sun in a Year's time. The third ſerves to give reaſon for the difference of Seaſons, and the inequality of Days in different Climates. Gaſſendus.

COPHTES, or COPTES, Chriſtians of Egypt who follow the Errors of Eutyches and Dioſcorus. They are ſubject to a Patriarch, who takes the Title of Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and keeps his Reſidence in the Monaſtery of St. Macarius, twenty Leagues beyond Grand-Cairo. They have many Monaſteries in Egypt, and one particularly in the Houſe whither Joſeph and the Virgin with our Saviour retired from the Perſecution of Herod; and at Jeruſalem they have an Apartment in the Great Church of St. Sepulchre allotted for their uſe. To be better informed of the Belief and Cuſtom of the Cophtes you muſt read the Collection of F. Simon in his Critical Hiſtory of The Belief and Cuſtoms of the Eaſtern Nations.

COPPENHAGEN, or COPENHAGEN, a Town of the Iſle of Zeland, or Zelandt, Capital of the Kingdom of Denmark, and the King's ordinary Reſidence. The People of the Country call it Copenhafen, Kioben-haven, or Copen-haſen. Copenhaven by the Germans, and Hafnia by Latin Authors. It is built upon the Streights of Oreſund, with a good Port and conſiderable Cittadel; yet is but a modern Town; for it was Abſolon Huido, or Hues, Archbiſhop of Lunden, and Biſhop of Roſchildt, who lived in the XIIth Age, about 1165, built a Fortreſs againſt the Pyrates where the Town is now, and was called Axel-Huis. Some time after ſeveral Fiſhermen built Cabins round this Fort, and then the richer ſort built Magazins and Houſes to receive their Cuſtomers that came to buy Fiſh, and kept a conſiderable Commerce; whence the Town begun to be called Kopmans-Haffen, that is, Merchants-Port. So Trade making it more and more conſiderable, James, Biſhop of Roſchildt, gave it many Privileges in 1254. And afterwards, by the particular Care of the Kings of Denmark it came to be very conſiderable for its great Commerce. An Arm of the Sea divides it into two parts, the leſſer, which is the Iſle of Amagger, is where the Caſtle ſtands environ'd with a deep Ditch, and high Ramparts, the Mint, the Exchange, and the Arſenal, which is one of the fineſt of Europe, is alſo on this ſide. It's in this that the admirable Celeſtial Globe, which is of ſix Foot diameter, and reputed one of the moſt curious of Tycho Brahe's Works is kept. From this part to the other are ſeveral fine Bridges. The Streets are wide and well ſtor'd with Magazines. The chief Churches are Saint Nicholas, the Holy-Ghoſt, and our Lady's all poſſeſs'd by Proteſtants. It's in the laſt that their King's are Crowned; and of this ſide ſtill is the Port, the Cittadel, the Caſtle of Taille-bote, which is properly their Cuſtom-houſe, and the famous Univerſity founded by Chriſtiern, who obtained in 1474. or 78. of Pope Sixtus IVth. the ſame Privileges with that of Bologne in Italy. In 1658. Charles Guſtavus, King of Sweden, came out of the Country of Holſtein, into the Iſle of Funen, marching his Army upon the Ice, and forced the King of Denmark to a very diſadvantageous Peace. The next Year after he laid Siege to Coppenhagen; but was forced to raiſe it, which ſhews that it's not only a Town of Trade, but alſo a well-fortified Place. Bertius. Cluvier.

COPPOLA (Francis) Count of Sarno, deſcended of a Noble and Ancient Family of Naples. His Friends left him but very little; which he improved to that degree by his Traffick at Sea, that he became rich enough to purchaſe the County of Sarno. His great Reputation made him be taken Notice of by Ferdinand I. King of Naples, who joining with him in his Traffick, made him come to Court, and raiſed him to the higheſt Dignities in the Kingdom. But Coppola, abuſing his Authority, and led with an unlimited Ambition, formed a pernicious Deſign againſt the King's Perſon, and raiſed a Civil War, that was occaſion of his Ruine; for being convicted of the Conſpiracy, he was condemned by the Barons to be beheaded, which was executed the 15th of May, 1487. Du Puy Hiſt. de Favorits.

COPRANITZ, or CAPRONCEA, CAPRONITZA, a Town of Sclavonia, with a good Fortreſs, belonging to the Houſe of Auſtria, two Leagues from the Drave, four or five from Waradin, and as many from Caniſa, and is now one of the Emperor's Bulwarks againſt the Turks Incurſions.

COPROGLI, or CUPERLI, (Bacha Mahomet) great Viſier during Mahomet the Fourth's Minority. His Father's Name was Coprogli. He was a Sea-man's Son, or as others ſay, Son to a French Gentleman, who being ſet upon by Pirates, was killed, and the Son carried Slave to Cyprus, where the Governor taking notice of his ſupple Nature and Inclination for Arms, brought him up with great Care, and carried him along with him to the Wars of Perſia, where he ſignalized his Courage, which made the Emperor Achmet give him a Timar, which is a kind of Fief, or Commandery, and a very conſiderable Place in the Army, wherein his Son Mahomet Coprogli ſucceeded him, notwithſtanding his Youth and the Turkiſh Cuſtom that was againſt it. His Merit and good Mien ſupported advantageouſly the Reputation his Valour had acquired him in the War. So having gained the particular Eſteem and Friendſhip of Uglan-Kiſſar-Agaſi, Chief of the Eunuchs of the Seraglio, he obtained by his means the Government of Baruth, and afterwards that of Aleppo. But the Grand-Viſier Achmet accuſed him of many Crimes, and impriſon'd him with a Deſign to put him to Death. But it fell out quite contrary; for this Miniſter was killed, and the Emperor Ibrahim ſtrangled ſoon after, in 1648. And then the young Mahomet was put upon the Throne under the Guardianſhip of his Mother Sultana Zaime, who was declared Regent during his Minority. This Princes knowing Coprogli's Merit, ſet him at liberty, and made him Grand Viſier in 1649. He applied himſelf carefully to eſtabliſh his Greatneſs; was very Complaiſant to the Great ones, Mild to the meaner ſort, and adminiſter'd Juſtice impartially without Prejudice or Intereſt, to all Parties concerned. Having thus acquired great Authority, he re-eſtabliſh'd ſeveral good Laws, and laboured very much for the Benefit of the State and Glory of his Prince; who during his very Minority, notwithſtanding his Civil Wars, conquer'd Part of Tranſilvania. The Viſier died at Adrianople in 1663. much bemoaned by the Sultan and People, which is very extraordinary in the Ottoman Empire, where ſuch Miniſters ſcarcely die of a natural Death.

COPROGLI (Achmet) Son of Mahomet, and ſucceeded him in his Poſt at 28 Years of Age: He took New-hauſel in Hungary in 1663. loſt the Battel at St. Godard the Year after, which Misfortune he recover'd at the taking of Candy in 1669. The greateſt part of his Adminiſtration may be ſeen in the ſecond Tome of the Hiſtory of Venice, by Baptiſta Nani.

COQ, the Name of an Order of Knights inſtituted about 1214. by a Dauphin in Favour of Claudius Polier, a Gentleman of Languedoc, who in a Battel againſt the Engliſh, wherein Lewis XIth. Count of Tolouſe, commanded under the Reign of Philip III. called the Bald, reſcued the Dauphine from great Danger; who as an acknowledgment of this Obligation, inſtituted the Order of Cock, becauſe that Gentleman had one for his Coat of Arms.

CORACOTA, a famous Robber of Spain, who hearing that the Emperor Auguſtus had proffered 10000 Crowns to any that ſhould take him, preſented himſelf of his own accord before that Prince, who thereupon not only forgave him, but alſo gave him great preſents.

CORAN, or CORITANUS (Ambroſe) General of the Auguſtinian Monks, living at the end of the fifteenth Century. He wrote the Life of St. Auſtin. A Chronicle of his own Order, where he mentions the eminent Writers in it: A Panegyrick upon Rome, &c. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 3. Miræus in Auct. de Script. Eccl. &c.

CORAS (John of) Counſellor of the Parliament of Tolouſe, and Chancellor of Navarre, was one of the Ableſt Lawyers of the XVIth. Age. He was murthered at Tolouſe on St. Bartholomew's day, 1572. and his Body, with his Counſellor's Gown hung on a Tree in the Palace Court. This Man compoſed ſeveral excellent Works in Latin and French.

CORASAN, or CHORASAN, a Province of Perſia, towards Zagathai and Tartary, comprehends the Province Arian of the Ancients, and ſome part of the Country of the Parthians and Baſtrians. The Country is good enough, waſhed with many Rivers, and has a great many Manufactures of Tapiſtry, Silks, &c. There are alſo good Towns, as Herat, Niſabur, Sarachas, Turſchie, Meruerud, &c.

CORASMINS, People of Perſia, deſcended of the ancient Parthians, who being overcome by the Tartars in 1244. were forced to go for Refuge to the other ſide of Tigris and Euphrates, where they addreſſed themſelves to the Soldan of Egypt, who gave them leave to fall into Palæſtina, whereof they could ſoon make themſelves Maſters, becauſe moſt of the Places were without Defence, whereupon they ſpread themſelves all over the Country, plundering and burning all Places without meeting any reſiſtance; and after cutting 6000 Chriſtians in pieces that fled out of Jeruſalem, on the Noiſe of their approach, they entred that City, and put all to the Sword, even thoſe that had ran for ſhelter to the Altars of the Holy Sepulchre. Some time after the Chriſtians joining with the three Maſters of the military Orders of Jeruſalem, to beat theſe out of the Land, came to a Battle which held two whole days, wherein the Infidels overcame through their unequal Numbers. So that the Chriſtians were moſt of them either killed on the Place, or taken Priſoners. The great Maſters of the Templars and Teutonick Knights were killed, and the great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem taken, and led Priſoner with Gautier of Brienne, to Babylon. The Coraſmins, whom the Soldan made uſe of to revenge himſelf of the Chriſtians, did not meet with the reception they expected; for he drove them out of his Dominions, and they all periſhed miſerably, by the hands of the very Saracens themſelves, who abhorred them as the worſt of Men. Joinville Maimbourgh Hiſt. de Croiſades.

CORAX, or the Lake of Coras, a Lake in Tartary, in the Province of Mongul. Modern Authors ſpeak differently of it, becauſe the Country is not yet well diſcovered.

CORAX, a great Orator, thought to be the firſt inventor of Rhetorick, becauſe he was the firſt who gave Rules of that Art. Tiſias his Diſciple rendred himſelf alſo very famous by his Eloquence. They both lived about 330. of the Foundation of Rome, and 424 years before the Chriſtian Æra. Both taught in Sicily after King Hieron's death. The laſt was ſent along with Gorgias, Ambaſſador to Athens. Cicero ſpeaks of them as well as Ariſtotle.

CORBAN, a Ceremony the Mahometans perform at the Foot of the Mountain Arafat in Arabia near Meccha, in killing a great number of Sheep. Corban ſignifies an Oblation or Offering.

CORBIE, a Town of France in Picardy, with Title of County. It lies in Amiennois, upon the River Somme, where it receives the River of Ancre, four Leagues above Amiens, and ſeven or eight below Peronne. Latin Authors call it Corbeia. It's a place of ſtrength that was ſurprized in 1636. by the Spaniards, who were ſoon driven thence again. It's ſaid, that being cloſely preſſed here by the King's Army, they all cryed to Prince Thomas thus, Fiat miſericordia tua, Domine, ſuper nos, quemadmodum ſperavimus in te. Here is a famous Abby that was founded in 662. by St. Bathilde, Queen of France, and Clotaire III. her Son. Haimo, Hinckmar, &c.

CORBIE, or Corwei, Lat. Corbeia, a little Town of Weſtphalia in Germany, ſituate upon the Weſer, in the Dioceſs of Paderborne, whence it is diſtant but eight or nine Leagues. And here is alſo a famous Abby founded by the Emperor Lewis the Debonair, in 822. This is called Corbeia nova, to diſtinguiſh it from that of Picardy, called Corbeia vetus.

CORBIEL, Lat. Corbelium, and Joſedum, a Town of France, in the Country of Heurepoix and Government of the Iſle of France, with the Title of an Earldom, and Provoſtſhip, ſituate upon the Seine, where it receives Juine, called the River of Eſtampes, ſix Leagues above Paris, and three or four below Metun. It has had its particular Counts from the Xth or XIth Century. Du Cheſne. Ant. des Villes.

CORBULO, (Domitius) a Roman General in great eſteem under the Reigns of Claudius and Nero. He went againſt the Cauſſes, who plundered the Low Countries in Claudius his days, and was ſo rigorous an Obſerver of Military Diſcipline, that he condemned two Soldiers to death, becauſe the one wanted his Sword, and the other his Dagger, tho' both were at work in the Retrenchments. Frieſland in the Low Countries was forced to ſend him Hoſtages, and to content it ſelf with the Land he aſſigned its Inhabitants. He alſo preſcribed Laws, and named them Magiſtrates, and put in a good Garriſon, the better to keep them in Subjection. The Emperor, unwilling he ſhould go upon any new undertaking, obliged him to Croſs the Rhine, and withdraw his Garriſons. It's ſaid he received this Order as he was pitching his Camp in the Enemies Country; and without further deliberation, gave Orders to ſound a Retreat, ſaying nothing elſe but that Old Officers were happy. Before he was recalled, to keep his Soldiers out of Idleneſs, he made them cut a Chanel five or ſix Leagues long between the Meuſe and the Rhine, againſt the Inundation of the Ocean. This Channel is what is ſtill to be ſeen between Wiick and Crompen, which the Latins call Foſſa Corbulonis. However the Learned are not perfectly agreed which is Corbulo's Canal, tho' 'tis probable 'tis the Canal of Leck: The Reader may conſult, if he pleaſes, Th. Ryckius upon Tacit. Annal. II. cap. XX. This Corbulo fought the Parthians, and was Proconſul of Armenia, in the Reign of Nero, by whom he was afterwards ordered to Court, and ſeeing himſelf thus ill uſed, he killed himſelf at Cenchea, a Port of Corinth. Tacit. l. 3. &c. Annal & 3d. Hiſt. Plin. l. 2. cap. 70. &c. Dio L. 60. &c.

CORCHUT, Brother to Selim I. of that name, Emperor of the Turks, by whoſe Orders he was ſtrangled; he was a witty and eloquent Man, as he made appear at the very time he was to be put to death; for the Executioners being ready to ſtrangle him according to their Orders; he begged a little reſpit, and employ'd the time they allowed him in writing an invective againſt the Emperor Selim, to reproach him with his cruelty. Paul. Jov.

CORCK, a County, City and Haven in Munſter in Ireland, The City is a Biſhop's-ſee under the Archbiſhop of Caſhel, from which it lies 35 miles S. and about 10 from Kingſale to the N. There are two Biſhopricks united to it for ever. The Wall and Caſtle of this City are conſiderably ſtrong, but the neighbouring Hills command it. The Earl of Marlborough took it after a ſhort Siege, in September 1690. the Garriſon remaining Priſoners of War. The Duke of Grafton was killed before it.

CORDALLERAS, Mountains of America Meridionalis to the Eaſt of the Kingdom of Chili, reaching from Peru to the Streights of Magellan; they are about 1000 Leagues wide, and are known under divers Names, as, Cordellera de los Andes, Sierra Nevada, &c. It's very cold upon theſe Mountains, and there are ſome Winds ſo piercing and ſubtle, that they kill, and ſo frieze and harden Bodies that they do not corrupt at all. Almagre, the firſt of the Caſtilians, who paſſed from Peru to Chili, was forced to leave ſome of his company behind, whom he found ſtanding at his return, ſome holding their Bridles in their hands, the Horſes being as ſtiff and upright as themſelves. If it were not for this Wind, which yet is not very violent, the Mountains are fertile enough, eſpecially at the bottoms, where there are ſeveral conſiderable Mines. Garcilaſſo de la Vega, &c.

CORDELIERS, a Name given to the Minorite Friars, of the Order of St. Francis, ſo called from a Rope they gird themſelves withal; this Order was the firſt which renounced the having any Property in Goods or Eſtates. See Franciſcans.

CORDERIUS, known by the Name of Balthazar Corderius, a Jeſuit, born at Antwerp 1592. He underſtood the Languages very well, and particularly the Greek, as appears by his Tranſlation of Dionyſius Areopagita, which he printed in two Volumes in Folio, 1634. This Jeſuit Publiſhed, *Catena 65 Græcorum Patrum in S.Lucam. Catena Græcorum Patrum in Joannem. Joannis Philopona in Cap.*1. *Geneſ. De Mundi Creatione, Lib. IV. CORDOUE, upon Guadalquivir, a Town of Spain in Andaluſia, which formerly had the Title of a Kingdom, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Toledo. Latin Authors call it Corduba. It has been very famous under the Romans and Moors, which laſt built a Moſque, the next beſt to that of Meccha, and is now the great Church. Cordoue is famous for the Birth of the two Seneca's, the Rhetorician and the Philoſopher, for the Poet Lucan, the great Commander Gonzales, and ſeveral other great Men. Averrhoes and Avicenna have alſo taught here. Cordoue is ſituate in a Plain between Andujar and Seville, which are all upon Guadalquivir. The Epiſcopal Church, which was the Moſque ſpoken of, is ſupported by a great number of Marble Pillars. Its form is ſquare, with ſeveral Chapels about it, and a new one in the middle very neatly built; the Jeſuits ſumptuous Church, the King's Palace called El Palatio del Rey, and the great Square called La Placa Major, with the fine Houſes ſupported upon the Portique, are very curious. This Town has had ſeveral famous Prelates, amongſt others, Hoſius, who preſided at the Council of Nice, and afterwards at the Council of Sardica, held in 348. and has been under Mooriſh Kings for a long time, at leaſt two Ages: Almanſor, the powerfulleſt of theſe Princes, was defeated in 998. and died in 1002. his Son reigned but ſix years, after whom the Chriſtians ſettled themſelves by degrees, and expelled the Saracens.

CORDOVEN, or the Tower of Cordovan, a famous Lighthouſe of France, built upon a Rock at the Mouth of the Garonne, fifteen Leagues from Bourdeaux. The place was called by the Workman's Name that built it in an Iſland, ſince all ſwallowed by the Sea, excepting this Rock that this Tower is built on. Here is a light ſet out every Night to guide the Veſſels that come in and go out, which makes the Navigation very convenient. It was falling into decay, but Lewis the XIVth has quite repair'd it, in 1665. and aſſign'd a Fund to keep it always in that condition. Baudrand.

CORDUS (Cremutius) a Latin Hiſtorian, compos'd the Hiſtory of the Civil Wars, wherein he ran ſo much upon Brutus and Caſſius's praiſe, that Auguſtus put him to death.

CORDUS, commonly called Ericius Cordus, a Poet and Phyſician of Germany, he was Contemporary with Eraſmus, and eſteem'd by him; there is a Collection of his Poetry extant. He wrote likewiſe Botanologicum.ſive Colloquium de Herbis, Judicium de Herbis, De abuſu Horoſcopiæ, &c. Juſtus in Chron. Medic. Melchior Adam, in Vit. Germ. Medic. &c. There was another Cordus Valerius, the Son of this Ericius, much eſteem'd for his Writings, and Skill in his Profeſſion, which was Phyſick. He wrote Annotati- ones in Dioſcoridem, De Medica materia, Lib. 5. Diſpenſatorium Pharmacorum quæ in uſu ſunt. Hiſtoria Stirpium, Lib. IV. Sylva Rerum Foſſilium in Germania Plurimarum, Metallorum, Lapidum, &c. Juſtus in Chron. Medic. Vander Linden de Script. Medic.

COREH or KORAH, a Levite, Son of Iſar, who joind with Dathan, Abiram, and Hon. to have ſhare in the Prieſthood of the Jews. See Numb. xvi. his Diſaſter.

CORé, Daughter of Ceres, called ſo from the Greek word κόρος, which ſignifies ſatiety or fulneſs, becauſe Ceres in producing the Fruits of the Earth, nouriſhes. There was a Feaſt held for this Virgin that was called Corée too, from her Name, as Pindar's Scholiaſt tells us.

CORéE, or COREA, a Peninſula of China, to the Eaſt of Leaotung, and Xantung, whence it's ſeparated by the Gulf of Cang. Some ſay it's an Iſland, and that they have gone round it, but they miſtook the great Iſland Fungma, which is to the South of Corée, for Corée it ſelf; for Corée joins towards the North to the Kingdom of Nieuche in Tartary. The Chineſe do not call it Corea, but Chaoſien. We had the other name from the Japonians. All this Country is under a Tributary King to the Emperor of China. All the Peninſula is divided into eight Provinces; that which lies in the middle is called Kinki, where the famous Town Pingjang, the King's ordinary Reſidence is; beſides which, there are ſeveral Towns and Cities very well peopled, whoſe Inhabitants have the ſame Cuſtoms and Religion the Chineſe have, for they keep their dead Bodies in fine Coffins for three Years together, during which time they render it as much reſpect and civility, as if he that it belonged to were ſtill living, and at the end of the three years they bury them. The Land is very fruitful in Wheat and Rice, whereof ſome grows in Water, as in Japan, and ſome in dry Soil, as Wheat; but this Rice is far better than the other. They alſo have Paper of different ſorts, with ſeveral rich Mines of Gold and Silver in their Mountains, and abundance of fine Pearls in the neighbouring Sea. Martin Martini in Thevenot's Collection, Vol. 3d.

CORESUS, a Prieſt of Bacchus, in the Town of Calydon in Achaia, a Province of Greece, is famous in Hiſtory for his paſſionate Love for Callirrhoe; but being refus'd this Virgin in marriage, he ſollicited the God he ſerved for revenge, who thereupon puniſhed the Inhabitants of that place with a kind of ſickneſs that made them as it were mad and drunk. The Oracle being conſulted for the cauſe of this Diſtemper, it returned anſwer, That there was no other way to ſatisfy the irritated Deity, but to order Coreſus to Sacrifice Callirrhoe, or any elſe that would ſuffer for her; when ſhe was ready to receive the fatal ſtroke, Coreſus kill'd himſelf for her, which ſight ſtruck her ſo deep that ſhe alſo kill'd her ſelf on the Banks of a neighbouring Fountain, which has ſince that time retained her Name. Pauſan in Achaïcis.

CORF-CASTLE, an ancient Borough in Purbeck-Iſland, in Dorſetſhire, ſituate between two Hills, upon one of which ſtandeth the Caſtle, is governed by a Mayor, and is 103 m. from London.

CORFOU, an Iſland of the Ionian-Sea, towards the Coaſts of Epirus, a Province of Southern Turky in Europe, and at the mouth of the Gulf of Venice. Ancient Authors called it Corcyra, and Phæacia; Climacus calls it Drepano, which ſignifies a Scyth, becauſe it repreſents that figure. It has two principal Capes or Promontories, one towards the North, called Capo Bianco, or White Cape; and the other towards the South-Eaſt, called De Leuchin, and by ſome, Capo Bianco di Levant, that is, White Cape of the Eaſt. This Iſland is divided into Four parts, to which the Venetians give the name of Baglia or Reggimento, that is, a Government: the four are Di Mezo, Di Leros, Givre or Agiru, and Leuchin. The Air is very good, and the Land, all over the Country, very Fruitful, with a great many Citron and Orange-trees that bear very excellent Fruit. Their Wine alſo is very delicious. Beſides theſe there is Honey, Wax and Oyl in abundance. And it was here that the famous Gardens of King Alcinous were. The Territory of Leuchin was formerly very conſiderable, for the ancient Epiſcopal Town Gardichi which is at two Leagues diſtance from the Eaſtern-ſea, there are now about 25 villages in this Province, and about 10000 Souls; Potami is the biggeſt, and might well paſs for a Borough. Its Inhabitants are the richeſt and the moſt poliſhed of all the reſt; and there is a deep Chanel to carry Ships thence to the Sea. Agiru or Givre contains twenty Towns, where they count 8000 Inhabitants. The Country of Mezo, or the Midland, is the beſt peopled; for beſides Corfou, the Capital of the Iſland, there are 30 Villages, where there might be 25000 perſons. Leros has 25 Villages, and 8000 Inhabitants, Caſſiope, now called Caſſope, is the Capital. Though the Venetians have fortified many Ports and Caſtles in this Iſland, yet there are none that equal the Fortifications of the Town of Corfou, for it lies between two Fortreſſes, the Old and New; the New is to the Weſt of the Town, upon the Avenue that is towards the Land, The Old, at the entrance of the Port, and is furniſhed with all neceſſaries for a good Defence, as the Port is with good and ſafe Anchorage. Here is an Arch-biſhop's-ſee of the Latin Rite, whoſe Cathedral is very magnificent. The Greeks, who are very numerous, have a Vicar General, whom they call Proto-papa. Corfou was formerly under the Kings of Naples, but the troubles of that Kingdom, gave the Inhabitants occaſion to withdraw from their Yoke, and ſubmit to the Republick of Venice, in 1386. Father Giulio Vanello, of the Franciſcans Order, contributed much to this change, both by his Advice and Actions; for it was he that gave Miani, Commander of the Gulf, poſſeſſion of the Town in St. Francis's Church, then conſecrated under the name of St. Angelo; it was there the Venetian Lord received the Keys for the Republick, and in memory of this, all they that repreſent the State of Venice come to this Church, accompany'd with the Clergy, every Year on the 20th of May; and after the Proto-papa has made a Speech upon the Subject, the chief Commanders preſent the Order with two Ducats for the Wax or Candles of the Church, as an acknowledgment of the firſt Contract. The Venetians held the Iſle of Corfou upon no other Title than this, until Ladiſlaus, King of Naples made over all his right of it to them in 1401, for 30000 Ducats. In late Ages, the Power of the Turks growing very dangerous and formidable, the Venetians put themſelves to extraordinary Expences, to make this place impregnable, as the Bulwark of their State, and that hinders the Enemy from coming into the Gulf, for which reaſon Corfou is now juſtly called, The Port of the Gulf, and the Barriere of Italy. The Republick ſends ſix Noble-men thither, whoſe Government holds but two years: The firſt has Title of Baily, the ſecond of Proveditor and Captain, the third and fourth of Counſellors, the fifth of Great Captain, or Governour of the New Cittadel; and the ſixth, of Caſtelan, or Governour of the Caſtle de la Campana in the old Town. Twenty five thouſand Turks landed in this Iſland towards Campana, ſent by Solyman II. under the Command of the famous Barbaroſſa, whereupon the Republick ſent an extraordinary Ambaſſador, to repreſent to the Pope, and by his means to the Emperor, of what Conſequence this place was for the preſervation of the Kingdom of Naples, and of all Italy; but before any Succours came, they themſelves forced Barbaroſſa to make a ſhameful Retreat. P. Coronelli Deſcr. Morea.

CORI, formerly Armaſtis and Armachia, a Town of Aſia, and one of the chiefeſt of Gorgia. It's Capital of the Country called Bacatralu, which was the Iberia of the Ancients. Cori is ſide-ways of the Lake Exechia towards the Eaſt.

CORI or KORIN, Lat. Corinium, a Borough in Dalmatia, which was formerly a very conſiderable Town, as Pliny and Ptolemy have obſerved. Now it belongs to the Turks, and lies on a Mountain five or ſix Miles from Novigorod, according to Lucio, who has given a very exact Deſcription of this Country.

CORIA, which Latin Authors call differently Cauria, Caurium, and Caurita, according to Cluſius, is a Town of Spain in Old Caſtile, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Compoſtella, that formerly depended on Merida. It lies upon the River Alagon, ſix or ſeven Leagues above the place where it joins the Tagus, and four or five Leagues from the Frontiers of Portugal.

CORINNA, a certain Lady much addicted to Poetry, learned of a famous Lady of Greece, called Myrtis, that was very Succeſsful in ſuch Performances. Authors do not agree about Corinna's Birth-place, but it's certain, Greece had a Lady of the name that was alſo called the Lyrick Muſe. Some add, that ſhe carried the Prize four or five ſeveral times from Pindar, but they will have her beauty to have contributed much to that advantage; beſides, as Pauſanias obſerves, Pindar's Dorick Language was not ſo well underſtood as Corinna's Dialect. She lived A. R. 278. Plutarch, Pauſan.

CORINTH or CORNATHO, as it's now called, a Town of Greece, in Morea, ſituate near the Iſthmus, that is, the narrow neck of Land that joins the Morea to Greece, between the Gulph of Lepanto, and that of Engia. Corinth has formerly been very powerful, and is thought to have been firſt built by Siſyphus, a Son of Æolus, about A.M. 2616. and then it was called Corcyra, and Epyrus, until being demoliſhed, and then re-peopled again by one Corinthus, it took the name of this ſecond Founder. This place was alſo called Heliopolis, or the Town of the Sun, and was conſiderable for its Cittadel called Acro-Corinthe, built upon a very high Mountain, as alſo for the wealth of the Inhabitants, and for the Celebration of the Iſthmique Plays. The Corinthians eſtabliſhed divers Colonies, and built the Town of Corcyra, after Corfou, in the Iſland of this name, and were deeply engaged in moſt of the Græcian Wars. Leocrates, General of the Athenians, defeated them in the 295th year of Rome. In 315. the War of Corinth was, as it were, the Præludium of that of Peloponneſus, ſo famous in the Greek Hiſtory. In 511. Aratus, Commander of the Achaians, ſurprized the Cittadel, and forced the Garriſon away, that Antigonus Gonatas, King of Macedonia, had left in it. This Town ſhar'd alſo in the Misfortunes of Greece, under the Reigns of Philip of Macedon, and his Son Alexander. Before this, Siſyphus, and his Deſcendants were Kings of Corinth about 317 years, until the Heraclides, deſcended of Hercules, becoming Maſters of Peloponneſus under the Conduct of Temenus, Cteſephontes and Ariſtodemus, about 80 years after the taking of Troy; Alethes beat Dorides and Hiantidas out, and ſettled in their place, A.M. 2951. He Reigned 35 years, and was ſucceeded by Ixion. There were twelve Kings of this Family, during 324 years, that it reigned until Automenes, who Reign'd but a year; and being dead or depoſed about A. M. 3275. two or three years before the firſt Olympiad, they ſubſtituted a yearly Magiſtrate in his place, and called him Pritanes; but about the 96th of Rome, Cypſelus and his Son Periander begun a new kind of Tyranny over the Corinthians, and held it, one 30, and the other 44 years. Corinth has produced excellent Work-men, eſpecially Painters, Architects and Carvers, but was utterly deſtroyed by the Romans under Lucius Mummius, who ſubdued all Achaia, and got himſelf the Title of Achaicus, the 607th year of Rome. It cannot well be imagined what wealth was ſpoiled and conſumed by Fire at the taking of Corinth. It is enough to obſerve, that the famous Metal called the Braſs of Corinth, and ſo much eſteem'd, was but the remains of that great Conflagration. Julius Cæſar rebuilt and peopled it anew. St. Paul preached and liv'd a year and half here; and afterwards writ the two Letters we have of his to the Corinthians; ſo that Corinth became ſomewhat conſiderable. It belonged for ſome time to the Venetians, but was taken by Mahomet II. in 1418. and was again re-taken by the Venetians, in 1687. upon the Victory which they gain'd near Patras; the manner was thus, the Seraſquier having loſt the Battle, retired with the remainder of his Army to Corinth, but the Generaliſſimo Moroſini purſued him with his Fleet, Re-inforced with 14 Gallies, taken under the Caſtles of Lepanto: In the mean time Count Coningsmark marched thither by Land; The Serasquier deſpairing of making any long Defence, ſet fire to the Magazenes, and principal Parts of the Town, and flying towards the Mountains of Thebes, quitted Corinth, and all the Morea; upon this, the Venetians immediately quenched the fire, and made themſelves Maſters of the Town and Cittadel. Relation of the Second of September, 1687.

CORINTH, another Town; for Apollodore ſays, There were three of that Name, one in Theſſaly, another in Epirus, and the third in Elide.

CORIOLANUS (Caius Marcius) a famous Commander amongſt the Romans, was very ſerviceable to his Country in the eſtabliſhment of the Common-wealth. In 261. of Rome he took Corioli, a Town of the Volſci, whence he had the name of Coriolanus. It's ſaid, That when Poſthumius gave him leave to chooſe what Recompence he liked beſt for his good Services, he contented himſelf with a good Horſe, and leave to ſet his Hoſt at Liberty, who had formerly treated him very civilly, which was always looked upon as a rare example of Courage and Piety; ſome time after, about the 265. of Rome, Coriolanus concern'd he could not obtain the Conſulate which he ſued for, did not ſhare the Corn that was brought out of Sicily equally amongſt the People: Others ſay, and the reaſon is likelier too, That his deſign was to oblige the People to Till and look after their Ground, that ſo they might not be at leiſure to foment diviſions in the City; yet for all this he was baniſhed out of Rome, by the Tribune Decius, upon the Peoples Accuſation; whereupon he went to the Volſci, and perſwaded them to take Arms againſt the Romans, under their General Actius or Aufidius Tullius, and incamped within four Miles of Rome, would not liſten to the Peace the Romans begg'd by their Heralds, until his Wife Veturia, and Mother Volumnia, followed by all the Roman Matrons all in Tears, forced him to a Compliance: But ſome time after, about 264 or 265 of Rome, the Volſci put him to death, as a Traitor that had made them quit their Conqueſt, whereupon the Roman Ladies went all into Mourning, and in the ſame place that his Blood was ſpill'd, there was a Temple conſecrated to Feminine Fortune. Plutarch. Tit. Liv. Florus. Dion. Halicarn.

CORIUS, or CORIO (Bernardin) born at Milan towards the End of the XVth Century. He wrote the Hiſtory of his own Country, with a great deal of Exactneſs as to matter of Fact, though in ill Italian. Paulus Jovius in Elog. Doct. Voſſius de de Hiſt. Lat. &c.

CORLIN, a Town of Germany in Pomerania, that has a pretty good Fortreſs, ſituated upon the little River of Perſant towards Corlin and Colberg. It formerly belong'd to the Biſhop of Camin, but was given up to the Elector of Brandenburg by the Peace of Weſtphalia in 1648.

CORNARO-PISCOPIA (Lucretia Helena) of the famous Family of Cornaro of Venice, Daughter of John Baptiſt Cornaro, Procurator of St. Mark, one of the higheſt Poſts next the Doge. Her great Learning and Skill in moſt Languages, Latin, Greek, Hebrew, &c. made them ready to give her a place amongſt the Doctors of Divinity in the Univerſity of Padua, had not Cardinal Barberigo, Biſhop of the Town, oppoſed it upon good Reaſons, and made her be ſatisſyed with a Doctor of Philoſophy's Cap, which ſhe received publickly in a numerous Aſſembly of Learned and Noble Men, that flock'd from all parts to ſee ſo uncommon a Ceremony in the Cathedral Church, for the Common Hall could not contain the great Number of People. She was received a la Nobiliſta, that is, without anſwering Arguments, but by explicating two Paſſages of Ariſtotle in two different places, as the Book opened. This was done in 1678. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

CORNARO (Catharine) Queen of Cyprus, came to Venice upon her Brother George Cornaro's Requeſt, where ſhe was received with all the Magnificence imaginable. The Doge and Senators led her in great Pomp in the Bucentaure to the Palace of Eſt, which was made ready for her Reception, an Honour they never ſhewed any Woman before her. After this ſhe gave her Intereſt in the Kingdom of Cyprus to the Venetians. Bembo.

CORNEILLE (Peter) a famous Poet of the French Academy, born at Roan the 6th of June 1606, where he was Attorney at the Marble Table, without acquainting the Publick with, or knowing himſelf that he was Maſter of that extraordinary Talent that rais'd the French Theatre to the higheſt pitch it ever came to; it was a piece of Galantry, as ſome call it, that gave occaſion to his firſt Eſſay, entitled Melite; the good reception this met with encouraged him to continue that Occupation that has ſince render'd him ſo well known; yet People that could not equal his Productions envied his Fame, amongſt the Reſt, the Members of the French Academy it ſelf, as is apparent in their Book entitled, Their Sentiments upon his Tragi-Comedy of Cid; but his other Works ſoon put him above their Malice; ſo that he was receiv'd in the French Academy in 1647. and was Dean thereof when he died in 1684. at the Age of 78 Years.

CORNELIA, a Noble Roman Lady, Wife of Sempronius Gracchus, who was Conſul in 577. of Rome, Daughter of Scipio Africanus, and Mother of the Gracchi. She writ ſeveral learned Epiſtles much commended by Cicero and Quintilian. Valerius Maximus ſays, That when a certain Lady ſhewed Cornelia a great parcel of Jewels, ſhe ſhewed her Children as the only Treaſure ſhe eſteem'd, becauſe ſhe bred them up for the good of her Country, but it did not fall out ſo, for her Sons died unfortunately. Cic. in Brut. Valer. Maxim. l. 4.

CORNELIA, a Roman Lady, Daughter of Cinna, and Wife to Julius Cæſar, by whom he had Julia, Pompey's Wife. Cæſar, to ſhew the Love he bore this Woman, compos'd himſelf her Funeral Oration, and recalled her Brother Cinna from Baniſhment about 708. of Rome.

CORNELIANS, one of the Nobleſt Families amongſt the Romans, was divided into ſeveral Branches, whereof there were four Principal or Chief; as I. That of the Maluginians; II. That of the Scipio's; III. Of the Rufini; and IV. Of the Lentuli. The firſt has had Servius Cornelius Maluginenſis, who was Conſul with Q. Fabius Vibulanus in the 269. of Rome. Denys of Halicarnaſſus, Titus Livius and Caſſiodorus ſpeak of him. This left two Sons, whereof each made a Branch in the Family of the Maluginians. The Eldeſt, L. Cornelius Maluginenſis Coſſus, was Conſul in 295. with Q. Fabius Vibulanus, who had been one already with his Father; he commanded the Army againſt the Equi, which he quite undid by plundering their Camp. This had three Sons, the firſt had no Office, but was ſurnamed Marcus; the two Sons he left became very famous; for the eldeſt, P. Cornelius, was Dictator in 345. of Rome, and Military Tribune in 347. The other called Cn. Cornelius, was Conſul in 344. and Tribune of a Legion in 349. Their Uncle, third Son of L. Cornelius, was alſo Tribune of a Legion, but died without Iſſue. That of the ſecond Aulus Cornelius Maluginenſis Coſſus held longer, for he himſelf was Conſul in 326. General of the Horſe in 328. when Mamercus was Dictator, and after Tribune of the People. Aulus Cornelius, his Son, being Dictator in 369. defeated the Volſci, Latins and Hernici, and at his Return to Rome ſeiz'd Manlius that begun to be troubleſome. He left P. Cornelius, ſurnamed Arvina, who had no Office, and was Aulus Cornelius Coſſus Arvina's Father. This was General of the Horſe in 401. and 405. when Manlius Torquatus was Dictator, and was afterwards Conſul in 411. and commanded the Army againſt the Samnites. It was at this time that he engag'd his Army in a Valley commanded and poſſeſs'd on all ſides by the Enemy, but Decius brought it out of Danger, ſo that they defeated the Enemy in the Battel fought a little after. Cornelius was alſo Conſul in 420; and being Dictator in 431. he defeated the Samnites. He left P. Cornelius Coſſus Arvina, who was Conſul in 448. and in 466. The other Branch deſcended of Servius Cornelius, came of Marcus Cornelius Maluginenſis, one of the ten Sovereign Magiſtrates eſtabliſhed in 304. his Son M. Cornelius was Conſul in 318. with L. Papirius Craſſus. This had three Sons, M. Cornelius that was Cenſor, P. Cornelius that was Tribune of a Legion in 349. and in ſeveral other conſiderable Offices afterwards; and Aulus Cornelius Father of Cneius, that was Conſul in 345. with L. Furius Medullinus, and afterwards twice Tribune of a Legion. Servius Cornelius Maluginenſis, Son of Publius, was ſix times Tribune, and diſtinguiſh'd himſelf by his great Probity and Valour: M. Cornelius, his Brother, had the ſame Office in 384. and 86. and Servius Cornelius, his Son, was General of Horſe in 393. under the Dictator T. Quintius Panus the third time the Gauls invaded Italy. Theſe were the moſt conſiderable Men of the Family of the Cornelii, which have publiſhed ſeveral Laws during their Magiſtrature, as, Cornelia de Ambitu; Cornelia de Sicariis & Veneficis, &c. Dion. Halicarn. Liv. &c.

CORNELIUS, the Centurion, Captain of a foot Company, called Italicus, liv'd A.C. 40. ſee Acts ch. 10. and profited ſo much by St. Peter's Inſtructions, that he was choſen Biſhop of Cæſarea after Zacheus, according to the Roman Martyrology, upon the ſecond of February. Hieron. Baron.

CORNELIUS (Benignus) of Viterbo, a Mathematician that was in great Requeſt in the beginning of the ſixth Century. It was he that with three other Friends corrected Ptolemy's Geography about 1507.

CORNELIUS, Pope, Native of Rome, ſucceeded Fabian in 251. the Chair being vacant a Year and ſome Months before. His Election was troubled by Novatian, choſen by ſome Seditious Prelates at the Requeſt of Novatus a Prieſt of Africa, who was of the Cabal, and in the Schiſm of Feliciſſimus againſt St. Cyprian.

This Novatian added Hereſie to his other Crime of Schiſm: But Cornelius call'd Councils, writ to the Orthodox Prelates, and omitted nothing to ſuppreſs the Schiſm notwithſtanding the Perſecution of the Pagan Emperors, and the Obſtinacy of the Hereticks: But a hotter Perſecution being begun by Gallus and Voluſian, the Pope was ſent to a Place called Centum-cellæ, which Leander Alberti calls Ferrolle, and others Civita-Vecchia, but Gallus recalled him ſoon after, and ordered he ſhould be beheaded, becauſe he refuſed to ſacrifice to Idols. Hieron. de ſcript. Eccl. S. Cyprian. ep. 52, &c.

CORNELIUS GALLUS, that ſome think has been born at Frejus, was a Roman Knight and Poet, ſo much in the Emperor Auguſtus's Favour, that he made him Governor of Egypt; but being baniſhed for his Severity and Extortions,he kill'd himſelf out of Deſpair the 728th of Rome, and 43 of his Age. Voſſius de Poet. Lat.

CORNELIUS (Nepos) a Latin Hiſtorian that flouriſhed in Julius Cæſar's Reign, and liv'd according to St. Jerom to the 6th Year of Auguſtus's; that is, about 716 of Rome. Notwithſtanding Authors Diſputes, its certain he was born at Verona, or in its neighbourhood. Cicero and Atticus were both his Friends. It's paſt doubt that he has writ the Lives of the Greek Hiſtorians, ſince he himſelf makes mention of the Work in that of Dion ſpeaking of Philiſtus, and what he ſays in the Lives of Cato and Hannibal, ſhews, That he has alſo writ of the Roman Generals and Hiſtorians. He left other Works, but they are all loſt excepting the Lives of the moſt famous Generals of the Roman and Græcian Armies, which Æmilius Probus ſought to appropriate to himſelf, to gain Theodoſius's Favour; but this juggle was diſcovered afterwards, though many Authors have miſtaken the one for the other. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat.

CORNER (Cornerus Chriſtophorus) a German Proteſtant Miniſter of Fuges in Franconia, where he was born in 1518. He was choſen Profeſſor of Divinity at Franckfort, and afterwards became Miniſter, and had Care of the Churches of the Marche of Brandenburg. He died in 1592. leaving us ſeveral of his Works; as Commentaries upon the Pſalms, and upon the Epiſtles of St. Paul to the Romans and Gallatians. Melchior Adam in Vit. Germ. Theol.

CORNETO, Lat. Cornetum, a Town of Italy in the Patrimony of St. Peter, ſituate at the Mouth of La Marta, in the Tuſcan Sea, with a Biſhoprick that is joined to that of Monte-fiaſcone, becauſe the Air is ſo very dangerous.

CORNIFICIUS, a Latin Poet and Captain, lived in Auguſtus's Time, who had great Eſteem for him. It's paſt doubt that this Cornificius was that Critick of Virgil, of whom Donatus ſpeaks in Virgil's Life; but it's not ſo certain, that it's he to whom Cicero has writ ſome Letters, or he to whom Catullus makes his Complaint in his 31ſt Epigram. St. Jerom ſpeaks of the Poet Cornificius that was killed by his Soldiers when ridiculing their Fear; he term'd them Arm'd Rabits. There alſo have been Two Roman Conſuls of the Name. Macrob. Voſſius, &c.

CORNOAILLE, or QUIMPERCORENTIN, a Town of France in Low Bretany, with a Preſidial and Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Tours. It lies upon the Oder, two or Three Leagues from the Sea, between Balvet and Concarnam, that lie to the Eaſt of it, and Penmark to the Weſt. It's the Coriſopitum Curioſilitarum of Cæſar and Pliny, and is alſo called Cornubia and Cornugallia in ancient Charters; but now it generally goes by the Name of Quimpercorentin or Kempercorentin. Kemper was the Name of the Town, and Corentin was its firſt Biſhop, thought to have been ordained by St. Martin of Tours. The Town is of great Commerce and well built, the River Oder receives another ſmall River there, that runs round the Walls, ſo that the Place is as it were an Iſland. The Tide brings great Barks up to the Port, which is at the meeting of the two Rivers, where the Suburb is that is called the Duke's Land. This Suburb is very big, and is where the richeſt Merchants dwell. Near the Gate called Tourbie is a Tower of an extraordinary bigneſs, which has formerly ſerved as a Caſtle to Quimpercorentin. Du Cheſne Antiq. des Villes, &c.

CORNUTUS, a Stoick Philoſopher, born in Africa, liv'd in Claudius and Nero's Reign, which laſt put him to Death. Cornutus was the Poet Perſius's Maſter, is alſo put in the Number of Grammarians and Poets himſelf; and often cited by Aulus Gellius, Euſebius, Suidas, and by the Author of the Life of Perſius. Macrobius quotes Cornutus, who writ Commentaries upon Virgil; and beſides him, ſpeaks of another that was Contemporary and Competitor of Titus Livius; becauſe both reading their Hiſtories at a time, ſtrove who ſhould have moſt Auditors. Suidas ſays Cornutus had the greateſt Number; but adds, that thoſe of Titus Livius were the more ingenious. Cicero ſpeaks of one of this Name that was Prætor. Gellius. Macrob. &c.

CORNWALL, Lat. Cornubia, is the fartheſt County in the Weſt of England, ſurrounded on all ſides by the Sea, except Eaſtward, where the River Tamur parts it from Devonſhire. Called Cornwall, partly from its Form, partly from its Inhabitants, for ſhooting it ſelf into the Sea, in the Figure of a Horn, and inhabited by Strangers to the Saxons, which theſe called by the Name of Walles; it came from thence to take the Name of Cornwall. Its length from Eaſt to Weſt is at leaſt ſixty Miles, its breadth, where broadeſt, forty. The whole divided into nine Hundreds, wherein are twenty four Market-Towns, a hundred ſixty one Pariſhes. This County, with Devonſhire, was the Seat of the Danmonii in the Time of the Romans, a Province of the Kingdom of the Weſt Saxons in the Time of the Heptarchy; and now with Devonſhire makes up the Dioceſs of Exeter. The Air is here very pure, but ſo ſharp and piercing withal, that it's apter to preſerve than recover Health. The Spring is not here ſo early as in the Eaſtern parts, which makes the Harveſt ſomewhat later. The Soil for the moſt part is lifted up into many Hills, parted aſunder with narrow and ſhort Valleys, cruſted over with a ſhallow Earth, which towards the Sea is made incredibly fruitful, with a Sea-Weed called Orewood, and a rank ſort of Sea-Sand. But the principal Riches of this County conſiſts in its Tin-Mines, which yield the beſt Tin and the moſt in Chriſtendom. Theſe being neglected by the Engliſh Saxons, the Normans were the firſt that found the benefit of them, but eſpecially Richard Earl of Cornwall, Brother to Henry III. in whoſe Time the Tin-Mines in Spain being ſtopp'd by the Incurſions of the Moors, and thoſe in Germany not diſcovered until 1240. theſe in Cornwall ſupplied the Want in all parts of the World, whereby Richard grew ſo exceeding Rich, that he was counted the beſt Moneyed Man in his Time. He made certain Laws called Tin-Laws, afterwards confirmed by Earl Edward his Son, with ſeveral Privileges. And in the Reign of King Edward III. the Corporation of Tin-Workers was from one Body divided into four,and a Lord Warden of the Stanneries appointed their Judge. The Corniſh Diamonds ſet with a good Foil, may at firſt ſight deceive a good Lapidary. In the beginning of King Charles I. his Reign, a Maſs of Amber-greeſe, the greateſt and beſt quantity that this Age beheld, was found at low Water on this Coaſt. Pilchards are in this Sea from July to November. This County ſends no leſs than forty two Members to Parliament, beſides Knights of the Shire; and is dignified with the Title of a Dukedom appropriated to the Eldeſt Son of England, who by Birth is Duke of Cornwall.

CORNWALLIS (Sir John) deſcended of a very ancient and Worthy Family of that Name, which had for a long time eminently flouriſhed in the Counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, for his ſingular Courage and Valiant Actings under Thomas Duke of Norfolk, at the taking of Morlaix in France, in the Time of King Henry the VIIIth. had the Honour of Knighthood then conferred upon him, and ſoon after his return from thence was made Steward of the Houſhold to Prince Edward, his Son. Sir Thomas Cornwallis, Knight, being Sheriff of Norfolk, in the laſt Year of King Edward the Sixth's Reign raiſed conſiderable Forces againſt the Oppoſers of Queen Mary's Title, for which Aſſiſtance ſhe conſtituted him one of her Privy-Council, Treaſurer of Calais, and afterwards Comptroller of her Houſhold. Sir Frederick Cornwallis, a Deſcendant of this Family, having ſerved King Charles I. both in Court and Camp, and ſuffered the Loſs of his Eſtate, Impriſonment and Exile, for adhering to him, was by King Charles II. by Letters Patent bearing date the thirteenth Year of his Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Cornwallis of Eye in the County of Suffolk. He firſt married Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir John Aſhburnham of Aſhburnham, in the County of Suſſex, Knight, by whom he had three Sons, Charles, Frederick, and George, and one Daughter named Henrietta Maria. Secondly, Elizabeth, Daughter to Sir Henry Crofts, of Saxham, in the County of Suffolk, Knight, by whom he had Jane. Departing this Life in 1661. Charles his eldeſt Son ſucceeded; had Iſſue five Sons, Charles the preſent Lord, Frederick, William, Thomas, and George, and one Daughter named Henrietta Maria. Dugdale.

CORO, or VENEZUELA, a Town of Southern America, with a Biſhop's See ſuffragan of St. Domingo. This Town is in the Province of Venezuela, ſituate near the Sea, in a very fruitful Soil, and mild and pleaſant Air. It was called Venezuela, or little Venice, becauſe it was built between ſeveral ſmall Iſlands, and in a Lake, as the other. It was once quite ruined; but was ſince re-built, and now belongs to the Spaniards.

COROEBUS, Native of the Province of Elis, was the firſt that was Crowned at the Olympick Plays, having beat all the reſt at the Foot-Race. This was was An. Mun. 3278. 776 Years before the Birth of Chriſt. Athenæus, in his Diſcourſe of the Deipnoſophiſts, ſays, Corœbus was a Cook by his Trade. And there was another of the Name, that was Archon of Athens. Virgil ſpeaks of another that was killed at the Wars of Troy by Peneleus, though Caſſandra had foretold him the Misfortune.

COROMANDEL, or COROBANDER, a Country of the Peninſula on this Side the Ganges in the Kingdom of Narſinga or Biſnaguar; it lies along the Eaſtern Coaſts, towards the Fiſhery of the Iſle of Ceilan. Coromandel is ſo called from the abundance of Rice it produces. It has the beſt Ports of the Indies from Nagapatan to the South, and thence travelling towards the North to the River of Aremogan, as Maliapour or St. Thomas, Paliacates, Sadrapatan, Trangabar, Nagapatan, &c. This Country is divided into ſeveral Provinces, whereof the moſt conſiderable are Madure, Tanjaur and Gingy.

CORON, a Town of Morea to the South, and upon the Gulph of Coron. The Ancients called it Corona, becauſe that in digging the Foundation they found a Braſs Coronet, in Greek call'd Κορωνὶς. Bajazet II. Emperor of the Turks, took this Place from the Venetians in 1500. And Andrew Doria, General of Charles the Fifth's Fleet, re-took it in 1532. And by the Conditions of the League that this Emperor made with the Republick, it remained in his Hands. He put a Spaniſh Garriſon into it. But he quitted it in 1534. leſt it might obſtruct the Peace he was negotiating with the Turks. Since this time it remained in the Turks hands until the Venetians and their Allies under the Command of the Doge Moroſini took it by Aſſault the 11th of Auguſt, 1685. and put all to the Sword. It's one of the moſt conſiderable Places in all the Morea, lying in a Tongue of Land in form of an irregular Triangle, two of the Sides are towards the Land, and the third towards the Sea. The Suburb ſtretches towards the North. It has very good Walls with great Towers, which (though built after the old way of Fortification) yet by the Hardneſs of the Rock, and Solidneſs of the Work, are of great Defence. It has no Port, but the Gulph that bears the Name of one, is capable to contain a great Number of Veſſels. The Country produces all manner of Fruit and Grain in abundance, as well as Oils and Silks, wherewith ſeveral Ships are yearly laden thence. Strabo lib. 8. Chalcondylas. Bembo, &c. In 1685. General Moroſini beſieg'd Coron; and immediately upon the Siege, the Turks came down by Land upon them, and poſted themſelves within Piſtol-ſhot of their Lines, which they likewiſe attack'd, and took a Redoubt, but they were no ſooner enter'd but the Chriſtians charg'd 'em and beat 'em out, after a Fight of Three Hours; the Conquerors purſu'd their Advantage, killing about 400. and wounding as many. The Chriſtians had a rich Booty, took 17 Colours, and ſet about a hundred and thirty Turks Heads upon their Pikes, to intimidate the Garriſon. The Turks rally'd after their being routed, and having re-inforced their Troops, charg'd the Chriſtians again in their Trenches, but were Repuls'd, and the Viſier Halibaſſa, their General, was taken off with a Cannon-Ball: Moroſini was reſolv'd to make the Enemy quit their Poſt, which Deſign was effectually executed on the 7th of Auguſt; the Chriſtians made themſelves Maſters of the Infidels Camp, where they found rich Plunder, and all with the Loſs of a very few Men: Upon theſe Advantages, the Venetians prepar'd to aſſault the Garriſon, which was for ſome time vigorouſly defended by the beſieged; but at laſt they hung out the White Flag, to Capitulate, which was only to gain Time, and deceive the Beſiegers: But the Venetians ſoon reveng'd themſelves of this Perfidiouſneſs, forc'd the Enemy's Retrenchments, and put all the Garriſon to the Sword, after a Siege of nine and forty Days. There was a hundred and twenty eight pieces of Canon found in the Place, with great Store of Ammunition and Proviſions: The Sultan's Standard which was taken, was, by the Order of the Senate, plac'd in the Church of the Theatins at Venice. Peter Coronelli Deſcription of Morea.

CORONA (Leonardo) A Painter born at Murano in the State of Venice, 1461. He learned to paint at Venice under Roch de St. Silveſter, and having a ſtrong Genius for the Pencil, ſoon exceeded his Maſter. He apply'd himſelf moſtly to ſtudy Titian, whom he copied for a conſiderable time, and imitated him very well, both in his deſigning and colouring. Leonardo Corona had likewiſe a Manner of his own, which was very charming and delicate, and gain'd him great Reputation. The Palace of Venice being burnt, he was employ'd by that Republick, to paint the Hall of the great Council, where he finiſh'd ſeveral fine Pieces. He wrought likewiſe for private Perſons, Painted a great many Churches, and died in 1605. Rodolfi Vitte de Pittor. Venet.

CORONEA, a Town of the Ancient Bœotia, now Achaia, it was ſituated near Leuctra, which was towards the Eaſt of it, and the River Cephiſus to the North. Stephanus of Byzantium ſays, Coronéa was built by one Coronus, Son of Therſander. Tolmides, General of the Athenians, was killed before this Place the ſecond Year of the LXXXIIId. Olympiad, in 307. of Rome. After that Ageſilaus defeated the Bœotians near it in 359. But though in the third Age it was a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Athens, yet now it's but a pitiful Borough inhabited by ſome Turks.

CORONIS, Daughter of Phlegyas, beloved by Apollo, who underſtanding that ſhe favoured a young Man of Theſſaly, was ſo troubled, that to puniſh her infidelity, he ſhot her dead with an Arrow. But repenting him of the Fact, he laid her of a Child whom he had educated by Chiron, and was he that ſince was known by the Name of Æſculapius. The Crow that acquainted Apollo with Coronis's Crime, had its Feathers changed from white to black for her pains. Another of the ſame Name, Daughter to Coronéus King of Phocis, ſhunning the Importunities of Neptune was metamorphoſed into a Jackdaw by Minerva, to whom ſhe fled for ſhelter; but rendring her ſelf unworthy of this Favour by her indiſcreet Tattle, ſhe was baniſhed thence. Ovid. Metam. lib. 2.

COROPA, a Province of America Meridionalis, ſituate between the River of the Amazons, and the Lake or Sea of Parima. It lies a-long the River Coropatube, which runs into that of the Amazons, between the River of Gempape to the Eaſt, and that of Orixamine to the Weſt.

COROZAIM, or CORAZIM, a Town of Galilee, one of the Ten in Decapolis. It lies over againſt Capernaum, upon the Banks of Jordan, near the Sea of Tyberias.

CORREA (Thomas) born at Coimbra in Portugal, one of the moſt eminent Grammarians in the 16th Cent. He ſet up a School at Palermo, in Sicily, afterwards at Rome, and laſtly at Bononia, and gain'd himſelf a great Reputation by his Poetry, his Treatiſes of Rhetorick, and great Learning. He Publiſhed ſeveral very ingenious and learned Pieces; De Eloquentia, L. V. De Epigrammate. De Elegia. Explanationes in Lib. Horatii De Arte Poetica. Jan. Nicius Erythræus Pinac. Imag. Illuſt. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

CORREGGIO, (Antonio) ſo named from the place where he was born, in the Dukedom of Modena, Anno 1472. was a Man of ſuch admirable Natural Parts, that nothing but the unhappineſs of his Education hinder'd him from being the moſt excellent Painter in the World; yet nevertheleſs he was Maſter of a Pencil ſo wonderfully ſoft, beautiful and charming, that Julio Romano having ſeen a Leda painted by him, for Frederick, Duke of Modena, declar'd he thought it impoſſible, for any thing in Colours ever to exceed it. His chief Works are at Modena and Parma. Felibien. Vaſſari, &c.

CORREGGIO, a Town and Principality of Italy in Modena, with a good Caſtle. It formerly had its particular Lords, but now belongs to the Dukes of Modena.

CORREUS, General of the Bellovaci, a People of Old Gaul, who poſſeſſed the Country now called Beauvaiſis. He rendred himſelf famous by his Courage and vigorous Reſiſtance againſt Cæſar. He made uſe of a very ingenious Artifice to get out of a diſadvantageous Poſt that he happened in. For he ordered the Soldiers to reach the Bundles of Straw they reſted on when the Army was forced to ſtand in Arms, from one to another, until all was brought in the Front, where he put Fire to it towards night, which the Enemies Horſe durſt not approach. So he marched his Men off ſafe, and poſted them very advantagiouſly, thinking to draw the Romans into ſome Ambuſcade. But Cæſar foreſeeing his Deſign, ordered things ſo well, that the Skirmiſh fought in the Plains that Correus had made choice of, became a perfect Battle, wherein the Gauls were put to Flight, and forced to ſeparate for their ſafer retreat. But the Brave Correus reſolved to defend himſelf to the laſt Gaſp. After he had refuſed the Quarters profered him, he died generouſly with his Sword in his Hand. Hirtius Com. Lib. 8.

CORSE, Lat. Corſica, an Iſland of the Mediterranean, to the South of the Republick of Genoua, to which it belongs, and to the North of Sardinia. Its firſt Name was given it by the Greeks, Tercep[illegible], and afterwards Cyrne, upon the account of Cyrnus, ſaid to be the ſon of Hercules. It's ſaid, it took its name of Corſa of a certain Woman of Liguria, called Corſa Bubulca, who had the Courage to lead a Colony out of that Country hither. Its length from South to North is about thirty eight or forty Leagues, and its breadth ſeventeen, all the Circuit is about ninety; and is but an hours Sail from Sardinia. The Towns that were famous in former times were Aleria and Mariana; one ſaid to be founded by Sylla, the other by Marius; but now they have but inconſiderable remains of that ancient Splendor. The moſt conſiderable at preſent are Baſtia, Capital of the Iſland, Adiazzo, Nebio, Calvi, Corte, Bonifacio, &c. and there are five Biſhopricks, Adiazzo, Aleria, Sagona, Mariana, and Nebio. The four laſt Places are ruined ſo, that the Biſhops are forced to live at Baſtia, or in the neighbouring Villages. The Country people divide the Iſland into four parts, that correſpond to the four Cardinal parts of the World. They call the Eaſtern part Bandi di dentro, the Weſtern Banda di fuora, that of the South, Di la Monti, and the Nothern, Di qua Monti. The Air is not healthful, nor the Soil of this Iſle fruitful; yet in ſome Valleys are Wheat, Wine, Oyl and Fruits, with Iron-mines, and Cattle of all ſorts, and to ſupply the want of Inhabitants, the Genoeſes have lately received above five or ſix Magnotes or Mainotes, that lived in form of a Commonwealth upon the Coaſts of the Morea, to the Eaſt of the Gulf of Coron, from the Cape of Metapan to the River Calamata; and that left their own Country ſince the taking of Candia by the Turks. Corſica has three conſiderable Rivers, thoſe of Liamon and Tarignan, have their ſource in the Lake of Crena; this Lake is upon Mount Graduccio, towards the middle of the Iſland. Here alſo is the Lake Ivo, whence comes the River Guolo. There is a Stone found in this Iſland, which is called Catochites, and ſticks to ones hands like Glew. The moſt convenient Port is Bonifacio, which has a good Fortreſs. The Capo Corſo, or Punta di Morono, is the Sacrum Promontorium of the Ancients; and the Capo di Manza, is the Promontorium Graniacum. The Tuſcans made themſelves Maſters of this Iſland; the Carthaginians took it from theſe; and the Romans under Scipio, from the Carthaginians in the 495 of Rome. The Saracens ſeized it in the eighth Age; but were ſoon driven out of it. After which the Genoeſes and them of Piſa fought a long time who ſhould have it; but at length the firſt appropriated it to themſelves, and now ſend a Governor every two years to rule there. The Corſi are good Soldiers, but mighty cruel, revengeful and unpoliſhed; and it's thought that their robbing and plundering has been the reaſon why they that commit ſuch on Sea, are called Corſairs as well as Pyrates. Strabo Lib. 2. Filippini Hiſt. de Corſe.

CORSCHI, a Name the Perſians give the Inhabitants of the Country, deſcended of Turks, who live under Tents, as the Turcomans. Theſe are ſo numerous that they can make up 50000 fighting Men. Which made Schah-Abas King of Perſia do all he could to keep them under, in entertaining and bringing up his Goulams, and giving them all the Places of Truſt. (The Goulams are Slaves and Slaves Children of all Nations) the King keeps about 25000 of the Corſchi; their General is always of their own Nation, and is called Corſchi-bachi. They have ſeveral great Lords amongſt them. The Sophi's Army conſiſts of three ſorts of Troops, whereof the firſt are the Corſchi, the ſecond the Goulams, or Slaves, and the third the Tufengki, or Paiſants. The Corſchi and Goulams fight on Horſe-back, and carry a bow and quiver of Arrows, and ſome have a Carbine. The Tufengki are a ſort of Dragoons, have a Muſquet, march on Horſe-back, but fight on Foot. Thevenot.

CORTACIUS (Michael) a Prieſt of Creet, or Candie, wrote a Homily upon the Dignity of the Prieſthood, which was Printed at Venice, in 1642. Father Simon makes uſe of the Authority of this Author, to prove the agreement of the Greek Church with the Latin, in the Point of Tranſubſtantiation, and that the Greeks expreſs themſelves by the word Tranſubſtantiate. R. Simon Creance de l'Egliſe Orientale ſur la Tranſub.

CORTEZ, (Ferdinand, or Fernand) a Spaniſh Gentleman, Native of Medelino, a Town of Eſtremadura Caſtilliana upon Guadiana, lived in the XVIth Century, and undertook to diſcover America Septentrionalis in Charles the Fifth's Reign, entred into Mexico, in 1518. and having Conquered that Kingdom, Peopled and Cultivated what was ſince called New Spain. Ferdinand Cortez, Marquis of the Valley of Guaxaca, died in his Country, in 1547. ſixty three years old. Coſta Spondan.

CORTONA, a Town of Italy, in Tuſcany, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Florence. It's an ancient Town firſt built by Miſcellus, in the third year of the XVIIth Olympiad, and forty fourth of the Foundation of Rome. It's now a pretty and ſtrong Place, upon the Frontiers of the great Duke's Territories, towards the Church Lands. Cluvier.&c.

CORUNA, a Town of Spain, in Galicia, with a famous Sea-port. Latin Authors call it Caronium and Adrobicum, and others take it for the Flavium Brigantium of the Ancients. It's ſituate upon a Gulf, in the Northern part of Spain, ſeven or eight Leagues from Compoſtello, and a little leſs from Mondonedo. Its Port is convenient and well known. The Town ſtrong enough, being built on the ſide of a Hill; at the foot whereof is alſo another Town inhabited by Sea-men.

CORUNCANUS, the firſt of a Plebeian Family, that was preferred to be Pontifex Maximus, or High-prieſt at Rome. It's ſaid, that being ſent to Teuca, or Teuta, Queen of the Illyrians, he was Murthered, againſt the Laws of Nations, about the 526th of Rome. Tit. Liv.

CORYBANTES, certain Prieſts of Cybele, Mother of the Gods, who moved with a Fury they called Divine, Celebrated their Feaſts in Beating Drums, Dancing, Leaping, and running of every ſide like Mad Folks. Strabo makes a curirious Digreſſion concerning the Corybantes in his Xth Book, they were the firſt Kings of Phrygia's Guards, and the word Cherub ſignifies valiant in the Phœnician Tongue. Natalis Comes.

CORYBUT, an ancient and famous Family of Poland. It holds the rank of Prince, and is allied to the Kings that Commanded in this Country. One Corybut called Jagellon, firſt Couſin to King Ladiſlaus IV. was a great Supporter of that Prince's Deſign, to introduce ſome of the Clergy of Bohemia into the great Church of the Holy-Croſs in Cracovia, to have Divine Office in the Vulgar Tongue, viz. the Sclavonian, this happened in 1431. See Laſicius. Poland has alſo lately had a King of this Name called Michael Corybut Witſnowiski, who ſucceeded Caſimir, and married the Emperor Leopold's Siſter. He reigned but few years, died without Iſſue, and was ſucceeded by Jean Sobieski.

COS, an Iſland of the Archipelago. See CO.

COSAQUES, or Coſakes, People that live near Poland. This Name was given them for their extraordinary Nimbleneſs; for Coſa or Koſa, in the Poliſh Tongue, ſignifies a Goat. In Sigiſmond I. King of Poland's time, theſe Coſakes were but Voluntiers of the Frontiers of Ruſſia, Volhinia, Podolia, and the other Provinces of Poland, who flocked together and turned Pirates on the Black-ſea, whence they generally brought a rich Booty, as well from the Turkiſh Gallies they met with, as alſo by their Deſcents in Natolia, where they plundered great Towns, as Trebiſonde, and Sinope, and have ſometimes had the boldneſs to advance within two Leagues of Conſtantinople, and bring off a Booty and ſome Priſoners. About the end of the Seaſon theſe Adventurers ſeparate, and go each to his own home, after they have appointed their Meeting-place for the enſuing Spring, near the Iſlands of the Boryſthenes, to return to their old Trade. Beſides their Booty, the Kings of Poland give them a certain Salary or Recompence, as was ordered in the Diette, in 1562. King Stephen Batori, who begun his Reign in 1576. conſidering the great Service that theſe People might render by guarding the Frontiers of Ruſſia and Podolia, always expoſed to the Tartar's Incurſions, formed them into a regular Body, and gave them the Town and Territory of Trethimirow, upon the Boryſthenes, to be their place of Arms, or great Guard; made a General, and named Subaltern Officers, allowing them many Privileges beſides their ordinary Pay. He alſo joined 2000 Horſe to this Coſaque Infantry, and appointed the fourth of his Revenues for their Subſiſtence. This is the reaſon they are called Quartani, and corruptedly Quartiani, by others. Theſe Forces thus eſtabliſhed for the Defence of the Frontiers, ſecured it ſo againſt the Irruptions of the Tartars, that all the vaſt Country beyond the Towns of Braclaw, Bar and Kiovia, begun to be re-inhabited, and ſeveral Towns and Fortreſſes built by Colonies from neighbouring Provinces. Thus this Army did conſiderable Service; but it has alſo done the Republick much harm too by its frequent Rebellions. For, firſt, they refuſed to obey the Poliſh Lords of whom they depended, and then took Arms. The firſt time was after King Stephen Batori's death, under their General John Podhovia, who being worſted, was beheaded. The ſecond was in 1596. then having had ſome advantage over the Poliſh Army Commanded by General Zolskiewki, they looked upon themſelves as Invincible. Yet that able Warriour found means to preſs and lock them in ſo cloſe, that he forced them to deliver him their General Nelevaiko, who had the ſame doom with his Predeceſſor. They revolted again in 1637. but with as ill Succeſs as before; for General Poloski defeated them in ſeveral Rencounters, and took their General, and four other of their Principal Officers, who were all Beheaded during the Diet at Warſaw, in 1638. The Loſs of their General was accompanied with the forfeiture of their Privileges, and of the Place of Trethimirow, and was followed with the entire Suppreſſion of their Soldiery. After theſe Diſgraces they would try their Fate again againſt the ſame General Potoski, and intrenched themſelves on the other ſide the Boryſthenes; ſo that to ſatisfy their deſperate humour, they promiſed to re-eſtabliſh them; but this promiſe was not kept; for they made a new modelled Militia, and changed their General very often. The Polanders ſoon felt the Inconveniency of the Change by the Incurſions of the Tartars, which with King Ladiſlaus's deſign of Warring with the Turks, were the occaſion that that was again changed to its former way, and Theodore, or Bogdan Kmielniski was made their General, who had ſome difference with Czaphiſniski, Lieutenant of Konielpolski, great Enſign of the Crown, about the Bounds of his Lands. This Diſpute was aggravated by the ill uſage that Kmielniski's Son and Wife received, being ſeverely baſtinadoed in this Quarrel. The Father found means to be revenged by the diſpoſition he found the Ruſſians in to get their Liberty, being uneaſy under the Peace concluded with them, having improved their diſcontent, and aſſured himſelf of the Coſaques, he withdrew in the beginning of the year 1648. towards the Iſlands of the Boryſthenes, to fortify himſelf againſt the Inſults of the Polanders. And ſome time after joining the Tartars, they won two conſiderable Victories, which loſs became the more ſenſible to the Crown, that the King died about the ſame time. Kmielniski heard nothing of this until John Caſimir, the King's Brother was put upon the Throne in his place, and then he writ feigned Proteſtations of Obedience: and that they might appear the more plauſible, he ſent the Tartars away; yet at the ſame time Cuzivonus, another General of the Coſaques, a mean Man, but very daring and cruel, ravaged all Ruſſia and Podolia. Some time after they betook themſelves to their Arms again, and the War begun to be more cruel than before. The Cham of Tartary with about 100000 Men, joined them, and laid Siege to Zbaras, which they reduced to the laſt extremity, until the King taking the Field to relieve it; and coming as far as Zborow, a Peace was concluded the 17th of Auguſt, 1649. Kmielniski, ſtill ambitious, renewed the War again in 1651. but it was ended by General Potoski, who died a little after of an Apoplexy. The Coſaques continued to prejudice Poland mightily in 1652. and 1653. for notwithſtanding the ſeveral Treaties of Peace with them, yet from time to time they were very troubleſome, as their Army increaſed by the great number of Peaſants that flocked from every ſide to joyn them. They inhabit Ukraine, which ſignifies a Frontier, and is what reaches beyond Volhinia and Podolia, and makes part of the Palatinates of Kiovia and Braclow. Theſe are called Coſaques Zaporowski, to diſtinguiſh them from the others that are in Muſcovy, upon the Don or Tanais. It's from the Porohis of the Boryſthenes, that they have taken their name of Zaporowski, for Porohi in the Ruſſian Tongue ſignifies a Rock, becauſe, that at 50 Leagues from the mouth of that River there are great Rocks that croſs it over, which the Coſaques paſs when they go to make Incurſions towards the Black-ſea, beyond the Porohis: They have in the Iſlands their Skarbnica Wogskowa, that is, the Treaſure and Magazines of their Army, where they keep all their Booty. The Inhabitants of Ukraine, who are called Coſaques now, are of a good ſtature, ſtrong, dextrous, nimble, liberal; great lovers of their Liberty, uneaſy under any Yoke, indefatigable, bold, and good Soldiers, but great Drunkards and very Treacherous. They are much given to Fiſhing and Hunting, yet are vers'd in all the Arts neceſſary to a Country-life as well as in War. They have this peculiar to them, That none knows to prepare Salt-petre better than they; their Country abounds with it, and ſeveral parts of Europe are furniſhed thence. In Summer they are mightily incommoded with Flies and Graſs-hoppers, which fly ſometimes in ſuch vaſt numbers, that they form a kind of Cloud, and darken the Air in the cleareſt Day, for they fly in ſwarms that are ſometimes five or ſix Leagues long, and three or four broad, and will deſtroy the Corn they light on, though but green, in leſs than two hours time. Theſe Inſects live but ſix Months, Rain kills them, and the Nothern Winds blow them into the Black-ſea. The Coſaques have an odd kind of Diſtemper, and particular to themſelves, the Country-people call it Goſcheſt, the Phyſicians Plica; they that are troubled with it, loſe the uſe of their Limbs, as if troubled with a Palſie, and feel great pain in their Nerves. After ſome time they fall into a great ſweat at Night-time, ſo that the next Morning their Hair is as if glew'd together; this eaſes them much; but their Hair continues knotted, which if they ſhould cut during their diſtemper, the Humour would fall on their Eyes, and quite deprive them of their ſight. The Coſaques Language is a Dialect of the Poliſh Tongue, it's full of Diminutives and pleaſant expreſſions. The Common ſort are of the Greek Church, but the greater part of the Gentry are either Catholicks or Proteſtants. Le Laboureur. Thuldenus. Paul Paſeiky, in Chron.

COSDAR, the 25th Califf or Succeſſor of Mahomet, was choſen after the Death of Caym Adam, in 908. there were three others that aroſe at the ſame time, but were looked upon as Tyrants, and Coſdar received as the lawful Succeſſor. He was Califf of Babylon or Syria, the ſecond was of Perſia, the third of Egypt, and the fourth of Iconia in Cappadocia. He laid Siege to Antioch upon the River Orontes, but was forced to raiſe it, and retire with what Troops he had left to Bagdat, yet he Conquered Perſia ſome time after, which a Perſian Commander named Ignargue reſtored to its former Liberty in 958. and his Son Mahomet, who ſucceeded him, called the Turks to his aſſiſtance againſt Coſdar, who died that ſame year, leaving his Son Piſaſire his Succeſſor. Marmol.

COSENZA, in Latin Coſentia, a Town of Italy, in the Hither Calabria, with a large Biſhop's See; It's one of the Principal Towns in that Province, near the River Crate, about 10 or 12 Miles from the Sea.

COSERANS, Conſerans, or St. Lizier of Coſerans, a little Country of France in Gaſcony, with a Town of the ſame name, ſituate upon the River Salat. This Town which Latin Authors call Civitas Conſeranorum and Fanum Sancti Licerii, is near the Source of the River Garonne towards St. Bertrand de Cominges, twelve or fourteen Leagues from Tholouſe, and near upon ſo much from Auch. Its ſituation is very pleaſant upon the River Salat, is divided into the Town and City with a good Bridge over the River, about the middle of which is a ſtrong Tower. There are two Churches, which are as it were equally Cathedrals, that of our Lady in the City properly called Coſerans, and the other St. Lizier in the Town, which takes its name.

COSIMO (Peter de) a famous Painter of Italy, called Coſimo, becauſe he was Coſmus Roſſelus's Diſciple: He took great pleaſure to repreſent Monſters and uncommon Sights, therefore applyed himſelf much to Bacchanalia's, that he might have the Liberty in painting Satyrs and Faunes, to ſhew extraordinary ſhapes and actions. Once in Carnaval-time, at Florence, he ſhewed about Night, a Cart painted black, with white Croſſes and Death's Bones. This was drawn by four Oxen, and on the top was a Statue with a Scythe in its Hand, and ſeveral Tombs under its Feet, with the Bodies half hanging out and all waſted; a great number of people clad in black, wearing Masks like Death's Heads, walked before, and came after this Cart with Torches in their hands; there were alſo Singers round it, who joined their doleful Notes to the hoarſe ſound of ſome dull Trumpets. A Triumph of this nature caſt the Town into a great Conſternation, yet the Novelty of the Invention and ingenious way that all was carried on, proved, after a ſhort ſurprize, a diverting Spectacle to many of the Spectators. Felibien.

COSINGAS, Prince of the Cerrhenians, a People of Thrace, and alſo a Prieſt of Juno, according to the Cuſtom of the Country, obſerving that his Subjects were diſobedient and rebellious, bethought himſelf of this pleaſant Artifice to oblige them to be more humble, whilſt he ordered a great number of Ladders to be ty'd one to the other, he gave out, that he intended to go up to heaven, and know of Juno what was the reaſon her Subjects were ſo unruly; the dull and ſtupid Thracians, fearing he would do what he ſpoke of, begg'd his pardon, and engaged themſelves by Oath, to be more obedient for the future. Polyenus.

COSLIN, a Town of Germany in Pomerania, two Leagues from the Baltick Sea; it formerly belonged to the Biſhop of Camin, who kept his Reſidence there, but was yielded to the Elector of Brandenburg, who has kept it ſince the Peace of Munſter, in 1648.

COSMOGRAPHY, that is, a Deſcription of the World: it comprehends Uranographia, or the Deſcription of the Heaven, and the Science of the Cœleſtial Spheres; Geography the Deſcription of the Earth, which alſo comprehends that of the Water, properly called Hydrographia: Of Geography depends Chorography, or the deſcription of a Country, as of a Kingdom or Province; and Topography, which is but the Deſcription of a particular place, as a Promontory, a Town, &c.

COSMOPOLITE, Author of an excellent Work of Phyſick and Chymiſtry, whereof the Title is thus in Latin, Coſmopolitani novum Lumen Chymicum Authore divi Leſchi genus Amo. It has been ſuppoſed hitherto, that Michael Sendivogius was Author of this Book, becauſe his Name is found in that Anagram which ſignifies, I love the Country of St. Leſchius, that is, Poland, becauſe Leſchius was King thereof; yet others aſſure, that the Coſmopolite was an Engliſhman, and that Sendivogius had but the Manuſcripts of that famous Author, which he publiſhed under the Anagram of his own Name. Borel. Antiqu. &c.

COSMUS I. of the Name, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, Native of Jeruſalem, ſucceeded John Xiphilin, in 1080. and govern'd that Church until 1086. Coſmus II. ſucceeded Michael, in 1147. and died two Months after. Baron.

COSMUS I. of this Name, Great Duke of Tuſcany, was Son to John II. and made Duke after the Death of Alexander de Medicis; he was deeply concerned in the Wars of Italy, between the French and the Imperialiſts; for though he endeavoured to be Neuter, yet he was forced to ſide with the Emperor in 1553. for Sienna, whereof he became Maſter in 1557. Coſmus founded the Military Order of St. Stephen, in 1554. or 62. and his Ambition was ſo great, that he ſued for the Title of a King, but could not obtain it; yet Pope Pius V. in ſpight of the Emperor Maximilian, and of Philip II. King of Spain, made him Great Duke of Tuſcany in 1569. His skill in Sciences made him have a great love for the Learned, and endeavour to have them about him. He founded the Univerſity of Piſa, to forward liberal Sciences, and died in 1574. the 55th year of his Age, whereof he governed 38 with great Reputation. Thuan.

COSMUS II. Great Duke of Tuſcany, Son to Ferdinand, whom he ſucceeded in 1609. He married Magdalen of Auſtria, Siſter to the Emperor Ferdinand II. of whom he had Ferdinand II. his Succeſſor, who died in 1670. He was a Prince of ſingular Merit, Mild, Courteous, Liberal; who neglected nothing to keep Peace and Quietneſs in his Eſtate; yet he was very ſickly, and died in 1621.

COSMUS III. Great Duke of Tuſcany, Son to Ferdinand II. whom he ſucceeded in 1670. married Margaret Louiſe of Orleans, Daughter to Gaſton John Baptiſta of France, Duke of Orleans, and had Ferdinand, Prince of Tuſcany, born in 1663. Jean Gaſton, born in 1671. and Mary Magdalen, in 1665.

COSMUS, a great General, who ſignalized himſelf in the Emperor Juſtinian's time in the Wars of Africa, where he and his Son were both killed. His death reviv'd the People, who were in great Conſternation ſince the Conqueſt of Africa by Beliſarius, under the Emperor Juſtinian, by reaſon, that according to the interpretation of the Prophecy of Sibylla, the World was to end ſoon after this Conqueſt, but the tidings of Coſmus's death ſurpriz'd them all pleaſantly, when they underſtood by a certain Interpreter, that Mundus ſignified the ſame with Κόσμος, for both ſignified the World; ſo it was clear, Sibylla foretold the General and his Son's fall, and not the World's ruin; for this is the Prediction;

Africa cum fuerit Romanis victa ſub Armis,
Tunc Mundus cum Prole cadet.

COSNE, Lat. Conium and Conada, a little Town of France upon the Loire, between Nevers and Orleans. Some place it in Beauſſe, others in Nivernois; however, it's in the Dioceſs of Auxerre, on the right ſide of the Loire, where the Nozaim joins it. Coſne is well known for its Knives, and has been often taken and re-taken in the Civil Wars of the Sixteenth Age.

COSSE, (Artus de) Mareſchal of France, Count of Secondigni, and Lord of Gonnor, was Son to Rene Coſſé, and Brother to Mareſchal Briſac. He was a merry good Companion, but a politick ſtout Man beſides. The Queen, in recompence of the good Services he render'd her in defending Metz and Mariembourg againſt the Emperor's Forces, in 1554. made him Overſeer of her Treaſury, whereupon he began to thrive in the world very well; as his Wife, a ſimple Lady, told the Queen when ſhe came to wait of her, and give her thanks for her Husband's place. Indeed, ſaid ſhe, we ſhould have been ruin'd if it had not been for that office your Majeſty was pleaſed to give my Husband, for we ow'd 100000 Crowns; but, God be thanked, we have paid the Debt, and have as much more to purchaſe ſome fine Eſtate; with which the Queen laughed at the Woman's Simplicity and Innocence, as did all that heard her ſpeak, except the Husband, who curs'd her heartily, crying, Ha, Madan Fool! by Jove thou ſhalt get hence, and never come here again. Pox on her, continued he, ſhe has ſet me out finely. The Queen over-hearing him mutter, laughed but the more. After this he was made Mareſchal, in 1567. was at the Battle of St. Denys, and at that of Moncontour, in 1569. Before this, he oppoſed the Prince of Orange that would enter into Picardy, but his Troops were defeated by the Huguenots, in 1570. at the fight of Harnay le Duc. He did good Service the year after, at the Siege of Rochelle, hinder'd its relief, yet was put in the Baſtile, and kept there until the Duke of Orleans, afterwards Henry III. got him his Liberty, in 1575. He ſtuck to this Prince, who made him Knight of his Order. He died in 1582. Thuan.

COSSE (Charles I. of the Name) Mareſchal of France and called Mareſchal Briſac, Count of Briſac, &c. He begun to ſerve in the Army in Naples and Piedmont, and was afterwards at the Siege of Perpignan in Quality of Colonel of the French Infantry, where he was wounded, but did behave himſelf ſo well, that the Dauphin Henry of France ſaid, If he had not been Dauphin of France he could wiſh to be Colonel Briſac. He was ſo fair a Man, that the Ladies always called him the Fair Briſac. In 1543. he relieved Landreci, beſieged by Charles V. and brought off his Men though twice ſurrounded by the Enemy. Francis I.

eſteem'd him ſo much for that conſiderable Service, that after embracing him very kindly, he made him drink out of his own Cup, and made him Knight of his Order. He rendred that Prince many great Services after that time, re-eſtabliſhed Military Diſcipline, reformed Abuſes, accuſtomed the Soldiers to Fatigues, obliging them to be always well armed and obedient to their Officers. He died at Paris in 1563. the 57th of his Age. Thuan.

COSSEANS, Inhabitants of a Mountain of the Country of the Medes. Polybius and Diodorus ſay, That Alexander the Great was ſo much troubled for the Death of his beloved Hæpheſtion, that he marched againſt theſe, and by the cruel ſlaughter he made, ſacrificed moſt of them to that great Man's Ghoſt. Arrian.

COSTA, or Acoſta (Chriſtopher) born in Africa, but his Father was a Portugueſe. He ſtudied Phyſick, and travelled into Aſia, where he was taken Priſoner, and kept a Slave a long time, yet made ſhift to ſatisfie his great Inclination to learn the Medicinal Plants and Drugs of that part of the World, and gave an account of them at his return into his own Country in 1578. in a Treatiſe called Tractado de las Drogas y Medicinas de las Indas. This Book was tranſlated into Latin by Charles Cluſius. Acoſta wrote likewiſe a Book in Commendation of Women; A Relation of a Voyage to the Indies, &c. Vander Linden.

COSTA (Immanuel) a Portugueſe Jeſuit, living in the XVIth. Century. He wrote a Hiſtory of his Society in the Eaſt, which was tranſlated into Latin by Maffeus. He wrote likewiſe a Treatiſe of the Indies, and another of Japan. There was another John Acoſta, a Spaniſh Hiſtorian, living in the Year 1578. He profeſs'd Rhetorick at Salamanca, and Law at Saragoſſa, and wrote a Treatiſe in Two Books De Conſcribenda Rerum Hiſtoria. Alegamb. Bibl. Script. Soc. J. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Script. Hiſp.

COSTA-RICA, a Province of America Septentrionalis in New Spain, one of the moſt Eaſtern Parts of the Audience, or the Government of Guatimala, between the Black and the Pacifick Seas, and to the Weſt of Veragua. The Chief Town is Carthage, between the two Seas, where it has got Places that ſerve it as its Port of each ſide, and for each Sea; the others are Aranjuez and Nicoya upon the Pacifick Sea, Caſtro d'Auſtria in the Lands, &c. The Land is fruitful, and has ſome Silver and Gold Mines. De Laet.

COSTE DE L'IVOIRE, or, The Ivory Coaſt; a Coaſt of Africk in Guinea, between the Cape of Palmes, where the Coaſt of Malaguere ends, and Cape of Three Points, where the Golden Coaſt begins. The French call it Coſt des Dents, upon the account of the great Store of Elephants Teeth that are found there, which likewiſe is the Reaſon of its being call'd the Ivory Coaſt: This Coaſt is well inhabited and furniſhed with the Conveniencies of Life. The French, Engliſh and Dutch trade here, and freight themſelves with Ivory, Hides, Wax, Ambergreeſe, &c.

COSTE D'OR, a Coaſt of Africk in Guinea, ſo called from the great Quantity of Gold found there: It reaches from the Cape of Three Points, where the Ivory Coaſt ends, to the River Volta, in the Kingdom of Benin which lies to the Eaſt of it. Its length is about 130 Leagues: Theſe Coaſts likewiſe run up into the Country, where there are a great many Kingdoms and Lordſhips, as Asbin, Axime, Commendo, &c. The Portugueſe have formerly had conſiderable Forts here, as that of St. George, the Mine, Axime, &c. which the Dutch have taken from 'em; and are likewiſe poſſeſs'd of Lamure, Fort Naſſaw, Cormentin, Botru, &c. The Engliſh have Eniacham and Capo Corſo; and the Danes have Fredericksburg. From this Coaſt, beſides Gold, there are the ſame Commodities brought, as from the Ivory Coaſt.

COSTER (Laurence) a Hollander, Native of Harlem; his Country-men attribute the Invention of Printing to him; for they ſay he form'd the firſt Characters in 1420. of Beech-wood, then of Lead, and at laſt of Braſs. They alſo add, that it was he invented the Ink that Printers uſe to this Day; ſo that about 1444. the Art was in its full Perfection: They were ſo well ſatisfied of the Truth of this, that the Senate willing to eternize Coſter's Memory, put this Inſcription over his Door:

> Memoriæ Sacrum. Typographia ars artium omnium conſervatrix, nunc primum inventa circa annum 1440.

COTALIS, a Town of Mingrelia which was Capital of the little Kingdom of Imerete, and now belongs to the Turks. It's but a Borough without Fortifications or Walls, open on every ſide, only where the River of Phaſis and the Mountain covers it. There are about 200 Houſes of the meaner ſort in the Town, for the King's Palace and great Mens Dwellings, are at ſome diſtance thence. The Fortreſs is built on a Hill on the other ſide the River, ſtrengthened with two high Walls, ſome Towers, and a Dungeon. The Turks keep a good Garriſon in it.

COTELERIUS (John Baptiſt) Doctor of the Sorbonne, and the King's Profeſſor of the Greek Tongue. His Father was a Huguenot Miniſter at Niſmes in Languedoc, who afterwards went over to the Church of Rome, bred his Son up in that Religion, and obſerving the Pregnancy of his Parts, deſigned him for the Church. Cotelerius underſtood Hebrew, was a good Mathematician, and likewiſe a Perſon of extraordinary Learning in Church-Hiſtory, as appears by his Writings: The firſt things that he Publiſhed were four Homelies of St. Chryſoſtom upon the Pſalms, and his Interpretation on the Prophet Daniel; afterwards, in 1672. he put out a Book call'd, Opera Sanctorum Patrum qui temporibus Apoſtolicis floruerunt, with very Learned and Judicious Notes; and in 1677, 1681, and 1686. he printed his Monumenta Græcæ Eccleſiæ, in three Volumes, where there are a great many fine Critical Obſervations, both upon the Authors and the Subject Matter. Cotelerius was no leſs conſiderable for his Probity and good Temper, than for his Learning. He died at Paris in 1686. The Reader may ſee his Life by Stephen Baluſius, at the Head of the Patres Apoſtolici of the Amſterdam Edition. Memoirs du Temps.

COTHON, a Name given to the Port of Carthage, which was divided into three parts, Byrſa, Megara and Cothon. Feſtus ſays, That the Africans called all Ports by this Name that were done by Art or the Help of Man. Bochart thinks, that becauſe this Word was neither uſed by the Romans, nor yet by the Greeks, that it comes of the Hebrew Hatham, which ſignifies to cut, becauſe they cut and dig to form convenient Havens. The Port of Adrumetum, another Town of Africa built by the Phœnicians, between Carthage and the Syrtes, was alſo called Cothon, which confirms Feſtus's Opinion.

COTIS or Cotys, King of Thracia, contemporary with Nero, divided his Kingdom with his Uncle Reſcuporis, who ſeiz'd the whole and kill'd him treacherouſly. It's probable he was deſcended of Cotys King of Thrace, of whom Plutarch ſpeaks. He ſided with Pompey, and as he was very haſty and paſſionate, ſo to ſhun the occaſion of being angry with his Servants, he broke ſome very curious Earthen-Wares that were ſent him, after he had recompenſed him that made him the Preſent. Tacitus alſo ſpeaks of Cotys King of Armenia, under the Reign of the Emperor Claudius, in the 48 of the Chriſtian Æra. There was alſo a King of the Getes of this Name, as appears by Ovid's 9th Elegy of the ſecond Book De Ponto. Tacitus.

COTISON, King of the Daci, having invaded Pannonia was defeated by Cornelius Lentulus, Auguſtus's Lieutenant General. Abraham Milius, in his Treatiſe of the Belgick Tongue, ſays, the Word Cotiſon comes of Gotes Son, which in the Teutonick Language ſignifies God's Son, becauſe that King of the Daci's Children, and the chief of his Kingdom would fain perſuade, that they were of the Race of the Gods.

COTITTE or Cotytto, Goddeſs of Impudence and Immodeſty amongſt the Athenians, to whom the Baptæ celebrated Feaſts in the Night time, dancing, &c. Probus thinks ſhe was a Comedian, and that theſe Baptæ were others of the ſame Profeſſion.

COTOVAL in the Indies is the Judge of Criminal Caſes. Theſe are Soubachi in Turkey, and Daroga in the Perſian Tongue. He cannot ſentence any one to Death before he ſends an Expreſs to the King to know his Will concerning him that deſerves to loſe his Life. This Cotoval is reſponſible for all Robberies and Thefts committed in the Town, which is the reaſon he keeps People that have Guard-Houſes, and walk the Rounds thrice a Night; at nine, at Midnight, and at three a Clock in the Morning. M. Thevenot.

COTTA, a famous Orator, of whom Cicero ſpeaks frequently in his Works. This Family was very conſiderable at Rome. There was a Cotta Lieutenant to Cæſar in Gaul, where he was killed by Ambiorix's Army. We find the Name of another who begun an unfortunate War againſt Mithridates, and many more in ancient Authors.

COTTA (Arunculeius, or Aurunculeius Cotta Lucius) a Roman Captain that ſerv'd under Cæſar in Gaul, who nam'd him and Titurius Sabinus, to command a Legion that he ſent into the Country of Liege; they had no ſooner encamped, but Ambiorix, at the Head of an Army of Gauls, came to attack them; but miſſing the Advantage he expected, he pretended that he heard that all the Gauls had revolted againſt the Romans, and that the Germans would arrive in two Days time. Sabinus believed this falſe Rumour, though Aurunculeius was againſt crediting it, ſo ſends ſome of his Troops away the next Morning. The Gauls ſet upon, and defeated them in their March. Aurunculeius Cotta was kill'd. This happened 700 Years after the Foundation of Rome, and 54 before the coming of Chriſt. Cæſar. Athenæus.

COTTIES, Lat. Alpes Cottiæ, is a Name the Ancients gave that part of the Alps that comprehends Mount Viſo, the Mount or Neck of the Croſs, Mount Genevre, Mount Cenis; and on Italy ſide, the Vallies of Lucern and Perouſe; they ſeparate Dauphine from Piedmont, and comprehend all from Mount Viſo to the South, where the Cottienes Alpes are, to Mount Cenis to the North, where the Greek Alps or Gregeoiſes begin. This Name is deriv'd from Cottius, who was King of this Country. His Kingdom contain'd twelve Towns, each Capital of a little Province. The Town of Suſa was chief of all. Auguſtus endeavouring to ſubdue this Cottius, but not able to compaſs it, receiv'd him into the number of the Allies of Rome. Cæſar. Athenæus.

COTTON (Peter) a Jeſuit, Confeſſor to King Henry IV. and Lewis XIII. After the wicked attempt of John Chatel, Henry IV. of France importun'd to recal the Jeſuits, reſolv'd to keep one of the chief about his Perſon, to be aſſur'd of the Fidelity of the reſt; and for this purpoſe choſe Father Cotton to be his Confeſſor; but underſtanding afterward, that he took falſe meaſures, and that inſtead of an Hoſtage, he kept a Spy, ſought to get rid of him the civileſt way he could. He was by ſome ſuſpected to have had a hand in the horrid Murther of that Monarch in 1610. for Mezerai reports, That Cotton bid Ravaillac have a care of accuſing honeſt People; yet Queen Mary de Medicis choſe him to be Lewis the XIIIth's Director. Some Years after, the Edict the Parliament of Paris publiſhed againſt his Society, troubled him ſo much, that he died of Grief in 1626. Alegamb. Le Mire. Dupleix.

COTTON (Robert) Eſq; Son of Sir John Cotton of Weſtminſter, Baronet, and great Grandſon of the famous Sir Robert Cotton, Founder of the noble Library that goes under his Name, at Weſtminſter. This Family has for ſome time been ſeated at Connington in Huntingtonſhire, and are deſcended from the Bruces, of the Blood-Royal of Scotland, by the Mother's ſide; not to mention any other Honourable Alliances of this Family, it may be ſufficient to take Notice, That the Cottons have flouriſhed in the Condition of the Upper Gentry, long before the time of King Edward III. And here it may not be improper to give the Reader a ſhort View of the famous Library abovementioned. This Collection conſiſting of Manuſcripts, affords a large Variety of Chartularies, Regiſters and Schemes relating to the Diſcipline of Monaſteries: Here is likewiſe to be ſeen a Copy of the Four Goſpels, with a Saxon Interlineary Verſion above a Thouſand Years old: to theſe we may add, The Lives and Martyrdoms of the Engliſh, Welſh, Scotch and Iriſh Saints. This Library is likewiſe furniſh'd with an extraordinary Collection of Heraldry, in which, beſides ſome Tracts giving an Account of the Original of Bearing Arms, together with the Deſcent of ſeveral Noble Families, beſides theſe, I ſay, there are to be ſeen the ancient Forms and Solemnities at Coronations, at Royal Marriages, at the Entertainment of Foreign Princes and Ambaſſadors; the Buſineſs, Diſtinctions, and Precedency of the great Officers at Court, the Regulation of Noblemens Funerals, of Tilting and Turnaments, amongſt which there is likewiſe the Original Patent of Incorporation granted to the Heralds Office by King Richard II. To go on, There is likewiſe a vaſt Collection of Engliſh Hiſtory, Sacred and Civil, from whence Cambden, Speed, Dugdale and Spelman had no little Aſſiſtance. To which we may add abundance of State-Papers, ſuch as Original Letters of Princes, Forms of Treaties and Confederacy, and Publick Regulations of Trade: The Debates and Privileges of Parliament and Privy-Council, the Juriſdiction of Courts, both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, the Revenues and Prerogatives of the Crown, Diſcoveries of Navigation, &c. beſides a great Number of Manuſcripts upon theſe Heads, there are Variety of Curioſities in other Parts of Learning; and all rang'd under ſuch methodical Diſtinctions of Claſſes and Numbers, that the whole Library may, without any Difficulty, be made uſe of. The Arms of this Family are, Azure, an Eagle Diſplay'd, Argent. Dr. Smith's Life of Sir Robert Cotton, and his Synopſis, &c. prefixt to his Catalogue of the Cotton Library.

COVARRUVIAS (Diego) Biſhop of Ségovia and Preſident of the Council of Caſtile, was a Spaniard, of Reputation for his Learning in the XVIth Century. He appear'd at the Council of Trent, and acquitted himſelf to Advantage. He was a good Linguiſt, a good Divine, and ſo very conſiderable a Lawyer, that he was call'd the Spaniſh Bartholus. His Works are printed in Two Volumes. Andreas Scotus. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. Miræus De Script. Sæc. 16, &c.

COUCY ENGUERRAN, IV. Lord of Coucy. His great Love for Hunting made him ſo very cruel, that he could not ſuffer any other ſhould uſe that Diverſion; for it's ſaid, he cauſed three young Gentlemen to be hanged for no other Crime, but that they were found in his Woods ſhooting of Arrows. St. Lewis was for having him ſuffer for this heinous Crime, and his Friends could not obtain his Pardon, but upon Condition he would found two Chapels, and give 10000 Livres towards the building the Hoſpital of Pontoiſe. Mezerai.

COUCY (Renaut or Ralph) Lord of Coucy, liv'd in the XIIth Century, in the Reign of Philip Auguſtus, and acquired great Reputation by his Courage and Wit, being one of the ſtouteſt Warriors, and famouſeſt Poets of his Time. He loved a Lady called Fajel, and compoſed ſome Verſes in her Commendation; afterwards having accompanied the King in his Voyage to the Holy Land, he died of a Wound he received at the Siege of Acre in 1191. It's ſaid he writ a little before he died to the ſame Lady, and engaged his Gentleman to take his Heart, after his Death, and preſent it to the Lady, with the Letter. The Gentleman, reſolving to fulfil the Requeſt, met Mr. Fajel, who made him deliver what he had for his Wife, and finding what it was, he minc'd the Heart ſmall, and mixed it with other Meat, which the Lady eat; but having underſtood afterwards what it was, died of Grief. Fouchet. This Story ſmells a little of Romance.

COVENTRY (Thomas) born in Worceſterſhire, deſcended from John Coventry Mercer, and Lord Mayor of London; 4 H. VI. being a Member of the Honourable Society of the Inner-Temple, London, he became ſo happy a Proficient in his Studies there, as that in 38 Eliz. he was choſen Autumn Lector, then elected to the Degree of a Serjeant at Law, and 3 Jac. nam'd the King's Serjeant; ſoon after conſtituted one of the Juſtices for the Court of Common-Pleas: His Son Thomas purſuing his ſteps, was in 18 Jac. made the King's Attorny General. In 1 Car. I. he was advanced to the eminent Office of Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, and in 4 Car. I. dignify'd with the Degree of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Coventry of Ailesborough in Com. Wigorn. Thomas his Son and Heir ſucceeding him, married Mary, Daughter to Sir William Craven, Knight, Lord Mayor of London, in An. 1611. (9 Jac.) and departed this Life Oct. An. 1662. leaving Iſſue two Sons, George and Thomas, which George, now Lord Coventry, married Margaret, Daughter to John Earl of Thanet, and by her had Iſſue, John his only Son, and Margaret, a Daughter. Dugdale.

COVENTRY, Lat. Coventria, a City in Warwickſhire, ſeated on the Sherburn, a ſmall Stream which not far from hence runs into the River Avon, and called Coventry from a Convent founded here by the Daniſh King Canute; by which Convent, and the tranſlating of the See Epiſcopal from Lichfield hither, this City grew exceeding rich and wealthy. And though it has now neither Convent nor Epiſcopal See, more than in Ruin and in Title, ſtill it is a thriving Place, by reaſon of the Trade it drives in all theſe parts. It ſtands ſo commodiouſly, and is ſo handſomely built, that it is more than ordinarily frequented for an Inland Town. It belonged once to the Earls of Cheſter, and afterwards to John of Eltham, Earl of Cornwall; by which Annexation the Citizens got more than they laſt. For Henry the VIth laying to it ſome of the adjacent Villages, made it, with them, a County Corporate, clearly diſtinct from that of Warwick. Thus Coventry, though ſeated within the Bounds of Warwickſhire, became exempted from its Juriſdiction. And, in the very firſt year of the Norman Conqueſt, it became an Earldom, in the perſon of Edwin, a Saxon, with whom the Title died, and lay buried till the Reign of King James I. when George Villiers, the late Duke of Buckingham's Father, was created Duke of Buckingham and Earl of Coventry, An. 1623. As for the time when, and manner how this City came to be joined to that of Lichfield in the Epiſcopal Stile, ſee LICHFIELD.

COULAN, a Town and Kingdom of the Indies, in the Peninſula, on this ſide the Ganges, upon the Coaſts of Malabar. This Kingdom is between that of Cochim, which lies Northward of it, and Travançor to the South. The City of Coulan has been very conſiderable, rich, well peopled, and extraordinary flouriſhing, by reaſon of its great Commerce; but Sands have now ſo ſtopt the mouth of the Harbour, that Goa and Calicut have moſt of its former Trade. The Portugueſe have had a Fortreſs at Coulan, and have been the occaſion of the Converſion of a great many of the Kingdom. Math. Lib. 2. Barboſa, &c.

COULON-CHA, a Name given in Perſia to the Gentlemen the King ſends to the Governours of Provinces, Vice-Roys, and other conſiderable Perſons. Coulon-cha ſignifies a Royal Slave, but theſe are none, only take this Title to ſhew they are entirely devoted to their Sovereigns Service, and are moſt of them Perſons of Qualities Children, brought up from their Youth at Court, to fit them for great Employments. The Sophi ſends them to carry Preſents, or Orders of great Moment, to his Governours; he, they are ſent to, gives them a rich Suit of Cloths at their Coming, and a Preſent proportionable to their Quality when they Return: and ſometimes the King ſets the price of the Preſent they are to receive, and then they are paid immediately, and requires that they recompence his Ambaſſador according to his Merit, and the Credit he has at Court. Chardin Voyage to Perſia.

COULOUR, a Borough of the Kingdom of Golconda, ſeven days Journey from the Town of Golconda, on this ſide the Gulf of Bengala. Near this Borough is a Diamond Mine, called The Mine of Coulour in the Perſian Tongue, and of Gani in the Country Language. A poor Man diſcovered it about one hundred years ago, for in digging a ſmall ſpot of Land, he found one that weighed about 25 Carats; he took it up, obſerving it ſhining and pretty, tho' he did not know what it was, and carried it to Golconda, where, as luck would have it, he addreſſed himſelf to one that dealt in Diamonds. This Merchant was ſurprized to ſee a Diamond of that weight, becauſe the greateſt that were found before weighed but 10 or 12 Carats at moſt. So this ſpread all over the Country, and the ableſt of the Borough ſent to dig that Ground, and found a great number, ſome weighing above 45 Carats. There was one found, which being rough and unpoliſhed, weighed 800 Carats, and when worked was ſtill 280 Carats. Mirgimola, Miniſter of State to Aureng-Zeb, great Mogul of the Indies, made that Emperor a Preſent of it. They carry all the Earth they dig into a place for that purpoſe nigh at hand, where they ſteep and waſh it two or three times, dry it in the Sun, and winnow it; then ſpread it over the Ground, and beat it ſmall, ſift it a ſecond time, ſo ſpread it all over again thin and even, and begin at one of the ends, and ſo forward, to look for the Diamonds, and trade the ſame way as at the Mine of Raolconde. Tavernier.

COUNCIL. This Name taken in General ſignifies an Aſſembly of Prelates, that confer and decide what belongs to Religion, and Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline. A Council is called a General one, when all the Biſhops of Chriſtendom meet, if there be no lawful Excuſe for abſence; this is alſo called Oecumenique from the Greek word οἰκουμένη, which ſignifies the habitable earth. A national, is a meeting of the Prelates of a Kingdom or Province, under a Patriarch or Primate. A Provincial is held by the Biſhops of that Dioceſs under a Metropolitan. The word Synod, which in Greek and Latin ſignifies a Council, is left to the Aſſemblies of the Prieſts of a Dioceſs, under the Authority of their Biſhop. Roman Catholicks count eighteen, but Proteſtants allow but ſix General Councils: There were two held at Nice, four at Conſtantinople, one at Epheſus, one at Chalcedon, five in the Lateran at Rome, two at Lyons, one at Vienna, one at Florence, and one at Trent. The firſt of Nice, a Town of Bithynia in Aſia Minor, was held in 325 under Pope Sylveſter in Conſtantine the Great's Reign, againſt the Arians, who deny'd the Divinity of Jeſus Chriſt. The 2d, being the firſt of Conſtantinople, was held in 381, under Pope Damaſus, in the Emperor Theodoſius's Reign, againſt the Macedonians, who denied the Divinity of the Holy Ghoſt. 3. Council of Epheſus was Celebrated under Pope Celeſtin, in Theodoſius the Young's time, againſt the Neſtorians, that diſtinguiſhed two Perſons in Jeſus Chriſt, in the year 431. 4. That of Chalcedon was held in 451. under Pope Leo, in the Emperor Marcian's time, againſt Eutyches and Dioſcorus, who confounded the Humane and Divine Nature in Jeſus Chriſt. 5. That was the ſecond of Conſtantinople, was held in 553. under Pope Vigilius, in the Emperor Juſtinian's Reign, againſt the Errors of the Origeniſts. The 6th, the third of Conſtantinople, under Pope Agatho, in 680. in the Reign of Conſtantine Pogonatus, againſt the Monothelites, who allowed but one Will in our Saviour. The 7th, the ſecond of Nice in 787. as the Roman Catholicks count it, under Pope Adrian, in the Empreſs Irene and her Son Conſtantine's time, againſt the Iconoclaſtes, or Image-breakers. 8. The fourth of Conſtantinople in 869. under Pope Adrian II. in the Reign of the Emperor Baſilius, againſt Photius. The 9th, firſt of Lateran at Rome, in 1122. under Pope Calixtus II. in the Reign of the Emperor Henry V. for the Recovery of the Holy Land. 10. The 2d of Lateran, in 1139. under Pope Innocent II. in the Reign of the Emperor Conradus, againſt the Anti-pope Peter of Leon, and for the preſervation of the Churches Poſſeſſions. 11. The 3d of Lateran, held in 1179. under Pope Alexander III. in the Emperor Frederick's time, againſt the Albigenſes. 12. The 4th of Lateran, in 1215. under Pope Innocent III. in the Emperor Otho's Reign, againſt the ſame Albigenſes, &c. The 13th, the firſt of Lyons, in 1215. under Innocent IV. againſt the Emperor Frederick II. who made War againſt the Pope, and detained ſome part of the Churches Patrimony. 14. The 2d of Lyons in 1274. under Gregory X. in the Emperor Rodolphus's Reign, againſt the Greeks. 15. That of Vienne, in 1311. under Pope Clement V. in the Emperor Henry the VIIIth's Reign, againſt the Templars and the Beguards, &c. The 16th of Florence, in 1439. under Pope Eugenius IV. for the Re-union of the Greek and Roman Church. 17. The fifth Council of Lateran in 1517. under Julius II. and Leo X. for the Abrogation of the Pragmatick Sanction. The 18th of Trent, held from 1545. to 1563. under Paul III. Julius III. and Pius IV. Baron. in Annal. Spondan. The two beſt Editions of them are, that of the Louvre Edition, conſiſting of Thirty ſeven Volumes, in Fol. much larger and more correct than that of Binius. And in 1670. Labée and Coſſartius, Jeſuits, publiſhed a new Edition of the Councils, in 17 Vol. Fol. which is one fourth larger than the Louvre Edition, and beſides, they have likewiſe run a Critick upon a great many Authors, and made many very judicious remarks upon abundance of Places, which wanted explanation. Memoirs Sçavans.

COURCELLES, (Stephen de) born at Geneva, in 1586. and died at Amſterdam in 1658. He was a Miniſter in France for many years, and having retir'd thence into Holland, gain'd great Reputation amongſt the Arminian Proteſtants, and ſucceeded Simon Epiſcopius in his Chair of Lector of Divinity. He was a great Græcian, and criticized upon the new Greek Copies of the New Teſtament, whereof he gave a new Edition, with divers readings drawn from different Manuſcripts; he prefix'd a Preface to this Work, wherein he obſerves, That it could be wiſh'd, there had not been a variety of Readings in the Books of the New Teſtament, but adds, That Experience ſhews, there are a great many, and thoſe very ancient too; yet that there are none that can be of any prejudice to Faith. Chriſtophle Sandius has, without reaſon, put Courcelles, in his Bibliotheque of Anti-Trinitarians.

COURLANDE, or CURLANDE, a Dutchy between the Baltick-Sea, Samogitia, a Province of the Kingdom of Poland, and Livonia. Goldingen is its Capital, and the Town of Mittau, the ordinary Reſidence of the Dukes. It was formerly part of Livonia, whence the River Dwina ſeparated it; but that Province being deſtroyed by the Swedes and Muſcovites, the Arch-biſhop of Riga, and the great Maſter of the Teutonick-Order put themſelves under the King of Poland's Protection, with what little was left them: And it was then Sigiſmond Auguſtus, King of Poland, erected Courlande into a Dutchy, and gave it to Godard Ketler, of Neſſelrot, laſt great Maſter of the Teutonick Order in Livonia, to hold as a Fief from the Crown of Poland. Godard died in 1587. leaving two Sons, Frederick who died without Iſſue, and William, who ſucceeded his Brother; but being diſpoſſeſſed by Sigiſmond III. and the States of Poland, he lived in Exile until his re-eſtabliſhment in 1610. The ſmall Province Semigallia, wherein the Town of Mittau is is a dependant of this Dutchy, which is the reaſon James, William's Son, took the Title of Duke of Courland, Livonia and Semigallia. Olearius.

COURT OF AIDES, a Sovereign Juriſdiction, Eſtabliſhed in France to take an account, and judge of all Taxes, Aids, Cuſtoms, Impoſitions, and of the King's Five great Farms.

COURTS ROYAL, were great Aſſemblies in which the Kings of France, who kept them, ſhewed themſelves to the People, and to Strangers, with a Pomp and Magnificence worthy the Royal Dignity. Theſe Solemnities, which were different from them of Mars's Fields, were held on the principal Feaſts of the year, as at Chriſtmas and Eaſter, &c. This Cuſtom was introduced into England, by William the Conqueror; for Eadmer, ſpeaking of Henry I. of England, calls that Solemnity, The King's Crown days, becauſe he appeared then with his Crown on his Head. They kept open Court, and threw Money to the People.

COURTENAI, a little Town of France in Gatenois, between Montargis and Sens, famous for having given its name to the Royal Family of Courtenai. Peter of France, Iſt of the name, ſeventh and youngeſt Son of King Lewis the Big or Burly, married Elizabeth, Daughter and Heireſs of Renaud, Lord of Courtenai, Montargis, Chateau Renard, Champinelles, &c. and had ſeveral Children by her. Peter II. his eldeſt Son, was Emperor of Conſtantinople, and died in 1218. leaving his Son Robert his Heir and Succeſſor, who died in 1228. His Brother Baudouin ſucceeded this, and died in 1273. leaving by his Wife Mary of Brienne, Philip, Titular Emperor, who died in 1281. leaving no other Iſſue but Catharine of Courtenai, that was married to Charles of France, Count of Valois, about 1300.

COURTENAI, (Joſſelin de) Count of Edeſſa, famous for his Vertue and great Courage. This Valiant Prince, who was drawn half dead, and all battered, out of the Ruins of a Fortreſs that he attacked near Aleppo in Syria, in 1131. lay languiſhing in his Bed, paſt all recovery, when news was brought him that the Soldan of Iconium, taking the advantage of his Ilneſs, had laid Siege to Croiſſon, who thereupon ordered his Son, Prince Joſſelin, to march out of hand againſt the Enemy; and upon his cowardly anſwer, That he did not think convenient to attack a ſtronger Party than his own, he got himſelf put in a Litter at the Head of his Troops, and marched directly towards the Soldan, who upon the News of his approach raiſed the Siege and retired: when theſe Tidings were brought the Generous Count, he got his Litter reſted on the Ground, in the midſt of his Army, and having given God thanks for ſo ſpecial a favour, he expired, more by the exceſs of his Joy, than the violence of his Pain: His Army thus victorious without fighting, brought the Body back in the ſame Litter, as if in a Triumphal Chariot, and buried it with the Honours due to ſo great a Man, in the Town of Edeſſa. Maimbourg Hiſtoir de Croiſades.

COURTIN (Anthony de) born at Riom, in 1622. was firſt Secretary to Chriſtina Queen of Sweden, and ſerv'd in the ſame quality under Charles Guſtavus, who choſe him for his extraordinary Ambaſſador to the Court of France. After this Prince's death, Lewis the XIVth declared him his General Reſident to the Northern Princes; an Employment he would not accept of before he had the Conſent of Swedeland, to which he was ſo much beholding, and then engaged. After he had ended this Negotiation, his health not permitting him to undertake any other, he applied himſelf in his retirement to the writing of ſeveral diverting and uſeful Treatiſes, as his Treatiſe of Civility, the point of Honour, Idleneſs, Jealouſy, &c. and died in 1685.

COURTRAY upon Lys, a Town of the Low Countries, between Liſle and Tournay, Ypre and Oudenarde; Latin Authors call it Corteriacum and Cortracum, and thoſe of the Country Cortrick. It's thought that in Cæſar's time it was under the Juriſdiction of the Nervi and Tournifi. Philip the Hardy, Duke of Burgundy, built a Caſtle in it, and others have added other Fortifications at different times. The French, by their too great Precipitation, loſt a Battle here in 1302. and becauſe they of Courtray kept an Anniverſary, to Celebrate the Memory of that happy day, it was plundered and burnt in 1382. Some time after it was re-built again, and is now pretty conſiderable for Commerce, its good Cittadel and great Territories. The River Lys divides it in two. The French took it in 1646. and the Spaniards re-took it the year after. Lewis the XIVth made himſelf Maſter of it in 1667. and kept it by the Treaty of Aix la Chapelle, in 1668. and fortify'd it regularly; but being afterwards given to the Spaniards by the Treaty of Nimeghen, in 1678. and re-taken again by the French; they diſmantled it before they reſtored it to the Spaniards, by the Truce of 1684. in whoſe Hands it remains at preſent. Guichardin. Graymaye. Valer. Andr.

COURZOLA, an Iſland, with a Town of the ſame name, upon the Coaſts of Dalmatia, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of the Arch-biſhop of Raguſa. It now belongs to the States of Venice, for they got it from thoſe of Raguſa by this remarkable Artifice. The Venetians have a Rock called St. Marc, which commands the Town of Raguſa, with another little Rock nearer the Place, and has no more level Earth than what one houſe that is built there takes up. Being at difference with the Raguſians, they ſent ſome People in the Night to raiſe a Fort of Paſt-board-paper painted with Earth-colour in this little Rock, and ſent ſome wooden Canon thither; the next morning the Raguſians were ſo ſurprized to ſee a Cittadel finiſhed and furniſhed with Artillery in ſo ſhort a time, that they deſired to Capitulate; whereupon enſued a Peace, whereby the Venetians got the Iſland of Courzola in Exchange for their little Rock. The Raguſiahs alſo deſired the Rock of St. Marc, but had it not. Courzola is very convenient for the Venetians; for it ſerves as an Arſenal to build and refit their Ships, being all covered with very good Timber. The Sardines, or a ſort of Sea-fiſh, and Wine, make the chiefeſt Revenues. The Cathedral, the Town Walls, and moſt of the Houſes, are built of Marble, that is dug in the Iſland about four or five Miles thence. There are five Villages, which have about 1500 Inhabitants each. As the Iſland is almoſt covered with Wood, there are ſeveral wild Beaſts in it, amongſt other, a thing like a Dog, that cries like a Cat, or Peacock. If Fire be kindled near the Woods at night, one ſhall hear great numbers of theſe Beaſts make a noiſe that reſembles a man's voice. They dig up graves, and feed on the Bodies. Are good for nothing till they are dead, and then their Skins make but a ſorry ſort of Fur. The Greeks call them Zachalia, and the Turks Tibakal. Several think they are the Hyænæ of the Ancients, which ſome have ſaid to be ſucceſſively Male and Female, and imitated perfectly Man's Voice. J. Spon. Voyage.

COUSIN, (John) a famous French Painter of Sency near Sens, very expert in Geometry and Perſpective, and in Painting on Glaſs, to which he applied himſelf very much. Some will have him to have been a Huguenot, becauſe that in repreſenting the laſt Judgment on a glaſs of the Church of Saint Romain in Sens, he plac'd the Pope in Hell environ'd with Devils. Felibien.

COUTANCE, an Epiſcopal Town of France, Capital of a ſmall Territory in Low-Normandy. See CONSTANCE.

COUTRAS, a Borough of France, in Guienne, near the Frontiers of Perigord, ſituate upon the Confluent of the Rivers Droune or Drougne, an Iſle; is famous for the Battle Henry IVth of France gained there, when but King of Navarre, the 20th of October, 1587. The Duke of Joyeuſe, General of the Royaliſts, was killed.

COUVERDEN, a little Town and ſtrong Place, being one of the moſt regular of Europe, in the Province of Over-Yſſel, in the Low-Countries. It's Capital of the Country of Drente, and lies in the middle of a great Bog, which renders its Avenues very difficult. Maurice, Prince of Orange, Son to William I. took it from the Spaniards in 1592. and the Hollanders have kept it ſince. The Biſhop of Munſter, aſſiſted by France, made himſelf Maſter of it in 1672. but Rabenhaupt took it from him two years after. Lying on the Frontiers of Weſtphalia and the Dioceſs of Munſter, it is a good Bulwark for Groningen, and the other neighbouring Towns. It's the great Road to Germany, though the Way is narrow, and between Bogs. Grotius Annal.

COWBRIDGE, a Market-Town in the County of Glamorgan in Wales, the Capital of its Hundred, governed by Bailiffs, annually choſen and ſworn by the Deputy-Conſtable under the Earl of Pembrook, of the Caſtle of St. Quintin near adjoining. The Juſtices keep a Quarter Seſſions for the County the Week after Eaſter. 136 m. from London.

COWES, a noted Harbour at the Entrance of the Creek that goes to Newport in the Iſle of Weight, fortified with a Caſtle.

COWLEY, (Abraham) born in London in 1618. was Educated in Weſtminſter-School, and Trinity-College in Cambridge, where his Progreſſes in Learning were very promiſing. At the breaking out of the Civil Wars, his Loyalty drew him to Oxford, being the King's Head Quarters, here he continued his Studies with Reputation, and was much eſteemed by the Learned part of the Court; Being afterwards ſettled in my Lord St. Alban's Family, he attended the Queen when ſhe was forced to retire into France. He was above twelve years abſent from his Native Country, during which time, he was generally employ'd in the King's Affairs; being ſometimes diſpatched into Flanders, Holland, Scotland, &c. and ſometimes employ'd in Decyphering Letters betwixt King Charles I. and his Queen. His managing of Intelligence, was a great Fatigue to him, and took up his whole time for ſeveral years together. Some time before the Reſtauration, he was ſent into England, to make his Obſervations upon the Poſture of Affairs: He had not been long in London before he was accidentally ſeized. The Uſurping Powers tryed to gain him to their Party, at his Examination, but finding him Proof againſt Intereſt and Invitation, they commit him cloſe Priſoner, from which Reſtraint, he was Enlarged by Dr. Scarbrough being Bail for him. As to his Temper, he ſeems to have been above Covetouſneſs and Ambition, and of an inoffenſive Behaviour. His Wit did not make him vain, nor his Honeſty moroſe and troubleſome. His Genius for Poetry of all Kinds, except the Drama, was Extraordinary. His imagination was Rich and Beautiful, his Judgment ſolid, his Numbers and Stile agreeable to his Subject, and his Learning comprehenſive. His Miſtreſſes, being written when he was very young, are the moſt unſerviceable part of his Poems: Here his Images are not always ſufficiently remote, and beſides, his intermixing Scripture, and Religious Alluſions, with a light Argument, is an unwarrantable freedom. His Muſe was more conſcientious, and better govern'd in his latter years. He deſign'd to have made a through Enquiry into the Faith and Cuſtoms of the Primitive Chriſtians, for the firſt four or five Centuries, and to have drawn his Obſervations into a Treatiſe, but was prevented by Death in his Undertaking. He liv'd about fifty years, and was bury'd near Chaucer and Spencer in Weſtminſter-Abby. Beſides his Folio in Engliſh, he wrote a Latin Poem, Of Plants, in ſix Books. See his Life before his Works.

COYACO, Lat. Coyacum, a place in the Dioceſs of Oviedo in Spain, famous for the Council held there in 1050. by all the Abbots, Prelates and Princes, about Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline, and the Reformation of the Cuſtoms and Manners of the Kingdom under Ferdinand I. ſurnamed The Great, King of Caſtile. Baron.

COZBI, Daughter of a Madianite Prince, called Zur. Phinees, Son of Eleazar, ſeeing Zimri, Prince of the Tribe of Simeon, enter boldly in a publick place to ſin with this Cozbi, or that he led her for that purpoſe to his Tent, followed and ſtuck both with his Dagger. This happened in An. Mun. 2583. or 84. Numbers, cap. 35.

COZRI, which ſome Jews pronounce Cuzari, is the Title of a Jewiſh Book, compoſed above two hundred years ago, by R. Juda, Levita. It contains a Diſpute of Religion in form of a Dialogue, wherein the Jews are defended againſt the Philoſophers of the Gentiles; and has a pretty exact Account of the Jews Tenets. It has been tranſlated into ſeveral Languages.

CRACOVIA, or Krakow, upon the Viſtula, Lat. Cracovia, a Town of Upper Poland, Capital of the Kingdom, with an Univerſity and Biſhoprick ſuffragan of the Archbiſhoprick of Gneſna, and was formerly for the moſt part the ordinary Reſidence of the Kings, who now generally keep at Warſaw. Some Authors take it to be the Corradunum of Ptolemy. It lies nine Leagues from Sileſia, and but a little more from Hungary. Cracus I. Prince of Poland, laid the Foundations of this Town in 700. and gave it his Name. Since that time it was conſiderably augmented, and divided into four Towns, whereof each has its different Officers and Magiſtrates; the four are called Cracovia, Caſimiria, Stradomie, and Cleparia. The firſt is environed with a Wall, fortified with ſome round brick Towers, and a Ditch which makes but inconſiderable Defence; but it comprehends the Caſtle built upon a Rock, a Mile in Circuit. It's a great ſtone building with two wings round a ſquare Court, where are three Galleries ſupported with Pillars, and paved with white and black Marble, that anſwer the Apartments, and are adorned with divers Paintings and Statues, and ſo are all the Apartments, eſpecially the King's, which is in the ſecond Story. The Cathedral of St. Staniſlaus, is famous for its Chapter and Treaſury. Beſides, there are above fifty other Churches in the Town. Our Lady's Church is in the great Square, which ſtands at the head of ten great Streets, and is environed with four ſumptuous rows of Palaces, built after the Italian way. The Academy was founded in 1364. by Caſimir I. King of Poland, who had the Profeſſors from Sorbonne, wherefore the Univerſity is called the Town of Sorbonne, as Cracovia the Rome of Poland. Jews are permitted to live here. They have a Synagogue at Caſimiria. They wear a Hat, a Ruff about their neck, and go in a long black Gown. The Swedes took Cracovia in 1655. after 5 Weeks Siege. The part called Stradomie, was almoſt quite ruin'd, and the Inhabitants forced to pay 300000 Rix Dollars, to ſecure themſelves from being plundered. They are moſt of them Merchants and Strangers, who are naturalized by the King. The Houſes are of Stone, and well built. There are alſo very fine Palaces, and pleaſant Houſes in the Country. Cromer de ſitu Polon. &c.

CRACUS, a Deity of the Egyptians, to which they uſed to offer ſalt things.

CRACUS I. Prince of Poland, choſen by the Palatines, in the year 700. Cracus II. his Son, ſucceeded him, but did not enjoy the Crown long, being killed, as hunting, by his own Brother Lech, who uſurped the Sovereign Authority. Cromer.

CRAFURD, the Title of an Earl, chief of the Lindſeys, an ancient and honourable Family in Scotland. Cambden ſays, That the Caſtle of Crafurd, in Clidſdale, was, together with the Title of Earl, conferred by Robert IId. King of Scotland, upon Sir James Lindſey, for his great valour in a ſingle Combat againſt Baron Wells an Engliſhman-man; ſo that by this Account they have been Earls about 400 years. He adds, That theſe Lindſeys have deſerved well of their Country, and are of ancient Nobility ever ſince that Sir William Lindſey married one of the Heirs of William of Lancaſter, Lord of Kandale in England, whoſe Niece in the third Degree of Lineal deſcent, was married into the moſt Honourable Family of Coucy in France. Camb. Brit. Buchanan, in his Hiſtory of King James II. mentions the Earl of Crafurd taking part with the Douglaſſes, that he ravaged the Lands of James Kennedy, Biſhop of St. Andrews, their Enemy, and deſpiſed his Excommunication. But his Son, Alexander Lindſey, being put out of his place of Sheriff of Aberbrothock by that Monaſtery, in favour of one Ogilvy; it came to a War betwixt the Lindſeys and Ogilvys; and juſt as both Armies were about to engage, the Earl of Crafurd, being a Man of great Authority, ſtep'd out betwixt them, deſigning to bring his Son and the Ogilvys to an agreement; but being treacherouſly killed in the mean time by a Soldier of the other ſide; the Lindſey's fell on, and after a bloody Battle, obtained the Victory, which they proſecuted to the utmoſt. In that ſame Reign he alſo mentions a League betwixt the Earls of Crafurd, Roſs and Douglaſs, being at that time the moſt noted and potent Families in Scotland. This did highly incenſe the King againſt Douglaſs, who being prevailed with to come to Edinbourgh on ſafe Conduct, the King ſtabbed him with his own hand, becauſe he would not diſſolve that League; this was in 1452. Upon this the reſt of the Douglaſſes took Arms with the Earl of Crafurd, and others of their Allies, ſo that the King had not ſtrength enough to oppoſe them, and therefore waited for the coming of Alexander Gordon, Earl of Huntley, who had raiſed a great Army for his Aſſiſtance. But as he was marching through Angus, the Earl of Crafurd gave him Battle at Brechin, forced the King's Main-body to give ground, and had probably obtained the Victory, if Collace, who commanded Crafurd's left Wing, had not deſerted him upon a grudge; ſo that Gordon got the Victory. But being obliged to return and defend his own Country, which was invaded by the Earl of Murray, another of Douglas's Allies, Crafurd ſtormed the Caſtles, and ſpoiled the Lands of thoſe who had deſerted him. After this Crafurd, with the other Nobles of Douglas's Party, were declared Rebels in a meeting of the States at Sterlin, and an Army was raiſed to purſue them. So that the Earl of Crafurd being wearied out with the War, made his application to the King, and was pardoned. James Kennedy, Biſhop of St. Andrew's, being a Man of great Authority, and the Nobility of Angus all interceding for him, to prevent the Deſtruction, of ſuch an eminent and ancient Family. Crafurd being thus pardoned, did quickly turn the Balance on the King's ſide, and join'd with him ſo effectually, as the Civil War was quickly brought to an end, and he behaved himſelf with ſo much Complaiſance and Courteſy amongſt the neighbouring Nobility, ever after, that his death, which did ſpeedily enſue, was much lamented by the King and all the People. James IIId being at variance with his Nobility, endeavoured to bring over ſome of them by Condeſcentions and conferring of Honours upon them; and amongſt others, he created David Lindſey, Earl of Crafurd, Duke of Montroſs; becauſe he was a powerful Man in his Country. The Papers and Records belonging to this great Family having been ſquandered during the eight years Impriſonment of the late Earl, for his adherence to the King, a fuller Account cannot now be given. The preſent Earl lived in Retirement from all publick affairs, during the late Reigns, and ſuffered amongſt others for his Nonconformity. But at the time of the Revolution, he was by his Majeſty's Favour and the Peoples Choice, made Preſident in all the chief Judicatories of the Kingdom, that of Common-pleas excepted, in all which Stations he behaved himſelf as a Loyal Subject, and a true Patriot to his Country. The Manſion-houſe of this Family is at Struthers in Fife, and the eldeſt Son bears the Title of Lord Lindſey.

CRAMOISY (Sebaſtian) a famous Printer in Paris, and the chief of that Imployment in his time; tho' it muſt be ſaid, his Editions fall ſhort, both in the Correctneſs and Beauty of the Character, of the Preſſes of Stephens, Manutius, Plantin and Froben. Cramoiſy had the Direction of the fineſt Preſs in the World, ſet up at the Louvre, by Lewis XIII. There is a Catalogue of his Editions, Printed both by himſelf and his Grandſon, who died in 1687.

CRANBOURN, a Market-Town in Dorſetſhire, the Capital of its Hundred, ſeated near the Spring of a River, that runs into the Stowre. It is a Town of good Antiquity, having a Chace which extends almoſt to Salisbury. 85. miles from London.

CRANBROOK, a Market Town in Kent, in Surry-Lath, Seated at the Head of the River Medway, 44 Miles from London.

CRANGANOR, a Kingdom in the Peninſula of the Indies, on this ſide Ganges, upon the Coaſts of Malabar, with a Town of the ſame Name. It belonged to the Portugueſe, who were Maſters of moſt of the Country, but now it's the Hollanders. Cranganor is between Cochim to the South, and Calicut to the North. The People are moſt of them Chriſtians, and there is an Arch-biſhoprick ſince 1607. which is properly that of Angamele. Jarric.

CRANMER, (Thomas) born at Aſlaeton in Nottinghamſhire, in July, 1489. He was Son to Thomas Cranmer, Eſq; a Gentleman of a very ancient Family, and whoſe Anceſtor came in with the Conquerour. His Son Thomas was Educated in Jeſus College in Cambridge, where he Commenced Doctor of Divinity, about the year 1523. The Lawfulneſs of the Marriage between Henry the VIIIth, and Queen Katharine of Spain, being made a Queſtion, Cranmer took the King's Side, and diſputed for the Divorce. The King being pleaſed with his way of arguing, Commands him to Court, and afterwards ſends him Ambaſſador into France, Italy, and Germany, where he managed the King's Affairs to his Satisfaction, and upon the Death of Arch-biſhop Warham, the King Orders him home, and makes him Arch-bibiſhop of Canterbury. He pronounces the Sentence of Divorce againſt Queen Catharine, and Marries the King to Ann of Bulloign. Upon the Receipt of the Popes Bulls for his Conſecration, &c. he Surrenders them to the King, and ſwears Canonical Obedience to the Pope, with an expreſs reſervation, Not to do any thing contrary to the Laws of God, the King's Prerogative, and Statutes of the kingdom; nor yet to bar himſelf from ſpeaking his mind freely in matters, relating to the Reformation of Religion, and the Government of the Church of England. He diſputes againſt the Popes Supremacy, in Parliament, moves for the Tranſlation of the Bible, and promotes the Diſſolution of Monaſteries; projecting an Erection of New Biſhopricks, out of the Revenues of thoſe Religious Houſes. He Divorces Queen Ann, upon her Confeſſion of certain juſt, true, and lawful Impediments againſt her Marriage with the King. He was concerned in the Biſhop's Book, being a Summary and Explication of the Grounds of Religion. When Lambert diſputed publickly before the King, againſt the Corporal Preſence, the Arch-biſhop argu'd againſt him, and held that ſide of the Queſtion, till the laſt year of Henry the VIIIth. Cranmer, with that part of the Biſhops that conſented to the Diſſolution of the Monaſteries, would not give their Vote that the King ſhould have all the Revenues of them, to his own uſe. They were willing that the Lands, granted by the Crown, to Religious Houſes, ſhould revert thither; but the Remainder, they would have had beſtowed upon Hoſpitals and Grammar-Schools, for a Charitable Proviſion, and the promoting of Learning. When the Bill of the Six Articles came into the Parliament-Houſe, he oppoſed it for three days together, with great Courage and Learning. The Book called, A neceſſary Erudition of a Chriſtian Man, was compoſed by him. He was likewiſe Inſtrumental in the Scotch Reformation, by diſcourſing ſome Perſons of Quality, Priſoners at his Houſe, after the Defeat at Muſleborough. The Engliſh Bible was ordered to be read, by an Act of Parliament paſſed by his Intereſt: Theſe ſteps towards a Reformation, occaſioned him many Enemies, particularly the Prebendaries of Canterbury, together with ſome of the Juſtices of Peace of that County, join in an Information againſt him, and to this purpoſe, preſent a Book of Articles to the Privy Council; the King was ſo much his Friend, that he made him one of the Commiſſioners to Enquire into the Truth of the Depoſitions; upon a full Examination, the Articles were prov'd falſe, and the contrivers puniſh'd. He was afterwards maliciouſly Accus'd in Parliament, by one Sir John Goſtwick, a Member of the Houſe of Commons, who was afterwards obliged to ſubmit to the Arch-biſhop, and ask Pardon. A little before the Death of King Henry VIIIth, he drew up a Form of Communion Service, at the King's Inſtance. The Arch-biſhop Crown'd King Edward VIth, and takes out a Commiſſion to execute his Office under him, and afterwards the Homilies were drawn up by him and the reſt of the Biſhops. When the Commons in Devonſhire made an Inſurrection, upon the Score of the Reformation, and the incloſing of Commons; he procured Sermons to be made againſt them. He gets the Common-Prayer-book Confirm'd by Act of Parliament, and endeavours to preſerve the Revenues of the Church. Afterwards he publiſh'd his Book againſt Biſhop Gardiner, and the Corporal Preſence; and in 1551. the New Common-Prayer-book was, by his Care, finiſh'd and authoriz'd. The next year, the Church-Articles were drawn up, by the Arch-biſhop and the reſt of the Biſhops. When King Edward declar'd his Intentions of leaving the Crown by Will to the Lady Jane Grey; the Biſhop oppos'd this Settlement, as prejudicial to the Right of the Princeſs Mary: But afterwards the Lawyers being of the contrary Opinion, he reſigned himſelf to their Judgment, and the King's Importunity, and ſet his Hand to the Will. Upon Queen Mary's coming to the Crown, he refuſes to fly, and is ſoon after Attainted of Treaſon, and ſent to the Tower, from whence he's convey'd to Oxford, where, after a publick Diſputation about Religion, he is Condemn'd for a Heretick, and being Degraded by the Popes Delegates, Appeals to a General Council; ſoon after, he is prevail'd upon to recant his Principles, but order'd notwithſtanding to be burnt. At the Sermon Preach'd immediately before his Execution, he confeſſes and laments his Diſſembling, and as a Penance upon his Weakneſs, voluntarily burn'd off the hand which ſign'd his Recantation. At his Death he pray'd for King Philip and Queen Mary, charg'd the People to obey 'em, as God's Miniſters, declaring withal, that whoever reſiſted them, reſiſted God's Ordinance. Dr. Burnet's Hiſt. Reform. Stripe's Life of Arch-Biſhop Cranmer, where the Reader may ſee an Account of his Works, &c.

CRANOSTAW, or Kraniſlaw, Lat. Granoſlavia, a Town of Poland, in Black-Ruſſia, ſituated upon the little River of Wieprz, which forms a Lake there that contributes much to its ſtrength. Cranoſlaw has now the Epiſcopal See of Chelm, that was removed thither.

CRANTOR of Solos, an Academick Philoſopher much eſteemed in the CXVIth. Olympiad, or 440th year of Rome, was Diſciple of Xenocrates, and companion of Crates and Philemon. He left Commentaries that amounted to 30000 Lines, compoſed ſeveral Poems, which he ſealed up, and placed in Minerva's Temple. Diog. Laert.

CRAON upon Oudon, a little Town of France, in Anjou, towards the Frontiers of Maine and Bretany, gave its Name to the Family of the Barons of Craon, ſo famous in the Hiſtory of France.

CRAPONE, the Name of the Canal of France in Provence, drawn from the River of Durance to Arles. This Name was derived from Adam de Crapone, who gave the Deſign of this Work, and put it in execution. He alſo undertook to make a Communication between the two Seas in France; and King Henry II. gave him Commiſſioners that begun to forward the Work, when Crapone was poiſoned at Nants, whither he was ſent to demoliſh a Cittadel that was begun on an ill Spot of Ground.

CRASSITIUS (Lucius) of Tarentum, took the ſur-name of Panſa. He liv'd under the Reign of Auguſtus, and was a very famous Grammarian, taught at Rome, was Præceptor to Julius Antonius, Marc Antony's Son, and afterwards apply'd himſelf altogether to Philoſophy. Sueton.

CRASSUS, (Lucius) an excellent Orator mentioned by Cicero, liv'd about ninety years before our Saviour. It's ſaid he was the Son of P. Licinius Craſſus, who was Conſul and High-prieſt in the 623d year of Rome, and died the ſame year in the War againſt Ariſtonicus Eumenes's Son. Publius Craſſus alſo, ſaid to be the Orator's Brother, ſtuck to Marius, and kill'd himſelf to avoid falling into the Enemies hands. It was ſaid of the Conſul Licinius Craſſus, that he was the Learnedeſt, the Nobleſt, moſt Eloquent and Famous Lawyer of the whole Common-wealth. This Family, a branch of that of the Licinians, furniſh'd Rome with ſeveral Magiſtrates, and the Common-wealth with Officers; as C. Licinius Craſſus, Conſul in 583. of Rome; another in 657. &c.

CRASSUS (Marcus Licinius) a Roman Conſul, deſcended of a Noble Family, was Son of a Cenſor. He married his Brother's Widow; and being extraordinary Covetous, dealt in Slaves, to enrich himſelf. So that it's ſaid, when he begun to have ſhare in the publick Concerns, he was worth 300 Talents, that is, 280000 Crowns; and afterwards became ſo very wealthy, that he treated all the people of Rome, and gave each Citizen a Proviſion of Corn for three Months. When he was going againſt the Parthians, he made an Inventory of his Goods, and found he was worth 7100 Talents, that is 4260000 Crowns. His ordinary ſaying was, as Cicero obſerved, That he eſteemed none rich, but he that could maintain an Army. Not being able to live at Rome, under the Tyranny of Cinna and Marius, he left it in 668. and retired into Spain, where a friend of his, called Vibicus, kept him hid in a Cave for eight Months. Thence he paſſed into Africa, to Sylla, who employ'd him, and upon all occaſions he gave ſignal Proofs of his great Courage in the War againſt the Slaves, commanded by Spartacus, which got him the Honour of the little Triumph. Being Prætor in 684. he decimated the Deſerters, defeated Spartacus, and Crucified all thoſe that fled from the Fight. He was afterwards Conſul in 684. with Pompey, then Cenſor, and afterwards of the Triumvirate with Cæſar and Pompey. This Union was of no long continuance; but Craſſus joining with Pompey obtained a Conſulate in 699. Syria fell to his ſhare; and as his Avarice was ſtill unſatiable, he plundered the Temple at Jeruſalem, and carried an ineſtimable booty out of Judea in 700. This great Covetouſneſs put him upon a fatal War againſt the Parthians; for his Son Marcus was killed almoſt in his fight; and he himſelf loſt his Life ſoon after, in the 701ſt of Rome. It's ſaid, that the Parthians having cut off his Head, and carried it to Hyrode, one of their Kings, he cauſed them to pour melted Gold into its Mouth, that as his Soul burned when he was alive, with the inſatiable deſire of that Metal, ſo his Body, deprived of life, ſhould be alſo conſumed with that ſame. Plutarch, Florus, Joſephus.

CRATEUS, Guardian to his Nephew Idomeneus King of Crete, Son of Deucalion, governed the Kingdom when Idomeneus was abſent at the Siege of Troy, conſulted the Oracle about his Fate, which returned anſwer, That he ſhould be killed by one of his Children. He had a Son called Althemenes, and three Daughters; the Son hearing what the Oracle had pronounced, freely quitted his Country, and retired to Rhodes; the three Siſters were alſo diſpoſed to foreign Princes; ſo that Crateus ſeemed to be ſafe enough, until his Grief for the Son's abſence, made him rig out a Ship, to go in ſearch of him. He landed in the Iſle of Rhodes, which made the Inhabitants, taking him to be an Enemy, run to their Arms. His Son among the reſt came too, who aiming at the likelieſt of theſe pretended Enemies, wounded the Father, of which wound he died. Althemenes finding what he had done, prayed the Gods that he might not ſurvive his Father; ſo the Earth opened, and ſwallowed him. Diodorus Sicul.

CRATERUS, Lieutenant, and Favourite of Alexander the Great, lived in the 425th year of Rome, gave proofs of his courage and wit, by the fine Works he compoſed of Alexander's Conqueſts. Voſſius. Strabo in his 15th Book cites a Letter which Craterus wrote to his Mother Ariſtopatris, wherein he gives an account of the Curioſities which he had ſeen in the Indies.

CRATERUS, Alexander the Great's Favourite, and Rival to Antipater, to make them Friends; that Prince uſed to ſay, that Antipater was Friend to Alexander, and Craterus to the King; intimating, that the firſt loved his Perſon, the other his Dignity. This was a Gentleman whoſe very Air bore a great deal of Majeſty, and whoſe Courage deſpiſed the greateſt dangers. He was killed in the fight againſt Eumenes, who obſerving him expire, in the Throng alighted from his Horſe, took care of him, and had him honourably buried. Suidas, Strabo.

CRATES, Diſciple of Diogenes the Cynick, a Theban, Son of Aſcondus, lived in the CXIIIth Olympiad, the 426th of Rome, 328th before the Chriſtian Æra. Antiſthenes in his Succeſſions ſays, That Crates having obſerved in a Comedy, that one Telephus, who held a Basket of precious things had quitted all to follow the Cynick Philoſophy, ſold his Goods, and did the like. Some Authors ſay, he threw all his Money into the Sea. Others, that he put it into a Banker's hands, with Orders to give it to his Children, if they ſhould chance to have no Wit; but if they ſhould have any, and did become Philoſophers, he ſhould diſtribute it among the People, becauſe the others would have no occaſion for it. Nicodromus, a Muſician, having made his Cheek ſwell with a Blow he gave him, he laid a Paper over it with theſe words, Nicodromus did it. When Alexander asked him, Whether he would be glad that his Country were rebuilt? He anſwered, He did not care whether it were or no; becauſe another Alexander might ruine it again; adding, That his Country was his contempt of Fame and Poverty, and that he ſhould never fall into Enemies hands. Hyparchia, a Philoſopher too, was Crates his Wife. Laert.

CRATES, an Academick Philoſopher, Son of Antigonus, was of Athens, as Diogenes Laertius ſays, or rather of a Town called Trie. He was Diſciple of Polemon, and his Succeſſor. Polemon died in the CXXVIIth Olympiad, in the 484th of Rome. Theſe two Philoſophers were ſo very intimate when living, that they ordered they ſhould be buried in the ſame Tomb. Laert.

CRATES, Native of Pergame, a Greek Hiſtorian, Diogenes Laertius, ſpeaks of one Crates, who mode Comedies after the old mode, of an Orator of the Family of Iſocrates, of a Peripatetick Philoſopher, and of an Academick Philoſopher of Tarſus, of one that made Epigrams, and of a Geometrician, all of this Name.

CRATES, an Athenian Comick Poet, was the firſt that brought Drunkards upon the Stage. His Pieces were very diverting, but alſo very Satyrical. Plutarch.

CRATESIPOLIS, Alexander's Wife, Tyrant of Sicyone, ſhe kept the poſſeſſion of this Kingdom after her Husband's death. The Sicyonians looking upon her as a Woman, and Wife to a Tyrant, would have dethroned her; but ſhe put her ſelf at the head of an Army, beat the Rebels, and hanged about forty of the moſt ſeditious. So ſhe revenged her Husband's death, whom they had murthered, and made her ſelf dreaded by thoſe that would not obey ſo worthy a Princeſs. Diodorus Sic.

CRATILUS, a Philoſopher of Athens, was Diſciple of Heraclitus, and Præceptor to Plato after Socrates death. He lived in the 350th year of Rome. Laert.

CRATINUS, an Athenian Poet, who wrote the old Comedy, compoſed 21 Pieces, and carried the Prize nine times. He was bold in his Compoſitions, and ſo free in his Stile, that he did not ſpare the very Officers of the Common-wealth. He was one of the greateſt Drinkers of his time, yet lived to be ninety five years of age, as Horace obſerves in one of his Epiſtles to Mecænas, lib. 1. ep. 19.

CRATIPPE, Cratippus, a Greek Hiſtorian, contemporary with Thucydides, made a Collection in his Writing of what the other had omitted, as Dionyſius Halicarnaſſeus obſerves in his Critick upon the Hiſtory of Thucydides.

CRATIPPUS, Native of Mitylene, a Philoſopher that taught at Athens in the 706th year of Rome, 46 years before the Chriſtian Æra. Cicero's Son was one of his Auditors, as appears by the beginning of Cicero's firſt Book De Officiis. He alſo comforted Pompey after the Battle of Pharſalia, as may be ſeen in Pompey's Life writ by Plutarch.

CRATIVAS, or Cratevas, a Phyſician, contemporary with Hippocrates, and much eſteemed by him for his Skill in Plants.

CRATON (John) called De Craftheim, born at Breſlaw in Sileſia, in 1519. He was Phyſician to the Emperors Ferdinand the Iſt, Maximilian IId, and Rodolphus IId. His skill in the Languages, Philoſophy, and the polite part of Learning, together with his Conſiderableneſs in his own Profeſſion, procured him the Eſteem of moſt of the Learned Men of his Time. He wrote ſeveral fine Treatiſes, as Iſagoge Medicinæ, Periocha Methodica in Galeni Libros, De Elementis, Natura Humana, Atrabile, Temperamentis & Facultatibus Naturalibus. Microtechne ſeu, Parva Ars Medicinalis, Methodus Therapeutica, Concilia, Epiſtolæ, &c. Chytræus in Mænum. Melchior Adam in Vit. Medic. German. Vander Linden de Script. Medic. &c.

CRATS, (John Philip) Count of Schaupfeſtein, Colonel in General Tilli's Army, ſignalized himſelf in ſeveral occaſions, as in the re-taking of Friberg and Lanſperg from the Swedes, and making himſelf Maſter of Weiſſemberg. The Duke of Bavaria ſatisfied with his Fidelity and Valour, made him Governour of one of his Fortreſſes; but the Count liking War better than the keeping of a Fort, asked leave to quit it, under pretext of going to Bohemia, to defend his own Lands; and without ſtaying for an Anſwer, went to Ratisbonne, and thence to the Swediſh Camp, where he was employed. But being taken at the Battle of Nordlinguen, was beheaded in the Priſon at Vienna, the ſame year, 1634. Le Blanc.

CRAU, a great ſtony Place in Provence, ſeven or eight Leagues wide. The Ancients ſeeking the reaſon of that prodigious quantity of Stones, ſome were of Opinion, as Ariſtotle, that an Earthquake was the occaſion of them. Poſſidonius thought that the Place had been formerly a Lake. But Æſchylus, making uſe of his privilege to Romance, ſays, That when Hercules fought with the Ligurians, Jupiter ſeeing the Danger he was in, ſhowred thoſe Stones upon the Enemy, and battered them all to pieces.

CRAVEN (William) the Son and Heir of Sir William Craven, Knight, Merchant-taylor, and Lord Mayor of London, in 1611. 9 Jac. I. in his youth much affecting military Exerciſes, was ſent to the Wars of Germany by King Charles I. where he ſerved under Guſtavus Adolphus, and afterwards in the Netherlands, under Henry Prince of Orange, in which valiant Adventures he gain'd ſuch Honour, that at his Return, he was by the ſame King Charles raiſed to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Craven of Hamſted-Marſhal, in Com. Berks, 2 Car. I. with remainder for want of Iſſue male of his own Body, to John Craven and Thomas Craven, his Brothers ſucceſſively, and to the Heirs male of their Bodies. And for his faithful Services during the Civil War, advanced by King Charles II. in the 16th year of his Reign, to the Title of Viſcount Craven of Uffington in the County of Berks, and Earl of Craven in Com. Ebor. And by reaſon both his Brothers were then dead without Iſſue, with Remainder of that Title, of Lord Craven of Hampſted-Marſhall, for want of Iſſue-male of his own Body lawfully begotten, to Sir William Craven of Lenchwike in Com. Wigorn. Knight, and to the Heirs Male of his body. And for default of ſuch Iſſue, to Sir Anthony Craven, Knight, Brother to the ſame Sir William, and to the Iſſue male of his Body. And afterwards, by reaſon that the Iſſue-male of the ſaid Sir William Craven of Lenchwike in Com. Wigorn, Knight, was then extinct, in caſe of failure of Iſſue male from the before ſpecified, Sir Anthony Craven, Kt. by other Letters Patents, bearing Date 17 Car. II. obtained a farther Grant, That the ſaid Title of Lord Craven of Hampſted-Marſhall, ſhould remain unto Sir William Craven, Knight, Son to Sir Thomas Craven, Brother to the ſaid Sir Anthony, and to the Heirs male of his Body for ever. Dugdale.

CRAVEN, a part of the Weſt-riding of Yorkſhire, hilly and rough, in which Shipton ſtands. It gives the Title of an Earl to the Honourable William Craven, created by King Charles the IId. An. 1664.

CRECI, or Creſſi upon Authie, Lat. Cariſiacum, a Borough of France in Picardy, in the County of Ponthieu, between Abbeville and Herdin. It was formerly but an inconſiderable Village, but very remarkable for the memorable Battle loſt by Philip of Valois againſt the Engliſh, which was the greateſt defeat the French ever had. Edward the IIId, King of England, had an entire Victory, for above 30000 French Foot, 1200 Horſe, and 80 Colours, were loſt in that Fight on the 26th of Auguſt, An. 1346. John King of Bohemia; Charles, Count of Alencon, the King's Brother; Lewis Count of Flanders; and ten or twelve of the other chiefeſt Men were killed too. King John, as blind as he was, fought very valiantly, getting his Reigns tied to two of the ſtouteſt Knights Bridles. Here has been held a Council by Hincmar, Arch-biſhop of Creci, in 853. where Charles the Bald aſſiſted, and the Monk Godeſchalk accuſed of preaching ſome Errors in the Doctrine of Predeſtination, Free-will, and Redemption by our Saviour's Paſſion, was depoſed of his Order of Prieſthood, and whip'd, until he threw his Writings into a Fire that was made before him. See GODESCHALK, and The Univerſal Bibliotheque, T. 11. pag. 229. T. 3. Art. 1[illegible].

CREDI (Lorenzo di) a famous Painter of Florence, ſet himſelf wholly to imitate the Works of Leonardo de Vinci, his Copies were ſo very fine, that 'twas hard to diſtinguiſh them from the Originals. Felibien, &c.

CREDITON, a Market-Town in Devonſhire, upon the Rivers Credit and Forton. The Capital of its Hundred, and formerly a Biſhop's-ſee, till King Edward the Confeſſor tranſlated the ſame to Exon. It is adorned with a fair Church built Cathedral wiſe, well inhabited, in a rich Soil, and drives a good Trade of Serges. Both the aforeſaid Rivers fall into the Ex. 148 m. from London.

CREIL, Lat. Creolium, a little Town of France, in the Government of the Iſle of France, in Valois, ſituate upon the River Oyſe, that has a Bridge over it there, between the Bridges of St. Maxence and St. Leu, upon the ſame River, two Leagues from Senlis, and a little more from Creſpi.

CREKELADE, a Market-town in Wiltſhire, in the Hundred of Highworth, which returns two Burgeſſes to Parliament. It's almoſt encompaſſed with Water, 65 Miles from London.

CRELLIUS (John) the moſt eſteemed Unitarian, next to Socinus. The Socinians in Poland, and Fratres Poloni, reckon him an Author of the Second Claſs. He was born in 1590. in a Village near Nuremberg. After he was brought up here, he embraced Socinus's Opinion; went to Poland in 1612. ſettled at Racovia, where the Unitarians had a School, in which he became Profeſſor, and was afterwards made Miniſter. He has writ ſeveral Tracts upon the New Teſtament; Grotius having writ a Book Of Chriſt's Satisfaction, againſt the Doctrine of Fauſtus Socinus, Crellius made an Anſwer to it. Crellius writ alſo a Book of Morals, and amongſt other things maintains, That it's Lawful for Men to beat their Wives. Memoirs Scavans.

CREMA, a Town of Italy, in the State of Venice, with a Biſhoprick erected by Pope Gregory XIIIth, and Suffragan of Bolognia. It's Capital of a little Country which the Italians call Cremaſco. Crema is upon the River Serio, which at the borders of Milannois joins the Adde. It's fine Palace, its Caſtle, and other Fortifications make it conſiderable; yet it was formerly but an ordinary Town or Caſtello, as the Italians called it. The Name Crema is thought to have been given it when it was re-built upon the ruins of a Town burned by the Arch-biſhop of Milan, upon pretence of Hereſy, in 951. However, it belonged firſt to the Emperors, afterwards to the Viſcounts of Cremona and Plaiſance; and at laſt fell to the Venetians. Merula, Blondus.

CREMELENA, a Caſtle or Palace of the great Duke of Muſcovy, in the Town of Moſcow. This is environ'd with three Walls, all well furniſhed with Canon. It's ſo big within, that it may paſs for a ſmall Town contained in a greater. In the middle of the Court are two fine Towers covered with Copper gilt. The higheſt is called John Uvelike, or Great John. In the other is a Bell of ſuch extraordinary bigneſs, that it's ſaid, it weighs Three hundred and thirty ſix Quintals or hundred weight; and takes eighty ſtrong Men to ring it. It's never rung but at great Feſtivals, the Coronation of the great Dukes, and when Ambaſſadors make their Publick Entries. The great Duke's Palace is built backwards, on one ſide whereof is the Patriarch's Houſe, and on the other, great Pavilions, wherein the Knez and Baiores, that is, the moſt conſiderable Lords of Court live. About 1630. there was a new beautiful free-ſtone Palace, built after the Italian faſhion, for the young Prince; the ancient dwelling being of Wood, and therefore thought the healthfulleſt. The Furniture of both is very magnificent, where every thing that is rich, or a Curioſity in Foreign Countries, is to be ſeen. At one end of the great Square, is the Duke's Exchequer-chamber; and within the Walls of this vaſt ſpace, are above fifty little free ſtone Chapels covered with gilt Braſs; the moſt conſiderable is that of St. Michael, where the Czar's Tombs are; there are alſo two fine Monaſteries, one of Friars, the other of Nuns, which follow both St. Baſil's Rule, and the Greek Ceremonies, which are practis'd by all the Muſcovite Church. At the Caſtle-gate, towards the South, is a fine Church, dedicated to the Trinity, and commonly called Jeruſalem; it's the moſt magnificent Structure in all Moſcow. It's ſaid that the great Duke John Baſilovitz, who built it about 1550. was ſo taken with this Building, that he put the Architect's Eye out, that he might not build any other like that. Near this Church are two great pieces of Cannon pointed againſt the Place the Tartars uſed to break in at. Olearius.

CREMERA, a little River of Tuſcany, famous for the Defeat of 300 Fabians, who falling into an Ambuſcade of the Enemy, were moſt of them cut off upon the Banks of this River. This troubled the Romans ſo much, that they put this day among the other unfortunate ones in their Calendar, and call'd the Gate they marched out at Scelerata, or Unfortunate. Livy, Baudrand.

CREMONA, a Town of Italy, in Milanois, near the Po; Capital of Cremonois, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan to Milan. It was formerly a famous Colony of the Galli Senones, and then of the Romans. It lies in a great Plain near the River Po, with which it joins by the Canal Oglio, which fills the Town-ditch that is about five hundred paces round. Its Caſtle is very ſtrong and its Tower very high. Moſt of the Streets are large and ſtreight, beautified with good Buildings, magnificent Churches, and large Squares. Cremona has been Subject to great Revolutions, and ſuffered, not only when Hannibal came into Italy, and in Vitellius's time; but alſo by the Goths, Sclavonians, and Lombards, about 630. But it was re-built out of its Ruins, about [illegible] 1284. by the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa, who built the Tower above-mentioned, which is ſuppoſed to be one of the higheſt in Europe. Since this time it has given the Title of Viſcounts; and was under the French, the Venetians, and the Dukes of Milan. The French and Modenois, after they had defeated the Spaniards in its Neighbourhood, laid Siege to the Town it ſelf in 1648. but could not take it. Tit. Liv. Leander Alberti.

CREMPEN, or Krempen, Lat. Crempa, a little Town of Holſtein, in the Province of Stormaren, belongs to the King of Denmark. It's very well Fortified, and lies upon the River Store that empties it ſelf into the Elbe near Glukſtadt.

CREON, King of Thebes, Son of Menecius, and Brother to Jocaſta, liv'd about A.M. 3830. He ſeiz'd the Crown of Thebes, both before Oedipus's Reign, and alſo after his Death. He put Antigone to death, only for burying of her Brother Polynices, which was looked upon as ſo great a piece of Barbarity, that Theſeus, at the inſtance of the Theban Ladies, made an Expedition againſt him, and depriv'd him both of his Kingdom and Life. Sophoc. Antig. Statius Thebais.

CREON, Archon or Prætor of Athens, thoſe that were in that Office before him govern'd ten years, but Erixias dying, or being depoſed in the XXIIIth Olympiad, the 68th of the Foundation of Rome, they ſubſtituted Prætors, who governed but a year, and Creon was the firſt of theſe Archons.

CREOPHILUS, Hoſt or intimate Friend of Homer, liv'd about A.M. 3070. ſome will have him of Samos or Chio, and that he was Homer's Son-in-law: He preſented him with the Poem of the taking of Oechalia.

CREQUI, a Noble and Ancient Family of France, took its name from the Lordſhip of Crequi in Artois, upon the Borders of Picardy.

CREQUI (Charles I. of this name) Lord of Crequi, &c. Peer and Mareſchal of France; one of the greateſt Commanders of his time, and famous for his Duel with Don Philippin, Baſtard of Savoy, whom he kill'd in 1599. Don Philippin being in the Fort called Chamouſſet, when it was taken by the French, and in haſte to make his eſcape, chang'd Cloaths with a Common Soldier, and forgot a very rich Scarf; this Soldier falling to one of Crequi's Serjeants, the Colonel charg'd the Trumpet that came from the Savoyards to demand the Dead, to tell Dom Philippin from him, That he ſhould have a greater care of Ladies Favours. Dom Philippin took this joke as a great affront, and three years after, Peace being concluded, came to ſeek Crequi, who wounded him, and ſent a Chirurgeon to take care of him. The Duke of Savoy hearing of this fight, forbad the Baſtard his fight, before he had repair'd his Honour: So Dom Philippin challenges the ſecond time, and was kill'd near the Rhone, where they fought. Crequi ſignalized himſelf afterwards at the fight of Pont Cé in 1620, and at the Siege of St. Jean Angeli in 1622. did great great Service upon ſeveral occaſions againſt the Spaniards. He was killed by a Cannon Ball at Crema in 1638.

CREQUI (Francis) Mareſchal of France, Governour of Metz, Lieutenant General of his Majeſties Armies, gave ſufficient Proof, both of his Valour and Conduct, and was a Scholar as well as a Soldier. He was was made Mareſchal of France in 1668. and was in moſt of the conſiderable Actions in the Field, about that time. In 1675. he was defeated near Pont de Conſarbrick upon the River Sarr. After this Misfortune he threw himſelf into Treves, when Beſieg'd by the Germans, and would never be brought to Sign the Capitulation. In 1676. he ſerv'd in the King's Army, in the Siege of Conde and elſewhere. The Year after he was made Governour of Metz, and was General of the King's Army in Lorrain and Germany. The Germans, under the Duke of Lorrain, were forced to quit their Deſign of Recovering Lorrain; for the Mareſchal de Crequi obſerved them ſo narrowly, that they were forced to repaſs the Rhine, after the Loſs of above eight thouſand of their Men. He cut off ſeven or eight hundred of them at the fight of Cockberg, and then Marching up into their Country, took Friburg from them, in the beginning of November.

CRES, Firſt King of Crete, begun his Reign, An. 2097. of the world, and gave his Name to the Iſland. He built Gnoſſus, and a Temple to Cybile. Euſeb. Chron.

CRESCENS, Diſciple of Saint Paul, thought to have Preached the Goſpel at Mayence and Vienne in France, of which laſt Town he was Biſhop, until he was Martyr'd under Nero; or, as others ſay, under Trajan. The paſſage of Saint Paul, in the Fourth Chapter of his Second Epiſtle to Timothy, ſays, That Creſcens was ſent to Galatia, and not to Gaul, which makes it queſtionable, Whether he were the Creſcens that founded the Church of Vienne.

CRESCENS, Cynique Philoſopher, liv'd in the IId Age in 154. He accus'd the Chriſtians of ſo many ill things, that Juſtin Martyr writ a ſecond Apology, in their Vindication, which he addreſſed to the Emperors: This occaſion'd his own death the 13th of April, in 163.

CRESCENTIO, (Marcellus) Cardinal, Biſhop of Marſico, in the Kingdom of Naples. He was Protector of the Order of the Ciſtercians, and perpetual Legate of Boulogne. Julius III. named him his Legate to preſide in the Council of Trent, which he did the XI, XII, XIII, XIV, and XVth Seſſion; after this laſt ended in 1552, the Cardinal fell ill at Trent, his ſickneſs was ſaid to proceed from a fright he took, for ſitting up all Night to acquaint the Pope with what paſſed; he fanſied he ſaw a Dog with a terrible wide mouth, fiery Eyes, and Ears hanging down, that came juſt to him as if he were mad; upon this he called his Servants, who could ſee no ſuch thing; yet, the Cardinal, frighted with the Spectre, began to be delirious, and was ſo ill, that he deſpair'd of ever recovering, though the Phyſicians and his Friends aſſured him, there was no fear of him. Thence he was carried to Verona, where, when he was juſt dying, he cryed, Have a care of that Dog that is getting upon the Bed. Ughel. Bzovius, Spondan. Morery takes this Story for a ſort of a Fable.

CRESCENTIUS (Numantanus) a Roman Patrician, lived in the Xth Age, and forced Pope John XVth to make his eſcape into Tuſcany, in 985. but was re-called ſome time after, and he and Creſcentius agreed pretty well. After his death Pope Gregory V. was choſen, againſt whom Creſcentius ſet up John of Calabria, Native of Roſſano, and Biſhop of Plaiſance, under the Name of John XVI. The Emperour Otho III. came to his Couſin Gregory's aſſiſtance, put the Anti-pope to death, and Creſcentius being taken in his Fort, was thrown from the top of one of the Towers, and being dragged from one ſide to another, was at laſt hanged up. Thus Glaber Rodolphus tells this paſſage; but the Cardinal Peter Damienus, and Leo of Oſtie, Author of the Hiſtory of Mount Caſſin, gives a different account of it; for the firſt affirms in the Life of St. Romuald, That the Emperor promiſed Creſcentius his Life, upon condition he would deliver him the Caſtle of St. Angelo, but that he cauſed his Head to be cut off notwithſtanding the Promiſe. Leo d'Oſtia. Baronius.

CRESPET, (Pater) a Celeſtin Monk, wrote ſeveral very learned Pieces, and dyed in 1595. The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, Summa Catholicæ Fidei & Eccleſiaſticæ Diſciplinæ, abſolutiſſimæ Legis Evangelicæ Pandecta. Diſcourſ. Catholiques ſur le Mortalitè de l'Ame, &c. Le Hiſtoire des Celeſtins M. S. in Bibl. Pariſ.

CRESPI in Valois, a little Town of France, Capital of Valois in the Iſle of France; Latin Authors call it Crepiacum: It has a Provoſtſhip and Chatelenie. The ancient Counts of Valois bore the Title of Counts of Creſpi. It was in this Town that Francis I. made Peace with Charles V. in 1544.

CRESPIN, or CRISPIN (John) born at Arras in the XVIth. Century, underſtood the Law and the Polite part of Learning very well, coming to Paris, he was firſt, Clerk to the famous Charles du Moulin, and afterwards Advocate to the Parliament; but making an Acquaintance with Beza, he turn'd Proteſtant, and retir'd to Geneva in 1547. He had already publiſh'd his Nomenclatura Actionum. Inſtitutionum Imperialium Lib. &c. And afterwards at Geneva, he wrote the Hiſtory of the French Proteſtant Martyrs. Baldwin obſerves, That Creſpin had no luck in his Fortune, being forc'd to go to Service, to maintain himſelf. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Balduin. in Reſponſ. ad Calvin.

CREST, or the Creſt near the Drome, Lat. Creſtidium, Creſtum, and Creſta Arnoldi, a Town of France in Dauphine, five Leagues from Valence, and a little more from Montelimar, was conſiderable in the XIIth Century, having a Tower and Caſtle that render'd it the beſt that then belong'd to the Counts of Valentinois. In the laſt Age this Place declared for the League, and in 1589. Montoiſon that commanded in it, ſubmitted to Henry the IVth. Videl. Chorier. Hiſt. Dauph.

CRETE, or Creet, an Iſland of the Mediterranean to the South of the Ægean Sea. It's now call'd the Iſle of Candia, to the South of the Archipelago; the Inhabitants ſacrificed Men to Jupiter and Saturn, and likewiſe worſhiped Mars, Mercury, Apollo and Diana as Deities. They had a Cuſtom every Night to caſt a black or white Stone into a Quiver, according to the good or evil Succeſs of the Day, and to count all at the Year's end; and as they meaſured their Life by their Joy and Content, they believ'd they liv'd but as many Days as they found white Stones in the Trunk or Quiver. It's ſaid they invented the Religion of the Greeks, Muſick, and the uſe of Arms; that is, Bows and Arrows, Swords and Head-pieces. They had Muſicians to play on the Flute and Harp when they charg'd, and danc'd all armed, whence came the Pyrrhique Dance, whereof Pyrrhichius of Cydon was Author. They were in ſuch great eſteem amongſt their Neighbours, that Philopœmen, Prætor of the Achaians, ſail'd into Crete, to form himſelf under their Diſcipline, and learn all the Stratagems of War, wherein they were very expert; and at his return the Achaians judg'd him worthy to command their Horſe. Theſe Iſlanders paſs'd for great Pyrates, and as great Cheaters; ſo covetous alſo, that Polybius ſays, Gain was ſo welcome to them, that they never examin'd how it came. Theſe ill Qualities gave occaſion to ſay, as Conſtantine Porphyrogeneta obſerves, That there were three very bad C's, Crete, Cappadocia, and Cilicia; yet this Iſland has produc'd famous Men too, as Dictys, who wrote the Wars of Troy; Epimenides, the Poet; Cteſiphon, a famous Architect, with ſeveral others. Chevreau.

CRETHEIS, Wife of Acaſtus King of Theſſaly, became paſſionately in love with the young Peleus, newly married to a very beautiful Princeſs called Erigone, and having ſought all poſſible Means to make him commit Adultery, without ſucceſs, ſhe chang'd her love into a Deſire of Revenge, ſo made Erigone believe, that her Husband courted another Woman, and that the Match was almoſt made up; whereupon the poor credulous Princeſs fell into deſpair, and killed her ſelf. After this, that wicked Woman made complaint to Acaſtus, That Peleus would have debauch'd her, and got falſe Witneſſes to ſwear to the Accuſation; whereupon Acaſtus condemn'd him to be expos'd to the Centaurs, but the generous Prince returned victorious from the Fight, killed Cretheis in her Husband's Preſence, and then Acaſtus himſelf. Apollodorus.

CRETHEUS, Son of Æolus, and Grandchild of Hellen, King of the greateſt part of Greece, poſſeſs'd the Province of Jolcos in Theſſaly. His Wife Demodice falſely accuſed the young Phryxus, Son of Athamas, and Nephew of Cretheus, of endeavouring to debauch her; whereupon the credulous Uncle deſign'd to put him to Death, but diſcovering his Innocence, made the Wife ſuffer, and married Thyras his Brother Salmoneus's Daughter, and had three Children by her, whereof the eldeſt, called Æſon, ſucceeded him. Hyginus.

CREVANT, upon the River Yone, a little Town in France in Burgundy, famous in Hiſtory for the Battle fought in 1423. between the French commanded by John Stuart Earl of Boucan and Douglas, and the Engliſh and Burgundians, which laſt won the Day.

CREUSA, Daughter of Creon, King of Corinth was married to Jaſon, which ſo troubled Medea, his caſt-off wife, that to be reveng'd, ſhe deſtroyed ſeveral of the Royal Family by Witchcraft. Creon and his Daughter were both wretchedly murthered. Ovid. Metam. Senec. Trag.

CREUSA, Daughter of Erectheus King of Athens, ſhe was Mother to Achæus and Ion. Apollodorus lib. 1. There was another Creuſa, Daughter to King Priam, and Wife of Æneas, with whom ſhe eſcap'd from the burning of Troy; but Æneas loſt her, as they were making their way to imbark. Virg. Æneid. 2.

CREUSE, or La Creuſe, a River of France, which hath its Source in the Marches of Limoſin, a League above Feletin; after a long Courſe, wherein it receives ſeveral leſſer Rivers, it empties it ſelf into that of Vienne.

CREW (John) of Stene in the County of Northampton, Eſq; Son and Heir to Sir —— Crew, Knight, one of the Serjeants at Law to King Charles I. being deſcended from the ancient Family of Crew in the County Palatine of Cheſter, by his great Prudence with no ſmall hazard, Loyally contributing his beſt Endeavours in order to the happy Reſtoration of King Charles II was in the 13th Year of that Prince's Reign, advanced to the Degree of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Crew of Stene. He married Jemina, Daughter and Co-heir of Edward Walgrave of Lawford, in Com. Eſſex Eſquire; by whom he had Iſſue, four Sons, Sir Thomas his Succeſſor, John, Nathanael Biſhop of Durham, and Walgrave, and two Daughters. Sir Thomas, by Mary his Wife, Daughter to Sir George Townſend, late of E. Raynham in Com. Norf. Baronet, hath had Iſſue, John who died in his Youth, and two Daughters, Anne and Temperance; and by Anne his ſecond Wife, Daughter and Co-heir to Sir William Airmin of Oſgodby in Com. Linc. Baronet, Widow of Sir Thomas Woodhouſe of Wilberhalk in Com. Norf. Baronet, one Daughter named Jemina. Dugdale.

CREWKERN, a Market Town in Somerſetſhire, the Capital of its Hundred, ſituate on the Banks of the River Parret. From London 133 Miles.

CRIASUS V. King of the Argiens, ſucceeded Argus, An. Mund. 2412. reigned 54 Years, and was ſucceeded by Phorbus.

CRICKHOWEL, a Market Town in the County of Brecknock in Wales, the Capital of its Hundred. The Marquiſs of Worceſter has a Caſtle here. From London 148 Miles.

CRIM, a Town of the leſſer Tartary, which was alſo called Crim Tartary. This Country comprehends all the Peninſula which the Ancients call'd Cherſoneſus Taurica, and was inhabited by the People called Cimmerians.

CRINAS, or Critias, a famous Phyſician of Marſeilles, lived in Nero's time. He was alſo an Aſtrologer, and conſulted his Ephemerides and the Planets for the Cure and Diet of his Patients. He gain'd ſo much Money, that he allow'd a Million to environ the City with a Wall, and left another conſiderable Sum to repair others. Plin. lib. 29.

CRINISUS, or rather Crimiſus, a River in the Weſtern part of Sicily, and now called Il Belici deſtro; it has its Source in the Valley of Mazara, 28 Miles from Palermo, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Sea of Tunis. Servius tells us this Story about it: Laomedon refuſing Neptune and Apollo, the Recompence he had promiſed them for building the Walls of Troy; Neptune, irritated at the injuſtice, ſent a Sea-Monſter that deſolated the Town. The Oracle being conſulted about this Misfortune, anſwered, That to be eas'd of it, they ſhould expoſe a certain Number of Trojan Virgins. Hippotes, one of the moſt conſiderable Men of the Town, fearing it ſhould come to his Daughter's Lot, choſe rather to expoſe her to the Mercy of the Waves in an open Veſſel, that ſhe might periſh far from him, than that ſhe ſhould be devoured at home in his ſight; but by good luck ſhe arriv'd in Sicily, where the River Criniſus fell in love with her, and enjoy'd her under the Shape of a Dog; or, as others ſay, of a Bear, and begot Aceſtes King of Sicily. Virg.

CRIOLLES, a Name which is given to the Families deſcended of the firſt Spaniards that ſettled in Mexico in America.

CRISPUS, or Flavius Julius Criſpus, Son of Conſtantine the Great, by his firſt Wife Minervina, was born at Arles, and made Cæſar by his Father in 317. with his Brother Conſtantine the Young, Son of Fauſta. This to be reveng'd of Criſpus, who refuſed to ſatisfie her Luſt, accuſed him to the Emperor of endeavouring to debauch her. The credulous Emperor poiſoned this promiſing Son, ſo worthy to reign, that Julian, who laugh'd ſo much at Conſtantine, could not help praiſing him. This happened in 326. according to Idacius, yet others will have it before the Council of Nice. Criſpus had given Proofs of his Courage in the War againſt the Germans. Oroſ. l. 7. cap. 18.

CRITHEIS, Mother of Homer, was born in the Town of Cuma in Æolia, a Province of Aſia Minor, and Daughter of Atellis, who left her at his Death under the Guardianſhip of his Brother Meon; he falling in love with his Niece, got her with Child; but to ſave her Reputation, married her to Phemius, a famous Grammarian of the Town of Smyrna. The Child was called Meleſigenes, becauſe he was born on the Banks of the River Meles, which runs by the Walls of that Town, and afterwards took the Name of Homer, which in Greek ſignifies Blind, becauſe he loſt his Sight. This is what Herodotus ſays, but Ariſtotle relates it otherwiſe.

CRITHON, one of the principal Citizens of Oeante, a Town of Achaia, refus'd his Daughter Themiſto to Phricodemus, who deſired her for his Son Phiton; this irritated the Tyrant ſo much, that he caus'd all Crithon's Sons to be killed in his Preſence. Polyen. l. 8.

CRITIAS, a Greek Hiſtorian, compoſed a Work of Commonwealths, eſpecially of that of Sparta, which Athenæus quotes. Clemens Alexandrinus has a Quotation very advantageous to this Author's Reputation. It's not known what time he liv'd in. He is, perhaps, the ſame that Plutarch cites in the Lives of Lycurgus and Cymon.

CRITIAS, Son of Calleſcbres, at firſt Socrates's Friend, but afterwards turn'd one of the thirty Tyrants that Lyſander ſet up at Athens, in the 94th Olympiad, 350th Year of Rome. Plato makes uſe of him in his Dialogues, and Sextus Empericus cites a Fragment of his.

CRITICKS, a Name given thoſe that pretend to paſs their Judgments upon the Productions of Wit. Of late Years there have been ſome preſumptuous Criticks, that imagined they might cenſure our beſt Writers, but the ſeverity of the French Parliament and Civil Magiſtrates check'd their Boldneſs and Inſolence as appears by ſeveral Sentences upon that Occaſion. And the injurious Criticks that have eſcap'd the Princes and Magiſtrates, could not ſhun publick Hatred, that branded them with Infamy. The Names of Anytus, Melitus and Lycon, became odious to the Ancients for their Boldneſs in falling upon Socrates; and in our Days, the Memory of Gaſpar Scioppius is become odious to all the Learned, as well Catholicks as Proteſtants, for his Confidence in cenſuring the moſt conſiderable Books and Perſons in the Commonwealth of Learning, as M. de Thou, Scaliger, Voſſius, Fr. Strada, and all the Jeſuits in general; and there have been ſome learned Men in late Ages that have loſt their Lives by too raſh a Cenſure of other Peoples Works; for we are almoſt aſſur'd, that the famous Mathematician Regiomontanus, that is, John Muller of Coningsberg was poiſoned by George of Trebizonde's Children, becauſe he cenſured their Father's Writing: Nor is any ignorant of Ramus's Murther contriv'd by Carpentier in revenge of Ariſtotle's Honour, too paſſionately attack'd by him; and it's thought, that it was the fear of a like Deſtiny that occaſioned the famous Denys Lambin's Death a Month after, who had ſeveral Diſputes with Carpentier upon the ſame Subject. Francis Robortel was ſtuck in the Belly with a Dagger by Baptiſta Egnatius, a Venetian, as an Anſwer to his Cenſure. George of Trebizonde taking upon him to criticize upon Plato, was ſo humbled by Cardinal Beſſarion, that he quite loſt his Wit, and became the Object of ſome Peoples Laughter, and of others Compaſſion. Ariſtarchus and Zoilus, famous Criticks of Antiquity, had this difference between them, That the firſt was Learned and Judicious, the other Paſſionate and Unſincere; ſo that his Name has ſince been given to impertinent Criticks, jealous of the Renown of good Authors. All do not agree about the Place or Manner of Zoilus his Death, but ſay, It was a violent one, being a juſt Puniſhment for his Raſhneſs and Spight. They that ſay he went from Greece into Egypt, write, That Ptolemy Philadelphus had him hang'd; others ſay he was burned alive at Smyrna in Aſia; thoſe that ſay he died in his own Country, write, That he was ſtoned to Death. Ariſtarchus's Reputation was ſo well eſtabliſhed, that his Cenſure made all be received that he approved, and all rejected that he condemned; ſo that they that intend to gain Credit by their Criticks, ſhould be Maſters of ſeveral rare Qualities that are hardly met with in any one ſingle Perſon; the moſt important is Judgment, that is, good Senſe, and that accuracy of Wit requiſite to make a juſt diſcernment between Truth and Falſhood, and between Good and Evil; beſides this, he muſt be univerſally Learned and Sincere, exempt of Prejudices and Preventions. Baillet.

CRITOBULUS, a famous Phyſician liv'd in the CXth. Olympiad, the 414th Year of Rome. He drew an Arrow ſo dextrouſly out of King Philip of Macedon's Eye, that the Hurt could not be diſcerned. Plin. Hiſt. Nat. l. 7.

CRITOGNATUS, an Auvergnac Lord, who declared for the Liberty of his Nation, and ran Vercingentorix's Fortune; the Gauls Army, beſieged by Cæſar in Alexia, now Aliſe, in the Dutchy of Burgundy, beginning to be ſtreightned for Proviſions, moſt were for capitulating, or for a generous Sally, that they might die like Men with their Swords in their Hands; Critognatus ſpoke, and ſaid, He approved neither the one nor the other; that they who were for the firſt did not deſerve to be called Gauls, ſince they would run into a ſhameful Bondage; and that the others that would die with their Arms in their Hands ſeem'd to ſeek Death to be rid from the Inconveniencies of a Siege, which was a great Weakneſs; that for himſelf, he was for holding out to the laſt Extremity, and imitate in that Occaſion the Courage of the ancient Gauls, who ſeeing themſelves Pin'd up, and reduced to the greateſt Wants, by the Teutons and Cimbri, lived of thoſe that were not of Age to fight. This Reſolution was taken, and the Gauls were ſoon reliev'd, but to no purpoſe, for they never could force the Romans Intrenchments. J. Cæſar.

CRITOLAUS, a Greek Hiſtorian, rendered his Name very famous by a Treatiſe of the Epirots cited by Plutarch in his third Book. He alſo wrote of Aſtronomy under the Title of Phænomena. Aulus Gellius, who ſpeaks of this Work, quotes Critolaus the Peripatetick, and tells how he was ſent to Rome along with Diogenes the Stoick, and Carneades the Academick. Macrobius ſays the ſame in his firſt Book of Saturnalia. Some Authors believe, that the Hiſtorian and Philoſopher were the ſame, though it's ſure there were two Writers of the Name. Aul. Gellius.

CRITOLAUS, Son of Reximachus, Citizen of the City of Tegæa in Arcadia, was eldeſt of the Three Brothers that fought againſt three Sons of Damoſtratus, Citizen of Phenee, another Town of Arcadia, to decide, by that Fight, the long Quarrel and War of both thoſe Towns; both Critolaus's Brothers were killed, after they had wounded their Adverſaries, but Critolaus killed his Man called Damoſtratus, and then made an end of the other two wounded: But as he returned Victorious, his Siſter Damodice, that was promiſed to Damoſtratus, refuſing to congratulate his Victory with the reſt of the Inhabitants of Tegæa, ſo vexed him, that he killed her on the Place. Her Mother appeared againſt him before the Senate of the Town; but the Tegæans could by no means be brought to condemn him, who juſt gave them their Liberty, and ſecured them from their Enemies. Plutarch in Paral.

CRITO, an Athenian Philoſopher, lived in the XCIVth Olympiad, and the 150th Year of Rome. He was one of the moſt zealous Diſciples of Socrates, and look'd to him ſo well, that he ſupply'd him with what-ever he wanted. Critobulus, Hermogenes, Cteſippus and Epigenes, were all this great Man's Scholars. Diogenes Laert. Plato.

CRITON, a Phyſician, Diſciple of Acron of Agrigentum, lived in the LXXXVIIth Olympiad, or 322 of Rome, and was the firſt Inventer of Coſmetick, that is, that Art that is for the Beauty and Ornament of the Body.

CROATIA, called Krabatin by the Germans, and Corbavia in Latin, a Province of Europe placed by ſome in the ancient Liburnia, and by others in the Country of the Corbates mentioned by Cedrenus; it's commonly diſtinguiſhed into the Auſtrian and Ottoman, becauſe the Houſe of Auſtria and the Turks are Sovereigns thereof; the firſt comprehends the Towns of St. Vit upon Fiume, of Segma, Aſſangrad, &c. and the other Wibitz Coſtannvitz, Cliſſe, Corbau, &c. The People of this Province that has Title of a Kingdom, are good Warriors, and take much after the Germans, Hungarians and Sclavonians for their Cuſtoms and Manners, ſo that their Gentlemen are ſaid to ſhare with the firſt in their Drunkenneſs, to imitate the ſecond in their Pride, and to be every whit as importunate as the laſt. It's ſaid, that the Croates, eſpecially thoſe called Vſcokes, run up and down Mountains like Bucks, and have Shooes made of Cord on purpoſe. Formerly the Kingdom of Croatia comprehended all between the Drave and the Sea of Dalmatia, and was divided into three parts, but now that is called Croatia that lies between Boſnia, Sclavonia, Germany and Dalmatia. Soranzo.

CROCODILON, a Town of Thebais or Upper Egypt, ſituated upon the Banks of the Nile, and called as it is becauſe Crocodiles were adored there as Gods. The Crocodile is an Amphibious Animal that lives part on Land and part in the Water; is ſhap'd like a Lizard, has a wide Mouth, four ſhort Feet, but well arm'd with Nails or Claws; its Eyes are like Hogs Eyes, and its Tail is very long; its Skin is ſo tough or hard, that a Croſsbow-ſhot will not pierce it. They are very bold, and great Enemies to Man, and have the addreſs to throw Water where People may come either to waſh themſelves or to drink, that ſo the place being ſlippery, they might the ſooner fall, and they the eaſier prey upon them. There are ſome that are ſo very big that they ſwallow whole Children at a Mouthful. Marmol. Strabo lib. 7.

CROCUS, a young Man, who falling deſperately in love with the Nymph Smilax, was changed into the Herb we call Saffron, and ſhe into the Yew-Tree. Ovid. Metam. l. 4.

CRODO, a falſe Deity of the Ancient Saxons, more particularly worſhipped in the Town of Altemburg, where it was repreſented in the Shape of an old Man ſtanding upon a Fiſh, which they called a Perch, holding a Wheel in one Hand and an Urn in the other. Several think, and perhaps right too, That this was the Idol of Saturn; for, beſides that, the Word Crodo ſounds ſomewhat like the Greek Κρόνος, which ſignifies Saturn, the other Circumſtances of the Saxon Godhead agree very well with the God of Time; for there is nothing older in the World at leaſt, than Time repreſented by the Old Man, the Fiſh and Wheel mark'd its Inconſtancy, and the Urn the Plenty it produces. Crantz. in Saxon. l. 2.

CROESUS, King of Lydia, ſucceeded Alyattes II. An.Mund. 3496, and was one of the moſt powerful and rich Princes of his time; was the firſt that deprived the Greeks of Aſia of their Liberties, and rendred them Tributary; he alſo ſubdued the Phrygians, Myſians, Paphlagonians, Thracians, Carians, and ſeveral other People; but was vain, as appears by his Diſcourſe with Solon; for, dazled with the luſtre of his Greatneſs, he ask'd that great Man, what he thought of his Glory and good Fortune, or if he thought there was any in the World happier than he was; The grave Philoſopher anſwered, That he thought Telles, a Citizen of Athens, Clenobis and Bito far happier; adding, That no Judgment could be well made of Mens Happineſs before their Death. Crœſus laugh'd at this, and called Solon a ridiculous Fellow, becauſe in his Opinion he was too obſtinate and nice an Obſerver of the Philoſophers Severity; yet a little after, intending to make War againſt Cyrus King of Perſia, he was worſted and taken Priſoner in the Town of Sardis, the Capital of his Kingdom, the 14th Year of his Reign, and 209 of Rome, 675 Years after Argon firſt King of Lydia, and 170 after Gyges, firſt of the Branch of the Mermnades, of which Crœſus was deſcended. Cyrus intending to get rid of him, expos'd him upon a great Funeral Pile; where the unfortunate Prince, conſidering his Death near at hand, reflected upon what Solon had ſaid concerning Men's Happineſs, repeated his Words very often and aloud, calling upon that Philoſopher. When this was told the Victorious Prince, he recalled the Sentence, made uſe of his Advice upon all Occaſions, and recommended him to his Son Cambyſes at his Death, with whom he ſpent the reſt of his Days. Cambyſes, after he had performed 1000 great Exploits, and being ready to depart for Egypt, ask'd Crœſus, Whether he was equal to his Father; he made anſwer, No, for as yet you have not ſuch a Son as your Father left behind him. Crœſus had three Sons, who, though their Names are not known, yet are very remarkable in Hiſtory; the eldeſt being an Hoſtage in King Cyrus's Court, and diſcovered in a Plot againſt that great Prince's Life, was killed in his Father's ſight; the next being Dumb, and the Oracle conſulted about the Occaſion, returned this Anſwer, That the King had no Occaſion to wiſh for his Speech, ſince that was to be the unhappieſt Day of his whole Life that he ſhould begin to ſpeak; and it fell out ſo, for the very day Sardis was taken, and himſelf made Priſoner; a Perſian Soldier was lifting up his Sword to kill him, which ſight frightened the Child ſo much, that by a wonderful effort of Nature, he cry'd out, Soldier, hold, do not ſtrike my Father; and after that Moment he continued to ſpeak; the youngeſt by a quite contrary Prodigy begun to ſpeak diſtinctly ſoon after he was born, which was looked on as a fatal Omen of the Ruine of the Kingdom of Lydia. Herodotus. Valerius Maximus.

CROISADE, a Name given the Chriſtian Expeditions againſt the Infidels for the Conqueſt of the Holy Land, becauſe they who engaged themſelves in the Undertaking, wore a Croſs on their Cloths, and had one in their Standards. There were Eight in all; the firſt in 1096, at the Solicitation of the Greek Emperor and the Patriarch of Jeruſalem. Peter the Hermit, who was Preacher of this Croiſade, was made General of a great Army, a thing that did not agree with his Profeſſion, being a Prieſt; and all the Princes, Hugo the great Count of Vermandois, Brother to Philip I. King of France, Robert Duke of Normandy, Robert Count of Flanders, Raimond Count of Tholouſe and St. Giles, Godefroy of Bouillon Duke of Lorrain, with his Brothers Baldouin and Euſtace, Stephen Count of Chartres and Blois, Hugo Count of St. Paul, with a great Number of other Lords, took different ways to meet all at Conſtantinople. The firſt who marched his Troops was the famous Godefroy of Bouillon, who had a greater ſhare than any of the reſt in this Undertaking, but had not the Command of the whole Army, as it's commonly believed. He ſet forwards the 15th of Auguſt, 1096. with a Body of 10000 Horſe and 70000 Foot, all well accouter'd Troops, and moſt of 'em pick'd out of the French, Lorrain and German Gentry. Before the other Princes were come to Conſtantinople, Duke Godefroy and Tancrede had paſs'd the Helleſpont, and begun the Siege of Nice the 6th of May. It was then they diſcovered the Emperor Alexis's Treachery, who, notwithſtanding all his fair Promiſes, made what advantage he could of them, waiting for an Opportunity to deſtroy them; for they found out, That from the very beginning of the Siege, he ſolicited the Beſieged to yield to him, and to refuſe to obey the Francs; yet that any difference ſhould not prove an Obſtacle to their Deſign, they conſented to let him have the Place after ſeven Weeks Siege. Then the Chriſtian Princes led their Victorious Army through Aſia Minor, enter'd Syria, and took Antioch. Jeruſalem was taken in 1099. and Godefroy of Bouillon choſen King. A little after the Chriſtians gain'd the famous Battel of Aſcalon againſt the Soldan of Egypt, which Victory put an end to the firſt Croiſade, for the Princes and Lords, with thoſe that followed them, believing they had fully accompliſhed their Vow, took leave of King Godefroy and return'd to their reſpective Countries. The Second in 1144. after the taking of the Town of Edeſſa from the Chriſtians, by Sanguin, a Turkiſh Prince. This Croiſade was headed by Conrad III. Emperor, and Lewis VII. King of France. The Emperor's Army was either deſtroy'd by the Enemy, or periſhed through the Treachery of Manuel the Greek Emperor and his Brother-in-Law, and the ſecond Army through the Unfaithfulneſs and Treachery of the Chriſtians of Syria, were forc'd to quit the Siege of Damaſcus. The Third in 1188. after the taking of Jeruſalem by Saladin Soldan of Egypt: The chief of this were the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa, Frederick Duke of Suabia, his ſecond Son, Leopold Duke of Auſtria, Berthold Duke of Moravia, Herman Marquiſs of Baden, the Counts of Naſſaw, Thuringia, Miſſen and Holland, and above 60 other of the chiefeſt Princes of the Empire, with the Biſhops of Beſancon, Cambray, Munſter, Oſnabrug, Miſſen, Paſſau, Visburg, and ſeveral others. The Emperor Frederick parted from Ratisbonne in 1189. and marched victoriouſly into Thrace, in ſpight of the Greek Emperor; thence into Aſia Minor, where he defeated the Soldan of Iconium; but drawing near Syria, he was taken ill, and died in 1190. His Son Frederick, Duke of Suabia, led the Army to Antioch, thence to Tyre, at laſt to the Camp before Acre or Ptolemais, beſieged by Guy of Luſignan, King of Jeruſalem, for two Years before, and propos'd to give a general Aſſault, which was done both by Sea and Land, but without any good Succeſs. This was the laſt Military Action that Frederick was in, for he died ſoon after of the Diſtemper that begun to infect the Camp: His Death prov'd fatal to the Chriſtian Army, becauſe the Germans in deſpair for the loſs of their Emperor and Prince, would ſubmit to no other General, but returned all home, ſave a few that ſtaid under the Command of Duke Leopold of Auſtria. Some Months after, Philip the Auguſt of France, and Richard Coeur de Lion, arriv'd with their Fleets, and then the Chriſtian Army, conſiſting of above 300000 fighting Men, was in a Condition to triumph over Saladin, had not Diſcord form'd ſeveral Parties amongſt the Commanders. The Kings of France and England had great Diſputes, which were increaſed by what happened between Guy of Luſignan and Conrad Marquiſs of Montferrat, for the Kingdom of Jeruſalem, which the one pretended to keep, and the other would have; but this did not laſt long, a Peace being made, at leaſt in appearance, they forwarded the Siege of the Town, and took it the 12th of July 1191. Philip the Auguſt falling ill, retired after this Conqueſt, leaving a good part of his Army in Syria under the Duke of Burgundy; Richard, King of England, ſtay'd behind a Year longer, and at laſt concluded a Peace with Saladin upon theſe Conditions; That all the Coaſts from Joppa to Tyre ſhould be left the Chriſtians, and that Saladin ſhould have all the reſt of Palæſtina, except Aſcalon, which was to be his, who at the Expiration of the Truce ſhould be his that could get it; and that during this Truce, which was to laſt three Years, three Months, three Weeks and three Days, it ſhould be lawful for the Chriſtians to go to Jeruſalem in ſmall Companies to pay their Devotions there. After this King Richard departed in the Year 1192. leaving the Kingdom of Jeruſalem to the Count of Champagne his Nephew, and that of Cyprus to Guy of Luſignan. The Fourth was undertaken in 1195. by the Emperor Henry the VIth. after Saladin's Death. This Emperor rais'd three great Armies; the firſt went by Land to Conſtantinople, whence it paſs'd to Antioch, thence to Tyre, and thence to Ptolemais or Acre; the ſecond went by Sea, and re-took Sylves in Portugal, which the Saracens poſſeſſed then; the third paſs'd into Sicily, where the Emperor, who led it in Perſon, endeavoured to exterminate the Race of the Norman Princes. After he had put all thoſe to cruel Deaths that had join'd againſt him, he embark'd part of his Army, which arrived in a few Days at Ptolemais. The Chriſtians gained ſeveral Battels againſt the Infidels, took a good many Towns, and were in the way of Succeſs, until the News of the Emperor Henry the VIth's Death made them haſten back into Germany. The Fifth Croiſade was publiſhed by Pope Innocent III's order in 1198. but the moſt part of this amus'd themſelves to take Zara for the Venetians, and afterwards to make War againſt the Greek Emperors. They that went forward to Palæſtina made but ſucceſsleſs Efforts for the recovery of the Holy Land; for though John de Neule, who commanded the great Fleet equipp'd in Flanders, arrived at Ptolemais a little after Simon of Montfort, Renard of Dampierre, and the other Lords who quitted the Confederates before they left Venice, and the Monk Herloin arrived alſo with the Britons he commanded, ſo that there were enough to beat all the Infidels out of Palæſtina; yet the Plague deſtroying many of them, and the reſt either returning or engaging in the petty Quarrels of the Chriſtian Princes, there was nothing done; ſo that it was eaſy for the Soldan of Aleppo to defeat their Troops in 1204. The Sixth took the Town of Damietta, but were forc'd to ſurrender it again. The Emperor Frederick in 1228. went to the Holy Land, and the next Year made a Peace with the Soldan for ten Years, upon theſe following Conditions; That the Soldan ſhould deliver the Chriſtians the Towns of Jeruſalem, Bethlehem, Nazareth, Thoron and Sidon, but that the Temple of Jeruſalem ſhould be left to the Saracens, to perform the free Exerciſe of their Law: After this the Emperor returned into Germany without rebuilding the Walls of Jeruſalem, or of any of the other Towns deliver'd him, ſo that the Chriſtians were only Maſters of them in Appearance. About 1240. Richard Earl of Cornwall and Brother to Henry III. King of England, arriv'd in Palæſtina, with a good Engliſh Croiſade; This great Prince ſeeing it impoſſible to have any Succeſs whilſt the Templars and Hoſpitallers continued their Diſputes and private Animoſities, with the Advice of the Duke of Burgundy, the great Maſter of the Hoſpitallers, and chiefeſt of the Croiſade, accepted the advantageous Conditions the Soldan offered; ſo a Peace was concluded, the Priſoners exchanged on both ſides, eſpecially thoſe taken at the Battel of Gaza, amongſt whom was the great Conſtable Montfort; and that the Chriſtians ſhould enjoy ſome Lands of Palæſtina, then in the Soldan's Poſſeſſion. After this Richard imbark'd in 1241. and ſteer'd towards Italy. In 1244. the Coraſmins, People deſcended from the ancient Parthians, driven out of Perſia by the Tartars, croſs'd the Euphrates, and came to beg ſome Land of the Soldan of Egypt, who appointed them Palæſtina, where they preſently broke in, and gave the Chriſtians a general Defeat near Gaza: There were but few Knights, with the Conſtable, Count Philip of Montfort, Prince of Tyre, the Patriarch Robert, ſome Biſhops, and a few hundreds of common Soldiers that eſcaped. The great Maſters of the Temple, and of the Teutonick Knights were kill'd upon the Place, and the great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem, with the famous Walter de Brienne Count of Joppa, and King John's Nephew, were led in Chains to Babylon. The Seventh Croiſade was led by St. Lewis, who appeared before Damietta after the Feaſts of Whitſuntide 1249. This Town was ſoon taken, whereupon they reſolv'd to march directly to Babylon, Capital of the Kingdom, but they found the Saracens encamped near Maſſora, and after ſeveral Battels, a Sickneſs happening in the Chriſtian Army, the King was forced to endeavour a Retreat, but being followed by the Infidels, moſt of his Soldiers were miſerably butchered, and himſelf and the Nobility taken Priſoners in 1250. Then there was a Treaty concluded; by the Articles a Truce was to continue for ten Years; and the Chriſtians were to keep what they were in Poſſeſſion of, excepting Damietta, which was to be delivered to the Soldan for the King's Ranſom, with 800000 Bezans of Gold, which amounts according to ſome to 400000 Livres, according to others to ſo many Crowns of Gold, for the reſt of the Priſoners. The King and Lords were thus ſet at Liberty after 31 Days Confinement. The Counts of Flanders, of Bretany, of Soiſſons, with ſeveral other Lords, intending for France, took their leave of the King, who ſailed for Syria, and arriv'd after ſome Days at the Port of Acre, where, after he had put that and the other Sea-ports in a good Condition, he returned into France in 1254. This ſame Prince put himſelf at the Head of the Eighth Croiſade in 1270. and arriv'd with his Fleet at Cagliari in the Iſle of Sardinia, where in a Council of War a Reſolution was taken to beſiege Tunis in Africa: The Fleet came in ſight of Tunis and Carthage about the 20th of July, and ſoon made it ſelf Maſter of the Port, then of the Tower and at laſt of the Caſtle of the latter; but they delayed the Siege of Tunis, expecting the King of Sicily, who did not come in a Month after, and was by ſo long a Stay, the Cauſe of the unhappy Succeſs of that Voyage, which he himſelf had ſo eagerly adviſ'd; for as it was in the greateſt heat of Summer, and that they wanted freſh Water, terrible Fluxes and Fevers infected and made a ſtrange deſtruction in the Camp in a little time. John Triſtan, Count of Nevers, a Prince but 20 Years of age, died on the third of Auguſt; the Cardinal Legate outlived him but a ſhort time; and St. Lewis himſelf, who died the ſame Month, left the Army in a very ill Condition: The 25th of the ſame Month Charles King of Sicily came up with a good Fleet about the time the King, his Brother, departed this Life, and begg'd his Son and Succeſſor, King Philip the Bold, to finiſh ſo important a War; whereupon they advanced towards Tunis to block it up cloſer, and fought ſeveral Battels, wherein the Moors were always worſted; ſo that the King of Tunis fearing the Succeſs of the War, ſent to deſire a Peace, or at leaſt a Truce; at a Council of War, both the Kings of France and Sicily conſented to a Truce of ten Years, upon theſe Conditions; That he ſhould ſet all the Chriſtian Slaves of his Kingdom at Liberty; That he ſhould give the Dominican and Franciſcan Friars leave to preach the Goſpel in his Territories, and build Monaſteries, and baptize all thoſe that ſhould deſire it; beſides that, he ſhould pay King Charles the 40000 Crowns yearly which this Prince paid the Pope for the Kingdom of Naples and Sicily. After this, both Princes embarked each for his own Kingdom; but Prince Edward of England, who came before Tunis with his Fleet about the time this Treaty was agreed upon, ſailed towards Ptolemais, where he landed with John Son to the Duke of Bretagne; his ſmall Body that conſiſted but of 300 Engliſh and French, were reinforced with 500 Friſons, and with a few more which his Brother Edmund followed him with out of England. This Relief hinder'd Bendocdar from laying Siege to the Town of Acre; but at laſt, Hugo King of Cyprus and Jeruſalem, finding he was in no Condition to hinder the Soldan's Conqueſt, obtained a Truce in 1272. and Prince Edward returned into England to take Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom left him by his Father King Henry's Death, ſo that this Croiſade contributed nothing to the recovery of the Holy Land. In 1291. the Town of Acre was taken and plundered by the Soldan of Egypt, and the Chriſtians were diſpoſſeſſed of all in Syria. There has been no Croiſade ſince that time, though the Popes have often endeavoured and preſſed the Chriſtians to ſuch an Undertaking, as Nicholas IV. in 1292. Clement V. in 1311. and ſeveral others ſince. Maimburg Hiſtoire des Croiſades.

CROISSANT, Creſcent, or Half-moon, an Order of Knights inſtituted in 1448. by René of Anjou, called the Good King of Sicily, Duke of Anjou, and Count of Provence, in the Town of Angers. The Symbole or Mark of this Order was a Creſcent of Gold, wherein was written in blue Letters, Loz en Croiſſant, which is a kind of Logogriſe, intimating that Loz or Praiſe is acquired by encreaſing in Vertue and Glory: They tied to this Creſcent as many ends of Points of Gold enamell'd with Red as the Knights of the Order have been in perillous Rencounters, ſo that by the Number of theſe little Points one might eaſily gueſs at the Courage and great Exploits of the Knights they belonged to. The Knights wore a Cloak of Crimſon Velvet, the ſhort Mantle of White Velvet, with the Lining and Caſſock of the ſame: Under the Right Arm was a Creſcent of Gold hanging upon a Chain of the ſame, and tied to the upper part of the Sleeve. The Order conſiſted of 50 Knights, comprehending the Chief, who was Senator or Preſident; for it muſt be obſerved, That King René, when he inſtituted this Order, took only the Title of Maintainer, under the Protection of St. Maurice, to whom he would leave the Honour to be Chief. The firſt Article was, That none could be received into the Order if he was not a Prince, a Duke, Marquiſs, Count, Viſcount, or deſcended of an Ancient and Noble Family, at leaſt a Gentleman of Four Deſcents, and without any Blemiſh or Note of Infamy. Mennius.

CROIX du Main (Francis la) born in the Province of Main towards the latter end of the XVIth Century. In 1584. he publiſh'd his French Bibliotheque, being a general Catalogue of all Authors wrote in French.

CROMER (Martin) a Polander, Secretary to King Sigiſmond II. and afterwards Biſhop of Warmia, liv'd in the XVIth. Century. He wrote a Hiſtory of Poland in 30 Books, from the Year 550. to 1548. together with another Treatiſe of the Situation, Cuſtoms, Inhabitants, &c. of that Kingdom. He publiſh'd likewiſe ſome Books of Controverſy againſt the Proteſtants, as Colloquiorum de Religione Lib. IV. De Cœlibatu Sacerdotum, &c. He died in the Year 1589. Mir. de Script. Sæc. XVI. Martin Zeiler de Hiſt. &c.

CROMER, a Market-Town in the County of Norfolk in the Hundred of North-Erpingham, lying to the Sea, 102 Miles from London.

CROMWELL (Thomas) Son to a Blackſmith in Putney near London; a Man of great natural Parts; and for that reaſon entertain'd in the Service of Cardinal Woolſey : When the Cardinal declin'd, and a high Charge, conſiſting of many Articles was brought againſt him into the Parliament-houſe ; Cromwell, then a Member of the Houſe of Commons, appeared vigorouſly for the Cardinal, and baffled the Bill. At his firſt riſe at Court, he was made Maſter of the King's Jewel-houſe, afterwards advanced to the Degree of a Peer, made Maſter of the Rolls, and Keeper of the Privy Seal, and had a great hand in the Diſſolution of Monaſteries. At laſt the King made him Vicar General, Lord Vice-gerent in Eccleſiaſtical Affairs , Earl of Eſſex, and Knight of the Garter. His Office of Vicar General, is often confounded with that of Lord Vice-gerent in Eccleſiaſtical Matters ; but this is a miſtake, for they were two different Places, and held by two different Commiſſions ; by the firſt, he had neither Authority over Biſhops, nor Precedence of them ; but the other gave him place next to the Royal Family, and a compleat Delegation of the King's whole Power in Eccleſiaſtical Affairs. He is ſaid to have given too much Encouragement to Bills of Attainder, without bringing the Perſons to their Anſwer, and fell afterwards himſelf by thoſe rigorous Methods of Juſtice. He was Arreſted for High-Treaſon in the Council Chamber , by the Duke of Norfolk, ſent to the Tower, Attainted for Hereſy and Treaſon by Act of Parliament, and Beheaded on Tower-hill, on July 28th, 1540. In his Speech upon the Scaffold, he deliver'd himſelf ſomewhat ambiguouſly in Reference to Religion, but rather in favour of the Roman Catholick Communion. Burnet. Hiſt. Reformation, Part Iſt. Baker's Chron.

CROMWELL (Oliver) born in the year 1599. at Huntington, was deſcended of a conſiderable Family in that County. He ſtudy'd ſome little time at Cambridge and Lincolns-Inn, but without much improvement either in Learning or Law. His Youth was at firſt, unmanageable and lewd. After ſome time he pretends to Reform, upon Church of England Principles, and within a little while turns Puritan. He takes a Farm in the Country, but is almoſt broke before he quits it : His Circumſtances being thus Embarraſſed, he was packing up for New England. But his Uncle, Sir Robert Steward, dying, left him an Eſtate, which prevented his Voyage. He turns Preacher in the Iſle of Ely, is made Free-man of Cambridge, and afterwards Burgeſs for that Town, in 1640. When the Rebellion broke out, he offered his Service to the Earl of Eſſex, and had a Commiſſion for a Captain of Horſe. He brought his Troop to Edge-hill ; and imagining the King had much the advantage of the Day , run away from the Fight, for which he had like to have been Caſhier'd : Tho', to do him Juſtice , he afterwards always appeared, a Man of Courage. His Intereſt encreaſing, he promotes and ſettles the rebellious Aſſociation in the Eaſtern Counties , ſeizes Sir Thomas Conningsby at St. Albans, who was executing the King's Commiſſion of Aray, and ſtifles a Loyal Aſſociation in Norfolk and Suffolk , at Lowerſtoft. His Zeal and Succeſſes preferr'd him to the Poſt of Lieutenant General to the Earl of Mancheſter : And his Reputation ſtill improving among the Rebels, he is excepted in the Self-denying Ordinance, and made Lieutenant General of Horſe: And when Duke Hamilton Marched an Army out of Scotland, for King Charles the Firſt's Service, he was Defeated by Cromwell, at Preſton in Lancaſhire : His Behaviour in the Field has been mentioned already, under Charles the Firſt, whither the Reader is referred. After the Royaliſts were diſabled from keeping the Field, the Rebellious Parliament Disbanded ſome of their Forces. Upon this, Cromwell apprehending a further Reform, and the Diſappointment of his Ambition, perſwades the Army to ſet up a Council of Agitators , to Remonſtrate againſt the Parliament, and bring the King from Holmby, into their own Cuſtody : Being poſſeſſed of the King's Perſon, he treats him with Reſpect, and Solemnly promiſes to Reſtore him againſt the Parliament. But upon the King's refuſing the Dethroning Propoſitions, made him in the Iſle of Wight , Cromwell declares againſt treating any longer with his Majeſty , and Menaces the Parliament into a Vote of Non Addreſſes. The King, being brought to his Tryal, Cromwell was one of the High Court of Juſtice : And after the Murther of the King, he is ſent General into Ireland, in 1649. where, with extraordinary Diligence, and horrid Executions, he ſubdued almoſt the whole Nation, in leſs than the Compaſs of a Twelve-month , leaving his Son-in-law Ireton to Conquer the reſt. Upon his coming for England, he is made General, in the room of the Lord Fairfax, Marches into Scotland with Sixteen thouſand Men, and on September the Third, 1650. Defeats the Scots at Dunbar. The next year, about the ſame time, he is join'd by the Presbyterians at Worceſter, where he gain'd a Battle againſt King Charles the Second. Upon this Victory he Enters London Triumphantly, with great Numbers of Priſoners. Some time after, by his Intereſt in the Rump Parliament , he procures the Paſſing of an Act of Oblivion. The Rump pretending to Disband part of the Army, Cromwell joins with the Soldiers, comes into the Parliament-Houſe, calls the Members : Jugling fellows, Drunkards and Whore-maſters, [illegible] gets the Speaker pull'd out of the Chair : And in ſhort, the Rump, who had ſwaggered in Tyranny and Treaſon for ſeveral Years, are now turn'd out of the Houſe , with Scorn and Infamy. Cromwell, having mov'd this Obſtacle to his Greatneſs, ſets up a Council of State, and ſends Circular Letters to above a hundred of his Creatures, to meet him at Weſtminſter ; they come up accordingly, and ſtile themſelves a Parliament. During the Mis-rule of the Rump, The Admirals Blake and Aiskew, had beaten the Dutch thrice in 1652, and 1653. Cromwell coming into the Adminiſtration, they are beaten twice by Monk , Blake and Dean, and in their laſt Defeat Admiral Trump was killed. The Dutch getting nothing but Blows by the War, are glad to ſue for a Peace , which was ſold them by Cromwell for a round ſum of Money. To return to the Members at Weſtminſter , This pretended Parliament of Anabaptiſts , Fifth-monarchy-men, &c. fell vigorouſly upon a thorough Reformation ; They are for taking away Tyths , as Relicks of Judaiſm, ſweeping away the old Engliſh Laws as Badges of Conqueſt and Norman Slavery ; ſuppreſſing the Univerſities and great Schools, as heatheniſh and unneceſſary, and putting down all Titles of Honour and Diſtinction , as not agreeable to Chriſtianity. They Voted down the Court of Chancery, and made an Act for Marriages by Juſtices of Peace. This Enthuſiaſtick and Fanſiful Conduct, made them unacceptable to the Nation , and oblig'd Cromwell to put a Period to their ſitting , who , when they went off, reſign'd their Power into Cromwell's Hands. Soon after he takes the Protectorſhip upon him, being offered it, in the Name of the Army and the three Nations ; and this year, being 1653. he ſets up the Tryers, for the Approbation of publick Preachers. Upon his Protectorſhip, he is Acknowledg'd, by the greateſt part of the Princes of Europe. He paſſes an Act for making Scotland one Common-wealth with England. This year, being 1654. Colonel Venables being ſent by him with ſome Forces, to take St. Domingo from the Spaniards in the Weſt-Indies , Miſ-carries in the Attempt, and is ſhamefully Defeated at Hiſpaniola ; but landing at Jamaica, a Month after, Succeeds in the Expedition, and makes himſelf Maſter of the Iſland : This year Mr. John Gerard, and Mr. Wowell, two Loyal Gentlemen, were Executed. To go on with his War with the Spaniards ; Blake and Montague lay before Cadiz with a Fleet, and Captain Stainer, with a Squadron, fell on their Plate-fleet , ſunk ſome, burnt others, and took two : After this Blake fell upon the Spaniſh Fleet in the Bay of Santa Cruz , in the Iſle of Tenariff, in the Canaries ; and though they were not much inferior to them, in number of Ships, much Superior in Number of Men , and guarded by a Caſtle and Forts, betwixt which there were Trenches, lin'd with Muſqueteers, yet he burnt and ſunk their whole Fleet, having but eight and forty Men killed, and a hundred and twenty wounded. To return to the Affairs in England ; Cromwell makes his Parliament Subſcribe a Recognition of his Government, and after near five Months Tryal, diſſolves them January the 22d. in 1654. After this, in 1656. he Decimates the Royaliſts, and appoints fourteen Major-Generals to Levy this Tax. Theſe Major-Generals , had each ſeveral Counties under his Juriſdiction, over which they Tyranniz'd, in a moſt Arbitrary manner ; and at length grew ſo unſupportable, that Cromwell thought it adviſeable to re-call their Power : This year in July, he Summons another Parliament , and makes them Subſcribe an Acknowledgment of his Authority, before they enter'd the Houſe , He is addreſſed by this pretended Parliament, by an Inſtrument called An Humble Petition and Advice, to take the Title of King ; But the Soldiers, prompted by Lambert, and ſome other principal Officers (who had Proſpects of a Protectorſhip for themſelves, after Cromwell) ſhewing a violent diſlike of this Expedient, Cromwell had not the Courage to venture upon it. However, the pretended Government is caſt into a Monarchical Form , with the old Title of Protector : An Act paſſes in 1657. for an Upper-Houſe in Parliament , of Cromwell's Nomination. This Scheme diſobliged the Anabaptiſts and Fifth-Monarchy-men, and Oliver having the Liberty of naming his Succeſſor, Lambart deſpairs of Succeeding in the Uſurpation, and begins to fall off to the Male-Contents. Sir Henry Slingsby, and Dr. Hewet Suffer for their Loyalty, the latter denying the Authority of Cromwell's Courts. And this year, being 1658. Cromwell's Favourite Daughter Clapole, dyes, uſing hard Expreſſions againſt her Father in her Sickneſs. This year Dunkirk was taken by the French and Engliſh. Cromwell, upon the Death of his Daughter, and the diſcontents and unſteddineſs, which he perceiv'd in the Army , falls into the Spleen, and ſoon after, falling Sick, at Hampton-Court, grows Confident of his Recovery, by the Enthuſiaſm of his Chaplains, but, removing to White-hall, Dyes there, September the 3d, 1658. He lay in State at Somerſet-houſe , and was Bury'd with great Pomp and Solemnity, in Henry the VIIth's Chapel. As to his Character, he was a Perſon of good natural Parts, more than ordinary Courage, and indefatigable Induſtry : His conſtant Application to the Buſineſs of War, his good Conduct, and frequent Succeſſes, gave him the Reputation, and that not without reaſon, of a great General. Finding the Army governed by the Anabaptiſts and Fifth-Monarchy men, he ſtruck in with that Intereſt, as moſt for his Purpoſe : And to recommend his Zeal to the Party, prayed and preached ſo long among them, that at laſt he ſeemed an Enthuſiaſt in good earneſt. Whitlock's Memorials, Hob's Hiſt. Civil-Wars, Bate's Elenchus Motuum, Dugdale's ſhort view of the late Troubles of England, &c.

CROMWELL (Richard) Oliver's eldeſt Son , being named by him for his Succeſſor before his Death, he was by Order of the Privy-council, proclaimed Lord Protector with great State, and then received the Complements of Congratulation and Condoleance at the ſame time, from the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London, &c. Addreſſes were preſented to him from ſeveral parts of the Nation,promiſing that they would ſtand by him. His firſt Care was, to ſolemnize the Funerals of his Father, which coſt near 60000 l. Then it was thought fit to ſummon a Parliament, to eſtabliſh this new Lord Protector, and they met at Weſtminſter, Jan. 27. 1659. where, after a Speech to them by Richard, and the Lord Commiſſioner Fiennes, they paſſed a Bill to recognize him as Protector; and for reſtoring the Houſe of Lords. Then they fell upon Debates, about ſetting Bounds to the Chief Magiſtrate's Power, and that of the Upper-Houſe. Richard's Party were for having it according to the Petition and Advice in Oliver's laſt Parliament, but the other Party denied it to be a Law, becauſe obtained by Force, and the Excluſion of above a hundred Members; at which time they alſo took the Purſe from the Commons, by ſettling 1300000 l. per Annum, for ever, upon a ſingle Perſon. Then they aſſerted their Intereſt in the Fleet and Militia; conſidered how to take away all the Laws about the Exciſe and Cuſtoms after three years. Then they ſet ſeveral Perſons who had been illegally impriſoned at liberty, and reſented the ſending of Free-born Engliſh-men to Foreign Plantations, out of the reach of Habeas Corpus, againſt their Wills. Theſe Proceedings begot a Jealouſy betwixt the Protector and his Army. The General Council of Officers kept their Meetings at Wallingford-houſe; and the Protector with his Party met at White-hall to countermine them. This occaſioned a Remonſtrance from the Army to Richard's declaring the danger of their Cauſe and Party, and particularly of the Kings Judges, and that the Army was purpoſely kept from their Pay, to make them Mutiny. This Remonſtrance was countenanced by Tychburn, Lord Mayor of London, who, with the Officers of the City Trained-bands promiſed to ſtand by Fleetwood and the Army; and with Lamberts aſſiſtance reſolved to lay Richard aſide; who being adviſed to ſeize them, yet through Puſillanimity, and the Confidence which he had in Fleetwood and Desborough, his Relations, he neglected; but repented when too late. The Houſe of Commons reſolving to let the Officers know, That they took them ſtill to be their Servants; forbad any General Council of Officers, and ordered, That none ſhould have any Command but ſuch as were willing to ſubſcribe, That they ſhould not interrupt the Free Meetings in Parliament. The Conteſt grew high betwixt the Protector, and the Officers of the Army, both Sides keeping Guard day and night againſt each other. And he forbad the Officers to Meet, according to the Vote of the Houſe. And thus Affairs continued till April 22. that Fleetwood his Brother-in-law, and Desborough, his Uncle, leaving him, carried off a great part of the Army after them. So that he was forced to give Power to Desborough and ſome others to Diſſolve the Parliament, which was accordingly done, though not without the great Reluctancy of the Houſe of Commons. And after this was done, Fleetwood, Desborough, and the reſt of the Officers, diſcarded Richard, and took the Government into their own Hand; but finding the People diſſatisfied with their Military Proceedings, they called together ſuch Members of the Long Parliament as were then in Town. Who meeting again, They declared for Religion, Liberty, and Property; and againſt a King, ſingle Perſon, or Houſe of Lords; but they would ſuffer none of their Fellow Members to ſit, who did not ſubſcribe the Engagement, nor ſate with them ſince 1648. Then they choſe a Council of State of twenty one Perſons, and then went about ſelling the King's and other publick Lands. Then they ſent to Richard, to Reſign the Government, and to give an Account of his Debts. As to the firſt, he anſwered, That he had learn'd not to be unquiet under God's Hand, That all belonging to him ſhould behave themſelves peaceably under the Government, whoſe Protection he expected. Then they diſcharged him of his Debts, and gave him a Protection for ſix months. Took all the Houſhold-Stuff, Plate, &c. which they found at White-hall, into their Poſſeſſion; and ſo Richard retired into the Country. Bate's Elenchus Motuum, Whitlock's Memorials, Dugdale's ſhort view, &c.

CRONEMBERG, a conſiderable Caſtle in the Iſle of Zeland, in Denmark, upon the Sound. Frederick II. King of Denmark, built it in 1577. and fortified it very well. It is Five Leagues from Copenhagen, near the Town of Elſeneur; and is a Defence againſt any that ſhould invade the Country, either by the Ocean, or the Baltick-ſea; yet the Swedes took this Fortreſs in 1659. but reſtored it again ſome time after. The Kings of Denmark receive ſome Cuſtoms here.

CROQUANS, a Nick-name given the Gentlemen of Guienne, becauſe in the beginning of King Henry the Fourth's Reign they oppreſſed the poor Boors of the Country very much.

CROSNE, a Town of Poland, in Black-Ruſſia, and the Chatelenie of Przemiſlie. It lies at the foot of the Carpathian Mountains, towards the Rivers of Viſloc and Jaſiolde, near the Frontiers of Upper-Poland and Hungary.

CROSS, the moſt cruel and diſgraceful of all Torments and Deaths, uſed in former Ages by almoſt all Nations of the known World. They that deſire to know the different Figures of theſe Croſſes may conſult the Letters of Salmaſius or Bartholinus de Cruce. Women, as well as Men, were crucified at Rome, as appears by the Story of Decius Mundus, a young Roman, who being deſperately in Love with Paulina, Saturninus's Wife, made uſe of Ida's Craft, that once was his Father's Slave, to Corrupt the Æditui, or Overſeers of the Goddeſs Iſis's Temple, to perſwade Paulina, that the God Anubis deſired ſhe would lie one Night in his Temple; being come thither, Mundus was admitted in, and Paulina received him for that God. This Cheat being diſcovered, Tiberius ordered, that all thoſe Lewd Officers of the Temple of Iſis, ſhould be Crucified, and that the wicked Ida, that firſt invented this, ſhould be crucified with them. Nor was he ſatisfied with this; but having demoliſhed the Temple, he commanded the Statue of Iſis to be caſt into the Tyber. The ſame Romans looked upon it as ſo vile a Death, that Cicero imputes it as a Crime to Verres, that he Crucified a Roman Citizen. And Valerius Maximus obſerves, That Scipio Africanus exerciſing Military Diſcipline to a Degree of Cruelty, when he took Carthage, and was Maſter of all thoſe that deſerted the Roman Army. He divided them into two Bodies, in one he put the Roman Soldiers, in the other the Foreigners; theſe he commanded to be beheaded, becauſe they betrayed their Truſt, and failed the Party they had engaged themſelves to; but the others he crucified, as guilty of a more ſhameful and a blacker Crime, viz. quitting the Defence of their Country, and bearing Arms againſt it. We alſo read in Lampridius, That the Emperor Alexander Severus having asked ſeveral Kings, what was the Puniſhment of Robbers with them? They all anſwered, It was The Croſs.

CROSSEN near the Oder, a Town of Germany, in Sileſia, belonging to the Elector of Brandenburg. It's Capital of a Dukedom, and has a good Fortreſs. Is pretty well peopled; and a Town of great Traffick; five or ſix Leagues from Frankfort.

CROTONA, a Town of Italy, in that part that was called Magna Græcia, was built, as ſome ſay, by Diomedes, and according to the Opinion of Dionyſius Halicarnaſſeus, it was Myſcellus that founded it, in the third year of the XVIIth Olympiad, which was the fourth of the Reign of Numa Pompilius, King of the Romans. It was very famous for its Wreſtlers, whereof there were ſeven that carried the Prize in one day. So that it came to be a Saying, That the weakeſt of the Crotoniates was the ſtrongeſt of the Græcians. Pliny ſays, This Advantage proceeded from the goodneſs of the Air. Milo, ſo famous for his ſtrength, rendred this Town ſo too; he was Pythagoras's Diſciple. Iſchomachus, Tiſicrates, Aſtolus, and ſome other noted Wreſtlers, had their Birth here, as well as Democedes, the renowned Phyſician, much eſteemed by Polycrates, King of Samos, and Darius, King of Perſia. Orpheus the Poet, with a great Number of other conſiderable Men, were Natives of this place. Thucydides, Strabo, Pliny, Denys of Halicarnaſſus Pomponius Mela, Ptolemy, Titus Livius, &c. ſpeak of Crotona, which was formerly twelve Miles in Circuit. And though now the Caſe is much altered, yet it's ſtill a good Town in the farthermoſt Calabria, with a Fortreſs, and a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Reggio.

CROTOPUS the VIIIth, King of the Argives, Succeeded Triopas in the year of the World 2547. and Reigned 21 years. Euſeb. Chron.

CROWLAND, a Market-Town in Lincolnſhire, in the Hundred of Ellow, upon the River Weeland, in a very fenny low Ground. The beſt Streets of it are ſevered from each other, not unlike Venice, by interjacent Water-courſes; and the Cauſeys leading to it ſo narrow, that no Carts can poſſibly paſs; which may juſtify the proverbial Saying, All the Carts which come to Crowland, are ſhod with Silver. The chiefeſt Rarity of this Town is its Triangular Bridge, anſwering its three chiefeſt Streets. It's from London Eighty eight Miles.

CROWN, firſt a Mark of Victory or Dignity, was afterwards made uſe of upon other occaſions. The Ancients will have Bacchus and Janus to have been the firſt Inventors of this Ornament; that the firſt Crowned himſelf with Ivy after the Conqueſt of the Indies; and that King Janus made uſe of one in his Sacrifices. The firſt Crowns of the Romans were two or three Ribands interwoven, and tied round their Heads; after they made ſome of the Boughs and Branches of Trees; then of Flowers bound to Willow, Ivy, or other Boughs that bend eaſily. In their Feaſts their Crowns were made of Flowers, Herbs and Branches, that had the vertue to refreſh and ſtrengthen the Brain, as Roſes, Penny-royal, Olive-leaves, &c. The Gueſts had three Crowns, one which they wore on the top of their Head, with the ſecond they bound their Fore-heads, and the third hung round their necks. In the Ceremony of their Marriage, the Bridegroom wore a Crown, and the Bride two, one of natural Flowers, when ſhe was led to her Husbands Houſe; and the other of artificial, wrought in Gold, and adorned with Pearls and Diamonds. The Pagans Crown'd [illegible] Statues of their Gods. That of Bacchus with Vine or Ivy-leaves, Saturn's with Fig-tree-branches, Jupiter's with all ſorts of Flowers, Apollo's with Lawrel, Hercules's with Poplar, Pan's with Pine and Dane-wort-branches, the houſhold Gods with Myrtle and Roſemary, Caſtor and Pollux with Reeds, the Graces with Olive, and Minerva too; Juno's with Vine-branches. Lucina's or Diana's with Dittany. They alſo offered golden Crowns to their falſe Gods, as that which Attalus, King of Pergamus, ſent to Rome, to be put into the Capitol, and weighed two hundred forty ſix pound; that which Philip, King of Syria, ſent by his Ambaſſadors, and weighed one hundred pound of pure Gold. The Prieſts, when they ſacrificed, wore Lawrel or Gold Crowns, and the Victims were Crowned with Cypreſs or Pine-branches. In Burials Crowns ſometimes of Olive, Lawrel or Lilies, were laid upon the Graves, which Cuſtom paſſed from Lacedæmon to Athens, and thence to Rome, where Magiſtrates in great Solemnities wore Crowns of Olive or Myrtle, and Ambaſſadors of Vervein or Olive. The Ancients had alſo their Military Crowns, which were given Generals, Officers and Soldiers, in Recompence of their great Actions and Service. The Triumphal Crown was for him that Triumphed after ſome famous Victory. In the beginning theſe were but of Lawrel, after there were ſome of Gold, and at laſt a great many of this Metal were carried before the Triumpher's Chariot. Titus Livius tells us, That they carried 234 in the Triumph of Scipio Aſiaticus, in the 564th year of Rome. And Appian counts 2822 in Cæſar's. Round theſe were repreſented the Triumphers greateſt Exploits. The oval Crown, which was allowed them that received the Honour of the little Triumph, was of Myrtle, and ſome of Lawrel. The Obſidional, or the Crown which the Beſieged preſented him with that raiſed the Siege, was made of the green Graſs that grew within the Town. There was a Civick for a Citizen that ſaved his fellow Citizens Lives; a Mural for him that firſt Scal'd, and got into the Beſieged Town; this was of Gold, and the Circle raiſed in form of the Battlement of a Wall. There was alſo a Caſtrenſis for him that firſt entred the Enemies Camp; its Figure repreſenting a Palliſado that is forced. The Naval, for him that firſt boarded the Enemies Ship, was of Gold, and ſet round with Stems of the ſame Metal. Now there are Crowns of Sovereigns, and ſome that are allowed the Gentry in their Eſcutcheons; theſe differ according to the different Degrees of Nobility, and are not the ſame in all Countries. P. Menetrier.

CROY, a Village of France in Picardy, two or three Leagues from Amiens. It's hence that the Noble Family of Croy in the Low-Countries has taken its Name.

CROYDON or CROYDEN, Lat. Neomagus, a Market-Town in Surrey, the Capital of its Hundred, near the Spring head of the River Wandle, nine Miles from London, where the Arch-biſhop of Canterbury has a Country-houſe. It has an Hoſpital for the Poor, and a Free-ſchool for Children, founded by Arch-biſhop Whitgift.

CROYE, or CROIE, Lat. Croia, thought to be the Erebea of the Ancients, is a Town of Albania, now under the Turks. Volaterran ſays, it was alſo called Troy; however; it has been a long time the Reſidence of the Brave George Caſtriot, called Scanderbeg, Prince of Albania. But after his Death Mahomet II. took it in 1477. It was formerly an Epiſcopal-Town under the Arch-biſhop of Durazzo. The River Lizane runs by it. It's the ſame that Chalcondylas calls Crua.

CRUCIGER, (Gaſpar) a German, born in 1504. made a great Progreſs in Languages, Mathematicks, and in the Proteſtants Divinity; taught at Magdebourg and Wittemberg, where he died in 1548.

CRUMAW, or CRUMEAW, Lat. Crumavia, a Town of Germany, in Moravia, with Title of a Dutchy, lies between Brin and Znaim, on Auſtria ſide, and has a good Fortreſs.

CRUMMUS, King of the Bulgarians, being in War with Nicephorus, Emperor of Conſtantinople, in 811. had ſo much the worſt of it in the beginning, that he ſued for Peace; but being refuſed, he drew new ſtrength from his Deſpair, and in the Night time aſſaulted the Græcian Camp, forced it, and went directly to Nicephorus's Camp, killed him before he had time to ſee who was about him; after this defeated his whole Army, and impriſoned or put all the Nobility of his Camp to death. And to leave Poſterity the Marks of his Victory, after he had expoſed the unfortunate Nicephorus's Head upon a Gibbet, he made a Cup of the Scull, and covered it with Silver, that his Succeſſors as well as he himſelf, ſhould make uſe of it in their Feaſts, when they drank the Health of thoſe that ſignalized themſelves in the War. He alſo would compel the Priſoners to buy their Lives and Liberties by changing their Religion; but thoſe Officers choſe rather to die generouſly and like Martyrs. Crummus after this gain'd the Battle of Adrianople, in 813. and died ſoon after. Maimbourg Hiſt. des Iconoclaſtes.

CRUSCA, a famous Academy of Florence in Italy, known by this Name, which ſignifies Bran and all the remains of Meal when it's boulted, to ſhew the Care they take to depurate the Tuſcan Tongue. The place where they are accuſtomed to meet is adorned with Devices, that all allude to the word Cruſca. Each Academick takes his Name anſwerable to the Subject. Their Seats are made in form of Paniers to carry Bread in, the Backs of theſe like Shovels, to move and ſtir the Corn. The great Chairs like Tubs of Willow or Straw, to keep the Corn in. The Cuſhions are of Aſh-coloured Satin, in form of Meal-ſacks, and they put their Torches in Caſes that have this form too. The Dictionary of Cruſca is entituled, Vocabulario de gli Academici della Cruſca. Monconys.

CRUSERIUS, born at Campen, in the Low Countries, in the 16th Cent. He Profeſſed Phyſick, Philoſophy, and the Languages, and afterwards applying himſelf to Study the Law, Commenced Doctor in that Faculty. His Learning preferred him conſiderably both in Buſineſs and Reputation. His Works are Comment. in Hippoc. Lib. I. & III. De Morbis Vulgaribus, & in Lib. de Dieta. Mir. in Elog. Belg. Melchior Adam, in Vit. Germ. Medic. &c.

CRUSIUS (Martin) whom the Germans call Kraux, was of Bottenſtein, in the Mountains of the Biſhoprick of Bamberg, or according to others, of Grebern, in the ſame Country. He was born in 1526. made great progreſs in Learning, taught with Reputation at Tubingen, and elſewhere. He collected an excellent Library, and died in 1607. This Cruſius Profeſſor of Greek and Latin at Tubingen in Germany, has publiſhed an Excellent Collection of Modern Greece, called Turco-græcia, printed at Baſil in 1584. The firſt part of this Work contains a Hiſtory of Conſtantinople, from 1391. to 1578. which he calls A Political and civil Hiſtory of Conſtantinople. After this Hiſtory, there is a Letter inſerted of Theodoſius Zygomala, to Martin Cruſius, in which this Greek deſcribes the Taking of Conſtantinople by the Turks. Theſe two parts of the Work are written in Common Greek: As for the third Book of this Collection, it is called, A Hiſtory of the Patriarchs of Conſtantinople, from 1454. to 1578. and is written in Modern Greek: Cruſius has Tranſlated theſe three Parts into Latin; the Remainder of the Collection is made up of a great many Latin and Greek Letters, to which Cruſius has ſubjoyn'd very Learned Remarks. This Work is a very ſerviceable Performance to thoſe who deſire to be informed of the Condition of the Greeks of theſe later Ages, and are willing to learn their Modern Language, there being ſeveral large Specimens of Modern Greek, and amongſt the reſt Homer's Batrocomyomachia. Rich. Simon. There was another Cruſius (Jame[illegible] a Proteſtant Miniſter of Holland, who publiſhed a Book of Latin Epiſtles, in 1635. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

CTESIAS, a Phyſician, Native of Cnidos, lived in Xenophon's time; for he was taken in that Battle which Cyrus the Younger fought in 352. of Rome, with his Brother Artaxerxes, called Mnemon, and cured this laſt of a Wound he received in that Fight. Afterwards he kept with this King, and practiſed Phyſick for Seventeen Years in Perſia. He compoſed in twenty three Books a Hiſtory of the Aſſyrians and Perſians, which was in ſuch great eſteem with Diodorus Siculus, and Trogus Pompeius, that they choſe rather to follow it than that of Herodotus, becauſe Cteſias aſſures us, that he took all he advances there out of the Archives or Records of the Royal Family, Voſſius.

CTESIAS, a Greek Hiſtorian, Native of Epheſus, was the ſame that made ſome Works quoted by Plutarch in his Treatiſe Of Rivers, and elſewhere.

CTESIBIUS, of Alexandria, a Mathematician, who firſt invented thoſe ſorts of Organs that went by the means of Water, whereof Nero had the Invention, as we learn of Suetonius in that Emperor's Life. He lived in Ptolemy's time, King of Egypt, called Phyſcon, about one hundred and twenty years before the birth of Chriſt, that is, in the CLXVth Olympiad, the 634th of Rome. He writ a Treatiſe of Geodeſie, which according to Clavius, is the Science of meaſuring and dividing Bodies. If we believe Poſſevin, this Treatiſe is in the Vati[illegible]ibrary. Vitruv. Voſſius.

CTESILOCHUS, a Painter who drew Jupiter in Head-cloaths, like a Matron crying out among Midwifes, and ready to be delivered of Bacchus. Plin. Lib. 35.

CTESIPHON, an ancient Town of Aſſyria, near the Tygris, ſaid to have been built by the Parthians, out of Spight to Seleucus, to oppoſe it to Seleucia. Strabo Lib. 15.

CTESIPHON, a famous Architect, who is alſo called Cherſiphron, drew the Model of the famous Temple of Diana in Epheſus, built part under him and by his Direction, the reſt under his Son Metagenes, and other Architects. Plutarch ſpeaks of another of this Name, who was an Hiſtorian, and compoſed ſeveral Books. Vitruvius.

CUAMA, or COAMA, a certain River which runs through Sofala, a Kingdom of Africa. Some pretend it has its ſource in the Lake of Sachaf, where it has the Name of Zamber, towards the Mountain of the Moon, and that another River, called that of the Holy Ghoſt, runs out of the ſame. Vincent le Blanc, of Marſeilles, brags in his Relation, that he has gone up the River Cuamá to the Lake, whence the Nile is thought to run; upon which laſt, he ſays, he came thence to Alexandria in Egypt. Suppoſing all this true, we might ſoon explain two great Difficulties; firſt, That there is a Communication of the two Seas, which the Ancients were altogether ignorant of; ſecondly, That if People come down the Nile from its ſource, that thoſe dreadful Falls called Catadupes, or Cataracts, muſt be only in ſome Arms, and that there are other Streams that are Navigable. But Le Blanc does not explain this well. Sanut. Magin. Linſchot.

CUBA, That is, the greateſt of the Antilles in the Northern Sea, is about 230 Leagues in length, 40 in the broadeſt parts, and 15 in the narroweſt. Its Soil is very fruitful, and the Air better than at Hiſpaniola. It's divided by a ridge of Mountains, whence a great number of ſmall Rivers ſpring, that are all very well ſtock'd with Fiſhes called Liſa's and Sabella's, that is, Barbel and Shad. Their Foreſts are full of Cedar-trees, of an extraordinary height and bigneſs, which the Inhabitants make Canou's of, that is, Boats made of the Bodies only, hewed and worked, that can hold above fifty Men. There are alſo Wild Vines that bear a great quantity of ſowre Grapes, becauſe they are not looked after. The Caninga that grows there, is a Tree whereof the Bark has the taſte of Cinnamon; it is made uſe of to ſeaſon and ſpice Meat, and for a Remedy as Caſſia. Their Paſture feeds a great number of Cattle. On the Southern Side are a great many Iſlands, which the Spaniards call Jardin de la Reyna, where there are Sea Tortoiſes ſo ſtrong and big, that they can walk with five Men upon their backs. This Iſland is very rich in Metals; for there are ſeveral Rivers in it, that have very fine Gold. It was formerly divided into ſeveral Provinces, whereof each had its particular Cacique or Primaviz, Mayzi, Bayamo, Cueyba, Camagueya, Macacam, Xagua, Uhima. The River Cueyte is very remarkable for the great number of Crocodiles it nouriſhes. The ancienteſt of its Towns is St. St. Jago, or St. James, which was built in 1514. At the end of one of the beſt and greateſt Ports in America, it has a Cathedral, whereof the Biſhop is Suffragan under the Archbiſhop of St. Domingo, and has very many and good Copper-mines, at three Leagues diſtance. The Town of San-Salvador, in the Province of Bayamo, is thirty Leagues from the Town of St. Jacques, in a very fertile and pleaſant Country. In the Road betwixt San-Salvador and San-Jago, are a great quantity of Flint-ſtones of different ſizes, but all ſo round that they might ſerve for Canon Bullets. The ſtrongeſt Town is Havana, whoſe Port is famous both for its good and ſafe Anchorage, as alſo for the two Caſtles, capable to ſtop the greateſt Fleet in the World. The Town is alſo defended with a very well-fortified Caſtle, and ſo oppoſed to Ships that draw near the Port, that it can play upon their Fore-caſtle, whilſt the other two batter on both ſides. All the Spaniſh Fleets that come from the firm Land, from Southern America, new Spain, and the Iſlands, Anchor here for Freſh-water and Refreſhments; and in the Month of September they get by the Streights of Bahama into the Northern Sea, and thence into Spain. The Governour of the Iſland, and the other Royal Officers keep their Reſidence here, it being one of the richeſt and beſt Towns in America, both for its Port and great Commerce. There are alſo ſix Boroughs or Habitations of Chriſtians, St. Jacques, Barcacoa, Bayamo, the Port of Princes, the Holy Ghoſt, and the Havana. Each Village has thirty or forty Families, beſides St. Jacques and Havana, that have each about eighty Houſes; yet there are but few Slaves, many having hanged themſelves to be rid of the miſeries they underwent in Mines. There goes a Story on this Subject, viz. That Seigneur Vaſco Porcalhos, Steward to one of the chief Inhabitants, underſtanding that the Indians who were under his Command, had all agreed to hang themſelves, went to meet them with a Cord in his hand, at the place they intended to execute the Deſign. As ſoon as he ſaw them come, he walked towards them, and ſaid they were fools to think he was not aware of all their Deſigns; that he well knew what they were then about, and therefore was come to hang himſelf a-long with them, to plague them in the other World a thouſand times more than he did in thi[illegible] This Diſcourſe made the Indians change their Reſolution, an[illegible]me back along with him, to obey all his Orders. Hiſtoire de Floride. De Laet. Hiſt. &c.

CUBLAI, great Cham of Tartary, was Baptized about 1256. and eſtabliſhed the Chriſtian Religion in his Kingdom, at the Sollicitation of Hayton, King of Armenia; then ſent his Brother Haolone with a powerful Army into Armenia, to defend this King againſt the Saracens, who ravaged all his Country. See Haolone. Kircher of China.

CUCO, a Town of the Kingdom of Algier, towards the River Maior, or of Bugia. Its ſituation is very ſtrong, becauſe it's environed with a high ſteep Mountain, and a Wall, flanked with good Baſtions where the Rock fails. The Plains, at the foot of the Mountains, bear a great quantity of all ſort of Corn, and on the top grows Barly in abundance. There are alſo great numbers of Cattle, an infinity of Bees. Their Olive-trees furniſh much Oyl; and they make the beſt Linen of Barbary. Many of the Inhabitants hereabouts make Gun-powder, having ſeveral Mines of Salt-petre, their Merchants furniſhing them with Brimſtone from France. They have alſo Iron-mines, and good Workmen that make Swords, Daggers, and Blades, or Heads for Lances; but want Steel, as do all the other parts of Barbary; and what they uſe is Iron, which they quench in Water, and boil with Sand and ſome Plants, to make it harder; yet it's not near ſo good as what is carried thither out of Europe. Marmol.

CUCUBAO, Diſciple of Xaca, was the firſt that introduced the Worſhip of bad Angels or Devils into Japan, with his Brother Cambadagi.

CUCUSA, a Town of Armenia the leſs, upon the Frontiers of Cilicia and Cappadocia, had formerly the Title of a Biſhoprick, and is famous in Hiſtory, becauſe it was the place St. John Chryſoſtom was baniſhed to, by the Empreſs Eudoxia, in the beginning of the Fifth Century.

CUENCA, Lat. Concha, a Town of Spain in New Caſtile, with a Biſhoprick under the Arch-biſhop of Toledo. It's built upon a little Hill, between two Rivers and high Mountains. Some think it's the ancient Valeria, which being deſtroyed by the Moors, was re-built by Alphonſus IX. and erected into a Biſhoprick by Pope Lucius III. Miræus Geog. Eccleſ.

CUEVA, a Family that derives its Name from a Borough of Caſtile. It became very conſiderable under Henry IVth. called The Impotent, in 1460. for this King gave the County of Ledeſma, the Dutchy of Albuquerque, with ſeveral other conſiderable Lands, to his Favourite Bertrand de la Cueva, Viſcount Huelma, &c. It's ſaid that this impotent Prince perſwaded the Queen to let this Favourite of his lie with her, and that ſhe had Jean the Baſtard by him, who afterwards diſputed the Crown with Elizabeth, Henry the Fourth's Siſter.

CUFA, a Town of Aſia in Chaldæa, or the Province of Yerac. It's ſituate upon the River Euphrates, towards the Frontiers of the Deſart of Arabia, and poſſeſſed by the Turks, who took it from the Perſians. It formerly was conſiderable, and the Reſidence of Caliphs for a time; but now is far another thing.

CUHIUNG, a Town of the Province of Junnan in China, Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, and has Juriſdiction over ſix Cities. This Country is fertil and very pleaſant; has many Mines of Lapis Lazuli, and a very good Vert for Painters. There are alſo ſome Silver Mines. To the North hereof is a Kingdom that was formerly called Kinchi, that is, The Kingdom of Golden Teeth, becauſe the Inhabitants uſed to garniſh their Teeth with ſmall thin bits or leaves of Gold. And they ſtill obſerve a very particular Cuſtom near Nangan, one of the ſix Cities, in covering a great Stone ten Perches high every year with Gold; they call this Xinxe, that is, A Spiritual Stone.

CAJACIUS, (James) the ableſt Lawyer of his Time, taught for ſome time at Tholouſe, of very mean Parents. He was invited to Cahors, and thence to the Univerſity of Bourges. The King of France had a great eſteem for him; looking upon him as one of the famouſeſt Interpreters of the Law. Emanuel Philibert, Duke of Savoy, prevail'd with him to come to Turin, and Pope Gregory XIIIth, did his endeavour to have him thence to Bologne, his own Native Country; but Cujacius's Age not permitting him to accept of the advantageous offers he made him, he continued to teach at Bourges, where he took great pleaſure to Communicate familiarly with his Friends and Scholars what he had diſcovered in the Law, and ſhewed them the ſhorteſt and eaſieſt way to come to a perfect knowledge of that Study. He alſo eat and drank with his Scholars, to encourage them in their Studies, and lent them Money and Books to ſet them forwards, which got him the Name of Father of the Scholars. Florent Chriſtian, K. Hen. IVth's Preceptor, made the following Epitaph upon him.

> Erexit Leges & Jura jacentia Cujas,
> Ipſo nunc etiam jura jacente jacent.
> Quid Tumulum erigitis? Potius date Legibus ipſis,
> Magno ſufficient hæc monumenta Viro.

The famous Charles Hannibal Fabrot, having collected all Cujacius's Works, publiſhed them at Paris, in 10 Vol. in 1659. Papir. Maſſon. in Vit. Jac. Cujac. Thuan. Hiſt. &c.

CUJAVIA, a Province of Poland, placed generally in that called The Tower, to the South of Pruſſia, and towards the Banks of Viſtula. It comprehends the Palatinate of Wladiſlaw, where are Biechow, Bidgoſtide, &c. and that of Bizeſtie, where are Cowale, Krwſwick, &c.

CULEMBACH, upon the Mein, a little Town of Germany, in Franconia, with the Title of Marquiſate. It's ſituate near the ſource of the Mein, between Bamberg and Coburg, and gives its Name to the Marquiſs of Culembach, of the Houſe of Brandenbourg. This Marquiſate has a very good Territory with the Fortreſſes of Blaſſemberg, Bareith, &c.

CULEMBERG, a little Town of the Low Countries, in the Province of Guelderland, with Title of a County, or Earldom, ſituate upon the left Bank of the River Leck, a League off Buren. It has a Fortreſs.

CULIACAN, or St. Miguel of Culiacan, a Province of America Septentrionalis, in New Spain. It's properly in the Audience of Guadalajara, bounded with New Mexico to the North, the Sea of Vermeia to the Weſt, New Biſcay to the Eaſt, and the Province of Chiametan to the South. The principal Borough is Culiacan, the others are St. Miguel, Quinola, &c. All over it are rich Mines, with Fruit and Cotton in abundance.

CULM, an Epiſcopal Town of Poland, in Royal-Pruſſia, Capital of a ſmall Country called Culmia, and by the Inhabitants Colmiſchſland. The Biſhoprick was formerly Suffragan to that of Riga in Livonia. This Town being almoſt ruined in the laſt Wars with the Swedes, the Biſhoprick, at leaſt the Biſhop's Reſidence was removed to a neighbouring Borough. Culm is upon the Viſtula, five Leagues below Thorn. Cromer, &c.

CULPEPER (Sir John) a Perſon of great Abilities and known Loyalty, was by King Charles the Firſt conſtituted Chancellor of the Exchequer, afterwards Maſter of the Rolls, and one of his Majeſty's Privy Council. In conſideration of his good Service during the Civil Wars, he advanced him in the 20th year of his Reign, to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Culpeper of Thoreſway in Com. Linc. And after the Loſs of all, attending King Charles the Second, during the greateſt part of his Abode beyond Sea, departed this Life ſoon after his Majeſty's Reſtauration. His Son Thomas ſucceeding him in his Honour, married Margaret, the youngeſt Daughter and Co-heir to Le Seigneur Jean de Heſſe, of the Noble Family of Heſſe, in the Land of Berghen, near Cullen in Germany, by whom he hath Iſſue one Daughter called Catharine. Dugdale.

CUMA, a Town in Æolia, the Foya-Nova, of theſe days, ſituate upon the Gulph of Smyrna in Aſia-minor, between Smyrna to the South, and Pergamus to the Weſt. It has a Fortreſs and good Port, and it was near it that the Venetian Fleet defeated the Turks in 1650.

CUMÆ, a Town of Italy near Naples. It was formerly Epiſcopal, but now the Biſhoprick is united to that of Averſa. The ancient Greek and Latin Authors often mention this Cumæ, and Virgil ſpeaks of its admirable Temple of Apollo, and its Fortreſs. Leander Alberti gives a curious account of the remains of the ancient Buildings, and ſome other remarkable Signs of Antiquity that he has ſeen at Cumæ; as the Grotto of Sibyllæ, and others marked under the word BAJÆ, or BAYES.

CUMBERLAND, Lat. Cumbria, is the fartheſt County in England, North-weſt-ward, divided Northward from Scotland, partly by the River Kirſop, partly by Solom Moſs, as far as Solway Frith. Eaſtward 'tis bounded with Northumberland and Weſtmorland, Southward with Lancaſhire, and Weſtward with the Iriſh Sea. So that in form it is not unlike a half Moon, which from its tips North and South, may be allowed to be Forty five Miles in length, whereas in breadth from Eaſt to Weſt, it hardly ſpreads thirty. The whole divided not into Hundreds, but Wards, five in number, wherein are ſixteen Market-Towns, and fifty eight Pariſhes. In the time of the Romans, this Country, amongſt others, was inhabited by the Brigantes. In the Heptarchy it was a Province in the Kingdom of Northumberland, and now the greateſt part of it makes up, with Cumberland, the Dioceſs of Carliſle. The North and South parts are hilly; but of the two the North is the worſt. In which is Gilleſland, bordering upon Scotland, as in the South parts Copland, ſo called from its copped Hills, among which is one called Wry-Noſe, on the top whereof, by the High-way-ſide, are placed three Stones ſtanding a foot from each other; one in this County, another in Weſtmorland, and the third in Lancaſhire. The middle parts are more level, and better Inhabited, becauſe more fruitful than the reſt; yet the Hills are not ſo barren, but that they feed great Flocks of Sheep and other Cattle. Here is alſo plenty and variety of Fowls; nor is any County better ſtored with freſh and ſalt-water fiſh. Here are alſo Mines of Coal, Copper, and Black-Lead. The Copper Mines lay long neglected, till about the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, that the Lapis Calaminaris was found in England. As for Roman Antiquities, the Learned Cambden takes notice of more in Cumberland and Northumberland than in all England beſides. The reaſon is, becauſe theſe two Counties bordering upon the troubleſome Scots and Picts, the Romans had raiſed here many Fortifications, wherein they kept ſtrong Garriſons, to ſecure their Poſſeſſions on this ſide. In this County the Houſes of the Nobility and Gentry are generally built Caſtle-wiſe. The Neighbourhood of the Scots, before their Union with England, being the occaſion thereof. The Market-Towns, beſides Carliſle, the chief place of the County, are, Abbey-holm, Alſton-moor, Bowlet, Brampton, Cockermouth, Egremont, Ireby, Keſwick, &c. among which Carliſle and Cockermouth only have Privilege, the firſt to ſend two Citizens, and the laſt, two Burgeſſes, to ſerve in Parliament. This County, together with Weſtmorland, being beſtowed by the Saxon King Edmund, upon Malcolm I. King of Scots, for his Aſſiſtance in the Reduction of the Northumbers to the Crown, was recovered from William, King of Scots, by Henry II. of England, after the Battle of Alnwick. In Henry VIII's Reign it became an Earldom; that Prince beſtowing the Title upon Henry, Lord Clifford, Anno 1525. in whoſe Iſſue it continued till the year 1642. Of an Earldom it became a Dukedom in the Perſon of the Illuſtrious Prince Rupert, ſecond Son of Frederick Elector Palatine, by Elizabeth his Wife, only Daughter of King James I. who died without lawful Iſſue at Whitehall, November 29. 1682. and now the Title is transferred upon his Royal Highneſs, Prince George of Denmark, created by our preſent King, Baron of Ockingham, Earl of Kendal, and Duke of Cumberland, April 10. 1689.

CUMÉE, Lat. Cumea, called Italique, becauſe ſhe propheſied in Italian. It's ſaid ſhe was born at Cimmeric, a little Borough near Cuma in Campania, lived ſome time after the Siege of Troy, at leaſt if we believe Virgil, who ſpeaks of her under the Name of the Deiphobé; that Æneas conſulted this Sibyl. Cumée propheſied ſeveral things concerning our Saviour's Birth; ſo that Julian the Apoſtate, obſerving her Books did not favour him, burned them, as Ammianus Marcellinus writes.

CUNÆUS, (Peter) a Lawyer of Fleſſingue, or Fluſhing, in Zeland, where he was born in 1586. He made great Progreſs in Learning, eſpecially in Greek, Latin, Hebrew, Chaldaick and Syriack, under John Druſius, and with his aſſiſtance gained deep Knowledge in the Jewiſh Antiquities. After this he applied himſelf to the Study of the Law, wherein he ſucceeded ſo well, that he was judged capable to teach it in the Univerſity of Leyden, in 1615. having already profeſſed the Latin Tongue, and taught Politicks in the ſame Place. He continued his laſt Imployment until he died, in 1638. His Works are, Sardi Venales. Satira Menipæa in ſui ſæculi Homines inepte Eruditos. De Republica Hebræorum, Lib. III. &c. He likewiſe publiſhed Remarks upon Nonius's Dionyſiaca. Le Mire, Meurſius Athen. Bat. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

CUNEGONDA, deſcended of the Count Palatins, was Married to the Emperor Henry II. with whom ſhe lived in perpetual Virginity. It's ſaid, That to convince that Prince of the wrong opinion he conceived of her Life, ſhe walked upon burning Coals; or, as others ſay, held a burning Iron in her hand. After the Emperor's Death, which happened in 1024. ſhe ſpent the remainder of her Life, which was ſixteen years, in a Convent of Nuns, founded by her ſelf. Baronius.

CUNHA (Roderick) Born at Lisbon in 1577. and Arch-biſhop of Braga in Portugal. By being Poſſeſſed of this See, he was Primate of all Portugal, but this Advantage he willingly Exchang'd for the Archbiſhoprick of Lisbon, to put himſelf in a better Condition to ſerve his Country. He dy'd in this See, after having been very Inſtrumental in Reſtoring the Right Line, in the Perſon of King John the Fourth, who Recovered his Hereditary Kingdom in 1640. His Works are, Super Primam P. Decreti Gratiani Comment. De Confeſſariis Sollicitantibus. De Primatu Eccleſiæ Bracharenſis. His other Tracts are written in Portugueze; as The Hiſtory of the Biſhops of Porto. The Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of Braga, Lisbon, &c. Nichol. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

CUNIBERT, Son of Pertarit, King of the Lombards, was aſſociated to the Government about 680. and Reigned alone after his Father, in 689. Alabis, Duke of Trent, whoſe Life he had Saved ſome time before, Revolted againſt him in 691. and made himſelf Maſter of Paris; but did not keep it long. He took Arms a ſecond time againſt Cunibert; but was defeated, and loſt his Life in a Battle Fought in 694. after which the King Reigned peaceably untill he died, in 701.

CUNIMOND or GUIMOND, King of the Gepida, lived in the Sixth Age; made War againſt the Lombards, and was afterwards overcome by King Alboin, in 571. This laſt, who had married Roſamond, Daughter of Cunimond, would oblige her to drink out of her unfortunate Father's Skull, which he plaited with Gold, after he had put him to death. This Action made Roſamond have ſo violent an Averſion for the Murtherer, that though he was her Husband, ſhe made no difficulty to get him Murthered, in 571. Paulus Diacon. Lib. 2. De Geſt. Lomb.

CUNINA, a Goddeſs, who according to ancient Pagans had Care of young Children in their Cradles, in Latin called Cunæ They did not uſe Wine, but Milk, in the Sacrifices they offered this Goddeſs. St. Auſtin. De Civ. Dei. Lib. 4.

CUPIDO, a Deity which the Ancients thought did preſide over Love. Poets ſpeak differently of it. Plato admitted two ſorts of Love; one, Son of Venus Urania, or Celeſtial; the other, of the Earthly Venus, engendred, as Poets feign, of the Froth of the Sea. Both were repreſented under the ſame Form of a very Beautiful Child quite naked and winged, a Veil over his Eyes, a Bow in one hand, a lighted Torch in the other, and a Quiver of Arrows hanging at his ſide. Love, the Son of the firſt Venus, being a gift from above, unites hearts, makes peace, enclines to mildneſs, and renders Life perfectly happy. Zeno calls it the God of Friendſhip and Liberty, of Peace and Concord, of Happineſs and Conſolation, and of Science and Vertue. He is repreſented in form of a Child, to ſhew, that as Childhood is the firſt Age of Life, Love is the firſt ſtep in all great Affairs. He is naked, to intimate, that it needs borrow nothing, having ſtrength enough to carry on its Deſigns. The Veil over his Eyes, marks, that he himſelf is the ſource of all his Inventions. The Torch, that he lights and inſtructs others. And the Arrows are the Signs of the invincible Eloquence, wherewith he toucheth the Heart, and charms and attracts it. Love, Son of the other Venus, is naked, to ſhew, that he has laviſhed his means, and is become the true Son of indigence and indiſcretion. He is repreſented as a Child, becauſe void of reaſon and judgment; painted blind, to intimate his pre-occupation, and ignorance of his beloved Object. His Wings expreſs his inconſtancy; and his Torch, that he is a publick Incendiary: His Arrows, that he is the ſource of all the Paſſions which tyrannize over the Soul. Plato, Pauſanias.

CURACAO, or Curaſſaw, an Iſland of Southern America, amongſt thoſe called Sottovento, is over againſt the Province of Venezuela, between the Iſle of Bonnaire and Oraba. The Spaniards were firſt Maſters of it, until the Hollanders took it from them in 1632.

CURBICUS, is the right name of the Hereſiarch Manes, when he was a Slave. See MANES.

CURCHUS, a falſe Deity of the ancient Inhabitants of Pruſſia, who believed ſhe preſided over eating and drinking, wherefore in making their Harveſt, they offered it their Firſt-fruits. They alſo kept a continual Fire in Honour of it, and built it a new Statue every year, breaking their former. Hartſnock Diſſert. Deor. Pruſſ.

CURDES, Inhabitants of Curdiſtan, who have alſo ſpread over Meſopotamia or Diarbeck, Armenia and Syria. They are under the Protection of the King of Perſia, and their Language reſembles the Perſian very much. Some of them are Mahometans, and ſome Jaſides. The Mahometans are governed by their Emirs, or Princes, who are in a manner Sovereign in their Principalities, and as it were independent of the Grand-Seignior. There are Emirs as far as the Town of Aiſan, ſix days Journey from Diarbekir, in the neighbourhood of which place are a great number of Chriſtians, Neſtorians, Jacobites, and Armenians. The Jaſide Curdes are of five ſorts; the Dacenies, the Sachelies, the Dennedies, Caledies, and Strowlars. They are originally Parthians, and in ſome meaſure Manichees; for though they adore God, yet they alſo have veneration for the Devil, whom they fear as the Author of Evil. There are ſome that Worſhip the Sun, and are therefore called Chamſies. Jaſides ſignifies The Diſciples of Jeſus, from the word Jaſid, which ſignifies Jeſus in the Curdian Language, and is derived from the Turkiſh word Aiſa, that ſignifies the ſame. They acknowledge Jeſus Chriſt's Divinity, and his Origin from the Eternal Father, and believe with Chriſtians, that he was born of the Virgin Mary, which they call Meyreme. The Dacenies have their chief Reſidence about half a Days Journey from Moſul, which is the New-Ninive. Theſe Curdes became Chriſtians that very day the Holy Ghoſt deſcended from Heaven, and are named in the Syriack and Chaldaick Scripture amongſt the Nations that ſaw the Miracle of Whitſontide. For the Word Parthi, in the Second Chapter of The Acts of the Apoſtles, is tranſlated from the Syriack Kerad, that ſignifies Curdes. And this general Opinion of the Syrians and Chaldæans is grounded upon the Hiſtory; which learns us, that the Empire of the Parthians was eſtabliſhed by Fugitives, out of Scythia, and that it reached into Aſſyria and Meſopotamia. The Jaſides then are deſcended from the Parthians, and particularly from the Aſſyrians, called Dacenies, who are inſtructed in their Faith by St. Jude or Thaddæus, in whoſe Honour they built a Temple, which is the only one of all their Sect. They call this Apoſtle Cheie-Adi in their Language. Theſe Dacenies love the Chriſtians as much as they hate the Turks, and being of a Warlike Humour and a Parthian Courage, are often heard to ſay, That if the Franks did come inte their Country, they would root out all the Infidels. The Jaſide Sachelies have a Fort on Mount Sangare, which was formerly the Fortreſs of the Romans in Meſopotamia. This Mountain, that is about three Days Journey in length, has very fruitful Plains on the Top covered with Vines and Fruit-Trees. At the bottom is another great Plain, very fertil in Corn; ſo that this Nation ſupports its ſelf without foreign Supplies. It's divided into ſeveral Villages, in which the Children are brought up to handle Arms from ſeven Years of Age. The Men wear their Hair long, like the French; and the Women, which make uſe of Fire-Arms, are not Veiled, as all the others of the Eaſtern Women generally are. When the Turks approach their Countries, they never loſe the Occaſion of falling upon them, which makes the Grand-Signior not to trouble them for Tribute, but to content himſelf with the Preſent they make him. For it's commonly believed, that one Sachelie would eaſily beat five or ſix Turks, they are ſo dexterous, and have ſo much Courage. The Jaſide Dennedies are Labourers, or Peaſants, that live a Day's Journey from Mardin, near the River Chobar, which takes its Courſe towards Bagdat, and empties its ſelf into the Euphrates. There are others that inhabit the Territory of Serouge, half a Days Journey from the Euphrates, where the Remains of the famous Biſhop, James of Serouge's Church, are to be ſeen ſtill. This Biſhop, ſurnamed The Doctor, whoſe Reputation holds in ſpight of the Averſion of the Greeks, lived in the fifth Age, and left very learned Works both to the Chaldæans and Syrians. The Caledies are above Diarbekir, and as they are given to plundering and robbing, they often make Incurſions into Syria and Meſopotamia. Some call them Calethlies, or Catelies, and think they are the Murtherers ſo much ſpoken of in The Hiſtory of the Croiſade; for the Robbers that now follow the Caravans, in former Ages watch'd the Pilgrims, and their old Caſtle is ſtill to be ſeen above Tortoſa in Syria. The wandring or ſtrowling Jaſides, which the Turks call Coucher, change their Habitations according to the Seaſons for the Convenience of Paſture, and go 25 Days Journey, from Moſul to Arzerum or Erzerum. They paſs often by Mont Achout, where are above 20000 Grots of other Jaſides that live there without any Form of Religion, only have a Veneration for Jaſid and adore the Devil, whom they fear as Author of all Evil. Theſe wandring Jaſides have a very pleaſant dwelling in a place called Bengueil, or 1000 Fountains. There is a Hill covered with fine Trees, and abundance of Flowers, amongſt which are great Numbers of Reſervoirs and Fountains, which running into the Valley, meet in Four Places, and form the Tygris, Euphrates, the Guoeſo, and Calich, whoſe Waters after appearing, and then burying themſelves under Ground, meer after a great many Turnings and Windings at Baſſora in Terak. The Wanderers inhabit this terreſtrial Paradiſe during the greateſt Heats of Summer. The Jaſides worſhip the Devil as has been ſaid, at leaſt People ſay ſo, all over the Eaſt. In their Night-Devotions they have a kind of Dance to the Beat of ſmall Drums. Their Turbants and Cloaths are Black. When the Turkiſh or Arabs Children meet them in the Streets, they throw Stones at them, crying, God confound the Devil. They hold that the Devil will at laſt make his Peace with God, and cannot ſuffer that any ſhould curſe him, they are ſo much afraid of his Anger. Theſe People have alſo a Scheik, or Prelate, who is Superior of all the Jaſide Monks. Relation de la Miſſion de Mardin in 1681.

CURDISTAN, or the Country of the Curdes, a Country of Aſia, whereof a part ſtretches into Great Armenia, and another part towards Perſia, and almoſt to Bagdat, where they have the Kingdom of Carnaba. This Country is very ſpacious and fertil.

CUREOTIS, in Greek Κυρεῶτις of Κυρᾶ, which ſignifies Tonſure, or Shaving, was the third Day of the Apaturia, certain Feaſts which the Athenians kept four Days together. The Fathers on theſe Days carried their Children to be ſhaved, and then to be Regiſter'd into the Tribes of the People, for they preſerv'd their Hair to a certain age in honour of a certain God; and when they came to the ſet number of Years, that they were to cut it off, the Ceremony was done in that God's Church, to which they had conſecrated it, which was generally to Apollo, though there was no Law for this. The meaner People of Athens conſecrated their Hair to Hercules, and great Men to Apollo Pythius, for which reaſon they went to Delphos. Heſychius.

CUREIUS, Son of Cinnyras King of Cyprus, who built a City in this Iſland which he called Curium. Bochart derives this Name from a Phœnician Word that ſignifies Fiſhy.

CURES, an ancient Town of Italy in the Country of the Sabins, and thought to have been fonnded by Medius Fidius, in the 7th Year of the Foundation of Rome, which was the 3307. of the World. Tatius King of the Sabins quitted Cures to come to live with his People at Rome, whence the Romans have taken the Name of Quirites. Numa Pompilius was born at Cures. It's thought that the Town Veſcovio, now but a Borough, was built on the Ruines of Cures.

CURETES, People of the Iſle of Crete, Natives of Mount Ida, celebrated their Feaſts with Muſick, like the Corybantes. It's ſaid, Jupiter was committed to their Care when but new born; and that they were Cybele's Servants or Prieſts. Strab. lib. 10.

CUREUS (Joachim) a Phyſician of Germany living in the XVIth Century, was a Perſon of good Eſteem for his Learning, and wrote the Annals of Sileſia and Breſlaw. Johannes in Orat. De Vita & Morte Cur. Melchior Adam in Vit. Medic. Germ.

CURIATII, three Brothers of the Town of Alba, maintained the Intereſt of their Country againſt the Romans. The Romans under their King Tullus Hoſtilius, declared War againſt thoſe of Alba, but their Strength being found equal, they agreed, that three Brothers ſhould be pitch'd upon by each ſide to decide the Difference; three Curiatii for thoſe of Alba, and three Horacii for the Romans. The Fight in the 85th of Rome was very doubtful, for the three firſt being wounded, and two of the laſt killed, he that was left, joining Craft to his Valour, pretended fear, and ſo ran away; and thus having tir'd the Curiatii, he took them one after the other, and kill'd them all three. Florus Tit. Livius.

CURIEA, a Certain part of the Roman People which Romulus divided into 30 Curiæ or Wards, whereof there were 10 in each Tribe, that each might keep the Ceremonies of their Feaſts and Sacrifices in the Temple or Holy Place, ordered for each Curia, whereof the Prieſt was called Curio, à Sacris Curandis, becauſe he took care of Sacrifices. The People aſſembled in Wards, in the firſt Years of the Foundation of Rome, becauſe then there were no Centuries, and but three Tribes; ſo that Kings and Magiſtrates were created, Laws and Ordinances made, and Juſtice pronounced in the Aſſemblies of theſe Curieæ, when the Peoples Suffrages were taken; but at laſt theſe Meetings were not kept but for certain Laws, or to create Flamens, and the great Curio, for private Curio's were choſen by each ſingle Curia. Theſe Aſſemblies were kept in a place called Comitum, in the great Square or Place at Rome. Roſin. Antiq. Rom. lib. 6.

C. CURIO, a Roman Orator that liv'd in Julius Cæſar's time, the 700 of Rome, was Son to another Orator of this Name. He was naturally Eloquent, and his Sentences very inſtructive. Tacitus ſays, he was of thoſe that reap'd the Fruit of their Studies, and that Claudius and he received great Sums for pleading. Suetonius adds, That in one of his Orations he called Cæſar, Every Woman's Husband, and every Man's Wife. Tacit. Sueton.

CURIO (C. Scribonius) Tribune of the People, Son of the Orator of this Name, contracted great Debts, to rid himſelf from which, he put Cæſar upon a Civil War, as Cicero complains in his Letter to his Brother Quintus. After that time, being ſent into Africa he fought courageouſly againſt Varus, whom he put to flight, but being ſurpriz'd by Juba, he kill'd himſelf in the 706th Year of Rome, to puniſh his own Imprudence in expoſing the Army to ſuch great Danger. Plutarch in Vit. Pomp. &c.

CURIUS Dentatus (Marcus Annius) a Roman Citizen that was thrice Conſul, in the 464, 479, and 480 Years of Rome:

He overcame the Samnites and Sabins, and deſerved the Honour of a Triumph for his Victory over the Lucanians. He gave each Citizen 40 Acres of Land, allowing himſelf no more, and ſaid, He did not deſerve the Name of a Roman to whom that Quantity was not enough. After overcoming the Enemies of the Commonwealth, he retir'd into the Country, where being once viſited by the Embaſſadors of the Samnites, as he was boiling Turnips in a Pipkin, they offer'd him Gold-Plate, to go into their Intereſt: Curius refus'd them generouſly, and ſaid, He preferr'd his Earthen-Ware to their Finery; and that his Deſire was not to be rich, but able to command thoſe that were ſo. He was Tribune of the People, and had ſeveral other conſiderable Employments. He defeated Pyrrhus in 479. near Tarentum, and received the Honour of a Triumph. Plutarch.

CURLAND, or Kurland, a Province of Livonia between Swedeland and Poland, to the South of the Gulf of Riga and Dune, that parts it from Livonia, and has its particular Duke under the Protection of Poland. Its Towns are Goldingen, Capital of the Country; Mittaw, the Duke's Reſidence; Winden or Wenden, which is alſo called Kies, Dalen, Selburg, Goldin, Liba, Argermund, Bauske, &c. Cromer Deſc. Polon. &c.

The CURSOLAIRS, which the Italians call Curzolari, and the Latins, Echinades; are five ſmall Iſlands over againſt the Mouth of the Gulf of Lepanto, formerly called that of Corinth. It was near theſe Iſlands that the Chriſtians gained the famous Battel of Lepanto in 1571. againſt the Turks, commanded by Hali in Selim the IId's Reign: The Turks, Maſters of the Iſle of Cyprus the Year before, making ſome ſtay in that Road, came to inſult theſe Iſlands, and deſigned to attack the chiefeſt, but were prevented by a very remarkable accident. Antonio Balbo, Governor of the Iſland, having made his eſcape in the Night and the chiefeſt Inhabitants along with him, upon the firſt noiſe of the Turkiſh Fleet; the Women that ſtaid in the Town ſhut the Gates, and by a Prieſt's Advice called Antonio Roſoneo, who had endeavoured to ſtay the Governor and Burgeſſes, took their Husbands Cloaths and Arms, got upon the Walls and appeared like People that were reſolved to defend themſelves. This Stratagem was ſeconded with very good Succeſs, for one of the Women ſeeing the Turkiſh Galleys draw near to the Walls, boldly fired a Canon that happened to be painted towards the Fleet, and broke down a Maſt, whereupon the Turks, fancying that the Garriſon was numerous, and reſolved to make a good Defence, retir'd without landing. The Senate of Venice was ſo taken with this generous Action, that when the Inhabitants of Curſolari, much preſs'd for Proviſions, ſent to the Republick for Corn, anſwer was made, That they did not deſerve ſuch a Favour from the States; but advis'd 'em to make uſe of their Wives Intereſt, to whoſe Valour they ow'd their Preſervation, and by ſuch an acceptable Recommendation they might expect to be conſider'd by the Senate. Gratiani Hiſt. Cypr.

CURSON, or CURTON (Robert) an Engliſh Cardinal, born of a very good Family, towards the end of the XIIth Century. He ſtudied firſt at Oxford, and afterwards came to Paris about 1180. where his Progreſs in Learning was ſo conſiderable, that he was made a Chancellor of that Univerſity. Pope Innocent III. gave him a Cardinal's Hat, with a Commiſſion to publiſh the Croiſade in France, from whence he came into England for the ſame Buſineſs, and being afterwards ſent as Legate into the Eaſt. He died at Damiata in 1218. The following Tracts are ſaid to be his; Summa Theologiæ. Lecturæ Solennes. An Origenes Salvus ſit? De Septem Septenis, &c. Matthew of Weſtminſter, Bale and Pits, Goodwin, &c.

CURTIUS Q. a Roman Gentleman, liv'd in the 392d Year of Rome. 'Tis ſaid, That upon his perceiving a great Gulph in the middle of the Forum at Rome, which made an Impreſſion upon the People and ſeem'd to preſage Misfortune; and underſtanding likewiſe by the Oracle, that this Chaſm could not be fill'd up unleſs the Romans would be at the Expence of throwing in the moſt valuable thing they had into it. Curtius having revolved all this in his Mind, and concluded his own Valour the beſt thing in the Town, what does he do, but arms himſelf for the Field, mounts, and clapping Spurs to his Horſe, gallops into the Abyſs, upon which the Ground cloſed again as well as ever. Valer. Maxim. l. 5. c. 6, &c.

CURTIUS (Matthew) an eminent Phyſician of Pavia, born in the XVIth Century. His Works are much valued: The moſt conſiderable of 'em are, De Curandis Febribus. Ars Medica. De Septimeſtri Partu. Methodus Doſandi, &c. Juſtus in Chron. Medic. Vander Lindin De Script. Medic.

CUSCO, or Cuzco, Lat. Cuſium, a Town of Southern America in Peru, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan to the Archbiſhop of Lima. It formerly was Capital of Peru, and the Reſidence of the Emperors or Ynca's of that Kingdom. It's environed with Mountains, and its firſt Buildings were upon the ſide of that called Sacſa-Huama, where there formerly has been a Fortreſs, whoſe Remains, yet to be ſeen, ſhew, that the Work was admirable. The Town is divided into two parts, whereof one is called Hanan Cuſco, that is, High Cuſco, and the other Hurin Cuſcow, or Low Cuſco. The Ynca's Palace was a Fortreſs in Sacſa-Huama, and conſiſted of three Caſtles in form of a Triangle, whereof that which ſtood in the middle, ſerv'd him for an Apartment. The Walls were covered with Gold and Silver, and embelliſhed with ſeveral Figures of Beaſts; from one Caſtle to another were Ways under the Ground, with Turnings and Windings in form of a Labyrinth. This ſumptuous Building was deſtroyed by the Spaniards, who carried a great many of the Stones to build the Town, leaving nothing but the Walls, and that becauſe they could not remove the Stones, they were ſo very big. The Houſes of Cuſco are built upon the Rock without digging any Foundation, yet the Architecture is charming. There is a great Square in the middle of the Town, pointing towards the four Cardinal Points of the World. The moſt famous of the ancient Temples of this Town, was dedicated to the Sun, which they called Curiacanche: This was a ſumptuous Building, full of Riches, where the Ynca's ſacrificed Children to this falſe Deity they adored, and all placed here the Idols of ſuch People as they conquered, to ſerve as Trophies erected in Honour of their God. During the Ynca's Reign, all the Gold and Silver of the other Provinces of Peru, was carried to Cuſco; ſo that the Spaniards, when they made themſelves Maſters of it, found immenſe Treaſures lock'd up in Caves, and hid in Holes in the Earth. The Air here is ſomewhat cold, but healthful, and they want nothing neceſſary for the Support of Life. There is a Fountain in the middle of the Town, whoſe Water makes an excellent Salt. They count about 3000 Spaniards in Cuſco, and 10000 Indians that obey a Corregidor or Governor, eſtabliſhed by the Vice-Roy of Peru, who reſides at Lima. The Land about Cuſco is very fruitful and pleaſant by the great Variety of Trees and Flowers it produces. Four Leagues from the Town is the Valley of Ynca, which is a very delicious Place, both for the Beauty of its Gardens, and its good and temperate Air; it's environed with high Mountains covered with Trees, and well ſtock'd with pleaſant Streams that run into the Valley. the Ynca's took their Pleaſures here, as may be ſeen by the Remains of their ſumptuous Buildings; the chief of Cuſco have alſo often deſign'd to remove hither. The Ynca's, beſides their Palaces, had a Fortreſs here built on a Rock, and environed with others in form of a Crown, with the Figures of Lions and other Salvage Beaſts, holding ſome Arms in their Paws. The Spaniards eſteem this Valley much, and improve its Soil with great Care, ſowing Corn in it, and planting Sugar-canes; they alſo remove their Sick hither for their ſpeedier Recovery. De laet.

CUSPINIAN (John) a German, of Sweinfort in Franconia, was a Philoſopher, Hiſtorian, Orator, Poet and Phyſician. He liv'd in the beginning of the XVIth Century, and was eſteem'd by the Emperor Maximilian the firſt, who employ'd him in ſeveral Negotiations. He wrote, A Commentary of the Conſuls, Cæſars, and Roman Emperors: A Hiſtory of Auſtria, where he mentions the Marquiſſes, Dukes and Arch-Dukes of the Auſtrian Family: A Hiſtory of the Original of the Turks, of their Religion and Tyrannical Uſage of the Chriſtians, with ſeveral other Pieces. Paulus Jovius in Elog. Voſſius lib. 3. De Hiſt. Lat. &c.

CUSTRIN upon Oder, a Town of Germany in the new Marche of Brandenburg. It's very ſtrong, with a good Caſtle ſituate in Moraſſes or Bogs, four or five Leagues from Francfort.

CUTHBERT, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, died in 760. He publiſh'd the Acts of a Synod held under him in 747. His other Writings are, Epiſt. ad Zachariam Papam. De Tumulis Illuſtrium Virorum, &c. Pits De Script. Angl. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2. c. 29. &c.

CUTLER (Sir Gervaſe) of Stainber-Hall in Com. Ebor. Kt. This Family in former times wrote Coteler, as appears by ſeveral Old Deeds and Records in the Tower and elſewhere. The firſt of this Name ſince William the Conqueror, was of Saxon Extraction, and was forc'd for ſome time, upon the Norman Conqueſt, to diſguiſe himſelf under another Name. One of this Name was Benefactor to Spalding-Abby in Lincolnſhire, as appears by the Voucher-Books of that County, by which, and by the Arms born by him, 'tis ſuppos'd that he was deſcended from Leofrick, Saxon Earl of Mercia and Coventry. Hugh Cutler, of this Family, remov'd from Boſton in Lincolnſhire, to Eye in Suffolk, and had Iſſue William, who was made Serjeant at Law. The Male-Line of this Branch failing, we ſhall proceed to John Cutler of Wortley, younger Brother to Hugh abovementioned; This John was Standard-Bearer in the Wars betwixt Henry VI. and King Edward IV. who, upon the Score of his extraordinary Valour, was commonly called the Great; he remov'd from Eye into Wales, and afterwards in the 19th of Edward IV. ſetled in Yorkſhire, at the Inſtance and Invitation of Sir Nicholas Wortley, his Kinſman. His Eldeſt Son, Thomas Cutler, liv'd at Old-Hall, in Com. Ebor. whoſe Son Lawrence had Iſſue John of Halfit, and Kereſford-Hall, call'd to be Serjeant at Law, and marry'd the Daughter of Copley, who had Iſſue, Thomas Cutler of Stainber-Hall, who was Juſtice of Peace in the Reign of King James I. and marry'd a Daughter of Roger Reyne, Eſq; and Siſter to Sir John Reyne of Kent, Baronet, by whom he had Iſſue Sir Gervaſe Cutler of Stainber-Hall, marry'd firſt to Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir John Bentley, and afterwards to the Lady Magdalen Edgerton, Daughter to the Earl of Bridgwater by the Lady Frances Stanley, Daughter to the Earl of Derby: This Sir Gervais in the time of King Charles I. rais'd a conſiderable Number of Men at his own Charges, to ſerve the King againſt the Rebellion, and convey'd almoſt a Thouſand Pounds worth of Plate to Pontefract-Caſtle for his Majeſty's Service. After his Deceaſe his Lady was obliged to compound twice for her Eſtate; by which, and by quartering of Soldiers, ſometimes a Troop at once, ſhe was very much diſtreſs'd in her Fortune. Sir Gervaſe, left Iſſue Sir Gervaſe, marry'd to Dorothy, Daughter to Henry Franckland of Aldwort, Eſq; 2dly. Sir Thomas Cutler, Captain in the Duke of York's Regiment, under whom he ſerv'd, in the Dutch Wars, at Sea; being afterwards ſent for four Years and a half into the French Service under the Duke of Luxemburg, Prince of Conde, and Marſhal Turenne, and at his Return was Knighted by King Charles II. in his Bed-Chamber: He married the Lady Fettiplace, was Juſtice of Peace, Deputy-Lieutenant, and Officer of the Militia under King Charles II. continuing in the ſaid Commiſſions till the Year 1688. Henry Cutler, Eſq; is eldeſt Son to Sir Gervaſe, as Edgerton Cutler, Eſq; is to Sir Thomas laſt mentioned. The Arms of this Family are, Azure, Border'd Argent, charg'd with Three Wiverns Heads Eras'd, Or. The Creſt, A Wivern's Head Collate Or, with a Ducal Crown about the Neck. *Fines 2 Ed. 1. CUZT, a Province of the Kingdom of Fez, in Africa, ſituated towards the South, at the Eaſt of the Temeſne. It's thought its Name is derived from the great extent; for Cuzt in the Country Language ſignifies much. It is 80 Leagues in length, from the River Gureygure to that of Eſaba, and comprehends that part of Mount Atlas that lies between theſe two Rivers. The Gentry are very generous and of good uſe to the King of Fez, againſt thoſe of Algiers. The chief Towns are Tezar or Teza, Sofroy, &c. Marmol.

CYANA, a Nymph of Sicily, who endeavouring to hinder Proſerpina's Rape, was metamorphoſed into a Fountain by Pluto.

CYANIPPUS, of Syracuſe, for deſpiſing the Feaſts of Bacchus, was puniſhed with a Drunkenneſs which ſo diſcompoſed his Brain, that in the mad fit he raviſhed his Daughter Cyana. Some time after this, the Plague making an extream Havock in the Country, and the Oracle anſwering, That the Heavens would not be appeaſed until the Inceſtuous were ſacrificed, Cyana obliged her Father to offer himſelf for his Country, and ſhe died with him. Plutarch makes mention of this in his Parallels, where he brings the Example of another of the Name, who killed himſelf upon his Wife's Body, being torn in Pieces by Dogs.

CYAXARES, King of the Medes, ſucceeded his Father Phraortes, An. Mun. 3319. or 20. in XXXVIth Olympiad. Some Authors give him the Name of Aſtibaras, and affirm, That as he laid Siege to Nineve he was forced to return and defend his own Country againſt the Incurſions of the Scythians, and that his Army was cut in Pieces by their General Midias. Euſebius ſeems to put theſe Peoples Invaſion in Phraortes's Reign. However Cyaxares defeated them afterwards, for having invited their Chief Officers to a Banquet, he maſſacred them all in their Drink. He then made himſelf Maſter of Aſſyria, entred into the Country of the Lydians, who had ſhelter'd the Scythians, his Enemies. His Reign was of forty Years, his Life very famous, by the many Provinces he join'd to his Kingdom, which he left to his Son Aſtyages, An. Mun. 3359. or 60. Euſeb. &c.

CYBELE, generally called the Mother and Grandmother of the Gods, was by the Ancients thought to be Saturn's Wife; they called her Ops, Rhea, Dindymene, Berecynthia, Good-Goddeſs, &c. They repreſented her crowned with Towers, with a Key in her Hand, and clad in flowred Stuff, placed upon a Chair drawn by four Lions. The Pine-Tree was conſecrated to her; after Atis, whom ſhe loved ſo well, was metamorphoſed into it. Her Prieſts were Eunuchs, and they as well as their Sacrifices are laugh'd at by Tertullian in his Apologetick. The Pagan Divinity, which always conceals ſome natural Truth in its fabulous Myſteries, learns us, that this Goddeſs called Cybele, either from the Mountain of this Name whereon ſhe was ſacrificed to, or from the Word Cube, was the Earth which produces all things; and it was for this reaſon ſhe was called the Great-Mother. Her Crown of Towers and Cities repreſents what the Earth is covered with. The Key ſhe holds in her Hand marks, that ſhe locks in all her Fruitfulneſs during Winter, which in the Spring begins to appear, and then it's ſaid the Earth opens. This painted or flowered Garment can become nothing ſo well as the Earth which is variegated with all kind of Flowers. The four Beaſts that draw the Chariot, mark the four Seaſons of the Year, wherein the Earth appears ſo differently. Some take them for the four Qualities of the Earth, the four Elements, four Cardinal Winds. And if the Ancients had known the four Parts of the World, they might have been compared to them. In fine, Saturn, which ſignifies Time, is believed to be the Earth's Husband, to ſhew that muſt have time to bring forth its Productions. Euſebius believes with Diodorus Siculus, that Cybele was a Woman who had very good Remedies for young Children, and that the Ancients had all their Philoſophy from this Source. Euſebius, Diodorus.

CYCLADES, Iſlands of the Ægean Sea, called The Archipelago. They are called ſo, becauſe they make a Circle in the Sea round about the Iſle Delos, whither the Inhabitants ſent their Children every Year, to aſſiſt at the Feaſts that were kept there. The beſt known of theſe Iſlands are Delos, where Apollo and Diana were born, Paros, eſteemed for its white Marble, Andros, Zea or Cia, Micoli, Naxia, Quiniminio, Siro, Tine, Serphone, Siphane, &c.

CYCLE, of the Sun, a Revolution of 28 Years, after which the Year adjuſted to the Sun by the preceding Biſſextile, begins at the ſame Day of the Week, as Sunday, Monday, &c. To conceive this, it muſt be known, that the ordinary Year conſiſting of 365 Days, making 52 Weeks and 1 Day, makes the laſt Day of the Year to be the ſame with the firſt, and the following begins with another Day than the preceding began with. If there was no Change but this, the Cycle of the Sun ſhould be in Seven Years, but the Biſſextile that comes in every fourth Year rendring that longer by a Day, the Year does not begin by the ſame Day the firſt did, but by the following; ſo that we muſt go to the twenty eighth (which is ſeven times four, or four times ſeven) to come juſt to the ſame beginning of the Year. But this relates only to Julius Cæſar's Calendar; for ſince the Reformation of this by Pope Gregory the XIIIth. the Solar Cycle muſt be of four hundred Years, and this Number of Years muſt run before the Dominical Letter comes to the ſame point as at firſt. This Cycle of 400 Years begun in 1601. and will end in 2000. during which time, 1700, 1800, and 1900. will not be Biſſextiles in the Countries wherein the New Style is followed. P. Petau.

CYCLE of the Moon, or Lunar Cycle, the Revolution of 19 Years, after which the New-Moon returns to the ſame Day of the Month with the Solar Year; but about an Hour and a half ſooner than in the preceding Cycle. This Cycle conſiſts of 19 Lunar Years, in which are ſeven Emboliſms, or ſeven Months inſerted, which makes 235 Lunar Months, that make 6939 Days, 16 Hours, 32 Minutes. But 19 Solar Years, according to the Julian Calendar, make 6939 Days and 18 Hours, whence it follows, that this Cycle of 19 Years of the Courſe of the Moon is leſs by almoſt an Hour and a half; wherefore Pope Gregory the XIIIth ordered the Reformation of the Calendar in 1582. whereby it was found that in the ſpace of 1257. the number of Years that paſs'd from the Council of Nice in 325. this Hour and a half that were neglected, cauſed an anticipation of four Days; ſo that the New Moon was marked by the Golden Number four Days too ſoon, in ſuch a manner, that the Rules eſtabliſhed for the keeping of Eaſter were not obſerved. P. Petau.

CYCLE, Chinois, a Period of 60 Years, whoſe uſe had ſome relation, or at leaſt reſemblance, with that of the Olympiads, Indictions of the Solar and Lunar Cycles, or the Golden Number. This Cycle is compoſed of ten repeated Letters, and twelve Chinois Characters that mark the Hours. Each Year is diſtinguiſhed by a Letter and Chifre continuing until they come to a Year that has the firſt Letter and Chifre, which is the ſixtieth. Theſe Cycles have their perpetual Revolution from ſixty to ſixty Years, and are very certain Rules for Chronology; for marking the Number of the Cycle with the Letter and Chifre of the Year; they give an infallible Knowledge of the Time a thing is done in. As for Example, In ſaying 1 Cycle K 2. I mark the 50th Year of the firſt Cycle, which begins the Year 2697 before Chriſt's Birth; ſo that the 50th Year of this Cycle is the 2648th before the Meſſias, which is known in ſubtracting 49 from 2697. Couplet. Confucius.

CYCLOPS, the firſt Inhabitants of Sicily, of a monſtrous or gigantick bigneſs, as appeared by the Bones found in ſeveral Tombs. They were very cruel and kept about Mount Ætna, which gave Poets occaſion to make them Vulcan's Smiths, who employed them, ſaid they, in making Jupiter's Thunder-bolts. Bochart imagines that the Sicilians who dwelt towards the African Continent, about the Gulph of Lilybaum were call'd Cyclops. Can. Lib. 1. c. 30.

CYDIAS, a Famous Painter that did Excellent Works; Amongſt the reſt, his Piece of the Argonauts was ſo much eſteem'd, that the Orator Hortenſius gave a very conſiderable Sum for it, and put it in one of his Country-Houſes. It's thought he liv'd about the CVIth. Olympiad, in Euphranor's Time, who was alſo a famous Painter. Plin. l. 35.

CYDNUS, a River of Aſia Minor, in Cilicia, runs by Cogni and Tarſus. Its water is ſo very cold, that when Alexander the Great waſhed himſelf in it, he fell ſo deſperately ill that moſt of his Phyſicians gave him over. But Philip cured him with a Potion or drink he gave him. Some Authors have written, That the Water of this ſame River killed the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa in his return from the Eaſt, in 1100.

CYDON, or Cydonia according to Strabo, and Cydonis according to Ptolemy. One of the chief Towns of the Iſle of Crete, firſt called Apollonia. It was a great well-fortified Tetragon, and had a Harbour that could contain a great Number of Veſſels. It's now Canea, that famous Place of Candia which the Turks took from the Venetians in 1646. See CANEA.

CYGNUS, a certain King of the Ligurians, which Jupiter metamorphoſed into a Bird of the ſame Name, in Engliſh a Swan, becauſe he wept for the Misfortune of Phaeton and his Siſters. Ovid makes mention of it in his ſecond Book of Metamorphoſes. In his fourth he ſpeaks of Hierée's Son turned into the ſame Bird. And in the twelfth, of a Son of Neptune, called Cygnus, ſlain by Achilles.

CYLLABARUS, King of Argos, ſucceeded his Father Sthenelus, and re-united all the Succeſſions of this Kingdom that were divided into three Sovereignties, whereof one was poſſeſſed by the Succeſſors of Melampus, another by the Deſcendants of Bias, and the third, which was the biggeſt, by the Heirs of Prætus. Cyanippus, the laſt of Melampus and Bias his Race dying without Iſſue, Perſeus was lawful Heir by Danae, Acriſius's Daughter; but he renounced his Title, and went to reign at Mycene; ſo that all theſe were united to what Cyllabarus poſſeſſed, who debauched Egiale in her Husband Diomedes's abſence, at the Siege of Troy; but leaving no Children, the Crown fell to the Family of Pelops. Pauſan.

CYLLENE, a Mountain of Arcadia, famous for the Birth and Education of Mercury. It had this Name from Cyllen, Son of Elatus, King of Arcadia. Le Noire places another in Morea. There was alſo a Town of Ælis of this Name, which Le Noire calls Antravida. Pomponius Mela. Virg. &c.

CYNA, Daughter to Philip II. King of Macedon, and Siſter to Alexander the Great, ſhe marryed Amyntas, Son to Perdiccas the IIId. lawful Heir to the Crown that Philip uſurped; and was afterwards married to Lagæus, King of the Agrians. She was a courageous and heroick Princeſs, commanded Armies, and won many Victories, killed the Queen of the Illyrians with her own Hand. After her Brother Alexander's Death, ſhe, that his Poſſeſſions might fall to her Children, oppoſed Perdiccas's Pretenſions, who contriv'd her Death. Plutarch. Juſtin.

CYNÆTHUS, a Greek Poet, Native of the Iſle of Chio or Scio. It's not known what time he lived in; but only that he was the firſt who collected Homer's Verſes at Syracuſe, and recited them publickly, according to the Anonymous Author of the Olympiads, and by the Scholiaſt on Pindar. Meurſius de Archont. Attic.

CYNEAS, a Theſſalian, Diſciple of Demoſthenes, lived in the CXXVth Olympiad, about the Year 474 after the Foundation of Rome, and was ſo much in Pyrrhus, King of the Epirots, Favour, that he made him his Councellor of State, and ſent him in 475 of Rome to ſollicit a Peace, which was denied him by the Perſuaſion of old Appius Claudius. Pliny ſays, in Praiſe of Cyneas's Memory, that the next Day after he came to Rome, he ſaluted all the Senators and Knights, and called them all by their Names. He and Pyrrhus writ a Treatiſe of War cited by Cicero in one of his Letters to Papirius Pætus. Strabo ſpeaks of a fabulous Hiſtory written by one Cyneas; but it's not believed, that this was King Pyrrhus his Secretary, who was a Man of Wit. Plutarch in Pyrrh. &c.

CYNEGYRUS, an Athenian Soldier, ſo mad againſt the Perſians at the Battel of Marathon in the third Year of the LXXth Olympiad, and the 264th of Rome, 490 before the Chriſtian Æra, that he purſued the Enemy to their very Ships, and took hold of one in his right hand, which he held until the hand was cut off. Then he ſnap'd at it with his left, and when this was cut off, made uſe of his Teeth like a Wild Beaſt. Juſtin lib. 2. &c.

CYNIQUES, a Sect of Philoſophers, founded by Antiſthenes of Athens. He lived in the XCIVth Olymp. and his Sect grew famous by the Reputation of his Diſciples, Diogenes and Monymus of Syracuſe. Crates of Thebes, Hipparchia, his Wife, Oneſicratus, Menippus, and ſeveral other, were the moſt renowned of this Sect, which took its Name from the Place Antiſthenes taught in, but a little way out of the Gates of Athens, called Cynoſarges, that is, Of Dogs; though ſome were pleaſed to ſay ſince, that the too-free or canine way the Cynicks lived, was occaſion of the Name. But the People of this Profeſſion did but laugh at the injurious Title; and Diogenes made very pleaſant Repartees to thoſe that thought to affront him with it. So he asked Alexander the Great when he came to ſee him, Whether he was not afraid the Dog would bite him. Of all the parts of Philoſophy the Cynicks applied themſelves to and improved Morality moſt, ſlighting Logick, Phyſick, and the creditable Sciences of Muſick, Geometry, Aſtronomy, &c. yet their Morality was not free from its Faults; nothing was more biting and offenſive than their Ways. To render a Man wiſe, they would have him begin by a great Contempt of himſelf; and to uſe him to it, their Lectures look'd more like Inſulting than Advice. Beſides this, their Doctrine had very odd Notions. As for Example, impoſing for Principle, That all the Goods of the Univerſe belonged to God, and that the wiſe Man was his Image and intimate Friend. They concluded, That as all things are common among Friends, the wiſe may make uſe of all things in this World, as if they belonged to themſelves. They are alſo blamed for holding both honeſt and dirty Actions indifferent; to prove which, they made uſe of this Argument, What is Good is Good in all Places, as to eat, drink, and perform the natural Actions: By conſequence there is no harm to eat in the Streets, or act publickly like Brutes in other Inſtances. Hipparchia ſuffered Crates to lie with her at a full Club, and Diogenes is accuſed of the like Indecency. Yet ſeveral Authors excuſe theſe Faults. And ſome of the Fathers commend their Vertue in their Poverty and begging Condition. Julian the Emperor compares them to pretty painted Boxes on the out-ſide, that have nothing curious in them. They boaſted of living according to Vertue, which they ſaid was their only end. Diogenes Laertius. Voſſius, &c.

CYNOCEPHALE, or Dog's-head, a certain Country in Bœotia, where the Poet Pindar died, it's different from another in Theſſaly, where the Proconſul Quintus gained the Battle againſt Philip. Pliny ſaid, There were of theſe Cynocephalai, or Men with Dogs-heads in Æthiopia, and that they liv'd of nothing but Milk. Livy Lib. 23. Pliny Lib. 6. c. 30. &c.

CYNOCEPHALUS, a falſe God of the Egyptians, and called otherwiſe Anubis, adored particularly in a Town of Egypt called Cynopolis. Plutarch.

CYNOPOLIS, a Town of Egypt, in the Eaſtern part of the Nile, where the God Anubis of the Egyptians was adored the Dogs there were maintained at the charge of the Publick. Κυνόπολις ſignifies the Town of Dogs. Strab. Lib. 7.

CYNTHUS, which the Italians call Monte Cintio, is a Mountain in the middle of the Iſle of Delos, where, if we credit Fable, Latona bore Apollo and Diana. The Pagans built a very famous Temple in it, which was in ſuch great Veneration, that the very Perſians; coming againſt Greece with above a Thouſand Sail, pay'd a particular reſpect to this place, and violated none of its Privileges of Religion. Strabo.

CYPARISSA, an ancient Town of the Morea, that did belong to the Government of Maſſene, and gave its Name to the Neighbouring Cape and Gulph, called at preſent, Cap Gonello.

CYPARISSUS, a very handſome young Boy, much beloved by Apollo. He was ſo grieved, That he killed a Deer which he had brought up a long time, that he had a mind to kill himſelf, until Apollo changed him into a Cypreſs-Tree. Ovid Metamorph.

St. CYPRIAN, (Cæcilius) Biſhop of Carthage, lived in the IIId Century, and Succeeded Donatus or Agrippinus about 248 or 50. His Birth was very Noble, and he taught Rhetorick with great Applauſe, before his Converſion to the Faith of Jeſus Chriſt, which was occaſioned by a Friend of his named Cæcilius. So to requite the kindneſs and ſhew his gratitude, he took the Name of his good Benefactor. During the Emperor Decius's Perſecution of the Chriſtians, he ſhewed all poſſible Zeal in the Defence of his Flock; and afterwards lying hid in a ſecure place, he ſupplied the Wants of his People by his Letters full of Piety and Inſtruction. He writ others to ſuppreſs the Diſorders occaſioned by the Libellatici, for this was a Name ſome Chriſtians were called by, who to avoid the Torments threatned by the Heathen Magiſtrates, took Certificates of 'em, to ſhow their Compliance with the Emperor's Orders in Sacrificing. Theſe ſought to make their Peace with the Church, through the Interceſſion of Confeſſors and Martyrs; and after them all ſort of Perſons, even thoſe who Sacrificed to Idols demanded the ſame Benefit. This Zeal of the holy Prelate was very ill recompenced; for a Prieſt called Feliciſſimus, endeavoured to create a miſunderſtanding between him and the Confeſſors, and had the boldneſs to form a Schiſm againſt him. St. Cyprian in this Conjuncture conſulted the Clergy of Rome, (where then the Sea was vacant) for their Advice in ſo important a Difficulty. They commended his Diſcipline as regular and neceſſary. Soon after Cornelius was choſen Pope, and much diſturbed by Novatus and Novatianus's Schiſm, though the Biſhop of Carthage did what he could to ſmother this Diviſion at its firſt Appearance. This Zeal put him upon an obſtinate defence of the Cuſtom of Re-baptizing Hereticks, who quitted their Errors, as theſe uſed to Re-baptize thoſe of his Party they had perverted. He was Martyred during the Perſecution of Valerian and Galienus, in 258. or 261. as Baronius will have it. To give ſome light to what was ſaid in ſpeaking of the Peace asked in the Church, we muſt obſerve that the Libellatici, and other Apoſtates were not admitted into the Communion of the Church until they had confeſſed the Fault, and done long Penance for it. But as this ſometimes was very rigorous, they addreſſed themſelves to the Confeſſors and Martyrs, that is, to the Faithful that had owned Jeſus Chriſt before the Heathen Magiſtrates, or ſuffered ſome Torment, were impriſoned, &c. to obtain by their Interceſſion ſome Relaxation of their Penance, and this was called, To ask peace. Theſe Holy Men moved with their Tears and Compunction, gave them Certificates to acquaint the Prelates that they received thoſe Penitents. The Billets contained theſe words, Let ſuch an one be admitted to Communion. And the Authority of theſe Champions of Chriſtianity was at that time ſo conſiderable, that it was believed Jeſus Chriſt pronounced this Sentence by their Mouth, and therefore it was to be received without further Appeal. In St. Cyprian's time this good Cauſe produced a very bad Effect. For all perſons, as well they that had Sacrificed as they that had received Certificates, ſued for Peace. The beſt Edition of St. Cyprian's Works is that of John Fell, Biſhop of Oxford, which was printed in England and Germany. This has in the beginning of it, the Life of St. Cyprian, Entituled, Annales Cyprianici, and Written by John Pearſon, Biſhop of Cheſter. Bellarmin, Baronius.

CYPRUS, one of the greateſt Iſlands of the Mediterranean Sea, has Title of a Kingdom. It was formerly Conſecrated to Venus; who, if we believe what Poets ſay, was born in this Iſland, perhaps becauſe the Inhabitants were obſerved to be very amorous. Cyprus has Syria to the Eaſt, and is but about Twenty Leagues from the main Land. Formerly it was divided but into four parts; but the Turks generally count eleven. As the Country has no Rivers, but inſtead of them great Ponds, the Air is very thick and cloudy, which renders it very often unhealthful, eſpecially for thoſe that are not uſed to it. Setting this inconveniency aſide, the Iſland is fertil enough, bearing great quantities of Corn, Fruits, and other good Proviſions; eſpecially its Wines are excellent, which was the chiefeſt reaſon Selim had to take it, as will be afterwards obſerved. It was always ſo conſiderable for its Mines, that the Grecians called it Macaria, that is, Fortunate. After which it was called Cyprus, either for the great quantity of Copper found there, or from a certain Tree which the Grecians called Κυπρὶς, and is found in great abundance in this Iſland. It's not Cypreſs, but the Liguſtrum of the Latins, the Liguſtro of the Italians, and is called Arbel de la Albenna by the Spaniards, in Engliſh Privet, which is a Shrub that bears a white Flower with a very pleaſant ſmell. Its chief Towns now are Nicotia, Capital of the Kingdom, Famagouſta that has a good Port, Limiſſo, Sirori, Maſolo, Laſcara, Cerines, &c. and formerly had Paphos, now Baffo, Cythera, Amathunte. It had its particular Kings before it became Subject to the Romans, whereof Evagoras, Ally to the Athenians, is moſt ſpoken of, the ſame that was killed by the Eunuch Nicocles, in 380. 374 before the Chriſtian Æra. After this the Perſian Empire being deſtroyed, the Iſle of Cyprus was under the Ptolemies, Kings of Egypt, from Alexander's death, in the 430th year of Rome, until 697. or 98. that the Romans uſurped it. Ptolemy, the laſt King, killed himſelf upon the rumour of their approach. Cato, ſent by the Senate into Cyprus, gathered and brought off all the Wealth which furniſhed the Exchequer or Treaſury far more than the Spoils of any other Conqueſt. For ſome affirm, that it amounted to above thirty Millions. From Conſtantine the Great's time it always was under the Grecian Emperors, until all the Iſland Revolted, and Iſaac Comnenes, a cruel man, given to all manner of Wickedneſs, made himſelf Maſter of it. Richard King of England, going in 1191. to fight the Saracens in the Holy Land, driven hither by a Storm, took it from this Comnenes, who inſtead of helping his Men, ſo miſerably haraſſed by the Tempeſt, came and plundered them. Richard left it to Guy of the Family of Leziguen, or Luſignan, of France, whoſe Succeſſors held it till 1473. Then John, or Janus, the laſt King, left it to Charlotte, who married Lewis of Savoy, but James, Janus's Baſtard-ſon, and a Clergy-man, uſurped it from her, and married Catharine, Daughter to Mare Cornaro, a Venetian, whom the Senate had adopted and appointed a Dowry for. This James died, and left Catharine big with a Son that Lived but two years; whereupon Catharine made the Kingdom over to the Venetians, though Charlotte was then ſtill alive, and reclaimed her Right. This Common-wealth kept it until 1571. that the Turks made themſelves Maſters of it under Selim II. It's ſaid that this Prince, being a great Lover of Wine, though prohibited by Mahomet's Law, would have this Iſland for that good Liquor's ſake. He was alſo willing to Revenge a particular Quarrel, and to pleaſe them that were about him; amongſt others, there was one John Miches, a Native of Portugal, and deſcended from thoſe Jews, who rather than be forced to quit a Country, do not ſtick to renounce their Anceſtor's Religion. This Man, baniſhed his Country for ſome ill thing he did, retired to Venice, where being puniſhed for a certain Crime, reſolved to be Revenged, and ſo went to Conſtantinople; there he Married a Rich Jeweſs, and having acceſs by his Wealth to Selim, put him upon the Conqueſt of Cyprus. It's ſaid that this Turkiſh Prince one day half drunk, clapped Miches upon the ſhoulder, crying, Thou art King of Cyprus, if Heaven favours my Deſigns. In the mean time, the Venetians fortified the Iſle, eſpecially the Towns of Famagouſta and Nicotia. The Turks made their Deſcent under Piuli and Muſtapha, in Auguſt 1570. and took the laſt of theſe Places, after a Siege of forty eight days. Afterwards they inveſted Famagouſta, the 22d of September; but Winter coming on, the Siege was put off to the next year, when it ſurrendred, after it was battered for 75 days with above 150000 Cannon ſhot. This being thus taken, the Turks made themſelves Maſters of the whole Iſland, where they kept a Beglerbeg. The Church of Cyprus was eſtabliſhed by St. Paul, who preached there, with St. Barnabas; which laſt was ſaid to be Martyr'd here, and his body found under the Empire of Zeno, in 385. with St. Matthew's Goſpel lying on his Breaſt. S. Epiphanius, Biſhop of Salamina, held a Council here in 399. at Theophilus Patriarch of Jeruſalem's requeſt, who had himſelf condemned the Origeniſts. They were alſo anathematized in this Synod, and Origen's Books forbidden.

CYPSELUS, Son of Ætion, a Corinthian Lord. It's ſaid, His Birth was foretold by the Oracle of Delphos, which being conſulted by the Father, returned this anſwer, That the Eagle would produce a Stone that ſhould oppreſs the Corinthians; the Eagle ſignified Ætion, which comes from Ἀετὸς, an Eagle; and this Stone was Cypſelus, who afterwards oppreſſed the Prytanes or Sovereign Magiſtrates of Corinth. The Corinthians, being ſcar'd at this Prediction, endeavoured to put him to death, but could not compaſs it. It's ſaid, he was called Cypſelus, becauſe his Mother hid him for ſome time in a Cheſt; for Κυψέλη in Greek ſignifies a Cheſt or Trunk: Being of age, he uſurp'd the Juriſdiction of Corinth, and reign'd 30 years, leaving the Kingdom to his Son Periander, and his Succeſſors held it to the time of another Cypſelus, Son to Periander II.

CYPSELUS II. Son and Succeſſor of Periander, King of Corinth, and the Iſle of Corcyra. Some time after Periander had kick'd his Wife Lyſida to death, Cypſelus and his Brother Lycophron were ſent to Procles King of Epidaurus, that Princeſs's Father, who repreſented their Father's cruelty toward their Mother. Cypſelus did not ſeem to be much concerned at what he ſaid, but Lycophron ſwore that he would never return to Corinth whilſt his Father lived, and ſo retired to Corcyra, where the Inhabitants fearing Periander's Preſence in ſearch of this Son, put Lycophron to death, and Cypſelus mounted the Throne after his Father.

CYR, a Town and Biſhoprick of Syria, under the Patriarchſhip of Antioch, the ſame that Theodoret was Prelate of. Latin Authors call it Cyrus or Cyropolis, and ſome believe, it's the Quars of our days. John, Biſhop of this Town, aſſembled a Synod in it againſt Peter Fonton, in 476.

CYRANO Bergerac (N. de) a French Author of a very particular Character, (who flouriſhed in the laſt Age.) He was born in Gaſcony in 1620. His Father, a very good Gentleman, ſent him to be taught by a Country Prieſt that kept Boarders; but Cyrano, who from his very Infancy, had a natural Averſion for thoſe ſervile Wits that apply themſelves to trifles as to the moſt eſſential Points, made but little progreſs under this Maſter, which made his Father ſend him to Paris, where he left him to his own Conduct, without conſidering his Age. This liberty of doing what he liked beſt, put Cyrano upon a very dangerous deſign, until a friend of his diſſwaded him from it, adviſing him to turn Cadet in the Regiment of Guards, where all the young French Gentlemen ſerved their Apprenticeſhips: Here his natural courage and readineſs to ſerve his Friends, made him ſoon known by the frequent Duels he was engaged in, as Second. This, and ſome other deſperate Actions, got him the name of Intrepid, and the Devil of courage. He was ſhot through the Body at the Siege of Mouzon, and ran through the Neck at the Siege of Arras, in 1640. What he ſuffered during theſe two Sieges, with the little hopes he had to be preferr'd for want of a Patron; to whom, had he had one, his over free Humour would never have ſuffered him to ſubject himſelf; and finally, his great Love for Learning, made him quite renounce the Trade of War, and apply himſelf altogether to the exerciſe of Wit. He compoſed many Books, wherein he ſhewed his great and quick Imagination. The Mareſchal of Gaſſion, who loved Men of Wit and Courage, becauſe he had much of the one and the other. himſelf, would have Cyrano with him; but he, being an Idolater of Liberty, looked upon this advantage as a conſtraint that would never agree with him; yet, at laſt, to comply with his Friends, who preſs'd him to procure a Patron at Court, he overcame his great Paſſion for Liberty, and plac'd himſelf with the Duke of Arpajon, in 1653. to whom he dedicated his Works the ſame year, for he had publiſhed none before. Theſe were ſome Letters written in his Youth, with two Tragedies, one intituled, The Death of Agrippa, widow of Germanicus; the other, The Pedant, or meer Scholar ridiculed; for it was after his death that the Comick Hiſtory of the Kingdoms of the Sun and Moon were printed. Thoſe Hiſtories, as well as his fragment of Phyſick, do ſhew, that he was well acquainted with Des Cartes's Principles. He died in 1655. and the 35th year of his age, being much fallen from the dangerous Maxims and Libertinage of his Youth. Mem. du Temps.

CYRBES and AXONES, Names given to the Laws of Solon, who firſt founded the Common-wealth of Athens; as Lycurgus, founder of the Spartan Commonwealth, called his Rhetra. From both theſe the Romans drew theirs called Sumptuariæ, which were put in vigour and executed by the Dictator Sylla, as Ammianus Marcellinus obſerves, C. 16. The Athenians called Solon's Laws Axones, becauſe they were written in Wooden-Tables, cut Triangle wiſe. The Cyrbes contain'd, particularly, what regarded the ſervice of the Gods, and all the reſt was comprehended in the Axones. Theſe Laws were kept firſt in the Acropolis, the Fortreſs of Athens, wherein alſo the Records were laid up: After that time Ephialtes drew Copies of them, which he carryed to the Prytaneum, leaving the Originals in the Acropolis: Theſe were writ in ſuch a way that the firſt line was drawn from the left to the Right, and the ſecond from the right to the left, after the Hebrew Method. Plutarch in Solon's Life ſays, he himſelf ſaw ſome remains of thoſe Records. Bochart.

CYRENE, Lat. Cyrene, now called Cairoan, or Corene, a Town of Africa in Barbary, which we call Barca, thought to have been built by the Grecians, who ſettled firſt in the Iſle of Plater, whence they paſſed into Africa, and under the Conduct of the Carthaginians founded Zoa near Apollo's Fountain, and choſe Battus their King, whoſe Son and Succeſſor Arceſilas built and peopled Cyrene, about the 138th of Rome. He and his Succeſſors kept it about Two hundred years; afterwards it was at ſome times free, and at others ſubject to Tyrants, whereof one called Nicocrates, being in love with Aretuphila, Phedimus's Wife, killed the Husband to enjoy her; ſhe diſſembled her reſentment until ſhe found an occaſion to rid her ſelf of him, and the Country from his Tyranny. It was after this under Alexander the Great, and the Ptolemies whereof one ſurnamed Appion, and Baſtard Brother to Lathurus, being King in 658. of Rome, made the Roman People his Heir; and the Senate ordered, That the Towns of this little State ſhould be free; but Cyrene revolting, was firſt ruin'd, and afterwards re-built by the Romans. In proceſs of time it fell to the Arabians, and at laſt to the Turks. The Cyrenaick Libya, which was ſince that time called Pentapolis, and is now Meſrata, comprehended five fine Cities, Berenice, Teuchire, Ptolemais, Apollonia, and Cyrene. The firſt four are along the Mediterranean Sea, and the laſt ten Leagues from it, upon a Hill near the River Praſus, and becomes daily leſs conſiderable. Strabo tells us, It has been famous for the Birth of Ariſtippus, Diſciple of Socrates, and chief of the Sect of the Cyrenean Philoſophers; by that of Areta, Daughter of Ariſtippus, who taught after him; by Callimachus, Eratoſthenes, Carneades, and ſeveral others. Strabo.

CYRENAIQUES, or Cyreneans, a Sect of Philoſophers ſo called from their Founder Ariſtippus of Cyrene, Diſciple of Socrates, who lived in the XCVIth Olympiad. These would have two motions in the Soul, Grief and Pleaſure; the laſt, they ſaid, was a ſweet and gentle one, the firſt violent and harſh; and held, That all Pleaſures were alike. They eſteemed Vertue no otherwiſe than as it conduced to Senſuality, as a Medicine is only regarded for its uſefulneſs, for the regaining and preſervation of Health. They contemn'd Phyſick, and ſeveral of them rejected Logick, according to Meleager, quoted by Diogenes Laertius. Ariſtippus had ſeveral Diſciples beſides his Daughter Areta; and amongſt others, the ſame Hegeſias, who repreſented the Calamities and Inconveniencies of Life ſo terrible, that many of his Auditors freely ran upon death, for fear of falling into them, which made one of the Ptolemy's to forbid any further Diſcourſes on that ſubject in publick. This Hegeſias was chief of the Sect called Hegeſiacks; Annicerus and Theodorus made up the two Societies of the Annicerians and Theodorians or Actees. Diogenes Laer.

CYRIACUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, lived in the VIth Age, and was ordained in 596. after John called Junior. As ſoon as he was choſen he diſpatched two Deputies to St. Gregory, then Pope, with his Profeſſion of Faith. The Pope returned him a very friendly Anſwer, yet ordered Sabinian, his Nuncio, not to aſſiſt at his Maſs or other Functions, if he did not renounce the Title of Univerſal Biſhop. After this Cyriacus called a Synod without acquainting Gregory therewith, who fearing he would get that Title Confirm'd by the Members of this Aſſembly, Writ to ſeveral of the Eaſtern Prelates to oppoſe it. In the mean time the Emperor Phocas encroaching upon the Immunities and Privileges of the Church, this Patriarch oppos'd him vigorouſly. To be reveng'd of this Reſiſtance, Phocas made an Edict, wherein he forbad giving the name of Oecumenick to any Biſhop but to him of Rome. This ſeem'd ſo rigorous to Cyriacus, that he died of grief in 606. Nicephorus, Theophanes.

CYRIADES, Deſcended of a Noble Family of Syria, Liv'd in the IIId Age, and fleeing from his anger'd Father, whom he had irritated by his Licentious and Debauched Life, went to the Perſians, where his Inclination to King Sapor's Service, got him that Prince's Favour; ſo that having begun a War againſt the Romans, he firſt drew Odenat, and then Sapor himſelf upon the Lands of the Empire; with this Succour he made himſelf Maſter of the Cities of Antioch, Cæſarea and Tarſus; but as Valerian came againſt him with his Army, he was killed by thoſe of his own Retinue in 259. Trebellius Pollio.

St. CYRIL, Patriarch of Alexandria, famous for his Piety and Doctrine, Lived in the Vth Age, and in 411 or 412. Succeeded Theophilus his Mothers Brother. He begun to exerciſe his Epiſcopacy with great Authority, and put St. Chryſoſtom's Name in the Eccleſiaſtical Records, at Atticus of Conſtantinople, and St. Iſidore of Peluſium's Requeſt. It was he that preſided at the General Council of Epheſus, in 431. wherein Neſtorius was Condemned: And afterwards wrote againſt Theodorus of Mopſueſtia, Diodorus of Tharſus, and Julian the Apoſtate. He alſo writ Commentaries upon Saint John's Goſpel; Seventeen Books of the Adoration of the Holy Ghoſt; Paſchal Homilies, &c. He died in 443. or 444. We have his Works, both Greek and Latin, in ſix Volumes, Publiſhed in 638. by a Canon of Laon. Gennadius, Photius, Sigibert.

CYRUS I. of this Name, King of Perſia, was Son to Cambyſes, a Perſian of mean Condition, and Mandana, Daughter of Aſtyages, King of the Medes, and was expoſed to be Devoured in a Foreſt by his Grandfather's Order, who was told, That one of his Grandchildren ſhould Dethrone him. Harpagus, who was ſent to executed the Command, preſerv'd and got him brought up in a Shepherd's Houſe; ſo that afterwards, at the He[illegible] ſome of the Rebellious Subjects, he pulled Aſtyages [illegible] Throne, and gave a beginning to the Kingdo[illegible] Perſians, Founded upon the Ruine of that of the Medes. This happened in the LV. Olympiad, in the year 195. of Rome, and 18th of the Reign of Tullus Hoſtilius, Anno Mund. 3494. and 559. years before Jeſus Chriſt. After this, his great Conqueſts made his way to the Monarchy. Crœſus, King of Lydia, thinking to ſtop his progreſs, was deprived of all his Poſſeſſions the 210. of Rome, and run a great riſque of his Life, for the Pile was made up whereon he was to be burned. God alſo made uſe of him to deliver his People from the Captivity of the Chaldæans; for having laid Siege to Babylon, in the 216th of Rome, in the LXth Olympiad, he took it, by turning the Euphrates into another Chanel, dug by his Army unknown to the Babylonians. It was then the Perſian Monarchy begun under Cyrus, who had Reigned Twenty one Years. After theſe Exploits he ſet the Jews at liberty after 70 Years Captivity, and gave them leave to return into their Country and re-build the Town and Temple of Jeruſalem. Theodoret ſays, That Daniel ſhew'd him his Name in Iſaiah, and the Prediction of this Return. In the mean time almoſt all Aſia truckled to this great Conqueror, who making War againſt the Maſſagetes, defeated their Army by a Stratagem with their General Spargapiſus, Queen Tomyris's Son; but this Princeſs coming her ſelf ſometime after, with a powerful Army, routed the Perſians, and got Cyrus's Head cut off, and plunging it into a Veſſel full of Blood, bid it fill it ſelf with what it ſo much thirſted for. His Death is generally put in the 224 or 225 of Rome, in the LXIIth Olympiad, 530 before our Saviour, and the 9th Year of his Empire, which muſt be diſtinguiſhed from his Reign, which was of 30 Years. Herodotus and Juſtin relate it as well as Diodorus of Sicily; this laſt ſays, That Queen Tomyris made him ſuffer upon a Gibbet. Xenophon obſerves more Circumſtances of Cyrus's Life than any other Hiſtorians do, which makes ſeveral Authors believe, That his Cyropædia, or Inſtitution of Cyrus, is not an Hiſtorical, but purely a Moral Work, wherein he has repreſented a great Prince without any Care of true Events. The Curious may conſult Daniel's Interpreters. Joſeph. Scaliger.

CYRUS II. called the Young, Son to Darius ſurnamed the Baſtard, and younger Brother to Artaxerxes II. called Mnemon. This Prince, not ſatisfied with the Government of Aſia, which his Father had given him, would deprive his Brother of the Crown, under pretext, That he himſelf was born ſince his Father was made King. For this Deſign he brought an Army into the Field, but was defeated in the firſt Battel, An. Mund. 3653. in the XCIVth Olympiad. The Græcians, who from 10000 Men were reduced to one half, made their Retreat home under Xenophon from the extremity of Perſia. Juſtin. Plutarch.

CYRUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, a Monk of the Iſle of Ameſtriada lived in the VIIIth Age, and was made Patriarch through the Care of Juſtin the Young, to whom he foretold he would be re-inthron'd. He went to meet Pope Conſtantine, who came to Conſtantinople in 710. and was afterwards baniſhed by Philippicus Bardanes, when he uſurp'd the Empire in 712.

CYRUS, Native of Panopolis in Egypt, lived in the Vth. Age, rais'd himſelf by his Wit in the Emperor Theodoſius's Court, and his great Facility in making Verſes, got him the eſteem of the Empreſs Eudoxia. Evagrius ſays, he commanded the Roman Troops in Africa at the taking of Carthage. After that time he was Conſul in 441. and Prefect of Conſtantinople, which he repaired after it was almoſt deſtroy'd by the terrible Earthquake in 446. the new Works he built render'd it ſo beautiful, that the People in the Emperor's Preſence, then in the Hippodrome, cry'd, Conſtantine built, and Cyrus repair'd it; which incenſed Theodoſius ſo much, that he confiſcated all his Goods, and depriv'd him of his Place, under pretext, that he was an Idolater. This Misfortune diſpos'd him to embrace Chriſtianity. Evagr. Nicephor.

CYTHERA, an Iſland of Greece, where Poets ſay Venus was formed of the Froth of the Sea, and that is the Reaſon why ſhe is called Cytherea. The Inhabitants adored her in a ſumptuous Temple, conſecrated to her under the Name of Venus Urania.

CYZICUS, King of the Peninſula of the Propontis, treated the Argonauts ſumptuouſly, who landed there as they went for the Golden Fleece. Theſe Heroes parting hence, and being a whole Day at Sea, were beat back again upon the Coaſts at Night by a Storm that happened. Cyzicus taking them for Pyrates or Enemies oppos'd their Landing, but was killed in the Engagement: Jaſon diſtinguiſhing him the next Day amongſt the Dead, buried him honourably.

CZAR, that is, King, a Name the Ruſſians give their Sovereign, whom we generally call Great Duke of Muſcovy. Becman does not doubt in [illegible]ſt, but they drew this Name from that of Cæſar, [illegible] that the other People of Europe called him ſo th[illegible] choſen their Emperor, they would have no meaner Title for theirs who commanded a greater Country than Germany. They have alſo an Eagle with the Word Cæſar to their Arms, as may be ſeen in all their Works, yet they make a diſtinction between the Words Czar and Kaſar, the firſt being taken for the King's Name, and the other for the Emperor's. He that firſt took the Title of Czar was Baſilius, Son of John Baſilides, under whom the Muſcovites Power begun to appear about 1470. See MUSCOVY.

CZASLAW, a Town of Bohemia, one of the Prefectures of the Country, where is Guttemberg and ſome other Boroughs. It's big and well peopled, lying upon the little River called Crudimk.

CZENSTOCHOW or Czeſtochow, a little Town of Upper Poland in Lithuania, belonging to the great Duke of Muſcovy; it lies upon the River Deſna in the Dutchy of Sewiera, towards the Frontiers of Volhinia.

CZERNOVEL, a Town of Poland in the Lower Volhinia, ſituated upon the Boryſthenes above Kiovia, it was often expos'd in this Age to the Fury of the Muſcovites and Coſſacks.

CZYRKNIZERZEE or Zyrichnitz in Lugea, a great Lake of Carniola, a Province of Germany towards Italy, ſtretching four Miles between Woods and Mountains, very remarkable, becauſe that every Year they fiſh, hunt, ſow, and reap Corn in it. About the Spring, ſmall Brooks or little Rivers run down the neighbouring Mountains into it. This Water leſſens in its Courſe, becauſe the open Earth ſoaks a great part of it, the reſt is received in Pits of Stone, which look as if they were cut by Mens Hands. When theſe are full, there happens a very ſtrange thing, for the Water not only runs over, but all that they contain'd gets out with extraordinary Violence and rapidity, and the Brooks ceaſing to run, all the Water forms a Lake, where, in the deepeſt Places it's Eight Cubits, and in other Places five Foot. Some time after, this ſame Water returns into the Pits, whilſt part of it is loſt under Ground. It's then they fiſh, and they that live near the Lake ſow their Corn, and through the ſtrange Fruitfulneſs of the Ground reap the ſame 20 Days after. When the Corn is cut down, the Hunters come in for their Diverſion; ſo that this Lake is a Place fit for Fiſhing and Hunting, and yet Arable. Lazius.

DABIR, a Town of Paleſtine, near Hebron, called Kirjath-Sephir, or the City of Learning; becauſe there (according to Lira and Others) the Canaanites firſt invented their Characters, and had an Academy. Joſhua, cap. 11. Salian. A. M. 2604.

DABUL, an Indian Town, in the Kingdom of Decan, on the South of the Gulph of Cambaya, with a very good Haven and Fortreſs: It is at the Mouth of the River Helewacho.

DACIA, a great Country, bounded on the North with the Carpathian Mountains; on the South, with the Danube; on the Eaſt, with the Theiſſe. At this time part of Hungary, Tranſilvania, Valachia, and all Moldavia, are contain'd in the Limits of the Ancient Dacia. The People were call'd Daci, and their Dominions were formerly extended over the Danube. They were of old call'd Getæ, and liv'd under Kings, till reduc'd into a Province by Trajan, Anno 98. who overcame their King Decebalus, whom Domitian's Cowardlineſs had made Arrogant. They were afterwards conquer'd by Conſtantine the Great, by the Goths, Sarmatians, Huns, &c. The Saxons being conquer'd by Charlemain, choſe rather to retire to Dacia, than live under his Government. They were Cruel and Savage. The Meaner People wore nothing but their Hair; and thoſe of better Rank wore Caps, or Bonnets. They were Converted by St. Nicetas. Pliny, Ptolemy, and Baronius. A Colony of them are ſaid to have planted the Sea-Coaſts of Norway.

DACIANUS, or Dacian, Governour of Spain, under Diocleſian and Maximian: A furious Perſecutor of the Chriſtians, about the End of the IIId. Century. He put St. Vincent and ſeveral others to death. Prudent. &c.

DACIUS, a Biſhop of Milan, in the VIth. Century: He encourag'd the Inhabitants to defend the Town againſt the Goths, who beſieg'd it, and at length took it, with the ſlaughter of 300000 People (ſays Procopius.) Dacius fled into Greece; and is ſaid, in his way, to have quieted a Haunted Houſe in Corinth. He refus'd to Sign the Emperor Juſtinian's Decree againſt the three Chapters. He wrote a Chronicle; in the 10th. Chapter of which, mention is made of the Hymn, Te Deum Laudamus. Baron. Voſſius.

DACTYLI IDÆI, Prieſts of Cybele, dwelling at the Foot of Mount Ida; reckoned by the Poets the Children of Sol and Minerva, or Saturn and Alciope: five of them were Males, and five Females. They were call'd Dactyli, or Fingers, becauſe equal in number to the Fingers of a Man's Hand. They were alſo call'd Corybantes. Strabo.

DADIVAN, a Plain in Perſia, betwixt the Towns of Schiras and Lar, about 4 or 5 Leagues in Circuit, being, for the moſt part, cover'd with Orange, Citron, and Pomgranate-Trees. There are Orange Trees ſo big there, that three Men can ſcarcely graſp them, and are of a proportionable Heighth: From hence Iſpahan is furniſhed with Oranges, Citrons and Pomgranates. The reſt of the Plain is ſowed with Rice and Corn, and is one of the moſt delicious Places in Perſia: A River alſo waters this Plain, which abounds with Carps, Pikes, Mullets and Crabs. The Engliſh and Dutch, at Ormus, do often paſs the laſt of the Summer in this Place, where the neighbouring Baladines, or Country-Dancers, divert them with Dancing. Tavernier.

DÆDALUS, an Ingenious Athenian Artiſt, who invented divers Mechanical Inſtruments, as the Saw, Plain, Plummet, Piercer, Glew, and made Moving Statues, whoſe Eyes did alſo move ſo naturally, that they ſeem'd to be really Alive. That which made him famous, was, the throwing of his Brother's Son out at a Window, in Anger, fearing he ſhould excell him in Art, becauſe he had invented the Potters Wheel. Whereupon he fled, with his Son Icarus, to Minos, King of Crete; where he built the Labyrinth ſo much talk'd of; in which he and his Son were ſhut up, becauſe of his having ſerved Paſiphae, the Queen, in her baſe Amours; as forming the Statue of a Wooden Cow, in which Paſiphae convers'd with a Bull. But making as if he would do ſomething to merit the King's Favour again, he procured Materials to make himſelf and his Son Wings: with which he eſcaped; but his Son, not obſerving his Direction, fell into the Sea, and was drown'd. Some think that this was the Uſe of Sails which he invented. He fled to Cocalus, King of Sicily; who cauſed him to be choak'd in a Stove, to prevent Minos's making War againſt him, on his Account. He is ſaid to have liv'd about the Year 2750. He made many famous Works at Nemphis, in Egypt; where the Inhabitants erected him Altars, and paid him Divine Honours. Diod. Sicul. Pauſan.

It is inhabited by the Tartars, call'd by the Perſians Leſgi, and by themſelves Highland-Tartars. For Religion, they are Mahometans: And their Commerce is to make Slaves; for which end, they ſteal one another's Children. They plunder Merchants, and are continually Skirmiſhing. They keep ſome Cattle, which is all their Riches. They dread neither the Perſians nor Muſcovites, becauſe of the ſafe retreat of their Inacceſſible Mountains. They have ſeveral Lords, of whom One is choſen Chief. They have ſome little Towns, of which Tarcu is moſt conſiderable, ſituated on a Mountain among ſharp Rocks, whence iſſue divers Fountains; it is near the Sea, and conſiſts of 1000 Houſes, (according to Olearius.)

DAGO, Dagho, Daghoa, an Iſland of Livonia, of Form Triangular, at the Mouth of the Gulph of Riga. It belongs to the Swede; its Principal Towns are Dageroort and Paden.

DAGOBERT I. Son to Clotarius and Bertruda: He was the IXth. French King, An. 628. During his Father's Life, he was King of Auſtraſia. Thuringia being invaded by the Sclavonians, Dagobert gave his Son Sigebert the Kingdom of Auſtraſia; who repulſed them gallantly. He alſo reduced the Rebel Britons and Gaſcons; and having reſtored Peace to France, died Jan. 19. in 638, or 644. Aged 42 Years. He was buried at St. Denys; the Abby whereof he founded, An. 630. and endowed it richly. He Divorced his Firſt Wife, becauſe ſhe was Barren; and Marry'd Nantilda, whom (ſome ſay) he took out of a Monaſtery; but others, That the word Monaſterio was miſtaken for Miniſterio, ſhe being one of his own Servants. He was noted for Incontinency. His Son Clovis II. was born of this Nantilda. Haymo l. 4.

DAGOBERT II. call'd the Young, King of France, An. 711. Son to Childebert the Juſt: He had the Name, but not the Authority of King, which was uſurp'd by the Mayors of the Palace. Pepin the Groſs, who in that Station had govern'd France 27 Years, died, An. 714. and was ſucceeded by his Grand-ſon Theobald; whoſe Grand-mother, Plectrudis, being willing to govern all, ſhe kept her Son-in-law, Charles Martel, Priſoner at Cologn. On the other ſide, Rainfride, one of the Greateſt and Valianteſt of the Nobility, being Choſen by others of the French, made a League with Ratbod, Duke of Frize; ruin'd the Country as far as the Meuſe, making uſe of Dagobert's Name for Authority. Dagobert died, Jan. 19. 716. Aimon. l. 4. c. 49. Mezeray.

DAGOBERT, Son of Sigebert II. King of Auſtraſia; who left him at Three Years old, under the Care of Grimoald, Mayor of the Palace; who ſhut him up in a Monaſtery, under the Guard of Dido, Biſhop of Poictiers; making Dido Biſhop of Poictiers his Keeper, and at laſt, ſent him to Ireland, and ſet Childebert, his own Son, upon the Throne, in his ſtead. But the People hating this Treachery, Dagobert was recall'd by the Nobles, An. 676. and then aſſaſſinated by the Faction of Thierri, the Firſt, King of France. Of this Name there was alſo one who was Son to Chilperick, King of France, but he died young, Anno. 580.

DAGON, the Philiſtine Idol, of Humane Shape upwards; but from the Belly downwards, his Legs excepted, he was made like a Fiſh, with Scales, and a long Tail turning up. The word in Hebrew ſignifies a Fiſh. Kircher, Seld. de Diis Syris. It's probable he was the ſame which other Heathens call'd Neptune, or Triton; of whom it's ſaid, Frons Hominem Præfert, in Piſcem deſinit alvus.

DAIBERTUS, or Theobertus, the Firſt of the Latins who was Patriarch of Jeruſalem, An. 1099. Arnulphus being thence expell'd: But Diſputing with Baldwin, King of Jeruſalem, about the Rights of the Church, he was diſplaced by the Craft of Arnulphus; and coming to Italy with the Prince of Antioch, who was to Marry a Daughter of the French King's, he was ſent back again to his Charge, but died by the way. Baron. Guliel. Tyr.

DAILLE (John) a Proteſtant Miniſter at Charenton, near Paris; born at Chatelleraut, Jan. 6. 1594. He was deſign'd for a Secular Employment, but his own Inclination led him otherwiſe. He ſtudied at Poictiers and Saumur; and in 1619. travelled with the Grand-children of the Sieur Philip du Pleſſis Mornay, into Italy, Germany, Holland and England. He conſulted all Learned Men where he went; and was much importun'd by the famous Father, Paul Servil, to ſettle at Venice: But he was otherwiſe determined, being receiv'd a Proteſtant Miniſter, in 1623. at his return, by the Sieur Du Pleſſis, who died in his Arms quickly after. Mr. Daille ſpent part of the Year 1624. in Ordering the Memoires of Du Pleſſis, which were then Printed in 2 Vol. He alſo review'd his Life, written by Monſieur De Ligues, a Domeſtick to Du Pleſſis. He was afterwards Miniſter at Saumur, and then at Charenton; and died at Paris, April 15. 1670. Aged 77. His Probity and Learning made him very valuable amongſt thoſe of his Communion. He wrote De Patrum Uſu: Fides ex Scripturis demonſtrata: De Patrum Fide circa Imagines: De Pœnis & Satisfactionibus Humanis, Pſeudepigrapha Apoſtolica: De Jejuniis & Quadrageſima: De Confirmatione & Extrema Unctione: De Confeſſione Auriculari: De Cultus Religioſi objecto: De Cultibus Latinorum Religioſis: And Sermons on St. Paul's Epiſtles.

DAILLON, a French Family, of which there have been many Famous Men. Giles Daillon, a Favourite of Charles VII. And John Daillon, Favourite, and in great Authority under Lewis XI. Francis Daillon, Governour of Lignage, a Territory belonging to the Venetians, taken from them by Force of Arms: He ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Battels of St. Aubin du Cormier, Fornowis and Ravenna, where he was ſlain, in 1512. being the firſt that Charg'd the Enemy. He was commonly call'd the Knight without Fear, and without Stain. James Daillon, Chamberlain to Lewis XII. and Francis I. who, An. 1552. defended Fontarabia againſt the Spaniards, almoſt a Year, tho' attack'd by Famine, ſo that the Garriſon was forced to eat Cats, Rats, Leather and Parchment. John, Guy, Francis, Toimoleon, and Henry Daillon, have, ſince that time, born great Offices under their Kings, the laſt being made Duke and Peer of France, in 1661.

DAIMACHUS, of Plataa, ſent Embaſſador to Allitrochades, King of the Indies, Son to Androcotus, mention'd by Juſtin, lib. 5. He liv'd about the Year 450 of Rome. and writ a Hiſtory of the Indies; but full of Miſtakes, through his Ignorance of the Mathematicks.

DAIN (Oliver) Barber to Lewis XI. a Native of Thelt, in Flanders, Son of a Peaſant near Ghent, ſirnamed le Diable, the Devil; which he changed for Dain: He became Favourite to the ſaid Prince, obtain'd great Places, acquir'd a great Eſtate; and aſſum'd, with great Impudence, the Title of Count of Meulant: By his Vanity and Inſolence, he became hateful to all. Anno 1474. He undertook to reduce Ghent, the Inhabitants whereof ridicul'd him. At his return, he enter'd Tournay by Surprize. He continu'd in Favour with Lewis XI. But in the Beginning of Charles the VIIIth's Reign, after the Aſſembly of the States at Tours, the Attorney-General proſecuted this inſolent Miniſter, inſomuch that he was hang'd, anno 1484. Mezeray. Du Puy. Hiſt. Deſ. Fav.

DAIRI, Monarchs of Japan, who had Sovereignty over 53 Kings, and were adored like Gods. But anno 1500. the Kings of the Provinces rebell'd, and govern'd every one according to his own Pleaſure. Then Nubunanga, the Chief of them, having taken the Town Miaco, in 1570. became King of the Whole, but ſtill acknowledg'd the Dairi. Then Taikoſamma being declared Emperor of Japan, by the Dairi, who voluntary abdicated, anno 1600. laid the Foundation of a new Monarchy. Horn. Orb. Imp.

DAIRO, the Name of the Great Japan Pontiff, or High-Prieſt; to whoſe Family the Empire of Japan did formerly belong, till it was uſurped by the Predeceſſors of the preſent Emperor, whoſe Palace is in the City Jedo, now the Metropolis of Japan; and the Dairos in the City of Miaco. The Sanctity attributed to the Dairo by the Japaneſe is ſo great, that his Feet muſt not touch the Earth, nor the Sun ſhine upon his Head: He is never to be expos'd to the Air, nor to have his Hair, Beard, nor Nails cut. His Victuals muſt always be carried to Table in New Baskets, and put upon New Plates. When he goes Abroad, it is in a Litter reſembling our Coaches, whoſe Pillars are all of Maſſie Gold; and on the Out-ſide it is enrich'd with Figures of the ſame Metal: It is cover'd with Silk, ſo fine, that the Dairo may ſee every one, but none ſee him. He is carried in this Litter by fourteen Gentlemen of the beſt Quality, and moſt active, in his Court: His Guards march before; and a Coach comes after, drawn with two Horſes, whoſe Houſing is all embroider'd with Pearls and Diamonds: two Gentlemen hold their Reins, while two others march by the Sides, one with a Fan, which he moves continually, to cool the Air; and the other with a Paraſol, or Umbrella, to keep off the Sun. This fine Coach is for the Dairo's Wife and Concubines; and other fine Coaches follow, cover'd alſo with a certain Stuff through which the Ladies ſee, but are not ſeen. Ambaſſade des Hollandois au Japan.

He had one Daughter married to Alexander Son to Alexander King of Scotland, and another to Prince Edward of England. Du Cheſne.

DANAE, Daughter to Acriſius King of Argos, who being inform'd by an Oracle that he ſhould be kill'd by her Son, ſhut her up in a Caſtle of Braſs to prevent it; but, Jupiter tranforming himſelf into a Shower of Gold, entred the Caſtle (i. e. Brib'd her Keepers) and got her with Child; which being Born, her Father cauſed both it and the Mother to be incloſed in a Cheſt, and to be thrown into the Sea; but being caſt a Shore in one of the Cyclades, the Prince of the Country married the Mother, and the Son Perſeus ſlew his Grandfather, according to the Oracle. Ovid Metam.

DANÆUS, Lambert Daneau, a Frenchman born at Orleans. He Studied the Law under the famous Annas de Bourg, Clerk to the Parliament of Paris, who was Burnt An. 1559. for Calviniſm. Danæus thereupon retired to Geneva in 1560. where he was Miniſter and Profeſſor of Divinity: And afterwards at Leiden in Holland, whence he came to Ghent; but being chaced thence in 1582. he went to Bearn, and being afterwards called to Caſtres in Languedoc, he died there, in 1596. He was very Learned, and writ much againſt the Lutherans. There are Extant of his, Commentaries on Matthew and Mark; Loci Communes; Harmonia ſive Tabulæ in Salomonis Proverbia & Eccleſiaſten. Geographiæ Poeticæ lib. 4. Vetuſtiſſimarum Mundi Antiquitatum lib. 4. Elenchus Hæreticorum, and Methodus Sacræ Scripturæ. De Thouan. Melchior Adam in Vit. Theolog.

DANAIDES, or Belides, from their Grandfather, 50 Siſters, Daughters of Danaus, who married their 50 Couſin Germains, Sons of Ægiſthus, their Father's Brother; Theſe cruel Women Murther'd their Husbands, the firſt Night, by order of their Father, who had it from an Oracle, That he ſhould be diſpoſſeſſed of Argos by a Son-in-law; but Hypermneſtra, one of the Daughters, ſaved her Husband Linus or Lyncæus, who ſucceeded her Father, and by him ſhe had Acriſius Father to Danae above-mention'd. The Poets feign, That the other Siſters are puniſh'd in Hell, by filling Water into a Hogſhead without a Bottom.

DANBY, (Sir Robert) of Thorp in Com. Ebor. Knight, Serjeant at Law (a Gentleman of an Ancient and well-deſcended Family) a Reverend and Learned Judge, ſub Hen. 6 & Edw. 4.

Edw. 4. and died Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas, 11 Edw. 4. whoſe Heir Male (by a Series of many Knights) Sir Abſtrupus Danby of Maſham, is a Juſtice of the Peace, of the Quorum, and Deputy-Lieutenant for the North-Riding of the County of York, one of the Heirs General of the Lords Scroop of Maſham and Upſall, Lineal Heir of John Lord of Great and Little Danby, Temp. Conqueſt. Angliæ, and deſcends by Marriages with the ſeveral Houſes of Nevil Lord Latimer, and Earl of Weſtmorland, from John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaſter, Fourth Son to the moſt Victorious Prince Edward the Third King of England, &c.

DANBY, an Ancient Caſtle in the Tract of Cleveland, in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire, ſeated near a large Park and Chaſe of the ſame Name.. Firſt advanced to the Dignity of an Earldom by King Charles I. in the Perſon of Henry Danvers, of the Line of the Lord Latimer, to whom this Caſtle did anciently belong: and afterwards upon the default of Iſſue from the ſaid Henry, in the Perſon of Thomas Osbourn, created by King Charles II. Baron of Kineton, and Viſcount Latimer in 1673. and Earl of Danby the Year after: And King William the IIId. has advanc'd him to the Honour of Marqueſs of Carmarthen, and ſince created him Duke of Leeds.

DANDALIANS, an Ancient and Mighty People of Germany in the 12th. Century; ſo given to Heatheniſm, that they would not hear of the Chriſtian Religion, till forced to receive Preachers, by the King of Denmark, Duke of Saxony, and Princes of Pomerania; by whoſe Dominions they were Surrounded. Crantz. in Metropol.

DANDERY, a Fool, who diverted the Emperor Theophilus, An. 830. Having liberty to go whither he would, he entred the Empreſs Theodora's Cloſet one Day briskly, while ſhe was at Prayers before an Oratory adorn'd with fine Images, which ſhe kept very privately for fear of the Emperor, who was a great Oppoſer of Image-Worſhip. The Fool having never ſeen ſuch before, asked, What they were? She anſwered Babies which ſhe was preparing for her Daughters; He went forthwith to the Emperor at Dinner, and told him how he had found the Empreſs Kiſſing and Hugging the fineſt Babies in the World. The Emperor ſuſpecting they were Images, to which ſhe pay'd a private reſpect, roſe haſtily from the Table, and chid her ſeverely; But ſhe anſwer'd him ſmiling, That it was a pleaſant Miſtake of the Fools, in taking the Pictures of her Daughters for Puppets, with which he found her ſtanding before the Glaſs. The Emperor believing her, returned Laughing. But the Empreſs having ſo dexterouſly excuſed her ſelf this time, being willing to prevent the like for the future, ſhe cauſed the Fool to be chaſtiſed: So that he never afterward heard any Body ſpeak of Babies, but he would put his Finger in his Mouth and be Dumb. Maimbourg. Hiſt. des Iconoclaſtes.

DANDOLI, or Dandolo, an Italian Family, of which there have been many Doges of Venice; as Henry, of whom afterwards. John who was Doge An. 1280. who ſuccoured the Chriſtians in the Holy Land, and was the firſt that Coin'd Ducats. He died in 1290. Francis Dandoli, who for his Fidelity was called the Dog, pacified Clement the Vth's. Anger againſt the Venetians, and acquired many Towns to the Republick; He died An. 1339. Andrew, who was Doge in 1342. made a League with Pope Clement VI. and ſent a great Army into the Levant. He wrote a Chronicle of the famous Actions of the Venetians, cited with Applauſe by Baronius, &c. Nicholas, Doge in 1570. who loſt Nicoſia by Neglect, and was afterwards Killed by the Turks. But to return to the famous Henry, He was Doge in 1193. a Prince of great Majeſty, whom his Age of 90. Years rendred yet more Venerable, having augmented the ſtrength of his Mind, and not diminiſhed that of his Body; He was of conſummate Prudence, invincible Courage, and ſtedfaſt in his Reſolves for the good of his Country; He was a great Captain and Politician, and Admirable for his Vigilance; being Ambaſſador at Conſtantinople 50 Years before his coming to the Ducal Crown; He maintained the Intereſt of the Republick ſo generouſly, that the Perfidious Emperor Manuel, cauſed a burning Plate of Copper to be held before his Eyes to make him Blind; which tho' it did not ſpoil the Beauty of his Eyes, yet it did almoſt quite deprive him of his Sight. When the Princes of the Croiſade ſent their Deputies to Venice, An. 1201. he not only granted them Veſſels to carry them into Syria or Egypt, but join'd them with 50 Gallies, well Equipp'd and Arm'd, to fight the Turks by Sea, while the French were to fight them by Land, on Condition that the Conqueſts which ſhould be made that Year, ſhould be equally divided betwixt him and them. Moreover next Year in a Grand Aſſembly of the Senate, Princes of the Croiſade, and Chief of the People, he mounted the Throne in the Church of St. Mark, and notwithſtanding his great Age, and the decay of his Sight, he pray'd the Republick to ſuffer him to take the Croſs, and to Command their Army in Perſon; leaving his Son to Govern in his Abſence. Which being granted, he fixed the Croſs on the Ducal Cap, that it might be ſeen by all. At the Aſſault of Conſtantinople in 1203. his Behaviour claims the Honourable Remembrance of all Generations; for, aged as he was, he Armed himſelf Cap-a-pee, and poſting himſelf on the fore-part of the Admiral Gally, with his Sword drawn, and the great Standard of St. Mark before him, he commanded them to ſet him aſhore forthwith, by which piece of Gallantry, he drew all from on Board the Fleet after him, who ſcorn'd to deſert their Prince in the Aſſault, and therefore Landed in great Precipitation. The French were aſtoniſh'd when all of a ſudden they ſaw the great Standard of St. Mark planted upon one of the Towers, and thereupon redoubled their Courage. Dandolo having rendred himſelf Maſter of 25 Towers, part of 110 Built along the Haven, and underſtanding that the Emperor had Sallied out upon the French, he conveyed himſelf ſpeedily to their Quarter, to ſuſtain the Shock of the Enemy, who quickly retired again into the Town; After the taking of which, 12 Electors were named to chuſe an Emperor, according to Agreement, 6 of them being Venetians, and 6 French. The Venetians were all for their Doge; but by his Advice, they afterward agreed with the French to Proclaim Count Baldwin Emperor. Maimbourg. Hiſt. of Croiſades, l. 8.

DANEBERG, a German City with a large Territory, and a good Caſtle on the River Jetz, in the Dutchy of Lunenburg, about a League from the Elbe.

DANEMARK, in Latin Dania, a Kingdom in Europe, having the Ocean on the Weſt, the Baltick on the Eaſt and North, and Germany on the South. It's ſuppoſed to be the Country of the Ancient Cimbrians. The Danes were formerly very powerful, having ſubdued England, and frequently Invaded Scotland. This Kingdom now contains but 80 or 90 Leagues from South to North, and 45 or 50 from Eaſt to Weſt, from Copenhagen to the Weſt ſide of the Dioceſes of Ripen. It was formerly divided into Jutland, the Iſles, and Schonen; but the latter was given to the Swedes by the Treaty of Copenhagen, 1660. So that Denmark at preſent hath little but Jutland, and the Iſles which are to the Eaſtward of it. Jutland, formerly call'd the Cimbrian Cherſoneſus, is divided into South and North Jutland. The Principal Iſles are, Zeeland, Langeland, Laland, Funen, Mone, Falſtir, Arſen, Bornholm, Femeren, Anhout, Leſſo, Arroe, Wendens, Heſelo, &c. The Streight call'd the Sound is betwixt the Iſle of Zeeland, and the Province of Schonen. There are ſome others, as that of Belt, Little Belt, &c. Copenhagen in Zeeland, is the Metropolis of Denmark. Other great Towns are, Elſeneur, Roſchilt, &c. Jutland hath 4 Dioceſes toward the North, Ripen, Arhuſen, Alborg and Viborg, with 2 Dutchies, viz. Sleſwick and Holſtein. The K. of Denmark is alſo Sovereign of Norway, Greenland, Iſlande, Fero, New Denmark in America, and other places in Guinee. He is alſo entitled, Count of Oldenburg, Delmenhorſt, &c. The Daniſh Air is extremely Cold, and tho' the Country be environ'd with the Sea, it is not Marſhy; but very fruitful in Corn and Paſturage. There are Store of Deer and Elks, Horſes and Beeves, which Strangers go thither to Buy; above 50000 being Sold Annually to Germany. Their Fiſhing is alſo good, eſpecially that of Herring. The Trade of Danemark is not great. The greateſt part of their King's Revenue comes from Impoſts laid on Merchandize that paſſes the Sound, which is the Key of the Baltick. Neither is this ſo conſiderable as formerly, now that the Swedes pay none, and it will be yet leſs, if the Deſign of Joyning the Baltick to the Elve by the Lake of Swerin ſucceed, if they continue to carry Goods by Land from Hamburgh to Lubeck, and if the Elector of Brandenburg accompliſh the Canal which he has begun at Mulras, for Tranſporting Merchandize from Poland and Sileſia, from the Oder into the Elbe. The Danes are almoſt of the ſame Temper with the Swedes and Germans; but are a little more dexterous, and not ſo ſimple as the latter; more Vain-glorious, but not ſo Gallant as the former. They love Hunting and good Cheer, tho' they be good Husbands. Amongſt them have been many Learned Men, who have writ excellently; as the Bartholins on Phyſick, and Tycho Brache on the Mathematicks. If we'll believe ſome of their Authors, they derive the Name of their Country and Original of their Kings in a Lineal Succeſſion from Dan the Son of Jacob. This Kingdom was always Elective, till 23d. Octob. 1660. Since which the Nobles don't enjoy their ancient Prerogatives. The preſent King is deſcended of the Counts of Oldenburg. Chriſtiern I. being the firſt of them that was choſen after Chriſtopher the IIId. of the Houſe of Bavaria, who died without Children, An. 1448. The ſaid Chriſtiern was choſen out of reſpect to his Uncles, Adolphus Count of Holſace and Duke of South Jutland, and Gerard the Warlike Count of Oldenburg. He left 2 Sons, John and Frederick. John was Father to Chriſtiern the II. call'd the Nero of the North, who was dethroned, and ſucceeded by Frederick the Iſt. his Uncle, in 1523. who eſtabliſhed Lutheraniſm in Danemark; to this Prince the Dutchy of Holſtein was given in Appanage. Chriſtiern the IIId. his Son, cauſed the Bible to be tranſlated into Daniſh, and regulated the Proteſtant Clergy. Pope Pius IV. having ſent Nuncio's into Germany, to deſire the Proteſtant Princes to come to the Council of Trent: Some of the ſaid Nuncio's being at Lubeck, ſent to Frederick the IId. for leave to deliver him their Orders; to whom he return'd Anſwer, That ſeeing neither he nor his Father had ever held any Correſpondence with the Pope, he did not care to hear of any Orders from him. Chriſtiern V. the preſent King, makes the 22d. from Harold their firſt Chriſtian King, who began his Reign in 930.

The laſt Royal Family of Denmark, hath two Ducal Branches, viz. That of Sunderburg, and Holſtein Gottorp. The preſent King hath Four Siſters, and a Brother, nam'd Prince George, Married to the Princeſs Anne, ſecond Daughter to King James II. of England, &c. Thoſe of Quality in this Country, take neither the Title of Marqueſs, Count nor Baron. Saxo Grammaticus, Zieler de regno Daniæ.

DANES (Peter) a Frenchman, Biſhop of La Vaur, Præceptor to the Dauphin, Son to Hen. II. choſen for a Member of the Council of Trent; where he made an Excellent Diſcourſe, Printed at Louvain, with the Acts of that Council, An. 1567. He is famous for his Anſwer to an Italian in that Council, who being Angry with a French Doctor for taxing the Abuſes of the Court of Rome, in relation to Benefices, ſaid in deriſion, alluding to the Word Gallus, which ſignifies a Cock or Frenchman, Gallus cantat, The Cock Crows. To which Danes anſwer'd ſmartly in his own Dialect, Vtinam ad Galli cantum reſipiſceret Petrus; he wiſh'd, Peter (meaning the Pope) would repent at the Crowing of the Cock. He died An. 1577. De Thou.

DANIEL the Prophet, to whoſe Hiſtory mentioned in the Scripture, we add, That his Prophecies are ſo clear, that the Enemies of Chriſtianity alledge, That thoſe concerning the Meſſias were writ after Chriſt's Death, becauſe they could not otherwiſe avoid the force of them, eſpecially thoſe concerning the Seventy Weeks, at the end of which, the Meſſias was to Die. The Ancient Fathers, and moſt Learned Chronologers, reckon thoſe Weeks from the 20th. or 21ſt. Year of the Reign of Artaxerxes, call'd Longimanus. They make 490 Hebrew Years, and Jeſus Chriſt being Baptized in the 70th. was Crucified the Third Year following; which literally verified the Prophecy, That in the Middle of the laſt Week, the Oblation and the Sacrifice ſhould ceaſe; that is to ſay, by the Oblation of him whom they typified. Peterius proves this Opinion ſolidly in his Commentaries on the 9th. of Daniel. Theodoret ſays, That Daniel ſeeing that Cyrus had delivered the Jews after 70 Years Captivity, ſhewed him his Name, and the Prophecy concerning their return in Iſaiah. The Book of the Lives of the Prophets, aſcribed to Iſidore, ſays, That Daniel died at the Age of 110. Anno Mundi 3535. And ſome ſay, he had a Royal Tomb. Bellarm. Pererius, Iſidore.

DANIEL, a Monk, who in Imitation of Simon Stylites, dwelt on a high Column built on the Mouth of Pontus; the Papiſts attribute many Miracles to him, as Caſting out of Devils, &c. Baronius Au. Mart. An. 446.

DANIEL, (Margaret) Wife to Reinold Rondeau of Bourg de Pleſſe, belonging to the Marquiſate de Blin, of whom it is ſaid, That Conceiving about the 18th. of Octob. 1685. and feeling the Child move in her Womb at Candlemas, Good-Friday following, ſhe heard it Cry thrice. Afterwards the Infant continued to Cry three or four times a Day, ſometimes 4, ſometimes 8 Cries at a time, and that with ſo much force, that the Womans Stomach was ſeen to ſwell, ſo as ſhe was like to be choak'd. Journal des Scavans.

DANTZICK, in Latin Gedanum and Dantiſcum, a Free State, Metropolis of the Royal Pruſſia, one of the Four Capital Hans-Towns, a great, fine and rich City, and one of the greateſt Trading Towns in the North. It is ſituated on the Viſtula or Weſel, which brings it all the Poliſh Trade. It is about a League from the Baltick, on the Gulph of Dantzick, where it hath an excellent Haven, and a very good Canal for Tranſporting Merchandice. Beſides the Viſtula, there are the Rodaun and Motlave, 2 other little Rivers. The Canal divides the Town in two Parts; In one, there is an Iſland where the Magazines are; In the other there are 7 great Streets, which croſs that ſide of the City, and terminate at the Key of the Canal. The Churches are magnificent and well built. They are Lutherans for Religion, and none but ſuch can be choſen Magiſtrates; they tolerate both Calviniſts and Papiſts; the former are numerous, and have always eminent Miniſters; the Jeſuits alſo are allow'd a College here. The moſt remarkable things to be ſeen in the Town are, St. Peter's Church, the Town-Houſe, the Arſenal, the Exchange, and St. Dominick's Place. Some write, that the Danes had a Fortreſs here of old, whence they will have the Name Danſwick, that is to ſay, Danes Town, derived. The word Dans is pronounc'd Cdans, Gdans, and Gdansk, by the Pruſſians and Poles, according to the Sclavonick Dialect; whence comes the Latin Name Gedanum, and the Vulgar Dantzick. However that is, Sabiſlaus Grandſon to Suantiborus, took it from the Danes about 1186. and then enlarg'd it. The Poles afterwards ſeiz'd it, and Primiſlaus made it a City in 1295. The Teutonick Knights uſurped it in 1305. and walled it in 1343. Caſimir III. of Poland regain'd it in 1454. granted great Privileges to the Inhabitants, remitted their Tribute, and gave them the Guard of the Sea, with Permiſſion to lay on an Impoſt called Zulag. It was for this reaſon, that thoſe of Dantzick oppoſed themſelves, An. 1637. to the Impoſt laid upon the Merchandice which paſſed to his New Town of Vlaſlavia. The love of Liberty made them declare for the Proteſtant Religion, and for Maximilian of Auſtria againſt Stephen Bathori, who thereupon proſcrib'd, and afterwards beſieg'd them, An. 1577. but by the Mediation of other Princes, they were reſtor'd to their Liberty and Religion, An. 1597. They Coin their Money with the King of Poland's Stamp, Adminiſter Juſtice in his Name, and make one of the Members of the State, and were admitted in 1632. to have Suffrage in electing the King; who has ſome Rite to Entries and Cuſtoms there. In 1656. they reſiſted the Swedes, and remain'd firm to their Prince Caſimir. It is very well fortify'd, and would be Stronger, if it were not Commanded by ſome Hills, which are Garriſon'd in time of War, and the Ramparts on that ſide are ſo high, that they cover the Town very well from the Hills. It has alſo a ſtrong Caſtle at the Mouth of the Weſel on the Gulph. This City in the Conteſt between the Elector of Saxony and the Prince of Conti, in 1697. about the Crown of Poland, adher'd to the Intereſt of the former, but withall becoming Regard to the Perſon of the latter, who towards the latter end of that Year came from France by Sea near that City. Cluvier. Hennenberger deſcr. Boruſſ.

DANUBE, or Danaw, in Latin Danubius, the greateſt River in Europe. It has its Source in Germany, at the Foot of a Mountain call'd Abnuba in the Black Foreſt, Comit. Bar. in Suabia, whence it has its Name, quaſi D' Abnubius. It runs through Suabia, Bavaria, Auſtria, Hungaria, Servia, Bulgaria, and disburthens it ſelf into the Black Sea, by 6 or 7 great Streams, with ſo much rapidity, that its Water continues freſh for 20 Leagues. From its Source to the Mouth, are reckon'd above 700 Leagues, and all the Way a very fine Country. The Upper Part is call'd the Danube, and the Lower the Iſter; which latter Name it is by moſt Authors ſaid to take, at its Cataracts near Axiopolis, a Town of Lower Myſia. It receives 60 other Rivers, Thirty of which are Navigable. The Chief are, Inne, Iller, Leck, Ens, Morau, Vag, Drave, Save, Theiſſe. The Principal Towns on this River are Vlm, where it begins to be Navigable, Donavert, Ingolſtat, Ratisbonne, Paſſau, Lintz, Vienna, Presburg, Komore, Gran, Buda, Belgrade; beſides many others of leſs Note. Tho' this River riſe from a very ſmall Fountain, yet there is none in Europe comparable to it, for Length, Breadth and Deepneſs; of its Length we have heard: it's call'd Broad by way of eminence. Hence Ovid de Triſtib. lib. 5. Latus ubi æquoriis Iſter aditur aquis. For its Depth, Jornandes writes, That it's 200 Foot deep in moſt places. And in the whole it may compare with the Nile. Ovid. Innumeriq; alii quos inter Maximus Amnes Cedere Danubius ſe tibi, Nile, negat. Then as to the quality of the River, it is for the moſt part coloured like Whey, and very Wholeſome both to Drink and Bath in.

It has many ſorts of Excellent Fiſhes, and ſome Poiſonous. It's very often frozen. Hence Ovid,— Accipe Colloquium gelido Naſonis ab Iſtro— And elſewhere,— Dum tepidus Ganges frigidus Iſter erit.— The number of its Mouths which are 7 in all, is controverted, becauſe two of them are dead and marſhy, but 5 great Streams all agree on; of which, two are only Navigable. This River has had many Naval Fights upon it between the Turks and Chriſtians; at one time were 20 Galliots, 80 ſmall Pinnaces, and little leſs than a Hundred Ships of Burthen employ'd upon it in a Siege of Buda. At the Siege of Belgrade, Mahomet the Great, brought 200 Ships and Gallies up the Stream; the Hungarians ſent a like Number from Buda, which after a ſharp Encounter, took many of the Turkiſh Ships, and forced the reſt on Shoar and burn'd 'em. In this preſent War, great Fleets have been fitted out on both ſides on the Danube, ſome of the Ships carrying 30 Guns.

DANVILLIERS, or Damvilliers, a little Town in the Dutchy of Luxemburg, taken by the French in 1637. and given them ſince by the Treaty of the Pyrenees. It's 4 Leagues from Verdun, and 5 from Luxemburgh.

DAPHIDAS, a certain Sophiſt, who conſulting the Oracle of Apollo, that he might Ridicule his Anſwer, ask'd, Whether he ſhould have a Horſe for his Journey? The Oracle anſwer'd Yes, and a Fall from off him too; whereupon leaving Delphos on Foot, with a deſign to mock the Oracle, he fell into the hands of Attalus King of Aſia, who cauſed him to be thrown from a high Rock, call'd, The Horſe, for having writ reproachfully againſt him. Valer. Maxim. l. 1. c. 10.

DAPHNE, feigned by the Poets to be Daughter of the River Peneus, who at her own Deſire, was changed into a Laurel by her Father, to avoid Apollo's Amours. Ovid. Met. Daphne ſignifies Laurel, which grows frequently on that River, and being uſeful in Phyſick, is ſaid to be lov'd by Apollo.

DAPHNE, Daughter of Tireſias, who propheſied at Delphos in ſuch excellent Verſe, that Homer is ſaid to have tranſcrib'd many of them into his Works. Diod. Sicul. Bibl. Hiſt.

DAPHNE, a pleaſant place near Antioch in Syria, on the Bank of the River Orontes: It was a Village with a Wood 10 Miles in Compaſs, which paſſed for a Suburb of Antioch, tho' at 5 Miles diſtance. The Wood was of Cypreſs and Laurel, which the Roman Emperors forbid to cut. There were alſo other Trees which cover'd the Walks like Arbours, and under the ſaid Trees grew all manner of Flowers, according to the Seaſon of the Year, pleaſant both for Smell and Aſpect. It abounded alſo with Springs, which compoſed a Lake, pleaſantly over-ſhadow'd with the Trees. In this Wood there was a noble Synagogue of the Jews, call'd Spelunca Matronæ. The Heathen conſecrated the Grove to Apollo, who was enamour'd on Daphne; as Ovid Romances; and there he had a famous Temple, and a Statue equal in Bigneſs to that of Jupiter Olympius, with another Temple conſecrated to Diana, and a Fountain to Daphne. This beautiful place, made for Pleaſure was alſo fortify'd and guarded by a Roman Legion; who became ſo Effeminate by the Converſe of thoſe who frequented the ſame, that the Emperor Severus put to Death ſeveral of their Officers for not preventing the ſame. And in fine, the place became ſo infamous for Libertiniſm and Prodigality, that Chryſoſtome notes, That no vertuous or frugal Perſon would come near it. Hence came the Proverb, Daphnicis Moribus vivere, to live diſſolutely. Pompey the Great, Charm'd with the Beauty of this place, gave the Inhabitants more Lands, to render the Village ſpacious. Conſtantine the Great, cauſed an Houſe of Pleaſure to be built here, An. 326. During the Reign of Conſtance, Gallus, made Emperor An. 351. cauſed the Corps of Babylas Patriarch of Antioch, who had ſuffer'd Martyrdom, to be tranſported thither; at which time Apollo's Oracle ceas'd to give Reſponſes. And that Julian the Apoſtate ordering the Reliques of the Martyr to be tranſported thence, An. 362. the Temple of Apollo was thereupon Burnt with Thunder. *Sozomen. DAPS, (Emengard) the 10th. Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, Succeſſor to Garnier of Naples, An. 1187. he was the laſt of the Order that reſided at Jeruſalem. In the Firſt Year of his Government, the City was taken by Saladin, who held Guy de Luſignan King of Jeruſalem Priſoner. The Inhabitants being deſtitute of Aſſiſtance, ſurrendred on Terms, Oct. 2. 1187. At which time, all the Religious Military Orders of St. John, the Templars, Holy Sepulchre, Lazarus and St. Mary retired elſewhere. Daps held the Convent of his Order at Margat in Phœnicia; Four Years afterwards at Ptolemais, where he died, An. 1192. and was ſucceeded by Geofry de Donjon. *Boſio. DARDANELLES, Caſtles on the Brink of the Streight of Gallipoli, betwixt the Archipelago and Sea of Marmora. At the Entrance of this Streight there are 2 Caſtles newly built, whereof one is called the New-Caſtle of Aſia, or Natolia; and the other the New-Caſtle of Europe or Romelia. Mahomet IV. Dethron'd in 1687. cauſed them to be built in 1658. underſtanding that the 2 old Caſtles further in the Streight were not ſufficient to ſtop the Paſſage of the Sea of Marmora. Theſe two Caſtles are oppoſite to one another, and the Ferry is about a League and a quarter over. That of Aſia is ſituated on a Neck of Land which runs into the Sea, and its Walls are Flank'd with ſtrong Towers; ſome Fourſquare, and others Round. They are mounted with Cannon, ready to fire on ſuch as ſhall enter the Streight without leave; but ſo ill planted, that before they could Diſcharge a ſecond time, Guns from on Shipboard might demoliſh part of the Wall, and endanger the taking of the Caſtle. The Moſque of this Fortreſs is very fine, and there are 8 Windmills in an adjacent Village, with 8 Wings each, according to the Cuſtom of Turky, which makes them go more ſwift, and grind with more force, but leſs noiſe than ours; whence it comes that the Turkiſh Bread is not ſo white as ours, the Bran paſſing with the Meal. The New-Caſtle of Europe, is near Cap-Greek, and of irregular Form. It contains ſome Houſes for the Aga and Officers, with a Moſque whoſe Tower is very conſpicuous, as are all the Houſes, being built upon the height of the place, whence they deſcend by Stairs to fire the Cannon, which lie level with the Water. Further within the Streight, are to be ſeen the Old Dardanelles, oppoſite to one another at half a League diſtance. That on the Aſian ſide, commonly call'd Abydos, is of Square Form, flank'd with 4 Towers; the 2 next the Sea being Square, and the others Round. In the middle of this Caſtle there's a great Square Tower, on the Roof of which are planted ſome Culverins. Behind the Caſtle, there is a great Village peopled by Turks, Jews, and ſome few Chriſtians. This place is only conſiderable in regard of its ſituation. Moſt part of their Cannons are without Carriages; and there are about 30. the leaſt of them 60 Pounders, which carry from Aſia into Europe, notwithſtanding the great Weight of the Stone Bullets which they diſcharge. The Old Caſtle of Europe, call'd anciently Seſtos, is placed on a Hill. It's of a Triangular Form, but the Donjon is Round. It's mounted with 30 Sixty Pounders, which carry into Aſia; the Cannons are planted Oblique, leſt when they Diſcharge they ſhould damage the Caſtle on the other ſide. When a Merchant-Ship comes near any of the ſaid Caſtles, he muſt Salute them with 7, 5, or at leaſt 3 ſhot; and if a Man of War, with 11, 9, or 7; to which they Anſwer with 5, 3, or 1. Afterwards the Veſſel muſt thank them with 7, 5, or 3 ſhot, and afterwards they are ſuffered to paſs for Conſtantinople: But as they come from it, they oblige the Merchants, and ſometimes Men of War to ſtay three days before the Caſtle of Aſia, to be viſited, and pay their Paſſage-Money. And of Chriſtian Ships not above 5 are ſuffered to paſs at a time. Grelot's Voyage of Conſtantinople.

DARDANIA, a Country of the Old Upper Mæſia, which afterwards made part of Dacia; it lies in the Southern part of the Modern Servia, where Nizza and Uſchub ſtand. Dardania was likewiſe a Province of Troas, which had a Town of that Name, built by Dardanus. Strabo, Pliny, &c.

DARDANUS, Son to Jupiter and Electra, who fled from Crete or Italy, as ſome ſay, for killing his Brother, and Founded the City and Kingdom of Troy.

DARDANUS, (Claudius Poſthumus) a Roman Governor in France, who contributed to the Uſurper Jovin's Death. Sidonius Apollinarius writes of him thus, Cum in Conſtantino inconſtantiam in Jovino facilitatem, in Gerontio perfidiam, Singula in Singulis, Omnia in Dardano Crimina ſimul execrarentur.

DARES, a Trojan Prieſt, who writ the Wars of Troy in Greek, which was extant in the time Ælian, as he himſelf aſſures us: Photius mentions it likewiſe in his Bibliotheca. This Book is now loſt, for that which goes under Dares's Name, and pretends to be a Tranſlation of Cornelius Nepos, is undoubtedly Spurious, notwithſtanding the Opinion of Glandorpius to the Contrary. Ælian. Hiſt. Div. lib. 11. c. 2. Photius Cod. 190. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 3. & de Græc. lib. 4. cap. 1. &c.

DARHA, a Province of Biledulgerid in Africa, with a Town and River of that Name, betwixt the Kingdoms of Morocco, Teſſet and Segelmeſſe. It is divided into Darha Proper, ſtrictly ſo call'd, Itata and Taffalet. The King of the laſt Diviſion is alſo King of the reſt, which have been often ſubjected to the Xeriffs of Fez and Morocco. The Inhabitants do almoſt all dwell upon the River, and raiſe Banks to hinder its Inundations in the Winter, tho' in the Summer they can paſs it on Foot. It begins to increaſe on the Firſt of April, and waters the whole Country. When its Inundations are great, then they have a Plentiful Harveſt; but otherwiſe, it is very ſmall. The Palm-trees make the principal Revenue of this Province, becauſe their Dates are excellent and very great, and keep longer than others. Thoſe Trees are planted ſo as the Male may be near the Female; for the Males bear only Flowers, but the Females Fruit: But to make them good, it's ſaid, That when they are in the Bloſſom, a Sprig of the Male-Flower muſt be graffed into them, which makes the Dates larger, and of a better taſte. There are many Jews, both Tradeſmen and Merchants in this Country, particularly Goldſmiths: Here is great ſtore of Indico for Dyers. They keep great Flocks of Oſtriches, which have fine Feathers, black, white, and ſometimes grey; but their Fleſh is not good to eat. Marmol. de l'Afric. l. 7.

DARIEN. See Caledonia.

DARIES, a Conſul of Marſeilles, who with one Boniface, April 1585. raiſed a Sedition in that City, and ſeiz'd the Caſtle of Noſtredame de la Garde; but 3 days after, he and his Companion were Try'd, Condemn'd and Hang'd for the ſame in one day. Mezeray, Hiſt. Hen. 3d.

DARIUS, call'd the Mede, Authors are not agreed as to his Reign and Original, moſt part think him to be the Nabonides of Prophane Authors, and that he reigned 17 Years from the 198. of Rome to the Year 215. in which Cyrus the Perſian took Babylon, and begun the Perſian Monarchy. Beroſus, Joſephus, Scaliger, &c. are of this Opinion againſt Torniel Salian, Spondanus, &c. who believe this Darius to be Son of Aſtyages, Uncle by the Mother to Cyrus, whom they call Cyaxares. They think alſo that he reign'd over the Chaldeans with Cyrus, at leaſt it is by this means that they explain what Daniel ſays concerning him, that he ſucceeded Belſhazzar at the Age of 62. This Hiſtorical Controverſie is very famous among Authours. Pererius in his Commentaries upon Daniel relates Seven different Opinions; but he declares himſelf of the laſt. The Curious may conſult Torniel, Spondanus and Salian, A. M. 3454, 3472, 3516. Marſham affirms, that Darius the Mede was the firſt King of the Perſians, and Grand-father to Cyrus. See his Reaſons in his Canon Ægyptiacus, pag. 562. of the London Edition.

DARIUS I. of that Name, Son of Hyſtaſpes, who was General of the Army, he joyn'd with ſix other Noble Perſians to Dethrone the Counterfeit Smerdis, who had Uſurp'd the Crown, and having happily accompliſh'd their Deſign, it was agreed amongſt them, that they ſhould meet within two Days in a Suburb of the City, and that he ſhould be choſen King whoſe Horſe ſhould firſt Neigh; whereupon Darius his Horſe Neighing firſt by the Cunning of his Groom, he was choſen King, An. Mund. 3532. He made 5 conſiderable Expeditions. The Firſt, was the taking of Samos, of which he made Syloſon Governour, from whom he had received ſome Kindneſs in Egypt. The Second was the Siege of Babylon, which had revolted from the Perſians, and which he took after 20 Months Siege, by the Cunning of Zopyrus, in the Year of Rome, 244. The third Enterprize was againſt the Scythians, who invaded Media. He attack'd them with 700000 Men, and a Fleet of 600 Sail. He alſo laid a Bridge over the Boſphorus to paſs into Europe; but this Expedition did not ſucceed according to his Expectation, this was An. 246. of Rome; at his return, he left his General Magabyzes with 80000 Men to Conquer Europe. He ſubdu'd ſome part of Thrace and the Neighbouring Countries: This, with the Defeat of the Revolted Ionians, happening ſome time after, may paſs for his Fourth Enterprize. His Fifth Expedition was againſt the Greeks, but here his Army conſiſting of above 500000 Men, was defeated at Marathon by 12000 Athenians commanded by Miltiades: This great Overthrow happen'd in September, in the Year of the World 3562. He chaſtiſed the Rebel Egyptians, and afterwards declared Xerxes his Son Succeſſor, excluding his eldeſt Son Artabazanes, becauſe he was born whilſt he was a private Man. Darius died An. Mundi 3567. 485 Years before Chriſt. Joſeph. Antiq. l. 11. Ant. Corn. Nepos, Plutarch, &c. Some believe that this Darius is the Ahaſuerus of the Scripture, Husband to Eſther; but it's more probable, that Artaxerxes call'd Mnemon, was he. Strabo, l. 5. Herodot.

DARIUS II. call'd Nothus, by Coſmartidena of Babylon, Artaxerxes Longimanus his Miſtreſs, ſucceeded Sogdianus his Brother, and Married Pariſatis his Siſter by the Father, a very Cruel Woman, by whom he had Arſaces, who ſucceeded him under the Name of Artaxerxes Mnemon, and Ameſtris before he was King, and afterwards he had Cyrus the Younger, and 13 other Sons. He managed ſome Wars by his Generals and Cyrus his Son, and died after 19 Years Reign, An. Mundi 3649. and 405 before Jeſus Chriſt. Sulpitius Severus, Scaliger, and ſome other Authors, think this to be the Darius Ochus under whom Zorobabel finiſhed the Temple.

DARIUS III. Surnam'd Codomannus, according to ſome, Brother to Artaxerxes Ochus, was Son of Arſamis and Syſigambis, and ſucceeded to the Crown of Perſia, after that the Eunuch Bagoas had kill'd Arſes the youngeſt Son of Artaxerxes Ochus. This Eunuch preſented alſo a Cup of Poiſon to Darius, which he made him drink out himſelf, and ſo diſpatch'd a Traitor that had deſtroy'd the Royal Family: He begun to Reign An. Mund. 3718. at the time when Alexander the Great became formidable to the World, and Darius loſt 3 Battels againſt him. The firſt at Granicus in Phrygia, where the Perſian Army was entirely defeated, An. 420. of Rome. The ſecond at the Streights of Mount Taurus, An. 421. of Rome; where Darius loſt his Mother, his Wife and Children, and with much ado ſav'd himſelf in Perſia to raiſe new Men: At length he proffer'd Peace to Alexander, who refus'd the ſame, and finally Routed him at the City Arbela on the 1ſt. of October, 11 Days after that great Eclipſe of the Moon mention'd by Pliny and Ptolemy. After this, the Unhappy Darius fled into Media, where Beſſus the Governour of Bactria kill'd him, An. Mund. 3724. and the 6th of his Reign. So that the Perſian Monarchy ended in this Prince 229 or 230 Years after Cyrus had laid its Foundation. Juſtin, Plutarch, Pliny, Quint. Curtius, Ptolemy.

DARIUS, deſcended from Atropalus, the firſt King of the Medes, who ſucceeded him after 4 others, whoſe Names and Reigns are not mentioned in Hiſtory. He reigned in Media, when Pompey made War upon Mithridates Eupator King of Pontus, and was Conquer'd by that famous Roman General, who granted him Peace. He was ſucceeded by his Son Artuaſdes. Plutarch.

DARKING, a Market-Town in Surrey, the Capital of its Hundred, upon a Branch of the River Mole, which at a place call'd the Swallow, by the Foot of a Hill here falls under Ground, and riſes again the diſtance of a Mile thence, near Norbury. It's noted for the Honourable Charles Howard's Phyſick-Garden. From London 24 Miles.

DARLINGTON, a Market-Town in the Biſhoprick of Durham, the Capital of its Wapentake, with a fair Bridge over the River Skerne, where there runs another ſmall Rivulet into it. 242 Miles from London.

DARMSTADT, a City of Germany in the Lower Palatinate, with the Title of Landgraviate. It's about 2 Leagues from the Rhine, and 3 from Francfort on the Main. It belongs to a Prince of the Family of Heſſe. It hath a well-fortify'd Caſtle; and the Caſtles of Mariemburg on the Rhine and Ruſſelheim on the Main, belong alſo to this Prince.

DARTFORD, a Market-Town of Axſtance Hundred in the North-weſt Parts of Kent, call'd Dareford, from the River Darent, on the Weſt ſide whereof it is ſeated, within 2 or 3 Miles of its Influx into the Thames, which is a great Advantage to it, for the conveying of their Goods to London, and lying beſides (as it does) in Dover Road, it has the benefit of entertaining Paſſengers in time of Peace, to and from France. Here began the Rebellion headed by Jack-Straw, in the Reign of Richard II. An. 1381. From London 15 Miles.

DARTMOUTH, a Market and Borrough-Town, with a noted Haven in the South Parts of Devonſhire, call'd Dartmouth, from its ſituation at the Mouth of the River Dart; where it is defended by two Caſtles, which ſtand on each ſide of the River. The Haven is much reſorted unto, eſpecially by Wind-driven Ships in theſe parts of the Chanel. K. Charles II. honour'd this Town with the Title of Barony, which he conferr'd upon Col. George Leg, late Baron of Dartmouth. It hath 3 Churches, and is govern'd by a Mayor and Brethren. From London 165 Miles.

DARWENTWATER, a large Lake in Cumberland, being alſo the Name of an Ancient Mannour near it, which has been ſeveral Hundreds of Years in the Poſſeſſion of the Anceſtors of the preſent Edward Earl of Darwent-water, Viſcount Radclyff and Langley, and Baron of Tyndale, of which his Lordſhip is now the Owner. Of this Noble Family were Sir John Radclyff in the Reign of Henry the VIth. and Sir Richard Radclyff in the Reign of Richard the IIId. both Knights of the Garter; Sir John was likewiſe Lord Steward of Aquitain, Conſtable of Bourdeaux, and Earl of Longueville in France; and in the Reign of Henry the VIIIth, Robert, great Grandſon to Sir John, was created Earl of Suſſex, to whom ſucceeded five Earls of that Name (viz.) Henry, Thomas, Henry, Robert and Edward, all Knights of the Garter excepting the laſt: The firſt Henry was, in reward of his Eminent Services to Queen Mary, honoured with the unuſual Privilege of being cover'd in her Preſence: Thomas was Lord Chamberlain to Queen Elizabeth, and commanded her Armies upon ſeveral Occaſions. His Lordſhips Arms are, Pearl, a Bend ingrail'd Diamond. Dugdale Baron. Dales Catalogue of the Nobility, &c. See Radclyff.

DASIPODIUS (Conrad) Mathematick Profeſſor at Strasbourg, where he read upon Euclid, and wrote ſome Treatiſes in Geometry, Opticks and Aſtronomy. He died in the Year 1600. Voſſius de Mathem. cap. 12. &c. Melchior Adam in Vit. Philoſ. Germ. &c.

DATAMES, a Captain, at firſt a private Souldier in Artaxerxes's Guards, and afterwards General of his Army, which he led with ſo much Conduct, that he vanquiſh'd many of that Prince's Enemies. But thoſe who envy'd him, did this Great Man ſuch Ill Offices with the King, that he was forc'd to fly, and put himſelf at the Head of ſome Troops to defend his Life, whereof Mithridates depriv'd him Cowardly, under a pretence of Friendſhip. Cornelius Nepos. Lives of Generals, Ch. 14.

DATARY, an Officer in the Court of Rome, whoſe Charge is Beneficial and Honourable. All Petitions for Benefices not exceeding 24 Ducats Revenue paſs him, without ſpeaking to the Pope; but thoſe for greater Value he carries to the Pope to ſign, and then adds the Date in theſe Terms, Datum Romæ apud, &c. There are many Subdataries under him, through whoſe Hands Petitions muſt alſo paſs to prevent Cheats. Le Pelletier.

DATHY, or Dathus, (Auguſtin) of Sienna, in Italy, liv'd in the 15th. Cent. under the Pontificate of Pope Pius the IId. He was conſiderable in the Polite part of Learning;

ing; he wrote a Hiſtory of Siena, in three Books; the Hiſtory of Piombino; ten Treatiſes De Animarum immortalitate; Letters, &c. All printed at Siena.

DAVENTRY, a Market-Town of Fauſley Hundred, in the Weſt Parts of Northamptonſhire, and a great Thoroughfare to and from the North-weſt Counties. It's govern'd by a Mayor and 12 Freemen, 73 Miles from London.

DAVID, the Son of Jeſſe, born An. Mundi 2950, having lived 70 Years, and reigned 40, died. There's a great Controverſie among the Learned, whether he be Author of all the Book of Pſalms. Ambroſe, Jerom, Hilarius, Iſidorus, Lyranus, think not: and becauſe the Title of the Book is not aſcribed to David, they conclude, That all the particular Pſalms having other Names in their Titles, are compoſed by thoſe there named; and ſo make him only the Author of 70. Auguſtin, Baſil, Nazianzen, Epiphanius, Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, Caſſiodorus, Bede, Euthymius, Cajetan, Bellarmine, &c. think he compos'd the whole; and that thoſe whoſe Names are found in the Titles, are the Muſicians ordered by David to ſet the Pſalms to Muſical Tunes: and in effect, 1 Chron. 15. 16, 25. we ſee that thoſe named in the Titles were Chief Muſicians. The Pſalm which ſome add beſides the 150th, is Apocryphal. Aug. de Civ. Dei. Ambroſe, Pſal. 43. 47.

DAVID I. the 95th King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Brother Alexander, An. Chriſt. 1124. He liv'd a conſiderable time in England with his Siſter, and married there the Daughter of a Niece of William the Conqueror, and by her had as Dowry, Northumberland and Huntingtonſhire. As he equall'd all his Predeceſſors in his Condeſcenſion to hear the Poor, he exceeded 'em in Juſtice, compelling Judges to pay the Damages awarded by their own falſe Judgments. He repair'd Monaſteries, and added the Biſhopricks of Roſs, Brechin, Dunkelden, and Dunblain, to the 6 that were before; and gave a plentiful Endowment. The Loſs of the Queen, a very accompliſh'd and beautiful Woman, who died in the flower of her Age, affected him ſo much, that he lived 20 Years a Widower. Stephen Earl of Bologne having uſurp'd the Crown of England, notwithſtanding the Oath he had taken with the reſt of the Nobility to the Empreſs Maud, ſent Embaſſadors to King David, to ſwear Allegiance for Cumberland, Northumberland, and Huntington, which he held of the Crown of England; to which he returning Anſwer, That being with Stephen himſelf bound in Oath to obey Maud their lawful Queen, he would acknowledge no other while ſhe liv'd: hereupon enſu'd a War. The Engliſh loſt a memorable Battel, wherein, among many other of their Nobility, the Earl of Glouceſter, their General, was taken Priſoner. The Scots were defeated afterwards at the River Tees. After ſome other Conflicts, with various Succeſs, a Peace was concluded on theſe Conditions, That Cumberland, as by ancient Right, ſhould be poſſeſs'd by David; and that Northumberland, as far as the River Tees, and Huntingtonſhire, ſhould be enjoy'd by Henry, David's Son, upon the account of his Mother's Inheritance; but that he ſhould do Homage to Stephen for 'em. Soon after this the Empreſs Maud returning into England, ſent her Son Henry, afterwards King of England, to King David his Great-Uncle, to be inſtructed in Martial Exerciſes; but his own hopeful Son died, lamented by all that had ever ſeen him. He bore the Loſs with moſt Chriſtian Patience; and having invited the prime Nobility to Supper, comforted 'em with a very pathetick and rational Speech, ſaying, That the World being govern'd by the Providence of the Almighty, it would be both fooliſh and impious to repine at the execution of its Decrees: That his Son paid a Debt which he had bound himſelf to by his very Birth: That ſince good Men die as well as bad, all Chriſtians ought to be throughly ſettled in this perſwaſion, that no Evil can happen to them, either alive or dead. Then ſending for his Sons Children, he commended Malcolm, the eldeſt of the three, to the Care of the whole Nobility, and particularly of Mackduff Earl of Fife, and caus'd him to be carried over all the Land, that ſo he might be receiv'd as the undoubted Heir of the Kingdom. William, the next Son, he made Earl of Northumberland, and ſent him preſently to take Poſſeſſion of that County. David, the third Son, he made Earl of Huntington in England, and of Garioch in Scotland; then devoted himſelf wholly to a due Preparation for Death, which he foreſaw was near at hand: ſo died in 1153, after a Reign of 29 Years, 2 Months, and 3 Days. Buchan.

DAVID II. the 98th King of Scotland, being very young at Robert Bruce's Father's Death, the Eſtates pitch'd upon Thomas Randolf, Earl of Murray, for Regent; who having ratified the Peace made with the Engliſh, applied his Mind to ſettle Peace at home. He was inexorable againſt all Murderers, a memorable Inſtance whereof is, his Apprehending a Man who had obtain'd the Pope's Bull of Pardon, notwithſtanding the Bigotry of them times, and ſaying, That the Pope might pardon the Soul-Guilt if he could; but for the Body-Puniſhment, it belong'd to the King. To prevent Robberies more effectually, he made a Law, That the Countrymen ſhould leave their Iron-Tools and Plough-Gear in the Field all night; and that they ſhould not ſhut their Houſes nor Stables: if any thing were ſtolen, the Loſs was to be repair'd by the Sheriff of the County, and the Sheriff was to be reimburs'd by the King, and the King was to be ſatisfied out of the Eſtates of the Thieves when they were taken. He hang'd a Countryman, who, over-greedy of Gain, hid his Plough-Irons in the Field, when after he had Satisfaction for 'em, he himſelf was found Author of the Theft. The Engliſh, who upon Robert's Death watch'd all occaſions to revenge themſelves, under King Edward march'd to the Borders, encourag'd, as Buchanan ſays, by a Monk, who aſſur'd him, That Randolf would die by ſuch a Day, for he had given him Poiſon that would certainly diſpatch him by that time, yet was miſtaken ſomewhat; ſo that King Edward finding the Scots ready to receive him, and Randolf, tho' much weaken'd by what the Monk had given him, at their Head; march'd his Army back again. Soon after which, Randolf died, and Duncan Earl of Marr was choſen in his place. For the reſt of this Reign, ſee Baliol.

DAVID, King of Æthiopia, An. 1507. he obtain'd many Victories over his Enemies. He ſent Embaſſadors to Emanuel and John Kings of Portugal, and Pope Clement VII. The Titles which he aſſumed were, David the Beloved of God, Pillar of the Faith, of the Line and Blood of Judah, Son of David, Son of Solomon, Son of the Column of Sion, Son of the Seed of Jacob, Son of the hand of Mary, Son of Nahu by the Fleſh, Emperor of the Great and High Æthiopia, and of all the Kingdoms and Eſtates thereon depending. Marmol. Deſcrip. Afr. Paul. Jov.

DAVID (John) a Dutch-man, a famous Adventurer of this Age. Having retired to Jamaica, he made rich Prizes on the Spaniards, and perform'd abundance of valiant Atchievements. With 90 Men he pillaged the Town of Granada, on the Bank of the Lake Nicaragua, where there were at leaſt 800 armed Men; and carried thence a great Booty. Oexmelin. Hiſt. des Indes Occident.

DAVID (George) an Heretick, Glazier, and ſome ſay a Glaſs-Painter, Son to a Waterman of Ghent; he begun about An. 1525. to broach his Whimſies, That he was the true Meſſiah, the third David, Nephew of God, not after the Fleſh, but after the Spirit. The Heavens, he ſaid, were empty, and therefore he was ſent to adopt Children that were worthy of that Kingdom, and to reſtore Iſrael, not by Death, as Chriſt, but by Grace. He denied Eternal Life, the Reſurrection, and Laſt Judgment; he was againſt Marriage, and for a Community of Women; and, with the Followers of Manes, he ſaid, That not the Soul, but the Body, was defiled with Sin; that the Souls of Unbelievers were ſaved, and the Apoſtles damn'd; that it was no Sin to deny Jeſus Chriſt; and mocked the Martyrs. Being proſecuted, he fled to Frieſland, and from thence to Baſil, where he lurk'd under the Name of John Bruck. He died in that City An. 1556. promiſing to his Diſciples, that he ſhould riſe again within three Years: which, as it happened, was not altogether falſe; for, the Magiſtrates of that City underſtanding what a Monſter he was, did about that time dig up his Corps, which, together with his Writings, they caus'd to be burn'd by the Common Hangman. There are ſtill ſome Remainders of his Sect at Frederick's-Town in Holſace. Gautier, Roſſe.

DAVID de Pomis, a Jewiſh Phyſician, Author of a Hebrew Dictionary, and of the Rabbinical Hebrew, under the Title of Tſemah David. It is very uſeful for thoſe who would underſtand the Rabbins. It is explain'd in Italian, and has very excellent Remarks on the Learning of the Jews. P. Simon.

DAVID, of the Family of the Comneni, laſt Emperor of Trebizond, ſucceeded his Brother John. He enter'd into a League with Uſun Caſſan King of Perſia, to whom he marry'd his Daughter. Mahomet II. Emperor of the Turks, diſpoſſeſs'd him of his Dominions; and having drawn him to Conſtantinople, under pretence of giving him ſome new Country, by way of Satisfaction for the Loſs of his own, he treacherouſly put him and his Sons to Death, An. 1461. Chalcondylas lib. 9. Crant. lib. 3. cap. 27.

DAVID, a Maronite Archbiſhop, who, about the Year 1059. tranſlated the Conſtitutions of the Church of the Maronites out of Syriack into Arabick. Abraham Ecchellenſis makes frequent uſe of the Authority of theſe Conſtitutions: and a Latin Abridgment of ſome of 'em is inſerted in the Collection of Morinus's Letters, and publiſh'd under the Title of Bibliotheca Orientalis. Father Simon.

DAVILA (Henrico Catherino) deſcended of one of the moſt illuſtrious Families of the Kingdom of Cyprus; where his Predeceſſors had been Conſtables of the Country, and very rich. But the Turks becoming Maſters of that Iſland in 1570 and 1571, Davila was forced to fly from their Tyranny, and retir'd to Avila, in Spain; whence his Family, according to Tradition, drew their Original and Title. It's alſo ſaid, That he had rich Kinſmen there, from whom he hoped for Relief: but being diſappointed, he came to France, where the chief of Henry III's Court took Pleaſure to oblige him in his low Condition. He had a Brother and two Siſters, whom Catherine de Medicis took into her Service; his Brother Lewis having formerly commanded the Fort of Zara for the Venetians. The Death of the ſaid Queen and the King broke all Davila's Meaſures. He remained ſome time in France, in the Reign of Henry the Great; and ſerv'd him in the War, particularly before Honfleur in Normandy, and Amiens, in 1597. where he was wounded, as he remarks himſelf. Afterwards he retired to Venice, where the Republick allow'd him an honourable Maintenance: During which time, he wrote his Hiſtory of the Civil Wars of France in 15 Books; containing all that was remarkable, from the Death of Henry II. in 1559, to the Peace of Vervins, in 1598. Being at Padua, he received a Commiſſion from the Republick, to go to Verona; and coming to a Place call'd Villeneuve, he demanded Carriages for his Equipage, as is due to ſuch who have the Republick's Commiſſion; he who ought to have furniſh'd them, being Farmer to a Gentleman of Verona, then preſent: The ſaid Gentleman falling in a Paſſion at Davila's Servants, they mildly ſhew'd him their Commiſſion: But their Civility availing nothing, he drew a Piſtol out of his Pocket, and ſhot Davila, who died quickly of his Wound. Having a Son with him of about 18 Years old, he fell upon the Murtherer, and cut him in pieces. The Farmer had alſo the like Fate. His Hiſtory was originally writ in Italian, and tranſlated into French by J. Badoin.

DAVIS (John) an Engliſh-man, ſail'd over the Northern Part of America in 1585, to find a Paſſage, that way, to the Eaſt-Indies: but all the Succeſs that he met with in three Attempts, was only the Diſcovery of a Streight, now call'd by his Name. This Streight is pretty broad, and lies from South to North, between the Weſtern Coaſt of Greenland and James Iſland. Th. Hackluyt. tom. 3. Itiner.

DAVITY (Peter) a Gentleman of Vivarets, Native of Tournon: He flouriſh'd in the Beginning of this Age, and compos'd a Work intituled The World. He died in 1635. Chorier, towards the End of his Hiſtory of Dauphine, abridg'd for the Uſe of the Dauphin, ſpeaks of him thus; Peter of Davity is Author of that great and laborious Work which is call'd The World. Our Age hath produced nothing of Learning more diverting and profitable.

DAULIA, or Daulis, an old Town of Phocis, near Delphi, which lay South of it. It's mention'd by Ptolemy, Strabo, &c. In the times of Chriſtianity it had a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Athens; but now the Town is ruin'd. There was another of the ſame Name, in Macedonia.

DAUPHINE, a Province of France, neareſt to Italy on the Eaſt, where the Alps ſeparate it from Piedmont. On the North it is bounded with part of Savoy and la Breſſe; on the Weſt, with part of Lions and Vivarets, or the River Rhone; and Provence, and the Principality of Orange, on the South. It's between the 43d and 46th deg. of Lat. and the 26th and 29th of Long. Grenoble is the Metropolis, being the Seat of Parliament, and other Sovereign Courts; as alſo the Biſhop's See. This Province hath two Archbiſhopricks, Vienne and Ambrun; and four other Biſhopricks, Gap, Valence, Die, and St. Pol. This Province is compos'd of ſeveral petty States, which united ſince the Fall of the Kingdom of Burgundy. The firſt particular Prince that eſtabliſh'd himſelf there in Quality of Count, was Guy, about the Year 889. His Succeſſors were all of the ſame Name. Guido VII. was the firſt who aſſum'd the Title of Dauphin; ſome think, from a Caſtle of the ſame Name; and others, from the Dolphin which he wore as his Coat of Arms: And afterwards it became not only the Name of his Family, but of the Province. Humbert II. gave this Province to Philip de Valois, King of France, on condition, That the French King's eldeſt Sons ſhould carry the Arms and Title of that Province. This was done by the Advice of his Council, to keep that Province entire, which muſt otherwiſe have been divided into ſeveral Portions. This happen'd in 1349; and ſince that time, there are reckon'd 20 French King's eldeſt Sons who have been Dauphins. This Province is one of the greateſt and beſt in France. The Gentry thereof are well eſteemed for their Bravery, having ſignaliz'd themſelves on many Occaſions. They have alſo had many learned Men; and thoſe of this Country are uſually ingenious and courteous. This Country is fam'd for ſeven Wonders; A Tower without Poyſon, an Inacceſſible Mountain, a Burning Fountain, the Fats of Saſſenage, the Precious Stones of that Place, the Manna of Briançon, and the Cave of Balma. Berchorius. Chorier.

DAX, Dacs, or Acqs, on the River Adour, the Capital of Gaſcoign, and a Biſhop's See. The Latins call it Aquæ Auguſtæ, or Civitas Aquarum Tarbellicarum. It's 5 Leagues above Bayonne, and the Seat of a Chief Juſtice. It is a Town of good Trade, and well built, and famous for its hot and healthful Waters: whence the Romans call'd it Aquæ, and the Province Aquitania. It was formerly govern'd by Counts and Viſcounts, till Richard, Duke of Guienne, and afterwards King of England, ſubdued it, in 1117. Charles VII. united it to the Crown of France in 1451. Du Cheſne Ant. des Villes.

DAY, the Time between the Riſing of the Sun and its Setting. This Space of Time is call'd a Natural Day, and is longer in Summer than in Winter; but the Artificial, or Civil, comprehending the Natural Day and Night, is always of 24 Hours. There is another Diſtinction of Days: The Babylonians begin theirs at the Riſing of the Sun: the Italians of Ombria, at Noon: the Jews, and ſome Italians, now begin theirs at Sun-ſet: the Egyptians, and after them Copernicus, began at Midnight. P. Petau de Doct. Temp.

DEAL, in Kent, a Member of the Port of Sandwich; a fair large Town, ſituate over-againſt the Downs, and is of great note for Shipping. From London 74 Miles.

DEAN-FOREST is one of the principal Foreſts in England, and that which yields the beſt Oak in the World for Shipping. It lies in Gloceſterſhire, on the Weſt-ſide of the Severn, betwixt that River and the Wye, and is reckon'd 20 Miles in length, and 10 in breadth. Its Oak is ſo very tough, that when it is dry, and well-ſeaſon'd, 'tis almoſt as hard as Iron. Within this Foreſt are 3 Hundreds, and 23 Pariſh-Churches; for it's ſaid to contain 32000 Acres of Ground.

DECAN, an Indian Kingdom, in an Iſland on this ſide the Ganges, having Bengal on the Eaſt, the Indian Sea on the Weſt, Biſnagar on the South, and the Mogul's Country on the North. It was formerly under one King, divided into 5 Provinces, with many rich and great Cities: but the face of things is changed within theſe 120 Years; for beſides the famous Town of Goa, belonging to the Portugueſe, the Great Mogul hath taken the Towns of Kerby, Chaoul, Dolvatabad, &c. and hath built that of Aureng-abad. Their Idalcam, or King, reſides at Viſapur, his Capital; whence he is call'd King of Viſapur. Texeira, Jean de Baros.

DECEBALUS, a King of the Dacians, about the end of the firſt Century: A Prince valiant and wiſe, ſkilful in War, and who knew how to improve Adverſity as well as Victory. He maintain'd the War happily againſt Domitian, defeating his two Generals, Oppius Sabinus, and Cornelius Fuſcus. But being overcome by the Emperor Trajan, in 103, he ſought, and obtain'd, Peace: which having violated, and endeavour'd in vain to ſeek Trajan's Life, with whom he knew he was not able to fight, he kill'd himſelf. Dion. Sueton.

DECEMVIRI, Magiſtrates of Rome, who were to take care that the Laws of the Twelve Tables ſhould be obſerved. That City having ſuffer'd much by the Differences among the Conſuls and Tribunes, one Hermodorus, an Epheſian Exile, adviſ'd the Romans to ſend three Embaſſadors to Athens, and others of the beſt govern'd Cities in Greece, to learn their Cuſtoms. Which being done accordingly, of thoſe Foreign Cuſtoms they compos'd Twelve Tables, An. Rom. 303. But about 3 Years after, the ſaid Magiſtrates having miſgovern'd, were ſet aſide, principally becauſe of the Laſciviouſneſs of Appius Claudius. Livius.

DECENTIUS (Magnus) Brother to Magnentius, who occaſion'd his being made Emperor, and the Death of the Emperor Conſtans, An. 350. The ſaid Magnentius being overcome in Panonia, Italy, and Dauphine, kill'd himſelf at Lions, in deſpair, Aug. 11. 373. And Decentius, on the News thereof, hang'd himſelf at Sens, on the 18th. Aurel. Victor, St. Jerom, Euſeb.

DECIANUS (Tiberius) a famous Lawyer of Udina, a Town in Frioli. He liv'd to the Year 1581, and wrote 5 Volumes of Conſultations, and two Treatiſes call'd Tractatus Criminales, &c. James Philip. Thomaſini, p. 1. Elog. &c.

DECIUS, or Deci (Philip) a famous Lawyer of Milan, born in the beginning of the 16th Century. He wrote, Concil. Jurid. lib. 4. Comment. in Regul. Juris ſuper 1. & 2. F. Vit. & ſup. 1. & 2. Cod. &c. Paul. Jov. cap. 88. Elog. Fiſchard. in vit. Juriſcon.

DECIUS, or Caius Meſſius Quintus Trajanus Decius, Native of Bubala, in the Lower Panonia. He advanced himſelf by Arms, and was proclaimed Emperor by the Rebel-Legions, who had choſen Marinus, after the violent Death of the two Philips, An. 249. He publiſh'd cruel Edicts againſt the Chriſtians; which animating the Fury of the Idolaters againſt them, fill'd the Province with frightful Murders. This cruel Perſecution, which is accounted the 7th, laſted to the Year 251, that the Goths ravaging the Province of Mæſia and Thracia, he drowned himſelf in a Marſh, where his Body was never found, that ſo he might eſcape his Enemies, who, by the Treaſon of Trebonianus Gallus, had kill'd his Son Quintus Erennius Etruſcus Meſſius Decius, and defeated his Army. He reigned 2 Years, 10 Months. Lætus, Aur. Victor, Euſeb.

DECIUS (P. Mus) a Roman Conſul, who ſignaliz'd his Courage on ſeveral Occaſions, An. Rom. 411. He recover'd the Conſul Cornelius out of a diſadvantageous Poſt, and contributed to the Victory over the Samnites. Being Conſul afterwards with Manlius Torquatus, An. 414. he devoted himſelf to the Infernal Deities, for his Country, during the Battels betwixt the Romans and the Latins, which the Romans gained, and Decius Mus was there kill'd, the Conſuls having reſolved before-hand, That ſuch of the two whoſe Wing ſhould be put in Diſorder, ſhould devote himſelf for the Safety of the Army. This was a Superſtition which oftentimes proved advantageous to the Romans. He who thus devoted, or offer'd himſelf, being apparel'd in Habit ſuitable to the Ceremony, ſet his Feet upon a Javelin, and lifting his Right-hand to his Chin, pronounc'd aloud ſome Words which the Pontiff put in his Mouth; and afterwards arming himſelf Cap-a-pe, went into the heat of the Battel: Which encouraged the Soldiers to follow him, they looking upon him as more great and venerable after this Conſecration. This Conſul left behind him P. Decius Mus, who was High Prieſt, and 4 times Conſul. In his firſt Conſulate he took ſome places in Tuſcany. In his ſecond he defeated the Samnites, and afterwards thoſe of Pouillia near Benevent: And in his laſt Conſulate, fighting againſt the Gauls, Tuſcans, and Samnites, he devoted himſelf to the Infernal Deities, as his Father did: but this would have been altogether unprofitable to the Romans, had not Scipio and Martius come ſeaſonably up. His Son being Conſul of Rome, devoted himſelf in like manner, An. 475 of Rome, being ſlain with 5000 Romans in a Battel againſt Pyrrhus, who was therein wounded, and loſt 20000 Men. This Family, though Plebeians, having ſignalized themſelves ſo frequently in this manner, gave occaſion to theſe Verſes of Juvenal:

Plebeiæ Deciorum animæ, Plebeia fuerunt
Nomina pro totis Legionibus, attamen & pro
Omnibus Auxiliis, atque omni Plebe Latina
Sufficiunt Diis infernis terræque Parenti.
Titus Livius, Flor. Cicero.

DECKAR (John) a Jeſuit, born at Haesbrook in Flanders, and liv'd to the beginning of the 17th Century. His Works are, Theoremata de anno ac morte Domini. De primario Divinæ ac Humanæ Chronologiæ Vinculo, in 3 Tomes, &c. There was another John Deckar a Councellor of Brabant, who in the Year 1631 publiſhed Diſſertationes ac Deciſiones Juris. Aligamb. Bibl. Script. ſoc. J. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

DECRETALES, The Name given to the Letters of Popes, bearing an Anſwer to Queſtions propoſed to them by ſome Biſhop or Judge Eccleſiaſtick, or even particular Perſons, in which they determin'd Buſineſs accordingly as the caſe required. Gregory IX. cauſed collect the Decretals of divers Popes, from An. 1150, that Gratian publiſhed his Decretum to 1230. He inſerted alſo ſome more of former Popes and Fathers which had eſcaped Gratian. Thoſe Decretals are divided into 5 Books. Boniface VIII. cauſed to make a 6th, An. 1298. Clement V. made a new Collection of the Decrees of the General Council of Vienna, and his own Epiſtles and Conſtitutions, which John XXII. publiſh'd under the Name of Clementines. And laſt of all were publiſh'd the Extravagants of John XXII, and the Common Extravagants. See Extravagants. Doujat.

DEE, Lat. Deva, a River call'd by the Welſh Fridwy, ariſeth in Merionethſhire, from the Lake of Llyntegid, and running North-weſt, takes in the River of Alwen in the ſame County, then paſſeth into Denbighſhire, and becomes a Boundary between that and Shropſhire, admitting another of its Boundaries the River Keriog; and paſſing by Bangor, the famous Welſh Monaſtery, it entereth Cheſhire at Shocklidge. At Alford it takes in another ſmall River, and in Flintſhire the River Allen: So having divided Cheſhire from Flintſhire at Weſt-Cheſter, it falls into the Iriſh Sea, making a great Haven, call'd by the Welſh Eee, by the Engliſh Dee-Mouth.

DEGREE, a Term of Honour in Univerſities, given to Scholars after their Studies; as, Bachelour, Doctor, &c. in the ſeveral Faculties. This Word is taken in another ſence amongſt Philoſophers and Mathematicians: the firſt divide Qualities by Degrees; as, Hot in the third Degree, Cold in the ſeventh Degree: and the latter by this Word underſtand the 360th part of a Circle. A Degree in the great Circles of the Terreſtrial Globe, as the Equator, Meridian, and Zodiack, contains 25 French Leagues, or according to ſome 30; whence it is eaſie to find, by multiplying 360 by 25, that the Earth is 9000 Leagues in Circuit. Every Degree is divided into 60 Minutes, every firſt Minute into 60 Seconds; and ſo of the reſt. Thoſe Degrees and Minutes are the Meaſures of Geographers, to underſtand the Diſtance of Places: but in little Circles, ſuch as are the two Tropicks, and other Parallels, the Degrees leſſen gradually, according as the Circles grow leſs, until ſuch time as 360 are reduced to one Point under the Pole.

DEIANIRA, Daughter of Oeneus King of Ætolia, whom Hercules won from the River Achelous, and afterwards married; in his Return he pray'd the Centaur Neſſus to carry her over the River Evenus, which he did, but afterwards endeavouring to raviſh her, Hercules wounded him with a poiſon'd Arrow. Neſſus finding himſelf a dying, gave his bloody Shirt to Deianira, aſſuring her, That if Hercules wore the ſame, he could never love another Woman but her. She believing him, and knowing her Husband to be enamour'd with Iola, ſhe ſent him this impoiſon'd Shirt by his Servant Lichas; which made him ſo mad, that he threw himſelf into the Fire as he was offering Sacrifice: whereupon his Wife kill'd her ſelf. Ovid. Metam.

DEINSE is a ſmall Town in Flanders, was Taken in the Year 1695 by the French, and the Garriſon detained Priſoners, contrary to the Cartel; but ſince has been reſtor'd to the Spaniards by the Peace of Reſwick 1697.

DEJOCES, the 5th King of the Medes, Son of Arbianes, whom ſome think to be Arphaxad. He was choſen King for his Prudence in deciding their Differences. He built Ecbatane, according to Herodotus, and reigned from An. Mundi 3358. to 3389. Diod. Sicul.

DEIOTARUS, Tetrarch or King of Galatia, engag'd with Pompey againſt Julius Cæſar; for Pompey having the Conſuls and the Senate of his ſide, Deiotarus look'd upon Cæſar's Party as Rebels. He brought Pompey a conſiderable Aſſiſtance into the Field; but after the Battle of Pharſalia, in which Pompey was defeated, he endeavour'd to reconcile himſelf to Cæſar, and the manner of his Submiſſion was ſomewhat mean: Being pardon'd and reſtor'd by Cæſar, he was oblig'd to follow him into the Field againſt Pharnaces: Afterwards Cæſar depriv'd him of Armenia, and part of Galatia. This Misfortune was follow'd by another, which might have prov'd worſe; for, Deiotarus was falſly accus'd by his Grandſon of an Attempt againſt Cæſar's Life, as if Deiotarus intended to have aſſaſſinated him when Cæſar lodg'd at his Houſe: Cicero was Councel for Deiotarus, and pleaded admirably for him, as appears by his Oration, however without gaining the Cauſe; for Cæſar gave no Sentence, but left the Matter undecided. Some Months after, Cæſar was murder'd; upon the News of which Aſſaſſination, Deiotarus, tho' very old, took the Field for Brutus, and by this Expedition made good his Promiſes of Service and Inclination to the Senate. After all, he was not ſo good-natur'd a Perſon as Tully repreſents him; for, he put his Daughter and Son-in-law to Death, and ras'd the Caſtle in which they reſided. He was extremely given to the Superſtition of Auguries and Omens, upon which Tully makes ſeveral handſome Remarks. Cic. & Strabo lib. 12. Bayle Dictionair Hiſtorique.

DEIPHILE, Daughter to Adraſtus King of Argos, and married to Tydeus, by whom ſhe had the famous Diomedes, mention'd by Homer. Apollodor.

DEIPHOBUS, Son to Priam King of Troy. He marry'd Hellen, after the Death of Paris, but was betray'd in his ſleep by this Princeſs to Menelaus her former Husband; who handled him very roughly. Virgil. Æneid. 6.

DEISTS, A certain ſort of Men who abound among all Sects of Chriſtians, who believe that there is one God, Providence, Vertue, and Vice, the Immortality of the Soul, and Rewards and Puniſhments after Death; but believe nothing elſe of the Chriſtian Religion, nor any other. An Engliſh Lord, called Herbert, Earl of Cherbury, is accuſed of defending this Opinion in his Writings about the middle of the 17th Century.

DELBRUGH, a little Town in Weſtphalia, between the Rivers Ems and the Lippa, formerly inhabited by the Bructeres, defeated by Germanicus, Son to Druſus: After this Victory, Germanicus rebuilt a monumental Tomb, call'd Ara Druſi, which had been thrown down by the Bructeres. He likewiſe gather'd up the Bones of thoſe that had been kill'd with Varus, and buried them all together. Monumenta Paderbornenſia, printed in 1672.

DELF, or Delft, Lat. Delphi, or Delphium, the 3d Town of Holland; ſo call'd becauſe of the Canal which is dug through it; Delve, in the Dutch Tongue, ſignifying to Dig, or make a Canal. It is enrich'd by its Beer and Cloth, which were formerly of great account. There are very fine Buildings here; among which, the Town-Houſe, and that of Sabourg, are moſt noted. It hath alſo two fine Churches; in one of which is the Tomb of Prince William of Naſſau, who was ſtabb'd there by Balthazar Gerrard, a Native of the Franche Compte, An. 1584. And in the other, is that of Admiral Tromp, enrich'd with Miniature, and a fine Inſcription. Godfrey of Boſſu, who conquer'd Holland, is ſaid to have built this Town, which was afterwards taken and diſmantled by Albert of Bavaria. It was wholly burnt by Accident, An. 1536. and afterwards rebuilt finer than ever. It was much endamaged in 1654. by the blowing up of the general Magazine of Powder and Arms then kept there: but ſince, the Magazine of Powder is built in the Fields. This Town is ſituated in a Plain 4 Leagues from Leyden, and one from the Hague. It hath belonging to it a fine Village, call'd Delf-Haven, about a quarter of a League from Rotterdam. The Supplement to Thuanus mentions a Sedition here by the Women, occaſion'd by laying a new Tax upon Corn. A Conference was alſo held here betwixt the Orthodox and the Arminians, but without Succeſs; mention'd in a Book called Henoticum Belgii Diſſecti. Guicciard. Belg.

DELIS, The Name of the Grand Vizier's Guards: The Number of 'em is generally from one to four hundred, according to the Fortune and Figure of the Grand Vizier. They are particularly affected and vain-glorious. Their Weapons are, a Lance, a Battle-Axe, and a Sword, and ſome of 'em have Piſtols at their Girdles: They are generally levy'd in Boſnia and Albania, the Natives of thoſe Countries being naturally moſt conſtant in the Turk's Service. The Grand Vizier Kuperly had 2000 of theſe Men for his Guards. Ricaut. Hiſt. Turk. Emp.

DELIUS, one of Anthony's Generals, who being ſent to Cleopatra, perſwaded her to appear before that Prince in all her beſt Ornaments; which ſhe did accordingly, and by that means conquer'd her Conqueror. Meſſala Corvinus calls Delius the Deſerter of the Civil Wars; becauſe he went from Dolabella to Caſſius, from Caſſius to Anthony, and from Anthony to Cæſar Auguſtus. He was Author of ſome Laſcivious Letters to Cleopatra.

DELLI, or Dehli, a Town and Kingdom of India, in the Dominions of the Great Mogul. It ſtands in a vaſt champaign Country, upon the River Genna. The old Dehli is but a Suburbs of the new Town Chagean Abad, built by Chagean, the Great Mogul. It is built with Brick, and was deſign'd for the Capital of the Empire. Bernier.

DELOS, now called Sdille, from the Greek Words εἰς Δῆλος contracted, two of the Iſlands called Cyclades, famous for the Birth of Diana and Apollo. Some will have them to be called ſo from the Greek Δῆλος, Manifeſt, as being the firſt Iſlands that appeared after the Deluge of Ogyges, before that of Noah: But Ariſtotle ſays, becauſe it appeared all of a ſudden out of the Sea, there being no Iſland in that place before; which is not incredible, ſuch things having been frequently done by Earthquakes. The Modern Greeks call them Δῆλοι. comprehending the Iſle Rhænea, which afar off ſeems join'd to Delos, and diſtinguiſh them by the Names of Leſſer and Greater. Apollo had formerly a Temple here. Whence Servius ſays, He pronounced his Oracles only 6 Months in the Summer, and in the Winter went to Patara, a Town in Lycia. Hence Virgil, Qualis ubi Hibernam Lyciam. The Athenians becoming Maſters of this place, clear'd the ſame of all the Tombs, which they tranſported to the neighbouring Rhænea. It is famous for nothing at preſent but its Name. In the middle of this Iſland is Mount Cynthus, about 20 or 30 Fathom high, being a Marble Rock, of the Nature of Egyptian Marble. Thoſe who have examined the Ruins of the place, find ſome footſteps of a College which Mariners call at preſent the Schools, being of an Oval Form for Naval Combats. There are alſo the Ruins of Apollo's Temple, and a Theatre. The Iſland contains as many Marble Stones and Ruins, as would build a City. J. Spon. Voyage d' Italy, 1675.

DELPHI or Delphos, a City of Phocis in Greece, under Mount Parnaſſus, famous for the Temple of Apollo, whence he pronounced his Oracles. Diodorus Siculus ſays, That the firſt Diſcovery thereof is owing to a Flock of Goats, who, in paſſing this Gulf or Den, made always a huge noiſe. Their Herdſman Corytas, being curious to ſee what was the matter, in viewing the ſame, was by its Exhalations inſpired with a Spirit of Prophecy; which taking Air, abundance of People flock'd thither, upon whom it had the like effect; but many having tumbled headlong into the Gulf, without ever being found again, a three-footed Stool was fixed for the Prophet or Propheteſs to ſit upon to prevent that Misfortune. At the firſt, young Virgins were choſen in honour of Diana, to pronounce her Brother's Oracles, until Echecrates of Theſſaly raviſhed one of them that was a Beauty; whence it came to paſs, that afterwards none under 50 Years of Age were deſigned to that Office. The Temple being extreamly rich with Preſents, was often pillaged, as Pauſanias reports, particularly by the Phlegians, by Pyrrhus Son to Achilles, Xerxes, the Phocenſes, ancient Gauls, and at laſt by Nero; who is ſaid to have robb'd it of 500 Statues of Copper. Dion adds, That he gave to his Soldiers the Territory of Cyrrhea, which was Apollo's Demain, and fill'd the Gulf whence the Oracles proceeded with the Bodies of Men whom he cauſed to be murder'd on purpoſe. Some write, That 5 Temples were ſucceſſively built in this place: the firſt, of Lawrel Branches, brought from the neighbouring Fields; the ſecond, of Bees-Wax and Wings; the third of Braſs, which was deſtroy'd by Fire or Earthquake; The fourth of Stone, built by the Architects Trophonius and Agamedes; the fifth, built by the Parliament of Greece, with the conſecrated Treaſury, in a very ſtrait place, and of difficult acceſs. From the round Form of this Tripos or three-footed Stool, came thoſe called Delphicæ Menſæ, and Juvenal's Orbs, as he calls them, being Tables made of Lacedæmonian Marble, whereon Cups were placed to ſpit or pour Dregs of Liquor in. Strabo, Pauſanias, Diod. Plut. Juſt. and other Authors, relate, That this Oracle ceaſed about the time of our Saviour's Birth; and Auguſtus having ſent to demand the Reaſon, was anſwer'd by the ſame thus:

> Qui Lacedæmonium pytiſmate lubricat Orbem.

> Me puer Hebræus, divos Deus ipſe gubernans,
> Cedere ſede jubet, triſtemq; redire ſub Orcum;
> Aris ergo dehinc tacitis abſcedito noſtris.

Vandalen de Oraculis gives this Account of it; That Apollo pronounced his Oracles from a hole not very big, over which the Pythoneſs or Propheteſs ſat upon a three-footed Stool, ſeeming to be tranſported with a divine Rapture, and gave the Oracles in Proſe or Verſe. The Tripos was cover'd with Lawrels, which hinder'd the View of thoſe who conſulted the Oracle, and the Smoak alſo forming a Cloud over her, did farther conceal the Frauds of the Pythoneſs, who ſometimes uſed a Speaking-Trumpet to make her Voice ſeem more than humane; as Father Kircher and Sir Sam. Morland have lately diſcover'd. And ſome are of Opinion, That the Prieſts of the Temple prepared her Reſponſes before-hand, and that her Confederates paſſed under ground by ſecret Paſſages, like the Prieſts of Bel, and occaſion'd that ſeeming Rapture, by burning odoriferous Perfumes at the bottom of the Gulf; which ſeem'd greater by her ſtudied and feign'd Behaviour. And others think, that ſhe was really ſometimes poſſeſſed.

DELRIO (Martin Anthony) Son of a Spaniſh Gentleman, and born in 1551. He was an Acquaintance of Lipſius's, and publiſh'd Notes upon Solinus, Claudian, and Seneca's Tragedies. His Works in Divinity are, Commentaries on the Canticles and the Lamentations of Jeremiah. Pharus ſacræ ſapientiæ. Adagia alia ſacra. De Difficilioribus & Utilioribus ſacræ Scripturæ locis. Florida Mariana. Opus Marianum, &c. His Treatiſes of Law are, De Principiis Juris. Miſcellanea ſcripta ad univerſum Jus Civile, &c. He wrote likewiſe, Diſquiſitionum Magicarum Tom. III. Vindiciæ Areopageticæ, &c. There was another John Delrio, Dean and Grand Vicar of Antwerp, who publiſh'd Commentaries upon the 119*th Pſalm, and upon the* 7 penitential Pſalms, and died in 1624. *Miræus in Elog. Belg. DELTA, the Name of an Iſland in the Nile, below Grand Cairo in Egypt; ſo call'd becauſe it reſembles the Greek Delta in form. Herodotus mentions a Temple of the City Buſiris, in the middle of this Iſland, whence he would prove, that the Egyptians were the firſt who inſtituted Feſtivals.

DEMADES, an Athenian, who of a Mariner became an Orator, and by his Eloquence mitigated the Spirit of Philip of Macedon, after his Victory over the Athenians at Cheronea, in the 416th of Rome. At another time obſerving the ſaid Philip in his Royal Ornaments inſulting over the Priſoners which he took in the ſaid Battel, he ſaid to him, That he wonder'd that he to whom Fortune had given the Character of Agamemnon, ſhould make himſelf a Therſites. Plutarch ſays of this Demades, That he lov'd Money and good Cheer, and that Antipater uſed to brag, That he had two Friends at Athens, Phocion and Demades; and, that he could never perſwade the former to receive any of his Preſents, nor had never enough to ſatisfie the Deſires of the latter. And Demades having ſpent his Subſtance in Riot and Luxury, he compar'd him to the Sacrifices, of which nothing remain'd but the Tongue and the Paunch. Some ſay, That the ſame Antipater or his Son Caſſander took away Demades's Life for treaſonable Correſpondence in the 432d of Rome. Diodor. Sicul. Cicero. There was another of this Name, if not the ſame, who took pleaſure to ſhew his Riches in Expences altogether uſeleſs; for, the Athenians having by Law forbid to admit any Stranger to act in publick Plays or Shews, under Penalty of 1000 Drachma's, which is above 50 Crowns.; He gave Plays to the Publick, wherein he introduced above 100 Strangers at a time, and paid the Penalty for each. Pontanus cap. 3. De Magnificentia.

DEMARATUS, Son of Ariſto King of Sparta, who ſucceeded him in the Kingdom, but by the Frauds of Cleomenes King of the other Family, who corrupted the Oracle of Delphos to give a falſe Anſwer, the Lacedæmonians, being made to believe that he was not Ariſto's Son, chaſed him from his Throne; whereupon he retired into Aſia, was kindly received, and honourably entertain'd by Darius. But yet underſtanding that he intended to make War upon the Lacedæmonians, thinking that he owed more to his ungrateful Country than Benefactor; he gave them notice of it by Writing on Tables, and covering it over with Wax. Herodotus ſays, He was the moſt illuſtrious of the Lacedæmonian Princes, for his Counſels and Actions, and winning the Prize at the Olympick Games, with a Chariot and 4 Horſes, the like never having before happened to any of the Spartan Kings. Herodot. lib. 6. Juſtin. There was another of this Name, a Native of Corinth, about the 96th Year of Rome, who leaving it becauſe of the Tyranny of Cypſelus, went into Tuſcany, where becoming very rich, his Son, called Tarquinius Priſcus, was afterwards made King of the Romans. Dionyſ. Halicarnaſ.

DEMETRIUS, Patriarch of Alexandria, Succeſſor to Julian, An. 190. he reprehended Origen for emaſculating himſelf, and blamed the Prelates of Paleſtine, who had ordain'd him Prieſt. He afterwards cenſured Origen's Works becauſe of his Errors, and Excommunicated him himſelf. He died An. 234. Euſeb. Baron.

DEMETRIUS, the firſt of that Name, King of Macedonia, ſirnam'd Poliorcetes, that is to ſay, the Beſieger of Towns, was Son to Antigonus the General, and one of Alexander's Succeſſors. His Life is chequer'd with various Adventures; An. 442. of Rome he loſt the firſt Battel againſt Ptolemy, near the City of Gaza; at which being nothing daunted, he purſued his Conqueror, defeated his Lieutenant, and forced Ptolemy himſelf to raiſe the Siege from before Halicarnaſſus. After this, his Father and he reſolving to give ſome Greek Cities their Liberty, he ſeized the Pyræum, raſed Munichium, chaſed Demetrius Phalereus from Athens, and entred into an Alliance with the Inhabitants, An. 447 of Rome, whence they called him Σώτηρ, Saviour, and the Day of his Entrance Σωτήριος, the Day of Preſervation. Afterwards being recalled by his Father, he defeated Menelaus, Ptolemy's General, in Cyprus, took Salamina, and many other Towns, and defeated Ptolemy, coming to the Relief of Paphos. He beſieged Rhodes, An. 449 of Rome; wherein he was not ſo happy, but quitted it by Compoſition. He granted at laſt Liberty to ſome Towns of Greece, took Corinth and Sicyone, transferring the latter to another place; and under pretext of relieving the Oppreſſed, ſeized part of Peloponneſus, An. 451. At laſt, being declared Generaliſſimo of the Greeks, he ſtain'd his former Honour by Pride, Sacrilege, and Avarice, and would notwithſtanding be initiated in the Myſteries of Ceres, and worſhipped at Eleuſina. A Year after he left Greece, his Father was kill'd, and he himſelf defeated at the bloody Battel of Ipſus in Phrygia, whence he fled to Epheſus, and thence to Greece, where the Athenians denied him Entrance: He beſieged and carried the Town two Years after, but uſed his Victory with Moderation. An. Mundi 3760. he cauſed himſelf to be declar'd King of Macedonia, which he enjoyed till the People ſeeing the Kings, Ptolemy Son of Lagus, Lyſimachus and Pyrrhus, in Arms againſt them, they chaſed away Demetrius; who having experienced the Ingratitude of the Athenians, and knowing the other Grecians bore him no great good will, he fled to his Father-in-law Seleucus, King of Syria, who kept him under a kind of Cuſtody for three Years; but he fared ſo ſumptuouſly, that he killed himſelf by Intemperance and Incontinence. He was reckon'd the handſomeſt Prince of his Age, and compared by Plutarch to Mark Antony. Plut. in Vita ejus. Diodor. Juſtin.

DEMETRIUS II. Son of Antigonus, ſirnam'd Gonatas, from the place of his Nativity in Theſſaly, he ſucceeded his Father An. Rom. 512, and being yet but a Youth, having gathered an Army, he expell'd Alexander the Son of Pyrrhus from Macedonia, which he had ſeized during the Abſence of his Father Antigonus, and beat him alſo out of Epirus. He died after 12 Years Reign, leaving his Son Philip very young to ſucceed. Juſtin, Euſebius.

DEMETRIUS, Son of Philip, and Grandſon to Demetrius II. was ſent by his Father to Rome as a Hoſtage, and by his good Temper gain'd himſelf a conſiderable Intereſt in the Town. Afterwards his Father being accus'd in the Senate, he brought him off by his modeſt Behaviour. At his Return into Macedon, his Probity and obliging Conduct made him extreamly popular; which provok'd the jealous Temper of his Brother Perſeus to that degree, that he ſuborn'd Witneſſes to delate him to his Father Philip: and the ſuſpicious old Prince giving way to the Belief of theſe Calumnies, poiſon'd his Son, in the Year of Rome 574. But afterwards underſtanding his Innocence by the Misbehaviour of Perſeus, he died with Grief for the unnatural Murder he had committed, and diſinherited Perſeus who put him upon't. Liv. l. 10. Polyb. in Frag. Juſtin. l. 32.

DEMETRIUS I. Soter, King of Syria, Son to Seleucus Philopater, by whom he was given to the Romans as an Hoſtage, in which time, his Father being dead, his Brother Antiochus Epiphanes, and then his Son Antiochus Eupater, uſurped the Crown; which he endured patiently ſome time, but after the Death of his Uncle Epiphanes, being about 25 Years of Age, on a pretence of Hunting, he eſcaped from Rome, An. Mundi 3983, and poſſeſſing himſelf of his Kingdom, cut off Eupater and Lyſias, who govern'd under him. Being perſwaded by Alcimus, who purchaſed the High-Prieſthood of the Jews from Eupater with a great Sum, he ſent Nicanor and Bacchides into Judæa with a great Army; who having waſted the Country, did grievouſly afflict the People, Judas Maccabæus being kill'd in a Battel againſt Bacchides. Demetrius became afterwards hateful to his Neighbours, and was overcome in Battel by Alexander Bala, who gave himſelf out for Epiphanes's Son, in the 11th Year of his Reign, 1 Macc. 7. 9, 10. c. 14, 15. Joſeph. Antiq.

DEMETRIUS (Nicanor) II. ſucceeded his Father Soter, by the Aſſiſtance of Ptolemy Philometer, who having expelled his Son-in-law Alexander, gave his Daughter Cleopatra to Demetrius, tho' formerly married to Alexander. A little after, Diodorus, ſirnam'd Tryphon, recovered Syria in the Name of a Son of Alexander Bala's, and next Year cut off that Unfortunate Prince call'd Antiochus VI. Demetrius, that he might be the better able to reſiſt Tryphon, made a League with the Jews, and afterwards going into Perſia, was made Captive, and carried to Phraates King of the Parthians, who cauſed him to marry his Daughter Rhodoguna. Whereupon Cleopatra, his firſt Wife, gave her ſelf out of Revenge to Sidetes, call'd Antiochus VII. Brother to Demetrius; after whoſe Death Demetrius returning, enjoyed the Throne again for 4 Years: But his Pride rendring him intolerable to his Subjects, they deſired of Ptolemy, ſirnam'd Phyſcon, King of Egypt, that he would give them one of Seleucus's Family to govern them; whereupon he ſent them Alexander called Zebina, whom they receiv'd for King, and conſtrain'd Demetrius to fly, who in his Flight was killed, not without Cleopatra's Concurrence, ſays Appian, to revenge her ſelf for his marrying Rhodoguna. This happened An. Mundi 3929. An. Rom. 629. 1 Macc. c. 14. Joſeph. lib. 13. Des Antiq.

DEMETRIUS III. ſirnam'd Eucerus, the 4th Son of Antiochus Gryphus, having imitated his Brother Philip, who ſeized part of Syria, and by Ptolemy Lathurus's Perſwaſion, march'd from Gnidus in the Neighbourhood of Rhodes, An. Mund. 3963, ſeized Damaſcus, and made a League with the Jews. He afterwards overcame his Brother at Beræa, and finally being taken by the Parthians, he was carried Priſoner to Mithridates, Brother and Succeſſor to Phraates, where he died An. Mundi 3968. Joſeph. Torniel, Salian.

DEMETRIUS I. Great Duke of Muſcovy, ſucceeded to George I. about An. 1230; he had another George for his Succeſſor, who was kill'd An. 1237. Demetrius, 2d Son of John, gain'd a famous Victory over the Tartars, and left his Son Baſilius, who liv'd An. 1400. Muſcovy was ſtrangely perplex'd in the Beginning of this Age, on the Account of one Demetrius. John Baſilius dying An. 1584, left Theodore, who died An. 1598: and Boris Hodrin, his Siſter's Son, was Great Duke after him: During whoſe Reign, one Demetrius whom ſome call Brother to Theodorus, and others a Monk called Griskam or Gregory Strepius, who took this Name, had the Reſolution to claim the Place of his pretended Anceſtors. And Boris being dead, An. 1605, this counterfeit Demetrius made himſelf Maſter of Muſcovy, but was the Year after murder'd by the Muſcovites: as appears at large in the next Article. Spond. Annal.

DEMETRIUS GRISKA UTROPOJA, a Muſcovite Monk, deſcended of a Noble Family in Gereſlau, was very handſome and witty. Having left his Convent, he went to Lithuania, where he put himſelf into the Service of a great Lord called Adam Weſnewetski; who being one Day angry with him, treated him harſhly. Griska laying hold on the occaſion, fell a weeping, and told his Maſter, That if he knew his Quality, he would not deal ſo by him; which awakening his Maſter's Curioſity, he preſſed him to declare who he was. The Impoſtor anſwer'd, That he was the legitimate Son of the Great Duke of Muſcovy, John Baſilovitz, whom Boris Goudenou thought to have caus'd to have been murder'd; but the Miſfortune fell upon another who reſembled him, his Friends having ſubſtituted him in his room, while they found means for his Eſcape. At the ſame time, he ſhewed his Maſter a Golden Croſs ſet with precious Stones, which he pretended was hung about his Neck at Baptiſm; adding, That the fear of falling into Boris's hands, had hinder'd him hitherto from diſcovering himſelf: And having finiſhed this Diſcourſe, threw himſelf at his Lord's Feet, demanding his Protection, and recounted to him ſo many feigned Circumſtances, that he believ'd him, and put him in Equipage anſwerable to his ſuppoſed Quality. The News of this coming abroad, the Grand Duke Boris offered a great Reward to any who ſhould bring him the Counterfeit Demetrius, dead or alive. This Lord thereupon thinking him not ſafe with him, ſent him to the Vaivode of Sandomir in Poland, who promiſed him a ſufficient Force to re-inthrone him, on Condition that he would ſuffer the Exerciſe of the Romiſh Religion in Muſcovy. Which he not only agreed to, but cauſed himſelf to be inſtructed in the ſaid Religion, and promiſed to marry the Vaivode's Daughter as ſoon as he had gain'd his Dominions. The ſaid Vaivode being elevated with hopes of this, raiſed a powerful Army, entred Muſcovy, and declared War againſt Duke Boris. He forthwith took many Towns, and moſt of Boris's Officers join'd him, who thereupon died for Grief, An. 1605. The Knez and Bojars did forthwith acknowledge Prince Theodore Boris, his Son, for their Sovereign, being yet very young. But perceiving the Succeſs of the Counterfeit Demetrius, they reſolved to give him the Crown, which they believed his due. The People being therewith pleaſed, did forthwith make the young Grand Duke and his Mother Priſoners in the Caſtle; and in the mean time, Demetrius was ſent to, and requeſted to take the Crown. Upon which, the Impoſtor ſent a Secretary to ſtrangle the Young Prince and his Mother, and to give out that they were Poiſon'd; which was accordingly Executed June 10. 1605. On the 16th Demetrius arrived at Moſcow with his Army, which encreaſed wonderfully by the way. He was received with extraordinary Joy, and on the 21ſt of July was Crown'd with abundance of Ceremony. And that there might be no doubt of his Birth, he ſought out the Mother of the true Demetrius, whom Duke Boris had immured in a Cloiſter remote from Moſcow, demean'd himſelf with great reſpect toward her, and aſſign'd her an Apartment in the Caſtle, and treated her with great Magnificence. This good Princeſs knew well enough that her Son Demetrius was really kill'd; but ſhe diſſembled the ſame very handſomely, for fear of ill Treatment from the Impoſtor, being alſo well pleaſed to ſee Boris ſo puniſh'd for his Perfidy, and to enjoy a more comfortable Life than ſhe had done in the Cloiſter. In the mean time, the Muſcovites examin'd the Actions of this new Prince, and perceiving that he eſteem'd the Poles more than the Muſcovites, kept foreign Guards, and deſign'd to marry the Vaivode of Sandomir's Daughter, who was of the Latin Church, they begun to ſuſpect him. One of the principal Knez, called Baſili Zuski, conferring on this Head with other Lords, they deſigned to cut off the Impoſtor. But the Conſpiracy was diſcovered, and Zuski condemned to Death; who, nevertheleſs, was Pardon'd as going to Execution, the Duke thinking thereby to gain the Affection of the Muſcovites: which kept all in Peace till his Marriage-Day, which was the 8th of May 1606. When the Poliſh Princeſs being arrived with a great number of armed Poles, the Muſcovites began to open their eyes again: whereupon Zuski aſſembling many Knez and Bojars, engaged them to rid themſelves of the Impoſtor. On the 9th day of the Nuptial Ceremonies, being the 17th of May, they found a fit opportunity: the Grand Duke and thoſe of his Company being drunk and aſleep, the Muſcovites rung the Alarm with all the Bells in the Town at Midnight; and having taken Arms, did forthwith cut off the Poliſh Guards, and forcing open the Doors, entred the Duke's Chamber, who endeavoured to leap out at a Window, amongſt the Guards, who were yet in Arms, but he was taken: and Zuski forthwith addreſſing himſelf to his pretended Mother, demanded her Oath upon the Croſs, whether he were really her Son? Upon her anſwering No, and that he was unfortunately murder'd by Order of Boris Goudenou, they ſhot the Impoſtor in the Head with a Piſtol: his Body was ſtript quite naked, and dragg'd out before the Caſtle, where it lay 3 Days expoſed to the Inſults of the Rabble. Afterwards he was buried, but the Mobb forthwith digg'd him up, and burnt him to Aſhes. The Grand Dutcheſs, his Widow, with her Father and Brother, and the Poliſh Embaſſador, were put in Priſon. Outrages were committed upon the Ladies, and about 1700 Men kill'd in the Tumult. Zuski, the Captain of the Enterprize, was afterwards choſen Grand Duke, and Crowned June 1. 1606. (Olearius's Voyage of Muſcovy.) Griska's Widow, to obtain better Treatment, declar'd that ſhe was with Child, and found means to ſave the Life of her Son as ſoon as born; having agreed with a Coſſack, whoſe Wife was to lie-in about the ſame time, who brought his Infant ſecretly, and carried away hers. The young Prince was baptized by a Grecian Prieſt, who imprinted on his Shoulders, with Aquafortis prepared on purpoſe, Characters in form of a Croſs, ſignifying that he was of Royal Birth. After which, Demetrius (for ſo he was call'd) being carry'd by the Coſſack into his own Country, was bred up with very great Care, a vaſt Sum being given for his Education. A little after, his Mother died, as ſhe was about to return to Poland, having imparted before-hand to ſome of her Friends how ſhe had ſav'd her Son: but the Coſſack died, without being able to diſcover what he had done with the young Prince. But, as Fortune would have it, young Demetrius, An. 1632. going to bathe himſelf at a little Town of Black Ruſſia, call'd Samburg, 12 Miles from Lovenburg, and the Marks being perceiv'd on his Back, John Nicolas Damelonski, Treaſurer of the Kingdom, having notice thereof, ſent for him, and viewing his Characters, cauſed a Ruſſian Prieſt who underſtood the Language to decypher them, and found that they imported, Demetrius Son of Tzaar (that is, Emperor) Demetrius. Whereupon there were great Expreſſions of Joy, and the Treaſurer equipp'd him like a Prince, ſending notice at the ſame time to Uladiſlaus the 4th King of Poland. He order'd the Prince to be brought to his Court, and furniſh'd him with a ſplendid Equipage. He was then about 26 Years of Age, and his majeſtick Mien procur'd a great reſpect for his Perſon. The Nephew of the Great Cham of Tartary being in Diſgrace with his Uncle, was at the ſame time in that Court; ſo that the two young Princes contracted a great Familiarity. This News being ſent to Moſcow, the Great Duke Alexis Michaelovitz ſent an Embaſſador to Poland, to demand Demetrius: which was refuſed. After the Death of Uladiſlaus, Anno 1648, the face of Affairs were changed; for John Caſimir, his Succeſſor, found himſelf oblig'd to make uſe of the Great Duke of Muſcovy's Friendſhip: which obliged Demetrius to retire to Revel in Livonia, a little Republick under the Protection of the Swede; and from thence to Riga, whence he went to Sweden: but thinking himſelf not ſecure enough there, he went to the Duke of Holſtein's Court, where he was forthwith very well received. But quickly after there happen'd a fatal Conjuncture, which ruin'd this poor Prince. The Duke having ſent two Embaſſadors to Muſcovy; one of them, named Burchman, had borrowed, in the Name of the Duke 100000, ſome ſay 300000 Crowns from the Duke of Muſcovy; whereupon a Muſcovian Factor being then at Lubeck, offer'd to acquit the Duke of Holſtein from Payment of the ſaid Sum, if he would ſend Prince Demetrius to the Great Duke of Muſcovy, alledging that he was an Impoſtor. The Affair was concluded, and the Unfortunate Prince forced aboard a Veſſel, which carry'd him to Moſcow. Where as ſoon as he was arrived, they ſuborn'd and brib'd a poor Woman to declare her ſelf his Mother: Demetrius, his Mouth being gagg'd ſo that he could not ſpeak, turn'd away his Head, and lifted his Eyes up to Heaven. That ſame Day, being the laſt of December 1653, he was Beheaded, and his four Quarters ſet up before the Caſtle of Moſcow, his Trunk being expoſed to the Fury of the Dogs. D. Recoles les Impoſteurs inſignes.

DEMETRIUS PHALEREUS, a Peripatetick Philoſopher, in Alexander the Great's Time, Son of Phanoſtratus, and Theophraſtus's Diſciple, was almoſt Abſolute in Athens for 10 Years, where 360 Brazen Statues were erected in his Honour. Nevertheleſs, his Enemies conſpir'd his Death, about An. Rom. 436. and his Statues were pulled down. But to avoid their Fury, he retir'd into Egypt; where Ptolemy Lagus asking his Advice concerning his Children, Whether he ought to prefer thoſe he had by Euridice before Ptolemy Philadelphus his Son by Berenice? Demetrius adviſed him to leave his Crown to the firſt. Which diſpleaſed Philadelphus ſo much, that his Father being dead, he baniſh'd Demetrius, who was kill'd by an Aſp. Others are not of this Opinion. However, he compos'd more Works in Proſe and Verſe than any other Peripatetick of his Time. His Writings conſiſted of Poetry, Hiſtory, Politicks, Rhetorick, Harangues and Embaſſies. (Strabo, l. 9. Plin. l. 34. c. 6. Diogen. in ejus Vita, l. 5. Cicero in Brut. & l. 1. Offic.) Demetrius Phalereus is the ſame that gathered 200000 Volumes into Ptolemy Philadelphus's Library; and to make it compleat, this Prince cauſed the Bible to be tranſlated out of Hebrew into Greek, which is commonly call'd the Septuagint's Tranſlation. But how could he make ſuch a Collection, ſince he was baniſh'd by Ptolemy Philadelphus as ſoon as he came to the Crown? To reconcile this Hiſtorical Controverſie, we muſt ſay, that this famous Tranſlation was made when Ptolemy Philadelphus reign'd with his Father Ptolemy Lagus. So Clemens Alexandrinus and St. Irenæus rightly affirm, that it was done in Lagus's Reign: And Ariſtæus, Ariſtobulus, Joſephus, Philo, Tertullian, St. Epiphanius, St. Cyril, St. Auguſtin, Euſebius, and many other famous Authors juſtly ſay, that it was in Philadelphus's Reign; that is, 285 Years before Chriſt's time. Thus all the Objections may be anſwer'd. It is Petavius's Opinion. Joſephus, l. 12. ant. c. 2. St. Auguſtin. de Civ. l. 18. c. 42. Euſeb. Hiſt. l. 7. c. 26. Petavius's *Chron. & in Ep. DEMETRIUS, a Cynick Philoſopher, liv'd in the time of the Emperor Caligula, in the Year of our Lord 40: being very much eſteem'd in his Profeſſion, the Emperor Caligula had a mind to bring him to Court, and thought a Preſent would eaſily gain him. When Demetrius underſtood it, he laugh'd at the Fancy, and reply'd, That if the Emperor had a mind to tempt him, he ſhould not have offer'd leſs than the whole Empire. Afterwards Veſpaſian baniſh'd him from Rome. He's mention'd by Phavorinus: And Philoſtratus affirms, that he was one of Apollonius Tyanæus's Scholars. Tacitus at the latter end of his Annals reports, That when Thracia was condemn'd to die, he diſcours'd with Demetrius concerning the Nature of the Soul. Phavorinus in Orat. Philoſtrat. lib. 4. de Vit. Apol. Seneca de Beneficiis, l. 6. c. 8.

DEMETRIUS CHALCONDYLAS, a learned Greek of Conſtantinople, living in the 15th and 16th Centuries; who, after the taking of that City by the Turks, travell'd into Italy, and profeſs'd the Greek Language at Florence. He was much eſteem'd, and employ'd by Peter and Lawrence de Medicis, by Francis Sforza Duke of Milan, and by Lewis XII. of France. He wrote a Greek Grammar, Printed at Paris and Bazil. Paulus Jovius in Elog. cap. 29.

DEMOCLES, an ancient Greek Hiſtorian, lived long before the Peloponneſian War begun, in 431. before the Chriſtian Epoch. Plutarch, in Demetrius's Life, ſpeaks of a Young-man of that Name, who threw himſelf into a Fire, to avoid the unlawful Careſſes of Demetrius Poliorcetes.

DEMOCRITUS, a Philoſopher, call'd Abderites, becauſe he liv'd at Abdera. He was born at Miletum: His Father Treated Xerxes's Army, and this Prince took care of his Education. Being deſirous to acquire Knowledge, he went into Egypt, Perſia, Chaldæa, and even to the Indies; and afterwards retir'd to Abdera, where having publiſh'd his great Diacoſm, the beſt of his Books, he was acquitted from the rigour of the Law, by which he was to be left unburied, for ſpending his Eſtate in his Travels; and the Publick preſented him with 500 Talents, and erected ſome brazen Statues to his Honour. He was ſo modeſt, that he went through Athens incognito. To comfort Darius, who had loſt the deareſt of his Wives, he promis'd to bring her to Life again, provided he could procure him the Names of 3 Perſons free from Adverſity in this World, to be engrav'd on the Queen's Tomb. But no ſuch Name being to be found in Aſia, Democritus told the King, That he ought not to be ſo much concern'd, ſince none were free from Afflictions. This Philoſopher continually Laugh'd at the Weakneſs and Vanity of Men, as deſigning a thouſand ridiculous things, when he believ'd that all things depended on mere Chance, and a caſual Concourſe of Atoms. And the Inhabitants attributing his Laughing to Madneſs, ſent for Hippocrates to cure him: But this Phyſician having diſcours'd him, declar'd, that in his Opinion thoſe who fanſied themſelves moſt healthy were moſt diſtemper'd. Some ſay he made himſelf blind, to ſtudy Philoſophy the better. He died in the 104th Olympiad, An. Rom. 392, and An. Mund. 3693, being 109 Years of Age, ſaith Diogenes; 104, or 99, according to others. He believ'd that Atoms and a Vacuum were the Principles of all things; and that there were an infinite number of Worlds ſubject to Generation and Corruption:

ruption: That Nothing is made of Nothing, nor Nothing reſolv'd into Nothing: That Atoms are infinite in Number and Figure: That they conſtitute Fire, Water, Air and Earth: That they are not ſubject to Alteration, becauſe of their Hardneſs and Solidity: That the Sun and Moon are alſo formed by thoſe Motions, as well as the Soul it ſelf: That all things happen of Neceſſity; becauſe Motion turning about, cauſeth the Generation of things, &c. Diogenes and Traſyllus mention his Works of Morals, Phyſick, Aſtrology, Natural Philoſophy, Mathematicks, Husbandry, Geometry, Painting, and War. Diogenes in his Life, l. 9. Cicero de Fin. l. 5. Pliny, l. 21. c. 11. *Euſeb. DEMODICE, married to Cretheus King of Iolcos in Theſſaly, fell in Love with her Nephew Phryxus, Son to Athamas Brother of Cretheus; and being refus'd by him, accus'd him to her Husband, for making an Attempt upon her Honour. Cretheus believing this Calumny, deſign'd to diſpatch Phryxus, who was reſcued as related in his Article. And Cretheus underſtanding the Innocence of his Nephew, put his Wife Demodice to Death. Hyginus.

DEMON, or Demenetus, an Athenian, Demoſthenes's Siſter's Son, Govern'd the Republick of Athens in the Abſence of his Uncle. He ſollicited his Uncle's Cauſe ſtrongly, and got leave for a Ship to be ſent out to bring him home: He likewiſe procur'd a Diſcharge of 30 Talents, which Demoſthenes ow'd to the Commonwealth; and procur'd 30 more to ſet up a Statue for Jupiter, the Preſerver of his Uncle. Plut.

DEMOPHILUS, an Arian Biſhop of Beræa, who preſented the Confeſſion of Sirmium to Pope Liberius; who receiv'd it, as it is ſaid, in 357. He was afterwards condemn'd in the Council of Ariminum, in 359. Nevertheleſs, he was made Biſhop of Conſtantinople in 370, where he perſecuted Gregory of Nazianzen. The Emperor Theodoſius the Great having deſired Demophilus to embrace the Nicene Creed in 380, for the Peace of the Church, this Heretick refuſing to do it, was baniſh'd Conſtantinople, and died near the Town, in 386. (Theodoret, l. 5. c. 39. St. Epiphanius, &c. quoted by Baronius, A. C. 357, &c.) Concerning what is ſaid of Pope Liberius's Letters to the Biſhops of the Eaſt, wherein he approv'd Athanaſius's Condemnation, and received the Syrmich Confeſſion, we muſt obſerve, That St. Hilary of Poictiers's Fragments affirm, That this Prelate, out of Zeal, call'd Liberius Accurſed and Apoſtate. Nevertheleſs, Baronius thinks thoſe Letters are not his, but have been inſerted by ſome Copyiſt, in the Text of Liberius's Epiſtle to the Eaſtern Biſhops. Baronius, A. C. 357. *Perron. DEMOPHOON, Son of Theſeus, ſucceeded Mneſteus King of Athens, who died at the Iſle of Delos, at his Return from Troy. Euſeb. in Chron. Ovid. Epiſt. 2.

DEMOSTHENES, a famous Orator of Athens, born An. Rom. 373, was left Fatherleſs, being but ſeven Years old, and much neglected by his Guardians. He was Iſocrates's, Plato's, and Iſæus's Diſciple. Being 17 Years old, he pleaded againſt his Guardians, who were condemn'd to pay him 30 Talents; which he forgave. He recited his Speeches before a large Looking-glaſs, the better to govern his Geſtures (as it is reported.) He oppos'd Philip King of Macedonia as much as he could, and Alexander the Great after him. But Alexander dying, Antipater deſir'd the Athenians to ſend him the Orators that ſpoke againſt him. Which made Demoſthenes retire into the Iſland of Celauria; where he ſuck'd the Poiſon he kept on purpoſe in a Quill, for fear of being taken alive. Thus he died in the 114th Olympiad, An. Rom. 432. Plutarch. in his Life, &c.

DEMOSTHENES, General of the Athenians in Sicily, where he landed, after he had haraſs'd the Country of the Epidaurians. Some time before, in the 329th of Rome, he fortify'd the Town of Pylos in Peloponneſus, againſt the Lacedæmonians, and did his Country good Service: but the Sicilian War, in which he and Nycias beſieg'd Syracuſe, prov'd very unfortunate; for the Athenians were entirely cut off both by Sea and Land. The Enemies putting theſe two Generals to Death, and laying all the Athenians they could meet with in Irons. Others ſay, that Demoſthenes kill'd himſelf, and that Nicias cry'd Quarter. This happen'd in the Year of Rome 341, and the 91ſt Olympiad. Plutarch. in Vit. Nic. Diodor. lib. 13. Thucyd. lib. 4, 5, 6, 7. Juſtin. lib. 4.

DEMPSTER (Thomas) a Scottiſh Gentleman, liv'd to the Beginning of the 17th Century, and was much eſteem'd for his Learning, being a Lawyer, Hiſtorian, Poet, and Orator. His Works are, 4 Books of Epiſtles, 14 Books of Poetry, a Scotch Hiſtory in 35 Books, Notes upon ſeveral Latin Poets, Treatiſes of Law, Coſmography, Mythology, Hiſtory, &c. *Miræus de Script. DENBIGH, Lat. Denbiga, the chief Place of Denbighſhire, and reckon'd the beſt in North-Wales, is ſeated on the North-ſide of a ſmall River call'd Iſtrad; which, about 3 Miles lower, mixes its Waters with the Cluyd, the faireſt River of all this County. After King Edward I. had compleated the Conqueſt of Wales, Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, got Denbigh to himſelf by the King's Grant; which he wall'd about, and fortified with a Caſtle on the South-ſide, ſet out with many high Towers: only he left the Work unfiniſh'd, upon the Misfortune that happen'd to his only Son, who was drown'd in the Well thereof: but it became not the Head of the County till the Reign of Henry VIII, when the 5 new Shires were added to the reſt of Wales, of which this was one. Before, it was only the chief Town of the Barony of Denbigh, which had more Gentlemen holding thereof in Fee, and by Service, than any other. Anno 1564 it gave the Title of Baron, or Peer of this Realm, to Robert Dudley, created Baron of Denbigh, and Earl of Leiceſter, by Queen Elizabeth; but the Title died with him. In 1622 William Viſcount Fielding was by King James I. created Earl of Denbigh, now devolv'd upon his Grandchild, the Right Honourable William Fielding, the preſent Earl of Denbigh.

DENBIGHSHIRE, Lat. Denbigenſis Comitatus, is a Maritime County of North-Wales; ſo call'd from Denbigh, the chief Place thereof; bounded Northward with the Iriſh Sea; Southward with Merioneth and Montgomery Shires; Eaſtward with Flintſhire, Cheſhire, and Shropſhire; and Weſtward with Carnarvanſhire: from which 'tis parted by the River Conway. In Length, from Eaſt to Weſt, about 30 Miles; in Breadth, from North to South, 18. The whole divided into 12 Hundreds, wherein are 57 Pariſhes and 4 Market-Towns, anciently inhabited by the Ordovices, and now in the Dioceſe of St. Aſaph. Here the Air is wholſome, but bleak; the Soil very hilly and barren, eſpecially in the Weſtern Parts, where the Husbandman may be ſaid to fetch his Bread out of the Fire; for to make it bear Corn, he is fain to pare off with a Spade the upper Coat of the Earth; and having piled it up in heaps, to burn it into Aſhes, which being thrown on the barren Ground, makes it yield plenty of Rye, by the Natives call'd Amelcorn: But the Eaſt Parts lying betwixt the Allen and Dee, and leſs incumber'd with Hills, are conſiderably better. In general, the Hills of this County feed great numbers of Goats, together with ſome Cows and Sheep, The Valleys in moſt places, but eſpecially Eaſtward, yield ſufficient plenty of Corn; and there is one almoſt in the midſt of the Shire, reaching 17 Miles in length from North to South, and about 5 in breadth, wonderful pleaſant and fruitful. Camden ſays, Thoſe that live in it are very healthful. This Valley is ſhut up with high Hills on every ſide, among which Mallenly, the higheſt of all, is ſaid to have on the top a Warlike Fence, and a little Fountain of clear Water. In the Pariſh of Llanſaiman, on the ſide of a ſtony Hill, there is, ſaith Speed, a round place cut out of a main Rock by Man's hand, with 24 Seats in it, ſome larger, ſome leſſer; which, by the Vulgar, is call'd Arthur's Round Table. On the Weſt ſide of the River Dee, bordering upon Cheſhire, ſtands a famous Caſtle, call'd Holts-Caſtle. The Market-Towns are, Denbigh the County-Town, Llanruſt, Ruthin, and Wreſcham; but Denbigh is the only Place privileged to ſend Members to Parliament.

DENIN, a famous Abbey of Nuns in the Low-Countries, between Valenciennes and Doway, founded by St. Aldebert, Earl of Oſtrevan; and his Wife, King Pepin's Niece. They gave all their Eſtate to their ten Daughters, who were the firſt Canoneſſes of that Abbey, and all Canoniz'd. The Sovereignty of the Earldom of Oſtrevan coming afterwards to the King of France, as Earl of Hainault, the Canoneſſes keep only the Title of Counteſſes of Oſtrevan. The Chapter is compos'd of 18 Ladies Canoneſſes, who are to prove that they are nobly deſcended by a Right to 8 Coats of Arms in their Pedigree. Their Habit is White, with a Surplice of fine Linen Cloth, and a great Cloak lin'd with white Ermine; but that of the Abbeſs is ſpotted. None of them make a Vow; and when they have a mind to marry, they only return the Chapter Thanks for the Honour done unto them. Memoirs du Tems.

DENYS, or Dionyſius, a Grecian, was made Pope in 260, or 261. He wrote againſt Sabellius and Samoſatenus, and dy'd in 270, 271, or 272. Baron. Annal. S. Athanaſ. contra Arrian, &c.

DENYS, or Dionyſius, Patriarch of Alexandria in 248, ſo zealous in maintaining the Orthodox Religion, that he ſpared not Origen his own Maſter. During Gallienus's Perſecution, he was baniſh'd into Libya; and being return'd from thence, he wrote againſt Sabellius: But maintaining the Diſtinction between the Divine Perſons, he ſeem'd to diſtinguiſh the Subſtance alſo; therefore he was accus'd before Pope Denys, who call'd a Synod about it. St. Baſil ſaith, That he laid the Foundation of Arius's Hereſie in one of his Epiſtles, tho' not maliciouſly. He wrote againſt the Millennarians and Paulus Samoſatenus, and oppos'd Nepos who maintain'd 'em, ſaying, That tho' he had a great Value for his Merit and Perſon, yet he honour'd Truth more. He was invited about the ſame time, viz. in 263, to the Synod of Antioch, aſſembled againſt Paul of Samoſata. Beſides his Epiſtles to this Paulus Samoſatenus and Baſilides, which are in the Bibliotheca Patrum, he wrote of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, and ſome Collections of Canon Law, and died in 265. He is different from Denys of Alexandria, who Commented on Denys the Areopagite's Book. Euſeb. lib. 7. Hiſt. S. Athanaſius, S. Baſil, S. Hierom, Valeſius Annot. in Hiſt. Euſeb. p. 155. edit. Rom. Bellarmine, Baronius A. C. 248, 260, &c.

DENYS, or Dionyſius the Areopagite; that is, one of the Judges of Areopagus, near Athens; being at Heliopolis with Apollophanes the Day that Jeſus Chriſt died, he obſerv'd the Eclipſe at that time; which help'd his Converſion afterwards, when he heard the Hiſtory from St. Paul. It is alſo reported, That this Apoſtle made him Biſhop of Athens; that he viſited St. John at Epheſus, and thence went to Rome: whence Pope Clement ſent him to the Gauls, where he preach'd the Goſpel, and was the firſt Biſhop of Paris; but the Chriſtians being perſecuted, and his Head being cut off (ſays the Legend) he walked a little while, carrying it in his Hands. Obſerve, That this Opinion is not generally receiv'd; many learned Men ſaying, that Denys the Areopagite is taken for Denys of Paris. And indeed, the ancient Martyrologies of Paris did mention one on the 3d of October, and the other the 9th of the ſame Month; which is the Day kept now in the Areopagites Honour. Gregory of Tours puts Denys of Paris's Miſſion in the firſt Year of Decius's Reign: others put it in Diocleſian's and Maximian's Reign. Hilduin, Abbot of St. Denys, is the firſt that has brought confuſedly the two Denys's into one, in the Life of Denys of Paris, which he compos'd by Lewis the Debonnaire's Order. This Queſtion has been debated enough in this Century by many learned Roman Catholicks, as Du Sauſſay, le P. Germain after Baronius and Sponde, le P. Sirmond, John de Launy, Nicolas Fabri, le Mire, Petau, Loiſel, du Cheſne, le P. l'Abbe, &c. Read their Works. As for St. Denys's Works, we have them in Greek and Latin, in 2 Vol. Printed at Antwerp, 1634. It is certain, that no famous Author mentions theſe Works before the Year 532. They were alledged firſt by the Severianiſts; and afterwards by Gregory the Great, Martin I. Sophronius, St. Maxim, &c. who attribute them to St. Denys the Areopagite. Many Authors think they were only compos'd about the end of the 4th Century, or at leaſt ſome time before Eutyches's Condemnation in the Council of Chalcedon, in 451. Greg. Tur. l. 1. c. 72. Hiſt. Photius Cod. 1. le P. Morin, &c.

DENYS, or Dionyſius, the firſt of that Name, a Tyrant of Syracuſa, Hermocrates's Son, was, at firſt, a Captain againſt the Carthaginians; and charging the other Captains with Treachery, he made himſelf Abſolute, An. Rom. 349, maintain'd a War againſt the Carthaginians, and at laſt turn'd them out of Sicily. The Sicilians, weary of his Government, endeavour'd to be rid of him: but their Deſign miſcarrying, their Slavery encreaſed. He pretended to be a Wit and a Poet, but was mock'd and ridicul'd for it by the Grecians; which made him more cruel to his Subjects. He plunder'd many Temples, and took away a Cloak of Gold Tiſſue from Jupiter's Statue, ſaying, That it was too Hot in Summer, and too Cold in Winter, and put a Woollen one inſtead of it. Another time, he pluck'd off Æſculapius's Golden Beard, becauſe his Father Apollo had none. So many cruel Actions and Sacrileges made him ſo odious, that he ſuſpected every Body, and built an Houſe under the Ground, where none was to enter, not his own Wife and Son, without being firſt ſtript naked, to ſhew that they had no Arms with them. After a Reign of 38 Years, he died, An. Rom. 386, in the 103d Olympiad, in a violent manner (as ſome ſay.) Suidas and others attribute unto him ſome Comedies, an Hiſtory, and other Treatiſes in Verſe. Diodor. Sic. l. 13, &c. Plutarch in his Life. Euſeb. in Chron. Suidas, &c.

DENYS, Dionyſius II. call'd the Younger, Tyrant of Syracuſe, ſucceeded his Father in 386, with the help of the Army, having promis'd to govern mildly; but as ſoon as he was ſettl'd, he kill'd his Brethren, and forc'd his Subjects, by his Cruelties, to turn him out: ſo he retir'd to Locri, in Italy, where he was kindly receiv'd; but continuing his Cruelties, and debauching the Locrian's Wives, he was expell'd ſhamefully. Then he return'd to Syracuſa, and was reſtor'd to the Throne 10 Years after his Abdication; and beginning his former Life, he was expell'd again, An. Rom. 411, and forc'd to retire to Corinth, where his low Condition oblig'd him to keep a School. Diodor. Sic. lib. 16. Juſtin, lib. 21.

DENYS, or Dionyſius, King of Portugal, ſucceeded his Father Alphonſus III. in 1279, being in prejudice of the Right of his Brother Robert, Earl of Bologne, from whom deſcended Catherine de Medicis, alſo Counteſs of Bologne, who had Right to the Kingdom of Portugal, after Sebaſtian's and Henry's Death. Denys built or eſtabliſh'd 44 Towns in Portugal, founded the Military Order of Jeſus Chriſt, and having reign'd 46 Years, died in 1325, the happieſt Prince of his time. Mariana, l. 14. & 15. *Duard. DENYS, or Dionyſius of Halicarnaſſus, an Hiſtorian, living in the Ptolemy's Epiphanes, and Philometor's Reigns, mentioned by Polybius, l. 14. Suidas ſpeaks of another, of the ſame Name and Town, related to the Author of the Roman Antiquities, living in Adrian's Reign, and ſirnam'd the Muſician. Monſieur La Mothe le Vayer thinks that this laſt is not different from Denys the Athenian who liv'd in Adrian's Reign, and compos'd a Lexicon of the Attick Expreſſions. Strabo, lib. 13. mentions another Denys, a Sophiſter, Hiſtorian, and Author of many Orations. Voſſius ſaith, that he was born at Pergamum, Apollodorus's Diſciple, and ſirnam'd the Attick. Voſſius Hiſt. Græc. l. 2. c. 3.

DENYS, or Dionyſius, Biſhop of Corinth, one of the moſt conſiderable Perſons of his time for Learning, Piety, and Elocution. He flouriſh'd about the Year 170, and not only govern'd his own Dioceſe, but took care of almoſt the whole Catholick Church, by writing Letters into foreign Parts. The Greek Menæon reports him a Martyr, and that he was beheaded with a Sword upon the 29th of November, probably in the Year 178. There are none of his Epiſtles extant, but a Catalogue of 'em is preſerv'd by Euſebius; they were written to the Lacedæmonians, Athenians, Amaſtrians in Pontus, Gnoſſians in Crete, and to the Romans. *Martyrol. DENYS, or Dionyſius, Biſhop of Milan, liv'd in the 4th Century. He was a very zealous and orthodox Prelate; but good-natur'd, and ſomewhat credulous: His eaſineſs of Belief made him ſign the Condemnation of St. Athanaſius at the Council of Milan, not imagining that Compliance of ſuch ill Conſequence to the Catholick Faith. Euſebius Vercellenſis perceiving him very ſorry for what he had done, projected an Expedient to bring him off, and raze his Subſcription: for this Euſebius, being preſs'd by the Arians to ſign the ſame Inſtrument, pretended he was willing to give them Satisfaction, but could not conſent to ſet his Hand after Dionyſius, being his Senior. The Arians being extremely deſirous of Euſebius's Authority in condemning Athanaſius, ſtruck out Dionyſius's Name to make him room: and when they had done that, Euſebius deſir'd to be excus'd, and told 'em, he could by no means ſign a Sentence againſt an innocent Perſon. The Emperor Conſtantius baniſh'd this Dionyſius, who died in Exile, in the Defence of the Nicene Faith. S. Ambr. Ep. 82. ad Vercell. Athanaſ. ad Solit. Ruffin. l. 1. c. 20. *Sulpic. DENYS, or Dionyſius Exiguus, a Scythian by Birth, and a Monk by Profeſſion, was an Acquaintance of Caſſiodorus, who gives him a great Character for his Learning and Piety, in his Book de Divinis Lectionibus. He was call'd Exiguus upon the account of the Littleneſs of his Stature, and died about the Year 556. His Works are, Collectio ſive Codex Canonum Eccleſiaſticorum Tranſlated into Latin, conſiſting of the firſt fifty Apoſtolical Canons, and the Canons of the Councils of Nice, Conſtantinople, Chalcedon, Sardica, and ſome others held in Africk. Collectio Decretorum Pontificum Romanorum à Siricio ad Anaſtaſium II. *Epiſtola Synodica S. In this Cycle, Dionyſius computes from the Incarnation of Chriſt, without mentioning Olympiads, Conſulates, or any other Æra, and was the firſt who began this Method of Chronology. Caſſiodor. *Bede Hiſt. DENYS, or Dionyſius of Halicarnaſſus, Author of the Roman Antiquities, liv'd in the time of Auguſtus Cæſar, as appears both from the beginning of his Hiſtory, and likewiſe from the 14th Book of Strabo's Geography. After Auguſtus had defeated Mark Anthony at Actium, and put an End to the Civil Wars, this Hiſtorian came to Rome, where he liv'd, as he relates himſelf, 22 Years, to make himſelf Maſter of the Latin Tongue, and to get furniſh'd with Materials for his Deſign. He wrote 20 Books of the Roman Antiquities, of which we have but the firſt 11 remaining. Photius aſſures us, that he had read over all the 20, and likewiſe an Epitome in 5 Books, written by the Author. Dionyſius's Chronology is very exact, and much valued. *Photius Bibl. DENYS I. Biſhop of Paris. It's ſaid, he came into Gallia under the Reign of Decius; that he was Biſhop of Paris, and ſuffer'd Martyrdom there, having his Head cut off. 'Tis to this Biſhop, and not to the Areopagite, that the Story belongs, of his Walking with his Head in his Hand, related by ſome over-credulous Writers of the middle Ages. *Gregor. DEO-GRATIAS, Biſhop of Carthage, choſen to that See at the Inſtance of the Emperor Valentinian, about the Year 452. This Prince regretting the Vacancy of the See, which had been unprovided 13 Years, the Vandals having baniſh'd the Prelates, got leave of their King Genſericus that Deo-Gratias might be choſen. This Biſhop, after the Sacking of Rome by the ſame Genſericus, ſold the Church-Plate to redeem the Roman Captives; and wanting room to entertain 'em all in, he made uſe of 2 Churches to lodge thoſe that were ſick in, and took particular care of them himſelf. The Arians envying him the Reputation of his Generoſity and Charity, attempted to take away his Life; but God preſerving him from their Practices, he died a natural Death Anno 456, after three Years Government of that See. Victor Uticenſis l. 1. Perſec. Vandal. Baron. A. C. 452. &c.

DEPTFORD, a large Town in Kent, in Suton Lath, ſituate at the Fall of the River Ravensburn into the Thames, among rich and low Meadows, and provided with a Dock and Store-Houſe for the Navy Royal. It is divided into the Upper and Lower Town.

DERBENT, a Town and Caſtle in Georgia, belonging to the King of Perſia. It is the greateſt Paſſage from Perſia, and the Southern Provinces of Aſia, to Muſcovy, and other Northern Countries of Aſia and Europe. It contains the ſpace betwixt Mount Caucaſus and the Caſpian Sea. It is called Derbent, becauſe of its ſhape which is Long and Narrow. The Turks name it Demir, or Temir-Capi; that is, Iron-Gate: The Arabians, Bal-Al-Abuad, the Gate, or Gates: And the Latins Porta Caucaſiæ, and Pilæ Iberiæ. There is a convenient Port.

DERBICES, or Derbians, People of Perſia, on the Borders of Scythia, toward the Caſpian Sea, and about Mount Caucaſus, who acknowledged no other Divinity but the Earth, to which they ſacrificed no Female Creatures. They puniſh'd ſeverely the leaſt Crimes; and bending the higheſt Branches of two Trees, tied the Arms and Legs of Criminals to them, that being let out, they might tear them to pieces. They kill'd and Devour'd thoſe that were above 70, even their own Parents, but buried them that Died a Natural Death. Strabo. Salmaſius on Plin.

DERBY, Lat. Derventia, the Chief Place of Derbyſhire, is about 100 Miles North and by Weſt from London. It ſtands on the South Parts of the County, on the Weſt Banks of the River Derwent, where a ſmall River doth run into it. Over the Derwent, on the North-Eaſt of the Town, is a fine Bridge, built all of Free-ſtone, with a fair Chapel upon it, and both bearing the Name of St. Mary's. This Town among the reſt ſuffer'd much from the Danes, but was again repair'd by the Lady Ethelfled; ſo that it is to this Day a, Large, Populous and Rich Place, conſiſting of five Pariſhes, and inferiour to few In-land Towns. Among its Churches, that call'd All-hallows is the Principal, whoſe beautiful high Steeple was erected at the ſole Charge of Young Men and Maids, as appears by the Inſcriptions cut upon every Square of the Steeple. Here is alſo a fair Hall, built ſome Years ſince of Free-ſtone, at the County Charge, where the Aſſizes are conſtantly kept. The Title of Earl of Derby was firſt in the Houſe of Ferrars, next in that of Lancaſter, where it ended with Henry of Bullingbrook, upon his Acceſſion to the Crown of England by the Name of Henry IV. but in the Reign of Henry VII. it was reviv'd in the Perſon of Thomas Lord Stanley, and of Man, in whoſe Name it has continued ever ſince, the ſame being at this time enjoy'd by the Right Honourable William Stanley, the preſent Earl of Derby.

DERBYSHIRE, Lat. Comitatus Derbienſis, is an Inland County in the very middle of England, having Yorkſhire on the North, Leiceſter on the South, Nottinghamſhire on the Eaſt, Stafford and Cheſhire on the Weſt, from North to South 38 Miles; from Eaſt to Weſt about 28; by the River Derwent, which runs through the middle of it from North to South, into the Trent. It is naturally divided into 2 Parts, Eaſt and Weſt; but its common Diviſion is into 6 Hundreds, wherein are 106 Pariſhes, and 10 Market-Towns. In this County, among others, dwelt the Coritani, in the time of the Romans. In the Heptarchy, 'twas a Province of the Kingdom of Mercia, and now 'tis in the Dioceſs of Coventry and Lichfield. Here the Air is good and healthful, as in moſt In-land Counties; the Soil is rich, eſpecially in the South and Eaſt Parts: But in the North and Weſt 'tis Hilly, with a Black and Moſſie Ground; poor above, but rich under ground. For Fuel, inſtead of Wood, which the Iron-Works and Lead-Mines have waſted, this County is ſo plentiful of Coals, that, beſides what is us'd in it, the neighbouring Counties of Leiceſter, Northampton, Rutland, and Lincoln are ſupplied with this ſort of Fuel. For Building, it affords not only good Clay for Bricks, but alſo ſtore of Free-ſtone, or durable great Stone, and in many Parts Limeſtone: Here is alſo Alabaſter, Chryſtal, Black and Grey Marble, and ſuch as poliſhes well; beſides whole Quarries of Mill-ſtones and Whet-ſtones. But the chiefeſt Commodity of the Country is Lead, the beſt in England, not to ſay in Europe: Famous for this is the Peak of Derbyſhire, as well for its Quarries, but particularly for its three wonderful Caves. There are two Springs call'd Quardon-Springs, near Derby, much of the Nature of Tunbridge Waters in Kent, and the Spaws in Yorkſhire; as ſtrong of the Mineral, and as effectual in the Operation: Of Wirkſworth Springs, one is warm, and the other cold; though ſo near each other, that a Man may put one Hand in one, and the other in the other. The Market-Towns are Derby, the County-Town; Alfreton, Aſhbourn, Bankwell, Bolſover, Chapel in the Frith, Cheſterfield, Dranfield, Tidſwell and Wirkſworth. Laſtly, Beſides the two Knights of the Shire, this County ſends two Members to ſerve in Parliament, which are Choſen by Derby-Town.

DERCETO, a Goddeſs of the Aſſyrians, call'd Atergatis. Ovid makes mention of her being Metamorphos'd into a Fiſh. Mnaſeas reports, that Derceto was a Queen of Syria, who being extreamly fond of Fiſh, forbid her Subjects to Eat them; and upon the ſcore of this Severity, being thrown into the Sea by Mopſus a Lydian, was devour'd by the Fiſhes. Hygin. Strabo, lib. 16. Ovid. Metam.

DERPT, a Town of Livonia, formerly nam'd Torpatum, ſituated between the Lakes of Peipis and Worzer, on the River Eimbeck. The Moſcovites call it Juriogorod, and poſſeſſed it till 1230. Then it was taken by the great Maſter of the Teutonick Order, who erected it into a Biſhoprick ſuffragan to Riga. It was re-taken by the Moſcovites, in 1558. And by the Peace in 1582. it was yielded, with the reſt of Livonia, to the Polanders. But in 1625. the Swedes took it from the Polanders; and Guſtavus Adolphus founded an Univerſity there in 1632. Olearius's Travels.

DERRY, Lat. Roboretum, Derra, Deria, commonly called London-Derry, is both a City and County in the Province of Ulſter in the Kingdom of Ireland. The County is bounded on the North by the Ocean, on the Eaſt by Antrim, on the South by Tyrone, and on the Weſt by Dunglaſs, and was heretofore call'd Colrane. The City is a Colony from London, ſent about an hundred Years ſince into theſe Parts; and in 1664. the Biſhop's See was removed from Raphoe hither. See London-Derry.

DERVIS, a kind of Mahometan Monks; otherwiſe call'd Mevelavites, from their Founder Mevelava. Dervis ſignifies Poor, or detached from the World; and often times this Name is given to all ſorts of Religious People; but it is proper to the Mevelavites. Their Chief Monaſtery is near Cogni, in Natolia, where there are 4 or 500 Religious of that Order; and when a general Chapter is held there, they meet ſometimes above 8000 together. Their General lives in that Monaſtery, and is call'd Haſcen, or Azen Beba; that is, Moſt Great Father. Ottoman I. Emperor of the Turks, made all the other Convents depending upon this; and had ſuch Reſpect for thoſe Monks, that he made their General ſit on his Throne. They have their Legs and Stomachs naked in all Seaſons: They Faſt every Thurſday till Sun-ſet, beſides the ordinary Faſt of Ramezan: Every Friday and Tueſday they meet before their Superior; where one of them playing upon the Flute; the reſt turn round with a wonderful ſwiftneſs: And this Ceremony is very devoutly obſerv'd to imitate their Founder, who having turn'd thus for 14 Days together fell into an Ecſtaſie, and had particular Revelations concerning the Settlement of their Order. The Flute is eſteem'd by them as ſanctified by Jacob, and other Shepherds of the Old Teſtament. They profeſs Poverty, Chaſtity and Obedience; but if they cannot be Continent, they may have leave to go out of the Monaſtery and Marry. Some play Tricks, by way of Hocus-Pocus, to amuſe the People; ſome practiſe Witchcraft; and all drink much Wine, Brandy, and other fudling Liquors, to excite Mirth, which is allowed to their Order. There is a famous Monaſtery of theſe Dervis in Egypt, where they worſhip for their Saint a certain Kederle, or Chederles; who was, as they ſay, a valiant Knight that kill'd Dragons, and venomous Beaſts, and is ſtill inviſibly alive, and gives power to charm Serpents, and to be deliver'd from Shipwracks. Some Authors think that this Kederle is St. George. But 'tis more probable that Kederle comes from Cheder Elias, which Name the Arabians give to the Prophet Elias: or Cheder ſignifies the Green or Strong; becauſe never being Dead, he is always full of Vigour. The Dervis under pretence of Preaching their Faith every were, are often employ'd as Spyes. The Dervis of Egypt have plac'd in Heaven their Kederle's Horſe, Mahomet's Camel, and the Seven Sleeper's Dog. Monſieur de Thevenot mentions the Prophet Saleh's Camel, the Ram ſacrificed by Abraham, Moſes's Cow, Soloman's Ant, the Queen of Sheba's Parrot, Eſdras's Aſs, Jonas's Whale, the Seven Sleeper's Dog, and Mahomet's Camel, among the Beaſts which are to go into Paradiſe according to the Mahometan's Opinion. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire. M. Thevenot's Travels, part 1.

DES CARTES (Renatus) Lord of Perron, the Famous French Philoſopher, deſcended from a very good Family of Leſſer Britany, in France. He had an excellent Genius for Philoſophy and the Mathematicks; to which he apply'd himſelf with extraordinary Succeſs, untill his Warlike Inclination, and the Humour of the Times, made him go to the Army, where he gave ſufficient proof of his Courage both in Germany and Hungary. But the love of Philoſophy inſpiring him with Thoughts of withdrawing into ſome retir'd place, the better to ſeek and find out the true Reaſons of the chief Phænomena's of Nature, and of our Knowledge, he came to Egmond in Holland; where, and in other Parts of the Province, he ſpent 25 Years in this laborious and glorious Exerciſe. The firſt thing he publiſhed was his Book of Meditations, which his learned Contemporaries impugn'd with ſeveral Objections, all Anſwered by him with great Judgment and Solidity. His Syſtem is well order'd, conciſe and clear. The Curious and Learned of his time diverted him often by Letters and Viſits, conſulting him as the Oracle of Philoſophy. King Lewis XIII. and Cardinal Richlieu us'd their utmoſt Endeavours to perſwade him to come and live near them. And at the ſame time, Chriſtina, Queen of Swedeland, preſs'd him to come to her Court: Which after much importunity, he conſented to, and had the Honour of being ſent for by that Princeſs at Five a Clock every Morning, to her Study, to entertain her with his learned Diſcourſe. But ſhe did not enjoy this Satisfaction long, this incomparable Man dying about a Month after his arrival, An. 1650. and in the 54th. Year of his Age. Monſieur Chanaut, Ambaſſador then at Stockholm from the Court of France, erected him a ſtately Tomb; but his Body was afterwards taken thence, and brought into France, where it lies in a fine Tomb of White-Marble, in the Church of St. Genevieve, at Paris. Beſides his Meditations, Principles, Method, Paſſions of the Soul, &c. 2 Volumes of his Letters were Printed after his Death, with an Addition to his Treatiſe De Homine.

DESIRADE, One of the Antillè Iſlands of the Northern America, belonging to the French, who have ſeveral Colonies there. Chriſtopher Columbus was the firſt who diſcover'd and nam'd this Iſland: 'Tis ſmall but very Fruitful, and about 10 or 12 Leagues from Garda Loupa.

DESMOND, Lat. Deſmonia, by the Iriſh Deſwown, is a County of the Province of Munſter in the South-Weſt part of Ireland upon the Rivers Mare and Bantry, having Kerry on the North, the Ocean on the Weſt, and County of Cork on the South-Eaſt. Its chiefeſt Towns are Donegra on the North, and Ardey on the South of Mare. This Name of Deſmond in the foregoing Ages ſtretcht far and wide in this Tract, even from the Sea to the River Shanon, and was called South-Munſter; the Fitz-Geralds deſcended from the Noble and Ancient Houſe of Kildare, having large Poſſeſſions here. King Edward III. created Earl of Deſmond, Maurice Fitz-Gerald, among whoſe Poſterity were many great Men for their Valour and Wealth, whoſe Fame and Credit reach'd very far, until Gerald the laſt Earl of Deſmond of that Name, by his Dangerous Rebellion loſt himſelf, and in a great manner wilfully undid a moſt Noble and Potent Family. Yet thoſe that ſtill bear the greateſt Name, and are moſt powerful in this County, are the Fitz-Geralds; although ſome of them have for ſundry reſpects aſſum'd other Surnames, as Barons, Fitz-Gibbons, &c. Camb. Brit. But the Right Honourable William Fielding, Earl of Denbigh is alſo Earl of Deſmond.

DESPAUTERIUS, (John) Born at Ninove in Flanders, a Grammarian in the XVIth Century; famous for his Grammatical Books ſo often Re-printed, dy'd in 1520. Le Mire in Elog. Belg. &c.

DESPOT, This word originally ſignifies Maſter or Lord, from the Greek δεσπότης: But in the Grecian Empire it ſignified the firſt Dignity after that of the Emperor; therefore Princes or other Lords ſpeaking to the Deſpot gave him the Title of Βασιλεία σȣ, that is, your Majeſty; and his Wife was call'd Βασίλισσα, Queen. There were two Kingdoms of Deſpots, one in Peloponneſus, now Morea, poſſeſs'd by the Emperor's Brother, which was divided between two Deſpots the Emperor's Brethren, about the end of that Empire. The Second was Ætolia, Acarnania, and the Neighbouring Iſlands. There was alſo a Third Deſpot out of Greece, viz. the Deſpot of Servia. Gregoras, Pachimeres, Acropolitus, Chriſtodulus, and other Greek Hiſtorians.

DESSAW, a Town of the Higher Saxony in Germany, on the Elbe, with a Citadel, the Chief Town and Reſidence of the Prince of Anhalt. See Anhalt.

DEUCALION, King of Theſſaly, Prometheus's Son; There happen'd in his time ſuch a Deluge in Theſſaly, that the Poets took occaſion to ſay all Mankind periſh'd; and that Deucalion and Pyrrhus, to re-people the World, did, according to the advice of the Oracle of Themis, caſt Stones behind 'em, which were chang'd into Men and Women. Ovid.l. 1. Metam. Becauſe this Deluge is a famous Epocha in Hiſtory, it is neceſſary to know when it happen'd; An ancient Author quoted by Clemens Alexandrinus, placeth it 330 Years before the taking of Troy; if ſo, then it happen'd in the 3200 of the Julian Period, 2540. of the W. 1514. before Chriſt, 884 after Noah's Flood, 248 after that of Ogyges, 4 before the going of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, 77 of Moſes, and 44 of Cecrops's Reign. Salian, Sponde, &c. place it in the 2530 of the W. 1523 before Chriſt, 67. of Moſes, and 34 of Cecrops. S. Hierom, S. Cyril and S. Auſtin place it in Cecrops's time; nevertheleſs, S. Auſtin ſeems to follow Varro's Opinion, who placeth it in the Reign of Cranaus Cecrops's Succeſſor. Georgius Syncellus, Cedrenus, and others cannot agree about the time. Ubbo Emmius placeth it 349 Years after the taking of Troy, and 1533 Years before Jeſus Chriſt. The Earl of Arundel's Marbles, publiſhed and Commented upon by Selden, move this Epocha 16 Years forward. Apollodorus, l. 1. Diodor. l. 4. Strabo, l. 9. S. Hierom, S. Auſtin, De Civ. Dei, l. 18. c. 10. Ubbo Emmius, l. 1. Vet. Græc. Petav. P. 2. l. 2. c. 9. ration. temp. & in Chron. [It is remarable, that Noah being call'd iſch haadama, that is, Husbandman, thoſe words may be tranſlated into Greek, ἀνὴρ πύῤῥας, Pyrrha's Husband, In Phœnician Eben ſignifies a Stone, and a Son; ſo we may believe that the Stones, the Poets affirm to have been thrown by Deucalion and Pyrrha, were nothing elſe, but their Children, ſo repreſented by the equivocal word.]

DEVENTER, the Chief Town of Over-Yſſel in the Low-Countries, having formerly a Biſhoprick Suffragan to Utrecht, in Latin Daventria. It is large, fine, well built, and well inhabited, encompaſſed with a ſtrong Wall and Towers, and a deep Ditch which is always full of Water. Guichardin Deſcr. du Pais-bas, Valer. Andr. De Reide, &c.

DEVERRA, a Goddeſs honoured by the Pagans, that they might freely ſweep their Houſes, from Deverro, to ſweep. According to Varro and S. Auſtin de Civit. Dei, ſhe was one of the three Divinities Worſhipped by the Ancients as the Defender of Women brought to Bed, againſt Sylvanus the God of Foreſts and Fields, who they were afraid would get into the Houſe in the Night-time, and do 'em ſome miſchief. Thoſe three Divinities were Intercidona, ſo nam'd from the edge of an Ax; Pilomna, from the Peſtle, and Deverra from the Brooms; Intercidona preſided over the lopping of Trees, and Pilomna guided the Peſtle in bruiſing Corn, and making Meal. This was the Ceremony of their Worſhip. Three Men in the Night-time went round about the Houſe, ſtriking the Threſhold with an Ax, afterwards with a Peſtle, and ſweeping it at laſt with a Broom. Cattari en ſes Images des Dieux.

DEVICE, a Compound of Figures and Words, the Figure being call'd the Body, and the Words the Soul of the Device; or according to P. Bohours, a painted Metaphor, which repreſents one Object by another, with which it has ſome reſemblance. There are ſeveral ſorts of Devices. 1. Heroick, as a Bomb burſting in the Air with this Motto, Alter poſt fulmina terror. 2. Moral, as Elementary Fire with theſe words, Eterno perche puro, to intimate the laſtingneſs of free and diſ-intereſs'd Friendſhip. 3. Political, as a Watch and theſe Words, Motibus arcanis, to give an Idea of the Conduct of a Prince, who though his Actions are Publick, keeps the Spring and occaſion of 'em ſecret and conceal'd. 4. Chriſtian, as a Pair of Colours pierced and torn, with this Motto, Quanto lacera piu tanto piu bella, to repreſent the Beauties of Evangelical Poverty. 5. Satyrical, as a Sea-Crab, which walks backward with theſe words, Plus citra, in raillery, of Charles the Vth's Pillars of Hercules, and Motto Plus ultra, when that Prince was forc'd to withdraw from before Metz. 6. Burleſque, as an Aſs feeding on Thiſtles, with theſe words, Pungant modo ſaturent, a lively Repreſentation of a Paraſite who does not care how much he is laugh'd at at great Mens Tables, ſo he be ſuffer'd to fill his Belly. The King of France has taken the Sun with this Motto, Unus ſufficit Orbi, for his Device. Though Hieroglyphick Figures, Emblems, and Symbols are almoſt as old as Mankind, Devices are of a much later Date; we find none in the Roman Hiſtory, nor do we read of any made for Alexander after all his Conqueſts. P. Menetrier.

DEVISES, a Market and Borough-Town of Swanbourn Hundred in the Heart of Wiltſhire; ſo call'd, becauſe anciently divided betwixt the King and the Biſhop of Salisbury. It is the biggeſt and beſt Town for Trading in Wiltſhire, next to Salisbury the Chief of the County, 89 Miles from London.

DEVONSHIRE, Lat. Comitatus Devonienſis, a Large and Maritime County of England, Bounded Northward with the Severn Sea, Southward with the Chanel, Eaſtward with Dorſet and Somerſetſhires, and Weſtward with Cornwal. In which extent it bears a Square of 50 Miles, divided into 33 Hundreds, wherein are 39 Market-Towns, and 394 Pariſhes. Inhabited as Cornwal, with the Danmonii in the time of the Romans, being a Province of the Kingdom of the Weſt-Saxons in the time of the Heptarchy, and now making up with Cornwal the Dioceſe of Exeter. Here the Air is pretty ſharp, but healthful. The Soil in ſome parts, as the South Hams, ſo fruitful that it needs no Art; in Dartmore ſo barren, that it will hardly be bettered by any Art; but generally anſwering the Husbandman's Induſtry: Which is ſuch in this Country, that they ſpare for no Coſt or Pains to keep its Soil in a moderate degree of fruitfulneſs, with Marl, Chalk, Lime, Sea-Sand, Compoſt, Soap-Aſhes, Rags, and what not. Here are alſo Tin and Lead-Mines, and in the Reign of King Edward I. great Quantities of Silver were digg'd out of Silver Mines, which have been long ſince laid aſide. Load-ſtone alſo has been found in the Rocks upon Dartmore. Beſides the Tamer, which parts Devonſhire from Cornwal, here are the Rivers Ex, Tow, Towbridge, and the Dart; with others of leſs Note. Among the Manufactures of this County, Cloathing is the principal. Its Monuments of Antiquity and other Curioſities, are the Trophies upon Exmere, a Pit in the Pariſh of North-Taunton, the Hanging Stone near Combmerton, and the Gubbings. Its Sea-Ports of chief Note, are Plimouth and Dartmouth on the South, and Combmerton and Ilfordcomb, on the North Channel; As for Barnſtable and Beddiford, they lie ſome Miles within the County; The firſt, a noted Sea-Port Town on the River, Tow, and the laſt, on the Towbridge. This County has been dignify'd with the Title of an Earldom in ſeveral Families of which the Rivers and Courtneys enjoy'd it long, as now the Cavendiſhes may do, who have poſſeſſion of it in the 4th. Generation; the firſt Earl of this Family was William Lord Cavendiſh of Harwich, created Earl of Devonſhire by K. James I. An. 1618. and from him ſucceeded in a right Line the Right Honourable William Cavendiſh, the preſent Earl of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of His Majeſties Houſhold, and Created Duke of Devonſhire by King William III. Laſtly, out of this County are choſen, beſides the 2 Knights of the Shire, 24 Parliament Men.

DEVREUX, the Surname of a Noble Family in England, derived from a noted Town of that Name in Normandy, they were Gentlemen of good Eſtates in Cornwal, in the time of King Stephen, and very ſerviceable to the Princes in whoſe Reigns they lived, againſt the Welch and French. Sir John Devereux ſerved King Edward the Third, The Black Prince, and Prince Richard, afterward Richard II. who made him Governour of Leeds-Caſtle in Kent, and retain'd him to Serve him with 100 Men at Arms, whereof 5 were to be Knights, beſides himſelf: He was afterwards made Captain of Calais, Conſtable of Dover-Caſtle, and Warden of the Cinque-Ports, Steward of the King's Houſhold, and appointed to Treat with the French and Flemiſh. He was Summoned to Parliament amongſt the Barons of the Realm, 8 R. 2. and Died in 17 Richard 2. The firſt of this Family advanced to the Peerage was Walter, who Marrying the Heireſs of William Lord Ferrers of Chartley, Com. Staff. was created Lord Ferrers in the firſt of E. 4. for his Services in the War againſt K. Henry VI. having alſo a large Addition made to his Eſtate at the ſame time. He was Slain with King Richard III. at Boſworth Field; being ſucceeded by his Son John; and he by his Son Walter, who was imploy'd by Henry VIII. in his Wars againſt France, made Juſtice of South Wales, Knight of the Garter, and afterwards in the 4th of Edward VI. Viſcount Hereford; and was ſucceeded by his Grandſon Walter, who was Field-Marſhal of the Army againſt the Earls of Northumberland and Weſtmorland, in the Rebellion 12 Eliz. and created Earl of Eſſex in the 14th of that Queen. He aſſiſted at the Trial of the Duke of Norfolk, and by thoſe who envy'd his Greatneſs, was ſent into Ireland againſt the Great Oneal; where Affairs were ſo managed, that he could do nothing, though he was promis'd the Sovereignty of Ulſter. So that being abandon'd by the Court, and deſerted by his Friends and Soldiers, he return'd to England, having greatly diminiſh'd his Eſtate; But by the contrivance of the Earl of Leiceſter, he was ſent thither again with the Title of Earl Marſhal of that Kingdom, but died of Grief and a Flux, Sept. 22. 1576. not without ſuſpicion of Poiſon, which was heighten'd upon the Earl of Leiceſter's ſudden Marriage with his fair Widow. This Walter was ſucceeded by his Son Robert, who being brought to Court by the Earl of Leiceſter his Father-in-Law, did quickly inſinuate himſelf into the Queens favour, which ſhe diſcover'd with ſome paſſion, upon his going privately from Court to ſee ſome Service in France; whereupon ſhe ſent for him, and was very uneaſie till he return'd, often ſaying, We ſhall have this Young fellow knock'd on the Head, as fooliſh Sidney was by his own forwardneſs. His Noble Exploit at Cadiz upon the Spaniſh Fleet, and ſacking the Town, rais'd him high in the Eſteem of the Soldiery, aud made him very popular, which created him many Enemies. After which he was ſent againſt the famous Iriſh Rebel Tirone, but either not being able or willing to follow the Directions of the Court, he was outed of the Queen's favour, and coming home with a deſign to remove his Enemies from about her, was confined to his Houſe; whither abundance of Military Men reſorted to him, and being prevailed with to make an Inſurrection by their Advice, and his Confidence of the favour of the People, he took Arms and declar'd for removing ill Counſellors from about the Queen; but having miſs'd in his expectation as to the Aſſiſtance of the Londoners, he retired to Eſſex-Houſe, and was obliged to Surrender, and for this Inſurrection was Beheaded. His Son Robert was reſtored by King James VI. and having received a Diſcontent as to the diſannulling of his Marriage with Frances Daughter to Thomas Howard Earl of Suffolk, he went to the Palatinate to exerciſe himſelf in the Myſtery of War; and when the Rupture happened betwixt King Charles I. and the Parliament, he Commanded the Forces of the Latter as General. He died without Iſſue in London, Sept. 14. 1646. not without Suſpicion of Poiſon. And thereupon the Title of Viſcount Hereford devolved upon Sir Walter Devereux, Son and Heir to Sir Edward Devereux of Caſtle Bromwich, in Com. War. DEUX-PONTS, in German Zweibruk, Bipontium; a Town of the Palatinate of the Rhine in Germany, having the Title of Dukedom, and a Strong Caſtle.

DEUX-PONTS, a Family, ſo Nam'd from the Town of that Name. The Family of Deux-Ponts is a Branch of that of Bavaria. The King of Sweden has Right to this Dukedom; and the French in 1676. took the Town upon his Account. It has been partly ruin'd ſince. And by the Peace of Reſwick in 1697, the French all quitted all their Pretenſions to this Dutchy in favour of the Swedes.

DEXTER (Flavius) Præfectus Prætorio, or Captain of the Guards, Son of Pacianus, Biſhop of Barcelona, liv'd towards the end of the IVth. Cent. in the Reign of Theodoſius the great; he was Contempory with the Poet Prudentius. S. Jerom Dedicates his Book De Scriptoribus Eccleſiaſticis to him, and mentions his having wrote a General Hiſtory. Baron. A. C. 388. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2. c. 10. &c.

DEY, the Name of him who Commands at Tunis in Africa, with almoſt a Sovereign Authority, inſtead of their Ancient Kings. The Grand Seignior has a Baſſa here, but Subject to the Dey, ſince the Moors Rebelled, and created their firſt Dey call'd Oſman: and if Ambaſſadors Complain of the Injuſtice by thoſe Corſairs to the Grand Seignior, He Anſwers that they muſt make Repriſals, for they are not properly his Subjects. When the Dey dies, his Children do not Succeed, if he have not made them Deys before; ſo that they treat with the Nobles to raiſe them to that Dignity. The Cadis and other Officers, carry Preſents to the new Dey by Night in great Diſhes full of Fruit or Victuals to cover the Purſes; for if they ſhould carry them by Day, he would refuſe them, to make the People believe that he is not capable of being Bribed. Thevenot Voyage de Levant.

DIADUMENUS, the Emperor Macrinus's Son in the III. Century, ſo nam'd becauſe he was Born Crown'd with a Diadem. The Army having Proclaimed his Father Emperor in 217. after Caracalla's Death, he was made Cæſar, tho' but 9 Years old; but after a Reign of 14 Months, the Father and the Son were Murther'd. Jul. Capitolinus, in Macrinus's Life. Lampridius, &c.

DIAGORAS, of Rhodes, was ſo tranſported with Satisfaction, upon the news of his Son's and Grandſon's having the ſame good Fortune with himſelf in carrying the Prize, at the Olympick Solemnities, that he Died perfectly ſtrangled and overſet with pleaſure. Plutarch in Vit. Pelop. Pauſan. lib. 6. Eliac. Cic. lib. 1. Tuſc. Quæſt.

DIAGORAS, a Philoſopher, born at Melos, Surnam'd the Atheiſt, was baniſh'd by the Athenians for inſerting theſe two Queſtions in his Works, Firſt, Whether there were really any Gods? And Secondly, If there were any, what they were? 'Tis ſaid when the Athenians had baniſh'd him, they promis'd two Talents to any one that ſhould bring him alive, and one to bring him dead. He liv'd in LXXIVth. Olympiad, and 280 of R. according to Euſebius. And Voſſius thinks he was the ſame that was puniſh'd for revealing Ceres's Myſteries. Cicero, l. 1. de nat. Deor. Voſſius, l. 4. de Hiſt. Græc. Theodoret, Suidas, Lactantius, &c.

DIANA, The Goddeſs of Hunting. Jupiter's Daughter by Latona. She has commonly three Names, viz. Hecate in Hell; Diana on Earth; and Moon or Phœbe in Heaven. She was worſhipped under the Name of Juno Lucina, by Women in Labour. She had many Temples, but that of Epheſus was the moſt famous, and one of the Seven Wonders of the World. All the Provinces of Aſia had contributed for above 200 Years to finiſh it. There were in it 120 Columns built by ſo many Kings. It was burnt that ſame Day that Alexander the Great was Born, in the CVIth. Olympiad, 398. of R. Mythologiſts apply to the Moon all that is writ of this Goddeſs. Ovid. Metam. l. 3. Heſiod. in Theog. Pliny, l. 7. c. 38. Diodor. Sic. l. 16. Bibl. Solinus, Euſebius, Plutarch, Pauſanias, Strabo, &c.

DIARBEKIR, a great Town near the River Tigris in Meſopotamia, ſurrounded with a double Wall, the outward having 72 Towers, built, as it's ſaid, in honour of the 72 Diſciples. This Town is famous for red Turkey-Leather, its Waters having a particular quality to make them look fine. It is well Inhabited, and there are above 20000 Chriſtians, the moſt part Armenians, and the reſt Neſtorians or Jacobites. The Baſhaw or Beglerbeg of Diarbeker, can raiſe above 20000 Horſe, and has under him 19 Sangiacks, or particular Governours. Tavernier's Travels.

DIBRES, in Lat. Dibræ, a Town of Epirus in Greece, taken by the Turks in 1442. The Beſiegers having thrown a dead Dog into the only Ciſtern that was in the Town, the Inhabitants were ſo ſuperſtitious, that they choſe rather to ſurrender and loſe their Liberty than drink that Water. Barilet, Hiſt. de Scanderbeg, l. 2.

DICE, A Heathen Goddeſs who preſided over Courts of Judicature, ſhe was repreſented as a Virgin, and the Daughter of Jupiter the Sovereign Legiſlator. Cœlius Rhodig. l. 23. c. 16.

DICEARCHUS, Born at Meſſina and Scholar to Ariſtotle, Liv'd in the CXVth. Olympiad; and the 434th. of R. He was a Philoſopher, Hiſtorian and Mathematician, and wrote a great many Books in theſe three Faculties. Cic. l. 13. Ep. 32. ad Attic. Tertullian, de Anima. Hierom contra Jovin. &c.

DICENEUS, an Egyptian Philoſopher, ſurnam'd Boroiſta, perhaps becauſe he taught Boroiſta King of the Goths, Philoſophy. He civilized the Scythians as well as their King, learn'd 'em to love Juſtice, live Peaceably, and honour the Gods, eſtabliſh'd Temples and Prieſts to Sacrifice, and Perform the Ceremonies of the Religion he invented, and leſt his Maxims and laws ſhould be forgotten, he caus'd 'em to be carefully writ, and made up into a Book. The People had ſuch a Veneration for him, that they dug up their Vines, becauſe this Philoſopher told 'em, that Wine was the occaſion of ſeveral Diſorders, Joan. Magnus, l. 3. c. 18. Bonfin. l. 2. Dec. 1.

DICTAMO, a Town in the Territory of Canca, in the Iſland of Candia, whence comes the Medicinal Herb Dittanie.

DICTATOR, a Supream Magiſtrate among the Romans, nam'd commonly by the Conſuls in an imminent Danger. T. Lartius Flavius Conſul, having appeas'd a Sedition, in 256 of R. was firſt choſen Dictator. Thoſe Magiſtrates were only for Six Months, tho' Sylla and J. Cæſar made themſelves to be declared perpetual Dictators. The difference between the Dictator and the Conſul was, that the Conſuls had only 12 Axes carried before them, and the Dictators 24. And the Conſuls could not execute many things without the Senate's Authority; but the Dictator was Abſolute, and after his Election, all the other Magiſtrates had no more Power, the Tribunes of the People excepted, as Polybius obſerves, l. 3. ſpeaking of Q. Fab. Maximus created Dictator, to whom another was joyn'd which was unheard of before. Pomponius Lætus de Magiſt. Rom. c. 16.

DICTYNNA, a Cretan Nymph ſaid to be the inventreſs of Fiſhing and Hunting Nets; ſome ſay Minos was in Love with her, and that ſhe threw her ſelf into the Sea, to avoid his Courtſhip. Strabo.

DICTYS Cretenſis, an Hiſtorian, who ſerving under a King of Creet, in the Wars of Troy, wrote the Hiſtory of that Expedition. Tzetzes tells us, that Homer form'd his Iliads upon his Plan. But here, we are to obſerve, that the Hiſtory of Dictys, now extant and pretended to be tranſlated by Q. Septimius, is a Counterfit Piece; the beſt Edition of it, is publiſh'd by Mrs. L' Fevre in uſum Delfini. Ludovic. Viv. de tradend Diſcipl. Voſſ. De Hiſt. Græc. l. 4. &c.

DIDACUS, or Diego, Biſhop of Oſma in Spain, famous for his Learning and Piety in the XIIIth Century. Spond.

DIDIER, or Deſiderius, the laſt King of the Lombards, defeated by Charlemagne, and brought Priſoner into France with his Wife and Children, except his Son Adalgiſe, who retir'd to Conſtantinople. This unhappy King Dy'd a little while after, having reign'd 18 Years; thus the Kingdom of the Lombards that had laſted 206 Years ended in Italy. Aimoin. l. 4. c. 69, 70. Paul. Diacon. l. 6. Sigonius, l. 3. &. 4. Regn. Ital. &c.

DIDO, Methres King of Tyre's Daughter, to avoid her Brother Pygmalion's Tyranny, who had Murther'd her Huſband Sicharbas or Sichæus, retir'd into Africa, where ſhe built Carthage, which others ſay was built long before, by Zorus and Carchedon: However, ſhe built the Citadel of Byrſa 20 Years after her coming thither in 3166 of the W. 296 after Troy, and 135 Years before the Foundation of Rome: if what Joſephus ſaith be true, that it was 144 Years after the firſt Foundation of Solomon's Temple. The Learned do not agree about what Virgil ſaith of Dido, but the moſt part think it is a Poet's Fiction to adorn his Work, and give a colour to the hatred between the Carthaginians and the Romans; and theſe are their Reaſons. Dido went into Africa the 7th Year of Pygmalion's Reign, 124 Years after the Foundation of the Temple, 3147 of the W. and 907 before Jeſus Chriſt. She built Byrſa in 3166 of the W. 888 before Jeſus Chriſt, 144 Years after the Foundation of the Temple, 296 after the taking of Troy; and 135. before the Foundation of Rome. Troy was taken by the Grecians in 2870 of the W. 431 before Rome was built. There are 296 Years difference between the Years 2870, when Æneas liv'd, and 3166, when Dido Reign'd. Thus Æneas's Voyage into Italy was 296 Years before Dido's Reign at Carthage, or 277 Years, if we go up to the Year 3147 of the W. when Dido arriv'd in Africa. Thoſe that believe the Hiſtory of Æneas and Dido alledge this Genealogy.

Belus	Agenor	Phœnix	Belus II.	Dido marry'd to Sichæus:
	Danaus	Cadmus	or Methres	Pygmalion.

But ſuppoſe this Genealogy to be true; it is anſwer'd, That Phœnix Agenor's Son and Cadmus's Brother, liv'd in the Year 2600 of the W. 1454 Years before Jeſus Chriſt, and 562 after Abraham's Birth, allowing 30 Years for his Life before he was Belus II's Father; and as many to Belus, before he was Dido's Father; that will make 2660 Years. According to this Calculation, Dido muſt have been 210 Years old when Troy was Burnt down; which is enough to ſhew that ſhe could not Reign in Africa in Æneas's time. P. Labbe Hiſt. Chronologique. Joſephus L. 8. Ant. c. 13. Juſtin l. 18. Solin. c. 30. S. Hierom, Petav. Ration. temp. &c.

DIDYMUS, of Alexandria, lived in the IV. Century, and altho' he had loſt his Sight when he was but 5 Years of Age, he became ſo learned in all Divine and Humane Sciences, and even in Mathematicks, that he was the wonder of his time. He Compos'd many Works, whereof few are remaining. S. Gregory of Nazianzen was his Diſciple, and this famous Blindman liv'd till he was 83 Years old; but in his old Age he was impos'd upon by Origen, and fell into his Errours. *S. Hierom de Script. DIDYMUS, reputed of Alexandria, Surnamed χαλκίντερος, or πονηρὸς, laborious, to expreſs his aſſiduous Study, for he Compos'd 3500 different Treatiſes, or 4000, as Seneca, Ep. 88. ſaith; which made Athenæus to Name him βιβλιολάθαν, ſignifying that he did forget the Number of his Books. Macrobius l. 5. Saturn. c. 12. calls him the moſt learned Grammarian. Photius, Cod. 297. Euſebius's Chron. A. 661. S. Hierom, Suidas, Voſſius, &c.

DIE, a Town of Dauphine in France, with a Biſhoprick united to that of Valence Suffragan to Vienne. But theſe Biſhopricks have been parted for ſome Years. It is the Dia or Dea Auguſta of the Ancients, and is ſituated near the Drome between ſome Mountains. It was formerly one of the Chief of the Vocences's 19 Towns, and became afterwards a Roman Colony. The Lombards took it in 574. It became afterwards the Chief Town of a little Country call'd Diois, and an Earldom, which was united to that of Valentenois in 1189. and 1404. Sold to King Charles VI. and annexed to Dauphiné. As for its Name, ſome think it Greek, becauſe the Sicyonians ador'd the Goddeſs Dia, and that according to Gaſſendi's Opinion, Die and Valence were built after the Grecians coming into France; therefore not ſo ancient as Marſeilles. Its 5 fine Churches were deſtroy'd, and its Citadel ras'd in the laſt Civil Wars, Chorier. Hiſt. de Dauph. l. 14. 9. Sancte Marthe, Du Cheſne, Gaſſendus, &c. in Vit. Peireſc.

DIEMENS, part of Terra Auſtralis, or the Southern World, diſcovered in the XVIIth Cent. by Anthony Diemens. It is not certainly known whether this Country is a Continent or not.

DIEPHOLT, a little Town of Weſtphalia in Germany, having the Title of Earldom, it belongs to the Duke of Brunſwick, and was almoſt ruin'd in the German Wars.

DIEPPE, a Sea-port Town in Normandy, having a Fort, and a Caſtle that Commands the Town: It was often taken and re-taken during the Wars between the Engliſh and the French, and the Civil Wars. The Town is pretty large and conſiderable for Trade and Shipping. The River Arques divides the Town from the Suburb, where it forms a long and narrow Key, yet capable of a great number of Ships, which renders the Town conſiderable, and of great Commerce. Its Inhabitants Trading to both the Indies. This Town is remarkable for its Loyalty to Henry the Great of France, who retiring hither, and not long after receiving a Supply from Queen Elizabeth of 22000 l. in Gold, and 4000 Men under the Lord Willoughby, beat the Duke of Main, the General of the Leaguers after all his Confidence that he ſhould either take this Prince Priſoner, or drive him out of France; which great Victory was unexpectedly gain'd in 1589. almoſt under the Town Walls. This Town was ſeverely Bombarded by the Engliſh and Dutch Fleets, during the late Wars, who threw no leſs than 1100 Bombs and Carcaſes into it; and was almoſt entirely reduc'd to Aſhes; they are now rebuilding it more ſumptuouſly than before. Thuan. in Hiſt. l. 33. Du Cheſne, Rech. des Villes de France, l. 7. c. 5.

DIEST, a little Town of Brabant in the Low-Countries, having the Title of Barony. It is conſiderable for its divers Manufactures of Wollen and Linen Cloth. It has two Collegiate Churches. It's ſituate on the River Demere 1 League from Dalen, and 3 from Tillemen.

DIET, is the Name given to the Aſſembly of the States of Germany. Beſides the Diets of the Empire, there are alſo the Diets of each Circle. See the Article of Germany, concerning this Title. But let us ſpeak of ſome of thoſe Aſſemblies, which are famous in the Hiſtory of the laſt Century.

1. DIET OF AUSBOURG, in the Year 1530. It was call'd by the Emperor Charles V. to re-unite the Princes about ſome Matters of Religion, and to joyn them all together againſt the Turks. The Emperor apppear'd there with the greateſt Magnificence that was ever ſeen in Germany; becauſe ſo many Electors and Princes never met together before. There the Elector of Saxony, follow'd by many Princes, preſented the Confeſſion of Faith, call'd, The Confeſſion of Ausbourg. The Conference about Matters of Faith and Diſcipline being concluded, the Emperor ended the Diet by a Decree, That nothing ſhould be alter'd in the Doctrine and Ceremonies of the Roman Church, till a Council ſhould order it otherwiſe. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Lutheraniſme.

2. DIET OF AUSBOURG, in 1547. about Matters of Religion: The Electors being divided concerning the Deciſions of the Council of Trent, the Emperor demanded that the Management of this Affair ſhould be left to him, and it was reſolv'd, That every one ſhould Conform to the Council's Deciſions. Maimbur g Hiſt. du Luther.

3. DIET OF AUSBOURG, in 1548. where the Commiſſioners nam'd to examine ſome Memoirs about a Confeſſion of Faith not agreeing together, the Emperor nam'd three Divines who drew the Deſign of that famous Interim, ſo well known in Germany and elſewhere. See Interim. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Luther.

4. DIET OF AUSBOURG in 1550. Where the Emperor complain'd that the Interim was not obſerv'd, and demanded that all ſhould ſubmit to the Council, which they were going to renew at Trent; but Duke Maurice's Deputies proteſted that their Maſter did ſubmit to the Council on this Condition, That the Divines of the Confeſſion of Ausbourg not only ſhould be heard there, but ſhould Vote alſo like the Roman Catholick Biſhops, and that the Pope ſhould not Preſide. But by the Plurality of Votes, the Submiſſion to the Council was reſolved upon. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Luther.

1. DIET OF NUREMBERG in 1523. where Francis Cheregat, Pope Adrian the VI's Nuncio, demanded the Execution of Leo X's Bull, and of Charles the Vth's Edict publiſh'd at Wormes againſt Luther. But it was anſwered, That it was neceſſary to call a Council in Germany, to ſatisfie the Nation about its Grievances, which were reduc'd to an Hundred Articles, ſome whereof aim'd at the deſtruction of the Pope's Authority, and the Diſcipline of the Roman Church. They added, that in the Interim, the Lutherans ſhould be commanded not to write againſt the Roman Catholicks, &c. All theſe things were brought into the form of an Edict publiſh'd in the Emperor's Name. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Luther.

2. DIET OF NUREMBERG in 1524. Cardinal Campege, Pope Clement VII's Legate, entred Incognito into the Town for fear of exaſperating the People. There the Lutherans having the advantage, it was decreed, That with the Emperors conſent, the Pope ſhould call a Council in Germany; but in the interim an Aſſembly ſhould be held at Spire, to Determine what was to be believ'd and practis'd; and that to obey the Emperor, the Princes ought to order the Obſervation of the Edict of Wormes, as ſtrictly as they could. Charles the 5th being angry at this, commanded the Edict of Wormes to be obſerved very ſtrictly, and prohibited the Aſſembly at Spire. Maim. Hiſt. du Luther.

1. DIET OF RATISBON in 1541. for reuniting the Proteſtants with the Roman Catholicks. The Pope's Legate having alter'd the 22 Articles drawn by ſome Learned Doctors, the Emperor propos'd to chuſe ſome Learned Divines that might agree peaceably upon the Articles; and being deſired by the Diet to chuſe them himſelf, he nam'd three Roman Catholicks, viz. Julius Phlugius, John Gropperus, and John Eckius; and three Proteſtants, viz. Philip Melancthon, Martin Bucer, and John Piſtorius; but after an Examination and Diſputation of a whole Month, theſe Divines could never agree about more than 5 or 6 Articles, wherein the Diet found ſome Difficulties ſtill. Therefore the Emperor to end thoſe Controverſies, order'd by an Edict, that the Deciſions of the Doctors ſhould be referr'd to a General Council, or to the National Council of all Germany, or to the next Diet 18 Months after; and that in the mean while, the Proteſtants ſhould keep the Articles agreed upon, forbidding them to ſollicit any body to change the ancient Religion, &c. But to pleaſe the Proteſtants, he gave them leave by Patent to keep their Religion, notwithſtanding the Edict. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Luther.

2. DIET OF RATISBON in 1546. where none of the Proteſtant Confederate Princes appear'd; nevertheleſs it was decreed by the Plurality of Votes, that the Council of Trent was to be follow'd, which the Proteſtant Deputies oppos'd; and this caus'd a War againſt them. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Luther.

3. DIET OF RATISBON in 1557. The Aſſembly demanded a Conference between ſome famous Doctors of both Parties; which Conference held at Wormes, in September, between 12 Roman Catholick Divines, and 12 Lutheran, was ſoon diſſolv'd by the Lutherans diviſion among themſelves, ſays Maimbourg, Hiſt. du Luther.

1. DIET OF SPIRE in 1526. Charles the 5th being in Spain, nam'd his Brother the Arch-Duke Ferdinand to preſide over that Aſſembly, where the Duke of Saxony and the Landgrave of Heſſe, demanded at firſt a free exerciſe of the Lutheran Religion, ſo that the Lutherans preach'd there publickly againſt the Pope; and the Lutheran Princes Servants had theſe five Capital Letters V. D. M. I. Æ. embroider'd on their Sleeves, ſignifying, Verbum Domini manet in Æternum to ſhew publickly that they would follow nothing elſe but the pure word of God. The Arch-Duke not daring to oppoſe theſe Courſes propos'd two things; The firſt Concerning, the ancient Religion which was to be maintain'd in obſerving the Edict of Wormes: And the ſecond, Concerning the help demanded by Lewis King of Hungary againſt the Turks. About the Firſt, the Lutherans prevailing, it was Decreed, that the Emperor ſhould be deſired to call a General or National Council in Germany within a Year; and that in the Interim, every one was to have Liberty of Conſcience, and whilſt they were deliberating in vain about the Second, the Valiant King Lewis was defeated and kill'd at the Battle of Mohatz. Maimb. Hiſt. du Luther.

2. DIET OF SPIRE in 1529. There it was decreed, That in all Places where the Edict of Wormes againſt the Lutherans was received, it ſhould be lawful to no body to change his Opinions; but in the Countries, where the new Religion was Received, it ſhould be lawful to continue in it till the next Council, if the ancient Religion could not be re-eſtabliſh'd there without Sedition; nevertheleſs the Maſs was not to be aboliſh'd there, and no Roman Catholick was to be allowed to turn Lutheran That the Sacramentarians ſhould be baniſhed out of the Empire, and the Anabaptiſts put to Death, and that Preachers ſhould no where Preach againſt the Doctrine of the Church. This Decree deſtroying that of the firſt Diet, Six Lutheran Princes, viz. The Elector of Saxony, the Marquiſs of Brandenburg, the two Dukes of Lunenburg, the Lantgrave of Heſſe, and the Prince of Anhalt, with the Deputies of fourteen Imperial Towns, proteſted in Writing two Days after in the Aſſembly againſt that Decree, which they would not obey, it being contrary to the Goſpel, and appeal'd to the General or National Council, to the Emperor, and to any other unſuſpected Judge. From that Solemn Proteſtation, came that famous Name of Proteſtants, which the Lutherans took preſently, and the Calviniſts and other Reformed Chriſtians afterwards. They alſo Proteſted that they would contribute nothing towards the War againſt the Turks, till the Exerciſe of their Religion was free in all Germany. This Proteſtation being preſented to the Emperor, he ſaid, that he would ſettle the Affairs of Germany as ſoon as he had regulated thoſe of Italy. The next Year after, he call'd the famous Diet of Ausbourg ſpoken of before. Maimb. Hiſt. du Luther.

The DIET OF WORMES in 1521. where Alexander, the Pope's Nuncio, having charg'd Luther with Hereſie, the Duke of Saxony ſaid, That Luther ought to be heard; which the Emperor granted, and ſent a Paſs to him, provided he would not Preach in his Journey. Luther being at Wormes, proteſted that he would not Recant, except they ſhould ſhew his Errors by the Word of God alone, and not by that of Men. Therefore the Emperor order'd him to go out of Wormes, and a Month after, by an Edict publiſh'd the 26th. of May, before all the Princes of Germany Outlaw'd him. Maimb. Hiſt du Lutheraniſm.

Diets of Poland.

According to the Laws of Poland, the General Diet is to be call'd only once in two Years; but becauſe of the multitude of Urgent Affairs, it is often call'd once in a Year. By the ſame Laws it is not to continue above a Fortnight, but it is commonly prolonged for Six Weeks. Warſaw has been always judg'd the fitteſt place, as being in the Centre of the Kingdom; nevertheleſs, it has been held often in many other Towns. And the Lithuanians have lately claim'd a Right to have it interchangeably in their Country. As for the time, the King gives Notice of it by his Envoys to all the Provinces, and ſignifies alſo the Subject of the Deliberations. In an Interregnum, the Archbiſhop of Gneſna performs it. The particular Diets of Provinces meet Six Weeks before the General, and their Reſolutions are carried thither by three Deputies elected out of the Gentlemen there preſent.

Diets of Switzerland.

In Switzerland, the General Diet is held twice a Year, about the latter end of June, and the beginning of December: And Zurich, as the firſt Canton, has Right to Call it. The Roman Catholick, and the Proteſtant Cantons have alſo their Particular Diets. The firſt meet at Lucern; and the Canton of that Name Calls it. The Others at Arau, and Zurich calls the Aſſembly; and thoſe particular Diets have no certain time, but according to the Neceſſity of Publick Affairs. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

DIETHMARSIE, or DITHMARSIE, a Province of Denmark, ſo nam'd from the Marſhes which take up a great part of it. It is near the Elbe's Mouth, and belongs to the Duke of Holſtein. The Inhabitants of this Country having regain'd their Liberty in 1150. John King of Denmark and Swedeland, endeavouring to reduce 'em in 1500. was vigorouſly repulſed, and at laſt entirely defeated, with the loſs of moſt of the Nobility of Holſtein. But in 1559. Adolphus of Holſtein General of the Troops of Denmark, having worſted 'em in three ſignal Battels, brought 'em under Subjection. Chitræus, Part 1. Hiſt. Saxon.

DIETHUMAR, or DITMAR, Son to Sigefred Earl of Saxony, and by his Mother-ſide Related to Otho the Great; He was firſt a Monk of Magdeburg, and afterwards Biſhop of Mersburg. He wrote a Chronicle, comprehending the Reigns of five Emperours. Henry I. The three Otho's, and Henry II. This conſiderable Work, with Ditmar's Life before it, was firſt Printed by Reynerus Reineccius, at Frankford, in 1580. And afterwards at Helmſtad by Maderus, in 1677. He died in the Year 1018. Fabricius, Hiſt. Sax. Poſſevin. Apparat. Sac. Cave, Hiſt. Liter. Pars Alt.

DIGBY, (Sir Simon) of the Noble and Ancient Family of Tilton in Leiceſterſhire, fighting ſtoutly with his ſix Valiant Brothers for the Earl of Richmond againſt King Richard at Boſworth Feld, was when he came to the Crown advanc'd to Places of great Truſt and Profit, and continu'd in great Favour to his Death, which happen'd in 12 H. 8. Reginald his Son and Heir, left Iſſue by his Wife Ann, the Daughter of Sir George Throckmorton of Coughton in Com. Warw. Knight, George, who had three Sons, Robert, Philip, and John; Robert taking to Wife Lettice, the Grandchild and Heir Female to Gerald Earl of Kildare in Ireland, left Iſſue Robert his Son and Heir, created Lord Digby of Geaſhill in that Realm by King James; whoſe Deſcendants do ſtill enjoy that Honour. John, brought up a Fellow-Commoner in Magdalen-College, Oxon, travelled afterwards into France and Italy, whereby he became ſo ſingularly qualified, that being ſent to Court by the Lord Harrington, to give King James intimation of the deſign of the Gun-Powder Conſpirators to ſurprize the Princeſs Elizabeth, that Prince diſcerning his Abilities and Fidelity, admitted him Gentleman of the Privy-Chamber, afterwards made him Vice-Chamberlain of his Houſhold, and one of his Privy-Council, and in the 16th of his Reign, advanced him to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Digby of Sherburne in Com. Dorſet. After which, viz. An. 1620. 18. Jac. he was ſent Embaſſadour to the Arch-Duke Albert, and the next year following to Ferdinand the Emperour, as alſo to the Duke of Bavaria, and in 1622. Ambaſſadour Extraordinary to the Spaniard, touching a Marriage betwixt Prince Charles and the Lady Maria, Daughter to Philip III. then King of that Realm, and created Earl of Briſtol the ſame Year. He married Beatrice Daughter to Charles Walcot of Walcot in Com. Salop Eſq; Widow of Sir John Dive of Bromham in Com. Bedf. Knight, by whom he had Iſſue two Sons, George Born at Madrid in Spain in 1612. and John, who died unmarried. As alſo two Daughters, Mary married to Sir Arthur Chicheſter Lord Dunegald in Ireland, and Abigal to George Freake, Eldeſt Son of John Freake of Shroughton in Com. Dorſ. Eſq; departing this Life at Paris in 1653. George his Son and Heir ſucceeded him, and married Anne Daughter to Francis late Earl of Bedford, and by her had Iſſue two Sons, John his Son and Heir, who firſt married Alice, the only Child of Robert Bourne of Blake-Hall in the Pariſh of Bovenger in Com. Eſſex, Eſq; by whom he had no Iſſue: Secondly, Rachel Daughter of Sir William Windham Knight, one of the Juſtices of the Common-Pleas: the Name of his ſecond Son was Francis, ſlain at Sea againſt the Dutch in 1672. He hath alſo two Daughters, Diana married to the Baron of Mol in Flanders, and Anne to Robert now Earl of Sunderland. Dugdale.

DIGNA, or DUGNA, a Couragious Woman of Aquileia in Italy, ſeeing her ſelf in danger of being forc'd by Attila King of the Huns, becauſe of her great Beauty, ſhe deſir'd him to go up into a high Gallery, feigning to diſcover ſomething of moment, and as ſoon as ſhe was there, ſhe threw her ſelf down into a River running near the Houſe, ſaying to the cruel King, Follow me, if thou haſt a Mind to poſſeſs me. Bonfin. l. 6. Dec. 1. Sigon. l. 13. Imp. Occid.

DIGNE, a Town of Provence in France, on the River Bleone, between ſome Mountains, formerly the Chief Town of the Sentians Country, mention'd by Ptolemy; and reckon'd by Pliny amongſt the Ambrunois. It is nam'd in Latin Dinia, Digna, Dina, Civitas Dinentium, Dienentium, &c. Scaliger calls it Dine, and Scud, in Ortelius, Donoy. This variety of Names cauſed many to miſtake it for Die in Dauphiné, and to believe, that S. Vincent Biſhop of Digne, was at the firſt General Council of Nice, where his Subſcription was found in Greek, Νικάσιος. But Gaſſendi, and many other learned Men, have ſolidly prov'd that this Nicaſius was Biſhop of Die. Digne is Famous for its Hot Baths, and Gaſſendi's Birth. Pliny, l. 3. c. 4. Ptolemy, l. 2. c. 10. Gaſſendi, Fronto Ducæus, S. Marthe, &c.

DIJON, the Chief Town of the Dukedom of Burgundy, in France, on the Ouche and Suzon, in the Dioceſe of Langres, has a Parliament, in Latin Divio, or Divionum. It is ſaid that the Emperour Aurelian having deſtroy'd a Borough call'd Bourg d'Ogne, Lat. Burgus Deorum, for fear the Gods ſhould be offended at it, he Built a Temple and a Caſtle call'd Divio, and ſince Dijon. There is a Mint and a Court for the Regulation of it, and the Money coyn'd there is mark'd with the Letter P. The Mayor has the Title of Viſcount; and it has 21 Aldermen, who had formerly the Title of Senators. Dijon had ſome particular Earls, even in the Dukes of Burgundy's time. Guaguin, Du Cheſne, Greg. de Tours, &c.

Councils of Dijon.

The Firſt Council was call'd in 1075. againſt the Simoniſts. The Second, in 1199, about Iſemburge of Denmark, Divorc'd by Philip Auguſtus, King of France; where Cardinal Peter of Capua, Innocent the IIId's Legate, Interdicted Philip's Dominions, from Divine Service. That Interdiction laſted ſeven Months, and Philip took Iſemburge again for his Wife. Belleforeſt, l. 3. c. 69, &c.

DILENBURG, a little Town of Weteravia, in Franconia, in Germany, on the Riven Dillen, has a good Caſtle, and belongs to the Houſe of Naſſau, giving its Name to the Branch call'd the Princes of Dillemburg.

DILINGHEN, Lat. Dilinga, a little Town of Suabia, in Germany, on the Danube, near Ulm; it belongs to the Biſhop of Ausbourg, and has an Univerſity founded in 1549. by Cardinal Otthon Trucches, Biſhop of Ausbourg. Thuan. l. 2. Bertius.

DINANT, a Town of the Low-Countries, on the Meuſe, a quarter of a League from Bouvines, four Leagues from Namur, and twelve from Liege, had formerly a Citadel on a ſteep Rock, but was ruined by the French, in 1554. but rebuilt ſince. There is another Dinant, a Town of Britanny, in France, four Leagues from St. Malo. The French took it again in the War of 1672. but were obliged by the Peace of Reſwick 1697. to reſtore both City and Caſtle to the Biſhop and Prince of Liege, in the Condition they were in when the French took them. Thuan. Hiſt. l. 13. Guicciardin. &c.

DINARCHUS, Son to Soſtrates, came to Athens, when Alexander the Great made his Expedition into Aſia, and ſtudied under Theophraſtus. This Dinarchus was a Celebrated Oratour, and gain'd great Summs of Money for making Harangues. Plutarch relates that there were 64 Orations of his Extant, which were preſerv'd to the time of Photius, as he himſelf teſtifies, but now we have but three of them remaining. Plutarch in Vit. Decem Orat. Photius, Cod. 267, &c.

DINOCRATES, a Famous Architect of Macedonia, who being deſirous to be known to Alexander the Great, dreſs'd himſelf like Hercules, with a Lion's Skin, &c. and appearing thus before him, Alexander ask'd preſently who he was. And he anſwer'd, That he was the Architect Dinocrates, and that he came to propoſe unto him the Deſign he had to cut the Mountain Athos in the Shape of a Man, holding a great Town in his Left-hand, and a Cup in his Right-hand to receive the Waters of all the Rivers running out of that Mountain, and pour them into the Sea. Alexander approv'd not that Deſign, but carry'd him into Egypt, and order'd him to build Alexandria. (Vitruvius, l. 2 in Præfat.) Pliny ſaith, That he finiſh'd the Temple of Diana at Epheſus, that was burnt down by Eroſtratus; and afterwards was commanded by Ptolemy Philadelphus, King of Egypt, to build a Temple in Memory of his Wife Arſinoe: But the King's Death hinder'd the Deſign. Plin.

DIOCLESIAN, an Emperour, born at Dioclea, in Dalmatia, was made Free by Annullinus. It is reported, That going through Gaul, a Witch told him he ſhould be Emperour when he had kill'd a Wild-Boar. After that time, he commonly hunted thoſe Creatures. But he miſtook the Sence of the Prediction; for he was not elected Emperour, till he had put Aper, Numerian's Father-in-Law, to Death, which ſignified in Latin a Wild-Boar. The moſt probable Opinion is, That he came to the Empire in 284. Afterwards he aſſociated to the Empire Maximian, Conſtantinus Chlorus, and Galerius Armentarius; gave his Daughter to the laſt; and Theodora, Maximian's Daughter-in-Law, to Chlorus. Thus, by his Prudence, he reduc'd all the Rebels, and pacify'd the Empire. He went into Egypt; and though he had divided the Government, he was honour'd by Maximian like a Maſter, and by the two others like a Father. His Vanity and Folly was ſuch, that he would be worſhipp'd like a God, and have his Subjects kiſs his Feet. He hated the Chriſtians to ſuch a degree, that he began the moſt cruel Perſecution that ever was againſt them. But their Number encreaſed the more: Which Encreaſe, together with his Old Age and Sickneſs, made him reſolve to abdicate the Empire at Nicomedia. Maximian did the ſame at Milan, in 304. Diocleſian retir'd to Salona, in Dalmatia; where he found the Country-Life ſo ſweet, that being deſir'd by ſome to take the Government upon him again, he anſwer'd, Would to God you could ſee the Cabbage which I have planted my ſelf at Salona, you would not trouble me with ſuch Addreſſes. Nevertheleſs, other Authors ſay that he was forc'd to it, and that he did what he could afterwards to be reſtor'd to his Throne. He died at laſt in that ſolitary Place, being grieved to ſee the Church triumphing. We muſt obſerve, that at his coming to the Throne, he ſuppreſs'd the ancient way of Reckoning, and order'd that the Years of his Reign ſhould be inſtead of the Conſulſhips; and that is called Diocleſian's Æra, or Epocha; which was followed for many Centuries by Eccleſiaſtical Authours, till the Emperour Juſtinian's Reign. Euſebius, l. 8. Niceph. l. 6, 7. *Ammian. DIODATI (John) a Famous Miniſter at Geneva, tranſlated the Bible into Italian, and publiſh'd it with ſome Annotations in 1607. He ſtudied chiefly the Clearneſs of Expreſſions, and to avoid the Equivocations of the Original. He tranſlated alſo the Bible into French, and gave the Firſt French Tranſlation of the Hiſtory of the Council of Trent, compos'd by Father Paul. F. Simon.

DIODORUS, of Sicily, liv'd in Julius Cæſar's and Auguſtus's time; and was 30 Years in compoſing his Hiſtorical Bibliotheque at Rome, in 40 Books, whereof we have but 15 left. He travell'd into ſeveral Provinces of Europe and Aſia, to avoid the Miſtakes of ſeveral other Writers, occaſion'd by taking things upon truſt. Pliny ſays he is the firſt of the Greeks who abſtain'd from writing frivolous things. Photius commends his Style, as clear and proper for Hiſtory. Photius, Geſner, Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. l. 2. c. 2, &c.

DIODORUS, a Prieſt of the Church of Antioch, and afterwards Arch-Biſhop of Tarſus in Cilicia, liv'd in the IV. Cent. He was accus'd after his Death to have been one of thoſe who miſled Neſtorius. St. Athanaſius and St. Chryſoſtome give him the Character of a Holy Man; however after his Death, his Writings were found ſomewhat faulty, and cenſur'd accordingly. Theodoret, Hiſt. lib. 4. cap. 23. & deinceps, lib. 5. cap. ult. Socrat. lib. 6. cap. 3. Sozom. lib. 8. cap. 2. Baron. Godeau, Hiſt. Eccleſ. &c.

DIOGENES, of Apollonia, a Philoſopher about the LXXth. Olympiad, who believ'd the Plurality of Worlds; the Vacuum to be Infinite; that the Air being rarified and condens'd, produced New Worlds; that Nothing is made of Nothing, nor reſolv'd into Nothing; that the Earth is Round in the Middle, and hath its hardneſs from the Heat that ſurrounds it; and its Thickneſs and Solidity, from the Cold. Diogen. Laert. Clem. Alex. Suidas, &c.

DIOGENES, a Cynick Philoſopher, was born at Synope, A. R. 341. Being baniſh'd out of his Country, he made the Sect of the Cynicks ſo Famous, that though Antiſthenes his Maſter was the Founder of it, he was nevertheleſs conſider'd as the Head of the Cynicks. He embrac'd a voluntary Poverty, and liv'd in a Tub. Alexander the Great being at Corinth, had the Curioſity to ſee him, and preſs'd him to beg whatever he had a mind to: But Diogenes deſir'd him only not to keep the Sun from him. Which made Alexander ſay, That if he was not Alexander, he would wiſh to be Diogenes. You may find the Particulars of his Hiſtory, and his Sayings, in Diogenes Laertius, l. 6. Some ſay that he died of an Overflowing of Choler; Others, of a Dog's Bite; Others, that he kill'd himſelf, by detaining his Breath: But they all agree that he was ninty Years old, A. R. 431. He compos'd many Works, which are all loſt. (Plutarch, in Vita Alexandri. St. Jerom. La Mothe le Vayer, &c.) He had no other Goods but a Bag, a Stick, and a Wooden Cup; which laſt he broke, and threw away, when he ſaw a Boy drink out of the Hollow of his Hand. His Anſwers were very ingenious. One time, coming into a full Market, at Noon-day, with a Lanthorn in his Hand, and being ask'd what he ſought? He anſwer'd, An honeſt Man. He laugh'd at Grammarians, who neglecting their own falſe ſteps concern'd themſelves with the Ramblings of Ulyſſes: at Muſicians, who ſpent time in Tuning their Inſtruments, when they ſhould labour for a Harmony of their Paſſions; and at Orators, who ſtudyed to Speak well, and not to Act well. Plato having defin'd a Man, Animal bipes implume, he brought a pull'd Cock into the School, and throwing it down, told his Scholars that that was Plato's Man. Seeing a young Debauchee throw Stones at a Gallows; he cry'd, Courage, Man, you will not miſs it always. A Woman having hang'd her ſelf on an Olive-Tree, he ſaid, It were well if all Trees bore ſuch Fruit. One reproaching him, That he had been lewd in his Youth; he anſwer'd, It's becauſe I was what you are, but you will never be what I am. As he was ſold for a Slave, he cry'd, Who will buy a Maſter? And to him that bought him, You muſt diſpoſe your ſelf to obey me (ſaid he) as Great Men do their Phyſicians. Juvenal is thought to point at him, in theſe Verſes;

—— Quanto feliciter hic, qui
Nil cuperet, quam qui totum ſibi comparat Orbem.

Val. Max. Plut. in Vit. Alex.

DIOGENES LAERTIUS, an Hiſtorian, ſo nam'd from Laerta, a little Town in Cilicia, where he was born, in Antoninus the Philoſopher's time. Others think, more probably, that it was his proper Name. He was reputed an Epicurean; and ſome ſay that he compos'd his Ten Books for a Woman nam'd Arria, belov'd by the Emperour. Photius, L. Vives, Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. l. 2. c. 13. The beſt Edition of Laertius is that of Amſterdam, in 2 Vol. Quarto, Printed in 1692.

DIOGNETUS, a General of the Erythreans, in Ionia, who aſſiſted the Mileſians againſt the Inhabitants of Naxos: And during the Siege of the Chief Town, took and marry'd Polycrita; who ſeeing the Mileſians drunk in a publick Feaſt, took a thin piece of Lead; and having writ to her Brother upon it, put it into a Cake, and ſent it him into the Town: And thus the Beſieged, in a Sally, put all the Mileſians to the Sword, Diognetus excepted, becauſe he had been kind to his Wife; but Polycrita going into the Town, died for Joy. Plutarch.

DIOMEDES King of Thrace; fed his Horſes with Humane Fleſh. Hercules, to revenge this Barbarity, kill'd him, and this Exploit is reckon'd as his ninth Labour. Lucretius, lib. 5. Ovid. Metam. lib. 9, &c.

DIOMEDES King of Ætolia, and Son to Tydeus. He is reckon'd next to Achilles and Ajax, the ſtouteſt Officer of all the Greeks that appear'd at the Siege of Troy. He carry'd off the Palladium out of the City by Surprize, and fought with Advantage againſt Æneas. Homer. Ovid. Metam. lib. 13. Virg. Æneid. l. 11, &c.

DION, a Captain of Syracuſa, Hipparinus's Son, whoſe Siſter marry'd Denys, or Dionyſius of Syracuſa. He was Denys's Friend and Favourite. But the Young Denys, in his Abſence, took his Wife away from him, and gave her to another: which oblig'd Dion to turn him out of Syracuſa, A. R. 397. Then the ungrateful Inhabitants elected Heraclides before him: But they were quickly forc'd to call him back again; and having deliver'd his Country, he was murthered by his Friend Callippus, A. R. 400. Plutarch in Vita Dion. Diodor. Sic. l. 16, &c.

DION CASSIUS, ſirnam'd Cocceius and Cocceianus, of Nice, in Bithynia liv'd in the IIId. Century, Son of Apronianus a Conſul, and twice Conſul himſelf Commanded in Africa, and Govern'd Pannonia. He compos'd afterwards a Roman Hiſtory, in 80 Books, which took up 22 Years of his time; the firſt 34 are loſt, ſome Fragments excepted; the 26 following are perfect enough, but we have only the Compendium of the 20 laſt, done by Xiphilin. His Hiſtory was from Æneas to Alexander Severus. He is reputed Partial for Cæſar againſt Pompey, for Antony againſt Cicero, and to have abus'd Seneca. Other Works are alſo attributed unto him as the Life of the Philoſopher Arrian. Memoirs of Trajan, and ſome Travels. His Hiſtory is writ with great Life and Perſpicuity and has many fine Harangues in't. Photius, Suidas, Vignier, Geſner; Voſſius's Hiſt. Græc. l. 2. c. 14. La Mothe le Vayer.

DION (Chryſoſtome) an Orator and Philoſopher of Pruſa in Bithynia. The Emperour Trajan had ſo particular a regard for him, that he would often taken him into his Litter for his Converſation. We have fourſcore Orations of his Extant. Syneſius gives him a great Character. Syneſ. in Dion. Suidas. Photius Bibl. Cod. 229, &c.

DIOPHANTUS of Alexandria, a Famous Mathematician, reputed the Inventor of Algebra, in Antoninus's Reign. His 13 Books of Arithmetick are kept in the Vatican Library; whereof 6 are tranſlated into Latin, and Commented on by Xilander. Voſſius de Math. 10. ſect. 3. p. 37. and Addend. p. 432.

DIOSCORIDES (Pedacius) a Phyſician of Anaxarba, nam'd ſince Cæſarea, in Cilicia: He liv'd in Nero's Reign, and compos'd 7 Books de Materiâ Medicâ. He is different from Phacas, though Voſſius and Suidas be of another Opinion. Galian, Photius, P. Caſtellan, Voſſius de Phil. c. 11.

DIOSCORUS I. Patriarch of Alexandria, ſucceeded St. Cyril, in 444. He renew'd the old Quarrel againſt the Prelate of Antioch, about the Primacy; and maintain'd Eutyches's Errours, which he approv'd in the Council held at Epheſus, in 449. Being return'd to Alexandria, he Excommunicated Pope Leo. But the Year following, he was Depos'd in the Council of Conſtantinople; and ſummon'd to appear in the General Council of Chalcedon, held An. 451. And though he refus'd to appear there, he was nevertheleſs unanimouſly Condemn'd, Depos'd, and afterwards Baniſh'd. He died miſerably, at Gangrea in Paphlagonia, the Place of his Exile. Theodoret, Niceph. l. 14. c. 47. Baronius, Godeau, &c.

DIOSCORUS, Anti-Pope, was oppos'd to Bonifacius II. in 530. and protected by Athanarick, was like to have caus'd a Schiſm; but he died preſently after his Election, and was Excommunicated for Simony, after his Death: but Agapetus, Bonifacius's Succeſſor, gave him Abſolution. Anaſtaſius in Agap. Baronius A. C. 530.

DIOSPOLIS, a Town of Egypt, that had formerly 100 Gates, or 100 ſtately Palaces; and out of each, 200 armed Men could be ſent, in caſe of Neceſſity. Pliny, l. 5. c. 9. Strabo, l. 17. Vid. Thebes.

DIOSPOLIS, call'd by ſome Authors Lidde or St. George, and by others Ramba, a Town of Paleſtine with a Biſhops See, under the Patriarch of Jeruſalem: There was a Council held here, againſt Pelagius, in the Year 415. The Council conſiſted but of fourteen Biſhops; thoſe who inform'd againſt him, not appearing at the Council, and the Eaſtern Biſhops, being unskill'd in the Latin, was the occaſion that the Charge was dropt, and Pelagius acquitted. Hieron. Ep. 76. ad Auguſt. & Alip. Baron. A. C. 415. T. 2. Concil.

DIOSPOLITES, the Name of the Kings of Egypt, who reigned at Dioſpolis, the Chief Town of their Kingdom, in the Lower Egypt, (different from Thebes, nam'd alſo Dioſpolis.) There were ſeven Dinaſty's of the Dioſpolites; that is, ſeven Families, that reigned at Dioſpolis. Carudes, Son of Menes, had for his ſhare all Lower Egypt, and had many Succeſſors under him. The 19th. nam'd Ameſiſes, a new Dinaſty, was form'd at Dioſpolis, which had ſeventeen Kings, though it laſted but ſeventeen Years. Thus they count the ſeven Dinaſties, or Families, that reign'd at Dioſpolis. The ſecond begun in Seſonchoris, and had ſeven Kings. The third had ſixty in 184 Years. The fourth laſted 250 Years, but its not known how many Kings were of it. The Fifth is ſaid to have begun about Moſes's time, and had ſeventeen Kings, who conquered the Territories of Memphis. Sethoſis, which ſome ſay is the famous Seſoſtris of the Græcians was the Firſt of the Sixth. The Seventh and laſt Dinaſty held 178 Years, under twelve Kings, whereof Nechepſos was the firſt, and Vennephes the laſt. Paul Pezron Antiquité des Temps.

DIPHILUS of Sinope, a Comick Poet, often cited by Athenæus, and others of the Ancients: It is not certainly known when he liv'd. Athen. Deip. Voſ. de Hiſt. Græc. p. 360, &c.

DIPTYCHA: This word is found in the ancient Liturgies of the Græcians, and ſignifies two Tables, or Tables joined together like Moſes's Tables, where the Names of the Deceaſed to be ſolemnized in the Church were written; and of the Living alſo, chiefly of Biſhops, who had the firſt Place in thoſe Tables. It was the Deacon's Office to receit thoſe Names, during the Liturgy: And the Uſe of thoſe Tables was received in the Latin Church, as it was in the Eaſtern. F. Simon.

DISCORD, a Goddeſs whom the Ancients worſhipped, to avoid the Evils which ſhe occaſions. She was commonly repreſented with her Hair ſtanding upright, and ſhaped like Serpent's Heads; a burning Torch in one Hand, and in the other three Scrouls, on which were writ, Suits, Wars and Confuſions. Poets feign, That Jupiter baniſh'd her out of Heaven: She being offended that ſhe was not invited to Peleus and Thetis's Wedding, as all other Gods and Goddeſſes were, threw a Golden Apple among 'em, which occaſion'd great Evils. Virg. Petron.

DITMARSH, as well as Stormar, are Countries belonging to Denmark, lying the neareſt to the River Elbe, and are for the moſt part Low and Rich Grounds; the Soil being Fat, and in moſt places reſembling Holland, as well in its Fertility as manner of Improvement. Theſe Countries alſo enjoy the benefit of having Hamburg and the River near them, with the additional advantage of the Ocean; though it ſometimes proves too troubleſome a Neighbour, and overflows a great part of their Lower Grounds, notwithſtanding the Banks and Ditches that are raiſed to keep it out.

DIU, an Iſland and a great Town of the Eaſt Indies, in the Kingdom of Guzarate, belonging to the Portugueſe above theſe Hundred and Fifty Years. It has an excellent Haven. (S. Oſorius, l. 9.) There is an impregnable Fortreſs; becauſe it is ſurrounded with two Ditches fill'd with Sea-Water, and defended by many Baſtions built on the Rock. The Trade was great there, but much leſſen'd by the Dutch. M. Thevenot's Travels, T. 2.

DIVAN, the Grand Salle, or Council Chamber at Conſtantinople, where the Miniſters of ſtate meet, about publick buſineſs. The Chief Council of State at Algier, is likewiſe call'd the Divan: And the Divan in Perſia has the ſame ſignification as in Turky. Thevenot.

DIVANDUROU, The Name of Five or Six little Iſlands in the Indian-Sea, belonging to the King of Cananor; they are about 30 Leagues from the Iſle of Malicut towards the Maldivians. They are very ſmall, but very Healthful to live in.

DIVICON, a General of the Helvetians (now call'd the Swiſs) who made himſelf conſiderable by the defeat of Caſſius, and by his freedom and aſſurance in his Converſation with Julius Cæſar, to whom he was ſent, as an Ambaſſador to Treat with him about a Confederacy: For Cæſar demanding the Hoſtages for performance of Articles; Divicon anſwer'd, that 'twas not the cuſtom of his Country-men to give Hoſtages, but to receive 'em: And ſo took his leave. Cæſar de Bell. Gal.

DIVINATION, the Art of Divining, or knowing Futurities by the help of the Devil, with whom a Covenant is made. This is an impious Art, and full of Illuſions; becauſe grounded upon the fallacious Knowledge of the Devil, who can know things unknown to Man; but not Futurities, except by Conjectures. There are many ſorts of Divinations, the chief whereof are done by Augurs, or Auſpices; by Events; by Dreams; by Charms; by a Sieve, or a Ring; by Phyſiognomy; by Chiromancy; and by Judicial Aſtrology. The Pagans were very Superſtitious in their Auguries. Natural Augurs are lawful; but the Artificial, invented on purpoſe, or ſuggeſted by the Devil are unlawful. Divination by Events, is alſo Superſtitious; for it is ridiculous to believe that it is an unlucky thing, for Example, to meet with a Monk, a Virgin, or a Hare, in a Morning, &c. As for Dreams, they are, either Divine, Natural, Moral, or Diabolical: The Divine are ſent by God; the Natural proceed from the Temper of Men: The Cholerick Perſons Dreaming commonly of Quarrels, Fights, Fires, &c. the Moral proceed from the Inclinations and Manners of every one: The Diabolical are caus'd by the Devil, and ſuggeſt nothing but Revenge, Deſpair, &c. It is a Superſtition, to pretend to know Futurities by Dreams, except they be certainly Divine. Divination by Charms, ſuppoſeth an expreſs or tacit Covenant with the Devil; and thence properly Sorcerers were nam'd, though this Name has been given ſince to Magicians. The Divination by a Sieve, was much us'd formerly, and Sorcerers practiſe it ſtill; and this Diabolical Art is call'd Coſcinomancy, from Κόσκινον, a Sieve; and μαντεία, Divination. The Axinomancy is done with an Axe ſet perpendicular, which ſtirs as ſoon as the Criminal is nam'd. The Dactylomancy, or Divination with a Ring hanging over a Glaſs full of Water, wherein ſome Figures appear, is alſo one of the Devil's Arts to deceive Men. That Name is alſo given to a kind of Divination with the help of a Speaking Ring; that is, a Familiar Spirit, which Sorcerers keep in the Beazle of a Ring. Phyſiogmony is alſo a deceitful Art, and can produce nothing but uncertain Conjectures. The ſame may be ſaid of Chiromancy. Judicial Aſtrology is ſo call'd, becauſe its Followers pretend to judge of Futurities, by looking on the Stars, which they ſuppoſe to influence the Mind and Will of Men, &c. This Art is condemn'd by the Learned, the Civil Laws, and the Canons of the Church. There are ſome Natural Preſages of Futurities, depending on the Order that God has inſtituted in the World: As it's a ſign of Calm, when Divers leave the Sea; and of Fair Weather, when Bats fly far into the Fields from Houſes. When Swallows fly low in Summer, it commonly denotes Rain; becauſe that the Inſects they live on being kept down by the Clouds which bear that way, are not able to get higher; the Spring of the Air being then weakened, theſe Birds keep low, to Prey upon them. Rats and Mice quit Houſes, when ready to drop down; and Ships when Old and Rotten, either through want of Food, or that they are diſlodg'd by ſome part of the Structure falling into and filling their Neſts. It's ſaid, that Julius Cæſar falling all along as he landed in Africa, look'd upon it as a good Sign, and cry'd, I hold you, Africa: And that William the Conqueror having the like Miſchance on his Arrival in England, got up, chearfully ſaying, I took Poſſeſſion of the Land. Which though Succeſs verified in both, it were great weakneſs to think there was any Connection between thoſe Accidents and what happened afterwards: Nor were what they ſaid, other than witty Sayings, to cure the Imagination of the Weaker Sort, who would be apt to fear ſome ill Succeſs from ſuch Accidents. Thiers Traitté des Superſtitions.

DIXMUYDE, a little, but very pleaſant Town of Flanders, 3 Leagues from Newport, and about the ſame diſtance from Furnes, Famous for a Fair in July. In the Year 1692. it was taken from the French by ſome Engliſh Troops, but loſt again that Winter; but being poſſeſt of it in 1695. it was Beſieged by Count Montal, with part of the French Army, and ſoon after Surrender'd by Major General, Ellenburg, upon ſuch diſhonourable Terms, that ſome time after he paid for it with the loſs of his Head.

He was much eſteemed by the Emperor Charles V. who deſign'd him to write the Spaniſh Hiſtory; of which he publiſh'd 5 Books under the Title of Los cinco Libros Primeros de la Cronica general de Eſpagna. He likewiſe wrote other Treatiſes, (viz.) Libro de Linages & Armas, &c. There was another Docampo, (Gonſalvo) Archbiſhop of Lima in Peru, where he Died in 1626. 'tis ſaid he is the Author of the Book Intitled, Del Govierno Del Peru. Nichol. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

DOCETÆ, certain Hereticks, Marcion's Followers, ſo nam'd from δοκεῖν, to appear: becauſe they believ'd that Jeſus Chriſt's Sufferings were not real, but only ſeemingly. Le Sueur Hiſt. de l'Egliſe, &c.

DOCKUM, a Town in Weſt-Freizland, with a Court of Admiralty belonging to the Province. It is Situate about two Leagues from Lewardin, upon a Canal near the Sea; there is a Manuſcript of the 4 Goſpels, written as 'tis ſaid, by Boniface Archbiſhop of Mentz.

DOCTORS, This Title ſeems to have been created in the XII*th*. Century, inſtead of Maſter; and eſtabliſh'd with the other Scholaſtick Degrees of Batchelors, and Licentiates, by Peter Lombard, and Gilbert Porreus, then the chief Divines of the Univerſity of Paris. Gratian did the ſame thing at the ſame time, in the Univerſity of Bologne. Nevertheleſs, thoſe two Names of Maſter and Doctor, have been us'd a long time together: But many think that their Functions were different; the Maſters teaching Humane Sciences; and the Doctors, thoſe Sciences depending on Revelation and Faith. Some Specifick Epithets were added to the Title of Doctor; as that of Angelick, Seraphick, &c. (Voſſius Etymolog. Poſſev. in Appar. Sacr. Baillet jugemens deſ. Scavans) The

Name

Name of Doctor is different in the Eaſtern Church. The Grecians uſe the Word διδάσκαλος taken out of the New Teſtament, where it ſignifies the Biſhops and Paſtors, who taught the Goſpel; and it is among them, what they call in France Theologal. There are ſeveral ſorts of them; for there was one, for Example, in the great Church of Conſtantinople, ſet up to explain the Goſpels, who was call'd Didaſcalos, or Doctor of the Goſpel; another to explain St. Paul's Epiſtles, whom they call'd Didaſcalos, or The Apoſtle's Doctor; another to explain the Pſalms, &c. The Grecian Biſhops conferr ſtill thoſe ſorts of Offices by Impoſition of Hands, as 'tis practiſ'd in Ordinations. R. Simon.

DOCTOR-SHIP, a Dignity beſtowed in Univerſities, upon Learned Men, who having perform'd all the Acts, take their Degrees ſolemnly. Rhenanus, in præfat. in Tertull. ſaith, that about 1140. thoſe that did Publickly read the Book of Peter Lombard, the Biſhop of Paris's Sentences, began to be call'd Doctors. In England, the Doctor's Name, or Degree, was firſt known in King John's Reign, about 1207. and by a Decree of the Univerſity of Oxford, 1384. the Doctors of Phyſick got Preeminence above the Doctors of Law, in Richard's Reign. In Germany, the Title of Doctor, was diſtinguiſh'd from that of Maſter, in 1135. in the Emperor Lothaire's Reign. Spelman Gloſſar. Arch.

Chriſtian DOCTRINE, a Religious Congregation founded by B. Cæſar de Bus, born in Provence: And it was Inſtituted to Catechize the People, following the Apoſtle's Example. This Order was approv'd by Clement VIII. And Paul V. permitted thoſe Teachers to make Vows, and united them to the Regular Clerks of Somaska. But afterwards they were made a diſtinct Congregation by Innocent X. in 1647. under a particular and French General. They have Three Provinces in France, viz. That of Avignon, of Paris, and of Tholouſe: The Firſt has 3 Houſes and 10 Colleges; the Second 4 Houſes, and 3 Colleges; the Third, 4 Houſes, and 13 Colleges.

DOGE, a Name given to the Head of the Republick of Venice; which ſignifies Duke. He was almoſt Abſolute formerly; but now can do nothing, nor go out of Venice without the Senate's conſent; ſo he is for the Republick, and not the Republick for him. He receives the Ambaſſadors; and the Credential Letters are in his Name: Nevertheleſs they are not Sign'd by him, but by the Senate's Secretary. The Money is coin'd in his Name, but not with his Figure. He has many Privileges; and being Elected, he enjoyeth that Dignity for his Life: He is the chief in all the Councils, has the Title of Moſt Serene, and all the Marks of a King; and nothing is more pompous than the Doge and Senators in their Robes of State. See Venice

DOL, in Latin Dolum, a Town in Upper Brittany, in France, belonging to the Parliament of Rheims; It has likewiſe a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Tours. DOMINICA, One of the Caribby Iſlands in the Northern America, between Martinico and Guadaloupa. It is near 20 Leagues about, and call'd ſo, becauſe it was diſcover'd on the 4th. of Auguſt, St. Dominick's Holy-Day.

DOMINICANS, or PREACHERS, a Religious Order founded by St. Dominick, approved by Innocent III. in the Council of Lateran 1215, and confirmed by Honorius III. under St. Auſtin's Rules, and the Founder's particular Conſtitutions. In France they were Nam'd Jacobins, becauſe their firſt Convent in Paris, was in St. James's-Street, in French, Rue St. Jacques. John Michaelis's Reformation of that Order was confirm'd by Paul V. in 1608. and receiv'd in France.

ST. DOMINICK de Guſman, a Spaniſh Gentleman, was the Founder of the Preachers, or Dominican's Order. He Preach'd againſt the Albigenſes with a great Zeal, and Died at Bologne, in Italy 1221. Pope Gregory IX canoniz'd him, 1235.

ST. DOMINICK, a Military Order eſtabliſh'd by the ſame St. Dominick againſt the Albigenſes, the Knights were nam'd *Jeſus Chriſt's Soldiers, or the Brethren of St.*Dominick's Militia, had a white and black Croſs with Flower-de-luces and follow'd ſince the 3d. Rule of St. Dominick.

DOMINIQUIN, a famous Italian Painter nam'd Domenico Zampieri, brought up by the Caraches; he was ſlow, but a great Artiſt. He drew St. Hierom ſo well, that the famous Pouſſin eſteem'd it one of the fineſt Pieces in Rome. He excell'd in the Art of Expreſſing well the diverſe Inclinations of thoſe he repreſented. Felibien.

DOMINIS, [Mark Anthony de] Archbiſhop of Spalato in Dalmatia, he left the Dominicans, and went among the Jeſuits, but left that Society to be Biſhop of Segni, and afterwards Archbiſhop of Spalato. He retir'd into England among the Proteſtants, and ſtaid there from the beginning of James I's. Reign, to 1622. and compos'd a Book de Republica Chriſtiana. Then he return'd to Rome, where he recanted his Opinions; but his Letters to ſome Proteſtants being intercepted, he was made Priſoner, and dy'd in Priſon in 1625. After his Death, his Opinions being not found agreeable to the Church of Rome, his Corps was dug up, and burnt with his Writings in Flora's Field by a Decree of the Inquiſition. [M. Dominis's Story may be found in a long Letter in Bilanciâ Politic de Beccalini T. 3. or in the 4th. Vol. of Teatro Britannico de Greg. Teti.]

DOMITIAN, The Emperor Veſpaſian's Son, and the laſt of the 12 Cæſars; he Poiſon'd Titus his Brother, to be Emperor, as many think. He made good Laws at firſt, finiſhed many Buildings, and reſtor'd the Libraries that were burnt; but afterwards he became ſo Cruel and Impious, that he put many conſiderable Perſons to Death, began the Second Perſecution againſt the Chriſtians, Debauch'd his own Niece, delighted in Sodomy, took the Name of God and of Lord, and was like to do worſe; but he was murther'd by Stephen. Suetonius ſaith, That the Day before he Dy'd, he order'd ſome Fruit to be kept for him, and added, If I be able to Eat it: And ſpeaking to thoſe that were preſent, he ſaid, That the next Day the Moon would be Bloody in the Sign of Aquarius; and that ſomething ſhould happen that would be a ſubject of Diſcourſe throughout all the World. Chronologers infer thence, That he dy'd Two Years ſooner than Baronius ſaith, viz. in 96. of J. C. Apollonius Tyanæus, a famous Magician, being then at Epheſus, and haranguing the People at the time of the Murther, drew back Two or Three Paces, and looking frightfully on the Ground, he cry'd, Strike the Tyrant, Strike the Tyrant. This prov'd to be ſpoken at the ſame Minute, as 'tis reported. In the beginning of his Reign he us'd to retire into his Cloſet, and paſs'd his time in catching of Flies, and piercing 'em with a Bodkin. Which made Vibius Criſpus anſwer pleaſantly, when ask'd, Who was with the Emperor? Not one living Body, ſaid he, not ſo much as a Fly, Eutropius, Aurel. Victor, Xiphilin, Petavius, Baronius T. 1. Annal. Domitian was a fine Man, well ſhap'd, had a modeſt look, and became bald very young, which griev'd him much: Therefore in Medals and Pieces of Money, he was not repreſented ſo. Spon's Recherches d' Antiquité.

DOMITIANS, a Family. The Family of the Domitians,, or of Domitius, was very conſiderable at Rome. The Emperor Domitius was of another, viz. The Family of the Flavians. That Family was divided into two Branches, viz. of the Calvini, and of the Ænobarbi: Which laſt deriv'd its Original from L. Domitius, who was ſaid to have a Beard of Braſs, becauſe he had one of that Colour. To which the Orator Lucinius Craſſus alludes; where he ſays, It's not at all ſtrange he ſhould have a Beard of Braſs, whoſe Mouth was Iron, and Heart of Lead. Both produc'd many Magiſtrates and Great Men. Suetonius, Tacitus, Dion, Eutropius, Tit. Liv. Pliny, Caſſiodorus's Chron.

DOMITILLA, Daughter to the Emperor Domitian, was upon her turning Chriſtian, baniſh'd by her Father, into the Iſle of Pontia, lying in the Mare-Tyrrhenum; from thence ſhe was brought to Terracina in the Reign of Trajan, in the Year of our Lord 102. Where having ſhew'd a great deal of fortitude in Defence of her Belief, ſhe was at laſt burnt in her Chamber with Euphoſine and Theodora. Le Sueur. An. 95, & 102.

DOMNUS, or Donus, a Roman, Son of Mauritius, was made Pope in 676 after the Death of Adeodatus, he held the See but a Year, Five Months and Ten Days. Anaſtaſius mentions a Comet which appeared for three Months together in his Pontificate; and Bede adds, that it foretold three Years Drought, and a terrible Plague which follow'd upon it. Platin. Ciaconius, &c.

DOMNUS II. a Roman, was choſen Pope after John XIII. He was a Man of great moderation, and though his Government was ſhort, and he did nothing very extraordinary, yet he was never charg'd with any Injuſtice or Diſhonourable Action. This Domnus or Donus Dy'd in the firſt Year of his Pontificate, and was Buried in St. Peter's Church; the See remaining vacant but two Days, Sigebert, Platina, Baron, A. C. 971.

DONALD I. the 27th King of Scotland, was a Juſt and Excellent Prince; he kept the Country in Peace by his Authority and prudent Government, and in a continual uſe of their Arms notwithſtanding. He was the firſt of the Scottiſh Kings who embraced Chriſtianity, which was received there by Authority, about 187. But though he, and many of his Nobles did make Profeſſion thereof, they could not wholly extirpate Heatheniſm. In his Time, the Emperor Severus brought a greater Force to ſubdue the Iſland, than ever any other of the Romans had done. Whereupon the Scots and Picts withdrew into their Faſtneſſes, and not being able to Fight the Romans, haraſs'd them by Ambuſhes, and frequent Skirmiſhes, leaving Cattle for them here and there, and falling upon them while intent on the Prey; ſo that they cut off 50000 of their Men, according to Dion. But Severus, though Sick and carried in a Litter during the whole Expedition, march'd with an incredible Fatigue to the furtheſt parts of the Iſland, cutting down Woods, making Bridges and filling Marſhes; ſo that he oblig'd the Scots and Picts to abandon a great part of the Country, and accept Conditions of Peace, and penn'd them up by a Wall 80 Miles beyond Adrian's, between the Mouth of the Forth, and the Clyde, a Work of ſo much Grandure and State, that Ælius Spartianus calls it the greateſt Ornament of his Empire. There are ſeveral of its Ruins ſtill to be ſeen, and Monuments ſuppoſed to be the Remains of the Temple of Terminus or Claudius Cæſar. Donald having ſettled Peace again by this Agreement, dy'd in the 21ſt. of his Reign. Buchan.

DONALD II. the 32d. King of Scotland, was defeated in the firſt Year of his Reign, and dy'd of the Wounds which he receiv'd in Battle againſt Donald of the Iſles, who ſucceeded him under the Name of DONALD III. who behaving himſelf in a Tyrannical manner, was cut off in the 12th Year of his Reign by Crathilinthus of the Blood-Royal, who ſucceeded him. This happen'd about 260. Buchan.

DONALD IV. the 53d. King of Scotland, was a Pious Prince, maintain'd the Worſhip of God at home, and endeavoured to propagate it abroad. He entertained the Children and Kindred of Ethelfrid, who were Exiles in Scotland, with great Kindneſs; furniſh'd them with Forces and other Neceſſaries for their Return, gave them great Gifts, and Liberty to come and go as occaſion required, and ſent Preachers to inſtruct the Northumbrians in the Goſpel. He Died in the 4th. of his Reign, about 637. leaving a precious Memory behind him. Buchan.

DONALD V. the 70th. King of Scotland, was a Licentious and Diſſolute Prince, quite ruin'd the publick Diſcipline, neglected the Advice of his Ancient Counſellors, and govern'd all by the Advice of his Companions, in Riot. Whereof the Picts taking Advantage, they invited the Engliſh to join with them, and invade the Scots; and accordingly they came to a Battle on the River Jedd, where Donald obtain'd the Victory; and marching down the River Tweed, recovered Barwick, which the Engliſh had taken, and ſeized their Ships in the Mouth of the River. Being fluſht with thoſe Succeſſes, he return'd to his former Voluptuouſneſs. Which the Engliſh laying hold of, they aſſembled their Forces, and aſſaulted the Scots by Night, while heavy with Drink and Sleep, and making a great Slaughter, took the King Priſoner; and following their Victory, divided their Army into Two Bodies, and took all the Country South of Sterling, from the Picts, and divided the Pictiſh Lands betwixt themſelves and the Britains, and baniſh'd and cut off the remainder of the Picts, to prevent their ſolliciting of Foreign Aid. Donald being reſtored after the Peace, and continuing his former Courſe of Life, the Nobility doubting that he would alſo loſe the reſt of the Kingdom, threw him into Priſon, where he laid Violent Hands on himſelf. Others ſay, That this Donald was famous for his Atchievements at Home and Abroad; and that he dyed a natural Death at Scone. An. 858. Buchan.

DONALD VI. the 74th King of Scotland, was a Peaceable and yet a Warlike Prince; took care that his Soldiers ſhould not grow Luxurious, and aſſiſted King Alured againſt the Danes. Fordon ſays, he dy'd at Forreſſe in the North of Scotland going to ſuppreſs ſome Diviſions that were amongſt the Northern Shires: But Boetius ſays, He dy'd in Northumberland, in obſerving the Motion of the Danes, An. 903. his Memory being precious to all Men. Buchan.

DONALD VII. the 84th. King of Scotland, while Governour of Cumberland, did faithfully aſſiſt the Engliſh againſt the Danes; and when advanc'd to the Crown, did govern with great Juſtice. His firſt Troubles were occaſioned by Mackdonald of the Iſles, who having Wounded Bancho, Thane of Lochaber, and kill'd another of the King's Miniſters, as adminiſtring Juſtice, he broke out into Rebellion, and Overthrew Malcolm, with the King's Army: Whereupon Macbeth and Bancho were ſent againſt him, and defeated him. After this the Danes, under Conduct of Sueno King of Norway Landed in Scotland, and defeated the Scots near Culroſſe, who retiring to Perth, Sueno purſued, and received a fatal Overthrow by a Stratagem, the Scots deluding him with Propoſals of Peace; and mixing the Drink which they gave his Army with Nightſhade, did fall upon them, when intoxicated, and cut moſt of them off. But this Victory was ſcarcely obtain'd when they were alarm'd afreſh by a new Daniſh Navy, which Landed Men in Fiſe, and plunder'd the Country. But Bancho being ſent againſt them, defeated them, and killed their Leaders at the firſt Rancounter. Whereupon the Danes having made ſo many fruitleſs Attempts on Scotland, ſwore ſolemnly, That they would never return thither in a Hoſtile manner. Peace being thus obtain'd, Macbeth being encourag'd by a Dream to aſpire to the Throne, cut off Donald in an Ambuſh, and uſurp'd the Throne about 1091. Buchan.

DONALD VIII. the 87th. King of Scotland, Brother to King Malcolm, having fled for fear of Macbeth, promis'd all the Iſlands to Magnus King of Norway, if, by his Aſſiſtance, he could obtain the Crown. He had alſo a Faction in Scotland who were diſſatisfied, that the Engliſh Exiles who came in with Edgar Atheling, and his Siſter, Queen to the former King, ſhould enjoy Eſtates in Scotland. But Donald having acquired the Crown by ſuch indirect Means, was hated by the Nobility, who ſent for Duncan, a Natutal Son of Mal- colm, who had obtain'd much Credit in the Wars under William Rufus, and conſtrained him to flie about Six Months after he had uſurp'd the Throne, about 1103. Buchan.

DONATISTS, a Name given in the IV. Century to Donatus's Followers, who from Schiſmaticks, became Hereticks. They believed, That the Son was above the Holy Ghoſt, and the Father above the Son; that there was no vertuous People in the Church, therefore their Diſciples were Baptiz'd again; they put Churchmen to Death, profaned the Conſecrated Veſſels, &c. and affirm'd, That the Church was extinct. Several Councils were held againſt thoſe Hereticks; but their Rage was ſuch againſt the Orthodox, that they joined with the Vandals to perſecute them. St. Auſtin endeavoured to convert them. St. Auſtin. Hær. 69. Ep. 48. St. Hierom. A. C. 331. 360. Baronius. A. C. 306. and 313.

DONATUS, Biſhop of Numidia, began the Schiſm in the African Church in 306. and was Condemn'd by Pope Melchiades; and therefore not acknowledged by the Donatiſts for their Founder. St. Auſtin, c. 69. de Hær. Baronius Ann.

DONATUS, a Schiſmatick Biſhop of Carthage, who ſucceeded Majorinus. He gave his Name to the Donatiſts, and encreaſed the Schiſm by his Eloquence and Inſolence; which was ſuch, that he would be honour'd by his Followers like a God. They did Swear by him, and affirm'd, That he was free from Sin. His Doctrine was, That though Jeſus Chriſt was of the ſame Subſtance with the Father, nevertheleſs he was leſs than his Father. He dy'd about 368. St. Auſtin, c. 69. de Hær. St. Hierom. Baronius Ann.

DONATUS (Ælius) a Grammarian, liv'd at Rome in the IV. Cent. and was one of St. Jerom's Maſters. He wrote Notes upon Terence and Virgil, and made a Grammar. Voſſius mentions the Lives of Virgil and Terence, of which Donatus the Grammarian is commonly made the Author, but he Believes the firſt was written by Tiberius Claudius Donatus, as 'tis certain the latter was by Suetonius. St. Hierom in Chron. A. C. 360. Voſſius Orat. Inſt. l. 6. c. 2. De Hiſt. Lat. l. 3. c. 2, &c.

DONCASTER, or Duncaſter, a Town in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, ſituate on the River Done, or Dune, on the Road between York and London, call'd by Antoninus, Danum. 'Tis a large, well built, and well inhabited Town, Corporate, Govern'd by a Mayor and Aldermen, and hath a good Trade for Stockings, Knit-Waſtecoats, Petticoats and Gloves. It has had the Honour of giving the Title of an Earl to James, late Duke of Monmouth, and ſome Others. From London 155. Miles.

DONCHERI, a well fortified Borrough of Champaign in France, on the Meuſe near Sedan.

DONDUS, [James] a famous Phyſician of Padoua, firnam'd Aggregator, becauſe of his great Collection of Remedies. He was alſo a great Mathematician, and invented a new ſort of Clock, which, beſides the Hours marked alſo the annual Motion of the Sun, the daily Motion of the Moon, the Days of the Month, and the Holy Days of the Year, and all the Motions of the Planets. The ſucceſs of that Invention gave ſuch a Name to its Author, that he was call'd afterwards, James of the Clock, and the Name continued in his Family, which is conſiderable at Padoua. He found alſo the way of making Salt with Spring-Water, and made a pound of Salt with a 1000 pounds of Water. Bernard Scard.

DONGALLUS, the 67th. King of Scotland, being ſo ſevere in his Government that the Soldiery could not endure it, gathered themſelves to Alpinus, the Son of Achaius, whom they forced to be their Leader; but having gathered together an Army, and pretending to do as they directed, he diſappointed them, and fled to Dongallus. The Rebels being thereupon diſmay'd, accuſed him to the King as the Author of the'r Revolt; but the King being ſatiſfied of the contrary, ſurprized and put the Chief of 'em to Death. Dongallus, as he paſs'd the Spey to make War upon the Picts, was drown'd in the 6th. of his Reign, about 880. Buchan.

DONGARDUS, the 42d. King of Scotland came to the Crown in 452. He was a Prince fitted both for Peace and War; and though he had no occaſion for the latrer, yet he train'd up his Soldiers ſo, as they might be ready in caſe of need: He applied himſelf to the Reformation of Religion, and to extirpate the Remainders of the Pelagian Hereſie, againſt which, Pope Celeſtine ſent Palladius in his Father Eugenius's Time: And this Palladius was the firſt who appointed Biſhops in Scotland. The Church there, as ſome affirm, before that time, being govern'd by the Monks of thoſe Days. The Scots being thus intent on Reforming of Religion, eſcap'd the Tempeſt of War, which at that time did ſhake the Univerſe. In his Time flouriſh'd Patrick, Servanus, Ninian and Mungo, Diſciples of Palladius, Men famous for Learning and Sanctity; and at this time Sainted in the Roman Calendar. Dongardus made a League with the Picts and Britains againſt the Saxons, and dy'd in the 5th. Year of his Reign, An. 457. Buchan.

DONNE (John) Dr. of Divinity, born in London. His Father was a Merchant of a good Eſtate, Deſcended from an Ancient Family in Wales; where, in the Doctor's time, many of them made a Conſiderable Figure. By his Mother he was Deſcended from Sir Thomas More, Lord Chancellor of England. He had ſo great a Genius for Learning, and was Educated with that Care, that at Nine Years Old he was ſent to the Univerſity of Oxford, having, at that Age, a command of the French and Latin Tongues: Afterwards at Fourteen Years Old, he removed to Cambridge, and Three Years after to Lincoln's Inn. Being about Twenty Years Old he Travell'd into Italy and Spain where he made many uſeful Obſervations upon the Laws and Government of theſe Countries; and return'd home Maſter of the Languages ſpoken there. He Married a Daughter of Sir George More, Chancellor of the Garter, and Lieutenant of the Tower; and afterwards, applying himſelf to the Canon and Civil Laws, made a great Progreſs in that Study, and now being known to King James the firſt, he was commanded by his Majeſty, to Anſwer the Objections of the Roman Catholicks againſt the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, which was perform'd by Mr. Donne in his Pſeudo-Martyr; the King upon the peruſal of this Book, perſwaded him to take Orders; he ſubmitted to his Majeſty's Advice, after Three Years time taken for Recollection, and perfecting himſelf in Greek, Hebrew, and the Study of Divinity. Soon after he went out Doctor in Divinity at Cambridge, was made Chaplain to his Majeſty, and Preacher at Lincoln's Inn. And when the King ſent the Earl of Carliſle, his Ambaſſador into Germany, Doctor Donne Travell'd with him as a Divine: Not long after his return into England he had the Deanry of St. Paul's given him, with ſome other Church-Preferment. DORCHESTER, Lat. Dorceſtria, or Darnovarda, the Chief Place of Dorſetſhire, is about a 100 Miles South Weſt, and by Weſt from London. It ſtands on the South ſide of the River Frome, 4 Miles from the Sea, and has been of a large Compaſs, as may be conjectur'd by the track of its old Walls and Trenches; but has been ſo ill us'd by the Danes, that it could never recover its former Wealth and Beauty. It conſiſts at preſent of three fair Streets, and as many Pariſhes. The Maiden Caſtle, ſuppos'd to have been a Summer Camp, or Station of the Romans, when their Garriſons kept the Frontiers of this Province, is about 300 Paces from the Town to the Southward, and contains above Five Acres, and is rais'd 30 Paces above the neighbouring Ground. The Town is Noted particularly for the Title of Marquiſs, it gave once to Henry Pierrepont, created Marquiſs of Dorcheſter, by King Charles I. An. 1645.

DORDRECHT, or DORT, Dordrachum, the Chief Town of Holland. It is very Ancient, the firſt that Votes in the States of Holland, and ſituated in an Iſland between the Rivers Meuſe, Merwe, Rhine, and Linghe. It is well built and rich, and had the Right alone to Coyn Money, but now Weſt-Frieſeland has the ſame Privilege. It was formerly the Reſidence of the Earls of Holland, and the Staple-Town for Merchandizes Exported, but now it is the Staple-Town only for Rheniſh-Wines. It was ſeparated from the Continent, in 1421. by a Flood, which drowned above ſeventy Villages or Caſtles, and about 100000 Perſons. There was held the Famous National Synod, in 1618. to decide the Controverſies between the Gomariſts, or Contra-Remonſtrants, and the Remonſtrants or Arminians, about Predeſtination. Guichardin, Cluverius, Montanus, &c.

DORIA, a Family. The Houſe of Doria, at Genoua, is Noble and Ancient, and has produc'd many Great Men: As, DORIA (Andrew) of Genoua, one of the moſt Famous Sea-Captains of the XVIth Century, who was made, by Francis I. General of the French Galleys, about 1525. But in 1528. he left France, to ſerve the Emperour: He routed the French Galleys, took Naples and Savone, reſtor'd Liberty to his Country; and ſettled the Government of the Republick ſo, that the Nobles were admitted to the Supreme Magiſtracy, whence they were excluded before; and bringing the popular Families down, he encreaſed the Nobles Authority; which renewed the Hatred between theſe two Factions. John-Lewis de Fieſque, Earl of Lavagna, oppos'd Doria; but the Earl dying, Doria had the Advantage. He ſignaliz'd himſelf on ſeveral Occaſions. It is reported of him, that he was Cruel. He died Iſſueleſs. Sigonius, Du Bellay, Thuanus, Brantome, &c.

DORIS, an ancient Country of Achaia, in Greece, call'd now Val de Livady, as ſome ſay. It contained the Towns of Lilæa, Erinæa, Boium, Cytinium, &c. and gave its Name to a Country of the Leſſer Aſia. The Dorick Dialect, one of the four among the Græcians, was us'd by the Lacedæmonians, Argians; and afterwards, in Epirus, Lydia, Sicily, Crete, and at Rhodes: It was made uſe of by Archimedes, Theocritus and Pindar. Δῶρον ſignifies a Gift: Whence the Proverb of Dorica Muſa, in Ariſtophanes, for thoſe that make Verſes to be rewarded. Strabo, l. 10. Ptolemy, l. 3. c. 12, &c.

DORMER (Sir Robert) deſcended of a Noble and Ancient Family, upon the Diſtribution of the Lands, which came to the Crown, by the Diſſolution of Monaſteries, in King Henry the VIIIth's Reign, he obtain'd a Grant to himſelf, and Jane his Wife, in Fee of the Mannor of Wenge, in Com. Bucks, part of the Poſſeſſions belonging to the Abbey of St. Albans. To him ſucceeded William, made Knight of the Bath, at the Coronation of Queen Mary; who left Iſſue Robert; who being a Knight, 13 Jac. was advanced to the Dignity of a Baronet, the 10th of June, in the ſame Year; and upon the 30th of that Month, created a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Dormer of Wenge. He had Iſſue by Elizabeth, Daughter of Anthony Viſcount Montague, three Sons; William, his Heir; Anthony Dormer, of Grove-Park, in Com. Warwick, Eſq; and Robert Dormer, of Peterley, in Com. Bucks, Eſq; As alſo three Daughters. William took to Wife the Daughter of Sir Richard Molineux, of Shefton, in Com. Lanc. Knight; and left Iſſue Robert, and a Daughter call'd Elizabeth, married to Edward Lord Herbert, of Ragland, afterwards Marquiſs of Worceſter. Which Robert, by Letters Patents 2 Aug. 4 Car. 1. was advanced to the Title and Dignity of Viſcount Aſcot, and Earl of Caernarvan, being a Perſon abſolutely Valiant and Loyal, in the chief time of Trial: He took up Arms for the King, and was kill'd in the Battel fought near Newberry, in Com. Berks, 20th of September, 1643. leaving Iſſue by Anna Sophia, his Wife, Daughter to Philip Earl of Pembrook and Montgomery, Charles his Son and Heir; who ſucceeding him in his Honours, married Elizabeth, Daughter of Arthur Lord Capel; and by her had two Sons, Charles and William, who both died young; and three Daughters; Elizabeth, married to Philip now Earl of Cheſterfeild; Iſabella, and Anna Sophia. Dudg. Baron.

DORNADILLA, the fourth King of Scotland, only remarkable for the Hunting Laws which the Highlanders obſerve to this very day. He died in the 28th Year of his Reign, about 232 Years before Chriſt. Buchan.

DORSETSHIRE, Lat. Dorceſtria, or Dorceſtrienſis Comitatus, is a Maritime County of England, bounded Northward with Somerſet and Wiltſhire, Southward with the Chanel, which parts England from France; Eaſtward with Hamſhire, and Weſtward with Devonſhire. Its length, from Eaſt to Weſt, is about 45 Miles; its breadth, from North to South, 25. The Whole divided into 34 Hundreds, wherein are 248 Pariſhes, and eighteen Market-Towns. In the Time of the Romans, this County was inhabited by the Durotriges; from whence it probably got the Name of Dorſetſhire. In the Heptarchy, it was a Province of the Weſt Saxons, and now, together with Briſtol, it makes up the Dioceſe of Briſtol. Beſides, the goodneſs of its Air, and the conveniency of the Sea, it has all other Neceſſaries in great Abundance; no Place in England affords more Sheep in ſo ſmall a compaſs, than this County does about Dorcheſter. Among the Rivers that water it, the Stowre and Frome are the moſt conſiderable. Dorcheſter is the County-Town, Lime, Bridport, Weymouth, Pool and Warham, its Harbours. The Title of Marquiſs of Dorſet, was firſt enjoy'd by the Beauforts, and after them by the Greys; the laſt that poſſeſs'd it being Henry Grey, Duke of Suffolk, who was beheaded in 1553. The Title of Earl was conferr'd by King James I. upon Thomas Sackvil, Lord Buckhurſt, created Earl of Dorſet, An. 1603. In whoſe Line it has continued hitherto, the preſent Earl hereof being the Right Honourable Charles Sackvil, Earl of Dorſet and Middleſex, Lord High-Chamberlain of Their Majeſty's Houſhold. Laſtly, out of this County are Elected, beſides the Knights of the Shire, eighteen Members of Parliament, from Dorcheſter, Pool, Lyme, Weymouth, Melcomb Regis, Bridport, Shaftsbury, Warham and Corfe Caſtle in Purbeck, Two out of each.

DORTMONT, an Imperial and Hanſe-Town of Weſtphalia in Germany, Lat. Tremonia, on the River Empſer. It belongs now to the Marquiſs of Brandenburg. A Council was held there in 1005 to reform the Clergy. Dithmar, l. 6.

DOSITHEANS, one of the Branches of the Samaritans Sect among the Jews. They abſtain'd from all that had Life; and were ſo Superſtitious in keeping the Sabbath, that they remain'd in the ſame Place and Poſture wherein that Day ſurpriz'd them, without ſtirring till the next Day. They Marry'd but once, and ſome never did. Doſitheus, their Founder, being diſſatisfied among the Jews, retir'd to the Samaritans, who were reputed Hereticks, and invented a new Sect; and to make it more Authentick, he went into a Cave, where, by too long an Abſtinence, he ridiculouſly kill'd himſelf. The Name of Doſitheans was alſo given to ſome Diſciples of Simon Magus. St. Epiphan. in Panar. l. 1. c. 3. Origen. Baronius's Annal. Theodoret, &c.

DOUAY, Lat. Duacum, a Town of Flanders, on the Scarpe, was the Chief Town of the Country of the Catuagues, mention'd in Cæſar's Commentaries, as 'tis thought. It is very ſtrong, and belongs to the French ſince 1667. Philip II. King of Spain, founded its Univerſity, in 1563. Guichardin des Pais bas.

DOUE, Dovæum, or Duæum, a Town of Anjou, in France, Conſiderable in the time of the Romans, who built there an Amphitheater, which is whole ſtill, and can eaſily hold above 15000 Spectators, though it be but 1600 Foot about. There are alſo many Grotto's and Vaults under the Ground, of an admirable Structure, with an extraordinary deep Well. Baudrand.

DOVER, Lat. Dubris, a Market, Sea-Port, and Borough-Town of Bowsbrough-Hundred, in the Eaſt-Parts of Kent, and one of the Cinque-Ports, ſeated in a Bottom, and ſurrounded with Clifts; from whence, in a clear Day, one may eaſily diſcern the Coaſt of France, where Calais ſtands Eaſtward; oppoſite to it. The Paſſage over is reckon'd but ſeven Leagues, that part of the Town next the Sea had anciently a Wall, ſome of which is ſtill ſtanding. On the top of a rugged high Clift, or Rock, is a ſtately and very ſtrong Caſtle, which may be ſuppos'd to have been built by the Romans. However, this Place was certainly a Station of theirs, and has ever ſince been reputed one of the Keys of England, at all times carefully guarded. It was formerly ſo Conſiderable in Times paſt, that it ſet out 21 Ships to the Wars, for its Quota. And therefore Philip King of France told Lewis his Son, who was ſent for hither againſt King John, by the Barons, That if he did not make himſelf Maſter of Dover-Caſtle, his other Conqueſts would avail him but very little. It had formerly ſeven Pariſh-Churches, now but two; but is, in time of Peace, as it has always been, much frequented, as being the ſhorteſt Paſſage into France. The Right Honourable Henry Lord Jermin was created Baron of Dover, in the Firſt Year of King James II. But before, An. 1627. Henry Cary, Viſcount Rochford, and Baron Hunſden, enjoy'd the Title, from King Charles I. of Earl of Dover. It is 71 Miles from London.

DOUGLAS, a very Great and Ancient Family in Scotland, of which there is a particular Hiſtory by a very learned Pen, who Equalizes them to any of the Ancient Roman Families; and gives them the Preference to all in Europe, thoſe of Crowned-Heads excepted. They have been particularly Famous for Great Generals, there having been more of this Name than any other that is to be met with in Hiſtory. Nor is it their Native Country alone which is indebted to their Valour, but they have ſignaliz'd themſelves in moſt Parts of Europe, and particularly in France, where they have had great Commands and Titles, as Duke of Turein, &c. They have frequently Match'd with the Royal Family of Scotland, and ſometimes laid Claim to the Crown. In ſhort, this Family exceeded all the reſt in that Kingdom, for the Number of Nobility and Gentry of their own Name, and Multitude of Vaſſals; inſomuch that they became Formidable to the Kings themſelves, to whom they were little inferiour, either for the Splendour of their Court, or Greatneſs of their Power: But that unhappy Controverſie betwixt them and the Regent, and Chancellour Levingſton and Creighton, in the Reign of King James II. prov'd fatal to them, by the Craft and Treachery of their Adverſaries. The Noble Emulation betwixt this Family and the Piercies, Earls of Northumberland, for Martial Prloweſs, is every where met with in Hiſtory; and the Great Figure which the Douglaſſes do ſtill make in Scotland, is well enough known. Their Chief is the preſent Marquiſs of Douglas, whoſe Eldeſt Son bears the Title of Earl of Angus. His Grace, the preſent Duke of Hamilton, is an Eldeſt Son of this Family, by a ſecond Marriage. The Duke of Queenborough is alſo of this Sirname; as is the Earl of Morton, Forfar, Lord Mordington, &c. Buchanan, Hiſt. of Douglas.

DOUGLASS, a Caſtle in Cluydale, in the Middle of the Southern-part of Scotland, which takes its Name from the River Douglaſs, as doth alſo the Dale or Valley in which it ſtands. This Caſtle is ſeated about ſix Scotch Miles Weſt of Lanrick, where Douglaſs River unites with the Cluyd; fifteen Miles from Glaſgow to the South, and 35 from Edinburgh to the South-Weſt. It is only Memorable for its Earls, formerly ſo very Powerful, that they were a Terrour to the Kings of Scotland themſelves, there being at one time ſix Earls of this Family, viz. Douglaſs, Angus, Ormond, Wigton, Murray and Morton.

DOURLANS, or DOURLENS, in Lat. Durlendium, a Town of France, in Picardy, ſituated upon the River Authie, towards the Frontiers of Artois, and about five or ſix Leagues from Amiens. This Place is well fortified, and is divided into the Upper and Lower Town.

DOUSA, (Janus) a Dutchman, Lord of Nortwick, in Holland, where he was born in 1545. He was in very great Eſteem for his Learning and Courage, being a good Scholar, and a Souldier; For being made Governour of Leiden, by the Prince of Orange, in 1574. He defended that Town with great Reſolution and Conduct againſt the Spaniards, under Requeſenius. The Year after, the Univerſity of Leyden being founded, Janus Douſa, was made the firſt Curator, being very fit for the Place, upon the Account of his Learning and Deſerts. He wrote ſeveral Tracts, (viz. Poems, Notes upon Salluſt, Petronius, Plautus, Catullus, and the Annals of Holland. This Douſa died of the Plague, in 1604, leaving four Sons behind him, all of them great Scholars. Firſt, Janus Douſa a Poet, Philoſopher, and Mathematician; who, though dying at the Age of 26 Years, wrote ſeveral Poems; Notes upon Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius. Spicilegium in Petronii Satyricon. Animadverſiones in Plauti Comædias, &c. Second, George Douſa who was a good Linguiſt, he travell'd to Conſtantinople, and publiſh'd a Relation of his Voyage, with ſeveral Inſcriptions which he found at Conſtantinople, and elſewhere. He likewiſe, in 1607, Printed George Cedrenus's Book, Intitled, De Originibus Urbis Conſtantinopolitanæ, with Meurſiu's Notes upon it. Third, Francis Douſa wanted no Learning; in 1600 he publiſh'd the Epiſtles of Julius Cæſar; Scaliger with his Annotations upon the Hiſtory of Ariſtotle, De Animalibus, together with ſome Fragments of Lucilius, with Notes of his own upon them. Fourth, Theodorus Douſa, Lord of Barkenſtyen, who, in 1614, publiſh'd the Chronicon of George Logotheta with Notes, and 1638 he wrote a Treatiſe, call'd, Farrago Æthica Variarum Linguarum, Variorumque Auctorum, &c. Meurſius, Athen. Bat. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

DOUZI, a Town upon the Cher between Ivoy and Sedan in the Dioceſe of Rheims Authours mention two Councils at Douzi, in the ninth Century. The firſt in the Year 871, againſt Hinchmar Biſhop of Laon. This Prelate had maintain'd the Pope's Intereſt with too much Heat, his Zeal tranſporting him againſt the Cuſtoms and Liberties of the Gallican Church. Hinchmar Archbiſhop of Rheims's Uncle, and the other Prelates in the Council of Verberi, blam'd him extremely for't, and ſubſcrib'd his Condemnation. He appeal'd from this Sentence to the Pope, for which he was blam'd in the Council of Attigni, and being afterwards charg'd for this Misbehaviour, in the Council of Douzi above-mention'd, he was there depos'd and impriſon'd. Cellotius, After the Death of Sirmondus, publiſh'd the Acts of this Council, which the other could not recover, and calls the Collection, Apotheca Reconditioris Doctrinæ. The ſecond Council of Douzi was held in 874, againſt Inceſtuous Marriages, and thoſe, who encroach'd upon the Poſſeſſions of the Church. Tom. VIII. Concil.

DOWN, Lat. Dunum, a City and Biſhoprick in the Province off Ulſter, in Ireland, the Biſhop of which is under the Archbiſhop of Armagh. The Biſhoprick of Connor has been united to it ever ſince 1442. The City ſtands upon the Iriſh Sea, in a Peninſula made by the Sea and Lake of Cone, which affords it an excellent Haven, twenty Miles from Dormore to the Eaſt, and 32 from Carrickfergus to the South. The County of Down is bounded on the Eaſt by the Iriſh Sea, on the North by the Country of Antrim, and the Lake of Neacy; on the Weſt by Armagh; and on the South by the County of Louth, from which it is ſevered by the River Newry. This County (ſaith Camden) is generally very Fruitful, where it is not over-ſpread with Woods; and has ſeveral ſafe Harbours upon the Seas. Down is one of the moſt Ancient Towns in Ireland, made more Famous by keeping the Bones of St. Patrick, St. Bridget, and St. Columbus, than by the mention Ptolemy has made of it by the Name of Dunum.

DOWNHAM, a Market-Town in the County of Norfolk, in the Hundred of Clackloſs, ſituate upon the River Ouſe, over which it hath a Bridge, 71 Miles from London.

DOWNTON, or DUNCTON, a Market-Town in Wiltſhire, Capital of its Hundred, ſituate upon the Salisbury Avon. It returns two Members to Parliament. From London 84 Miles.

DRACO, an ancient Law-giver of Athens, before Solon's time, about 130 off R. whoſe Laws were ſo ſevere, that Solon aboliſh'd all of them, except thoſe againſt Murther. Euſeb. Chron. Suidas. Aulus Gell. l. 11. c. 18.

DRAGON OVERTHROWN: An Order of Knighthood inſtituted by the Emperour Sigiſmond, about 1418. after the Council of Conſtance. On Solemn Days the Knights wore a Scarlet Cloak; and on a ſhort Mantle of Green Silk, a double Golden Chain, on which hang'd an Overthrown Dragon, with his Wings down, and enamell'd with divers Colours. The Subject of this Inſtitution was, the Anathema againſt John Huſs and Jerom of Prague's Opinions and Perſons, which Sigiſmond repreſented like a Dragon Overthrown, the different Colours ſignifying the different Charms of Hereſie, &c. Favin.

DRAGUT RAIS, Captain of the Pirates of Barbary, a great Enemy to the Chriſtians, was taken with thirteen Galleys, in 1550. by Andrew Doria, in the Port of Giralatta, in Corſica, and chain'd in a Priſon. But Barbaroſſa went into Provence, and paying Dragut's Ranſom to Jannetin, Doria's Nephew, he ſet him at liberty. His Captivity, which he took for a great Affront, made him more Cruel againſt the Chriſtians, on ſeveral Occaſions; but he was kill'd at the Siege of Maltha, in 1565. Sigonius, Thuan. l. 11, &c.

DRAHOMIRA, Uratiſlaus, Duke of Bohemia's Wife, being angry, becauſe her Husband dying, had declar'd his Mother, Ludmilla, Regent, during his Son's Minority, ſhe caus'd her to be murther'd, in 929. and perſuaded her Son Boleſlaus to kill his Brother Venceſlaus: But, by a juſt Judgment, ſhe fell into a Precipice, near Prague, or (according to others) the Earth open'd, and ſwallow'd her up. Æn. Sylvius in Hiſt. Bohemiæ.

DRAKE, (Sir Francis) was born nigh South Taveſtock, in the County of Devonſhire, and brought up in Kent; where his Father, a Miniſter, having a Place to read Prayers among the Mariners of the Queen's Navy, bound him 'Prentice to a Maſter of a Ship, who traded with Commodities into France and Zealand; and upon his death, bequeathed his Bark to his induſtrious and truſty Servant. But he having too large a Spirit for ſuch little buſineſs ſold it, and embark'd with Captain Hawkins, for the Weſt-Indies; where the Spaniards took away from him all that he had. He then ſtudied all poſſible means to be revenged. His firſt Attempt was upon Nombre de Dios, then the Granary of the Weſt-Indies; which he miſs'd but narrowly, though all his Force conſiſted but in two Ships, Man'd with about ſeventy Men and Boys. Being advertiſed by ſome Negro's of a Caravan of Mules, laden with Gold and Silver, coming over the Mountains ſlightly guarded; he intercepted it, brought off the Gold, buried the Silver, and at Sancta Cruce burnt 200000 Pounds worth of Spaniſh Merchandice, and return'd with Honour and Riches home. He ſet out again, in 1577. with five Ships, and 1600 Men from Plymouth; paſs'd the Magellan Streights with three Ships, having caſt off the other two, as Impediments, and enter'd the Pacifick Sea; where the Ships were diſpers'd by a violent Storm, and one of them never ſeen more; the other return'd home through the Streights, while Drake ſteer'd to Chily, Coquimbo, Cinnano, Palma, Lima, and ſo round America. He took ſeveral Spaniſh Ships in this Voyage; in one whereof he found 400 Pound Weight of Maſſie Gold; in another call'd Cacofaga, beſides Jewels, and a vaſt Quantity of Gold, as much Silver as would ballaſt a Ship, a great part of which he brought into England, in 1589. having been forc'd to throw the reſt, with 6 Pieces of Ordnance, over-board, to bring his Ship off a dangerous Shoal, on which it was driven. He feaſted the Queen, ſoon after his arrival, at Dartford, where ſhe Knighted him, and conſented he ſhould have, for Arms, the World in a Ship: His own was drawn a-ſhore, for a Monument to Poſterity. He ſet ſail again from Plymouth, in 1585. with 22 Ships and Pinaces, 2300 Souldiers and Seamen, took and burnt St. Jago, the Chief City of Cuba, in America; and plunder'd St. Domingo, in Hiſpaniola. From whence he ſailed to Carthagena, which he ſurpriz'd and took in it, beſides ineſtimable Summs of Money, 240 Pieces of Ordnance. In his return home, he raz'd and burnt the Fort and City of St. Auguſtine, in Terra Florida, and arriv'd ſafe at Plymouth in 1586. In 1588. he was made Vice-Admiral of the Engliſh Navy; and in 1589. was ſent Joint-General of 11000 Men, to aſſiſt Don Antonio; who pretended a Right to the Crown of Portugal; and afterwards, with Sir John Hawkins to the Weſt-Indies; where being diſappointed in his main Deſign, of forcing his way from Port Rico to Panama, where the Spaniſh Treaſure lay, he plunder'd Nombre de Dios, and many other petty Towns: But troubled that this Succeſs did not anſwer the Preparations made for the Voyage, he fell ill, and died, in 1595. much regretted by the Queen.

DRANGIANA, a Province of Perſia, now call'd Sigiſtan, it lies in the moſt Eaſterly-part of the Country.

DRAVE, Drau, and Dravus, a River of Germany, whoſe Spring is in the Alps. It runs through Carinthia, Stiria, and Hungary, into the Danube. Strabo, Pliny, Ptolemy, Cluvier, &c.

DRAYTON, a gook Market-Town of North Bradford-Hundred, in the North-Eaſt Parts of Shropſhire, bordering upon Staffordſhire; ſituate on the Weſt-ſide of the River, Terne, and noted for the Battle fought there between the Houſes of York and Lancaſter.

DRESDE, or Dreſden, the Chief Town of Miſnia, in the Higher-Saxony; fortified by Charlemaign, in the VIIIth Century, and now the Reſidence of the Dukes of Saxony. There is a Stone-Bridge, admirably well built, on the Elbe, and a ſtately Palace. This City is fortified after the Modern way, and divided by the Elbe. The Elector's Palace, Citadel, Arſenal, Stables, Garden, and Bear-Garden, are worth the ſeeing. Vid. Dr. Brown's Travels.

DREUX, Lat Drocum, on the Blaiſe, a Town of Blaiſois, in France; or (as others ſay) of the Government of L' Iſle de France, being an Earldom. It is one of the moſt ancient Towns of the Kingdom, and reputed to have been built by Drius IV. King of the Gauls, and Chief Founder of the Druids. This Town was very ſtrong formerly, but now the Caſtle is almoſt ruined. 'Tis remarkable for being the Reſidence of the Druids; and becauſe, in the general States of the Kingdom, it precedes Chartres, and many other Towns. This Town is famous for a great Battel fought there, where the Royal Party had the Advantage of the Hugonots; The Prince of Conde being taken Priſoner there. Davila, Thuanus's Hiſt. l. 34. Du Cheſne's Hiſt. de la Maiſon de Dreux.

DREXELIUS, (Jeremy) a Jeſuit of Ausbourg, in Germanv, Profeſs'd Rhetorick at firſt, and was afterwards a Preacher, in Ordinary to the Electour of Bavaria. He wrote ſeveral practical Pieces, Printed in two Volumes in Folio. Alegamb. Bibl. Soc. Jeſ.

DRIEDO, (John) born at Turnbout in Brabant, in the 16th Cent. was a very zealous Divine in his way. The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, Lib. IV. De Eccleſiaſticis Scrtpturis. De Libertate Chriſtiana. De Captivitate & Redemptione Generis Humani. De Concordia Liberi Arbitrii & Prædeſtinationis Divini, Libri II. De Gratia & Libero Arbitrio, &c. Valer. Andr. Miræus, &c.

DRIN, or DRINO, in Latin Drinus, a River in the Ancient Illyrium, riſing in Mount Scardus of the Ancients, call'd Schiardo by the Moderns, it parts Boſnia from Servia, and runs into the Save near the Danube.

DROGHEDA, a City in the County of Louth, in the Province of Leinſter, in Ireland, upon the River Boyn, 22 Miles North of Dublin. It hath an excellent and ſafe Haven, and in Mr. Camden's time was well peopled, and much frequented. Oliver Cromwel took this Town by Storm, in 1649. and put all the Gariſon, conſiſting' of 4000 Men, to the Sword, Sir Arthur Aſton, the Governour, with all the Inhabitants, Men, Women and Children; and this to ſtrike a Terrour into all the other Places of the Country, that he might with the greater facility reduce them: and accordingly he had incredible Succeſs in all his other Attempts. It ſurrender'd to King WILLIAM in two Days after the Fight at the Boyne.

DROITWICH, a Borough-Town in Worceſterſhire, in Halfſhire-Hundred, ſituate upon the Banks of the River Salwarp. It returns two Members to the Houſe of Commons, and is a noted place for Salt-Pits, 82 Miles from London.

DRONTHEIM, or TRONTHEIM, in Latin Nidroſia, a Sea-Port Town of Norway, the reſidence of the ancient Kings; but now the Governours of Norway reſide at Berghen. Tho' this Town be decay'd, it has ſtill the Title of Archbiſhoprick; and one of the moſt ſtately Churches of the North.

DRUIDS, Prieſts of the ancient Gauls, nam'd Eubages, by Ammianus Marcellinus, and Saronides, by Diodor. Sic. They taught the People their particular Superſtitions and Ceremonies, which they had, as ſome think, from the Phoceans, who built Marſeilles in Provence. And indeed Δρῦς in Greek, and Deru in the Celtick Language, ſignifies an Oak, a Tree ſo much reſpected by the Druids, becauſe it produces Miſſeltoe, which they gather'd with ſo many Ceremonies, as the fineſt Gift of the Gods. One of thoſe Prieſts being in White, gather'd it in the beginning of the Year, with a Golden Scithe; afterward, two White Young Bulls were Sacrific'd; and the Ceremonies ended with a great Feaſt. The Druids and Gauls believ'd Miſſeltoe taken in Drink, made all Creatures more Fruitful, and was a good Antidote againſt all Sorts of Poyſons. Others think them call'd Druids from the Hebrew Deruſſim, or Doreſim; that is, Contemplators: therefore Diogenes Laertius compares them to the Wiſe Men of Chaldæa, to the Philoſophers of Greece, to the Magi of Perſia, and the Gymnoſophiſts of the Indies. Diodorus Sic. adds, that they were Divines. The Gauls believ'd the Immortality of the Soul ſo well, that they lent willingly in this World, to be repaid again in the next. The Druids were alſo Aſtrologers, Geographers, Geometricians, and principally Stateſmen and Lawyers; and for this Reaſon, all Controverſies and Negotiations publick and private were referr'd to their Umpirage and Direction. Thoſe, who were only imploy'd in the Contemplation of Divine Things, were call'd Eubages; and thoſe that took Care of the Altars were nam'd Semnothées; and their Number was ſo great that Stephanus ſpeaks of them as of a People. Cæſar obſerves, that they had a Chief, who had Sovereign Power: and Pomponius Mela ſaith, That their Learning depended moſtly upon ſtrength of memory; for they had no Books, and ſometimes they got by heart 20000 Verſes, which were a kind of Hiſtory of great Men, which they deriv'd by Tradition. They us'd Serpents Eggs to get Great Men's favour, and to ſucceed in their Affairs, as Pliny ſaith. They ſacrificed Men, and thoſe Sacrifices were prohibited by Auguſtus and Tiberius, and quite aboliſh'd by Claudius, as Suetonius reports. In fine, thoſe Druids were ſo much eſteem'd, that Women would be their Diſciples. The Emperour Aurelian conſulted one of thoſe Women, to know if his poſterity ſhould ſucceed him. Diocleſian learnt of another that he ſhould be Emperour, after he had kill'd a Wild Boar, which was fulfilled in a Gingle being choſen Emperour, after he had kill'd a Man whoſe Name was Aper. See Diocleſian. It is ſaid that they gave their Name to Dreux. See Dreux Diodor. Sic. l. 6. c. 9. Cæſar l. 6. Strabo, l. 4. Suetonius in Claud. Tacitus l. 13. annal. Dupleix Memoir. des Gaul. l. 1. c. 16.

DRUMMOND: See PERTH.

DRUSES, DRUSIS, or DRUSIANS: People living about Mount Libanus, deſcended, as they ſay, from the French that went with Godfrey of Bulloigne into the Eaſt. They call themſelves Chriſtians, tho' they don't obſerve their Laws. They hate the Jews and Mahometans, becauſe of their Uſury; tho' they be reputed Mahometans. It is ſaid, That they expect a Wiſe Man out of Egypt who is to give them a Law. They ſqueeze and ſtretch out their Children's Heads as ſoon as they are Born, which makes them remarkable among the Eaſtern People. They are hardy and live in Mountains. Their Princes are of the Houſe of Maan. The Emir Fekhr-ed-din was of that Family. The troubleſome conteſts they had with the Turks in this Century, made the Name of Druſis famous. This Relation I owe to M. le Chevalier d' Ervieux, who liv'd there a long time; 'tis to be wiſh'd that he may publiſh all his Memoirs concerning that Country. See Druzes.

DRUSILIA, Agrippa the Elder's Daughter, and the Younger's Siſter. She was the fineſt Woman of her time, and firſt Contracted to Epiphanes, King Antiochus's Son, who promis'd to turn Jew; but not performing it, ſhe was married to Azizes King of the Emezenians. Felix Governour of Judæa falling in love with her, ſent Simon the Cyprian, a Magician, to perſwade her to leave her Husband, and Marry him, promiſing to make her the happieſt Woman in the World. And ſhe being deſirous to be rid of her Siſter Berenice's Perſecutions, imprudently hearkned to thoſe Propoſals, not caring for her Religion which ſhe was to forſake. St. Paul, being Priſoner, pleaded his Cauſe before this Felix and Druſilla, Acts 24. 24. Joſephus, l. 20. c. 5. Ant. See Druzes.

DRUSIUS, (John) born at Oudenard 1550, ſtudied at Louvain and Ghant, and other Places, and afterwards Travell'd with his Father into England, and learned Hebrew at Oxford, being before, a great Proficient in Greek and Latin: Afterwards returning into Holland, he was made Profeſſour at Leiden firſt, and then at Franeker. He was much eſteem'd for his Sufficiency and Writings; the moſt conſiderable of which are: A Hebrew Grammar. De Recta Lectione Linguæ Sanctæ. Alphabetum Hebraicum Vetus. Veterum Sapientum Gnomæ. De Tribus Sectis Judæorum, &c. Druſius likewiſe left Commentaries of ſome Books of the Holy Scriptures. He ſtrongly oppos'd the Tranſlation of Junius and Tremellius, and obſerv'd a great many Faults in't; and brought the Engliſh over to his Opinion in a great Meaſure, who made uſe of his Remarks and Corrections, in their laſt Tranſlation of the Bible. Father Simon gives a great Character of this Authour, for his Skill in Hebrew. He left a Collection of Fragments of the Ancient Greek Tranſlatours of the Old Teſtament, Printed in 1622, by his Scholar Sextinus Amama, who ſucceeded him, in the Hebrew Profeſſour's Place at Franeker. Meurſius, Athen. Batav. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. R. Simon, &c.

DRUSUS, a Family. The Family of Druſus was a Branch of that of the Claudians; and tho' one of the Commonalty, it had nevertheleſs 8 Conſuls, and 2 Cenſours; was honour'd with 3 Triumphs, the Dictatorſhip, &c. and produc'd many Illuſtrious Men; as Salinator and Druſus, who having kill'd the General of the Enemies nam'd Druſus, took his Name; which was glorious to all his Poſterity. Druſus, Tiberius's Son by Vipſania Agrippa's Daughter, was Poiſon'd. Another Druſus, Son of Germanicus, diſpleaſing Tiberius, was ſtarv'd to Death. Tacitus obſerves, that he kept himſelf alive Nine Days by eating the Flocks of his Quilt; and that it was reported in Greece and Aſia after his Death, that he had been ſeen in the Cyclades Iſlands, and that the Græcians ran from all Parts to ſee him, miſtaking a Young Man, Marcus Silanus's Son, for him. Tacitus l. 4, 5. Annal. Suetonius in Tiber. Dion. l. 57.

DRUSUS, Son to Tiberius Nero, and Livia, who afterwards married Auguſtus, and Brother to the Emperour Tiberius. He married Antonia, Daughter to Mark Anthony, and Octavia, Auguſtus's Siſter, by whom he had Germanicus, &c. He gave great proof of his Courage in Germanv, where he made many Campaigns, and reduc'd ſeveral Revolted Nations. In the Year of Rome 739, he defeated the Rheti, now call'd the Griſon, and was Conſul in 745. He likewiſe ſubdued the Cheruſſi, and other German Clans. He died of a Fall off his Horſe, at the Age of 30 Years, and to honour his Memory, his Father-in-Law Auguſtus, and his Brother Tiberius Harangu'd in his Commendation at his Funeral. Dion. Caſſius. lib. 55. Liv. lib. 138. Paterculus, Suetonius, Tacitus, &c.

DRUZES, or DRUSI, People of Palæſtine, inhabiting Mount Libanus, and the neighbouring Country, differing from the Turks, Chriſtians, and all other People. They Marry their own Daughters, and commit all kinds of Inceſt. It is not probable, that they come from the French, that follow'd Godfrey of Bulloigne, and after the loſs of Jeruſalem 1187. retired into the Mountains; for there were ſome of that Religion in 1170. The Conjecture of ſome Authors is more likely, that theſe Druzes are not different from the Darares or Darazes, mention'd by Elmacin in his Hiſtory, who liv'd in Syria; Muhammed Ben Iſmael the Founder of that Sect, began to Preach his Doctrine about 1030; which perhaps gave occaſion to ſay, that Iſman eſtabliſhed that Religion; for there is no great difference between Iſman and Iſmael. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire. See Druſes.

DRYADES, Nymphs of the Woods and Foreſts, from Δρυς, an Oak. Servius the Grammarian.

DUARE, a Strong place of Dalmatia, on a Mountain, near Almiſſa, often taken and re-taken. It belongs now to the Venetians. P. Coronelli, Deſcript. de la Morée.

DUARENUS, a Celebrated French Lawyer, born at St. Brieu, in Brittany, in the XVI. Cent. His Works are a ſufficient proof of his great Learning. He wrote upon the Codes; the Digeſts; De Ratione Beneficiaria; In Conſuetudines Feudorum; Epiſtles; A Treatiſe of the Liberties and Privileges of the Gallican Church, &c. Thuanus gives him a great Character, both with Reſpect to his Profeſſion, and general Learning. St. Marthe, lib. 1. Elog. Doct. Gall. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 23. &c.

DUBLIN, Lat. Dublinum; in Iriſh Balackleigh, the Capital City of the Kingdom of Ireland, in the Provinces of Leinſter in a County of the ſame Name, ſituate upon the River Liffy, which is the Nobleſt River in all this Kingdom, and maketh a capacious Haven here, at about 20 Leagues diſtance from Holy-Head in Wales. This City is call'd Eblana by Ptolemy; when or by whom it was firſt built, is not known; but Ancient it muſt be, by its being mentioned by him. Saxo Grammaticus acquaints us, how much it ſuffered by the Danes. It was afterwards under Edgar King of England, and Herald Harfagar King of Norway. In 1151 Pope Eugenius III. made it an Archbiſhop's See, with the Title and Juriſdiction of a Primacy. Henry II. having conquer'd Ireland, ſent hither from Briſtol a Colony, whereby it began to flouriſh more and more, and became the Capital of the Kingdom, the Seat of the Lord-Lieutenant, the Courts of Juſtice and their Parliaments, ſtrengthened with a Caſtle on the Eaſt ſide, built by Henry Loundres, a Biſhop, in 1220. Near which was a Royal Palace built by Henry II. King of England. It has a College for Students, which is an Univerſity of it ſelf, Founded by Queen Elizabeth in 1591. This was attempted before by Alexander Bicknor, Archbiſhop of Dublin, who in 1320. obtain'd a Bull from the Pope for it; but the Troubleſome times that follow'd, obſtructed that good deſign then: At the North Gate is a Bridge of hewn Stone built by King John. It has a Cathedral of great Antiquity, dedicated to St. Patrick, the Apoſtle of the Iriſh Nation, and built at ſeveral times, in which are a Dean, two Arch-Deacons, and 22 Prebendaries: There is another fair Collegiate Church in this City, call'd Chriſt's Church, built in 1012. and about 13 Parochial ones; and next to London, it's the largeſt and beſt City of the 3 Kingdoms of England, Scotland, and Ireland, of conſiderable Trade, and much reſorted to by the Gentry of the Kingdom, eſpecially in Term-time. In more Ancient times, this City was Govern'd by a Provoſt; but in 1409. Henry IV. granted them licence to chuſe every Year a Mayor and 2 Bailiffs, chang'd into Sheriffs by Edward IV. Thus far Cambden. Since his time, it has been extraordinarily enlarged, eſpecially theſe laſt 20 Years, during the Civil Wars in King Charles the I's. time, the Duke of Ormond, by that King's Orders deliver'd it to the Engliſh, but afterwards endeavouring to recover it, his Army was routed by Coll. Jones, and the Siege rais'd in 1649. The County of Dublin is bounded on the Eaſt by the Iriſh Sea; on the South by the little Territories of O Tooles and O Brians, and on the North by the County of Meath, and a ſmall River call'd Nanny. The Soil is very fruitful as to every thing but Wood; ſo that they uſe Sea-coal and Turff for their fewel. It's well inhabited, rich, and well provided with Sea-Port Towns.

DUCEUS (Fronto) a Jeſuit, Son of a Counſellor of Bourdeaux, he was a conſiderable Linguiſt, a Critick and Divine; and a very laborious Perſon: Having publiſh'd the Works of St. Gregory Nazianzen, St. Gregory Nyſſen, St. Bazil, St. Chryſoſtom, Nicephorus Calliſtus, the Apoſtles Canons, Bibliotheca Patrum Græcorum, &c. He wrote likewiſe againſt the Sieur du Pleſſis. Alegamb. Bibl. Scrip. Soc. J. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 17.

DUDERSTAT, the Chief Town of the little Country of Eichfeld in Germany, on the River Wipper, belonging to the Elector of Mentz.

DUDITHIUS (Andrew) Biſhop of Five Churches in Hungary, liv'd in the XVIth. Cent. and was a Perſon of good Parentage, Learning and Probity. Thuanus gives him a great Character for his Parts and Erudition. The Emperor Ferdinand ſent him to the Council of Trent as Ambaſſador; and ſome time after he turn'd Proteſtant, and going into Poland, warpt towards the Opinions of Socinus. He Died in the Year 1589. Spondan. in Annal. Thuan. Hiſt. l. 32, &c. Sandius Bibliothec. Antitrin.

DUERO, or Douro, in Lat. Durius, a River of Spain, Riſing in Old Caſtile, near the Frontiers of Arragon, which after having run a long courſe, falls into the Ocean near O Porto.

DUFFUS, the 78th King of Scotland, having ſuppreſſed the Depredations committed on the Inhabitants of the Weſtern Iſlands, by their looſe young Gentry, he order'd the Governours, by whoſe Negligence they had happen'd, to make reſtitution to the People, and baniſh'd many of the Criminals. At which their Relations being offended, they plotted againſt the King, as a Contemner of the Nobility. And at the ſame, time a Club of Witches at Forreſſe in Murray, did, by waſting his Image in Wax, ſo waſt and torment him with continual Pain and Sweating, that he pin'd daily; and no remedy could be found till the Witchcraft was diſcovered, the Image broke, and the Witches Puniſhed. During his Sickneſs the Highlanders looking for impunity, plundred the adjacent Countries; but upon his Recovery, he marched againſt them, and brought the Chief of them to be puniſh'd at Forreſſe. Donald, the Governour of the Caſtle where the King Lodged, having ſeveral Friends among 'em, whoſe Pardon he could not obtain, did thereupon, by his Wife's Council and Aſſiſtance, Murder the King by Night, convey'd away his Corps, and Buried it ſo ſecretly, that the Murderers were not diſcovered. And Donald the better to conceal it, kill'd thoſe that had the Charge of the King's Chamber in a Fury for their Neglect: But Culenus being choſen King by the Nobility, and coming Northward to enquire into the Murder, Donald being Conſcious of his Guilt, fled to Sea, but being driven back by Tempeſt, he was brought to the King, and together with his Wife and other Accomplices condignly puniſh'd. Duffus was Murdered after he had Reigned Four Years and Six Months, about An. C. 973. Buchan.

DUGDALE (Sir William) Son of John Dugdale of Shuſtock in the County of Warwick, Gent. was born in 1605. was a great Antiquary, and a Perſon of indefatigable Induſtry. He was firſt made Rouge Croix, then Cheſter, afterwards Norroy, and laſtly, Garter. In 1641, by the encouragement of Sir Chriſtopher, afterwards Lord Hatton, Mr. Dugdale came to St. Paul's, tranſcrib'd the Epitaphs, and got all the Coats of Arms belonging to the Monuments, &c. Painted, taking Draughts likewiſe of all the Monuments: This being perform'd with great exactneſs, he Travelled to Peterborough, Ely, Norwich, Lincoln, Newark upon Trent, Beverley, Southwel, Kingſton upon Hull, York, Selby, Cheſter, Litchfield, Tamworth, Warwick, &c. in all which Places he proceeded with the ſame curioſity, preſerving the Monuments, &c. by this Method; apprehending they might probably be deſtroy'd by the diſorders of a Civil War, which was then likely to break out. He continued very Loyal during the Rebellion, and after the Reſtauration of King Charles II. was in 1677. made Garter, and Knighted. He dy'd in 1685. His Works are, Monaſticon Anglicanum 3. Vol. Fol. The Antiquities of Warwickſhire, Illuſtrated from Records, Leiger Books, &c. Fol. The Hiſtory of St. Paul's Cathedral in London from its Foundation, &c. Fol. The Hiſtory of Imbanking and Draining divers Fenns and Marſhes, &c. Origines Juridicales, or Hiſtorical Memorials of the Engliſh Laws, Courts of Juſtice, Forms of Trial, &c. Fol. The Baronage of England, in 2 Vol. Fol. A ſhort View of the late Troubles of England, &c. Fol. DUILIUS, Surnam'd Nepos, a Roman Conſul, was the firſt General of that Republick, who gained a Victory at Sea, over the Carthagenians: He had a Triumph for this Succeſs, and Erected a Pillar, the Inſcription on which is ſtill remaining; the Engagement happen'd in the 130th. Olympiad, being the 494th Year of Rome. Liv. l. 17. Cic. de Senect. Tacit. l. 2. Annal. c. 12.

DUISBOURG, in Lat. Duisburgum, a Town of the Dukedom of Cleves in Germany on the River Roër, belonging to the Elector of Brandenburg. It was an Imperial Town formerly, but has loſt this Privilege. It is different from Duisbourg, the moſt ancient Viſcounty of Brabant, 3 Leagues from Bruſſels. Here was held a Council in 927. Where were Excommunicated thoſe that had pull'd out Bennon Biſhop of Metz's Eyes. Reginon en la Conti. T. IX. Conc. Guilliman, &c.

DUKE, a Title of Dignity, like that of Earl. The Origin of Dukes and Earls, is aſſign'd to the Emperor Adrian, who reign'd in 130, and Elected a certain number of Senators to be his Councellors, and to follow him every where; therefore he call'd them Comites, that is, Companions. His Succeſſors gave thoſe Councellors the Adminiſtration of the Treaſury, Juſtice, and even the Command of the Armies in time of War. The Empire declining, thoſe Dignities were aboliſh'd by the Goths, Vandals, and Burgundians; but kept by the French. In the Romans time there were alſo ſome Dukes, who Commanded the Armies and Govern'd the Provinces, they were call'd Duces, that is, Leaders of Captains. The French eſtabliſh'd ſome likewiſe in their new Conqueſts, which they divided into Dukedoms and Earldoms, perhaps to imitate the Roman Diviſion. There were Three ſorts of Earls in the firſt Race of the Kings of France; The firſt had the Adminiſtration of Juſtice; The Second, the Command of the Armies; And the Third were honour'd with this Title, becauſe of their Birth, or Merit. Each Duke, ſaith Aymoin, or Haymo, had commonly Twelve Earls under him, ſo that the Dukes in the Army were like Colonels, and the Earls like Captains. Nevertheleſs, ſome Earls were Governours of Provinces, and call'd ſometimes Dukes, and ſometimes Earls. Thoſe Dignities were given by Kings, often at the requeſt of the People, during Pleaſure. But they became Hereditary afterwards by the Authority and Power of the Poſſeſſors, ſince 875. There were but two Marqueſſes at that time, viz. That of Gothie or Languedoc, and that of France; the firſt being inſtituted to defend the Marches or Frontiers againſt the Saracens; and the ſecond to defend them againſt the Normans and Britons. The laſt was chang'd into the Dukedom of France, and annexed to the Crown; and the firſt into the Earldom of Tholouſe. The Quality of Baron is Ancient in France, and was given to conſiderable Lords under the Princes, Dukes, and Earls. The Châtelains, were the ancient Captains of Strong Places, leſſer than Towns, which were the reſidence of Earls. Now it is either a Title of Lordſhip with Juriſdiction, or a Name of Office, as in Auvergne and Languedoc, where the Châtelains, are what they were formerly. As for the Erecting of Eſtates into Dukedoms, Marquiſates, Earldoms and Baronies, by the Edicts of Charles IX. and Henry III. the Eſtate of a Dukedom muſt be worth 2000 l. ſterl. Yearly. The Marquis-ſhip muſt be compos'd of 3 Baronies, and 6 Chatelenies, or Manours, with Royalties United and held of the King only. The Earldom of two Baronies and 3 Chatelenies or Manours united together; and the Chatelenie is to have an high, middle, and inferior Juriſdiction, &c. Davity de la France. Heiſs. Hiſt. de l'Empire, l. 1. ſaith, That Dukes had the Government of Provinces, the Command of the Armies, and the Chief Adminiſtration of Juſtice. They had commonly ſome Earls with them, in Latin Comites, becauſe they were their Aſſiſtants, and Commanded in the Duke's abſence. The Marqueſſes were Governors of the Frontiers, call'd Marches; whence they were nam'd Marchis, and afterwards Marquiſſes. Some Dukes had ſeveral Provinces under them, though each Duke had but one commonly. Some Earls alſo had a larger Juriſdiction than others, as the Earls of the King's or the Emperor's Palace, whence comes the Title of Count-Palatines. Theſe did Adminiſter Juſtice in the Prince's abſence and in weighty Affairs. The other Earls were eſtabliſhed in Provinces, or Chief Towns. The Germans Name the Marquiſſes, Markgraves; that is, Earls of Frontiers: The Earls Landgraves; that is, Earls of Countries or Provinces; and the Governors of Towns Burgraves; that is, Earls of Towns. Thoſe Qualities of Duke, Marqueſs, Earl, Landgrave, and Burgrave, were originally Titles of Office and Government only, and given but for a time. Afterwards the Property of thoſe Provinces and Towns was given to ſome Governors for their Life; to others for ever from Male to Male, or otherwiſe, &c. provided they ſhould defend the Country, and hold it of the Sovereign in Fee. This Subject being curious, it is good to obſerve, that in the Roman Republick, the Generals of Armies were call'd Imperatores, or Emperors. Afterwards this Title was given to the Cæſars, and that of Duke remained to their Lieutenants, who Commanded in the Armies, or in the Provinces of the Empire. The firſt Governor that had the Quality of Duke, was he of the Rhetick Marches between Germany and Italy, which we call now the Griſons. The Duke or Governour of a Province was one of the two Chief Magiſtrates; the other had the Quality of Earl; the firſt managed Warlike-Affairs, and the Second took care of Civil-Affairs. They eſtabliſh'd 13 Dukes, in the Eaſtern Empire; and 12 in the Weſtern: Thoſe Dukes of Provinces in Germany in the ancient Empire, were Kings before, as Munſter ſaith in his Coſmography, l. 3. c. 20. And their Names were only changed, their Power being the ſame, though under the Emperor. There are other Examples of Kingdoms chang'd into Dukedoms by Princes not depending on the Roman Empire; as Suabia, when ſubjected to Clovis King of France; and Burgundy to Clothaire, Hincmar, Ep. ad Epiſc. Franc. c. 14. deſcribes the Office of the Dukes of Provinces; and we may ſee in Marculfus and Caſſiodorus, l. 7. Var. c. 4. how this Dignity was conferred. Sometimes they were Elected by the People. Chopin, after Tacitus ſaith, That the Duke or General of an Army had 12 Earls under him, but nothing certain can be ſaid of their Number. During the Viſigoths's Reign, each Province had a Duke, to whom was given a Biſhop for an Adjutant in Civil Matters, and an Earl for a Subſtitute in War. After Clephon or Clephis King of Lombardy's Death, the Lombards being weary of Kings elected 30 of their Chief Captains, whom they Nam'd Dukes, and who divided among them the Towns that they had taken. And Autaris Clephon's Son, being made King 10 Years after, left the 30 Dukes their Authority depending on his own, and ſettled it upon their Male Poſterity, provided they would bring unto him, once in 3 Years, half of their Revenue to keep up his Royal Dignities. Sigonius de Reg. Ital. l. 7. In the ancient Hiſtorians, that have ſpoken of the Anglo-Saxons, it is ſeldom found, that the Name of Duke is uſed to ſignifie a Governour, or a Magiſtrate, but in the Authors of the following Centuries, the Names of Duke, Conſul, Earl, Prince, and Viceroy are indifferently uſed. From the Normans Conqueſt to Edward III. the Dukes were no more mentioned; but that King renewed the Title in his Son Edward Prince of Wales, whom he created Duke of Cornwal 1336; and his 4th. Son, whom he created alſo Duke of Lancaſter, erecting thoſe two Counties into Dukedoms. Many Lords ſince came to the ſame Dignity on the Score of their Birth, or Services. In France the Dignity of Duke became Feodal and Hereditary in Hugh Capet's Reign; but there was another alſo, which was titular only, and during Pleaſure. Thus there was a Duke for Lorrain, one for Aquitain, and another for Burgundy; and Hugh, call'd the White, Hugh Capet's Father, was Duke in thoſe 3 Kingdoms; that is, Lieutenant-General: He Reigned above 20 Years without Scepter, being a King's Son, Father to a King, Uncle to a King, and Brother-in-Law to 3 Kings. Mezeray, Abr. Chron. An. 955. and 956. There are three ſorts of Dukes. 1. Some are almoſt equal to Kings, as the Dukes of Savoy, Mantoua, &c. 2. Some enjoy the Right of Soverignty, whoſe Lands are Feodal, and depending on other Princes, as many Dukes in Germany and Italy. 3. Some are only honour'd with that Title, being King's Subjects, as in France, Spain, and England. None but Princes of the Houſe of Auſtria take the Title of Arch-Duke. The Quality of Great Duke is given to two Chriſtian Princes, viz. To the great Duke of Moſcovy, and the Great Duke of Tuſcany. All the Dukes in Germany and Italy are Princes, and for the moſt part related to Royal Families. Although the Count Palatins and the Marquiſſes of Brandenburg take place of many Princes, the Quality of Duke is not diminiſh'd by it; for thoſe Princes are not only Earls or Marquiſſes, but Electors alſo, and as ſuch the firſt of the Empire. We muſt obſerve alſo, That the Princes of Poland, Hungary, and Bohemia, who are great Kings now, had for many Ages only the Quality of Dukes; That the Countries of Athens, Burgundy, Bavaria, and Lorrain, had formerly the Title ſometimes of Kingdom, and ſometimes of Dukedom, with the ſame Authority; That ſome Provinces of Spain were Govern'd by ſome Dukes 1000 Years before Jeſus Chriſt, where they were Sovereigns, when the Carthagenians and Romans attack'd them. The Council of Baſil in 1443. gave the Quality of firſt Chriſtian Duke to Philip Duke of Burgundy, becauſe his Anceſtors had always defended the Catholick Religion. Now the Republicks of Venice and Genoua, give the Title of Duke or Doge to their Chief Magiſtrate; but this Dignity is only an Image and Repreſentation of Sovereignty, which is wholly in the Body of Senators; and it is quite different from the firſt. As for the Preference of the Titles of Dukes, Marqueſſes, and Earls, we muſt neceſſarily diſtinguiſh the times, and know that the thing depended ſometimes on Mens fancy. Garibay, a Spaniſh Hiſtoriographer, according to Vaſco's Opinion, affirms, That Earls were not only greater than Marqueſſes, but than Dukes alſo. La Roque in his Treatiſe concerning Nobility, obſerves that ſome Marquiſates were erected into Earldoms, as that of Juliers by the Emperor Lewis of Bavaria in 1329. according to Froiſſard, Tom. 1. That Raimond Earl of Tholouſe, took the Quality of Marqueſs of Provence; that Guy Earl of Flanders, took the Title of Marqueſs of Namur, now an Earldom. He adds, that the Quality of Peerage has been given to ſome Earldoms, as to the Earldoms of Eu, Evreux, and Clermont, and to no Marquiſate. That Earls aſſiſt at the King's Coronations in France, and not Marqueſſes. Mezeray in Charles VI. obſerves, That under the ſecond Race, the Title of Earl was as great as that of Duke; and that the Lord's ſeem'd to eſteem it more, ſince ſome Dukes took the Title of Earls; as in France the Earl of Tholouſe, who had the Dukedoms of Septimania and Narbonne, &c. The Earl of Savoy, who had the Dukedoms of Chablais and Aoſte, &c. But that they fanſied afterwards ſomething greater in the Title of Duke. So Amedeus the VIIIth. Earl of Savoy was pleaſed when his Earldom was erected into a Dukedom by the Emperor Sigiſmond, in 1416. But now, there being no Earls of Provinces, and even few Dukes in France, having whole Provinces under the Title of Dukedom, and the Marqueſſes now taking place of Earls according to Charles Loiſeau, there is a great difference between the Earls of the Empire, the Earls of France, the Earls of Spain, and thoſe of England; which it is fit to explain. There are three ſorts of Counts in Germany, without reckoning thoſe whom the Emperor has created in his Hereditary Countries, and that are not Counts of the Empire. The firſt are States of the Empire to which alone they are Vaſſals, either in their Perſons or in their Fees. The Second have one or many Mannors immediately depending on the Empire, but they have alſo ſome other Mannor depending on a particular Prince, whoſe Vaſſals they are. The Third have no Mannor immediately depending on the Empire, and conſequently no Place in the Diets. So the Firſt have a greater part in the Benefits and Affairs of the Empire, and ſeem to be of a higher Quality than the others. All the immediate Counts of the Empire are like as many petty Sovereigns, and pay but little Duty to the Emperor. Many of them Coyn Money; ſo that the Elector's Marrying into their Families, don't Marry below themſelves. Formerly there were two ſorts of Earls in France, ſome Superior, and the others having dependency on them; of whom la Roque gives ſome Examples. Paquier and others ſay, That an Earl muſt have 4 Viſcounties under him. There are in France but Six Earldoms which are Peerdoms; Three Eccleſiaſtical, viz. Châlons in Champagne, Noyon, and Beauvais; And Three Secular, viz. Clermont in the Family of Condé, Eu, belonging to Mademoiſelle of Orleans, and Evreux to the Family of Bouillon. As for the Dignities newly erected, The Duke is the Firſt, the Marquiſs the Second, The Earl the Third, the Viſcount the Fourth, and the Baron the Fifth. Vicecomites olim dicebantur quibus Caſtri Dominus vices ſuas committebat, ſeu exactionem Juriſdictionis in Caſtro. Now the Viſcounties are Hereditary and Feodal, and the Viſcounts don't Adminiſter Juſtice, as formerly. There is a great Number of them in Languedoc and Poictou; and ſome Viſcounts and Barons would not change their Ancient Title for a new Title of Earl or Marqueſs. In England, all the Earls are Peers of the Realm, and the King calls them Couſins. When he creates an Earl, he himſelf puts a Cloak on his Shoulders, a Sword on his Side, a Cap on his Head, and the Patent into his Hands. They are all nam'd from the Provinces, Towns, or Places, whereof they have the Title, two only excepted, viz. the Earl Marſhal of England, whoſe Title is Perſonal, and the Earl of Rivers, whoſe Title is particular to the Eldeſt Son of that Illuſtrious Family. Eighty Years ago there were but 20 Earls in England; but the Number is much increaſed now. Read Chamberlain's Preſent State of England, and you'll find more particulars. Earls are much reſpected in Spain, and many have the Dignity of Grandees of Spain. There is a great Number of Earls in Italy, but chiefly in the Kingdom of Naples, Sicily, and Piedmont. In Sweden, there are ſome Earls, and Barons, who with the Senators, make the firſt Nobility of the Kingdom. Denmark has neither Earls, Marqueſſes, Dukes, nor Barons, as other States; and the Nobility of that Kingdom does not quarter its Coat of Arms. There is but one Branch of the Houſe Rantzau, in the Dukedom of Holſtein, that takes the Title of Earl; and Frederick Viceroy of Norway, Frederick III. King of Denmark's Natural Son, who takes the Title of Earl of Guldenlew. There are alſo no Earls in Poland, Lithuania and Muſcovy; but ſome Dukes, Princes, and Palatines only. See Count-Palatines of France.

DULCIN, an Heretick, Head of thoſe Wandring People call'd Dulciniſts, in the beginning of the XIVth. Century; who pretended to Preach the Reign of the Holy Ghoſt, rejected the Pope's Authority, and made himſelf the Head of that third Reign, ſaying, That the Father had reign'd from the Beginning of the World to Jeſus Chriſt's coming; and that the Son's Reign began then, and continued till the Year 1300. He was followed by a great many People to the Alps, where he and his Wiſe Margaret were taken and Burnt by Pope Clement Vth's Order. Vignier Bibl. Hiſt. A. C. 1308. Gautier, Sanderus, &c.

DUNA, or Dwina, Lat. Duina, a River of Poland, taken by ſome for the Rubo of Ptolemy. It ſprings near Volga, in Muſcovy, and runs through Lithuania and Livonia, into the Baltick Sea, near Riga.

DUNALMA, a Feſtival-Day among the Turks, otherwiſe call'd Ziné, or Eziné. It laſts ſeven Days and Nights, and all that Time they make Fire-works, ſhoot off the Great Guns, and Muskets; beat the Drums, and Sound the Trumpets, with extraordinary Rejoicings. The People Feaſt in the Streets which are adorn'd with Tapiſtry and Flowers, and take their Pleaſure in all ſorts of Plays. This is celebrated at the Sultan's firſt Entry into the Town, or at the News of a remarkable Victory. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

DUNBAR, Lat Dumbarum, or the Caſtle of Bar, a Town in the County of Lothian, in Scotland, upon the Eaſtern Shore, 20 Scotch Miles North of Berwick. and the ſame diſtance Eaſt of Edenburgh. Heretofore it had a Caſtle, as it has ſtill a Haven to the Sea: But this Town is chiefly memorable for the firſt Defeat given to the Scots by Oliver Cromwell, Septemb. 13 in 1650.

DUNBRITOUN, Lat. Britannodunum, Caſtrum Britonum, a Town in the County of Lenox, in Scotland, upon a Fryth or Bay of the ſame Name, with a ſtrong Caſtle, where the River Levin falls into the Fryth, 8 Miles from Glaſco to the North-Weſt. 'Tis alſo called Dunbarton; becauſe the Britains held it the longeſt of any Town in Scotland, againſt the Picts and Scots. 'Tis the ſtrongeſt of all the Caſtles in Scotland, by Nature, being built on a high craggy, double-headed Rock, both fortified; and between theſe two it hath only one Paſſage on the North, hardly paſſable without labour and difficulty, by a ſingle Perſon. On the Weſt of it lies the Levin; on the South, the Cluyd; on the Eaſt, a boggy Marſh, which at every Tide is covered with Water.

DUNBRITOUN-FRITH, a great Bay in the South-Weſt part of Scotland, ſo call'd from the Caſtle. It begins at Dunskay, and on the South has Galloway, Carrick, Kyle, and Cunningham; on the North, Monteith, Lenox, Argyle, Kilmore, and Canter, beſides ſeveral ſmaller Rivers. It has in it the Iſland of Arran, and receives many of the biggeſt Rivers in Scotland. Juſt againſt it, to the Weſt, it has the North-Eaſt parts of Ireland; which are extream Fruitful, and Peopled with Scots, for the moſt part. There are many ſafe Havens and populous Towns upon it, which lie convenient for Trade with the Weſtern Plantations, and all the Southern World.

DUNCAN, the Eighty Eighth King of Scotland, was Natural Son to Malcolm III. and ſent for by the Nobles, from England againſt Donald VII. who had uſurp'd the Crown. But Duncan being a Military Man, and carrying it more imperiouſly than was meet, did quickly incurr the Hatred of his Subjects: Which his Rival Donald improv'd, and got him ſlain by the Earl of Mern, by Night, in Monteith, after he had Reigned a Year and half, and re-uſurp'd the Throne, being rather tolerated than approv'd by the People. In his time the Iſlanders and the Engliſh did both infeſt the Kingdom: and Magnus of Norway ſeized on the Weſtern Iſles: Which Donald not reſenting, the People were ſo incens'd againſt him that they ſent for Edgar Malcolm's Son, from England: Who being aſſiſted with ſome Forces by William Rufus, was quickly joyned by a great number of People in Scotland. So that Donald fled, his Men having forſaken him, and being taken was committed to Priſon; where he Died, after he had Reigned about Three Years. This was about the Year 1096. Buch.

DUNCAN (Martin) born at Kempen in the Dioceſs of Cullen in the XVI. Century. He Converted a great Number of the Anabaptiſts, and was a very Zealous Roman Catholick. His Works are, De vera Chriſti Eccleſia. De Sacrificio Miſſæ. De Piarum & Impiarum Imaginum differentia & cultu. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Johannes Hezius in Vita Duncani, &c.

DUNDALK, Lat. Dunkeranum, a ſmall City in the Province of Vlſter in Ireland, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Armagh, 26 Miles from Armagh, to the Eaſt, in the County of Louth, and 16 North from Drogheda, ſurpriz'd by the Iriſh in 1641. but re-taken the ſame Year by Sir Henry Titchburn by Storm, after their Forces had been beaten from the Siege of Drogheda; upon Sir Simon Harcourt's arrival with Supplies of Men and Money; but they ~~got it~~ again in 1649. The Duke of Schomberg continued with his Army here from September 12. 1689. to November 8. and was offered Battle by King James, but being much inferior in Number, declin'd it, ſaying, It depended on an Experienced General, to give, or avoid Battel when he thought fit; and ſo, though he loſt a great Number of Men by a Camp-Sickneſs, yet he ſecured all the Country behind him.

DUNDEE or DUNDY, Lat. Alectum Deidonum Allectum, a City in the North of Scotland, in the County of Angus upon the North ſide of the Fryth of Tay is a frequented Harbour, and of great ſafety, 10 Miles North of St. Andrews. It is very Strong, ſo that in 1651. when almoſt all Scotland had yielded, after the Defeat of Dunbar, it ſtill held out: But General Monk upon his refuſal of Surrendring to his Summons, Storm'd and took it, though defended with 11000 Soldiers, beſides Inhabitants; he put all that were in Arms to the Sword, and Plunder'd it of its Wealth which amounted in Silver, Gold and rich Goods, to a vaſt Sum of Money; being then the richeſt in Scotland, becauſe the Neighbourhood ſent thither their moſt valuable Effects, as to a place of Security. Sixty Sail of Ships which lay then in the Harbour yielded too. After which, Aberdeen and St. Andrews ſurrendred upon the firſt Summons.

DUNGALL, Lat. Dungalia, a Sea-Port Town and Caſtle as alſo a County in the North-Weſt part of Ireland, in the Province of Vlſter, on the South ſide of the River Elk. The County has the Ocean to the Weſt, Lagh Gormely on the South, and Tome Lagh on the North.

DUNGARVAN, a ſtrong, well-fortified Town, with a Caſtle and Haven, ſituate on the Southern Shore of Ireland, in the County of Waterford, in the Province of Munſter, 13 Miles from Waterford to the Weſt; firſt granted by Henry VI. to Talbot Earl of Shrewsbury, but afterwards annex'd to the Crown of England by Act of Parliament.

DUNKIRK, Dunquerca, a Sea-Port Town of Flanders, built by the Earl Baldwin III. call'd the Young, about 960. Some think it was nam'd ſo from the Flemiſh Word Kerk, that is Church, becauſe the Church-Steeple is the firſt Thing ſeen by Seamen above the Downs. It was taken in 1558. by the French, who claim'd it as Francis de Bourbon, Earl of Vendome's Inheritance; but re-taken in 1583. by the Duke of Parma. The French took it again in 1646. and the Spaniards re-took it in 1652. It was taken afterwards by the Mareſchal of Turenne, in 1658. and yielded to the Engliſh; of whom Lewis XIV. King of France, bought it in 1662. for 900000 Pounds Sterling. He has built there a Strong Citadel, and other Fortifications. Guichardin, Strada, Sarrazin.

DUNS (Joannes) call'd Scotus, from his Native Country, was much eſteem'd, at the latter end of the XIII. and beginning of the XIVth. Cent. He had Alexander Halenſis for his Maſter, and was call'd Doctor Subtilis, for his diſtinguiſhing Head, and great Penetration of his Genius: He oppos'd Tho. Aquinas in many of his Opinions, which produc'd two Parties in the Schools, called Thomiſts and Scotiſts. His Works were printed at Lyons in XII Volumes with the Life of the Authour; written by Vadingus, together with the Recommendation of ſeveral great Men, by way of Character. Sixtus Senenſis, Bibl. S. Poſſevin in Appar. Spondon. A. C. 1308. N. 11, &c.

DUNSTABLE, a Market Town of Manſhead Hundred, in the utmoſt South Parts of Bedfordſhire, near the Borders of Buckinghamſhire. It ſtands on a Hill in a chalky dry ground, and was Built by Henry I. out of the Ruines of the ancient Maginum or Magiavinium. It conſiſts of Four Streets, each of 'em with a Pond; and lying in the Road to Cheſter, is well frequented and accommodated with good Inns for Travellers. It is beautified with one of thoſe ſtately Croſſes which King Edward I. caus'd to be erected to the Memory of Queen Eleonor, at the places where her Corps reſted betwixt Lincolnſhire, where ſhe dyed; and Weſtminſter Abbey the Place of her Sepulture.

DUNWICH, an ancient Corporation, once a potent City on the Coaſt of Suffolk. Fælix, the Burgundian, who eſtabliſh'd the Eaſt Angles then wavering in the Chriſtian Faith in 630. placed here a Biſhop's See; which continued till Biſus the 4th. Biſhop after him, remov'd to North Elmham, leaving a Suffragan Biſhop only at Dunwich; in which time it was very Populous, and ſo ſtrong, that it curb'd Robert, Earl of Leiceſter, in his Rebellion againſt his Prince. In the Reign of Henry II. it had a Mint, but it's now a poor ſmall Corporation; yet retains the Honour ſtill of ſending two Burgeſſes to the Houſe of Commons. From London 82 Miles.

DUPLEIX (Scipio) born at Condom in Guyenne, in France, wrote the Hiſtory of France, in 6 Vol. There are ſome Remarks on his Hiſtory of Lewis the XIII. attributed to the Mareſchal of Baſſompierre. He compos'd alſo a Roman Hiſtory in 3 great Volumes, beſides many other Works, and dy'd in 1661. being 98 Years old.

DUPONT BASSANE (Francis) was eſteem'd for the Art of Colouring, and Expreſſing of the ſmalleſt Things. He was very Melancholick, and continually afraid of Bayliffs, which made him leap out of his Window, and kill himſelf. Le Chevalier Leandre Baſſane, his Brother, had a great Name for drawing Faces, and was always afraid of being poiſon'd, which Weakneſſes were natural to the Four Brethren, becauſe their Mother was inclin'd to Madneſs. John Baptiſt, and Hierom, the other Two Sons, ſucceeded in drawing from Originals. Rodolfi, vite de Pittori Veneti, &c.

DURANCE, a River of Dauphine and Provence, in France, nam'd by Strabo Δρȣέντια, by Ptolemy Δρȣέντιος; in Latin Druentia, is form'd of two Springs, and runs through Dauphiné and Provence, into the Rhône, between Avignon and Taraſcon. Tit. Livius, l. 20. ſaith, That there is no River leſs fit for Navigation, becauſe it is always unſtable, without Channel, Bounds, and Stability. Nevertheleſs, a Modern Author ſaith, That the Romans made it Navigable. Silius Italicus, l. 3. relates, that this River hindred Hannibal's march. Strabo l. 4. & 5. Pliny l. 3. c. 4. Chorier. Hiſt. de Dauph. l. 1. & 4, &c.

DURANDUS (William) call'd Speculator, born at Puimoiſſon, in the Dioceſs of Riez in Provence, liv'd in the XIII Century, and was one of the moſt knowing Lawyers of his Time, his Worth preferr'd him to the Favour of Pope Martin IVth. who made him one of his Nuncio's, and afterwards Biſhop of Mende in Languedoc. Sometime before his Promotion, he wrote a Book, call'd Speculum Juris, which gave him the Name of Speculator. This Book has been ſince very Learnedly commented upon by Baldus, Joannes Andreas and Maiolus: His Second Piece, is his Rationale Divinorum Officiorum, containing 8 Books. He wrote likewiſe Repertorium Juris, and Commentaries upon the Canons of the Council of Lyons under Gregory Xth. Maiolus, H. Ottoman Comment. de Verbis Juris. Bellarmin de Script. Eccle. Poſſevin Appar. Sacr. Spondan. A. C. 1274. N. 5, &c.

DURANDUS De St. Porcien, born in a Town of this Name, in the Dioceſs of Auvergne, liv'd in the XIVth. Century; who after ſeveral other conſiderable Promotions, was made Biſhop of Meaux. He wrote Commentaries upon the 6 Books of the Sentences, and a Treatiſe de Origine Juriſdictionum. Sixtus Senenſis Bibl. Sac. Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. &c.

DURAS, (Lewis) Marqueſs of Blanquefort, Brother to the Duke of Duras in France, lineally deſcended from the famous Galliard Dureford Lord of Duras, whom King Edw. IV. made Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. Which Lewis having been naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament in the 17th. of King Charles II. and being Captain of the Guards to His Royal Highneſs the Duke of York, he attended him in the Bloody Sea-Fight with the Dutch in 1665. wherein behaving himſelf with wonderful Magnanimity and exemplary Courage, he was by Letters Patents bearing date the 24th. of that Reign, advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Duras of Holdenby, in the County of Northampton; as alſo to have Place in all Parliaments and other great Councils, amongſt the reſt of the Barons of this Kingdom: and having ſince that time Married Mary one of the two Daughters of Sir George Sondes of Lees. Court in Com. Cantii, Knight of the Bath, upon the Advancement of the ſaid Sir George to the Title and Dignities of Baron of Throwley, Viſcount Sondes of Lees-Court, and Earl of Feverſham, all in Kent, he had the Reverſion of thoſe, after the Life of the ſame Sir George Sondes, granted to him, and to the Heirs Male of his Body, as by His Majeſty's Letters Patent bearing Date at Weſtminſter upon the 28th. Day of April, in the 28th. of that Prince's Reign doth appear. Dugdale's Baronage.

DURAS or Durazzo, a Sea-Port Town in Albania, at the mouth of the River Argentaro; 'twas built by the Corcyreans, or Inhabitants of Corfeu, about the 130th. Year of Rome. Its firſt Name was Epidamnus, and afterwards Dyrrachium. In the Times of Chriſtianity, it was an Archbiſhop's See under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople; Bajazet Emperor of the Turks, took it from the Venetians, in the XV Century. The Haven of it is very Commodious, but the badneſs of the Air, makes it ſlenderly Inhabited. Thucid. lib. 1, &c. Strabo lib. 5. Miræus Geogr. Eccl. &c.

DURHAM, Lat. Comitatus Dunelmenſis, is a Northern Maritime County of England, otherwiſe call'd the Biſhoprick of Durham. Northward it is divided by the Rivers Derwent and Tine from Northumberland; Southward, by the Tees from Yorkſhire; Eaſtward it is bounded with the German Ocean; Weſtward with Northumberland and Weſtmorland, but touching a little upon Cumberland. The Form thereof is Triangular, and the Sides not much differing, though that along the Sea-Coaſt is the ſhorteſt, not exceeding 23 Miles. This is one of the Counties inhabited by the Brigantes, in the time of the Romans; which made part of the Kingdom of Northumberland, in the time of the Heptarchy; and now, with part of Northumberland, and part of Yorkſhire, makes up the Dioceſe of Durham: The Whole divided into 4 Wakes, wherein are 118 Pariſhes, and 7 Market Towns. The Air is ſharp and piercing, though ſomething qualified by the neighbourhood of the Sea; but Nature has ſufficiently provided againſt this Inconveniency, by the great ſtore of Coals that are conſtantly digg'd here out of the Ground. As for the Soil, the worſt part of it is that which lies Weſtward, being both Rocky and Hilly, and Peopled accordingly. Its chief Rivers are the Derwent, Tine, Tees, and Ware. The Market-Towns, beſides the City of Durham, from whence the whole County is denominated, are Bernard-Caſtle, Darlington, Hartlepool, Staindrop or Stainthorp, and Sunderland; among which, Hartlepool and Sunderland only ſtand by the Sea; and Durham alone has the Privilege of ſending two Members to Parliament, beſides Knights of the Shire. This County was formerly call'd St. Cuthbert's Patrimony, from St. Cuthbert, the Raiſer of Durham, whoſe Epiſcopal See was remov'd hither from Lindisfarn, or Holy-Iſland, on the Coaſt of Northumberland: a Saint for whom ſeveral of the Saxon Kings had ſo great a Veneration, that upon him, and his Succeſſors in that See, was all the Country between the Rivers Tees and Tine conferr'd by King Alfred; and this Donation not only confirm'd but encreas'd by his Succeſſors, Edward Ethelſtan, and Canute the Dane. This Biſhoprick was ſo well provided with Privileges and Royal Grants, that at the coming in of the Norman Conqueror, the Biſhop being a Count Palatine, engrav'd upon his Seal an armed Knight, holding a naked Sword in one Hand, and the Biſhop's Arms in the other. Nay, it was once adjudged in Law, That the Biſhop was to have all Forfeitures and Eſcheats within the Liberties, as the King had without. In ſhort, the Biſhops hereof had the Royalty of Princes, having their own Courts of Judicature both for Civil and Criminal Cauſes, and Coyning their own Coyn. But theſe Prerogatives were much abridged by a Statute made in the Reign of King Henry VIII. and all together, with the Lands and whole Rights thereof, conferr'd upon the Crown, by Act of Parliament, in the laſt Year of the Reign of King Edward the VIth. but this Act was repealed by Queen Mary.

DURHAM, Lat. Dunhelmum, a City of good Antiquity, and Chief of the Biſhoprick of that Name, pleaſantly ſeated upon the River Ware, in a Peninſula made by this River, which waſheth three ſides of it, and gives paſſage into it by three Bridges. The Ground of it is a natural Hill, which contributes no leſs than the River to the Strength and Pleaſantneſs of its Situation; alſo ſecur'd by a Wall and a Caſtle in the mid'ſt of it. The Cathedral, being a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of York, is towards the South ſide of the City, and of great Beauty. It was begun by William de Careleph, the Biſhop thereof, and finiſhed by his Succeſſor. The Caſtle was built by William the Conqueror, for a Curb to the Northern Parts, and a Security againſt the Scots. It gave great Protection to the Engliſh, in 1346. when David Bruce, King of Scotland, harraſs'd the Northern Parts, whilſt Edward III. beſieg'd Calais. But the ſaid David Bruce was ſoon after overthrown in Battle, and taken Priſoner at Nevil's Croſs. In the time of Edward the VIth. the Biſhoprick was diſſolv'd by Act of Parliament, and given to that Prince. But Queen Mary repeal'd that Statute, and reſtor'd the Biſhoprick to all its Franchiſes. In 1645. it fell, after Newbury Fight, into the hands of the Scots; and being left by them the Year following, it follow'd the Fate of the War, as the Parties prevail'd upon each other.

DURLACH, or DOURLACH, a Town of the Marquiſate of Bade or Baden, having alſo the Title of Marquiſate. It gives its Name to a Branch of the Family of Baden; and is nam'd Durlacum in Latin. There is a very fine Caſtle here. See Bade.

DURSTUS, the 11th. King of Scotland, though the Son of a moſt Excellent Father, did abandon himſelf to Wine and Women, and drove away his Wife, who was Daughter to the King of the Brittons. But perceiving that the Nobles were Conſpiring againſt him, he thought it beſt to diſſemble Repentance, re-call'd his Wife, aſſembled the Chief of his Subjects, took a ſolemn Oath to Reform, enacted an Amneſty, committed Notorious Criminals, and ſolemnly Promiſed, That for the future he would act nothing without the Counſel of his Nobles. This Reconciliation being celebrated with Publick Rejoyings, he invited the Nobility to Supper; and having them all together in one place, ſent Ruffians who Murdered them every one. Which did ſo incenſe thoſe who were not at the Solemnity, that gathering together a great Army, they gave him Battel and killed him about An. M. 4604. Buchan.

DUSIANS, a Name given by the Gauls to certain Devils, nam'd in Lat. Incubi, or Fauni. St. Auguſtin, de Civit. Dei, l. 15. c. 22. affirms, That ſuch Spirits taking the Shape of Men, were very troubleſome to Women, whom they abus'd ſometimes.

DUSSELDORP, the Chief Town of the Dukedom of Monts, or Berg, in Germany, on the Rhine, 5 or 6 Leagues from Cologne and Juliers. 'Tis well fortified, and belongs to the Duke of Neubourg.

DUVELAND, or Bevelant, an Iſland of Zeland, in the Low-Countries, near 4 Leagues in Circuit, and containing many Villages. 'Tis much expos'd to Floods. Guichard Deſcr. des Pais-Bas.

DUVINA, a Town in the Northern Part of Moſcovy, Situated in a Province, and upon a River of the ſame Name. In Latin call'd Duina: The River it ſtands upon, is one of the moſt conſiderable in all Moſcovy, for riſing in the Province of Wologda, it continues its Courſe beyond Arch-Angel, and falls into the White Sea.

DUUM-VIRI, Magiſtrates of the Commonwealth of Rome: There were more than one ſort of them, ſome of them being a kind of Churchwardens, to over-ſee the Repairing of the Temples. Others inſpected the Naval Preparations, and were Judges in leſſer Diſputes of that Nature. This Office was firſt ſet up in the Time of Tarquinius Superbus, for the ſafe Cuſtody of the Sibylls Books. *Liv.lib.5.&* Dein.

DYKE or DYKES (Leonard) of Wardel in the County of Cumberland Eſq;, married Grace the Daughter of John Salkeld of Threpland, of the ſame County Eſq;, by whom he has nine Children, (viz.) Fretcheville the Eldeſt, Oſwald, &c. Before the Conqueſt, this Family liv'd at Dykesfield in Cumberland, but the Deeds of thoſe Times being without Date, makes their Marriages and Deſcents leſs intelligible, but in the XVIth. of Edward II. 1323. William Dyke married one of the Daughters, and Co-heirs of Sr. Hugh Waverton of Waverton, in the County aforeſaid, by whom the Dykes were poſſeſs'd of a third Part of that Eſtate, and thereupon remov'd from Dykesfeild to Waverton, where they continued for 46 Years. The next Match was betwixt William Dykes Eſq; and a Daughter, and Co-heir of Sir Hugh Diſtington of Diſtington in Cumberland, who brought him the Eſtate of the Lands of Diſtington with the Advowſon. The Dykes likewiſe Inter-marry'd with ſeveral other Heireſſes, and Co-heirs of conſiderable Families, as Pennington of Moncaſter in Cumberland Eſq;, Sir Richard Salkeld of Corby, Sir John Martingdale of Martingdale, Radcliff of Cockerton Eſq;, all of the County aforeſaid. Thomas Dyke Eſq; Father to the preſent Leonard married, Joyce Daughter and Co-heir to John Fretcheville of Haſlebrough in Yorkſhire, Eſq; only Brother to Sir Peter Fretcheville of Stala, in the County of Darby, Knight, who was Father to the late Lord Fretcheville; this John Fretcheville married Barbara Aire, Daughter to Sir Gervaſe Aire, Knight, of the County of Nottingham, who was Mother to Joyce Fretcheville, Mother to the preſent Leonard. As for the other Inter-Marriages, they were with very worthy Families of Note, as the Lee's of Iſell, the Vaux's, the Thwaite's, the Laton's of Dalemaine, the Lancaſter's of Sockbridge. Cambden makes Honourable mention of one Oſwald Dyke of this Family, a very Learned Divine of Diſtington, in the County of Cumberland, and Brother to Thomas Dyke of Wardall, &c. Britan. Engliſh Edit. pag. 829. This Family were great Sufferers in the late Civil Wars. Their Arms are: Or, Charg'd with three Cinkfoyles Sable: The Creſt, a Graſhoppers-head Vert.

Egyptian DYNASTIES: The Greek Name ſignifieth Principality. To underſtand their Origin, we muſt know, that an ancient Chronicle of the Egyptians, mention'd by George Syncellus, in his Chronography, ſpeaks of the Reign of Gods, Demi-Gods or Hero's, and Men or Kings. The Reign of Gods and Demi-Gods, according to that Chronicle, laſted 34201 Years; and that of Men or Kings, 2324 Years; which makes 36525 Years to Nectanebo, the laſt King, who was dethron'd by Ochus, King of Perſia, 19 Years before Alexander the Great, [that is, in 3704 of the W. according to F. Labbé] That fabulous Hiſtory reckons 15 Gods that have reigned in Egypt, viz. Vulcan, the Sun, Saturn, Jupiter, and the other great Gods; 17 Demi-Gods, and 15 Kings, to the time it was written. All the Learned agree, that the Reign of Gods, and Demi-Gods, is a Fable invented by the Egyptians, to make their Nation ancienter than the Chaldeaus: and that Manetho, a Prieſt of Heliopolis, who wrote the Hiſtory of Egypt by Ptolemy Philadelphus's Order, about 3780. according to the ſame Computation, has imitated that ancient Chronicle, (which he doth not wholly follow nevertheleſs, neither in the Number of Gods, Hero's, nor in the Years of their Reigns) to equal the Antiquity of the Chaldean Hiſtory, invented by Beroſus. As for the Kings, all the Hiſtorians that have ſpoken of that Kingdom; as Herodotus, Manetho, Eratoſthenes, Apollodorus, Diodorus Siculus, Joſephus, Julius Africanus, Euſebius, and Syncellus, agree that Menes was its Firſt King; and Joſephus ſignifies enough, that he was the Firſt that had the Name of Pharaoh, which his Succeſſors took after him. Thoſe that believe the Dynaſties True, ſay that Menes began his Reign 117 Years after the Birth of Peleg, the Son of Heber, and the diſperſion of Men throughout all the World, (which happen'd in 1788. according to F. Labbé.) They add, that Egypt was inhabited by Cham's Poſterity, above 200 Years before they were govern'd by Kings: for Cham, the Son of Noah, retir'd thither, after the Diviſion of the World; or, at leaſt, his Son Miſraim; therefore Egypt is call'd Cham's and Miſraim's Land, in Holy Writ; but there were no Kings till Menes his three Sons divided the Empire; Athotis govern'd after him in the Higher Egypt, where Thebes was. The Second, nam'd Curudés, had for his Share all the Lower Egypt, and perhaps reſided at Heliopolis. And Necherophes, the Third, reign'd at Memphis. Athotis, who poſſeſs'd Thebais, divided his Kingdom between his Children; which made two Principalities, or Petty-Kingdoms. In the following Ages, many other Sovereignties, call'd Dynaſties, were form'd in Egypt, by the Diviſion made between other Kings Sons, or by the Uſurper's Power. Manetho reckons three of them; whereof there are ſeventeen from Menes, the Firſt King of Egypt, to Moſes's Government, or his going out of Egypt, (which was, according to the ſame Computation, the Year 2543.) And thirteen from Moſes's time, to Nectanebo the IId's Reign, 350 Years before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt, (that is about the Year of the World, 3704 according to that Chronology.) The ſeventeen firſt Dynaſties are not all ſucceſſive, that is, they don't follow one another from the firſt to the thirtieth: for many were Contemporary, or Collateral; that is did ſubſiſt at the ſame time in different Parts of Egypt. They had ſeven different Names, viz of the Thinites, Memphites, Dioſpolites, Heracleopolites, Tanaites, Elephantines, and Xoites. The firſt reſided at This and Thebes; the ſecond at Memphis; the third, at the Leſſer Dioſpolis, in the Lower Egypt, different from Thebes; the fourth, at Sethron, call'd afterwards Heracleopolis; the fifth at Tanais, in the Lower Egypt; the ſixth, at Elephantine; and the ſeventh, at Xois. They reckon two Families of the Thinites, five of the Memphites, four of the Dioſpolites, two of the Heracleopolites, two of the Tanaites, one of the Elephantines, and one of the Xoites. The Order, Succeſſion and Duration of thoſe Kings Reigns, is very uncertain. Some ſay that the firſt ſeventeen Dynaſties laſted 1039 Years. The thirteen laſt are not ſo confuſed, becauſe they followed one another. They were poſſeſs'd by the Dioſpolites, Tanaites, Bubaſtites, Saites, Ethiopians, Perſians, Mendeſians, and Sebennites. The eighteenth Dynaſty was the fifth of the Dioſpolites. Thoſe Princes, whoſe Head was Amoſis, poſſeſs'd all the Lower Egypt; with Memphis, which had for a long time particular Kings. The Higher Egypt only, or Thebais, acknowledged not their Power; becauſe it had almoſt all along its Sovereigns. The nineteenth Dynaſty was the ſixth of the Dioſpolites of the Lower Egypt. Sethos, or Sethoſis, is reputed to have been their Head, not different from the Famous Seſoſtris. The ſixth and laſt was Thuoris. The twentieth Dynaſty was the ſeventh of the Dioſpolites. Nechopſos was its firſt King, and Vennephes the twelfth and laſt. The twenty firſt Dynaſty was the Third of the Tanaites, who became Maſters of the Lower Egypt: Smedes was the firſt, and Pſuſennes II. the 7th and laſt. The Twenty ſecond Dynaſty was that of the Bubaſtites, who turn'd the Tanaites out of the Lower Egypt: Seſunchis was the firſt King, who had eight Succeſſors, but their Names are not known. The twenty third Dynaſty was that of the Tanaites, who conquer'd their Kingdom again, under Petubates their firſt King, who had but three ſucceſſors, viz. Oſorthon, Pſammus, and Zet. The twenty fourth Dynaſty was the firſt of the Saites, that had but one King, nam'd Bocchoris. The twenty fifth Dynaſty was that of the Ethiopians, or Arabians; begun by Sabbacon, who had two ſucceſſors nam'd Sue and Tarac. The twenty ſixth Dynaſty was the ſecond of the Saites; begun by Pſammetichus, who conquer'd all Egypt: Pſammenitus, the ſixth King of this Dynaſty, was overcome by Cambyſes King of Perſia, Cyrus the Great's Son. The twenty ſeventh Dynaſty was that of the Kings of Perſia, begun in Cambyſes (in the Year 3529. according to F. Labbé.) During that time, Egypt was made a Province, whither the Kings of Perſia ſent Governours. The twenty eighth Dynaſty was the 3d of the Saides, begun in Darius Ochus King of Perſia's Reign, (in 3641. according to that Chronology,) and had but one Prince, nam'd Amyrteus. The twenty ninth Dynaſty was that of the Mendeſians, and continu'd but thirty two Years under four Kings; the firſt thereof was Nepheritus, or Nephreus; and Nepheritus II. was the laſt. The thirtieth Dynaſty was that of the Sebennites, which continued twenty ſeven Years under three Kings, viz. Nectanebo I. Tachos, and Nectanebo II. overcome by Artaxerxes Ochus, King of Perſia (in 3704 of the ſaid Computation,) and forc'd to retire with his Treaſures into Æthiopia. Thus ended the Egyptian Dynaſties. Thoſe that follow the Egyptian Hiſtorians Computation, affirm, That the thirty Dynaſties laſted 2619 Years, from Menes to Nectanebo II. They add, That Menes founded the Egyptian Empire 117 Years after Peleg's Birth, in 2904 of the W. and 648 Years after the Flood. That Nectanebo II. loſt his Crown in 5523 of the W. and 350 Years before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt. That by the Addition of 350 to 2619, it is found, that the Egyptian Empire began 2969 Years before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt; and that there were ſome of Cham's Children in Egypt above 200 Years before Menes's Reign; and that Miſraim, the Son of Cham, went thither about 430 Years after the Flood: which makes above 630 Years from the Flood to the firſt Egyptian Monarchy; and that Number being joyn'd to 2369. makes a Duration of about 3600 Years ſince the Flood. This agreeth not with the Computation of thoſe, who reckoning but 4000 Years ſince the Creation of the World, to Jeſus Chriſt, can reckon but 2350 Years, or thereabouts, ſince the Flood. Therefore they conclude that the Computation of the Septuagint muſt be followed, which they believe not much different from that of the firſt Hebrews; according to which, they reckon above 5500 Years from the Creation of the World to the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt, inſtead of 4000, or thereabout, which the moſt part of Modern Chronologers give to that vaſt ſpace of time. See John Marſham, in his Chronicus Canon Ægyptiacus. Pezron Antiquités des Temps.

E. This Vowel was uſed by the Ancient Latin Authours inſtead of æ; as Etas for Ætas.

EADBERT, King of Northumberland, Succeeded to Relwulf his Couſin, An. 738. two Years after made war with the Picts; and in his abſence Ethelbald, King of Mercia invaded his Dominions. He join'd with Unuſt K. of the Picts, againſt the Britains in Cumberland, in 756. and at laſt following the ſteps of his Predeceſſor, exchang'd his Crown for a Monk's Hood, having reigned with much Applauſe 21 Years.

EBEYS, Soldan of Egypt, in 1156. Slew the Califf his Maſter, who entruſted him with the Government of the Kingdom, and ſeiz'd upon his Treaſures; of which he threw one part into the Palace to amuſe the People, while he made his Eſcape with his Sword in his Hand. The Knights Templars having notice of this Murther, purſu'd Ebeys in the Road to Damaſcus, and having kill'd him, took away his Treaſure, and Sold his Son Noſceradin, for Seventy thouſand Crowns to the Egyptians, who put him to Death. Boſio Hiſtoire de l' Ordre de St. Jean de Jeruſalem, l. 1. c. 3.

EBION, an Arch-Heretick of the Firſt Age, about An. 72. who taught, That Chriſt was a mere Man, and propagated thoſe Impieties which are charg'd upon the Carpocratians. He intermixed the Opinions of the Samaritans and Nazarens with the Dreams of the Carpocratians and Cerinthians, allow'd Polygamy, and compos'd falſe Acts of the Apoſtles: He abſtain'd from ſeveral Meats, and Preferr'd the Law before the Goſpel; laught at the New Teſtament, and made uſe only of St. Matthew which he falſify'd as he pleas'd himſelf: And from him, his Followers were call'd Ebionites. Some will have it that St. John wrote his Goſpel againſt Ebion and Cerinthus, and Origen and others think Ebion to be the Name of a Sect and not of a Man, the Jews having call'd ſome of the Primitive Chriſtians by that Name out of Contempt, becauſe the word ſignifies Poor. Ittigius de Hær. 1. Sæculi; Irenæus, l. 1. c. 26. Euſebius l. 3. Hiſt. c. 31. EBLES, Abbot of St. Germains de Prez, did wonderful feats of Arms for the Defence of Paris in 888. againſt the Normans; contributed to their Defeat at Mont Faulcon in 889, and was Kill'd in 892. at the Siege of Brillac in Poictou. Abbon de Obſid. Pariſ. l. 2. Reginon in his Chron.

EBLON, Baron of Roucy, a famous Captain in the 12th Century, who took Arms many times under pretence to fight the Saracens, but rather to plunder the Churches of Spain, and abuſe the Country-people; but Louis the Groſs reduc'd him in 1103---Mezeray.

EBOLUM, Evoli, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples, in the hither Principality dignified with the Title of a Dukedom, ſix Miles from the Shore of the Bay of Salernum.

EBON, Archbiſhop of Rheims, a Turbulent Prelate, of low Parentage, but took part with Lothaire againſt his Father Lewis the Debonaire, and was the main occaſion of the dethroning of Lewis, though his Foſter-Brother. Upon whoſe Reſtoration he was himſelf degraded by the Conſent and Sentence of forty Biſhops. Himſelf owning his Fault for his Diſloyalty, and ſubſcribing his own Depoſition. Afterwards Lothaire reſtor'd him; but being a ſecond Time ejected, Pope Sergius refus'd him his Protection. Upon which he retir'd to Germany, and died in 855. Burchard. l. 2. c. 5. Annals of Fuldes, A. C. 822.

EBRBUHARITES, a ſort of Religious Mahometans; ſo call'd from their Founder Ebrbuhar, the Diſciple of Naſchibendi, who make great Profeſſion of Piety, and Contempt of the World; But the reſt of the Muſſulmen account them Hereticks, becauſe they believe themſelves not obliged to go in Pilgrimage to Mecca. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

EBRO, in Lat. Iberus, a River of Spain, which riſes in Old Caſtile, upon the Frontiers of Aſturia, not far from the Town which thoſe of the Country call Fuentibre. It croſſes Old Caſtile, and a part of Navarre. In the firſt of which Provinces it runs by Miranda di Ebro, Jancugo, Longrogno, and Calahorra, ſwell'd in its Courſe by ſeveral other Rivers. In Navarre it waſhes Agra, and entring into Arragon, runs to Saragoſſa, and receives the Guerna, Rio Martin, &c. And laſtly, the Alagas, which on the one ſide ſeparates Arragon from Catalogna; not far from which Province it receives the Segro, paſſes to Tortoſa, and then throws it ſelf into the Mediterranean. The Firſt Diviſion of Spain was into Spain on this ſide, and Spain beyond the Iberus. And it was the Frontier which ſeparated the Conqueſts of the Carthaginians from the Romans; by the Treaty which Luctatius Catulus made between thoſe two Nations. Plin. l. 3. & 4. Nonius Hiſp. Deſc.

EBRODUNUM, now Yverdon, a Town of Switzerland in the Canton of Bern, upon the Lake Novicaſtro, where it receives the Orbe, three Leagues from the Confines of Burgundy, to the Eaſt. It was formerly under the Dukes of Savoy, from whom it was taken by the Switzers, and the Inhabitants forc'd to Swear Fealty to thoſe of Bern, Friburgh and Soleurre, in 1475. which Oath they afterwards broke, by admitting the Friends of Charles, Duke of Burgundy; tho' with ill Succeſs. For after the Battel of Morat, though the Town were reſtor'd to the Savoyards, in 1476; yet in 1536. it return'd into the Poſſeſſion of thoſe of Bern, with all the Territory adjoining, after it was deſerted by the Baron of Lucern, Governour for the Duke of Savoy. Near this place are found ſeveral Roman Monuments. See Stumpf. de Pago Aventico, c. 13, &c.

EBROIN, Maire of the Palace under Clotaire III, or Lotharius, who for ten Years manag'd the Affairs of the Kingdom with great Applauſe. Afterwards he remov'd the Queen Batilde, and then giving the Reins to his Vices, he trampled upon the Nobility, and after the Death of Clotaire, ſet up Thierry in his Room, againſt whom the Nobility, tho' Ebroin had forbidden them to ſtir out of their Houſes, ſet up Childeric the Second, after they had thruſt Ebroin and Thierry into Monaſteries, and ſhav'd their Heads. After the Death of Childeric, Thierry was reſtor'd, and one Leudeſius appointed Maire of the Palace; but then Ebroin getting looſe again, caus'd Leudeſius to be Murther'd, and ſet up a Counterfeit Clouis, who feign'd himſelf to be the Son of Clotaire III. Upon which, Thierry being conſtrain'd to admit him for Maire of his Palace, ſo that he had no more need of his Counterfeit Clouis, he diſmiſs'd him, and Uſurp'd the Sovereign Power, and Sacrific'd all that had oppos'd him to his Revenge, and all that had any Great Employments or Conſiderable Eſtates, to his Avarice, till at length he was Kill'd one Morning by Hermanfroy, a Nobleman, whom he had outed of all his Demeſns. Gregory of Tours, Append. c. 94. Sigebert. Mezeray, &c.

EBURIC, King of the Suevians in Gallicia, Succeeded Miron his Father, in 583, and next Year was taken and confin'd to a Monaſtery by Anduca Uſurper of the Kingdom. But in 585. Anduca was ſerv'd after the ſame manner by Leuvigildus King of the Goths; and ſo put an end to the Kingdom of the Suevians in Spain. Greg. of Tours, l. 6. c. 43.

EBURONES, alias Eburovices, the Name of an Ancient People of Gaul, where is now the Dioceſs of Liege; which was formerly ſettl'd at Tongres, afterwards at Maeſtricht, and laſtly at Liege. Which comprehended not only that which is now the Biſhoprick of Liege, but a good part of Brabant, Limburg, Luxemburg, and all the Dioceſs of Namurr, which was taken out of that of Leige. But thoſe People whom Cæſar calls the Eburones, Eburovices, and Aulerci-Eburovices, were thoſe that formerly inhabited the Dioceſs of Eureux. See Sanſon of the Ancient Gaul.

EBURUM, a City of the Quadi formerly, now Olmutz the Capital of Moravia, upon the River Morava; a Strong Town, but taken by the Swedes in the late War. Six Leagues from the Breyn to the South, twenty from Vienna to the North, and as many from the Confines of Poland. Baudrand.

EBUSUS, called by the Spaniards Yvica, an Iſland in the Mediterranean under the Spaniards, toward the Coaſt of the Kingdom of Valencia Weſtward, with a Caſtle of the ſame Modern Name, and ſome ſmall Villages ten Leagues from the Promontory call'd Punta del Emperador to the Weſt, and about the ſame diſtance from Majorca to the Eaſt. This Iſland, as Pliny ſays, will endure no Venomous Creatures. De Marca Hiſpanica, l. 2. c. 15.

ECBATANA, formerly the Capital of Media, now a City of Perſia; which ſome ſuppoſe to be Casbin, in the Province of Terrack, or Ayrach. Heretofore the Kings of the Medes kept their Court in this City; and Hiſtory tells us, That the Walls of it which are deſcribed in the firſt Chapter of Judith, and were no leſs than Seven in Number, one within and above another, were adorned with Battlements of different Colours; White, Black, Purple, Blue, Orange, Silver and Gilt. Merodach, whom ſome ſuppoſe to be Nebuchadonoſor, A. M. 33047. overthrew Arphaxad, and ruin'd Ecbatana. Here it was that Cambyſes wounded himſelf to Death, as he endeavour'd to mount his Horſe, in A. M. 3532. Parmenio was here put to Death by the Command of Alexander in 3725. And here it was that three Years after Epheſtion, the Favourite of that Prince, ended his days; upon whoſe Funeral were ſpent above twelve thouſand Talents, every Talent being ſix hundred Crowns. Herodotus, l. 1. Strabo, l. 1. *Quint. ECCLES, the Seat of a Knightly Family of the Sirname of Hume in the Sheriffdom of Berwick; where there was formerly a very fine and ſtately Nunnery.

ECDICIUS, Son of the Emperour Avitus, and Brother to Papianilla, Wife of Sidonius Apollinaris, liv'd in the 5th Cent. He was General of the Horſe, under Anthemius, and afterwards made Patricius: Sidonius commends him for the brave Defence he made in Clermont againſt the Viſigoths, whom he defeated with a handful of Men, in 471. Gregory of Tours commends him likewiſe for his great Charity to the Poor, who were reliev'd by him in a Famine. Gregor. Turon. lib. 2. c. 24. Marcellin. & Caſſiodor. in Chron. Sidonius Apollinaris, lib. 2. Ep. 1, &c.

ECEBOLIUS, a Rhetorician born at Conſtantinople, was prevailed upon by Julian the Apoſtate, to quit the Chriſtian Religion, and turn Pagan in 362. After the Death of Julian, he deſir'd to be re-admitted to Communion, and ſtanding at the Church-Door reproach'd himſelf for his Weakneſs and Apoſtacy, bidding the People trample upon him as Salt that had loſt its Savour. St. Hierom. Chron. Socrat. lib. 3. cap. 11.

ECHIDNE, a Queen of Scythia, by whom Hercules had three Children at a Birth; Agathyrſus, Gelo and Scytha. When ſhe was Deliver'd, ſhe ask'd Hercules how he would have 'em diſpos'd of? He anſwer'd, That when they were fit to bear Arms, whoever of the three, was able to bend the Bow that he left behind him, ſhould enjoy the Kingdom of Scythia; and when none could bend it but Scytha, he was preferr'd before his other Brothers. Herod. l. 4.

ECHO, a Nymph, that being in love with Narciſſus, and by him deſpis'd, pin'd her ſelf to Death for Grief. The Allegory of Vain-glorious Boaſting, that being contemn'd, vaniſhes into nothing.

ECKIUS, (John) a Doctor of Divinity, and Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Ingolſtadt; well known for his Oppoſing and Writing againſt Luther, Melancthon, and the reſt of the Reformed Divines in the laſt Age. In 1518. he debated with Luther at Leipſick, about the Supremacy of the Pope, Penance, Purgatory and Indulgences, and was overcome July 4. 1519. before George Duke of Saxony. He diſputed in June that ſame Year, againſt Caroloſtadius about Free-Will; and with Melancthon, and other Divines at Worms, for three Days, about the remaining of Original Sin after Baptiſm, in 1541. but by the Emperour's Command, the Conference was adjourn'd to Ratisbon. Eckius died An. 1543. Aged 57.---Læti, Simler.

ECLUSE, or CLUSIUS, (Charles De) a Famous Phyſician, born at Arras, in 1526. He Travell'd into moſt Countries of Europe, and at laſt being invited to the Emperour Maximilian the IId's Court, he liv'd fourteen Years there, and had a Phyſick-Garden allow'd him by that Prince, and by his Succeſſour Rodolph the IId; but being tir'd with a Court-life, he retir'd to Frankfort, and afterwards to Leyden, where he was Botanick Profeſſour. His Works are publiſh'd in two Volumes, (viz.) Rariorum Plantarum Hiſtoria Exoticorum, lib. 10. Aromatum & Simplicium aliquot Medicamentorum apud Indos Naſcentium, Hiſtoria, &c. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Meurſius, Athen. Bat. &c.

ECTHESIS, The Name of a Famous Confeſſion of Faith, publiſh'd by the Emperour Heraclius, in 639. This Form was ſo Artificially drawn up, that though it appeared Orthodox to an unwary Reader, yet, in reality, it was not ſo; For under a plauſible Appearance of Catholick Doctrine, 'twas found, upon a through Enquiry, to maintain but one Will and one Operation, in our Bleſſed Saviour. St. Maximus, an Abbot near Conſtantinople, oppos'd this Declaration with great Vigour, and in order to get it ſuppreſs'd, he made a Journey to Rome, and perſwaded Pope John IV. to call a Council to condemn it: The Emperour Heraclius underſtanding that the Church of Rome cenſur'd him as a Heretick, was ſenſibly concern'd at it, and declar'd in another Edict, that Sergius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, was the true Author of the Ectheſis, and that it had been publiſh'd purely at his Importunity. Baron. Annal. Tom. 8.

EDBALD, a Saxon, King of Kent, was the Son of Ethelbert, the Firſt Chriſtian Saxon King, and Reign'd in the 7th Age. No ſooner was his Father dead, but he relaps'd into Heatheniſm, and Married his Father's ſecond Wife. A great part of the People forſook the Chriſtian Religion with him; eſpecially thoſe who embrac'd it to comply with the Times. The King upon this, being vex'd with an Evil Spirit, fell into Fits of Diſtraction, till returning at laſt to his right Mind, he diſſolv'd his inceſtuous Marriage, and with his People re-imbraced the Chriſtian Faith. He died in 640. leaving the Kingdom of Kent to Eucombert his Son, by Emma the French King's Daughter. Bede Hiſt. lib. 2. cap. 4.

EDELWALK, the firſt Chriſtian King of the South-Saxons, was ſlain in Fight by Kedwalla a Weſt-Saxon King, after whoſe Death, Bertune and Andune two Brothers, took on themſelves the Government with the Title of Dukes or Captains; and held it till Edric the Son of Edelwalk got it out of their hands.

EDEN, the Principal River of Cumberland, has its riſe in Yorkſhire, from whence it runs North-weſtward through Weſtmerland, where it Waters Kirbyſteven and Appleby. At laſt joyning with the Eimot in the Borders of Cumberland, it waters this Country till ſwell'd with many leſſer Streams it empties it ſelf Weſtward into the Iriſh Sea, between Anand Caſtle in Scotland, and Boulneſſe in England. The City of Carliſle, and many little Towns in this County, are water'd by this River.

EDERUS, the 15th King of Scotland, was Son to Dochamus, and Grandchild to Durſtus, the 11th King; his Father being cut off by the Treachery of Gillus, who obtain'd the Throne, ſought for his Life; he was ſaved by his Nurſe, who fled with him by Night into Argile, and brought him up ſome Years in a Cave; but Gillus being worſted in a Battel againſt his Nobles, and forced to fly into Ireland, Cadwallus being choſen Viceroy, found out Ederus, and took care of his Education; and he was made King after Evenus II. There happened nothing remarkable in his Reign, but that he Defeated thoſe Iſlanders by Sea and Land who took part with Gillus, and reſtored the Booty which they had Plunder'd from the Inhabitants of the main Land, and thus having eſtabliſhed a firm Peace, he died in the 48th Year of his Reign, about A. M. 3887. Buch.

EDESSA, The Metropolis of Meſopotamia, under the Patriarchate of Antioch, formerly a very conſiderable Town. 'Tis now call'd Orſa in Diarbeck. Euſebius is of Opinion it was built by Seleucus. Abgarus, who, 'tis ſaid, wrote a Letter to our Saviour, was Sovereign of this Town, as has been already obſerv'd. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl. & Chron. Evagrius, lib. 4. cap. 8, &c.

EDGAR, King of England, was a younger Son of Edmund, and Brother of Edwin his immediate Predeceſſor. He came to the Crown at ſixteen Years of Age, Anno 959. Yet was not Crowned (whatever was the reaſon of it) till the 30th of his Age; but then it was done with great Splendor and Magnificence. The place of his Coronation was the City of Bath, and Whitſunday the Time fixt upon for that great Solemnity. The Tranquillity of his Reign, though always prepared for War, got him the Name of Peaceable. He was a Prince much extolled for his Juſtice, Clemency, Zeal in Religion, and other Royal Virtues; but eſpecially by the Monks, for his Building ſo many Monaſteries, and favouring the Monks againſt Secular Prieſts, who in the late Reign were poſſeſſed of moſt of their Convents. For the Preſervation of whoſe Intereſt, he called home Dunſtan, the Patron of Monks, out of Flanders, where he lived in Exile, and made him Archbiſhop of Canterbury. To ſecure the Realm from Foreign Invaſion, he ſet out a Prodigious Fleet, conſiſting (ſays Matthew of Weſtminſter) of 4500 Ships, ſuch as thoſe Times afforded. This vaſt Fleet he divided into four Squadrons, each of 1125. One to Sail from Eaſt to Weſt, another from Weſt to Eaſt; the Third and Fourth between North and South. Thus he kept out wiſely the Force of Strangers, and prevented foreign War, being himſelf with his Fleet in the Summer-time. In the Winter and Spring he did the Office of a Judge Itinerant, going the Circuit himſelf, and Riding through all his Provinces, to ſee Juſtice well Adminiſtred, and the Poor not Oppreſſed. Thieves and Robbers he routed almoſt out of the Land, and ravenous Wolves altogether. This laſt he did, by changing the Welch Tribute impoſed by Ethelſtan into a yearly Tribute of 300 Wolves; which made that People ſo Active and Skilful in Wolf-hunting, that in two Years they clearly ridded the kingdom of that noxious Creature. An. 974, the King went to Cheſter; and, having ſummoned to his Court there, all the Kings that held of him, received their Homage. My Author reckons Eight of them, viz. Kenneth King of Scots, Malcolm of Cumberland, Maccuſe of the Iſles, and theſe five of Wales, Dufwal, Huwal, Griffith, Jacob, Judethil. As he was going one Day into a Galley, he made each of 'em take his Oar, and row him down the River Dee, while he ſat at the Stern. Which if he did in Merriment, cannot be much taken amiſs; if ſeriouſly, and to ſhew his Authority, it was ſuch a piece of Oſtentation as might have been of very ill Conſequence, The ſame Year, ſays Matthew of Weſtminſter, he gave to Kenneth King of Scots many rich Preſents, and the whole Country of Lothien, to hold of him on Condition that he and his Succeſſors ſhould repair to the Engliſh Court at high Feſtivals, when the King ſat Crowned. He gave him alſo many Lodging Places by the Way, which were held by the Kings of Scotland till the Reign of Henry II. The greateſt Vice this King was guilty of is that which few Princes, eſpecially of his Age, could ever boaſt to be innocent of. And, to paſs by the Romantick Story of Andover, where blind Love was ſham'd, and a Maid ſubſtituted in the room of the fair Lady the King languiſhed for. The moſt Irregular perhaps of his Amours was with the Virgin Wilfrida, whom he took by force out of the Nunnery, and kept as his Concubine. But he was ſo far from living obſtinate in the Offence, that, being ſharply reproved for it by Dunſtan, he ſubmitted to ſeven Years Penance. He had two Wives, firſt Egelflida and afterwards Elfrida. By the firſt, he had Edward his next Succeſſor; and by the ſecond Ethelred, who alſo came to the Crown after his Brother Edward's Death. Elfrida his ſecond Wife, he got at the ſecond hand, but he was abuſed in it by Earl Athelwold, to whoſe Loyalty he truſted. She was an Earl's Daughter, and the greateſt Beauty of the Land. Which the King hearing of, he ſent the Earl to ſee her; intending, if Fame did not bely her, to demand her in Marriage. The Earl, at firſt View, taken with her Preſence, began to ſue for himſelf, and with her Parents Conſent obtain'd her. Being returned to Court, he ſoon put the King out of Conceit with her, by the mean Character he gave of her Beauty. Till Elfrida being more and more cry'd up for a tranſcendent Beauty, the King found out at laſt how he had been foreſtalled and abuſed by his Favourite. This heated the King, not only into a Relapſe of Love for Elfrida, but alſo into a Reſentment of the Earl's Abuſe. However diſſembling his Paſſion, he pleaſantly told the Earl, That he meant upon ſuch a Day, to give him and his fair Lady a Viſit. The Earl acquainted his Lady with it; and, the Day being come, he earneſtly pray'd her to ſet her ſelf out to the greateſt diſadvantage, leſt her Beauty ſhould make any fatal Impreſſion upon the King. But his Wife, ſenſible of the Cheat he had put upon her, by ſtepping ſo boldly between her and the King, reſolved to mortifie the Earl, by uſing all the Art ſhe could to ſet off her Beauty againſt the King's coming, to make her ſelf the more Acceptable; which proved accordingly. For the King, raviſhed at the Sight of the Lady, look'd upon her with Admiration, and reſolved from that time, not only to recover his intercepted Right, but alſo to puniſh the Interloper, who had ſo long defrauded and robbed him of her. To compaſs his Deſign, he appointed a Day of Hunting; when the Earl being drawn aſide in a Foreſt now called Harewood, the King ſmote him through with a Dart. Thus being rid of his Interloper, he took forthwith Elfrida to Wife; who, to pacifie the Ghoſt of her former Husband, built a Nunnery in the place where he was Kill'd. As to the King's Perſon, he was but ſhort and ſlender; yet ſo well made, that he would contend for ſtrength with ſuch as were thought ſtrongeſt, and diſliked nothing more than that they ſhould ſpare him either out of fear or reſpect. Memorable is to this purpoſe the Story of Kenneth King of Scots; who, being in King Edward's Court, hapned to drop theſe Words in Jeſt amongſt ſome of his Servants, That he wondered how ſo many provinces could be held in Subjection by ſuch a little dapper Man. Which words being taken up, and brought to the King's Ear, he ſends for Kenneth, as about ſome Private Buſineſs; and drawing him by Diſcourſe to a ſecret Place; takes from under his Coat two Swords he had brought with him. Giving one of them to Kenneth, Now (ſays he) let us try which ought to be the Subject, either You or I. Kenneth, much abaſhed, fell preſently at his feet, and beſought him to Pardon what he had imprudently ſpoken, without any ill meaning. Which humble Carriage and ſubmiſſive Anſwer Edgar was ſatisfied with. Who, having Reigned about 16 Years, died, and was buried at Glaſtenbury. Matth. Weſtm.

EDGAR, the 89th of King of Scotland, was Son to King Malcolm III. The Nobility and People of Scotland being diſſatisfy'd with their King Duncan's Adminiſtration, Donald of the Iſles making uſe of the Publick Diſcontents, cauſed him to be murdered, and managed the Government; but having betray'd the Weſtern Iſland to the King of Norway: The People being diſguſted at him, ſent for Edgar from England, whither he had retired to his Uncle Edgar; he ſoon put Donald's Party to the Rout, and Impriſon'd himſelf till he died. So that Edgar came to the Crown by the Unanimous Conſent of the States. There was Peace with England during his Reign, having Married his Siſter to King Henry. He was reverenced by all the good, and formidable to the bad, and died after a Reign of 9 Years and 6 Months, about 1098.

EDGE-HILL, a place in Warwickſhire near Kyneton, ſeven Miles South of Warwick; where on Sunday Octob. 23. 1642. was fought the Firſt Battel between Charles I. and the Parliamentarians under the E. of Eſſex. The E. of Lindſey Commander of the King's Battalia, and General of the Field was Slain, and the ſtandard taken, but retaken by Sir John Smith, who after the Fight was made Knight Banneret. The K. by this Battel open'd himſelf a Way to London and Oxford, the E. of Eſſex withdrawing firſt to Warwick, then to Coventry.

EDHEMITES, a Sort of Religious among the Mahometans, ſo call'd, from Ibrahim Edhem, their Founder: They live upon Barley-bread, and faſt frequently. The greateſt part of them live in Deſarts with Lyons and Tygers, which they take care to manage and make tame. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

EDINBURGH, Lat. Edinburgum, Edinum; anciently, Alata Caſtra, or Caſtrum Puellarum; the Principal City of Scotland, Stands in Mid-Lothian, and is a County of it ſelf. The City is above a Scotch Mile in Length, and about three in Circumference. It conſiſts of two Principal Streets, lying Eaſt and Weſt; into which run a vaſt number of leſſer Streets. The Principal Street lies on the Ridge of a Hill, having the Caſtle at one end, and the King's Palace and Park on the other, and is as noble a Street in reſpect of the Lofty and Stately Stone-Houſes on each ſide, as is almoſt to be found in Europe. Many of the Nobility have Houſes in it, which are exceeding large. On the High Street the uſual rate is ſeven Stories, which is occaſioned partly by the Cuſtom of the place, and partly for want of Room: So that for its Bounds it is one of the moſt populous Cities in Chriſtendom. On the North ſide it is defended by a Lake; and every where elſe, it is encompaſſed with a high Stone Wall. Its ſituation is not very Commodious for Trade, as not being upon any River; but ſeems at firſt to have been built there for the Protection of the Caſtle, which is one of the Ancienteſt and Strongeſt by Nature and Art, perhaps in the World, being ſituated on the Top of a very high Rock, and only acceſſible on that ſide which looks towards the City, where it is regularly fortifyed and the Half-Moons, Ramparts, &c. well mounted with Cannon; ſo that it's not poſſible to take it by Storm. It has a very ſtately Houſe in it, which is the Reſidence of the Governor; and it is alſo the place where the Regalia, Archives, and Magazines of the Nation are kept, and reckon'd of above 2000 Years ſtanding. And tho' this place be Impregnable, yet it uſually follows the Fate of the City; and tho' held out againſt Their preſent Majeſties King William and Queen Mary by the Duke of Gordon, yet he Surrendred it June thirteen 1689. Capitulating only for the Garriſon. The City hath many other fair Buildings, as the Parliament-Houſe and Exchange, both very Neat and Stately; being all of Free-Stone. The Churches are alſo very Large and Magnificent, and the Steeple of the old Church is very Lofty and of Curious Workmanſhip. The Palace is very Uniform, Neat and Stately, being all of fine Free-Stone, and the Hoſpital, called Heriot's Work, for its Magnificent Structure, Pleaſant Gardens, and Large Endowment for a great Number of Youth whom it Maintains at the Schools, Univerſities or Trades, is ſcarce to be Parallel'd of one Man's Foundation. Here is alſo an Univerſity Founded by King James VI, and tho' the lateſt of the Kingdom; yet for the Learning of its Profeſſors, Number and Quality of the Students, it may well be reckoned the Chief. This City is alſo dignified as being the Royal Seat of the Kings ever ſince they ſettled in the Low-Lands, and is ſtill the Seat of the Government; as Parliament, Council, and all the Chief Courts of Judicature for the Kingdom. It has about eight or nine Pariſh Churches, and 22 or 23 Miniſters, the Pariſhes being very large, and during Epiſcopacy it was a Biſhop's See. Here are alſo a College of Phyſicians, and a College of Juſtice for breeding Lawyers. In ſhort, the City being ſeated in a Healthful and Fruitful Soil, abounds with all Neceſſaries at very reaſonable Rates; ſo that the Citizens of Note live as well here as any where elſe. And tho' it be not conveniently ſituated for Trade, yet the Neighbourhood of Leith, a conſiderable Town upon the River of Leith, and the Firth, commonly called Edinburgh Firth, Supplies it with all ſorts of Merchandize, and being ſubject to it, ſerves it for a Port. Of late this City is ſupplied with delicate Springs of Water brought from the Hills at a conſiderable diſtance, and iſſuing from Stately Fountains in the Streets. It lies in Long. 16. 00. Lat. 56. 15. 50. Miles from the Borders of England, and about 300. from London. Cambden Brit. Buchan. &c.

EDMUND, King of England, was the Son of Edward the Elder, and Succeeded Ethelſtan his Brother, Anno 941. In the Second Year of his Reign he freed Mercia, of the Danes that remained there, and took from them thoſe Towns where they were placed by King Edward, viz. Lincoln, Nottingham, Leiceſter, Stamford, and Darby. Three Years after this, he Subdued Northumberland, and the next Year Cumberland. This laſt he gave to Malcolm King of Scots, to hold it of him, and aſſiſt him in his Wars both by Sea and Land. Not long after, that is, in the Year 946, as he was feaſting with his Nobles on St. Auſtin's Day, at a place in Glouceſterſhire, he ſtrangely hapned to be Stabb'd by a Notorious Robber. Who, having been baniſh'd by the King, had the Impudence to affront him here with his preſence, and being taken hold of by the King himſelf, to ſtab him with a Dagger. Whereof the King died, and was Buried at Glaſtenbury. He left two Sons in their Nonage, viz. Edwin and Edgar, both laid aſide to make room for their Uncle Edred.

EDMUND, the laſt King of the Eaſt-Angles, but lineally deſcended from the Ancient Stock of thoſe Kings, Reigned in the Ninth Century. At 14 Years of Age, being a Prince of great hopes, he was raiſed to that Dignity, and Crowned at Bury, with the Conſent of all, but his own. At laſt his Country being invaded by the Danes, who had rifled and burnt the Monaſtery of Ely, and overthrown Earl Vulketul with his whole Army, King Edmund went to fight them at Thetford. Where his whole Army was routed, himſelf taken, bound to a Stake, and ſhot to Death with Arrows. Thus the whole Country was ſubdued, and remained in the Poſſeſſion of the Danes, till vanquiſhed by King Edward the Elder, by whom it was united unto the reſt of England. From this King Edmund, afterwards called St. Edmund, for his Martyrdom in the Faith of Chriſt, Bury took the Name of St. Edmundbury

EDMUND, Sirnamed Ironſide, for his great Strength, was King Ethelred's Third Son, but the Eldeſt at the time of his Death, and ſucceeded him, Anno 1016. At leaſt, he was Proclaimed King upon the Death of his Father, by the Nobility who were then at London, together with the Citizens. But the Archbiſhops, Abbots, and many of the Nobles being met together, made Choice of Canute (then at Southampton) for their King, ſwore Allegiance to him, and renounced all the Race of Ethelred. Canute being a Chriſtian, which his Father was not, ſwore on his part unto them, to be their Faithful Lord, both in Religious and Secular Matters. Thus the Nation ſtood divided, part for Edmund, and part for Canute, as the Kingdom was in Concluſion. Edmund, upon this, going to the Weſt-Saxons with all ſpeed, was received by them as their King, as he was afterwards by many other Provinces. Canute, about Mid-May, came with his whole Fleet up the River to London, and cauſing a great Dike to be made on Surry-ſide, turned the Stream, and drew his Ships on the Weſt-ſide of the Bridge; then made a broad and deep Trench about the City, and attack'd it on every ſide. But failing of Succeſs here, he haſtened to the Weſt; where Edmund, with his ſmall Force, encountred him at Pen, in Dorſetſhire, and put him to flight. Another Battel was fought after Midſummer, obſtinately on both Sides, till Night and Wearineſs parted them. The next Day the Fight was renewed, and continued till Night: when Canute ſenſible of his Loſs, marched off, with a Deſign to make a ſecond Attempt upon London, where he had left his Fleet under the Guard of ſome Forces. Edric the Traytor, fearing perhaps that the Danes ſhould be forced at laſt to quit their Intereſt here, ſought for Pardon; and having obtained it, ſwore Loyalty to the King. Who now marching up to London to raiſe the Siege, did it effectually, chaſing Canute and his Danes to their Ships, who being baulk'd in their Deſigns, they ſailed from the River's Mouth to Mercia; and having waſted the Sea-Coaſt thereof, their Horſe came back by Land, and the Foot by Sea, into Kent. Edmund no ſooner heard of it, but he marched again to fight them. At Otford he gave them Battel; where he ſo defeated them, that thoſe of their Horſe who eſcaped, fled to the Iſle of Shepey. Great was the Victory; but Edric, ſtill a Traytor, prevented the King, by his ſly Inſinuations, from making the beſt Uſe of it. And Fortune, which had before ſo ſmiled upon Edmund, began now to frown upon him. For at another Battel, fought at Aſhdown, in Eſſex, the perfidious Duke, to balance the Victory, went over in the heat of the Fight to Canute, with part of the King's Army: by which Deſertion the King being now over-match'd was beaten. At laſt, the King, by Edric's Faction, was prevailed upon to make Peace, and to divide the Kingdom with Canute. But the manner how this Agreement was made, is not agreed upon by all Authors. Some will have it to be done by a Formal Treaty, both Kings meeting together (after Pledges given on both ſides) at a place called Deorhirſt, in Gloceſterſhire; and that all things being agreed upon, they went from thence to Alney, a ſmall Iſland in the midſt of the Severn, where they ſwore Amity in the preſence of both their Armies, one on the Eaſt, and the other on the Weſt-ſide of the River. Others ſay, That Edmund, grieving at the loſs of ſo much Blood ſpilt for the Ambition of two Men ſtriving for a Crown, ſent of his own accord to Canute, and offered to have the matter decided by ſingle Combat; but that Canute, unwilling to venture his ſmall-timber'd Body againſt a Man of Iron-ſides, choſe rather to divide the Kingdom; ſo that Edmund ſhould have the South, and Canute the North of England; which was agreed on by Edmund. This is Malmſbury's Story. But Huntingdon, and after him Matthew of Weſtminſter, relate it thus, That the Peers on both ſides, weary of this War, did not forbear ſaying openly, That it was but reaſonable for the two King's who expected to Reign ſingly, to Fight it out ſingly, and that they conſented to it; but that Canute, finding himſelf too weak for Edmund in the Fight, began to Parley; which ended as is before-ſaid. However it was, King Edmund had but a ſhort Enjoyment of what fell to his ſhare, dying ſuddenly the ſame Year at London, and being buried near King Edgar his Grandfather, at Glaſtenbury. The Manner of his Death is uncertain, unleſs the Common Fame be true, which leaves the Guilt thereof upon Edric; who, to ingratiate himſelf more and more with Canute, got him aſſaſſinated (as the Story goes) at Stool, by thruſting a ſharp Iron into his Fundament. With King Edmund the Saxon Monarchy expired, Canute, upon his Death, taking Poſſeſſion of the Whole. Edward and Edmund, the King's two ſurviving Sons, being both excluded from their Right to the Succeſſion.

EDRED, King of England, was Son of Edward the Elder, Brother of Ethelſtan, and Uncle to Edmund his immediate Predeceſſor. To whom he Succeeded Anno 946; the Sons of Edmund, then but Children, tho' with intention to reſign when his Nephew came of Age. Edred, ſays my Author, made an abſolute Conqueſt of Northumberland, and the Scots did freely Swear Allegiance unto him. But the perfidious Northumbrians ſoon after ſhook him off, and choſe one Eric, a Dane, to be their King. At laſt, they were fain to ſubmit again. Some Authors repreſent this King as a Bigotted Prince, under the Laſh of Dunſtan Abbot of Glaſtenbury. He reigned about nine Years, and after his Death was Buried at Wincheſter. He left two Sons, but neither of them Succeeded to the Crown, which returned to the Right Line; firſt in the Perſon of Edwin Eldeſt Son of King Edmund.

EDWARD, King of England, for his Holy Life. Surnam'd The Confeſſor, ſucceeded to King Canute, ſecond of that Name, Anno 1042. being the only remaining Son of King Ethelred. According to Huntingdon, he was ſent for out of Normandy upon the deceaſe of Canute; But it is more probable, that he was then at the Court of England, and we have for it William of Malmsbury. Who, repreſenting Edward in great Perplexity upon the Death of Canute, as if his Life had been in danger, tells us, That he applied himſelf to the Potent Earl Godwin, to convey him ſomewhere out of the Land; and adds, That the Earl (who had a Mind to raiſe his Family by making his Daughter Queen) took this Opportunity to exhort Prince Edward to remember himſelf the Son of Ethelred, the Grandchild of Edgar, Heir of the Crown, and of Age for it. He told him, He was not to think of Flying, but Reigning; and that he would undertake by his Intereſt in the Kingdom to bring it about, provided he would on his part Promiſe and Swear to be for ever his Friend, to preſerve the Honour of his Houſe, and to Marry his Daughter. All which the Prince eaſily conſented to. Whereupon an Aſſembly of the States met at Gellingham, where Edward pleaded his Right; and by the powerful Influence of Godwin, was accepted. But, whatever Right might be pleaded in the behalf of Edward, there was another Edward ſtill living, a Son of Edmund Ironſide, who had a precedent Right, and was then in Hungary, Married to Agatha the German Emperor's Daughter. His long Abſence made him loſe his Intereſt here, and Edward his Uncle took an Advantage of it. Whoſe Acceſſion to the Crown, filled all the Engliſh with Joy, to ſee themſelves ſo unexpectedly delivered from the Daniſh Power; not ſuſpecting another Conqueſt was at hand, viz. The Norman Conqueſt. At Eaſter in the Year 1043. the King was Crowned. And ſoon after his Coronation, he ſeized upon the Treaſure of his Mother Emma at Wincheſter. He alſo took to Wife; according to Promiſe, Edith, Earl Godwin's Daughter; commended much for Beauty, Modeſty, and (beyond what is requiſite in a Woman) Learning. He remitted the Daniſh Tax, which had continued 38 Years, heavy upon the Land, ſince Ethelred firſt paid it to the Danes; and what remained thereof in his Treaſury, he ſent back to the Owners. But his Gratitude to the Normans, who had aſſiſted him in his Exile, laid the Foundation of a far greater Miſchief to the Engliſh. For, inſtead of repaying them out of his private purſe, he was pleaſed to invite them over, and prefer them to the higheſt Dignities; whereby he exaſperated one Nation againſt the other, and made way by degrees to the Norman Conqueſt. Yet the Engliſh were ſo infatuated as to lay aſide their own ancient Cuſtoms, and apiſhly to imitate French Manners. Then the greateſt Perſons of Quality began to ſlight their Mother Tongue, and (as a piece of Gentility) to ſpeak French in their Houſes, and to write their Letters in French. A Preſage of their ſubjection ſhortly to that People, whoſe Faſhions and Language they were ſo affected with. But that which occaſioned the greateſt Troubles of this Reign, was an unlucky Accident which hapned at Dover, in the Year aforeſaid, which I find thus related by Milton. Euſtace Earl of Boulogne, Father of the famous Godfrey who won Jeruſalem from the Saracens, and Husband to Goda the King's Siſter, having been to Viſit K. Edward, and returning by Canterbury to take Ship at Dover, one of his Harbingers inſolently ſeeking to Lodge by force in a Houſe there provoked ſo the Maſter thereof, as by chance or heat of Anger to Kill him. The Count with his whole Train, going to the Houſe where his Servant had been Kill'd, ſlew both the Slayer and 18 more who defended him. The Townſmen running to Arms fell to work, and revenged their Death with the Slaughter of 21 more of his Servants, Wounded moſt of the reſt, he himſelf with one or two hardly eſcaping. The Count inraged, ran back to the King, made the Court ring with his Clamours, and being ſeconded by other Norman Courtiers, ſtirred up the King's Wrath againſt the Citizens of Canterbury. Earl Godwin in haſte is ſent for, the Cauſe related, and much aggravated by the King againſt that City, the Earl commanded to raiſe Forces, and uſe the Citizens thereof as Enemies. Godwin, diſpleaſed to ſee Strangers more favoured by the King than his own Subjects, adviſed him to a due Courſe of Juſtice, that the Innocent might not fall with the Guilty. The King diſpleaſed with his Moderation, and the Earl fearing his Adverſaries would take an Advantage of the King's Diſpleaſure, endeavour'd to ſecure himſelf againſt any Violence, by raiſing a great Power out of his own and his Son's Earldoms. His Pretence was, that theſe Forces were to go againſt the Welch, as intending an Irruption into Herefordſhire, about which Swane his Son lay with part of his Army. But, his pretence being found groundleſs and frivolous, Godwin and his Sons were commanded to appear unarm'd before the King and Lords then aſſembled at London, to debate the whole Cauſe. They without Pledges before an adverſe Faction, refuſed to appear, but not to diſmiſs their Soldiers, or in ought elſe to obey the King as far as might ſtand with honour, and the juſt regard of their ſafety. Upon this, Godwin and his Sons were commanded by the King's Edict within Five Days to depart the Land; which they readily obeyed. And, leſt the Queen (though innocent) ſhould enjoy Eaſe at home, while her neareſt Relations were under a Cloud, the King purſued his Diſpleaſure againſt her, and ſent her privately to Worwell with one Waiting Maid, to be kept in Cuſtody by his Siſter the Abbeſs thereof. After this, William Duke of Normandy came with a great Retinue into England, was by King Edward honourably entertained, and led about the Cities and Caſtles, as it were to ſhew him what e're long was to be his own; and ſo returned home, well-pleaſed with the King's Entertainment. Godwin, who was gone to Flanders to Baldwin Earl thereof, whoſe Daughter Judith was Married to Toſti, one of Godwin's Sons, came ſome time after, and appeared with a Force at Sea; which ſtartled King Edward and brought him at laſt to a Reconciliation. Then were Godwin and his Sons reſtored to their former Dignities, the Queen returning to the King Dignified as before. At the ſame time the Normans, who had done many unjuſt things under the King's Authority, were baniſh'd the Realm; and ſome of the Chief of them eſcaped with much ado from the Fury of the People. In the Year 1054. the King made War againſt the Tyrant Macbeth of Scotland, under the Conduct of Siward Earl of Northumberland, vanquiſh'd the Tyrant, and placed Malcolm Son of the Cumbrian King in his ſtead. Mean while, King Edward, ſeeing himſelf without Iſſue, ſent Aldred Biſhop of Wincheſter, with great Preſents to the Emperor. His Errand was, to intreat the Emperor, that Edward his Nephew, the remaining Son of his Brother Edmund Ironſide, might be ſent into England, being deſigned Succeſſor to the Crown. But few Days after his Arrival, which was in the Year 1057, he died at London; leaving behind him one Son, called Edgar Atheling, and two Daughters; namely, Margaret and Chriſtina. About this time, Griffin, Prince of South-Wales, grew very troubleſome by his frequenr Inrodes into the King's Dominions, being aſſiſted by Algar the Son of Earl Leofric. Againſt whom Harold, now Earl of Kent, his Father being deceaſed, was ſent to repreſs him. Wherein he ſucceeded ſo well, that having waſted his Country, the Welch yielded themſelves, promiſed to diſown Griffin, for their Prince, and to Pay Tribute to the King, as formerly they were wont to do. This happen'd Anno 1063. And the next Year, Griffin being taken and Slain, his Head was ſent to the King; who was pleaſed to make his two Brothers Princes in his ſtead, for which they ſwore Fealty and Tribute to Harold, in behalf of the King. Who being now grown Old, look'd upon Edgar his Nephew as unfit to Govern, eſpecially againſt the Pride and Inſolence of Godwin's Sons, who would never obey him. Thus Ingulf writes, adding, That the King caſt his Eye for a Succeſſor upon William Duke of Normandy, as a Prince of high Merit, and his Kinſman by the Mother's ſide, and that he ſent to the Duke to acquaint him therewith. However it was, certain it is, that the Duke made it his Pretence to the Crown. At laſt the King dies both of Age and Sickneſs, Anno 1066. Before his Death he lay Speechleſs two Days; and the third Day, after a Deep Sleep, he was heard to Pray, That if what he ſaw were a true Viſion, God would give him ſtrength to utter it, otherwiſe not. Then he related how he had ſeen two Devout Monks (whom he knew in Normandy to have lived and died well) who appearing, told him, they were ſent Meſſengers from God to foretel, That, becauſe the Great Ones of England were not Miniſters of God, but of the Devil, God had delivered the Land to their Enemies; and when he deſired of them that he might reveal this Viſion, that they might Repent upon it, it was anſwered, That they would not Repent, and that God would not Pardon them. Which Relation, Stigand, the Simonious Archbiſhop (whom Edward, much to blame had ſuffered many Yeas to ſit Primate in the Church) is ſaid to have laughed at, as a feveriſh Dream of a doting Old Man, whilſt others trembled at it. But the Event proved it true. This King was a good harmleſs Prince, but perhaps of too ſoft a Temper for his Station, which occaſioned ſo many Factions in his Reign, and made Godwin and his Sons too violent. Not but that the King was ſenſible of their Inſolence, but he was not able to curb it, which leſſened his Kindneſs to his Queen, Daughter of Godwin. In his Diet he was Moderate, in Alms-Deeds very Liberal. He was the Firſt who pretended to the Power of Curing the King's-Evil, which he had, as 'tis ſaid, for his Sanctity. His Laws, which he Collected out of the Mercians, Weſt-Saxons, Northumbrians and Danes Laws, are yet extant, and approved as good and wholſome Laws grounded upon Juſtice. By him was Rebuilt the Abby of Weſtminſter, which he endowed with large Privileges and Revenues, and in which he was firſt Intomb'd.

EDWARD, Surnamed the Elder, King of England, was Eldeſt Son of Alfred, and Succeeded to his Father in the Year 900. But his Reign was preſently diſturbed by the Ambition of Ethelwald, a near Kinſman of his; who pretending alſo to the Crown, poſſeſſed himſelf in the firſt place of Winbourn in Dorſetſhire, giving out, that there he would live or die. But when he ſaw himſelf ſurrounded with the King's Forces, he ſtole out by Night, and fled to the Danes of Northumberland for help. Three Years after being come to the Eaſt-Angles, he got a Body of them to March with him as far as Crekelade in Wiltſhire; from whence they returned home laden with Spoils, and proved too nimble for King Edward's Forces. However a Battle was fought ſome time after, with great loſs on both ſides, but the King had a great Advantage in the fall of Ethelwald, the Author of this War. After that, we do not read of any great Action till the Peace concluded Anno 907, which only continued 3 Years, but who broke it does not appear. Certain it is, That in the Year 910. King Edward having raiſed a good Army, ſent it againſt the Danes beyond Humber; and offered them Terms of Peace, which they rejected. Great was the Spoil and Slaughter made on both ſides; but the Engliſh, (ſays Florent of Worceſter) overthrew the Danes in a ſet Battel at Tetnal in Staffordſhire. The next Year another Battel was fought at Wodensfield, wherein fell many Thouſands of the Danes, and three of their Chief Leaders. Yet they were not ſo quelled, but that they continued their Rapines and Depredations, ſome in Oxfordſhire, and others in Hartfordſhire. The Year 918. brought over a new force of Danes, who went about the Lands end to the Severn's Mouth, and there Landing, waſted the Welch Coaſt, till the Men of Hereford and Gloceſterſhire aſſembling, put them to flight. After this, King Edward proſpered ſo with his Arms, that moſt of the Danes yielded Subjection to him, and intermix'd with the Engliſh in all the Relations of Common Society. In ſhort, he extended his Power as far as Scotland it ſelf, on the Borders whereof, my Author ſays, he built a City; where the King of Scots and all his Nobility did him Homage as their Sovereign. At laſt Crowned with Glory, he died at Faringdon in the Year 925. He was Inhumed at Wincheſter, near his Father Alfred. Of whom he indeed fell ſhort in point of Learning, but far exceeded him in Power and Extent of Dominion. He had a numerous Iſſue by his Wives; amongſt which his Eldeſt Son, Ethelward, the Heir of his Crown, Died few Days after him. But before I conclude this Reign, I cannot but mention with Honour Elfled his Siſter, a Martial Princeſs; who after her Husband's Death, gave her ſelf to Publick Affairs, and would not re-marry. Many Towns were by her repaired and fortified, and Derby with the Caſtle ſhe took by Storm from the Danes.

EDWARD the Younger, (to diſtinguiſh him from Edward ſirnam'd the Elder) was Son of Edgar, by Egelfleda his firſt Wife. A Prince ſeverely brought up by a Step-Mother who uſed for ſmall Faults to whip him with Wax-Candles: Which made ſuch an Impreſſion in this young Prince's Memory, that, when he grew to a Man's Age, 'tis ſaid he could not endure the ſight of Wax-Candles. However, he out-grew his Mother-in-Laws Tuition, and in the Year 795. ſucceeded his Father Edgar in his Throne. But it was not without great Oppoſition of Elfrida his Mother-in-Law, who by her Intereſt laboured hard to ſet up her Son Ethelred (then but Seven Years Old,) that under his Name ſhe might have the Rule of all. In King Edgar's Reign the Saxon Glory was come to the higheſt pitch; and in this began its Declenſion: Which ended in a double Conqueſt firſt by the Danes, who renewed their Invaſion; and next by the Normans. For which there wanted not Prognoſticks from Heaven, direful Comets, and other Phænomena, both in this Reign and the next. The Principal Troubles of this Reign were the Famine that happen'd in it, and the general Diviſion of the Kingdom, upon the account of the Secular Prieſts and the Monks, which broke out into Tumults. To appeaſe them a Synod was call'd at Wincheſter; but nothing concluded. After that, the Buſineſs came under Debate before the Nobles and Prelates at Calne in Wiltſhire; where the Diſpute growing hot againſt the Monks, a ſudden Accident determined the Matter in their behalf. For it happen'd (according to the Legend) that the Room wherein the Aſſembly ſat, fell npon their Heads, killing ſome and Maiming others; Dunſtan the Patron of the Monks being the only Man that eſcaped without any hurt, upon a Beam that did not fall: Which being preſently cry'd up for a Miracle, the Stream was turn'd, and the Plurality carry'd it for the Monks. The King, not long after, was murthered at Corfe-Caſtle in Dorſetſhire, by the procurement of his Step-Mother, who grew impatient till ſhe ſaw her own Son Ethelred upon the Throne. But her wickedneſs flying in her Face, and putting her Soul continually on the Rack, ſhe at length repented of it; ſo that ſhe ſpent the reſidue of her days in Sorrows and great Pennance. And to expiate her Guilt in ſome meaſure, ſhe founded the Monaſteries of Amesbury and Worwell; in the laſt of which ſhe died, and was Buried. Thus fell King Edward, a Young Prince, early poſſeſſed of a Throne, and in three Years diſpoſſeſſed of it, with the loſs of his Life, which got him the Sirname of Martyr. He was of a mild Temper, and lov'd Religious Exerciſes. His Body being hid, was miraculouſly diſcovered, firſt Buried at Warham, and thence removed to Shaftsbury; which, from his Interment, was for a time Nam'd St. Edward's, and grew famous for Miracles.

EDWARD I. King of England, Sirnamed Long-Shanks, Succeeded his Father King Henry III. in 1272. When the Crown fell to him he was in the Holy Land, and his Virtuous Queen Eleonor with him. He proved a warlike, wiſe and Succeſsful Prince. France he kept in awe, Wales and Scotland he brought into Subjection; ſo that he receiv'd Homage of the King of Scots and his Nobility. His Reign in England he made as eaſie as poſſible, by good and wholſome Laws, ſuch as may juſtly entitle him to one of the beſt Law-givers. His Corrupt Judges he Diſplaced and Fined, and made all his Juſtices take Oath, that they would take no Bribe (or Gift) of any Man. He made his eldeſt Son Edward, Prince of Wales; which Title has ever ſince continued by Creation in the Eldeſt Son of England. The Scots diſſatisfied with King Edward's Procedure, endeavoured (but in vain) to ſhake it off, and procur'd Inhibitory Letters from Pope Boniface VIII, whereby they gained a ſhort Truce upon King Edward. But the Pope pretending at laſt, that Edward ſhould ſtand to his Deciſion in matter of Claim, the King in a Parliament holden at Lincoln, referred that Buſineſs to his Peers. Who ſolemnly declar'd the Crown Independent, and that the King of England was not accountable for any Rights of the Crown to any Tribunal under Heaven, for the Defence whereof they promiſed their utmoſt Aſſiſtance. This was in 1301, no leſs than 100 Peers Subſcribing to the ſaid Declaration. Whereupon the Pope left the Scots to ſhift for themſelves. Six Years after, this Magnanimous King Died of a Dyſentery at Burg upon Sands, and was Buried at Weſtminſter. He had two Wives, Eleonor Daughter of Ferdinand III. King of Caſtile, and Margaret Daughter of Philip the Hardy, King of France. By the Firſt he had Four Sons and Nine Daughters; but Three of thoſe Sons Died Young, and none Surviv'd him but Edward his next Succeſſor. By his Second Wife he had Two Sons and One Daughter, who Died Young. The Eldeſt of theſe Sons was Thomas of Brotherton (ſo called from a Village of that Name in Yorkſhire wherein he was Born) created Earl of Norfolk, and Earl Marſhal of England. Who had a Daughter, Margaret Dutcheſs of Norfolk, from whom is deſcended the preſent noble Family of the Howards, by Intermarriage with the Mowbrays. The other Son, Edmund of Woodſtock, was created Earl of Kent. See Bruce and Baliol.

EDWARD II. King of England, commonly call'd Edward of Carnarvan, Succeeded to his Father King Edward I. Anno 1307. He was the firſt Prince in England that bore in his Father's Life-time the Title of Prince of Wales. He was ſo Unfortunate as not to follow his Fathers methods of Government and Advice; but ſuffered himſelf to be govern'd by his Favourites Pierce Gaveſtone and the Spencers, which loſt him the Affection of his Subjects, and was the occaſion of the Rebellion of the Barons againſt him, who at laſt, carry'd their Diſloyalty ſo far, as to oblige him to a Reſignation of the Crown. The Rebels were, at firſt, beaten at Borough-Bridge, and fourteen of 'em being taken, were Sentenc'd to Death, and moſt of 'em Executed; but prevailing at laſt, they diſpoſſeſs'd the King, who was afterwards barbarouſly murther'd at Berkley-Caſtle. Thus fell this Unfortunate Prince a Sacrifice to his ambitious Favourites. In whoſe Reign the Scots recovered their Liberty, which Robert Bruce (their King) maintained ſo induſtriouſly and with ſo much ſucceſs, that he drove the Engliſh out of moſt places of that Kingdom. And when Edward went in Perſon to reduce them, they Routed his Army, the greateſt that England ever had, at Bannocksbourn, he himſelf hardly eſcaping. His Wife was Iſabel, Daughter of Philip the Fair, King of France, and Siſter to his three next Succeſſors, Lewis Hutin, Philip the Young, and Charles the Fair. His Iſſue by her were two Sons and two Daughters; viz. Edward his next Succeſſor Born at Windſor, and John at Eltham; Joan married to David Bruce Prince of Scotl. and Eleonor married to Reynold E. of Guelderland. See Bruce.

EDWARD III. King of England, commonly call'd from his Birth-place Edward of Windſor, Succeeded his Father King Edward II. upon his Reſignation of the Crown, in 1327. Whoſe Reign proved a Bleſſing to England, and a Scourge to France and Scotland. At home he cleared the Kingdom of Mortimer Earl of March, an obnoxious Perſon upon ſeveral Accounts. From the Scots he recovered Berwick; and, Robert Bruce being dead, he forced upon them Edward Baliol for their King, from whom he received Homage. And, to ſupport him in his Throne, he went no leſs than four times to Scotland. To France he laid Claim, as next Heir by his Mother's ſide, upon the Death of her Brother Charles IV. King of France, the youngeſt Son of Philip IV, who died without Iſſue. Which occaſioned our famous Wars in France againſt Philip Surnamed de Valois; who had ſeized upon the Kingdom, under colour of a Salique Law, which excluded Women from the Succeſſion to the Crown. And ſuch was our Succeſs in thoſe Wars, that King Edward marched up to the very Heart of France, making great Devaſtations along the River Seine, almoſt to the Gates of Paris. In theſe Wars were fought the two famous Battels of Creſſy and Poictiers, where the King's eldeſt Son, Edward the Black Prince, with a ſmall Body of Engliſh, defeated a numerous Army of the French. The firſt was fought in the Reign of King Philip; and the laſt in King John his next Succeſſor's Reign, who was taken Priſoner with Philip his youngeſt Son. About this time David Bruce, Son of Robert King of Scots, had, by the favour of a ſtrong Party aſſiſted by the French outed King Baliol, and raiſed himſelf upon the Throne of Scotland. Being a profeſſed Enemy to the Engliſh, he was eaſily prompted to Attempt a War with England; and he took his time for it, when King Edward was taken up with the long Siege of Calais. But, at Nevil's Croſs near Durham, his Army was entirely routed, and himſelf taken Priſoner; Queen Philippa the Wife of King Edward being her ſelf in the Field. So that England had the Glory at the ſame time to have two Foreign Kings Priſoners, John King of France, and David King of Scots, two noble Subjects of Triumph. Here was alſo a King of Cyprus; and theſe three Kings, together with King Edward, Henry Pioard, then Lord Mayor, had the Honour to feaſt together at his own Charge. 'Twas in this Reign that the Title of Duke of Cornwal was firſt conferred upon Edward the Black Prince, which has continued ever ſince as a Birth-right to the eldeſt Son of England. This Reign is memorable beſides for the Inſtitution of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. For the Removal of the Staple of Engliſh Wool out of Flanders, where it was formerly ſettled, into England. For the Conqueſt of the Iſle of Man from the Scots. In this Reign alſo died the Hopes of the Engliſh Nation, the Incomparable Edward the Black Prince, whoſe Death haſtened that of his Royal Father. For he died not long after at Shene in Surrey, and was buried at Weſtminſter, having lived to the Age of 65 Years, and reigned ſomething above 50. By Philippa his Wife, Daughter of William Earl of Hainault, he had 7 Sons, and 5 Daughters. Two of his Sons died in their Infancy, viz. William of Hatfield, and William of Windſor; the other five were Edward the Black Prince, his eldeſt (whoſe Son Richard Succeeded next to the Crown) Lionel Duke of Clarence, John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter, Edmund Duke of York, and Thomas Duke of Gloceſter. His Daughters were Iſabel, Joan, Blanch, Mary, and Margaret; amongſt which, Blanch died young. The Reader who is deſirous to be farther Inform'd of the Reign of this King, and the noble Exploits of the Black Prince, may conſult Daniel Speed, and the Life of Edward III. written by Dr. Barnes.

EDWARD IV. King of England, Succeeded King Henry VI. Anno 1460, aad was the firſt King of the Line of York, by whom that of Lancaſter was diſpoſſeſſed. He was eldeſt Son of Richard Duke of York, deſcended by the Mother's ſide from Lionel Duke of Clarence, third Son of King Edward III, and Elder Brother of John Duke of Lancaſter. So that 'tis plain, he had a precedent Right to the Houſe of Lancaſter. But he was fain to maintain his Right, as he had got it, by the Sword. To get it, no leſs than 6 Battels had been fought by his Father Richard and himſelf; to ſecure it, 7 more were fought in this Reign, with various Succeſs on both ſides. Queen Margaret, Henry the Sixth's Wife, was a Princeſs of too great ſpirit, to part with the Crown at an eaſier rate. Therefore ſhe reſolved either to Dethrone Edward, or Periſh in the Attempt. Scotland ſhe quickly made ſure of. France ſupplied her with Men, Money, and Ammunition. In England, Richard Nevil, the Potent Earl of Warwick eſpouſed her Quarrel; whoſe Reputation and Influence among the People was ſuch, that wherever he went, he turned the Scale; which got him the Name of Make-King. 'Tis wonderful to conceive how hard both Parties tugged for the Crown, and what Changes and Revolutions the former Part of this Reign was attended with. Edward being Proclaimed King by the Londoners upon his Return to London from the Battle of St. Alban's, was with great Solemnity Crowned King at Weſtminſter, June 28. Anno 1461. But he could not be Crowned quietly, before he had fought the Battle at Towſon, which hapned upon Palm-Sunday, and where King Henry loſt the Day. Who, in a Parliament convened at Weſtminſter in November following, was, with his Son Edward Diſ-inherited of either Right or Claim to the Crown; the Dukes of Exeter and Somerſet, the Earl of Devonſhire, and 140 more being Attainted of High Treaſon for endeavouring to ſupport the ſame. However this did not in the leaſt abate Queen Margaret's Courage; who, having got an Army of Scots, entred Northumberland, and paſſed forward to the Biſhoprick of Durham. But theſe alſo were defeated by Edward at Hedgley Moor; and likewiſe at Hexam, from whence Henry with much ado eſcaped into Scotland. Shortly after, this Unfortunate Prince ventured to come into England in a Diſguiſe; and was apprehended in Waddington-Hall, as he ſat at Dinner. From whence he was conveyed to London on Horſeback, with his Legs bound to the Stirrups; and being come up, was committed to the Tower. Soon after this, there hapned one Thing, which turned the Scale, and altered much the face of Affairs in the behalf of Henry. King Edward fell in love with, and married out of a Frolick, the Lady Elizabeth Gray, tho' but a Knight's Daughter, viz. Sir Richard Woodville's, and another Knight's Widow, namely, Sir John Gray's. Being accepted by Edward to be his Queen, ſhe was Crowned at Weſtminſter, May 26. 1465; her Father being thereupon created Earl Rivers, and made Lord-Treaſurer and High-Conſtable of England. Her Son Thomas Gray created Marqueſs of Dorſet: And her other Relations proportionably preferred. Which Preferments, with the King's debaſing himſelf by ſo unequal a Match, contrary to the Queen Mother's preſſing Sollicitations and the Advice of his Council, created a general Diſguſt amongſt the Nobility, and was like to work Edward's Ruin. The Earl of Warwick, amongſt the reſt, who had courted the Duke of Savoy's Daughter for him, did ſo deeply reſent it, that he turned his Affection from him, and contrived all he could to Reſtore Henry to the Crown. Inſomuch, that he got on his ſide the King's ſecond Brother, George Duke of Clarence; who was the more eaſily wrought upon, becauſe diſguſted at the Match. Then did Warwick by his Agents ſtir up a Commotion in the North, which came to a Battel not far from Banbury, Anno 1469. where King Edward's Forces were defeated. The Queen's Father lay then with his Son John at the King's Mannor of Grafton; where they were Intercepted, and being carried to Northampton, had their Heads ſtruck off. After this, King Edward being ſurprized by Warwick in the dead time of the Night, was carried Priſoner to Warwick Caſtle, and from thence conveyed to Middleham Caſtle in Yorkſhire. But he made his Eſcape. And the next Year was a great Battel fought at Stamford Wells, called the Battel of Loſt-Coat Fields, where King Edward came off Victorious. Upon which, Clarence and Warwick fled into France, from whence they returned ſome time after with Aids from the French King. Being Landed at Dartmouth, Warwick marched towards London, Proclaiming Henry King, and commanding all from 16 to 60, upon a great Penalty, to take up Arms againſt the Uſurper Edward, Duke of York. Great was the Concourſe of People from all Parts to Warwick, even of thoſe who but a little before applauded King Edward. Every one was now for Henry, ſo that King Edward was fain to take his Turn, and ſave himſelf beyond Sea. His Queen Elizabeth ſtole out of the Tower, and took Sanctuary in Weſtminſter, where ſhe was Delivered of a Son, Prince Edward. The Earl being come up to London, went ſtrait to the Tower, releaſed Henry who had been kept there a Priſoner almoſt the ſpace of 9 Years, and reſtored him to the Crown. A pretended Parliament was called upon it, by which King Edward was declared a Traitor and an Uſurper; all his Adherents guilty of High-Treaſon; all the Statutes made by him repealed; and laſtly, the Crown ſetled upon Henry and the Heirs of his Body. But King Edward, having received ſome Aids from the Duke of Burgundy, and Promiſes of more in England, Landed in Yorkſhire. From whence he marched to Warwick, where his Brother the Duke of Clarence (now taking part with him) brought in to his Aſſiſtance 4000 Men. He endeavoured beſides, but in vain, to draw in the Earl of Warwick. King Edward upon this marches up with all diligence to London; where being arrived, the City Gates were ſet open to him, and Henry became his Priſoner again. Warwick with his Army marches up after him, and King Edward drawing his Forces together, goes to meet him as far as Gladmore near Barnet, taking Henry with him. On Eaſter-Day was the Twelfth Battel fought in this Unhappy Quarrel, in which the Earl had a very fair Proſpect of Victory, till by a Miſtake he loſt her in a Fog. On both ſides 10000 Men are ſaid to have been Slain in this Fight, and amongſt them the Earl of Warwick; whoſe Courage carried him ſo far amongſt the Enemy, that he could not be Reſcued. Not long after this, was fought at Tewkesbury the laſt and deciſive Battel, which left King Edw. in full Poſſeſſion of the Crown. The late Queen Margaret, upon the Defeat, fled into a Religious Houſe; from whence ſhe was taken, and cloſely confined, till ſhe was Ranſomed by her Father. Her Son Edward being taken Priſoner was brought before the King, who received him coldly; and with ſome Expoſtulation, which Edward took ſo ill, that it made him ſpeak imprudently to the King. Whereupon Richard Duke of Gloceſter, with ſome of the King's Servants, murdered him at his Feet. The late King Henry was ſoon after ſtabbed at the Heart by the ſame Executioner; and 'tis obſerved, That his Body being expoſed to View before it was Interred, fell a bleeding twice; once at St. Paul's in London, and afterwards in the Black-Fryars Church. Chertſey in Surrey was the place where he was privately Buried, from whence he was removed afterwards to Windſor Chappel. Thus King Henry VI. ended his Life and turbulent Reign. He was Religious at all times, Patient in Adverſity; but too ſoft a King, and too Uxorious a Husband. King Edward died about 12 Years after, and was Buried in the New Chappel of Windſor, whereof he himſelf had laid the Foundation. He left by his Queen two Sons, Edward his next Succeſſor, and Richard Duke of York. Beſides five Daughters, whereof Elizabeth being the Eldeſt, Married with Henry VII; Ann with Thomas Howard Duke of Norfolk, from whom is deſcended his Grace the preſent Duke of Norfolk. King Edward had the Character of a Valiant Prince in War, but Effeminate in Peace. 'Tis ſaid, he kept three Concubines of three different Humours; one Merry, another Crafty, and the third Holy, as he uſed to call her, becauſe ſhe had wholly devoted her ſelf to his Bed and her Beads. However, he was a Prince that loved Juſtice and Mercy, and that had little Pride in him, for he was very familiar with his Subjects. He erred in Politicks, when he granted a Number of Cotſwold Sheep to Henry of Caſtile, and John of Arragon, in the Year 1465; which has been reckoned ſince a vaſt Prejudice to England.

EDWARD V. King of England, was the eldeſt Son of King Edward IV. to whom he Succeeded upon his Deceaſe in 1483, not being then above 12 Years of Age. Richard Duke of Gloceſter, his Uncle, knowing how eaſie a Step it is from the Place of a Protector, and firſt Prince of the Blood, to the Crown, turned every Stone to get the Protectorſhip from the Lord Rivers, the King's Uncle by the Mother's ſide. Having compaſſed it, his next Buſineſs was to get alſo Prince Richard, the King's Brother, into his Clutches; whom the Queen Mother was fain to part with, in great Affliction, and with great ſtruggling of Nature. For ſhe delivered him up (as it were) for Execution; and the Protector, who was reſolved to make the young King and him a Victim to his Ambition, look'd upon the two young Princes from that very time as two Birds in a Cage that ſhould not be long-lived. To blind the People, he forthwith gave Orders for the King's Coronation, whilſt he ſecretly contrived with the Duke of Buckingham, his great Coadjutor in his wicked Deſigns, to fix the Crown upon his own Head. Buckingham, with his Artifice, forced the City to a Compliance, which was fain at laſt to Proclaim Richard King of England. The Duke's Pretence was, That King Edward IV. was never lawfully Married to the Queen, and therefore his Children were Baſtards. Nay, the very Legitimacy of that King, and his Brother the Duke of Clarence, was brought into Queſtion; ſo that the Protector was the only true Heir to the Crown. But when it was offered him by that Duke in the Name of the City, he refuſed it, forſooth, with a Counterfeit angry Countenance, and ſeemed to decline what he was moſt paſſionate for. But, when his Confident making himſelf the Mouth of the Aſſembly ſaid, That, if his Grace would not accept the Crown, they would find one that ſhould, then he was pleaſed to take it upon him, as his Right. Thus King Edward reigned but 3 Months; and that under the Envy and Curb of an Uncle, who inſtead of Protecting the Crown, made bold to Invade it. What became of him afterwards and his Brother, you will find in the Reign of Richard.

EDWARD VI. the only Son of Henry VIII. by Jane Seymour his third Wife, was little above ten Years old, when he ſucceeded his Father, which was in 1547. As Cæſar was cut out of his Mother's Womb to come into the World, ſo was this King. But he had neither Cæſar's Fortune, nor length of Life; his Affairs being conducted by divided Councils, and dying himſelf very young. Yet he was a Prince of great hopes, of a Pregnancy of Judgment above his Years, and of a ſtrange Improvement in Learning for his Age. His Reign, began with a proſperous War againſt the Scots, to whom the Duke of Somerſet, his Uncle and Protector, gave a great Overthrow at Muſleburg. But in the Boulonois in France we loſt Ground; and, by the Peace concluded upon it both with France and Scotland, we were fain to reſtore Boulogne and its Territory, but upon good Conſiderations, to the French. The beſt Tranſaction of this Reign, was the great Progreſs made in the Reformation begun by Henry VIII. and now brought to good Perfection by the indefatigable Zeal of Archbiſhop Cranmer, and the powerful Aſſiſtance of the Protector; notwithſtanding the Oppoſition of ſeveral ſtiff Men againſt it; eſpecially Gardiner Biſhop of Wincheſter, and Bonner of London; for which, they were both (with others) committed to the Tower, and deprived of their Biſhopricks. The Lord Protector had a Brother, namely, Thomas Seymour, Lord Admiral, who was Married to Catharine Parr, the Widow of Henry VIII. An unhappy Point of Honour, ſtarted by the Pride of their Wives in Point of Precedency, created ſuch a mortal Feud betwixt them, that it coſt the Admiral his Life, who was Beheaded for Plotting againſt his Brother. And the Protector, two Years after, loſt his Head; for want of a Brother to ſupport his Intereſt againſt a Nobleman reſolved upon his Ruin: I mean the Duke of Northumberland, a Man of a vaſt Spirit, and who bore a great ſway in the Council, but whoſe Ambition brought him alſo upon the Scaffold. This was the Man who preſumed to ſettle the Crown in his Family, in order to which he made up a Match with Guilford Dudley his Fourth Son and the Lady Jane Gray of the Royal Family, being Daughter to Henry Gray Duke of Suffolk by Frances his Wife, Daughter of Mary Siſter to Henry VIII. This done, when he ſaw King Edward his Life deſpaired of, he prevailed with the King to ſettle the Succeſſion by Will upon the Lady Jane Gray and her Iſſue, to the Prejudice of his own Siſters, Mary and Elizabeth. 'Tis true, they ſtood excluded by Parliament upon the account of their queſtionable Births; but Henry being afterwards Impowred to ſettle the Succeſſion by Will, they were by his laſt Will reſtored to their Right of Inheritance. Againſt which Northumberland pleaded the infallible Overthrow of the late Reformation, in caſe the Lady Mary came to the Crown; who was known to be a bigotted Princeſs, devoted to the See of Rome. Of the Lady Elizabeth he ſaid, there might be better Hopes; but that their Cauſes were ſo ſtrongly connexed, that either Both muſt be excluded, or the Lady Mary be admitted. Upon which Reaſons King Edward was prevailed with; his Will being confirmed by the Council, and the Judges of the Realm. And few days after he died at Greenwich, having reigned little above 6 Years. In whoſe Reign were provided the famous Hoſpitals of Chriſt-Church in London, and St. Thomas in Southwark. And in the laſt Year of it, the North-Eaſt Paſſage by Sea, was attempted by Sir Hugh Willoughby, who periſhed in the Attempt. But Richard Chancellour, who commanded another Ship in his Company, had the Fortune to find out the Way to Archangel in Moſcovy, till then unknown by Sea, and ſince become the great Thoroughfare in Europe for the Moſcovian Trade.

EDWARD, King of Scotland. See Baliol.

EDWARD Bruce, Brother to Robert Bruce King of Scots, was in regard of his own Valour, and his Brother's great Fame, invited over by the Male-contents into Ireland, to deliver that Kingdom from the Engliſh Yoke; wherein at firſt he was ſo ſucceſsful, that he Conquer'd great part of it, but being betray'd by thoſe who invited him over, and ſo overhardy, which was his temper, that he would not ſtay till his Brother could come to his Aſſiſtance, for fear he ſhould have the Glory of the Victory, he gave the Engliſh and their Adherents Battel with the few Men he had. So that he was overcome, taken and beheaded at Dundalk, An. 1317.---Walſingham, Boetius.

EDWARD, King of Portugal, in 1433. Succeeded his Father John II. It is ſaid, That a Jewiſh Phyſician, conſulting the Stars about the Adventures of his Reign, that Morning they were about to Crown him, deſired the Ceremony might be put off till the Afternoon; but being laugh'd at for his Superſtition, they went on with the Coronation. He was Unfortunate againſt the Moors, and died in 1438. and 47th of his Age. He was Learned, and a Favourer of Learned Men, and wrote concerning the Art of Reigning, of Juſtice, and Horſemanſhip, Mariana, l. 21. c. 6, & 13.

EDWARD, Earl of Savoy, Succeeded his Father Amedeus V. in 1323. At 20 Years of Age, he carried Succours to Philip the Fair, who Knighted him at the famous Battel of Mont en Puele. Afterwards he accompanied Philip of Valois into Flanders, was at the Battel of Mont-Caſſel in 1328. and died at Gentilly the Year following. Guichenon. Hiſt. of Savoy, l. 2. c. 21. Paradin Hiſt. of Savoy, l. 2.

EDWIN, the firſt Chriſtian King of Deira, was the Son of Ella. Being but young when he came to the Crown, Ethelfred King of Bernicia took the advantage of his Youth, to ſeize upon his Kingdom, and effected it. Edwin, being thus unjuſtly diſpoſſeſſed, after many Years wandering obſcurely through the Iſland, threw himſelf at laſt under the Protection of Redwald, King of the Eaſt-Angles, and there placed his Safety. Redwald promiſed him his Aſſiſtance to the utmoſt of his Power. Yet when Ethelfred ſent to him to demand Edwin, either tempted with Bribes, or fearing the Power of Ethelfred, he reſolved to comply with him. But, upon the earneſt ſollicitation of his Wife, not to betray the Laws of Hoſpitality, or violate his Faith, he choſe rather not only to ſtick to his firſt Promiſe as the more Religious, but alſo determined to be before-hand with the Danger of a War, which his Denial to Ethelfred did threaten him with. He therefore raiſed an Army with all ſpeed, and ſurprized Ethelfred, who little dreamt of an Invaſion. The Iſſue whereof proved glorious to Redwald, fatal to Ethelfred, and happy to Edwin; who by this means was reſtored to his Right. Being thus ſetled in his Kingdom by Redwald, he ſought in Marriage Edelburga, whom others call Tate, Daughter of Ethelbert King of Kent. To whoſe Ambaſſadors, Eadbald her Brother made Anſwer, That it was not the Way of Chriſtians to give their Daughters to Pagans. Edwin replied, That he would be no hinderance to her Religion, which ſhe might freely exerciſe with all her Houſhold; and that if upon Examination the Chriſtian Faith were found to be the better, he would readily embrace it. Theſe ingenuous Offers, opening ſo fair a Way to the Advancement of Truth, were accepted; and Paulinus, as a Spiritual Guardian, ſent along with the Virgin. This hapned in the Year 625; when Paulinus, being upon this conſecrated Biſhop by Juſtus, omitted no Opportunity to plant the Goſpel in theſe Parts, but made no conſiderable Progreſs in it till the next enſuing Year. Edwin in the mean time grew powerful in Arms, and ſo inlarged his Dominions, that he far exceeded all before him. For he ſubdued, ſays Beda, both Saxons and Britains, as far as the very Iſles ſince called Man and Angleſey; whereby it fell out, that, whereas Ethelfred King of Bernicia had annexed Deira to it, now Edwin added Bernicia to Deira, both which together made afterwards the Kingdom of Northumberland. But his Greatneſs ſtirred up the Envy of other Princes; inſomuch that Cuichelm, one of the Weſt-Saxon Kings, ſent one Eumerus, under pretence of a Meſſage from his Maſter, to Aſſaſſinate him with a Poiſoned Weapon. Who, being come to Edwin's Palace on the River Derwent in Yorkſhire, ſtabs the King on Eaſter-Day. Lilla, a faithful Attendant on the King, perceiving the Villany, immediately ſtept in, and expoſed his whole Body to the fatal Blow, which notwithſtanding reached the King's Perſon. The Ruffian preſently encompaſſed with Swords grew deſperate, and fore-revenged his own Fall, with the Death of another whom his Poinard reached home. The King was yet unconverted, and Paulinus preſſed him upon that Point as oft as Occaſion ſerved. At length he obtained this Promiſe from him; That, if Chriſt, whom he ſo magnified, would grant him a Recovery from the Danger of his Wound, and Victory over his Enemies that had thus aſſaulted him, he would then become Chriſtian. In Pledge whereof, he gave his young Daughter Eanfled to be brought up in that Faith, who was baptized on the Day of Pentecoſt, with 12 others of his Houſhold. And now the King, well recovered of his Wound, prepared to puniſh the Author of ſo foul a Fact, and with an Army ſet forward againſt the Weſt-Saxons. Who being quelled by the force of his Arms, he put to Death ſome of the chief Conſpirators, others he pardoned, and ſo returned home Victorious. From which time forward he worſhipped no more his Idols, yet ventured not raſhly into Baptiſm, but firſt took care to be well Inſtructed, examining what he learnt by himſelf, and with others whom he thought wiſeſt. Mean time, Boniface then Pope, ſent Him and his Queen large Letters of Exhortation, to quicken his Belief. But, while he ſtill deferred, and his Delays appeared now more like the effect of Coldneſs than Diſcretion, Paulinus coming (by Revelation, as was thought) to the Knowledge of a ſecret Thing that befel him in his Troubles, one day went boldly to him, and laying his right Hand on the Head of the King, asked him, If he remembred what that Sign meant? Upon which the King trembling, and in amaze, fell ſtrait at the Biſhop's Feet; who, raiſing him from the Ground, ſpoke thus to him. Behold, ſays he, God has delivered you from your Enemies, and given you the Kingdom, as you deſired; Perform now on your part what long ſince you promiſed him, and receive the Doctrine I now bring you, which if you accept, ſhall add eternal Happineſs to your temporal Felicity. The King's Anſwer was, 'Tis true, ſays he, I am bound by ſolemn Promiſe to embrace the Chriſtian Faith, and am reſolved to do it; but would confer firſt with my chief Peers and Councellours, that, if they could be brought over to it, all at once might be Baptized. Accordingly they were asked in Council their Opinion concerning this new Doctrine, who well perceiving which way the King inclined, every one ſuited his Anſwer to it, none openly diſſenting from what was like to be the King's Creed. The Chief Prieſt himſelf, ſpeaking firſt, diſcovered an old Grudge he had againſt his Gods, for advancing others in the King's Favour before him; and offering freely to demoliſh their Altars, made ſome amends for his former teaching to adore them. In ſhort, Edwin and moſt of his People, both Nobles and Commons, were Converted and Baptized; He with his whole Family at York, in a Church haſtily built up of Wood, and the Multitude for the moſt part in Rivers. Edwin afterwards making it his buſineſs to propagate the Faith, perſwaded Eorpwald Son of Redwald, King of the Eaſt-Angles, to embrace the ſame belief. And, adding to his Faith Vertue, he took ſuch Care to ſee Juſtice adminiſtred, that one might ſafely Travel from Sea to Sea. He took care alſo of Fountains by the Way-ſide, to make them fit for the Uſe of Travellers. And, not unmindful of Regal State, whether in Peace or War, he had a Royal Banner conſtantly carried before him. But, having reigned with much Honour for the ſpace of 17 Years, he was at laſt Slain in a Battle, with his Son Oſfred, and his whole Army defeated, Anno 633. by Kedwalla King of the Britains, in Confederacy with Penda King of Mercia. Which proved fatal both to the Church and State of the Northumbers, conſidering that the Britiſh King, though a profeſſed Chriſtian, was in effect more bloody than the Pagan. So that between them, no Cruelty or Barbarity was omitted, without Diſtinction either of Sex or Age; Kedwalla, without any Compaſſion to theſe new Chriſtians, threatning for his part to root them out of the Land. 'Tis true the Britains, even to the Days of Beda accounted Saxon Chriſtianity no better than Paganiſm, and accordingly held ſcarce any Communion with them. From theſe Calamities no Refuge being left but Flight, Paulinus aſſiſted by Baſſus one of Edwin's Captains, took with him the Queen and her Children, and made his Eſcape by Sea to her Brother Eadbald King of Kent; who received them in a moſt obliging manner, and made Paulinus Biſhop of Rocheſter, where he ended his Days.

EDWIN, or EDWY, King of England, was the eldeſt Son of Edmund. Being now come to Age, after his Uncle Edred's Death, he aſſumed the Government, and was Crowned at Kingſton. His Handſomneſs got him the Surname of Fair; but his Temper is variouſly repreſented, by Huntingdon to the Praiſe of him; and by Malmsbury to his Shame: Who reports of him, That he married, or kept as Concubine, Algiva his near Relation; That Dunſtan, Abbot of Glaſtenbury, was baniſhed out of the Realm for Reproving of him; his Monaſtery rifled, and Secular Prieſts put in Poſſeſſion of it. Which this Author ſeems much incenſed at; ſo that 'tis poſſible he might ſtretch too much the ill Character he gives of this Prince. The Mercians however, and the Northumbrians, being wrought upon by the Monks into a Diſguſt, threw him off. Which occaſioned the ſetting up of Edgar his Brother, ſo far at leaſt that nothing was left to Edwin but the Weſt-Saxons. This probably broke his Heart, and precipitated his Death; for ſoon after he ended his Days, and was Buried at Wincheſter.

EFFINGHAM, a Town of Copthorn or Effingham Hundred in Surrey, noted only for giving the Title of Baron to the Right Honourable Francis Howard, devolv'd to him upon the Death of the late Charles Howard Earl of Nottingham, and Baron 'Effingham.

EGATES, Iſlands in the Sicilian Sea, near Drepano, where Luctatius Catulus engaging the Carthaginians by Sea, ſank 50, and took 70 of their Galleys, which enforced them to ſue for Peace; which was granted them, and ſo ended the firſt Punick War.

EGBERT, the laſt King of the Saxon Heptarchy, and the firſt Monarch of England, was the 18th King of the Weſt-Saxons. Who, having got the other Six Kingdoms into his own hands, united all into one. He was Son of Alcmond, deſcended from Inegild, the Brother of K. Ina. Being liberally Educated, he began early from his Youth to give ſignal hopes of more than ordinary Worth. Which Birthric his Predeceſſor being jealous of, as well as of his juſter Title to the Crown, he ſecretly ſought his Life. Egbert, having notice of it, fled to Offa the Mercian King. Where finding no Safety, he was put again to his Shifts, and made his Eſcape into France, then Govern'd by Charles Surnamed the Great. There he lived three Years in Exile. During which, Birthric dying, Egbert was ſent for, and with general Applauſe proclaimed King of the Saxons. This hapned in 800, a Year which made way for great Alterations. For Egbert, having with much Prudence, Juſtice and Clemency, eſtabliſhed his Kingdom and himſelf in the Affections of his People, undertook firſt to ſubject the Britains, both them of Cornwal, and thoſe beyond the Severn, and proved ſucceſsful in it. Next he overthrew Bernulf the Uſurper of Mercia, and put him to flight at Ellandune, now Wilton. Who making his Retreat into the Country of the Eaſt-Angles, as part of his Dominion by the late ſeiſure of Offa, was by them met and ſlain. But they fearing the Conſequence, and what the Mercians might do in Revenge, forthwith yielded themſelves, both King and People, to Egbert as their Supream Lord. The next Kingdom that became ſubject to him, was that of Kent; whither he ſent part of his Army, (after his Victory againſt Bernulf) under the Conduct of Ethelwulf his Son, with Alſtan Biſhop of Sherburn, and Wulferd a Chief Commander. Who overcame Baldred there reigning, and drove him over the Thames. Whereupon not only Kent, but alſo the South-Saxons (that is Surrey and Suſſex) and laſtly, Eſſex ſubmitted. Anno 825. having vanquiſhed Withlaf King of Mercia, he and his Kingdom became Tributary to the Conqueror. The ſame Fate attended two Years after Eanred King of Northumberland. Whoſe People being faln into Civil Diſſentions, the effect of their Luxury, Egbert, who had now Conquered all the South, marched thither with an Army, to compleat his Conqueſt, which was eaſie, for they ſubmitted without Reſiſtance, and ſo Eanred their King became Tributary. This done, King Egbert turned his Forces the next Year to North-Wales, to ſubdue what remained of it, and effected it throughly. But in the midſt of his Felicity, he hapned to be diſturbed by the Danes, the next conſiderable Actors on the Stage of Engl. Before theſe Troubles came upon this Nation, Egbert was in the height of his Glory, having peaceably enjoy'd his Conqueſts for ſome Years. His Victorious Army was long ſince Disbanded, and the Exerciſe of Arms laid aſide in a great meaſure; therefore the worſe provided againſt the approaching Storm. Moreover the Engliſh at that Time had but little Experience in Sea affairs, for want of Shipping, and through Neglect of Navigation, England lay open to Rovers and Invaders. This emboldened the Danes to come over, and ſeek their Fortune here. Anno 832. They Landed at Shepey in Kent, which having waſted, they marched off again. Their next Landing was the following Year at Charmouth near Lime in Dorſetſhire; where King Egbert ſent Forces to fight them. Both Armies engaged, the Saxons loſt their two chief Leaders, and the Danes had the Advantage of remaining Maſters of the Field. This was the only Check of Fortune, we read of, that King Egbert received in all his Reign. For the Danes returning two Years after, and joyning Forces with the Corniſhmen, where routed and put to flight. Upon this proſperous Succeſs, Egbert, as having done enough for his Time, ended his Days with Glory, and was Buried at Wincheſter, the Royal Seat of the Weſt-Saxons. But I muſt not omit to ſay, that being the firſt Sole Monarch of England, ſince the Heptarchy, he was firſt Crowned by the Title of King of England; by which new Name he called the South Parts of Britain, from his Anceſtors, The Angles; who joyned with the Saxons in the Conqueſt of this Iſland. This Coronation was performed at Wincheſter, Anno 819. He left two Sons, Ethelwolf and Ethelſtan, having bequeathed to the younger, Kent, Eſſex, and Suſſex.

EGBERT, Marqueſs of Saxony, undertook a Quarrel with the Emperor Hen. IV. at the Sollicitation of Greg. VII. Victor III. and Urban II. and defended the Title of Herman Prince of Luxemburg, ſet up in Oppoſition to Henry; But Herman being Slain, Egbert in hopes of better Succeſs, aſſum'd the Imperial Diadem in 1088. and at firſt won ſome Advantages; but being afterwards ſurpriz'd in a Mill near Brunſwick, was knock'd o'the Head by the Archers of Henry's Guard. Berthold. Hiſt.

EGBERT, Archbiſhop of York, liv'd towards the latter End of the Eighth Century; 'tis ſaid, he was Brother to Egbert, King of Northumberland. He turn'd Benedictin, and was Alcuinus's Maſter, who mentions him, in one of his Letters to Charlemagne, Date mihi Eruditionis Libellos, quales in Patria mea per Induſtriam Magiſtri mei Egberti, habeo. Egbert left ſeveral Treatiſes. De Pœnitentia, or Pœnitentiale: Conſtitutiones Eccleſiaſticæ, &c.

EGER or Egra, in Lat. Egra or Oegra; a City of Germany, in Bohemia, by the Natives of the Country call'd Heb. It is ſeated upon the River Egra, upon the Frontiers of Franconia, being defended with a good Fortreſs, wherein Wallenſtein was killed in 1634. It does not properly belong to Bohemia; but it was formerly Mortgated to the Kings of Bohemia, by the Biſhop of Wirtzburgh; or, as ſome ſay, by the Emperor Lewis of Bavaria in 1315.

EGERIA, a Nymph in high reputation among the Romans. Numa Pompilius, deſigning to introduce ſeveral Religious Ceremonies into Rome, pretended to the People that he conſulted the Nymph Egeria in all things, and did nothing without her Advice. Livy, l. 1. Florus, l. 1. Others ſay, That this Egeria, was alſo a certain Goddeſs, to whom the Roman Women big with Child, offer'd Sacrifices, that they might be delivered without pain. Whether the Nymph and the Goddeſs were the ſame or no, is much diſputed; but the Argument brought to prove they were different, is, becauſe the Name of the Nymph was writ with an Æ. and the Name of the Goddeſs with a ſingle E. Feſtus.

EGERTON (Thomas) Natural Son to Sir Richard Egerton of Ridley in Com. Cheſhire Knight, became ſo famous for his Knowledge in the Law, that Q. Elizabeth in the 23d Year of her Reign made him her Solicitor-General, afterwards her Attorney-General, and in the 38th of her Reign Lord-Keeper of the Great Seal; in which Eminent Office he continued the whole remainder of her Life. And 1 Jac. was advanced to the Degree of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Elleſmere, and made Lord Chancellor of England. And laſtly 14 Jac. rais'd to the Dignity of Viſcount Brakley. His eldeſt Son Sir Thomas dying in his Life-time, his ſecond Son ſucceed him in his Honors, and was in 1617. 15 Jac. advanced to the Degree of E. by the Title of E. of Bridgwater, He married the Lady Frances, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Ferdinando E. of Derby, and had Iſſue by her four Sons and eleven Daughters. John his Son and Heir ſucceeded him in 1649. And by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter to William D. of Newcaſtle, hath iſſue five Sons, John his Son and Heir, call'd Lord Brackly, Sir William Egerton, both made Knights of the Bath at the Coronation of King Charles II. Thomas, Charles and Stewart, and Elizabeth a Daughter married to Robert Sidney only Son to Philip Viſcount Liſle, eldeſt Son to Robert E. of Leiceſter. John the preſent Lord Brackly firſt Married Elizabeth eldeſt Daughter and Coheir to James E. of Middleſex, by whom he had Iſſue one Son call'd John, who died in his Infancy; and afterwards Jane eldeſt Daughter to Charles now Marqueſs of Wincheſter. Dugdale's Baronage.

EGESTA, Daughter to Hippotes, a Trojan Prince, was put in a Veſſel by her Father, and ſet a Drift, at Sea, for fear, if ſhe had ſtay'd at home, it might have fallen unto her Lot to have been devour'd by a Sea-Monſter: The Oracle of Apollo having order'd to leave a Virgin of ſome of the beſt Quality, every Year, upon the Sea-ſhoar, to make Satisfaction for the Perjury of Laomedon: It happen'd ſo, that this Egeſta floated along, and came ſafe to Sicily, where the River Criniſus fell in Love with her, by whom ſhe had Aceſtes King of Sicily. Servius.

EGICA, a King of the Goths, begun his Reign about the Year 688. oppoſed the Jews that were Apoſtatiz'd from the Chriſtian Faith, Confiſcated their Goods, and made Slaves of their Perſons. He died in the Year 701.

EGINA. This Iſland was yielded by the Turks to the Venetians, with its Fortreſs lying near, and adjoining to the Morea, by Virtue of the Peace of Carlowitz, in 1699.

EGINA, Daughter to Aſopus, King of Bœotia, was courted by Jupiter in a Flame of Fire, ſhe had Eachus and Rhadamanthus by him, who were afterwards two of the Infernal Judges. This Lady gave Name to the Iſland Ægina, near Athens. Hygin. Ovid. Metam. lib. 7.

EGINARD, Secretary to the Emperor Charlemaine, wrote the Life of that Great Prince: as alſo the Annals of France, from 741. to 829. and died about the Year 848. Voſſius, l. 2. de Hiſt. Latin, c. 33.

EGLON, one of the Kings of the Moabites, from whoſe Tyranny Ehud delivered the Iſraelites.

EGMONT, a Town of the Law-Countries in Holland dignify'd with the Title of an Earldom. It is ſeated a League and a half from Alkmaer, and two from Beverwick. It had formerly a famous Abby belonging to the Benedictine Order. This Borough gave its Name to one of the Principal Families of Holland, which is that of Egmont; Eminent for being ennobled with the Title of Dukes of Guelders in the XVth Age, and Knights of the Golden Fleece. L'Amorat Count of Egmont made a great Figure in the Low-Countries, in the XVI. Cent. He was Governour of Flanders, and Artois, Knight of the Golden Fleece, and Lord Chamberlain to the Emperour Charles V. to which Prince, and to his Son Philip II. he did very conſiderable Services; for 'twas by his Bravery and Conduct, that the Battels of St. Quintin, in 1557, and that of Graveling the Year after, were gain'd: However, theſe Performances were no ſufficient Guard for his Fortune; for, Remonſtrating a little too freely againſt the Spaniard's Government of the Low-Countries, he loſt the Favour of this Prince. Afterwards he engag'd, in ſome meaſure, with the diſaffected Party. The City of Ghent not enduring to be bridled with a Garriſon, deſir'd Count Egmont to ſolicite and undertake for them, with the Duke of Alva, which Requeſt he conſented to. Some time after, the Duke of Alva, ſent for him, and Count Horn, to Bruxells, where they were made Priſoners, in September 1567, and beheaded the June following. He wrote a Letter to Philip II. in which he proteſted, he had never attempted any thing againſt the Eſtabliſh'd Religion, or the Duty of a Subject, but this Juſtification was not allow'd. *Thuan. EGNATIA, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples, now Torre d' Anaſſo, in the Terra di Bari, five Miles from Monopoli to the Eaſt, and thirty from Brunduſium to the South-eaſt.

EGNATIUS PUBLIUS, a Stoick Philoſopher, and Witneſs againſt Soranus under the Reign of Nero. Of whom thus Tacitus : Then the Evidence was admitted, and among the reſt Publius Egnatius, whoſe Inſolence cauſed a greater Indignation in the Judges, than the Cruelty of the Accuſers had wrought Compaſſion. This was a Client of Soranus's, who ſold his Tongue and his Conſcience to betray his Friend and Benefactor, and may teach us this Leſſon, That a Hypocritical Philoſopher is as much to be ſhunned, as a Traitor and a common Ruffian. Annal. l. 16.

EGREMONT, a Market-Town in the South-weſt parts of Cumberland, and particularly, in that part of it, call'd Copeland. Stands upon Broadwater River, within five Miles of its fall into the Iriſh Sea, and has two Bridges over the ſaid River. It formerly ſent two Burgeſſes to Parliament, but has loſt that Privilege. From London 222 M.

EGYPT, a Country in Africk, reaching from the 22' Deg. of the Northern Lat. to the 31ſt, parted from Aſia by the Red-Sea, and a little Tongue of Land near the Iſthmus of Suez. The Greeks call it Egypt, from Ægyptus, one of the Sons of Belus, Brother to Danaus, who liv'd in the Year of the World 1279. But the Egyptians call'd the Country, Chibel. Egypt is bounded to the North, by the Mediterranean, on the Eaſt by Arabia Petræa, and the Red-Sea; on the South, by Æthiopia, and Nubia; and on the Weſt, by Barbary, and the Deſart of Barca. 'Tis divided firſt into the Upper Egypt, which lies upon the South; and lower Egypt, which lies along the Mediterranean Shoar. The Upper was likewiſe divided into the Libyan or African towards the Weſt; and into the Aſiatick, or Arabian towards the Eaſt. Theſe two Countries were parted by the Nile: At preſent, the Turks Divide Egypt into twelve Governments, which they call Caſſiliſs. That between the Nile, and the Red-Sea, is call'd the Government of Caire: The Government of Alexandria lies in Delta, and ſo along the Mediterranean Coaſt; and that of Maſoura is upon the Iſthmus of Suez: This Iſthmus, which parts the Mediterranean from the Red-Sea, or Arabian Gulph, has been attempted to be cut through by ſeveral Princes, but to no purpoſe. As for the Extent of the Country; its Length from the Mouth of the Nile, to the Town which the Ancients call Calabathmus, contains 150 German Miles, and its Breadth only 100, reckoning from the Mouth of the Nile, to the Town of Conza: But the Moderns generally make it but 100 Leagues from Eaſt to Weſt, and 180 from North to South.

The Quality and Nature of the Country.

The Air of Egypt is very unhealthy, occaſion'd by the great Heat of the Climate, but the Soil is very fruitful, but not made ſo by Rains; for it never Rains there, excepting very rarely in the Months of November, December and January. The Fruitfulneſs of the Country therefore proceeds from the River Nile, which never fails to overflow the Country from the Middle of June, to the Middle of September. The Natives obſerve, that the Plenty of the Year riſes by the Degrees of the Inundation, being greateſt when the River overflows moſt. The Remains of this Flood produce a great Number of Inſects, and 'tis thought, makes all Sorts of Animals more fruitful than ordinary; for Women have often two or three Children at a Birth, and Sheep bring forth twice a Year, and generally more than one at a time. The Mud of Nile makes the Land ſo Rich, that the Husbandmen are forc'd to mix Sand with it; and were they not a lazy Sort of People, they might eaſily have two Crops of Wheat every Year; for this Reaſon, the Romans call'd it, the Granary of the Empire, and imported more Corn from thence, than from all the reſt of the Provinces. Beſides Corn, there is Rice, Sugar, Dates, Sena, Caſſia, Baulm, Leather, Flax and Linen-cloath exported from Egypt. There grows likewiſe Plenty of the Ruſh of which Paper is made; the Uſe of which, 'tis thought, was not found out, till after Alexander the Great. Egypt likewiſe produces Crocodiles, Cynocephali, a kind of Apes, and Ibis's reſembling a Stork, &c.

The Towns, Rivers and Deſarts of Egypt.

Diodorus Siculus relates, that there had been formerly in Egypt eighteen Thouſand great Towns; but that, in his time, they were leſſen'd to three Thouſand: When the Romans had it, there was more than this latter Number, but then many of them were but inconſiderable: The moſt noted were, Alexandria, built by Alexander the Great; the Capital, not only of Egypt, but likewiſe of the Neighbouring Attica; Dioſpolis or Egyptian Thebes; which, they ſay, had formerly a hundred Gates: Memphis, which is taken by ſome, for the Modern Grand Caire; however, 'tis certain, that the Ruines of Memphis are ſeventeen Leagues diſtant from Caire. The other Towns of leſs Note, are, Syene, now call'd Anſa, Bubaſte; Arſinoe; Elephanta; Damieta; Roſeta; Dorote; Suez and Maſoura; Bochira; Faramuda; Zibith, &c. The River Nile having paſs'd by Caire, parts into two Arms, which incircle the Country call'd Delta; which Arms afterwards ſubdivide into more; But of this River, ſee further under the word Nile. To go on, Egypt is encompaſs'd with Sandy Deſarts, excepting on the Mediterranean-ſide. In the Eaſtern-parts, beyond the River Nile, towards the Red-ſea, is the famous Country of Thebais, with its Deſarts, where formerly St. Anthony, St. Paul, and other Anchorets had their Cells: On the other ſide of the Country next to Barbary, was the Deſart of Barca, whither Alexander the Great went to viſit the Temple of Jupiter-Hammon. Beyond the Red-Sea, there is another great Deſart, which ſtretches as far as Paleſtine; and here it was where the Children of Iſrael lived forty Years. From Caire to Delbe there are Sandy Deſarts twenty Days Journey long, which are ſo troubleſome, that Travellers are forc'd to be lock'd up in Cheſts carried by Camels, which Cheſts are full of little holes to let in the Air: This Precaution is no more than neceſſary, to avoid the Danger of thoſe Floating Plains; for the Sand being continually driven by the Wind, makes the Road imperceptible, ſo that they are often-times forced to travail by the Compaſs, as if they were at Sea. On the Weſtern-ſide of the River Nile, lies the Lake of Mœris, which is ſaid to be a 150 Leagues in Compaſs.

The Cuſtoms, Sciences, and Tears of the Egyptians.

The Egyptians were commonly no great Souldiers, however they did not want Courage; and as for the Addreſs and Prudence of their Conduct in other matters, they have been very remarkable. The Modern Inhabitants are admirable Swimmers, handy, pleaſant, and ingenious, but lazy: Arts and Sciences flouriſh'd among them very early, as we may amongſt other Authours, learn from Diodorus Siculus. This Hiſtorian informs us that Homer, Lycurgus, Solon, Plato, Pythagoras, Democritus, and many other great Men travell'd into Egypt for Improvement and Information, and particularly to converſe with the Egyptian Prieſts, who were the only Maſters of the Contemplative Sciences. Theſe Prieſts, beſide Matters of Religion, Taught Arithmetick and Geometry, which latter part of Mathematicks, they ſtudied more particularly. Muſick, likewiſe Aſtronomy and Aſtrology, was part of the Egyptians Talent; and as for Phyſick, the bare ſtudying in that Faculty in Alexandria, was enough to ſet up a Doctour. As for the Habit or Dreſs of the Egyptians; 'twas very decent and manageable, but not pompous or phantaſtical. Polygamy was allow'd amongſt them; nay, it was even lawful for Brothers and Siſters to inter-marry. Their Kings gave this Permiſſion, that their Daughters might not be depriv'd of the Satisfactions of Government. They paid a great Reſpect to Aged Perſons, and were particularly careful in embalming their Dead. Their day began at Midnight, and amongſt the Ancient Egyptians, their Years were but Lunary ones, which poſſibly may give ſome Account of the Antiquity of the Egyptian Monarchy, which they ſtretcht to ſeveral thouſand Years before the Creation of the World.

The Government of the Egyptians.

The Kingdom of Egypt was at firſt Govern'd by the Pharaohs; the firſt of which was Amenophis or Menes. This Prince by an admirable contrivance ſtopt the River Nile, at the Town of Memphis; for by making a Cauſway of about 100 Furlongs broad, he turn'd the Courſe of the River, and made it run between the Mountains, where its Channel ſtill continues. This Prince ſeems to have Reign'd but only over Part of the Country; but ſome time after it came under the Sovereignty of a Single Perſon, in which condition it remained till it was Conquer'd by Cambyſes, from which time it continued part of the Perſian Empire, till Alexander the Great Conquer'd it again; after whoſe Death it fell to the ſhare of Ptolemy, the Son of Lagus, whoſe Succeſſors held it under the Name of Ptolemy, till the Defeat of Mark Anthony, and the Death of Cleopatra; upon which Revolution it became a Roman Province: To which Empire it belonged till the Reign of Omar Second Mahometan Caliſ, who ſubdued it by Amar, one of his Generals; And when the Power of this Line began to ſink, Saladine ſet up the Kingdom of the Mamalucks in Egypt, whoſe Dominions afterwards reached for 300 Leagues together upon the Mediterranean Coaſt. But in the XVIth. Century Selim, the Turkiſh Emperor, Conquer'd the Mamalucks; for in the Year 1516. Defeating and Killing Camſon Soldan of Egypt, and Tomumbey the next year after; Egypt was perfectly Conquer'd by the Ottomans, who have Govern'd it ever ſince by their Baſha's: They keep up a conſiderable Militia in the Country, the Government of which is the moſt Honourable Poſt the Grand Seignior has in his Diſpoſal. The Profits likewiſe ariſing from hence, are no leſs than a Hundred and Fifty Thouſand Piaſters, yearly paid in to the Sultan's Treaſury at the Port. As to the Religion of the Country, the Old Egyptians were extremely Superſtitious: Their moſt regarded Idols were Anubis, Apis, Iſis and Oſiris, which are mentioned in their proper Place. They likewiſe Worſhip'd Crocodiles, Cats and Inſects, and paid a Religious Reſpect to Radiſhes, Leeks and Onyons. The Egyptians were Converted by St. Mark, who was firſt Biſhop of Alexandria, but they were not firm to the Orthodox Belief; being often carry'd off by Hereticks, but more particularly by the Arrians: But at laſt they were ſo unhappy as to turn Mahometans; however there are ſome Chriſtians of the Latin Church amongſt them, and ſome who do not acknowledge the Pope, theſe latter are the Cophti, who have a Language particular to themſelves, which ſome think is the Old Egyptian. Ptolemy, Strabo, Pliny, Pomponius Mela, Ortelius, Mercator, Cluverius, Appianus, Alexandrinus, *Marmol. EICHTELBERG, or the Mountain of Pines, a Mountain of the Marquiſate of Culembach in Franconia, which extends it ſelf into the Country of Voitland in Miſnia, and into the Kingdom of Bohemia. It took its Name from the great number of Pines that grow upon it, and is divided into ſeveral Points, of which ſome extend themſelves towards Bohemia, Eaſtward; others towards Franconia, Weſtward; Others towards the Palatinate and Bavaria, Southward; and others Northward, toward the Countries of Turingia Voitlandt. Four large Rivers, that water Germany, riſe out of this Mountain; The Mein, Egra, the Nab, and the Sale. See the Deſcriptions of Caſper Bruſchius, and Enoch Wideman.

EISENACK, a City of Turingia in Germany, with an Univerſity, in Latin Eiſenacum. It is ſeated upon the little River of Neſe, towards the Frontiers of Heſſe, and belongs to the Duke of Saxe-Weimar. The Univerſity was Founded 1555.

EISENGREN (William) a Canon of Spire in Germany, liv'd in the XVIth. Cent. He was much eſteem'd for his Learning and Devotion: He wrote, amongſt other things, Catalogus Teſtium veritatis, a Chronicle of Spire, &c.

EKELENFORDT, Lat. Ekelenfordia, a City of Denmark, in the Dukedom of Sleſwick upon the Baltick Sea, with a convenient Harbour between the City of Sleſwick and Kiel; deriving its Name from the ruin'd Fort of Ekeremborg.

ELA, the Son of Baaſha, King of Iſrael; Succeeded his Father, A. M. 3105. and was Murder'd by Zimri after he had Reigned two Years. He was a Wicked and Idolatrous Prince, 1 King. 16.

ELAM, the Son of Sem, the Anceſtor of the Elamites; the ſame whom Prophane Authors call Elymæans: They inhabited that Tract of Continent which lies between Perſia and Babylon. Some Hiſtorians believe. That the Perſians ſprung at firſt from the Elamites, grounding their Opinion upon the Words of Daniel, that Shuſhan or Suſa, the Capital City of Perſia, was in the Country of Elam. Chedorlaomer, who Sack'd Sodom, and was defeated by Abraham, was King of the Elamites, whoſe Chief City was Elymais, where ſtood the famous Temple of Diana; which Antiochus Epiphanes would have Plundered. Daniel. Joſeph.Antiq. l.1.l.7.l.12.

ELBE, or the Elve, Lat. Albis, a River of Germany, which riſes in Bohemia, not far from Glats, upon the Borders of Sileſia. The Natives of Bohemia calls it Labe. It receives all the Rivers of Bohemia: of which, the moſt Noted are the Muld and Eger; runs by Konigingratz, Curtemburg, Letomeritz, &c. Paſſes through the Upper and Lower Saxony; Waſhes the Cities of Dreſden, Targau, Wittenburg, Deſſau, Magdeburg, Verben, Lawenburg, Hamborough, Gluckſtadt, and then throws it ſelf into the German Ocean. Strabo, Pliny, Bertius Deſcr. Germ.

ELBE, or the Iſland of Elba, Lat. Ilva and Æthalia, an Iſland in the Mediterranean Sea, upon the Coaſt of Tuſcany, over againſt Piombino, about 40 Miles in Circuit, and containing five or ſix Pariſhes. It belongs to the Prince of Piombino, and is under the Protection of the Spaniards; who have alſo Porto Longone in the ſame Iſland, as the Duke of Tuſcany has Porto Ferraro. Maginus and ſome others, have placed an Imaginary City in this Iſland, which they call Coſmopolis, as being Built by Coſmo Duke of Tuſcany; though there be no ſuch City of that Name in the Iſland. But they were deceived perhaps by Porto Ferraro, which Coſmus I. cauſed to be fortify'd and call'd after his Name: And they that wrote after Maginus committed the ſame Error, for want of Examining the Truth of the Matter. Baudr.

ELBENE, otherwiſe Del Bene, the Name of a Family in Florence, of great Reputation there, for about Three or Four Hundred Years paſt Some will have it to be Originally of France, by reaſon of the Barony of Bene, near Monfort L' Amauri; adding withal, That the Arms of that Family are Engraved in ſeveral Parts upon the Walls of the Caſtle. Others, and amongſt the reſt Hugolinus Verrinus will have it to be an Italian Family, that firſt deſcended from Fieſoli. However it were, James D' Elbene was Four times Prior of the Liberty of the Republick of Florence in 1334. 38. 42. and 60. and Three times Elected Standard-Bearer of the City in 1352. 55. and 60. Scipio Ammirati, and Michiavel Hiſt. Alphonſus d' Elbene, Biſhop of Alby, of the ſame Family liv'd in the XVI and XVIIth. Centuries, and wrote among other things, De Regno Burgundiæ, Transjuranæ & Arelatis Lib. 3.

ELBEUF, Lat. Elbovium, a Borough of France in Normandy, with the Title of a Dukedom, erected in 1581. in Favour of Charles of Lorrain, the Firſt of that Name. It is ſeated upon the River Seine, 3 or 4 Leagues above Rouen. It formerly belong'd to the Family of Harcourt. But is ſince become a Title belonging to a Branch of the Houſe of Lorrain.

ELBING, Elbinga, one of the Hans-Towns, and an Ancient City of Poland in Royal Pruſſia; the Capital of a ſmall Country called Hockerland, ſeated upon the River Elbing, near the Baltick Sea, and the Lake of Drauſon, which there diſcharges it ſelf into the Bay called Friſch-Haff. The City is large, beautiful and ſtrong, and ſtands in a fertile Plain; Built, as they ſay, in 1239. and the Trade of the Baltick Sea, render'd it conſiderable in a ſhort time. It ſubmitted to the King of Poland in 1454. In 1521. it withſtood Albert of Brandenburgh, who was nevertheleſs admitted into it in 1525. and Founded an Univerſity there in 1542, which was further improv'd in 1592. Before that Stephen King of Poland, being at Wars with Dantzick in 1577. endeavour'd to draw the Trade of that City to Elbing, not without good Succeſs; for that the Engliſh reſorted thither, and many ſettled there. In 1626. they ſubmitted to the Swedes, who reſtor'd it in 1636. After which they again ſubmitted to Charles Guſtavus King of Sweden. However it was return'd into the Hands of the Polanders. The City is divided into three Parts; the Old and New City which are both well Built and regularly Fortify'd, and the Suburbs where the Merchants have their Ware-Houſes. This place in 1698. was unexpectedly inveſted by the Elector of Brandenburg's Troops under General Brandt, upon the account of its being Mortgaged to his Father for a conſiderable Sum of Money; and the ſame Surrender'd to him upon the 11th. of November: But the Affair has been ſince accommodated between the Poles and the Elector, and ſuch ſatisfaction given to the latter, that he has quitted all his Pretenſions to it; and the Place is now reſtored to its former Liberty of an Hans-Town under the Protection of Poland. Long. 42. 40. Lat. 54. 50. Cromer and Starovolſcius Hiſt. Pol.

ELCATIFF, a City of Aſia in Arabia Fælix, between Jazack and Barcar. It gives Name to the Sea of Elcatiff, or the Gulph of Balſera. See Balſera.

ELCESAITÆ and Sampſæans, a ſort of Hereticks that ſprung up in the IIId, Age. They rejected all St. Paul's Epiſtles, follow'd the Opinions of the Jews, and had a particular Veneration for a Book which they pretended was ſent them from Heaven. They taught that there were two Chriſts, one in Heaven and the other on Earth, and that the Holy Ghoſt was Chriſt's Siſter; with ſeveral other Extravagancies that ſoon vaniſh'd. St. Auſtin de Hær. c. 32. Euſeb. l. 6. c. 31. Nicephorus, l. 5. c. 24.

ELEAZAR, one of the Sons of Aaron, Succeeded his Father in the High Prieſthood, A. M. 2583. accompanied Joſhua in the Conqueſt and Diviſion of the Holy Land.

ELEAZAR, Sirnamed Auran, accompanied his Brother Judas in the Battel which he fought againſt Antiochus Eupator, where ſeeing an Elephant richly accouter'd and higher than the reſt, and believing the King to be there, he made his way to the Elephant, and creeping under him thruſt him into the Belly, upon which the Elephant fell down immediately, and cruſht Eleazar to Death, 1 Maccab. 6.

ELEAZAR, an Old Jew of Quality of Fourſcore and Ten, who choſe rather to be tortur'd to Death by King Antiochus, than to be guilty of violating the Law of Moſes notwithſtanding the fair Invitations he had from that Prince for compliance. Maccab. l. 2. c. 6.

ELEAZAR, Brother to Simon the Juſt, Succeeded his Brother in the High Prieſthood, and was the Perſon who ſent the Seventy Interpreters to Ptolemy Philadelphus, about A. M. 3769. Joſeph. Antiq. l. 12. c. 2.

ELECTORS, are Princes of Germany, who have right to chooſe the Emperor, the Hiſtory of their Original is very obſcure; but a Summary Account thereof extracted from the beſt Hiſtorians who have writ on that Subject, take as follows. It's agreed among the Learned, that ſince the failure of the Carlovinian Race in Germany, that Empire which was formerly Hereditary, according to the Fundamental Law of the French, became Elective. And that Conrad I, Henry the Fowler, and his Son Otho the Great, were Elected by the Princes and Lords Eccleſiaſtical and Secular, and the Deputies of the Cities repreſenting the People. After that, the Empire was transferred to the Germans, in the Perſon of Otho the Great, and that the Imperial Dignity was united to the Kingdom of Germany, although the Son did ordinarily Succeed the Father, they were Elected nevertheleſs till Frederick II. in 1210, according to the Teſtimony of Otho Friſingenſis, the Abbot Vrſpergenſis, &c. But there were Alterations from time to time in the way of Election. At firſt the People were repreſented by the Deputies of Cities, as may be ſeen by the Election of Conrad III. and Italy and Rome it ſelf, being ſince Otho's time Parts of the German Monarchy, the Princes, Lords, and Cities of Italy, nay, the Popes themſelves had their Suffrage in the Elections, as in thoſe of Henry IV, Lothaire II, &c. But the Princes who were the great Officers of State belonging to the Empire, and had moſt Authority in thoſe Aſſemblies, found means in the Reign of Henry V. to have the Method of Election alter'd for their own advantage, viz. That thoſe leſſer Princes, Lords and Deputies ſhould only Name him whom they would have choſen Emperor, to thoſe Great Officers; and if theſe latter happen'd to chuſe another then that Choice muſt be approv'd by the Majority of that Aſſembly to make it valid. According as it happened in the Caſe of Lotharius II. in 1125. and Frederick I. in 1152. and avouch'd by a Manuſcript of Velbert's, Conrad III's Chaplain; and another of Amandus, Secretary to Fredrick I. Some Fragments of which are related by Vindekius, in his Treatiſe of Electors, c. 4. and 5. importing, That if any Difference ſhould happen about the Election of the Emperor, then every one ſhould give his Vote in the Aſſembly as formerly, without addreſſing themſelves to the Officers divided among themſelves. Which may alſo be ſeen by the Letters which were writ to Pope Innocent III. on the Election of Otho IV. and Philip of Suabia, after the Death of the Emperor Henry VI. In 1198. there happened alſo other conſiderable Alterations. For after the Election of Conrad II. in 1138. None were allowed Suffrage but Feudatories of the Empire, and after that of Frederick I. none were admitted but Germans, as appears by the famous Chapter, entituled, Venerabilem de Electione, extracted from the Epiſtle of Innocent III. to Berthold Duke of Zaringen, after the Election of the Emperor Otho IV. in 1208. But after that of Frederick II. in 1210. which was the laſt Election perform'd by the Majority of the German Princes, they agreed unanimouſly to devolve the Power of Election upon the Seven Great Officers of the Empire, viz. The Archbiſhops of Mentz, Treves and Cologne, the Count Palatine, D. of Saxony, Marquiſs of Brandenburg, and King of Bohemia. Albert the Abbot of Staden, who wrote in the time of Frederick, ſays expreſly, That when Gregory IX, who Excommunicated Frederick II. in 1239. would have had another ſet up in his Place, the Princes to whom he wrote, anſwered, That he had nothing to do with the Election, which was their peculiar Province. This is the firſt time that we find the College of Electors mentioned in Hiſtory, who by virtue of that Inſtitution, did chuſe William Count of Holland about 8 Years after inſtead of Frederick, who was Excommunicated afreſh, and depoſed by Pope Innocent IV. at the Council of Lyons. But ſeeing thoſe Authors do not mark the preciſe time of the Eſtabliſhment of this Electoral College, nothing can be aſcertain'd concerning it, except that it muſt of neceſſity have fallen out betwixt 1210. that Frederick was elected by the Majority of the Feudataries, and 1240. that the ſaid College was eſtabliſh'd by unanimous conſent of all the Princes; And to prevent any further Change in the manner of Election, the Emperor Charles IV. made that irrevocable Law, call'd the Golden Bull, in 1356. This Right of Electing Emperors, is neither deriv'd from Pope Gregory V. nor Otho III. there being no ſuch thing to be found, either in the Archives of the Popes or Emperors, or in any Collection of things of that Nature; nor do any of the Writers of thoſe times mention it. All the Emperors after Gregory V. and Otho III. untill Frederick II. which was above 200 Years, were choſen, as is already ſaid, either in the General Dyets, or in the Aſſembly of the Princes. Neither was it Pope Innocent IV. who inſtituted the Seven Electors at the Council of Lyons, as Baronius alledges on a Miſtake of a Digreſſion by Matthew Paris, which the Tranſcriber had led him into. For Albert of Staden, ſpeaking of the Electors in 1240. at which time he lived, it is evident that they were before the Council of Lyons, which was not held till 1245. But to conclude, The Temporal Electors have both their Honours and Dominions Hereditary. And the Eccleſiaſticks are Elected as are other German Biſhops; but the Electoral Dignity being Secular, they can aſſiſt at the Election of the Emperor, before they have the Pope's Confirmation. Since the Reformation, there were no more but Seven Electors; of which Seven Three had embraced the Proteſtant Religion, viz. The Elector Palatine, Saxony, and Brandenburgh. But the Elector Palatine having accepted the Crown of Bohemia, was Out-law'd by the Emperor, and the Electorate conferr'd upon the Duke of Bavaria, who was a Roman Catholick. The Proteſtant Electors loſt by this Change in regard there were but two Proteſtants to five Roman Catholicks, which was the reaſon that they would not conſent to the Peace of Munſter, till the Palatine was reſtored. But becauſe the Emperor would not take from the Duke of Bavaria what he had given him, an Expedient was found out to ſettle an Eighth place in the Electoral College. Limnæus de Imper. Roman. & Severen. Preſent Eſtate of the Empire of Germany. In 1692. the Duke of Hanover, another Proteſtant Prince, was created Elector, not without great Oppoſition from the Faction of Lewis XIV of France.

ELECTRA, Agamemnon's Daughter, perſwaded her Brother Oreſtes, to revenge her Father's Death, upon the Murtherer Ægiſthus. Sophoc. Elect. Eurip. &c.

ELENUS, (Jerome) a Famous Lawyer of Brabant in Germany, living in the XVIth. Cent. His Works are, Diatribarum ſeu Exercitationum ad Jus Civile lib. 3. Annotationes ad Inſtit. Juris Canon. Lanceloti, &c. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

ELEONORA, Firſt Queen of France, and afterwards of England, was Daughter to William the Tenth, laſt Duke of Guienne; ſhe Marry'd Lewis VII. of France, called the Younger. There happening ſome miſunderſtandings between them, they were afterwards parted. And in 1153. ſhe Married again to Henry Duke of Normandy, afterwards, the Second of that Name, King of England. This Queen, ſiding with King Henry's Children againſt their Father, was impriſon'd about 14 Years; and being enlarg'd after the King's Death, ſhe retir'd to the Nunnery of Fontevraud, where ſhe Dy'd in 1204. Matth. Paris, Odoricus Vitalis, &c.

ELEPHANT, the Name of an Order of Knighthood in Denmark, inſtituted in 1478. by Chriſtiern I. at the Marriage of John his Son. The Knights wear a Collar, from which hangs an Elephant of Gold, enamell'd with White, carrying upon his Back a Silver Caſtle mortar'd with Sable, and treading upon a Platform of Sinoper enamell'd with Flowers.

ELEPHANTINA, an Iſland of Egypt in the River Nile, which divides it ſelf into two Arms, a little below the laſt Cataract. Here it is that the Egyptians ceaſe to go any farther by Water, and where they ſet up their Trade with the Ethiopians. The Country is very Delightful, as enjoying a continual Spring, Trees always Green, and the Vineyards perpetually cover'd with Leaves. Here, as Tacitus relates, were the Frontiers of the Roman Empire. Tacit. l. 2. Annal. c. 6.

ELESBAAN, King of Æthiopia, a very Wiſe and Virtuous Prince, who lived in the VIth. Age. He gave the Command of the Country of the Humorites to Dunaan, a Jew and Enemy of the Chriſtians about 522. This Dunaan took Arms againſt him, but being Vanquiſh'd in a Great Battel, he diſcharg'd his Choler upon the Chriſtians who liv'd in thoſe Parts, over whom he tyranniz'd after a moſt diſmal manner. Juſtin the Emperor hearing of his Cruelties, ſent to Aſterius Biſhop of Alexandria, to incite Elesbaan to make War on him; who having overthrown Dunaan in two Battels, put him to Death, and ſet over the Humorites, a Prince of great Piety, call'd Abrabamiu; and then ended his Days in a Monaſtery. See Zonaras, Cedrenus, and Baronius, A. C. 522, &c.

ELEUS, a City of Thrace within the innermoſt Receſs of the Thracian Cherſoneſus, near the Promontory Eolium, now call'd Critea, toward the Mouth of the Helleſpont, 30 Miles from the Propontis and Gallipoli, to the South, and 15 from Capo Janizari to the Weſt.

ELEUSIS, a City of Attica, beyond Megara, and the Harbour of the Pyraum, now call'd Leptine. It was formerly one of the moſt famous Cities of Greece, by reaſon of the Temple of Ceres, called Eleuſinia, dedicated to the Myſteries of that Goddeſs. The Original of the Temple and Myſteries proceeded from Celeus, King of Eleuſis, who entertain'd Ceres when ſhe was in ſearch of her Daughter Proſerpina; for which Kindneſs, the grateful Goddeſs taught him Agriculture. The Temple was large, and would contain an infinite Number of People: And there were a World of rich Ornaments in it, that were never expoſed all at a time, but ſome at one time, ſome at another. Whence the Proverb, Eleuſina ſervat quod oſtendat, ſpoken by way of Rebuke to thoſe that in their Writings diſplay at once all they know, without reſerving ſomething for another Opportunity: and becauſe at the Celebration of theſe Myſteries, the Women riding in Carts were wont to abuſe one another, thence the Proverb, De Plauſtro loqui, ſpoken of thoſe that are too free of their Railing and Scandalous Language. The Myſteries were of two ſorts, The Greater, and the Leſſer; the firſt concern'd only Ceres her ſelf; The latter, related to Proſerpina: though others ſay, That the Leſſer were Inſtituted to pleaſure Hercules, who deſir'd to be initiated into the Eleuſinian Myſteries, but could not be admitted into the Greater, as being a Stranger: And theſe two ſorts of Myſteries were Celebrated at different times of the Year, the Greater at the Beginning of Harveſt, and the Latter at the Beginning of Spring. They that were initiated into theſe Ceremonies, wore a Myrtle Garland, and had a new Veſtment given 'em, which they never pull'd off till it dropt in Tatters. The Ancients had ſo great a Veneration for the Eleuſinian Myſteries, that they us'd to call 'em Myſteries by way of Eminence. The City of Eleuſis was the only place where thoſe Great Honours were performed to Ceres, and it was reckoned an Extraordinary Privilege that Demetrius was per ſaltum admitted to the Greateſt Myſteries. When the Ephori were not allowed it till after a Years initiation; and thoſe who were initiated in the Leſſer Myſteries, did attend five Years e're they were receiv'd to the Greater. The Athenians had a ſtrange Paſſion to be admitted to theſe Myſteries, thinking that it contributed to their Leading a peaceable Life, a happy End, and a bleſſed State afterward. The King with 4 Aſſiſtants preſided at this Solemnity. The Firſt received thoſe who were to be initiated. The Second run up and down with a Torch, in imitation of Ceres ſeeking for her Daughter, and had the Charge of laying the Skins of the Sacrifices upon the Floor of the Temple, that it ſhould not be profaned by Criminal Perſons, who were not permitted to ſtand on both their Feet, but only on the left, till they were Purified. The Third ſerved inſtead of an Herauld, and cried aloud,

Ἑκὰς ἑκὰς ὅστις ἀλιτρὸς,
Ἑκὰς ἑκὰς ἐστε βέβηλοι
Procul hinc, Procul ite Profani, i. e.

That no Profane Perſon ſhould approach the Sacred Place. Whereupon Sueton ſays, That Nero abſtain'd from entring into that Temple. The Fourth had the Charge of Seeing all things done in Decency and Order. This Solemnity laſted ſeveral Days; the Laſt of them being called Plemochoe, from the Name of a certain Veſſel uſed in the Ceremony, at which time they filled two with Wine, one toward the Eaſt, and another toward the Weſt, overturning them both after ſaying ſome Prayers. The Proceſſion was from Eleuſis to Athens, and they made ſeveral Stops by the Way, Singing Hymns, &c. And the Athenians had ſuch a Value for theſe Ceremonies, that when reduc'd by their Enemies to the greateſt Straits, the Enjoyment of thoſe Myſteries was the laſt Article they would Capitulate for, and after performing them, the Senate was always called to ſee that every thing had been done as it ought, and the divulging thoſe Myſteries was counted Capital, and yet all this Pompous and Ceremonious Cavalcade was in Veneration of a very ſhameful Object, according to Tertullian; who ſays, Tota in adytis divinitas, &c. Simulacrum membri Virilis revelatur. And Theodoret, it was Natura Muliebris Imago, which is reckon'd more probable, they took care to conceal it, by Swearing all who were admitted to the Myſteries not to reveal it; yet the Sagacity of the Primitive Chriſtians found it out. Heſychius, Macrobius, Tertullian, Athenæus, &c.

ELEUTHERIÆ, certain Feſtivals ſolemniz'd by the Greeks every five Years, in Honour of Jupiter Eleutherius: and inſtituted by 'em, after they had overthrown 300000 Perſians, led by Mardonius, near the River Eſopus, and delivered Greece from the fear of Perſian Slavery.

ELEUTHERIUS, 15th. Biſhop of Rome, Son of Abundius, once Deacon of Anicetum, born at Nicopolis, a City of Greece, Succeeded Soter, in the Reign of Commodus. He was no ſooner in the Chair, but Lucius King of Britain, is ſaid to have ſent to him that he might be admitted into the Number of the Chriſtians; who thereupon ſent Fugatius and Damianus to baptize the People. In his time Chriſtianity greatly encreaſed, eſpecially at Rome, where many of the Roman Nobility, with their Wives and Children were baptized. He ſate 15 Years and three Months, and died in 192. Platina.

ELEUTHERIUS, Exarch of Ravenna for the Emperor Heraclius; at firſt he Puniſh'd ſuch as rebelled againſt the Emperor, but afterwards aſpiring to be King of Italy, he careſs'd the Soldiers with large Gifts, and larger Promiſes, in hopes to render 'em favourable to his Deſigns; but they deteſting his Treacherous Practices, fell upon him, cut off his Head, and ſent it to Heraclius, in Decemb. 617. Sueur.

ELEUTHEROPOLIS, a City of Palæſtine in the Tribe of Judah, 8 Miles from Hebron to the Weſt, and 20 from Jeruſalem, in the way to Gaza. From which Town, as being a noted City, St. Jerome takes the Diſtance of ſeveral Places.

ELEUTHERUS, a River of Phœnicia, which riſes out of Mount Libanus, now call'd Valania, if Poſtellus and Pinetus ſay true. It runs through Iturea and Galilee, and enters into the Sea, three Miles from Tyre, and two from Sarepta; where are found great ſtore of Tortoiſes, whoſe Fleſh is very well-taſted.

ELEWARD or ETHELWARD, an Engliſh-Man, living about the Year, 1090. in the Reign of William II. He was Grandſon to King Ethelred, as we may Learn from himſelf. He Publiſh'd a Hiſtory of the World in 4 Books, reaching from the Creation, to the end of Edgar's Reign. William of Malmsbury, in Prol. Hiſt. de Reg. Leland de Vir. Illuſt. Angl. &c.

ELGIN, a ſmall City in the County of Murray in Scotland, upon the River Loſſie, 3 Miles from the Coaſts of the German Ocean. It was a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of St. Andrews, and remarkable for a large and ſtately Church, for Workmanſhip ſcarce Inferior to any in Europe, as is ſtill to be ſeen by its Ruins. There are alſo the Ruins of a Caſtle, on an adjacent Hill; and about a Mile from thence, lies the Caſtle Spynee, on the Bank of a Lake of the ſame Name; being ſeated in a fruitful Soil, and the Lake is remarkable for its great number of Swans which frequent it, to feed of a certain Herb which never appears above Water.

ELHAM, or Elibam, a Market-Town in Kent, in Shepway Lath, honour'd heretofore with a Palace-Royal, now well inhabited, being pleaſantly ſeated amongſt Woods, on the ſide of a Hill, 58 Miles from London.

ELI, High Prieſt and Judge of the Jews, after Sampſon's Death; Deſcended from Ithamar, the Second Son of Aaron. He judged Iſrael Forty Years; but neglecting to puniſh the Wickedneſs of his Sons, incurr'd the Diſpleaſure of God, and loſt both his Sons, who were Slain in Battel, at the ſame time when the Ark was alſo taken; upon the News of which he fell from his Seat, and being old and heavy, broke his Neck, in the Ninety eighth Year of his Age, 1 Sam.

ELIAS Levita, lived in the Laſt Age, and explain'd admirably well what belong'd to the Maſoreth, in a Book Entituled, Maſſoret ham Maſſoret. He wrote alſo a Dictionary of the Chaldee Paraphraſes, and compos'd a Gloſſary explaining the Hebrew foreign words. This Rabbi was an admirable Grammarian, having written ſeveral Books upon that Subject, ſome of which are tranſlated into Latin; and 'tis Father Simon's Opinion, that thoſe who would make themſelves Maſters of the Difficulties of that Language ſhould read this Rabbi, upon that Argument.

ELIAS of Niſibis, a Grammarian among the Syrians, who wrote a Syriac Grammar; wherein he obſerves, That the Hebrews, Syrians, Perſians, Medianites, Phœnicians, Arabians, &c. had not Letters enough in their Languages to expreſs the words which they made uſe of; and therefore were forced to make uſe of Points, and read by Conjecture and Tradition.

ELICO, an old Helvetian Gaul, who, going to Rome, in the Reign of Tarquinius Priſcus, and ſtaying there for ſome Information, had leiſure to reliſh the Plenty, and enquire into the Richneſs of that Country; ſo that returning home, he brought ſome of the Olives and Grapes along with him, to ſhew the Fruitfulneſs of the Soil. This Diſcovery, put the Gauls upon a Deſign of paſſing the Alps, which to that time, had been look'd upon as an impregnable Barrier, and gave occaſion to the firſt Wars between theſe two Nations. Plin. lib. 12. c. 1. Livy, &c.

ELIDURE, King of Britain, and Brother to Archigallo, was King three ſeveral times. Firſt, when his Brother was depos'd, whom after five Years, he generouſly reſtor'd to the Crown. Secondly, After his Brother's deceaſe, when he reaſſum'd the Government in his own Right. Thirdly, After he had been unworthily diſpoſſeſs'd by his two younger Brothers, Vigenius and Peredure, who having divided the Kingdom, died both in a little time, and made way for his Reſtoration.

ELIEZER, a Celebrated Rabbi of the Jews, wrote a Book Entituled, The Chapters of R. Eliezer. The Jews look upon this Book, as one of the moſt ancient they have; for according to their Account, He liv'd about the Year 75 of our Saviour. Morinus in his Exercitations, upon the Samaritan Pentateuch, gives ſome Credit to this Pretence of Antiquity. But afterwards, in his Exercitations upon the Bible, he changed his Opinion, and proves by Eliezer's making mention of the Greatneſs of the Arabian Empire, that he could not write before the 700th. Year of our Lord. He proves by ſeveral other Arguments, that the Book of this Rabbi, is no more than a Counterfeit Eliezer. William Voſtius tranſlated this Book into Latin, with conſiderable Notes, relating to the Jewiſh Learning. He grants that though this Book of Eliezer is not ſo ancient as they pretend, and is likewiſe ſtuff'd with Fables; yet there are ſeveral curious Remarks, very ſerviceable for the clearing the Hiſtory and Traditions of the Jews; particularly his Relation, concerning the manner of making the Teraphims is worth the peruſal. Morin. R. Simon.

ELIJAH, or Elias, Surnam'd the Tiſhbite, a famous Prophet, flouriſh'd in the time of Ahab, and Ahaziah Kings of Iſrael. He was a hairy Man, and girt about with a Girdle of Hair; Zealous for the Worſhip of God, and wrought ſeveral Miracles. 1 Kings 17, 18, &c.

ELIMAND, or Elimond, a Ciſtertian Monk of Froimont Beauvaiſe, liv'd in the XIIth. Age, and wrote a Chronicle containing Forty eight Books, from the Beginning of the World, to 1212. He died in 1223. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat.

ELIPANDUS, Archbiſhop of Toledo, an Upholder of the Neſtorian Errors, condemn'd by the Synod of Friuli, in 791. by that of Ratisbon, in 792. and the Council of Francfort, in 794. and refuted in a Letter written by Charlemaigne himſelf to the Spaniſh Biſhops. Eginharus, in his Life.

ELIS, a Country of Peloponneſus, now call'd Belvedere, between Achaia, Meſſenia, and Arcadia: Of which the chief Cities were Elis, now call'd alſo Belvedere; at this day large, neat, and pleaſantly ſeated upon the River Peneus; and Piſa Olympia, famous for the Olympick Games, and the Temple of Jupiter Olympius, wherein was the Statue of Jupiter, all of Maſſy Gold; and an Ivory Statue of Phidias, of an incredible Bigneſs.

ELISHA, the Son of Shaphat, called by Elijah from the Plough to be a Prophet, and famous for ſeveral Miracles. Vid. 1 King. 19. & 2 King. 4. 5.

ELIZABETH, Queen of England, was the Second Daughter of Henry VIII. by Ann Bullen, his Second Wife: She ſucceeded her Eldeſt Siſter, Queen Mary, in 1558. and was Crowned at Weſtminſter on the 15th. of January. Queen Mary being a Papiſt, had overthrown the Reformation firſt begun in her Father's time, and brought to great Perfection in the Reign of her Brother, King Edward VI. Queen Elizabeth expell'd Popery, repeal'd all the Acts made in its behalf by her Siſter, and reſtor'd the Reformation. For which ſhe was, by a Bull of Pope Pius V. deprived of her Kingdoms; her Subjects abſolv'd from Subjection to her; and all that yielded Obedidence to her, accurſed. Which occaſion'd Plot upon Plot, Rebellion upon Rebellion; the Roman Party being reſolv'd either to cut her off by Treachery, or Dethrone her by Force: but it pleaſed God to defeat all their Attempts, and to bleſs her with a long and proſperous Reign. Memorable among the reſt, was her great Deliverance in 1588. from the Spaniſh Invaſion, in vain attempted by Philip with a Fleet call'd the Invincible Armado; a prodigiour Fleet carrying about Thirty thouſand Land-men, the better part whereof was deſtroyed, ſome by our Fire-ſhips, but moſt by the ſtormy Winds. From which time the Fortune of the Spaniards ebb'd as faſt as it flow'd before; the provok'd Queen carrying on the War againſt Spain with great Succeſs both in Europe and America. Their richeſt Fleets ſhe intercepted, and took ſeveral of their Towns. In ſhort, the Engliſh became every-where a Terror to the Spaniards; and the very Name of our Chief Commanders, Howard, Eſſex, Norris, Drake and Rawleigh, ſtruck an Awe upon 'em. To make a Diverſion, the Spaniards fomented a Rebellion in Ireland; the End whereof prov'd fatal both to them and to the Iriſh, that Kingdom being at laſt intirely reduc'd by the Queen; who having thus reſtor'd the Reformation, defeated all the Attempts and Conſpiracies againſt her Life, ſuppreſs'd ſeveral Rebellions, baffled the Spaniſh Invaſion, now become a Scourge to the Monarchy of Spain; began to aſſiſt her Friends againſt their Enemies; the Scots ſhe ſuccour'd againſt the French, the French Proteſtants againſt the Royaliſts, and both againſt the Spaniard: The new-ſprung States of Holland ſhe cheriſh'd, and maintain'd their Liberty againſt the inſupportable Tyranny of the Spaniard: But 'tis to be fear'd, that ſome of theſe Expedients were over-ſtrain'd. The whole Ocean ſhe Commanded. And ſo great was her Fame, that it was reſpected by her very Enemies, as it was even by the Moſcovites, Turks, Perſians and Tartars: She is ſaid to have conſented, with much reluctancy, to the Death of Mary Queen of Scots, the Mother of King James I. her next Succeſſor; who being outed of her Dominions, fled into England; where, upon a Charge againſt her, and after a long Impriſonment at Fotheringhay-Caſtle, ſhe was at laſt Condemn'd and Beheaded. The Earl of Eſſex's Death was alſo much lamented by the Queen, whoſe Intereſt in her Favour, more than his Crimes, was thought to be the Occaſion of his Fall; and ſhe her ſelf liv'd but two Years after. She was a Queen whoſe incomparable Wiſdom will ever be admir'd by future Ages as the Wonder of her Time. 'Twas in her Reign, that famous Sir Francis Drake, in a ſmall Ship call'd the Pelican, travell'd round the World in three Years wanting twelve Days; and Sir Martin Frobiſher, another of our great Sea-men of this Age, ſail'd to the North-Weſt a great way farther than any had done before him. In the Honour of this Virgin Monarch Virginia came to be ſo call'd, but was not own'd as a Publick Intereſt of State till the Year 1606. The Reaſon why this Queen kept Unmarried, is hardly known. Some will have it, That ſhe had a natural Impediment, which in a Marry'd-life might have prov'd Dangerous. Others, That ſhe preferr'd Reigning by her ſelf, without a Coadjutor. Certain it is, that ſhe eluded all the Applications made unto her by ſeveral Princes, and turn'd 'em all to her own Advantage, without yielding to any of 'em: Being a Learned Princeſs, Learning flouriſh'd in her Reign even among thoſe of her Sex. She could ſpeak five or ſix Languages, and tranſlated ſeveral Treatiſes both out of Greek and French into Engliſh. Mathematicks, Geography and Hiſtory, ſhe delighted and had great skill in; which added much to her Fame. She Died in 1603. in the 45th. of her Reign, and 70th. of her Age; and was Buried in Henry VIIth's Chapel, leaving her Kinſman, James VIth. of Scotland, her Succeſſor.

ELIZABETH, or Iſabeau Daughter to Philip IV. of France, and Married in 1308. to Edward II. Prince of Wales, and afterwards King of England. Froiſart ſays, She was one of the moſt beautiful Princeſſes of her time. The Spencers, King Edward's Favourites diſobliged her, and her Son the Prince: The Queen reſented their miſ-behaviour, to that Degree, that ſhe left the Court, and went into France, to Charles the Fair, her Brother, as 'tis thought, to concert a Revolution; for taking leave of her Brother, ſhe paſs'd into Flanders, and brought over ſome Forces of the E. of Hainault's; with which, and the Aſſiſtance of a Factious Party at home, ſhe forc'd the King into a Reſignation, and got her Son Edward Crown'd: She's Charg'd with taking too much Liberty, in her Converſation with Mortimer, who was ſeiz'd in her Appartment, and put to Death. Froiſart. Walſingham. Pol. Virgil, &c.

ELIZABETH or Iſabel, of Caſtile, Queen of Spain, was Daughter to John II. King of Caſtile and Leon, and of Elizabeth of Portugal, ſecond Wife of Henry IVth. ſhe was born in 1451. and marry'd to Ferdinand Vth. King of Arragon in 1469. She kept Poſſeſſion of her Royal Birth-Right, notwithſtanding the Competition of her Niece Jane, whoſe Pretenſions were perfectly quaſh'd, and her Party ruin'd in the Battel of Del Toro in 1676; and thus the Eſtates of Arragon and Caſtile being united, Ferdinand and Iſabel had their Titles joyn'd in the Government. They conquer'd the Kingdom of Granada, expell'd the Moors out of Spain, and in their Reign, America was diſcover'd by Chriſtopher Columbus. She was a Princeſs of great Spirit, and both very Enterprizing and Prudent; but we cannot commend her for ſetting up the Inquiſition in her Kingdoms. Mariana Hiſt. Hiſp. lib. 24, &c.

ELIZABETH CLARA EUGENIA, Daughter to Philip II. of Spain, and of Elizabeth of France; ſhe was her Father's Favourite Daughter, who gave her his Dominions in the Low Countries, and marry'd her to Albert VIth. Arch-Duke of Auſtria in 1598. She was a Princeſs much eſteem'd, for her Conduct and Religious Diſpoſition.

ELLA, in Latine Elcebus, a Town in Germany, of the Lower Alſatia; ſeated upon the River Ill, about two or three Leagues from Schleſtadt, and ſomething more than one from Strasburgh.

ELLISMERE, a Market Town of Pimhill Hundred, in the North Weſt of Shropſhire. The Earl of Bridgwater is Baron of this Place. 127 Miles from London.

ELMACIN (George) wrote a Chronicle, in Arabick, of the Mahometan Caliphs; beginning with Mahomet, and continuing till the Twelfth Age. Printed in 1625. with a Latin Verſion, under the Title of Hiſtoria Saracenica.

ELNA, a ſmall Town in Rouſillon, ſubject to the French ſince 1640. It is ſituated on the River Tech, about a League from the Mediterranean.

ELPHINGSTON, of Lopnes, a Family of the Iſland of Sanda in Orkney, in the North of Scotland, deſcended from the Family of Shanks. The Predeceſſors of Lopnes's Family went over into France; where they had honourable Employments, and return'd again about an Hundred Years ago; particularly one Raney, with the Earl of Orkney, King James Vth's Natural Son, begot on my Lord Elphingſton's Daughter. From him deſcended Robert Elphingſton, who was Page to Prince Henry: And from him, John, Father to Colonel Robert Elphingſton, now of Lopnes, and Steward of Orkney and Shetland, for his Majeſty King William. The ſaid Colonel having ſuffered much, and being forfeited for his Non-conformity in the late Reigns, went over to Holland; where he married Clara Van Overmeer, of Honourable Parentage, in Utrecht; by whom he has two Sons, John and Albert. He came over with the Prince of Orange, now King William, in his Deſcent upon England, who hath given him particular Marks of his Favour.

ELPIDIUS, Biſhop of Laodicea, took St. Chryſoſtom's part, and ſtoutly defended him before the Emperor Arcadius, for which he was unjuſtly Condemned. He flouriſh'd about the beginning of the Fifth Age. Baron. Annal.

ELSENORA, Elſenore, a noted City of Denmark, in the Iſland of Zeland; with the Caſtle of Croneburgh, which Commands the Sound. There is alſo a very good Harbour.

ELSINGBURGH, a ſtrong Fortreſs of Sueden, in the Province of Schoneng, over-againſt the Iſle of Zeland, formerly belonging to the King of Denmark; but came into the hands of the Swedes, by the Treaty of Roſchild, in 1658. The Danes re-took it in 1676. but reſtor'd it again the next Year.

ELTHAM, a Market Town in Black-Heath Hundred, in the North Weſt of Kent. It's a good Town, ſeated amongſt Woods and Parks, and much frequented by Gentry, 8 Miles from London.

ELTOR, a City of Arabia the Stony; in Latin Elana; almoſt in the ſame place where the Children of Iſrael arrived out of the Red-Sea. A Town of great Trade for thoſe Commodities which are brought out of India and the Eaſt, and thence diſperſed over Egypt and the bordering Regions.

ELVAS, in Lat. Helva, by the Caſtilians call'd Telves, an Epiſcopal City of Portugal, under the Archbiſhop of Evora. A ſtrong Town, ſeated upon a Hill, at the foot of which runs a River, about two Leagues from Guadiana. The Moors fortify'd it, and built therein a fair Moſque, which is now the Cathedral Church. The Spaniards beſieged it in vain in 1659. and were defeated not far from it, at the ſame time, by the Portugueſes.

ELVIR, the Twenty ſeventh Caliph or Succeſſor of Mahomet; who eſcaping into Egypt, was receiv'd there as Sovereign Pontiff; and more than that, the Egyptians muſter'd all their Forces to dethrone the Reigning Prince, upon whom they look'd as an Uſurper. Who, to divert the Storm, ſent Offers to Elvir, to acknowledge him for Sovereign in all things that concern'd Religion; and to receive at his hands the Scimitar and Buskins, the Enſigns of the Sovereigns Authority in Temporals. Which Conditions being agreed to, Elvir remain'd Chief Caliph of Egypt. Marmol. of Africa.

ELVIRA, in Lat. Eliberis, once a famous City of Spain, now a ruin'd Heap in the Kingdom of Granada; the Epiſcopal See being tranſlated to Granada, that roſe out of the Ruines of it. Chronologiſts are divided in their Opinions, when the famous Council of Elvira was held; the Generality aſſign the Year, 305. for the time, under the Pontificate of Pope Marcellus, but Morinus ſeems to prove clearly, that this Council was before St. Cyprian; but let that be as 'twill, this is certain, there were 81 Canons made at it, which are now Extant, with the Learned Notes of Ferdinand Mendoza, and Gabriel Albaſpinaus. Theſe Canons are ſufficient Teſtimonies of the ſtrict Diſcipline of the Primitive Church. For they refus'd to re-admit thoſe to Communion, though at the point of Death, who had relaps'd into Idolatry. To thoſe, who were guilty of Murther, Sodomy, or who after doing Penance for Fornication, had fallen into't again, &c. Morin. De Pœnitentia.

ELWANG, a City of Germany, in Suabia, with a Provoſtſhip. It is ſeated upon the little River of Jaxt, in a Country abounding with Corn. The Provoſt of Elwang is a Prince of the Empire. It is five German Miles South of Rotenborg, and nine North of Ulm.

ELY, Lat. Elia, or Helia, the Name both of an Iſland and City in the North Parts of Cambridgeſhire. The Iſland is form'd by the River Ouſe. As it lies among Fens and Marſhes, ſo it is counted unhealthful to live in. The City of Ely, which is in this Iſland, ſtands on the Weſt ſide of the Ouſe. Remarkable for nothing ſo much as her beautiful Cathedral, Dedicated to St. Ethelred, and formerly being an Abbey-Church: The Weſt parts whereof, when become a Cathedral, were with great Charge repair'd, or rather new-built by Biſhop Ridal: The Ovire and Lanthorn, built by Biſhop Norwold; and afterwards finiſh'd by Biſhop Fordham. But the firſt Founder of this Church was Ethelreda, Wife to Egfride, King of the Northumbers, who founded here a Nunnery converted to the Uſe of Monks. To whom King Edgar, and the ſucceeding Kings, gave ſuch ample Privileges, and fair Poſſeſſions, that Richard, Second Abbot, dealt with King Henry I. to make this a Dioceſs, and turn the Abbey-Church into a Cathedral. The King aſſented to it; the Biſhop of Lincoln, in whoſe Dioceſs it was, being allowed three Mannors of this Abbey in Exchange for his Juriſdiction. But the Abbot did not live to enjoy the Fruit of his Induſtry; Hervy, Biſhop of Bangor, being the firſt that took Poſſeſſion of this new Biſhoprick, Anno 1109. with all the Rights or Royalties of a County Palatine in the Iſle: which Rights were afterward taken off, or at leaſt, much diminiſh'd by Act of Parliament, in the Reign of Henry VIII. The Dioceſs it ſelf, though of conſiderable Revenue to the Biſhop, reaches no farther than the County of Cambridge, and contains but 141 Pariſhes, whereof 75 are Impropriate. It has but one Archdeacon, viz. of Ely; is, valued in the King's Books at 2134 l. 8 s. 5 d. the Clergy's-Tenths amounting to 384 l. 14 s. 9 d. Ely is 56 Miles from London.

ELYSIANS, a People of Germany, mention'd by Tacitus; where are now the Sileſians, whoſe Chief City was Carrodunum, now Cracovia.

ELYSIUM, or Elyſian Fields, a certain place which the Poets feign'd, to be the Habitation of the Bleſſed. Virgil ſpeaks of the Elyſian Fields in Bœotia; and Tibullus and Propertius confirm the ſame thing. But Homer was the firſt that ever made mention of this Elyſium, in the 4th. Book of his Odyſſes: As alſo Plutarch, in the Life of Sertorius, and his Conſolation of Apollonius.

ELZIVIRS, the Name of certain Printers, in Holland, who got a great Reputation in the World, by the vaſt number of Books which they publiſh'd in lovely Characters; of which the laſt was Daniel Elzivir, who died at Amſterdam, in the Year 1680.

EMANUEL I. Comnenus, the Son of John Comnenus, Emperor of Conſtantinople; preferr'd to the Empire before his Elder Brother Iſaac, ſo much noted for his cruel Diſpoſition, and proneneſs to Paſſion. He marry'd Gertrude, the Siſter of Conradus the Emperor of Germany; who, to deliver his near Relation from the Neighbourhood of the Infidels, joyn'd with Ludovicus the Younger, and both together undertook an Expedition into the Eaſt. But ſuch was the Jealouſie of the perfidious Greek, that he did all he could to deſtroy both his Friends, by mixing the Meal with which he ſupply'd the Soldiers with Lime and Plaiſter; and by the means of falſe Guides, deliver'd 'em into the hands of the Turks, in 1147. So that hardly a tenth part of the Army eſcaped. And in their return, he laid Ambuſcades for them too. Roger, King of Sicily, deteſting his Perfidiouſneſs, drove him into Conſtantinople: And having at length broken his Faith with the Venetians, he was by them compell'd to ſue for Peace. Confiding in Judicial Aſtrology, he made an unfortunate War with the Turks and Hungarians, and dyed in 1180. after he had reigned 37 Years. Nicetas lib. 2. Chr. Otho. Friſingen. Guliel. Tyrius, lib. 15. & 16.

EMANUEL II. ſucceeded his Father, John Palæologus, in 1384. Soon after, Conſtantinople being beſieged by the Turks, in regard that Pera, the Suburbs of that City, belong'd to the Genoeſes, Boucicaut, Martial of France, made haſte to his Relief, while he himſelf went about to all the Courts of Europe, begging for Aid. In which Progreſs he ſtaid two Years at Paris; till hearing of the Overthrow of Bajazet by Tamerlain, he return'd to Conſtantinople. But meeting afterwards with no better Succeſs, about the Year 1419. he reſigned the Empire to his Son John Palæologus; and aſſuming the Name of Matthew, took upon him a Religious Habit, and died in a Monaſtery, in 1425. Bzovius, A.C. 1472. Numb. 56. Spondan. Annal.

EMANUEL, King of Portugal, Son of John, Duke of Viſco, and Grandchild of Edward, ſucceeded John II. who died without Iſſue. The Proſperity of his Reign, and the Succeſs of his Enterprizes, gave him the Reputation of a Fortunate Prince; for he conſtrain'd the Jews to be Baptiz'd, expell'd the Moors, and took ſeveral Towns in Africa, and diſcover'd divers Places upon the Coaſts of Æthiopia, and the Kingdom of Congo. Which was the reaſon the Portugueſes call'd his Reign of 26 Years, the Golden Age. He married Iſabel and Mary, Daughters to Ferdinand Vth. the King of Caſtile, the one after the other, by the Diſpenſation of Pope Alexander VI. King Emanuel was a Lover of Learning, and wrote Commentaries of the Indies. He died in 1521.

EMANUEL Philibert Duke of Savoy, ſirnamed Iron-head, was the Son of Charles III. and Beatrix of Portugal: At firſt deſign'd for the Church; but upon the Death of his Brothers, was ſent, at 20 years of Age, into Germany; where Charles V. made him Knight of the Golden Fleece, in 1548. He was General of the Imperial Army at the Siege of Metz, and at the Battel of St. Quintins; where he gain'd a Victory from the French, in 1557. Upon which, Peace enſuing, he married Margaret, the Daughter of Francis I. and by that Marriage recover'd the Territories which his Father had loſt. He was a Prince, Prudent, Fortunate, Couragious, and Eminent for his Piety, and Love of Learning and Learned Men. He follow'd Philip, King of Spain, into England; and was created Knight of the Garter, in 1554. and died in 1580. Guichen. Hiſt. Savoy.

EMDEN, in Lat. Embda, the Capital City of Eaſt-Frieſland, ſeated upon the River Embs; in great requeſt for the Conveniency of a ſpacious Harbour with a deep Channel, that admits Ships of great burthen; which has made the Place a Town of great Trade. The City is large, and well built; defended by two Caſtles, of which one ſtands upon the Port, at the mouth of the Embs, in the little Sea of Dollert. The Town-Houſe is a magnificent Structure. At firſt, the City was under Counts of its own; but encreaſing both in Buildings and Inhabitants, through the confluence of Proteſtants who fled from the Duke of Alva's Severity, it put it ſelf under the Protection of the Hollanders, who ſtill continue a Garriſon there. They revolted from their Count, which obliged them to put themſelves under the Protection of the Dutch. Whereupon Count Edzard retir'd into Germany, and his Son Emmon endeavoured to aſſert his Right to the City, but was defeated in the Attempt. He afterwards married his Daughter to his Brother John, by the Diſpenſation of the Pope. In 1606. Peace was made betwixt this City and that Count, by the Interceſſion of the King of England. Since which time, it has been governed by Magiſtrates, but depends on the States-General. (Bertius.) Long. 28. 24. Lat. 53. 35.

EMBRUN, or Ambrun, in Lat. Eborodunum, an Archiepiſcopal City in the Dauphinate, Metropolis of the Maritime Alps, and Capital of a ſmall Province call'd Embrunois, ſeated upon the Flat of a ſteep Rock, upon the River Durance, that Waſhes the Root of it. This City is very Ancient, and always kept ſo good a Correſpondence with the Romans, that Nero endow'd them with Right of the Latins, and Galba augmented their Privileges. It is ſtill a City in good Requeſt, and is the Seat of a Bayliff, a Judge-Royal, and a Judge of the Archbiſhops Court. The Archbiſhops of this City take the Title of Princes of Embrun, Counts of Guilleſtre and Beaufort; and formerly were Chamberlains of the Empire. Ten of 'em have been Canoniz'd for Saints. In 1583. the Proteſtants took it, and found abundance of Riches in their Churches; particularly one ſilver Image of the Virgin, weighing 500 Crowns; another of St. Marcellin, weighing 1000. It had ſeven Pariſh-Churches, whereof two were then burnt, and the Citadel was ſince turn'd into a Convent of Capuchins. It was taken by the Duke of Savoy, with other of the Allies, on the 17th. of September, 1692. after about ten days Siege; the Duke finding there 20 Pieces of Canon, and great quantity of Proviſions: He had 40000 Livres Contribution from the City, and ſeized 60000 of the King's Money. In 1290. a Council was held here: And it is alſo remarkable for the Quarrels betwixt the Jeſuits and Janſeniſts. It lies 7 Leagues from Gap, 23 from Grenoble, and 37 from Lyons.

EMIR-ALEM, in Turkey, is the Maſter of all the Standards, Colours, and Enſign-Bearers. When the Sultan goes to War, the Emir-Alem marches immediately before him, having a little Standard, carry'd before him, half White, half Green, as a Mark of his Office: After which are born the Sultan's ſix Royal Standards. Ricaut. of the Ottom. Empire.

EMMAUS, a Town of Judea, about two Leagues from Jeruſalem; where Chriſt firſt made himſelf known, by breaking of Bread, after his Reſurrection.

EMMERIC, vulgarly Embric, Lat. Emmerica, a City of Germany, in the Dukedom of Cleves; Large, Beautiful and Wealthy; ſeated upon the Rhine, between Cleves and the Fort of Skenk, being about two Hours from each. It belongs to the Duke of Brandenburgh; but was garriſon'd by the Hollanders a long time, who took it from the Spaniards in 1600.

EMPEDOCLES, a Native of Agrigentum, now Gergenti, in Sicily, both Philoſopher, Poet and Hiſtorian; liv'd about the 84th. Olympiad, which was in the Year of Rome, 310. He wrote of the Nature of Bodies in Verſe; for which he is applauded by Lucretius. He was the Diſciple of Telauges, the Scholar of Pythagoras, and therefore thought it not fitting that any thing which liv'd or mov'd ſhould be fed upon. He taught, That the Seat of the Soul was not in the Head, but in the Breaſt, and ſcattered in the Blood; and, That the quickeſt Senſe of Feeling, was where was moſt of the Soul, or Spirit of Life. He always went richly Clad, and Crown'd with a Coronet of Gold. He was wont to reproach his Fellow-Citizens, for running after Pleaſures, as if they thought they were to die the ſame day; and for building Houſes, as if they were to live for ever. He is ſaid to have thrown himſelf into one of the Mouths of Mount Ætna, affecting Divine Honour by a ſudden diſappearing out of the World. Though others ſay, He fell into the Sea, and was drown'd. Plutarch, Diogenes Laert. Voſſius.

EMPEROR, Lat. Imperator, a Name which the Romans gave to all the Generals of an Army. But in a ſtrict ſence, that General was call'd more particularly Imperator, or Emperor, who having won ſome ſignal Victory, was ſo ſaluted by the Acclamations of the Soldiers, and afterwards honour'd with the ſame Title by a Decree of Senate. To which purpoſe, he ought to have gain'd a Battel wherein 10000 had been ſlain on the Enemies ſide; or elſe to have Conquer'd ſome very conſiderable City. Cæſar was call'd Emperor by the Roman People, to denote his Sovereign Power over the Republick. But at preſent, he is only call'd Emperor, who is Chief of the German Empire. Vid. Germany.

EMPIRE, The Name of a large Extent of Country under one Sovereign: There are four Famous Empires in Hiſtory: The Aſſyrian, Perſian, Grecian and Roman; which latter, ſome pretend, is ſtill remaining in the Empire of Germany: Of this, we ſhall ſpeak more at large, under Germany; But here it may not be improper to dilate a little, upon the Diviſion and Fall of the Roman Empire. As to the Diviſion of the Empire, we are to underſtand that Conſtantine the Great divided the Empire among his 3 Sons. Conſtantius had Greece, Aſia and Egypt for his Share. This Prince fixt his Royal Seat at Conſtantinople, and he and his Succeſſours were call'd Eaſtern Emperours: Conſtans and Conſtantine had all the Reſt: Italy, Africk and Illyrium being the Dominions of the firſt; and Gaul, Spain and Great Britain, were enjoy'd by the latter; and theſe two were call'd Emperours of the Weſt; from this time, being the Year of our Lord 339, the Eaſt was govern'd by the Greek, and the Weſt by the Latin Emperours. The Weſtern Empire continued to Auguſtus Romulus, call'd, Auguſtulus, upon the Account of his Minority, who loſt it in 476. Odoacer, King of the Heruli, together with the Goths and Lombards poſſeſſing thoſe Dominions for three hundred Years. In the Year five hundred ſixty ſeven, the Eaſtern Emperour held the Exarchate in Italy againſt them; which Charlemagne ſettled upon the Popes in 774. This Diviſion of the Empire, occaſion'd the Diſtinction of the Eaſtern and Weſtern Churches: See Sigonius, Platina, Baronius, &c. Under Honorius and Valentinian the IIId. in the Vth Cent. The Roman Empire declin'd apace; barbarous Nations, who had been often repuls'd beyond the Danube and the Rhine, (which were as it were, the Barriere's of the Empire) paſs'd theſe Rivers in ſeveral Places, and began to poſſeſs themſelves of many Roman Provinces. The Cimbri inhabiting the Peninſula, now call'd Jutland, Part of Denmark, were the firſt Barbarians, that, marching over all Germany, made an Invaſion upon the Dominions of the Roman's, but theſe Nations were entirely defeated by Marius. The Old Saxons were very formidable on both ſides of the Elbe, till being broken by Charlemagne, they were oblig'd to change the Seat of the War, and turn their Expedition upon Dacia and Pannonia, where with the Reſt of the Huns, they begun the Kingdom of Hungary. All thoſe Nations which were ſettled between the Rhine, the Iſſal, the Elbe, the Saal, and the Maine, as far as the Ocean, entring into a Confederacy, took the Name of Franks, (about the time of the Emperour Galienus,) to ſhow their Reſolution to maintain their Liberty againſt the Romans, whom they chas'd out of Gaul. The Marcomanni, who inhabited all the Tract of Land, from the Maine to the Head of the Danube, made an Irruption into Bohemia. The Quadi, dwelling in the Modern Moravia and the Germans, being a Collection of all the Gauliſh Nations, ſeiz'd upon the Country, quitted by the Marcomanni, and held it a long time; but at laſt, they repaſt the Rhine; and making War upon the Romans in Gaul, from whence they came Originally, ſeiz'd upon that part of the Country, where the Griſons live now. The Burgundians, who dwelt in the Modern Great Poland between the Oder and the Viſtula, ſeiz'd upon part of the Country deſerted by the Germans above-mentioned, being now called the Territories of Wirtenburg and Briſgaw, from whence pouring into Gaul, much about the ſame time with the Francks, they there Erected the Kingdom of Burgundy. The Lombards being then planted in part of that which is now call'd the Marquiſate of Brandenburg, between the Oder and the Elbe, ſet up a Kingdom in Italy. The Suevi, i. e. thoſe People who were ſeated between the Elbe, the Saal, the Foreſt of Bohemia and the Maine, (at preſent call'd Miſnia, on this ſide the Elbe, the Principality of Anhalt, Voitland, and part of the Upper Palatinate) fought the Romans, and ſettled themſelves on this ſide the Danube, as far as the Lake of Conſtans, in the Modern Suabia. The Goths, who were ſeated all along the Viſtula, as far as the Mouth of it, in the Mare Suevicum, or Baltick-Sea, ſet up two Kingdoms, One in Italy, call'd the Kingdom of the Oſtrogoths, and the other in Spain, call'd that of the Viſigoths. The Vandals who kept the Name, which they had in Common with the Reſt of the People of Vandalie, made great Conqueſts in Spain and Africa. Maimburg. Hiſt. of Arrianiſm. See Germany.

EMPORIÆ, Ampurias by the Moderns, and Caſtel Aragoneſe, an Epiſcopal City of Sardigna. 'Tis ſaid that the Biſhoprick is now united to that of Torre, which is another City of the ſame Sardigna: it is ſeated in the Weſtern part of the Iſland, on that ſide next Corſe, upon the River Termo. The City is well fortify'd with a good Haven, and a fair Citadel; and it was call'd Caſtel-Aragoneſe, becauſe it was the firſt which the Aragonians took in the Land of Sardignia. Baudrand.

EMPORICUS SINUS, Golpho di Sala, where ſtands the City of Salé, in the Kingdom of Fez. Baudrand.

EMPORIUM, Empoli, a Town in the Dukedom of Florence, ſeated upon the River Arno, 20 Miles from Florence to the Weſt, and 30 from Piſa to the Eaſt; under the Great Duke of Tuſcany.

EMPULUM, now Sancto Elpidio, a large Town in La Marca d' Ancona, upon the Sea-coaſt, 6 Miles from Firmo to the Weſt: Though others will have it to be Clavello, a Caſtle upon the ſame Shore. Baudrand.

EMS, in Latin, Amaſius, and Amiſius, a River of Germany, ariſing in the Biſhoprick of Paderborn, in Weſtphalia, near the Town of Ramſel; it runs near Munſter, to Varendorp, &c. and at laſt, being encreas'd by ſeveral Rivers, falls into the Sea, near Embden in Eaſt Freizland.

ENCELADUS, the Son of Titan and Terra, the Biggeſt of all the Gyants that fought againſt Jupiter: by him therefore burnt to Death with Lightning, and thruſt under Mount-Ætna.

ENCHUYSEN, Enchuſa, a City of the Low-Countries in NorthHolland, large and beautiful; with ſeveral Canals, and a good Harbour on the Zuyder-zee. The Sea environs it on each ſide, and makes almoſt a Peninſula of it. It is three Leagues from Hoorne, and between five and ſix from Amſterdam. It was Burnt in the Year 1279. William, Count of Holland, endow'd it with Privileges, 1355. and encompaſſed it with Walls. It was the firſt City that ſhook off the Spaniſh Yoak, in 1572. after the Taking of Briel, and was much enlarg'd in 1591.

ENCOENIA, certain Feſtivals ſolemniz'd by the Jews, in remembrance of the Purification of the Temple by Judas Macchabæus, after it had been Prophan'd and Plunder'd by Antiochus. 1 Maccab. 4. and 2. 10. Joan. 10. 22. Joſeph. Hiſt. Jud. l. 12.

ENCRATITÆ, Hereticks of the Second Age, that ſprung from Mercion, Saturninus and Tatianus. They condemn'd Marriage, and forbid their Diſciples the Uſe of Wine and Fleſh. This Hereſie vaniſh'd of it ſelf. Irenæus, l. 1. c. 31. Theod. Hær. Fab. l. 1. Baron. A. C. 179.

ENDYMION, the 12th. King of Elis, in Peloponneſus, expell'd his Kingdom for being vanquiſh'd at the Olympick-Games: Upon which he retir'd into Caria, to the Mountain Latmos; where he apply'd himſelf to the Obſervation of the Stars, but chiefly of the Moon: Which gave the Poets an Occaſion to feign that he was belov'd by the Moon, who came to viſit him every Night, as he lay a-ſleep upon the top of that Hill.

ENGEDI, a City of Paleſtine, in the Tribe of Judah, now in Ruines. The Soil about it was extreamly fertile, and celebrated by Solomon for the Vineyards that enrich'd it. Cantic. 1.

ENGELBERT, an Abbot of the Monaſtery of Aymont, who wrote a Hiſtory of the Beginning and End of the Roman Empire. He lived in the latter end of the thirteen Century. Simler and Voſſius.

ENGERIACUM, St. Jean d' Angeli, a Town of Xantoign, upon the River Vultumna, or La Boutonne; formerly fortified by thoſe of the Reformed Religion, but diſmantl'd by Lewis XIII. two Leagues from the Confines of Poitou.

ENGERN, Lat. Angria, a Town of Germany, in the County of Ravenſperg, in Weſtphalia, about ſeven or eight Leagues from Munſter: where (as they ſay) is to be ſeen the Tomb of Witichind, Duke of the Saxons. Famous in the time of Charlemaigne. Morery.

ENGIA, or Egina, an Iſland of the Archipelago, toward Europe, at the Mouth of a Bay of the ſame Name; to the Eaſt of Sacania, a Province of the Morea. It is about 36 Miles in compaſs: But the Shore is ſo Rocky, that in all the whole Circuit of the Iſland there is no place where a Ship of any burthen can caſt Anchor; ſo that all Veſſels that come near it, are forc'd to ride between Engia and Moni; as the Venetian Fleet was conſtrain'd to doe during the War of Candy. There are in this Iſland ſuch infinite numbers of Red Partridge, that the Inhabitants are conſtrain'd, in the Spring-time, to ſeek out their Neſts and break their Eggs, to prevent their devouring the Seed in the Ground. There are ſtill to be ſeen the Remains of two Temples, famous in Antiquity; the one dedicated to Venus, the other to Jupiter; and among the reſt of the Ruines, 20 Columns of the Dorick Order, with their Architraves, very beautiful for their Symmetry. The City of Engia, the Capital of the Iſland, was formerly a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Athens. Heretofore it was under the Sovereignty of Galeotto Malateſta, Son-in-Law to Antonio, King of Bæotia; then it fell into the hands of the Venetians. Barbaroſſa took it in 1537. But in 1654. Moroſini, the Venetian Proveditor, ſtorm'd and re-took the Fortreſs of Engia, and ruin'd the Fortifications.

ENGLAND, a flouriſhing Kingdom in Great Britain, is the beſt and largeſt part of the whole Iſland: Which being divided into Three principal Parts, England, Scotland and Wales, is that which takes up the South Parts; Scotland lying Northward from it, and Wales Weſtward from the Middle Parts of it. The Rivers Twede and Solway part it from Scotland; and the Dee, from a ſmall part of Wales. In relation to Foreign Countries it is bounded Eaſtward by the German Ocean, which ſeparates it from the Low-Countries, Southward by the Channel which divides it from France; and Weſtward, by the Iriſh Sea, or St. George's Channel, which parts it from Ireland. Thus it contains in Length, from North to South, as from Berwick upon Twede, to Portſmouth in Hampſhire, 320 Miles. And in Breadth, where broadeſt, as from Dover to the Lands-End, which is from Eaſt to Weſt, is 230 Miles. In reference to the Globe, it lies between the 50th and 57th. Deg. of North Latitude, the Longeſt Day, in the moſt Northern Parts, being 17 Hours and better. It took its Name from the Angles, an Ancient People of Jutland, in Denmark, who joyned with their Neighbours, the Saxons, in the Conqueſt of Britain. And this Name was given it by a Special Proclamation of Egbert, the firſt ſole Monarch of England ſince the Heptarchy. In the Reign of the Saxon King, Alfred, about 800 Years ago, England was firſt divided into Shires, or Counties, which are now forty in number viz. 18 Maritime, and 22 Inland, moſt of which take their Name from the reſpective Chief Towns. The Maritime Counties are, Cornwal, Devonſhire, Somerſetſhire, Dorſetſhire, Hampſhire, Suſſex, Kent, Eſſex, Suffolk, Norfolk, Lincolnſhire, Yorkſhire, Durham, Northumberland, Cumberland, Weſtmorland, Lancaſhire, Cheſhire. The Inland Counties are, Nottingham, Derby, Stafford, Shropſhire, Worceſter, Hereford, Monmouth, Gloceſter, Wilts, Berks, Buckingham, Surrey, Middleſex, Hartford, Cambridge, Huntington, Bedford, Oxford, Warwich, Northampton, Rutland, and Leiceſter; of all which Counties, as Yorkſhire is much the biggeſt, ſo is Rutland the leaſt. In point of Situation, Derbyſhire may be look'd upon as the Heart of the Kingdom. Now moſt Counties are ſub-divided into Hundreds; and theſe into Tythings, a Hundred containing ten Tythings, every Tything ten Families; only Durham is divided into Wakes; Nottingham into Wapentakes; Cumberland, Weſtmorland, and Northumberland, into Wards; Yorkſhire into three Ridings; Kent into five Lathes; Suſſex into ſix Rapes; Lincolnſhire into theſe three Parts, Linſey, Keſteven, and Holland. For the Publick Adminiſtration of Juſtice, by Itinerant Judges, England is divided into ſix Circuits, each containing a certain number of Counties, wherein the Judges appointed by the King take a Progreſs twice a Year. The Juſtices of Oyer, and Kings at Arms, make but two Parts of it, viz. North and South; the firſt containing all the Counties on the North-ſide; and the other, all on the South-ſide of the River Trent. For the Church-Government, England, without Wales, is divided into 23 Dioceſes, or Biſhopricks, whereof two are Archbiſhopricks; and each Dioceſs into a certain number of Pariſhes. The two Archbiſhopricks are Canterbury and York: The firſt containing part of Kent, in all 257 Pariſhes and that of York, the better part of Yorkſhire, and all Nottinghamſhire, in all 581 pariſhes. The other Biſhopricks are theſe following, with the Extent of their ſeveral Dioceſes, and Number of Pariſhes; (viz) London, which takes up all Middleſex, all Eſſex, and part of Hartfordſhire, 625 Pariſhes. Durham, all the County of that Name, with part of Northumberland, and part of Yorkſhire, 135 Pariſhes. Wincheſter, all Hampſhire, with the Iſle of Wight, Surrey, and the Iſles of Jerſey and Garnſey, 362 Pariſhes. Ely, all Cambridgeſhire, 141 Pariſhes. Lincoln, the Counties of Lincoln, Leiceſter, Bedford, Bucks, Huntington, and part of Hartford, 1255 Pariſhes. Norwich, all Norfolk and Suffolk, 1181 Pariſhes. Hereford, all Herefordſhire, and part of Shropſhire, 313 Pariſhes. Worceſter, all Worceſterſhire, and part of Warwickſhire, 241 Pariſhes. Bath and Wells, all Somerſetſhire, 388 Pariſhes. Chicheſter, all Suſſex, 250 Pariſhes. Coventry and Litchfield, all Derbyſhire and Staffordſhire, with a good part of Warwickſhire and Shropſhire, 557 Pariſhes. Exeter, all Devonſhire and Cornwal, 604 Pariſhes. Saliſbury, all Barkſhire and Wiltſhire, 544 Pariſhes, Carliſle, all Weſtmorland, and part of Cumberland, 93 Pariſhes. Rocheſter, part of Kent, 98 Pariſhes. Oxford, all Oxfordſhire, 195 Pariſhes. Cheſter all Cheſhire and Lancaſhire, with part of Cumberland and Yorkſhire, 256 Pariſhes. Gloceſter all Gloceſterſhire, 267 Pariſhes. Peterborough, Rutland and Northamptonſhire, 293 Pariſhes. Briſtol, the City of that Name, and all Dorſetſhire, 236 Pariſhes. Man, the Iſle of Man, 17 Pariſhes. Of all which Biſhopricks, there are but five within the Province of York; all the reſt belong to the Province of Canterbury. Theſe are the preſent Sub-diviſions of England, But when the Romans were poſſeſſed of it, they divided it only into Two Parts, (viz.) Britannia Prima, containing the South of England: And Maxima Cæſarienſis, the North, and Wales, was by them all called Britannia Secunda. Their particular Diviſions were not of the Country it ſelf, but of the Inhabitants; as the Atrebatii, who inhabited Barkſhire, Belgæ, Somerſet, Hampſhire, and Wiltſhire. Brigantes, who poſſeſſed moſt part of the North of England. Cantiani, who inhabited Kent, Catieuchlani, Buckingham, Bedford and Hertfordſhire. Coritani, Lincoln, Leiceſter, Rutland, Nottingham, Northampton and Derby. Cornavii, Cheſter, Shropſhire, Worceſter Stafford and Warwickſhire. Danmonii, Cornwal, and Devonſhire. Dobuni, Gloceſter and Oxfordſhire. Durotriges, Dorſetſhire. Iceni, Suffolk, Norfolk, Huntington and Cambridge. Ottadini, Northumberland. Regni, Suſſex and Surry. Trinobantes, Eſſex and Middleſex. In the time of the Anglo-Saxons, England was divided into ſeven Kingdoms. See Heptarchy.

chy. The Country is generally flat and open, not over-grown with wild and unwholſom Foreſts, nor over-topp'd with dreadful high Mountains, as are moſt Countries in Europe: None freer from hurfull and ravenous Beaſts, from venomous Serpents; and noiſom Flyes and Vermin; water'd with the Thames, the Medway, Severn, Ouſe, Trent, Humber, Tees, Tine, and Twede: Of all which in their proper places. The greateſt Inconveniency here, comes from the Nature of the Air, being for the moſt part Groſs, Moiſt, and impregnated with the Saltneſs of the Sea. The Weather very Changeable and Irregular; yet, for the moſt part, Cloudy and Rainy, eſpecially in the Fall and Winter. For Food, no Country is more plentiful, either of Corn or Paſture for Man and Beaſt; and tho' we have abundance of Heaths, yet they afford wherewithal to feed a world of Sheep. For Dainties and Variety, England, is ſtock'd with Fallow-Deer beyond any part of Europe. Hares and Conies, Tame and Wild Fowl, Eatable Roots and Herbs, Fruits of moſt ſorts, it has abundance of: And ſo conſtant are theſe things in England, by reaſon of the clemency of the air, that it has not felt a Famine for ſeveral Ages. The Sea and Rivers, on the other ſide, furniſh us with all manner of Fiſh. 'Tis true, for want of Sun, we have little or no Wine of our own growth; though for ſeveral Years, with ſome care and Induſtry, we have as good Grapes as in moſt Parts of France. For common Drink, we have the beſt Beer and Ale in Europe; ſome whereof is brewed to that Strength, and brought to that Perfection, that both for Strength and fineneſs, 'tis not Inferior to ſome ſorts of Wine. For Cloaths, Engliſh Wool is Famous all over the World, both for its Fineneſs and Goodneſs; of which excellent Broad-Cloths are made, and that in ſuch quantity as to ſupply not only England, but other Countries far and near; eſpecially Germany, Poland, Muſcovy, Turkey and Perſia, to the great Benefit of this Kingdom. For the Advancement of which Manufacture, Fullers-earth is no where elſe found in that abundance and excellency as it is in England. To make Linen, there is alſo a great deal of good and proper Soil for Flax and Hemp. Nor is there any where greater Plenty of excellent Leather for all manner of Uſe. And as England ſwarms with Conies, perhaps beyond all other Countries, their Fur is of great Uſe for the Making of Hats. For Building of Houſes, we want neither Lime nor Brick. Timber, excepting Deal, is plentifull enough, and that Supply'd from Norway. For Shipping, no where better Oak; and for Fewel, we have not only Wood, but great Plenty of Coals. Horſes and Dogs of all ſorts, ſizes and uſes. Flowers of all ſorts. Laurel and Roſemary thrive here to Admiration: And for Phyſical Uſes, we ſcarce want any Simple. England does alſo yield abundance of excellent Saffron, Licoriſh and Honey: With Iron, Lead, Copper, Tin, and Silver Mines. Iron, in Suſſex, and ſeveral other Parts of the Kingdom; Lead, in Derbyſhire chiefly; Copper, in Cumberland; Tin, in Cornwal: And Silver Mines, in Lancaſhire, Durham and Cornwal; but theſe lying too deep, turn to no account. Here are alſo abundance of Baths and Mineral-Waters. To Enlarge a little further upon this Subject, it may not be improper to take notice, That amongſt other Subterranean Riches, England abounds with Mines of Lead more than any part of the known World, the Manufacturing of which hath been improved in this preſent Age, by the Invention of an Engine with Rollers, to draw it into ſheets of the uſual breadth of any thickneſs, and above twice as long as any Plumber can caſt, which being more ſolid, ſmooth, and exactly equal, this Mill'd Lead may be admitted a great deal lighter for the Benefit of Coverings, which makes it Cheaper, and yet much better for covering Churches, Houſes, and all other Purpoſes, that Sheet-lead has been applied to, and the thinner Sorts for many other Uſes, which Caſt-lead was wholly unfit for, particularly that of 3.lib. to the Foot-Square faſtned by ſmall Nails of a mix'd Metal agreeable to the Lead, is by Experience upon many Ships found to be an excellent Invention of ſheathing for the better Preſervation of the Plank and Seams, certain Security againſt the Worm; and for benefit of Sailing, above the beſt Eaſt-India Wood-ſheathing (which is a Foreign Production) and (with regard to its Duration, and the Graving ſaved) above Cent. per Cent. cheaper than the ordinarieſt Streights ſheathing hitherto uſed, as has been manifeſtly proved in ſeveral Papers, publiſhed by Mr. Tho. Hale, the preſent Proprietor (with Mr. Cha. Hale his Son) of the Lead-Mill at Deptford, which was the firſt Engine erected by this Invention; the Sole Exerciſe of which, for a Term of twenty five Years, was granted by an Act of Parliament about thirty Years ago, to Sir Philip Howard, and Sir Francis Watſon, with whom and ſome other Partners, the ſaid Mr. Tho. Hale was originally concerned in the ſaid Invention, and wherein his ſhares were greater than any of the reſt, who at length were all tired out with the continual Diſcouragements, Difficulties and Troubles they encounter'd in the current Exerciſe of their Work, from Objections and Stories rais'd againſt it by its Enemies, whoſe private Profit obliged them to make all the Intereſt they could to obſtruct its Progreſs, wherein they ſucceeded ſo well, that the ſame after twelve Years time, when twenty Ships of the Royal Navy had been ſheathed therewith, was totally diſcontinued there, upon violent Suggeſtions, (after all other Objections anſwered by Experience) that they had diſcovered a venomious corroding Quality in this Lead-ſheathing, that in a very extraordinary manner did eat and decay the Bolts and Rudder Irons, and they having declined the Work, and parted with their Shares to the ſaid Cha. Hale, his ſaid Father, and he, by their indefatigable Pains and Induſtry have ſo convinc'd the World of the Excellency and Uſefulneſs of this Invention for ſheathing of Ships, as well as covering Houſes, &c. that they have ſince ſheathed divers Merchant Men, for the Eaſt and Weſt Indies, and which having returned with their Lead-ſheathings much to the Satisfaction of their Owners, they lately delivered in a Propoſal, at a General Court of the Engliſh Eaſt-India Company for their Countenance and Encoument of this Lead-ſheathing, if upon Examination they ſhould find it deſerved it, which they referred to the Conſideration of their Court of Directors, who upon Enquiry into the thing, and the Objections againſt it, 21 Sept. 99. Ordered, That it be recommended to the Owners of ſuch Ships as ſhould be freighted by that Company to prefer this Lead-ſheathing, and in Teſtimony of their full Approbation thereof, the firſt Ship they had of their own, and which they deſigned to remain long a Coaſter in the Eaſt-Indies, they order'd to be ſheathed with this Lead wholly up from the Keel, as high as any Wood-ſheathing is brought on; ſome others having (by the Ship-wrights impoſing upon them, under pretence, that Boats and Lyters would rub off the Lead) ſheathed above, about one 3d or one 4th part with Boards. The preſent Navy-Board alſo, that they might have a Trial thereof within their own ordering, and obſervation, ſheathed the Germoon Prize with this Lead, about Octob. 98. being bound to the Weſt-Indies, at whoſe return (unleſs they ſhall be otherwiſe ſatisfied ſooner) if they find her ſheathing holds good, as others have done, it is to be hoped they will reſtore the Uſe thereof to the Service of the Navy again. The Plumbers alſo have been as induſtrious as the Ship-wrights, to decry this Lead for covering Houſes, &c. all they could; but finding by the great Diligence and Application of Mr. Hale, it will at laſt obtain, ſome of them now begin to cry it up as much, and have ſet up Engines to mill it themſelves; ſo that it is not to be doubted, but this uſeful Invention will in a little time advance into general and conſtant Practice to the great Benefit of the Publick, as well as of thoſe that ſhall uſe it. As to the Inhabitants, the Engliſh are Originally a Compound Nation of Saxons, Danes and Normans, not without ſome mixture of Britiſh and Romiſh Blood. And as the Countrey is Temperate and Moiſt, ſo they have naturally the Advantage of a clear Complexion. Their Stature is comely, their Countenance graceful; but for Tallneſs and Strength, the Weſtern People exceed all the reſt; the Women generally more handſome than in any other Places: And without doubt, this Happineſs is not only owing to the Clemency of the Air, but in great Meaſure to the Conſtitution of the Government, under which moſt live at Eaſe, free from the Drudgery and Hardſhips of other Nations. Their Temper is alſo naturally ſutable to their Climate, being neither ſo fiery as the French, nor ſo cold as the Northern People; better temper'd for Counſel than the firſt, for Execution than the laſt: A happy Temper beſides for all Sorts of Learning. In point of Valour, no Nation goes beyond them; as their Wars with the French, Spaniards, Scots, Iriſh, Cypriots and Turks, ſhew manifeſtly. In Mechanick and Liberal Arts they have ſhewn a moſt happy Genius; as their Uſeful Inventions and Diſcoveries ſufficiently demonſtrate: ſo ſtudious they are of Experimental Philoſophy, that they have contributed more than any Nation to its Perfection. To expreſs themſelves home, and with the greateſt Emphaſis, they have a moſt happy Language; which is a Compound chiefly of Saxon, French, and Latin. The Religion eſtabliſhed by Law in this Nation, is much the ſame in point of Doctrine with that of the Reformed Churches beyond Sea, but differs from them as to the Church Diſcipline. Before our Saviour's Birth, the Britains, who were probably deſcended from the Gauls, had much the ſame Religion with them. Only they worſhipped ſome particular Gods; and, according to Tacitus, Cæſar, Dion, and Others, they were very much addicted to Magick. The common Tradition is, That Joſeph of Arimathea was the firſt Planter of the Goſpel here: Which Dr. Stillingfleet, Biſhop of Worceſter, in his Antiquity of the Britiſh Churches, diſproves, as an Invention of the Monks of Glaſtenbury, to ſerve their Intereſts, by advancing the Reputation of their Monaſtery. Some will have St. Peter to have been the firſt Founder of a Church in this Iſland; but the learned Doctour makes it highly probable, that it was rather St. Paul, than St. Peter. However, by reaſon of Perſecutions, or for want of a Supply of Preachers, Chriſtianity did not flouriſh here till the Reign of Lucius, the firſt Chriſtian King of Britain, (though this is alſo diſputed,) who about the latter end of the Second Century, ſent Eluanus and Meduinus, two Britiſh Chriſtians, to Eleutherius, the Twelfth Biſhop of Rome, to be further ſatisfied concerning the Chriſtian Religion, which he was then about to embrace. Upon whoſe return, with Miſſionaries from Rome, he and many of his Subjects were Baptized. Thus in a ſhort time Chriſtianity ſpread it ſelf all over his Dominions; and ſome time after over all the Iſland. And then the Britains had Biſhops of their own, without any Juridical Dependency from the See of Rome; the Britiſh Church continuing a diſtinct and independent Church from all others. But when the Heathen Saxons came to be poſſeſſed of this Part of the Iſland, and the Natives were forced to take Shelter in the Mountains of Wales, the Chriſtian Faith fled with them, and this Country was again darkened with Heatheniſm: Till about 596. that St. Auguſtin the Monk was ſent by Pope Gregory the Great, to preach the Goſpel here. Who firſt Converted Ethelbert, King of Kent, and Baptized him, with about 10000 of his Subjects. Whereupon the Goſpel took ſuch Root in England, that all the Saxons were by degrees Converted to the Chriſtian Faith: And St. Auguſtin was made Archbiſhop of Canterbury, but with Subjection to the Papal See. Thus, as the Errours grew in the Roman Church, England was infected with them; and their Church continued ſubject to that of Rome, till King Henry VIII. laid the Ground-work of a Reformation, and renouncing the Supremacy of Rome, by the Counſel and Advice of godly and learned Divines aſſembled in Convocation, by the King's Authority; and ratified by the three States of Parliament, Anno 1534. But the Reformation was further compleated in the Reign of Edward VI. King Henry's Son: Who being ſucceeded by his Siſter Mary, a Queen bigotted to the See of Rome, overthrew the Reformation, and re-eſtabliſhed Popery. But dying without Iſſue, after five Years Reign, ſhe was happily ſucceeded by her Siſter, Queen Elizabeth, who reſtor'd the Reformation. But beſides the Religion by Law eſtabliſh'd in England, there are ſeveral Diſſenters from the Church, ſome one way, ſome another, who all together make a conſiderable Party in the Nation; againſt whom there were many Laws enacted, but now of no force, ſince the Indulgence granted them at the Beginning of this preſent Reign, by Act of Parliament. The moſt conſiderable among theſe Diſſenters, (otherwiſe called Puritans, or Non-Conformiſts,) are the Presbyterians; next the Independents; then the Anabaptiſts, the Fifth Monarchymen: And laſtly, the Quakers: Of all which in their proper places. As for Ranters, Adamites, Familiſts, Antimonians, Sweet-Singers, Muggletonians, and other the like Sects: As they ſuddenly ſprung up like Muſhrooms, ſo they are in a manner dwindled into nothing. The Government of England, is by King, Lords and Commons: And as the Commons cannot paſs any Law without the Lord's Concurrence; ſo neither of them can do it without the Royal Aſſent. But the Executive Power is ſolely lodged in the King, who has his Prerogative, which is the Support of the Crown; as the People their Privileges, which aſſert their Liberty. It is a Monarchy Free and Independent, not holden of any Earthly Potentate, or any ways obliged to do Homage for the ſame; whoſe King owns no Superior upon Earth, neither Pope nor Emperor. The Power of the King of England, though not Abſolute, is Great, and in all Points like a Sovereign's: For he may of himſelf make Treaties and Leagues, Peace and War with Foreign States; and in order to it, ſend and receive Ambaſſadors. For Sea and Land-Service he may both Levy Men and Arms; and Preſs Men, if Occaſion be. He has the Choice and Nomination of all Officers and Commanders; the principal Direction and Command of his Forces; and the Diſpoſal of all Magazines, Ammunition, Caſtles, Ports, Forts, Havens, and Ships of War. The Militia is alſo wholly at his Command: And though he cannot legally raiſe Money upon his Subjects without a Parliament, yet he has the ſole Diſpoſal of Publick Moneys. All Counſellors and Officers of State, Judges, Biſhops, and other High Dignities in the Church, are in his Nomination. 'Tis in the King's Power to Convene, Adjourn, Prorogue and Diſſolve Parliaments; and Encreaſe the number of the Houſe of Peers, by Creating more Barons, or Summoning thither whom he thinks fit by Writ. So he may (if he Pleaſes) Encreaſe the Houſe of Commons, by beſtowing Privileges on any other Town, to ſend Burgeſſes to Parliament. 'Tis the King that appoints the Metal, Weights, Purity and Value of Coin; and by his Proclamation, may make any Foreign Coin to be Lawful Money of England. None but the King has the Sovereign Power in the Adminiſtration of Juſtice; and he alone is Judge in his own Cauſe, though he deliver his Judgment by the Mouth of his Judges. As he is the Fountain of Juſtice, ſo he is of Mercy; for by his Royal Pardon, he may, as it were, raiſe to Life a Malefactor, after Sentence of Death, excepting in the Caſe of Appeals; he is likewiſe the Fountain of Honour; from which flow all Titles of Honour, Great and Small. As the King is the Supreme Head of the State, ſo he is of the Church of England, i. e. of Eccleſiaſticks as well as Laicks. At his Coronation, he is anointed with Oyl; and has the Dalmatica, and other Prieſtly Veſtments put upon him. By him are call'd Provincial and National Synods. All Eſtates fall to the King, that either want Heirs, or are loſt by Forfeiture: And ſo do all Lands of Aliens dying without Iſſue, if they have not the Benefit of Denization or Naturalization: Likewiſe all waſt Ground or Land recover'd from the Sea; all Gold and Silver Mines; all Waifs, Strays and Wrecks; all Treaſure found, the Owner whereof is unknown; all Royal Fiſhes, as Whales, Dolphins, &c. and Royal Fowl, as Swans not mark'd, and ſwimming at liberty, Theſe, and many other peculiar Prerogatives, belong to the Crown, as Marks of Royalty: The Enſigns whereof are the Crown, Scepters, Purple Robe, Golden Globe, and Unction; all which are uſed at the King's Coronation. For the Solemnity whereof, I refer you to the New State of England. Anſwerable to the Royal Power, is the Great Honour and Reſpect which the King receives from his Subjects, beyond any Homage given to the greateſt prince in Chriſtendom: For all People, at their firſt Addreſs, Kneel to him; and he is at all times ſerved upon the Knee. Not only all Perſons ſtand Bare in his Preſence, but even in his Abſence, where he has a Chair of State. On the other ſide, if we conſider the Extent of his Dominions, the Greatneſs of his Power abroad, his Court, and his Revenues, we ſhall find him a King of the firſt Magnitude. His Dominions in Europe extend not only over all Britain, and the adjacent Iſles, comprehending England, Wales and Scotland; but alſo over the Kingdom of Ireland, and the Iſles of Jerſey and Garnſey, with others of leſs Note, on the Coaſt of Normandy. He has a Title to the Kingdom of France, which makes part of the Royal Style, as the Flower-de-Luce does of his Arms; and lays Claim to the Sovereignty of the Britiſh Seas, even to the Shores of all the neighbouring Nations. In acknowledgment whereof, all Foreign Ships did anciently demand Leave to Fiſh, and to paſs in theſe Seas, and to this day lower their Top-ſails to all the King's Ships of War. In Aſia, he has the Iſle of Bombay, near Goa; beſides ſeveral Forts and Conveniences for Traffick in India, China, and the Levant. The ſame he has upon the Coaſt of Africk. But his greateſt Dominions beyond Sea, are in America; where he is poſſeſſed of New-England, Virginia, Mary-Land, New-York, Penſilvania, Carolina, and Hudſon's-Bay: Beſides many noted Iſlands, as New-found-Land, Jamaica, Bermudas, Barbadoes; and among the Leeward Iſlands, Nevis, Antego, Montſerat, Anguilla, &c. And for the King's Power abroad, not only our Neighbours, but the moſt remote Places have ſufficiently felt it; and this, at a time when Scotland and Ireland were uſually at Enmity with him. Such is England's Power at Sea, that the Royal Navy does conſiſt of at leaſt 150 Men of War, divided into ſix Rates, beſides Yatches, Ketches, and other inferiour Ships: For a conſtant Supply whereof we have the beſt Oak in the World, eſpecially the Knee-Timber; and for Manning of them, a vaſt Number of able and ſtout Sea-men. To bear the Charge, the Nation is Rich, and the People willing enough to open their Purſes, whenever their Safety or Glory lies at ſtake. Anſwerable to the King's Greatneſs and Power, is his Court; which for State, Grandeur, and Good Order, is one of the Chief of Europe. 'Tis, in a manner, a Monarchy within a Monarchy; conſiſting of Civil, Military and Eccleſiaſtical Perſons, each under their proper Government. The Civil Government is chiefly under theſe four Principal Officers, viz. the Lord Steward, the Lord Chamberlain, the Groom of the Stole, and Maſter of the Horſe; under whom are moſt of the King's Domeſtick Servants. And to regulate all Matters relating to the Government, and Expences of the King's Houſhold, here is a Court kept, call'd the Green-Cloth. For the Guard of the King's Perſon; there is, within doors, a Band of Gentlemen-Penſioners, 40 in number, and 100 Yeomen of the Guard, under their ſeveral Officers. Without doors, four Troops of Horſe, conſiſting each of 200; beſides a Company of 60 Horſe-Granadiers to each Troop: Alſo a Regiment of Horſe, commonly called the Oxford-Regiment, conſiſting of 9 Troops, and each of 50 Men. Of Foot-Guards there are at this time 3 Regiments. For the King's Publick Devotion, there is a Royal Chapel, under a Dean, who owns no Superiour but the K. Under the Dean, is a Sub-dean, 12 Prieſts, 20 Gentlemen (or Clerks of the Chappel, and 12 Children in Ordinary, who make up the Muſical Choir. Beſides 48 Chaplains in Ordinary, for the Preaching Part. And, to attend the Chapel, there are 4 Virgers; the firſt called a Serjeant: the next two, Yeomen; and the laſt, Groom of the Chapel. The King has alſo a Lord-Almoner, for the Diſtribution of his Alms to the Poor; and a Clerk of the Cloſet, to wait on His Majeſty in his Cloſet, or Private Oratory. The Queen beſides has her own Court, conſiſting of ſeveral Officers and Ladies, with inferiour Servants of both Sexes. Now to ſupport the Grandeur of the Court, and the other Charges of the Crown, the Kings of England have always had competent Revenues; but rais'd chiefly from Domains, or Lands belonging to the Crown, Cuſtoms and Exciſe; beſides other Profits ariſing to the Crown by the Poſt-Office, Tenths and Firſt-fruits, Reliefs, Fines, Amerciaments and Confiſcations. So that in the late Reign, the King's Revenue did amount to about Two Millions a Year. The Eldeſt

Son of England, bears the Title of Prince of Wales, ever ſince King Edward the Firſt's Eldeſt Son: And he is ſo only by Creation; whereas by Birth he is Earl of Cheſter and Flint, and Duke of Cornwal; as he is, in reſpect to Scotland, Duke of Rothſay, and Seneſchal of that Kingdom. The Tounger Sons depend altogether upon the King's Favour, both for Titles of Honour and Revenues; only they are by Birth-right, as the Prince of Wales, Counſellors of State. All Subjects ought to be uncovered in the Preſence of the King's Children; and to Kneel when they are admitted to Kiſs their Hands. At Table their Royal Highneſſes are always ſerved upon the Knee, except in the King's Preſence. Next to the Royal Family, are the Great Officers of the Crown; viz. The Lords High-Steward, Admiral, Conſtable, Chancellor and Treaſurer; Preſident of the Council, Privy Seal, Great-Chamberlain and Earl-Marſhal: among which, the Office of Great Chamberlain of England, and that of Earl-Marſhal, is only Hereditary. Thoſe of High-Steward, and High-Conſtable, being Offices of too great a Truſt to be continued, are only ſet up at the King's Coronation; except upon the Trial of a Peer, or Peers, for any Capital Crime, when the King makes a High-Steward for that Time, who bears a White-Staff in his Hand, which he openly breaks when the Buſineſs is over, and ſo ends his Office. The Offices of High-Admiral, Chancellor, Treaſurer, and Privy-Seal, are ſometimes managed by ſeveral Lords-Commiſſioners. The Nobility of England is divided into Five Degrees; (viz.) Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls, Viſcounts and Barons: Who are all Peers, bear the Title of Lords, and have at all times enjoy'd many great Privileges. There are at this time thirteen Dukes, three Marqueſſes, ſeventy Earls, ten Viſcounts, and Sixty ſix Barons; all which (together with the Spiritual Lords) make up the Houſe of Peers in Parliament. All Dukes, Marqueſſes, and Earls have their reſpective Titles from ſome Shire or Part of a Shire, Town or City, Caſtle, Park, or Village; except the Earl-Marſhal, which is an Officiary Title; and the Earl Rivers, ſo call'd by the Name of his Family. Barons are ſo denominated for the moſt part, either from their Chief Seat, or a Caſtle belong to the Family. 'Tis obſervable, That the Lords Chancellor, Treaſurer, Preſident of the Council, and Privy-Seal, precede, by Virtue of their Office, all Dukes that are not Princes of the Blood. But the Lord Great-Chamberlain of England, the Lord Marſhal, and the Lords Steward and Chamberlain of the King's Houſhold, ſit only above all of their Degree. By the Courteſie of England, all the Sons of Dukes and Marqueſſes are called Lords; and their Daughters, Ladies: The Eldeſt Son of a Duke being call'd Lord Marqueſs, and that of a Marqueſs, Lord of ſome Place: But their Younger Sons are only called by their Chriſtian Names, with the Title of Lord prefix'd, as Lord William, Lord Thomas. Of an Earl, none but the Eldeſt Son is called Lord, though all the Daughters be Ladies. And as for the Iſſue of Viſcounts and Barons, none of their Sons is called Lord, nor their Daughters Lady. In point of Precedency, the Dukes and Marqueſſes go firſt; and then the Dukes Eldeſt Sons: Next the Earls: Then the Marqueſſes Eldeſt Sons, and the Dukes Younger Sons. Next to theſe, the Viſcounts: Then the Earls Eldeſt Sons, and the Marqueſſes Younger Sons. Laſtly, the Barons, the Viſcounts Eldeſt Sons, and the Earls Younger Sons: Then the Barons Eldeſt Sons, and the Younger Sons of Viſcounts and Barons. Next to the Nobility, which is look'd upon as the Flower of this Kingdom, we have the Gentry; which keeps a middle Rank betwixt the Nobles and the Common People; though the Law allows of no ſuch Diſtinction, and reckons all Commoners, that are under the Degree (or Dignity) of Baron. Now our Gentry conſiſts of Three Degrees, Knights, Eſquires, and Gentlemen. Beſides the Knights of the Garter, an Honour only conferred on ſuch as are of the Prime Nobility, we have now but Three ſorts of Knights, viz. Baronets, Knights of the Bath, and Knights Batchelors: The firſt Hereditary, and the two others perſonal only. Of the firſt ſort, there are reckoned about 700. Of the ſecond, but a few. And of the third, above 1000. We call Eſquires, the Younger Sons of Noblemen who bear not the Title of Lord; the Eldeſt Sons of theſe, Knights Eldeſt Sons, and their Elder Sons for ever. There are alſo Eſquires of the King's Body; and another ſort of Eſquires ſo created by the King, by putting about their Necks a Collar of S'S, and beſtowing on them a Pair of Silver Spurs. But this Title is aſſum'd beſides by ſeveral Perſons who claim a Right to it by their Offices. And ſo it is with Gentlemen: For whereas Gentlemen are properly ſuch as be deſcended of a good Family, bearing a Coat of Arms without any particular Title, this Quality is attributed to any one that looks (or lives) like a Gentleman, and does not make Profeſſion of any Mechanick Trade; to the King's Servants, and thoſe that hold the chief Rank in Noblemens Families; to Scholars, &c. Nay, ſuch is the Latitude of this Appellation, that every Noble-man, and the King himſelf, may be call'd a Gentleman. Next to the Gentry, are all Men that get their Living after a Mechanick Way; as Teomen, Merchants, Artificers, Tradeſmen, Mariners, &c. Among which, Teomen, whether they be Freeholders or Copy-holders, are beſt look'd upon by the Law, as Men leſs ſubject to Corruption and Cheat than thoſe who live by Trade. But ſince Trade began to flouriſh, to the Enriching the Nation, and making the poor People eaſie, Merchants and eminent Tradeſmen are generally look'd upon as good as Gentlemen: inſomuch that many Gentlemen born, and ſome of them Younger Sons of Noblemen, take upon them the Profeſſion of Merchandizing, without any Prejudice or Blemiſh to their Birth; and it is frequent now, to ſee Gentlemens and Merchants Sons and Daughters Intermarry. And whereas, in moſt Foreign Countries, the Common People are generally oppreſſed, not only by their Princes, but by the Nobility; here the Law is ſo favourable to them in general, that they enjoy all the Sweets of Liberty which a Nation can be capable of under a moſt eaſie Government. As the Laity is divided into ſeveral Ranks or Degrees, ſo is the Clergy divided into Biſhops, Dignitaries, and Inferior Clergy. We have in England and Wales 26 Biſhops, who with the Temporal Lords make up the Houſe of Peers in Parliament. Beſides the Biſhop of Man, who is no Peer. Among thoſe Biſhops, there are two Archbiſhops; the one of Canterbury the other of Tork; who have a Super-intendency over all the Church of England; and in ſome meaſure, over the other Biſhops. Each of them is called Primate of England, and Metropolitan of his Province; but ſo, that the firſt has ſome kind of Super-eminency over the other, and has Power to ſummon him to a National Synod. Next to the two Archbiſhops, are the Biſhops of London, Durham, and Wincheſter; the Order of the reſt being by no other Rule, than the Priority of their Conſecration. The Biſhop of Durham is a Count Palatine, and Earl of Sadberg; as the Biſhop of Wincheſter was anciently Earl of Southampton. The Archbiſhop of Canterbury is the Firſt Peer of the Realm, and counted next to the Royal Family. Both He and the Archbiſhop of Tork are honoured, as Dukes, with the Title of His Grace. And whereas the Inferiour Biſhops are ſtiled Right Reverend, the Archbiſhops are ſtiled Moſt Reverend. Great are the Privileges which all the Biſhops enjoy, but principally the two Archbiſhops, not only as Peers of the Realm, but alſo in their Spiritual Capacity. The Dignified Clergy are either Deans, Archdeacons, or Prebendaries; holding a middle Station between the Epiſcopal Order and the Inferior Clergy. In every Cathedral and Collegiate-Church there is a Dean; ſo that there are 26 Deans; beſides ſeveral Honorary Deans, and thoſe called Rural Deans. The Archdeacons are 60 in all, each Dioceſs having in it one or more Archdeaconries, for Diſpatch of Church-Affairs. By the Inferior Clergy, I mean Pariſh-Prieſts and Deacons. The firſt, vulgarly called Parſons, are either Rectors, or Vicars, in all 9655. Theſe properly Officiate in thoſe Livings which are call'd Impropriations, of which there are 3845. For above a Third part of the beſt Benefices in England, being anciently by the Pope's Grant appropriated to Monaſteries, towards their Maintenance, were, upon the Diſſolution of the Monaſteries in the Reign of King Henry VIII. made Lay-Fees, and ever ſince have belonged to Lay-men; who Provide thoſe Benefices with ſuch as we call Vicars, as filling up the Place of Rectors. And whereas Plurality of Livings is allow'd of in the Church of England, this makes room for ſuch as we call Curates, who Officiate for them in thoſe Churches where they don't keep their Reſidence. In relation to Women, Children, and Servants, the Law of England differs ſo much from other Nations, that it won't be improper to take notice of it in a few words. As to Women, ſo great is by Law their Subjection to Husbands, that a married Woman can call nothing her own; no, not ſo much as her Apparel; her Husband, upon Marriage, becoming the Proprietor of all ſhe was poſſeſſed of. Nor does ſhe loſe only the Power over her Perſon, Will, and Goods; but ſhe parts with her very Name, and ever after uſes her Husband's Sirname; contrary to the Cuſtom of ſome other Countries. The Wife can make no Contract without her Husband's Conſent; nor Set, Sell, Give away, or Alienate any Thing. 'Tis Petty-Treaſon for a Wife to Kill her Husband, as it is for one that Kills his Father, or his Maſter; and her Sentence is, To be Burnt Alive. All Women, of what Extraction ſoever, are counted Noble that are Married to Noblemen; according to the Rule, Uxor fulget Radiis Mariti. If the Husband be a Duke, his Wife is a Dutcheſs; if a Marqueſs, ſhe is a Marchioneſs: and ſo of other Degrees of Honour, with all their other Titles. But a Noble Woman Marrying to an Ignoble Man, adds no Honour to him, though by Marriage he becomes Maſter of all her Goods and Chattels. In theſe Caſes, indeed, the Law may ſeem too ſevere; but in others, 'tis as favourable. For if a Woman Marry to a Man, though with Child by another Man, her Husband muſt own the Child, and that Child ſhall be his Heir at Law; by the Rule, Pater eſt quem Nuptiæ demonſtrant. And if a Married Woman bring forth a Child in her Husband's Abſence, though for ſome Years, he muſt Father the Child, in caſe he liv'd inter quatuor Maria. Nor can a Wife guilty of Adultery, by the ſtrongeſt Preſumptions imaginable, be Divorced from her Husband by any Poſitive Law, otherwiſe than à Menſa & Thoro; which is nothing elſe but a Living aſunder, without a Liberty to Re-marry, whilſt either Party is alive. The Wife having no Joynture ſetled before Marriage, may challenge, after her Husband's Death, the Third part of his yearly Rents of Land, during her Life; and within the City of London, a Third part of all her Husband's Moveables for ever. If a Man's Wife wrongs another by her Tongue or Treſpaſs, the Husband muſt Anſwer for her Fault, and make Satisfaction; as a Father does for a Wrong done by his Child. And when a Man and his Wife commit a Felony together, the Law ſuppoſes, from the Subjection and Obedience ſhe owes to her Husband, that ſhe was forced thereunto; and therefore in many Caſes, ſhe is neither charged as Principal, nor as Acceſſory. A Knight's Wife Is counted and called a Lady, by the Courteſie of England. And if ſhe take, after her Husband's Death, another of a Lower Degree; by the ſame Courteſie ſhe ſhall be called Lady, with the Sirname of her Firſt Husband, and not of the Second. The ſame it is with Women Noble by Marriage, who Marry afterwards to Commoners. But thoſe who are Noble by Birth, or Creation, retain their Nobility by Law, not by Courteſie, though they Marry afterwards to Husbands of a Lower Degree than themſelves. I come now to Children and Servants. As to the firſt, where there is an Eſtate of Inheritance, the Eldeſt Son does commonly Inherit the Real; and the Younger Children, the Perſonal Eſtate; that is, Goods and Chattels. The Reaſon why the Eldeſt Son is ſo well provided beyond the reſt of the Children, is, That he may be the better able to bear up the Honour of the Family, which in courſe falls to the Share of the Eldeſt. But if there be no Son, the Lands, as well as Goods, are equally divided among the Daughters. The Condition of Servants is much better in England, than perhaps any where elſe: for here they generally live with more Eaſe, and leſs Subjection, and have larger Wages. Printices, indeed, who are commonly tied here to a ſervile Condition for Seven Year together, have the worſt Time of it, under ſo long a Confinement. But they have the Comfort, in the mean time, to look upon it as a great ſtep to a Liveſihood. 'Tis true, the Law does allow a Maſter and Miſtreſs a Power to Correct their Servants when they prove Refractary. And if a Servant offers to Reſiſt, he incurrs thereby a ſevere Penalty; but if he Kill his Maſter or Miſtreſs, 'tis Petty-Treaſon by Law. I now draw near to a Concluſion, with a ſhort Account of our Courts of Judicature. Amongſt which, the High Court of Parliament, being the Great Council of the Nation, and one of the moſt Auguſt Aſſemblies in the World, deſerves the Precedency. The ſame conſiſts of the Three Eſtates of the Realm, and is divided into two Houſes; the one called the Houſe of Lords, Houſe of Peers, or the Upper-Houſe, and the other, the Houſe of Commons, or the Lower-Houſe. The Firſt is made up of the Spiritual and Temporal Lords of the Realm, now 188. in all. This Houſe is the Supreme Court of Judicature in the Land, and from it there lies no Appeal. The Houſe of Commons conſiſts of 513 Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes, choſen by the People of England and Wales, by virtue of the King's Writs, from every County, City, and Borough Privileged to ſend Members to Parliament. This Houſe repreſenting the whole Commons of the Realm, do's generally conſiſt of the Flower of the Gentry; ſome of them Noblemens Sons, Privy-Councellors, Courtiers, Men Learned in the Law, Officers and Commanders, Merchants, &c. and moſt of them Gentlemen of good Eſtates, with the Advantage of a liberal and genteel Education. By theſe two Houſes, with the King's Aſſent, old Laws are Repealed, new Laws Enacted, Grievances redreſſed, and Subſidies granted to the King, as in their Wiſdom they think fit. In each Houſe a Speaker is choſen, in the nature of a Preſident, before whom the Mace is carried when he goes in or out, and laid down before him while he ſits in the Houſe. In the Houſe of Lords, this Place is commonly filled by the Lord Chancellor, or Keeper of the Great Seal, unleſs the Seal be managed by Commiſſioners. In the Houſe of Commons, the Speaker choſen by the Houſe, aud confirmed by the King, is commonly a Perſon learned in the Law, and well verſed in the Rules of the Houſe, the Method of their Debates, and their Ancient Privileges. For the quicker Diſpatch of Buſineſſes, each Houſe chuſe their Committees, by whom the Matter referred to them is digeſted, and the Reſult thereof reported by their Chairman to the Houſe; to which the Houſe, after ſome Debates, do's agree either in the Whole, or in Part. If not, the Matter is commonly Re-committed. When a Bill is paſſed in either of the Houſes, the ſame is ſent to the other for their Concurrence; and, when both Houſes are agreed upon it, it lies in the King's Breaſt to make it a Law by his Royal Aſſent. As for their other Proceedings, the Method of their Debates, and their reſpective Privileges, they are ſet down at large in the New State of England. When the Parliament is Adjourned, all Things debated in both Houſes remain in Statu quo, and at the next Meeting (unleſs the ſame be after their late Sitting Prorogued, or Diſſolved) may be brought to an Iſſue. But, when it is Prorogued, all Bills paſſed in either Houſe without the Royal Aſſent, muſt at the next Aſſembly begin anew, before they can be brought to Perfection. When Diſſolved, there's no Parliament, till the King ſends out Writs for a new Houſe of Commons to be choſen by the People, to Sit at the Place and on the Day appointed by the Writs; and then the Peers are alſo Summoned by Writs to meet at the ſame time and Place. But the People are free to chuſe, if they think fit, the ſame Members that ſerved before. By Law, the Parliament ought to Sit at leaſt once in three Years. And their Place of Meeting is, in whatſoever City, Town, or Houſe the King pleaſes; but of later Times it has been uſually at the Kings Palace at Weſtminſter. Next to the Court of Parliament, is the King's Privy Council. A Court of great Honour and Antiquity, conſiſting of Noblemen and others of ſeveral Capacities, that nothing may be wanting for good Counſel and Advice in a Court from whence in a great meaſure depends the Safety, Honour, and Welfare of the King and Kingdom. The Choice and Number of them is at the King's Pleaſure; but at preſent they are 38. Amongſt which are of courſe the Archbiſhop of Canterbury; and the Biſhop of London, for Church-Affairs; and the two Principal Secretaries of State for State-Affairs. Their Meeting-place is at Court in the Council-Chamber, and the uſual Days for their Sitting Wedneſdays and Fridays, in the Morning out of Parliament or Term-time, and in the Afternoon in Parliament or Term-time. But, upon extraordinary Occaſion, the King calls them together at any time, and they are all joyntly called, The Lords of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council, though ſome of them be but Knights, Eſquires, or Gentlemen. And theſe, as Privy-Counſellors, have the Precedency of all Knights Baronets; as a Secretary of State, if he be a Baron, takes place of all other Barons. The Courts of Juſtice are principally Four; viz. The Chancery, King's-Bench, Common-Pleas, and Exchequer, Which are held at Weſtminſter Four ſeveral Times of the Year, called Eaſter, Trinity, Michaelmas, and Hilary-Term. Eaſter-Term begins always the 17th Day after Eaſter, and laſteth 27 Days. Trinity (or Midſummer) Term begins the 5th. Day after Trinity-Sunday, and laſteth 20 Days. Michaelmas-Term begins the 23d. of October, and laſteth 37 Days. And Hilary-Term begins Jan. 23d. and laſteth 21 Days. The firſt of theſe Courts is called the Chancery, or the Court of Equity; becauſe in this Court the Rigour of the Law is tempered with Equity. The uſual Judge of this Court is the Lord-Chancellor, Keeper, or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal. Next to whom there are 12 Aſſiſtants, called Maſters of Chancery, who are all Civilians, the chief of them Maſter of the Rolls. A Place of great Power, Honour, and Profit, upon which depend ſeveral great Offices, particularly, that of the Six Clerks. The King's Bench is ſo called, becauſe the Kings of England, formerly uſed to ſit in this Court; and that on a high Bench, with the Judges at his feet on a lower Bench. In this Court are handled all Pleas of the Crown, as Treaſons, Miſpriſion of Treaſon, Miſdemeanours, &c. It alſo takes Cognizance of, and is impowered to Correct all Errors in Judgments given by all Inferiour Courts, that of the Exchequer excepted. Its Juriſdiction extends all over the Realm; and it is more Uncontrolable than any other Court, becauſe the Law preſumes the King to be there in Perſon. In this Court ſit commonly four grave Reverend Judges; the principal whereof is called, The Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench. The Court of Common-Pleas, is ſo called, becauſe the uſual Pleas between Subject and Subject are here debated and determined according to the ſtrictneſs of the Law. Here are alſo commonly four Judges; the Chief whereof is called, Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas. And none are admitted to Plead in this Court but Serjeants at Law, out of whoſe Number the King chuſes the Judges. The Court of Exchequer is principally about the King's Revenue, and takes Cognizance of all Cauſes relating thereto. This alſo has four Judges; called, Barons of the Exchequer; the principal whereof is ſtiled Lord Chief Baron. 'Tis true, the Lord Treaſurer and the Chancellour of the Exchequer may ſit here as Principal; but they ſeldom do it. As to the ſeveral Offices belonging to the foreſaid Courts, I refer you to the New State of England. Where you will find likewiſe a particular Account of the Aſſizes, kept twice a Year over all the Kingdom by the foreſaid Twelve Judges; viz. preſently after the End of Hilary and Trinity Terms; the firſt being called the Lent, and the laſt the Summer Aſſizes. For the Civil Government of Counties, we have divers Officers, to whom belong ſeveral Courts for the due Adminiſtration of Juſtice. Firſt, In every County there's a Sheriff, whoſe Office is both Miniſterial and Judicial, the Power whereof extends all over the County, except ſuch Cities and Towns as are Counties of themſelves, or have the Privilege of Counties. But in Middleſex there are two of theſe Officers, upon the account of London. The Miniſterial part of the Sheriff's Office is to execute the King's Mandates, and all Writs directed to him out of the King's Courts, to Impannel Juries, to bring Cauſes and Criminals to Trial, and to ſee the Sentences executed. He is likewiſe to collect all publick Profits; as Taxes, Fines, Diſtreſſes, and Amerciaments, into the King's Exchequer, or whereever the King ſhall appoint; and to make ſuch Payments out of it, as he ſhall have due Order for. As a Judge, he holds two ſeveral Courts; one called the County-Court, and the other the Sheriffs-Turn; the firſt for Civil, and the laſt for Criminal Cauſes. Another ſort of Magiſtrates we have, commonly called Juſtices of the Peace; whoſe Office is to commit upon due Examination, all Diſturbers of the Peace, and other Delinquents, that are brought before them by Conſtables. The Number of theſe is ſuch as the King thinks fit. Every three Months the Juſtices of each County meet in the chief Town, which is called the Quarter-Seſſions. Againſt which time there's a Grand Jury of 24 Men choſen by the Sheriff out of the whole County, to conſider upon Oath of all Bills of Indictment that ſhall be preferred to the Court, as againſt Rioters, and Perſons diſaffected to the Government. There are alſo in every County commonly four Officers called Coroners; whoſe Office is upon any Murder to take a View of the Body, to Inquire by a Jury of Neighbours, how, and by whom any Perſon came to a Violent Death, to enter the ſame upon Record, and deliver his Inquiſition at the next Gaol-Delivery, or to certifie the ſame into the King's-Bench. Every County has alſo an Officer, called Clerk of the Market; who is to keep a Standard of all Weights and Meaſures, according to the King's Standard kept in the Exchequer, and to ſee that none others be uſed in the County. He is to Seal all Weights and Meaſures, when he is ſatisfied that they are exactly according to his Standard, and to burn ſuch as are otherwiſe. This Officer likewiſe has a Court. For the particular Government of Cities, Towns, &c. we have Mayors and Bailiffs, choſen by the Citizens and Burgeſſes, according to their Charters or Privileges granted by ſeveral Kings. The Mayor is the King's Lieutenant, and keeps a Court with his Brethren the Aldermen, out of whoſe Body he is choſen to ſerve only a Twelve-month in that Station. With theſe, and the Common-Council of the City, he can make By-Laws, for the better Government thereof, provided they be not repugnant to the Known Laws of the Realm. But the Sheriffs have alſo a good ſhare in the Government of Cities; as being the proper Judges of Civil Cauſes within the ſame, and the principal Officers appointed to ſee all Executions done, whether Penal or Capital. Amongſt all the Mayors in England, there are but two called by the Title of Lord; viz. The Lord Mayor of London, and he of York. And 'tis to be obſerved, That what we now call a Mayor is the ſame as were the Bailiffs of old; which Name is ſtill uſed in ſome Places, as Ipſwich, Yarmouth, Colcheſter, &c. and their Authority the ſame with the Mayors in other Places. In every Mannor there is alſo a Court-Baron, ſo called, becauſe of old every Lord of a Mannor was ſtiled Baron. This Court is held at the pleaſure of the Lord of the Mannor, by a Steward imploy'd for that purpoſe; and the Deſign of it is to keep the Tenants belonging to the Mannor, within the Bounds of Juſtice and Equity to the Lord, and among themſelves. Beſides this Court incident to all Mannors, there are ſome ſpecial Mannors that have the Privilege of holding a Court-Leet; which is a Court of Record, and counted the King's Court, becauſe its Authority is originally derived from the Crown. This is kept twice a Year, and that at certain Times. For Regulating all Matters relating to the Arms of Noblemen, Knights, Eſquires, or Gentlemen, and deciding any Difference about it, we have a Court-Marſhal, formerly belonging to the Lord High-Conſtable, and now to the Earl-Marſhal. For the Relief of poor People, whoſe Debt do's not amount to 40 Shillings, there are Courts of Conſcience ſet up by Acts of Parliament in many Parts of the Kingdom. The Deſign whereof is to make the Payment of any poor Man's Debt as eaſie to him as his Condition requires. And to diſpatch all Differences ariſing in Fairs, and redreſs all Diſorders committed in the ſame; there is a Court called Pie-Powder-Court, held De hora in horam. So that Juſtice ought to be here ſummarily adminiſtred, within the compaſs of three Tides. As to the Puniſhment of Criminals, Hanging is the uſual manner of putting to Death, either for High-Treaſon, Petty-Treaſon, or Felony. But with different Circumſtances, the barbarous Uſe of the Racks, apt to extort Confeſſion right or wrong, is a Thing which our Law do's not allow of. Nothing but the Priſoner's unforced Confeſſion, or the Depoſitions of Witneſſes upon Oath made out with good Circumſtances, will take a Man's Life away. Nor is a Man's Life left to the Mercy of a ſingle Judge, all Malefactors in England being tried by their proper Peers, a Jury of 12 Men at leaſt, Sworn to diſcharge their Conſciences, upon a full hearing of the Evidences againſt the Priſoner, and the Judges Inſtruction to them, as to Matter of Law relating to the Fact. On the other ſide, the Breaking on the Wheel, and other like torturing Deaths, are look'd upon here as unfit for Chriſtians to uſe. Neither are the Criminals, who with their Lives have expiated their Crimes before the World, denied Chriſtian Burial; except in particular Caſes. 'Tis true, a Traitor's Puniſhment may ſeem to Foreigners a little too Cruel, if ſtrictly uſed (as it is but ſeldom) according to the Sentence. Which is, That he ſhall be drawn upon a Hurdle (or Sledge) to the Gallows, and there Hanged by the Neck; then to be cut down Alive, his Entrails pull'd out of his Belly and Burnt before his Face, his Head cut off, and his Body divided into four Parts, and both the Head and Quarters hung up or impaled where the King ſhall command. But moſt times, in ſuch Caſes, the Criminal is not cut down Alive. And, if he be a Perſon of Quality, inſtead of being Hanged, he is by the King's Favour Beheaded. Falſifying and Clipping of Money is High-Treaſon by Law. Yet the Offender's Puniſhment is only to be Drawn, and Hanged till he be Dead. The ſame it is with one Guilty of Petty-Treaſon; as when a Servant Kills his Maſter or Miſtreſs, a Wife her Husband, or a Clergyman his Prelate. For Murder, Theft, or Robbery, (which the Law calls Felony) Hanging is all the Puniſhment uſed, ſince the Reign of Henry I. But, when the Robbery is attended with Murder, the Criminal after he is Hanged and Dead, is taken down to be Hanged in Chains; and ſo to Hang in Terrorem, till the Body be quite rotted off, or eaten up by the Birds of the Air. Burning alive, is uſed only for Witches, and Women convicted of High-Treaſon, or Petty-Treaſon. But we have a particular Puniſhment for ſuch as ſtand Mute, or refuſe to put themſelves upon the ordinary Trial of God and the Country, by anſwering to the Queſtion put to 'em after the Indictment, whether Guilty, or Not Guilty? For which Contumacy, the Offender is ſent back to the Priſon from whence he came, there to be laid in ſome low dark Room, all Naked but his Privy Members, his Back upon the bare Ground, his Arms and Legs ſtretched with Cords faſtened to the ſeveral Quarters of the Room. Then is laid upon his Body Iron and Stone, more than he can poſſibly bear long. The next Day he ſhall have three Morſels of Barley-bread without Drink; and the Day after, he ſhall have for Drink as much of the next Water to the Priſon as he can drink three ſeveral times, (excepting it be Running-Water) and that without any Bread. Which is to be his Diet till he Die. And this is call'd Preſſing to Death, by the Law Peine forte & dure; whereby a Malefactor ſaves his Eſtate to his Children, and keeps his Blood Untainted. But it does not reach to Caſes of High-Treaſon. For, though the Traitor ſtand Mute, yet Judgment ſhall be given againſt him as if he had been Convicted, and his Eſtate ſhall be Confiſcated. The Puniſhments that don't reach to Death are Whipping for Petty Larceny, or ſmall Theft. The Pillory, for Cheating, Libelling, Perjury, and Blaſphemy. The Stocks for Vagabonds, and ſuch as can give no good Account of themſelves. The Cucking-Stool for Scolding Women. Fines, Forfeitures, and Continuance of Impriſonment, in ſome particular Caſes. Inſtead of Hanging Tranſportation of late has been a frequent Puniſhment, whereby the Priſoner is confined to a ſlaviſh Life for ſome Years in the Weſt-Indies. Formerly a Clergyman arraigned of Felony by a Secular Judge, might Pray his Clergy, that is, to be delivered to his Ordinary, to purge himſelf of the Offence objected. But Lay-men ſince have been made capable of this Benefit in many Caſes; as in the Caſe of Man-ſlaughter, Theft of Oxen, Sheep, Money, and other Things, not forcibly taken to the Terrour of the Owner. So, that for the firſt Fault, the Felon ſhall be admitted to his Clergy; and, if he can but read a Verſe of a Pſalter in old Engliſh Letter, he is only Burnt in the Hand in the preſence of the Judges, with a hot Iron Marked with the Letter T for a Thief, or M. Man-ſlayer. I come now to the Eccleſiaſtical Courts. And the firſt that offers it ſelf is the Convocation, or General Aſſembly of the Clergy. Which meets at the ſame time in two ſeveral Places; viz. The Clergy belonging to the Province of Canterbury in Henry the Seventh's Chappel at Weſtminſter, and the Clergy under the Province of York, in the City of that Name, and both in time of Parliament. In each Province the Convocation is, like the Parliament, divided into two Houſes, the Higher and the Lower. The Higher Houſe in the Province of Canterbury (by much the larger of the two) conſiſts of 22 Biſhops, whereof the Archbiſhop is Preſident: And the Lower Houſe, of all the Deacons, Arch-Deans, one Proctor for every Chapter, and two for all the Clergy of each Dioceſs, in all 166. Each Houſe chuſes a Prolocutor. Then they fall to their Debates, concerning Church and Religious Matters, ſuch as are expreſſed in the King's Commiſſion; being firſt propoſed in the Upper, and then communicated to the Lower Houſe. Thus, by conſtant Correſpondence, between the two Provinces, they debate and conclude of the ſame Matters. The Rule which the Church of England go's by, are firſt the Canons made by the General Councils; and then ſuch wholſom Decrees and Conſtitutions as have been made in the Time of Popery, not repugnant to the Laws of the Land, or the King's Prerogative; alſo, the Canons made in Convocations of later Times, as in the Firſt Year of the Reign of K. James I. which were confirmed by his Authority; and Laſtly, Some Statutes of Parliament touching Church-Affairs, beſides divers Immemorial Cuſtoms. But, where all theſe fail, the Civil Law takes place. Now, to proceed from the Church Legiſlative to the Executive Power, we have ſeveral Courts appointed for this purpoſe; as the Court of Arches, the Court of Audience, the Prerogative-Court, the Court of Deligates, the Court of Peculiars, &c. To the Court of Arches are all Appeals in Church-Matters directed that belong to the Province of Canterbury. The Judge whereof is called Dean of the Arches, or the Official of the Court of Arches. To whoſe Officialty is joyned a peculiar Juriſdiction of 13 Pariſhes in London, termed a Deanry, being exempt from the Biſhop of London's Juriſdiction, and belonging to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury. This Judge ſits alone without Aſſeſſors, hearing and determining all Cauſes without any Jury. The Audience Court is of equal Authority with that of the Arches, but inferiour in Antiquity. The Judge of this Court is called by the Name of Auditor. In the Prerogative-Court are all Wills proved, and Adminiſtrations taken, that belong to the Archbiſhop by his Prerogative. And, if any Contention ariſe touching ſuch Will or Adminiſtration, the Cauſe is debated and decided in this Court by the proper Judge thereof. The Court of Delegates conſiſts of Commiſſioners appointed by the King to ſit upon an Appeal to Him in the Court of Chancery, which is granted in ſome particular Caſes. The Court of Peculiars, is about certain Pariſhes that have Juriſdiction within themſelves for Probate of Wills, &c. and are exempt from the Biſhop's Courts. For, beſides the foreſaid Courts ſerving for the whole Province, every Biſhop has a particular Court, for the Deciſion of things relating to his Dioceſs; the Judge whereof is called the Chancellour. Every Arch-Deacon has alſo his Court and Juriſdiction, wherein ſmaller Differences ariſing within his Limits are Pleaded. And ſo have the Dean and Chapter of every Cathedral and Collegiate Church, for taking Cognizance of Cauſes relating to the Church. The Puniſhments to which the Clergy are liable in ſome Caſes, are, 1. Suſpenſio ab Officio, when a Clergy-man is for ſome Miſdemeanour ſuſpended for ſome time from the Execution of his Office. 2. Suſpenſio à Beneficio, when he is for ſome time deprived of the Profits of his Benefice. 3. Deprivatio à Beneficio, when a Miniſter is for ſome heinous Offence wholly and for ever depriv'd of his Living. 4. Deprivatio ab Officio, when he is wholly and for ever depoſed or degraded, being Solemnly ſtript by the Biſhop of his Prieſtly Veſtments in the preſence of the Civil Magiſtrate, to whom he is then delivered as a Lay-man, to be puniſhed for his Offence. As to the Spiritual Puniſhments, ſuch as Publick Penance, Excommunication, and Anathema, inflicted by the Spiritual Court, both upon Lay-men and Church-men, they are Executed by the Biſhop's Authority, by his Chancellor, and publiſhed by a Prieſt. Thus having run through the ſeveral Branches of our Engliſh Government, I conclude with a Chronological Catalogue of the Monarchs of England; after a previous, but ſhort Hiſtorical Account of the general Affairs of this Nation in reſpect to Monarchy. Before the Romans came into this Iſland, the Britains (who were then poſſeſſed of this Country) were divided into ſeveral Nations, each of them governed by its own Kings and particular Princes. And when Britain became a Member of the Roman Empire, yet many of their Tribes had their proper Kings, who were ſuffered to govern by their own Laws, but then they were Tributary. Such Kings were Codigunus and Praſitagus, mention'd by Tacitus; Lucius ſaid to be the Firſt Chriſtian King, and Coilus the Father of Helena, Mother of Conſtantine the Great. After the Romans had quitted Britain, upon the Itruption of the Goths into Italy in the Empire of Honorius, that is in the Fifth Century, the Kingly Government returned to the Britains. Who choſe for their King Conſtantine, Brother of Aldroinus King of Britany in France, a Prince of the Britiſh Blood. To whom ſucceeded Conſtantine his Son: then Vortiger, who uſurped the Crown, and to maintain his Uſurpation, firſt called in the Saxons, then hovering along the Coaſt of Britain. Theſe, having got ſure footing in the Iſland, never left the Britains quiet, till they were poſſeſſed of the Whole. And tho' they had been Overthrown in many Battles by King Vortimer, the Son and immediate Succeſſor of Vortiger, and afterwards by King Arthur; yet the Britains were ſoon after his Death ſo weakned and broken, that they were forced at laſt to yield, and to exchange this ſweet and rich Part of Britain for the Mountains of Wales. Thus the Britains left the Stage, and the Saxons entred, but ſtill with a Regal Power. By theſe the Country was divided into Seven Kingdoms, called the Saxon Heptarchy; which continued for ſeveral Ages, till the prevailing Fortune of the Weſt-Saxons united them all into one by the Name of England. Which hapned in the Year 819. in the Reign of Egbert, a Weſt-Saxon King having vanquiſhed the other Saxon Kings, and added moſt of their Eſtates to his own, he cauſed himſelf to be Crowned at Wincheſter, in the Year aforeſaid, with the Title of King of England, then ſpelt and called Engel-lond. Tho' the Truth is, King Alfred, a Grandchild of his, was he who totally united the Saxon Heptarchy into one Eſtate. Thus from the Time of Egbert to this preſent Time, England has continued a Monarchy near upon 900 Years. Firſt, under 15 Kings of the Saxon Race, whoſe Reign continued till 1017. at which time the Crown of England fell to the Danes the next conſiderable and the moſt cruel Actors in the Stage of England: Who, having firſt Invaded this Country in the Reign of King Egbert did ſo exerciſe the Patience of his Poſterity, till at laſt they over-power'd them, and got the Kingdom to themſelves. But then the Saxons and Danes lived together, mixed in Marriages and Alliance, and ſo made one Nation conſiſting of Saxons and Danes. Theſe had here Three Kings of their own, Canute I, Harold I, and Canute II; who reigned in all but 24. Years, viz. from 1017. to 1042. Then the Saxon Blood had the fortune to be Re-inthroned, in the Perſon of King Edward, Surnamed, The Confeſſor. Who was Succeeded by Harold II, a Saxon alſo. In whoſe Reign, Anno 1066. the Normans came in with William the Conquerour. Who, having got the Crown of England at one blow, left it to his Son William, Surnamed Rufus, to whom Suceeded his Brother Henry I, next their Nephew King Stephen. Thus the Crown continued in Four Kings of the Norman Race. After King Stephen's Death, the Norman and Saxon Blood were United in the Perſon of his next Succeſſor King Henry II. (called Fitz-Empreſs) Anno 1154. In whoſe Blood the Crown has continued ever ſince, but not always in a direct Line. For to paſs by King John, who Uſurped the Crown from Arthur, Son to Geofrey his elder Brother, we have a notable Breach of Succeſſion in the two Houſes, of Lancaſter and York, both deſcended from our famous King Edward III. For Henry IV. the Firſt King of the Line of Lancaſter, got unlawfully the Crown from the Line of York, being the Eldeſt Anno 1399. in whoſe Houſe it continued in the two next Succeeding Reigns of Henry V. and Henry VI. in all, the ſpace of 60 Years. At laſt, the Line of York prevailed in the Perſon of King Edward IV. who came to the Crown, but through a Field of Blood, Anno 1460. and kept it up with his Sword. To whom Succeeded Edward V. and the bloody Uſurper Richard III. his Uncle, both of the Yorkiſh Line. Then the Line of Lancaſter got up again to the Throne in the Perſon of Henry VII. Anno 1485. But by his Marriage with Elizabeth, Eldeſt Daughter of Edward IV. the two Families were happily United, and this bleeding Nation began to heal. From which Marriage are deſcended in a right Line all his Succeſſors to the Crown, till the late Revolution. For, when the Iſſue of King Henry VIII. failed by the Death of his Daughter Queen Elizabeth, then came in James VI of Scotland, and I. of England, as next Heir, deſcended from Margaret, Eldeſt Daughter of Henry VII. By whoſe Acceſſion to this Crown, Anno 1603. the two Kingdoms of England and Scotland, which hitherto had been always claſhing, were happily United under one Head, and King James becauſe the Firſt King of Great Britain. In whoſe Line the Crown continues to this Day, tho' with a breach of Lineal Succeſſion in the Perſon of the preſent King, with whom I ſhall end the following Catalogue of the Monarchs of England, in all 48.

Ordain'd, That his Kingdom ſhould deſcend to his Heirs Males, and for defect of ſuch Iſſue, to the Daughters. Claud. Rubis. Conferences des Prerogatives Anciennes.

ENJEDINUS, (George) of Hungary, one of the ſharpeſt Anti-trinitarians of his time; Wrote a Treatiſe, Entituled, Explicatio locorum Scripturæ Veteris & Novi Teſtamenti, &c. ex quibus Dogma Trin. ſtabiliri ſolet. Father Simon.

ENIPEUS, a River of Teſſaly, watering the Pharſalian Fields where Cæſar overthrew Pompey; Slow at firſt, but mixing with the River of Epideno, grows to be very rapid. Lucan. l. 2.

ENISIS, a ſmall River of Sicily, which runing through the Valley of Dæmona, falls into the Sicilian Streight, over againſt the Promontory of Lercopetra. Now Niſi, according to Fazellus.

ENKOPING, in Lat. Encopia, a City of Sweden, in the Province of Vpland, Seated near the Lake Meler, 5 or 6 Leagues from Vpſale.

ENNA, an Ancient City of Sicily in the Middle of the Iſland, famous for a Temple dedicated to Ceres and for very fine Springs. Now Caſtro Johanni, ſtill ſtanding near a Lake of the ſame Name. Baudrand.

ENNESKILLING, or Inskilling, a Town in the Province of Vlſter and County of Fermanagh in Ireland; famous for its Noble and Gallant defence againſt the Iriſh and French in the beginning of King William's Reign. The Enneskilling Men defeated the Duke of Berwick, Natural Son to King James, who attacked a Party of theirs at Ralſemulling with 1500 Men, conſtraining him to retire with the loſs of 250 Men, in September 1689. They defeated King James's Parties very often, and particularly in Auguſt that ſame Year, near Liſnack, where 8 Troops of their Horſe and three Companies of Foot were attacked by Col. Hamilton, with a Regiment of Dragoons, three Troops of Horſe, and a conſiderable Body of Foot; but the Enneskilling Men obliged them to retire, Killing 130, and taking 39 of 'em, without one Man loſt on their ſide. About ten a Clock that Day, being reinforced to the Number of 1200 Horſe and 1500 Foot under the Command of Coll. Woolſley, they marched to the Enemy at Newton Buttler, beat 'em from a Hill where they were advantageouſly poſted, and having ſeven Cannon, which ſcowred the High-way betwixt two Boggs, the Enneskilling Horſe could go no further; but the Foot falling in upon them through the Bogg, they killed 100, and took their Cannon, and the Horſe purſuing theirs as far as Cavan; there were about 2000 of the Enemies Killed and Drowned, and 300 Taken, amongſt whom were 50 Officers, and particularly, Lieutenant-General Macarty; who being carried Priſoner to London-Derry, broke his Parole of Honour and eſcap'd into France. The Enneskillingers under Col. Lloyd, did alſo rout 5000 of K. James's Men who deſigned to attack Sligo; and tho' much inferiour in Number, Kill'd and Wounded 800 Men, amongſt whom were three Colonels and 15 Captains; and three Colonels with 200 Soldiers were taken; the Enneskilling Men not loſing above 30. In March 1690. they alſo took Belturbett. And by their Valour did not a little Contribute to the Victory at the Boyn.

ENNIUS Quintus, Born at Rudii, a City of Calabria, about the Year of Rome 515. C. Mamilius Turinus, and Q. Valerius Faltonius Conſuls. He ſpent ſome part of his Life in Sardinia, whence he was carried to Rome, by Cato the Cenſor, whom he had taught Greek, and liv'd upon the Aventine-Hill; a Great Admirer of Scipio Africanus, and by him ſo highly belov'd, that he was Buried in his Tomb, as if Death could not part 'em, Liv. l. 38. He died of the Gout in the Year of Rome 585. after he had written ſeveral Books of Annals, Satyrs, Comedies and Tragedies, which are all loſt, but ſome few Fragments. Virgil being ſurpriz'd as he was reading Ennius, and ask'd what he was doing, made Anſwer, He was gathering Gold out of Ennius's Dunghil. Valer. Max. A. Gell. Horace, Lucretius, &c.

ENNODIUS (Marcus Fœlix) liv'd in the VIth. Age, Biſhop of Pavia, and one of the greateſt Writers of his time, and died in 521. His Works were Printed in 1612 by Sirmond, with Notes.

ENOCH, the Son of Cain, after whoſe Name he call'd the City of Enoch, the firſt that was built upon the Earth,

ENOCH, the Son of Jared of the Race of Seth, whom God took to himſelf after he had lived 365 Years. St. Auguſtin Proves him to have been a Prophet in thoſe times from the General Epiſtle of Jude: Not that the Prophecies of Enoch were extant in thoſe Days, in regard that Joſephus and Philo, who were diligent Searchers after the Antiquities of the Jews, make no mention of 'em; but upon the Quotation of the Apoſtle from ſome Author of undoubted Credit in thoſe Days. As to his being taken up by God, read Tertullian de Reſur. Carnis. Irenæus, l. 1. c. 5. l. 4. c. 30. Philo Judæus l. De Vit. Sapient. &c. Eccleſiaſticus, c. 44.

ENOCH, a famous Orator born at Aſcoli, one of the firſt that labour'd to reſtore Learning in the Weſt. To which purpoſe he made it his Buſineſs to get all the Greek Authors he could, out of the hands of the Turks, after their Conqueſt of Greece; which he did with good Succeſs, by the Aſſiſtance of the Pope, who furniſhed him with Money, and all things Neceſſary for ſo good a Work. Joſeph. Lentus, Præclar. fac. Aſc. Clar.

ENOS, the Son of Seth, ſuppos'd to be the firſt that ſettled a regular Worſhip of God, in the World, by a decent Inſtitution of Human Ceremonies, not known or elſe omitted before. He was born in the Year of the World 236. Died in the Year 1140.

ENOSIS, an Iſland 4 Miles from the Coaſt of Sardinia, by the Natives call'd Sancto Antiocho; 25 Miles in Compaſs, but not having above one or two Villages, by reaſon of the Pyrates. It lyes alſo 12 Miles Eaſtward from the Iſland of Hawks, or St. Peter's Iſland.

ENSIFERI, an Order of Knights, who enter'd into a Solemn Vow to oppoſe the Infidels in Livonia. This Order was Comfirm'd by Innocent III. and join'd to the Teutonick Order, in 1237 and their firſt maſter was Vinno. Afterwards they ſeparated from the Teutonick Order again in 1525. and had for their Maſter Gualter Pletembergh, to whom Succeeded William of Furſtembergh, in 1535. They wore a White Coat and a Black Gown, with a Red Sword embroider'd over with Black upon the left Soulder, and two Swords a-croſs upon their Breaſts, with the Points downward.

ENSIS, an Order of Knights in Cyprus, inſtituted in the Year 1192. by Guido Luſignan, who bought the Iſland of Richard I. King of England. Their Badge was a Silver Sword, with this Motto, Securitas Regni.

ENSISHEIM, in Lat. Enſiſhemum, heretofore the Capital City of the Vpper Alſatia, and the Seat of Juſtice for Briſgaw and Suntgaw. It is ſeated upon the River Ill, within two or three Leagues of Briſac, and at preſent belongs to France by vertue of the Peace of Munſter 1648.

ENTELLA, now Lavagna, a River of Liguria in Italy, which riſing out of the Appennine, ſcarce ten Miles from Genoa, receives the River Granveglia and falls into the Mediterranean, between Clavaro and Lavagna, as frequently ſtill call'd Entella as Lavagna. Baudrand.

ENTINOPUS, a Celebrated Architect born in Candia, in great Reputation at the Beginning of the Vth. Age: and the Opportunity which he had to be Contributory to the Foundation of Venice, render'd his Name famous over all Italy; as being the firſt that built a Houſe where Venice now ſtands; which Houſe was, afterwards turn'd into a Church, by the Name of St. James's.

ENTRE-DOURO e Minho, a Province of Portugal, ſo call'd, as lying between the River Douro, to the South, and Minho to the North; having the Portugal Sea to the Weſt, and the Province of Tralos Montes to the Eaſt. The moſt Delightful and beſt Peopled Province of all Portugal: For 18 Leagues in Length, and 12 in Breadth contain 1400 Pariſhes, above 130 Monaſteries, and ſix Sea-Port Towns and good Cities, Braga, Porto, Viana, Barcelos, Ponte de Lima, Caminha, &c. Antonio de Portugal, Deſcrip. da Prov. Entre Douro, &c.

EON, or Eum, a Gentleman of Bretaign in France ſo ignorant that hearing 'em Sing in the Church, Per Eum qui venturus eſt judicare vivos & mortuos, aſſur'd himſelf that he was that Eum, who was to Judge the Quick and the Dead, and infatuated a great Number of People with the ſame Imagination. For which, being apprehended and ſent to Priſon by the Archbiſhop of Rheims, he died in his Confinement. Nevertheleſs, ſeveral of his Diſciples choſe rather to burn; than renounce their Pretended Prophet. Otho Friſing. l. 1. c. 55. Baronius, A. C. 1148.

EORDAI, and Eordiatæ, a People who formerly inhabited that part of Macedon, where is now the Inland part of Albania, call'd Tamoriza. Baudrand.

EOS, Son to the Gyant Typhon: Some Poets ſay, that 'twas he that built the Town of Paphos in the Iſle of Cyprus, but the more common Opinion makes Paphos Son of Deucalion, Founder of this City.

EOUS, or Orientalis Oceanus, vulgarly the Oriental or Indian Ocean, on the Sea of China, is that part of the Ocean toward the Eaſt of Aſia, which waſhes the Coaſts of China, Japan, and the Philippine Iſlands; but far diſtant from the Pacifick Sea, and the South Sea, call'd Mer de Zur.

EPACT, the Number of eleven Days, which the Solar year contains more than the Lunar; from hence it follows, that the Moon being New the firſt of January, ſhe muſt of Conſequence be 11 days Old, upon the laſt of December, or when the Sun has finiſh'd his Annual Courſe. At the End of the next Year, adding theſe 11 Days, the Moon will be 22 Days before the Sun; and at the End of the third Year 33: Then by taking off 30 Days, for an Intercalary Month, there remains three for the Epact. And by the ſame Method, the Year after, there will be 14: Then 25, &c. But we muſt obſerve, that in the Biſ-ſextile or Leap-year, the Epact contains 12 Days, becauſe then the Year is a Day longer than ordinary; ſo that, Ex. gr. you go from three to fifteen of the Epact, from thence to 26, and ſo on. Now, to know the Day of the Moon, the Number of the current Epact, muſt be taken. The Number of the Months paſt ſince that of March, incluſive, and the Number of the preſent Day of the Month; if theſe three Numbers, being added, do not make thirty, all of them together make the Day of the Moon, but if they exceed thirty, then you muſt caſt away thirty for the Intercalary Month, and the remaining Number will be the Epact. For Example, if you have a mind to know what Day of the Moon it is, on the ſixth of July 1688. In the firſt place, you muſt take the Epact of the Year, which is 27. To this add five for the Months from March to July, which makes 32. Add ſix, which is the Day of the Month, and the Number amounts to 38; Caſt away thirty, and there remains eight for the Day of the Moon, which is then in her firſt Quarter. We muſt obſerve notwithſtanding, that this Method is not perfectly exact, it being ſometimes poſſible to fail, a Day, or almoſt two in the Computation, becauſe the Revolutions of the Moon are not equal, but alternatively 29 and 30 Days. Thoſe who have a mind to know the Day of the Moon more exactly, may conſult the Ephemerides, where the Calculations are made according to the Rules of Aſtronomy. Petav. de Doct. Temp.

EPAMINONDAS, a Theban, the Son of Polymnus, was taught Muſick and Philoſophy by Lyſis, a Pythagorean Philoſopher. He was Learned, Modeſt, Prudent, Sober, Skilful in Warlike Affairs, Stout of his Hands, Couragious; and ſo great a Lover of Truth, that he would not tell a Lye in Jeſt. Serving firſt under the Lacedæmonians, then in League with the Thebans, he reſcued Pelopidas in Battel after he had received ſeven Wounds. And afterwards perſuaded him to free the Thebans from Lacedæmonian Tyranny, by ſeizing the Citadel of Thebes, call'd Cadmea. Which being done, and a cruel War thereupon enſuing between the Lacedæmonians and Thebans, Epaminondas was made General of the Latter and gave the Lacedæmonians, ſo terrible an Overthrow, at the Battel of Leuctra, that they loſt all their Honour, and the Superiority of Greece; which, after that, they never could recover. Having gain'd a ſecond Battel at Mantinea, he was wounded with a Javelin; but would not ſuffer it to be taken out of his Body, till his Shield was brought him to kiſs, and that he heard the Enemy was quite defeated; but then tearing the Iron out of his Body, he expir'd in the mid'ſt of Joy and Victory. The Battel of Leuctra was fought in the 383 of Rome and that of Mantinea in 391. To a Friend of his, that bewail'd his Dying without Iſſue; You are deceiv'd, (ſaid he,) I leave two Daughters behind, the Victories of Leuctra and Mantinea. He was reckon'd by Ælian among the moſt Renowned, but the Pooreſt Captains of Greece: And it was truly ſaid, That the Theban Glory was born and dy'd with him. Plutarch, and Cornel. Nepos, in his Life. Zenophon, Diodorus, and Polybius.

EPAPHUS, a Greek Hiſtorian, who wrote a Hiſtory of the Temple of Epheſus; and gave an Account of the Foundation of it; and of what was to be ſeen, moſt worthy of Obſervation, within it. Voſſius.

EPAPHUS, ſaid to be the Son of Jupiter and Io; reigned in Egypt, and built the City of Memphis. Herodotus obſerves, That Epaphus is the ſame in Greek with Apis. Euterpe and Thel. Ovid. l. 1. Metam.

EPAUNUM, or Epona, a City or Pariſh in the ancient Kingdom of Burgundy: for Authors ſay nothing certain of the Place where it ſtood; neither is it Famous for any thing but for the Council which Sigiſmond King of Burgundy held there, after he had Abjur'd the Arrian Errors, to repair the Ruins which it had caus'd in his Kingdom.

EPERIES, in Lat. Eperia, a City of Hungary, in the County of Sarax, ſeated upon the River Tarks, toward the Mountains and upon the Confines of Poland, under the Emperour as King of Hungary. Baudrand.

EPEUS, who, as ſome ſay, deſcended from Endymion, was the firſt Inventor of the Engine called a Battering Ram, formerly made uſe of in Sieges to beat down the Walls of a Strong Town. He is alſo ſaid to have built the Trojan Horſe, and Founded the City of Metopontum. Juſtin. Plin. l. 7. He was alſo King of Phocis, and Succeeded his Father Panopeus.

EPHÆSTION, or HEPHÆSTION, the Chief Favourite of Alexander the Great, who imparted to him his moſt Secret Thoughts. He was of the ſame Age, but taller, and of a more Graceful Preſence: So that the Mother, Wife and Daughters of Darius took him for Alexander himſelf; for which Siſygambis begging Pardon of the King, he replied, That ſhe was not miſtaken, for that he was another Alexander. When the King married Statyra, the Eldeſt Daughter of Darius, he gave the youngeſt to Ephæſtion. One Day as Alexander was reading a Letter of great Secrecy, perceiving that his Favourite read it over his Shoulder, he ſaid nothing to him, but drawing off his Seal-Ring from his Finger, clapt it to Ephæſtion's Lips, thereby adviſing him to Secrecy. Ephæſtion died at Ecbatana, ſome time before Alexander, who laid his Death ſo much to heart, that he would not Eat in three Days, Sacrificed to him as a God, and beſtow'd 12000 Talents upon his Funeral. Quintus Curt. Plutarch.

EPHESTRIA, certain Feſtivals Inſtituted at Thebes in Memory of Tireſias, at what time his Image was firſt cloath'd in Women's Apparel, and afterwards clad in Men's Habit, alluding to the Fable of Tireſias himſelf, feign'd to have been of both Sexes.

EPHESUS, a City of Ionia, and heretofore the moſt famous Emporium of all the Leſſer Aſia, by the report of Juſtin and Pliny; Built firſt of all by the Amazons in a low Ground; afterwards remov'd by Lyſimachus to the place where now it ſtands, and call'd by his Wife's Name Arſinoe; but he being dead, it reſum'd its former Name of Epheſus. Famous for the Temple of Diana, accounted one of the Wonders of the World, two hundred Years a finiſhing, though rear'd at the common Expence of all Aſia minor. The Length of it was 425 Foot, and the Breadth of it 220. Pliny writes, That the Invention of ſetting Pillars upon Pedeſtals, and adorning the Chapters and Baſes, was firſt practis'd in the Building of this Temple. The Doors were of Cypreſs Wood, poliſh'd and glittering; and the Stairs that led up to the top of the Temple, were made of Vine-wood brought from Cyprus, as Pliny aſſures us. The Statue of Diana was of Cedar, as Vitruvius aſſerts; of Gold, according to Xenophon; of Ivory ſay others. The Statue of this Goddeſs now in the Louvre at Paris, is thought to have belong'd to this Temple. But Mutianus a Roman Conſul tells us, it was of Vine-wood. This Gorgeous Temple, full of Statues and Pictures of ineſtimable Price, wherein the Induſtry of the choiceſt Artiſts of two Ages had exhauſted it ſelf, was burnt the ſame Day that Socrates was Poiſon'd, 400 Years before Chriſt: and a ſecond time, the ſame Night that Alexander the Great was Born, 356 Years before the Coming of the Meſſias; Diana being then abſent at Fuſy, at the Delivery of Olympias; as Timæus the Hiſtorian obſerves. It was afterwards repair'd, and Alexander offer'd the Epheſians to furniſh them with whatever they wanted, to make it as Magnificent as ever it was, provided they would put his Name in an Inſcription upon the Temple; which they refuſed to do. The Turks at this Day call Epheſus, Ajaſalove, and the Province where it is ſeated, Surcham: But at preſent there is no City in the World, where are to be ſeen ſuch lamentable Ruins of the Ancient Grandeur; heaps of Marble Columns ranvers'd, broken Statues pil'd one upon another, the ſad Effects of Scythian Rage and Gothick Fury. The Fortreſs which ſtands upon a Riſing Ground, was built by the Greek Emperours. But the Chief Church, dedicated to St. John, is now a Turkiſh Moſque. There were ſeveral Provincial Councils held here; the firſt under Polycrates in the Year 198, concerning the keeping of Eaſter: It was there decreed that this Feaſt ſhould, according to Ancient Cuſtom, be Celebrated on the 14th Day of the Moon. Pope Victor underſtanding the Determination of the Council, and believing it contrary to Apoſtolical Tradition, wrote back his Diſſatisfaction, and Excommunicated the Eaſtern Biſhops, who took no notice of his Cenſure, but on the contrary, he was, by ſome conſiderable Perſons of the Church, reprimanded for his Raſhneſs. Euſeb. lib. 5. Hiſt. cap. 23, 24, &c. In the Year 400, St. Chryſoſtome held a Synod here of 79 Biſhops, for the Regulation of Matters of Diſcipline and Government, and here ſix Biſhops convicted of Symony, were depos'd. Palad. de Vit. St. Chryſoſt. Socrat. lib. 6. cap. 10. Sozom. lib. 8. cap. 6. In the Year 449 Dioſcorus, Patriarch of Alexandria, held a Synod at Epheſus, call'd Concilium Leſtricum, or a Pſeudo-Synod, Matters being carry'd there by Faction and Violence.

Here the Errours of Eutyches were approv'd. The Legates of Pope Leo refus'd Admittance, and Flavian not only depos'd from the See of Conſtantinople, but likewiſe ſo barbarouſly beaten, that he died in two or three Days after. Liberatus, c. 12. Evagrius, lib. 1. c. 10. Acts of the Council of Chalcedon, Baron. A. C. 449. There was likewiſe a General Council held at Epheſus in the Year 431, but for that ſee Neſtorius. Chevreau Hiſt. of the World. J. Spon's Travels.

EPHETÆ, Athenian Magiſtrates, conſiſting of 50 Athenians, and as many Argives, inſtituted by King Demophon, to judge of Caſual Murders. Draco afterwards enlarged their Authority to take Cognizance of all Capital Crimes. They were to be Fifty Years of Age, and of unſpotted Reputation for their Lives and Manners.

EPHIALTES, The Son of Neptune, a Giant of incredible Strength, who grew Nine fingers Breadth every Month; and therefore truſting to his Stature, he with his Brother Ochus made War againſt the Gods, and was thrown down to Hell by Jupiter.

EPHORI, certain Lacedæmonian Magiſtrates ſet up by Theopompus, King of Sparta, to be a Curb upon the Regal Power; for they were a ſort of check upon the Kings, as the Tribunes of the People at Rome, were created to reſtrain the Exorbitant Power of the Conſuls. Some Authours ſay there was nine of them choſen at a time, though it is certain there never was above five together, their buſineſs related to the Care of Religion. They preſided in the Publick Feſtivals and Shews. They gave Sentence, as Ælian obſerves, upon Thrones, all other Magiſtrates being under their Juriſdiction. Even the Kings of Sparta themſelves were oblig'd to obey their Summons, and appear at the Barr, when they were charg'd with Male-Adminiſtration. Theſe Ephori likewiſe, were truſted with the Publick Treaſure, made War and Peace, and were ſo abſolute, that Ariſtotle makes their Government equal to the Prerogatives of a Monarchy. Plat. lib. 4. de Leg. Plut. in Vit. Lycurg. & Cleomenes, Suidas.

EPHRAIM, a Greek Author, who liv'd at the beginning of the XIVth. Age, and wrote a Chronicle of the Conſtantinopolitan Emperors in Iambic Verſe. Allatius lib. de Pſell. P. 113.

EPHREM, Deacon of the Church of Edeſſa in Syria, wrote much, and his Works, Tranſlated by Gerard Voſſius, were Printed at Antwerp in 1619. together with his Life.

EPICHARIS, a Woman of low Birth, but courageous beyond her Sex and Condition: being Convicted before Nero, of having a hand in the Conſpiracy againſt him, ſhe behav'd her ſelf ſo reſolutely in the mid'ſt of her Torments, that no Pain could make her diſcover her Accomplices; and fearing ſhe might not hold out under a ſecond Torture, ſhe ſlew her ſelf. Tacitus.

EPICHARMUS, a Poet and Pythagorean Philoſopher, was born in the Iſland of Cos. He compos'd ſeveral Comedies much eſteem'd by the Ancients, and ſeveral other Pieces which Plato is ſaid to have converted to his own uſe. Ariſtotle and Pliny allow him the Invention of the two Greek Letters θ and χ. He died An. R. 310. in the 97th Year of his Age. Diogenes Laertius.

EPICTETUS, of Hierapolis in Phrygia, a Stoick Philoſopher, but a Slave to Epaphroditus, Captain of Nero's Guards. One Day his Maſter giving him a blow upon the Shin, he deſir'd him to take a Care of breaking his Leg; upon which his Maſter redoubling his blow and breaking the Bone indeed, Look ye, Sir, ſaid he, (in an unconcern'd way) Did I not tell ye, you would never leave till ye had broken my Leg. He taught, That all Philoſophy conſiſted in theſe two words, Bear and Forbear. His Life and Converſation was ſo admir'd by all Men, that his Earthen Lamp, that lighted him at his Studies, was Sold for 3000 Drachma's. Arrian the Hiſtorian, His Diſciple, publiſh'd Four Books of his Diſcourſes, and poliſh'd his Enchiridion or Manual, which ſeems rather to be the Work of a Chriſtian than of a Stoick Philoſopher. St. Auguſtin, and ſome other great Men, put a great Value upon theſe Pieces. He was baniſh'd Rome by Domitian's Edict againſt Philoſophers, but he return'd thither again after that Prince's Death. Aul. Gell. Simplicius, Lucian.

EPICURUS, an Athenian, Brother to Neocles, and Cherecrata, was the Founder of the Epicurean Sect, Seven Years after the Death of Plato. He was Beholding to no Man more than Democritus, upon the reading of whoſe Works, he apply'd himſelf to the Study of Philoſophy. He placed the Summum Bonum in Pleaſure; not in infamous Pleaſure, but in Pleaſure inſeparable from Vertue. From which ſome of his Diſciples degenerating, gave an Occaſion to many to believe him to be the Teacher and Upholder of Vice. And tho' ſome think that they learn'd that Doctrine from him, yet it's certain, that his Pleaſure was attended by great Temperance, it appearing in his Letters to his moſt intimate Friends, that his beſt Meals conſiſted of Cheeſe, Bread and Water; However Tully affirms in more than one place that Epicurus made happineſs conſiſt in the Satisfaction of the ſenſes (Cic. de fin. & alib.) and the ſame may be ſaid of his real Diſciples, who drank but little Wine, and us'd but very ſimple and common Fare. He divided his Philoſophy into Canonick or Logick, Phyſicks, and Morals. He is accus'd of having Publiſh'd for his own Democritus his Books upon Atomes, and thoſe of Ariſtippus upon Pleaſure. He holds in his Morals, That Torments do not hinder the Happineſs of a Wiſe Man, tho' the Pain may cauſe him to relent. That he would expoſe his Life ſo much the more willingly, that he knew Death was not amongſt the Number of bad things. He adds, That tho' Health be very deſireable, a great many did not make that account of it, for which reaſon it was, perhaps, that inſtead of wiſhing Health to thoſe he wrote to, as was the Cuſtom of the Ancients, he wiſh'd they might do well: his Opinion concerning the Soul and God, are not approv'd by all. Yet St. Jerome, beſtows great Commendations on his Philoſophy, and objects it to Chriſtians to make 'em aſham'd of their Debauches; And Seneca, tho' a Stoick, ſpeaks very advantageouſly of him. He died of a retention of Urine, caus'd by the Stone, having ſuffered extraordinary Pain with incredible Patience for 14 Days. His Death is plac'd in the Second Year of the CXXVII. Olympiad, which is about 185. of Rome, 271 before the Chriſtian Æra. Diog. Laert. St. Jerom, Lucret.

EPIDAURUS, There were three Towns of this Name, one in Laconia in Peloponneſus, now called Malvaſia. Another in the ſame Peninſula, near Argos, famous for the Temple of Æſculapius; and a third now called Raguſa, of which we ſhall ſpeak under that Name. Strabo, lib. 8. Scaliger. de Tripl. Epidaur. in Chron. Euſeb. &c.

EPIGONI, the Name which the Greeks gave to the Children of thoſe that beſieg'd the City of Thebes in vain; who, ten Years after their Fathers unfortunate Expedition, reveng'd the Death and Diſhonour of their Parents, under the Conduct of Alcmech, the Son of Amphiaraus and Eriphile, ſack'd Thebes, brought away the blind Tireſias, and ſent his Daughter Manto to ſerve as a Prieſteſs in the Temple of Apollo, at Delphos. Pauſanias, Diodorus.

EPIMENIDES, an Epick Poet, Contemporary with Solon, in the 46th. Olympiad; a Native of Crete, who being ſent to keep his Fathers Cattel, ſlept 27 years in a Cave; ſo that when he awoke, and return'd home, no body knew him, nor did he know any body. Which Figment is to be interpreted, of his long Travelling abroad. He was wonderfully Skilful in Atonements of the Gods; and to purge Athens from the Peſtilence, order'd many White and Black Sheep to be offer'd up in the Areopagus. St. Paul to Titus, cites him. Some call'd him a Divine Perſon; Others, Theologum, Fatidicum & Sacerdotem. See more in Diogenes Laertius.

EPIMETHEUS, Son of Iapetus, and Brother to Prometheus. Poets feign, That Prometheus form'd the Prudent and Ingenious Men; but Epimetheus, the Fools and Blockheads. The Mythologiſts ſay, That Prometheus is the Spirit that foreſees Things to come; and Epimetheus, the Spirit who judges of Things paſt. Epimetheus married Pandora; which was a Statue of Vulcan, Animated by Minerva, and Gifted by each of the other Gods with ſome particular good Quality, to render her Perfect. He had by her a Daughter, call'd Pyrrha, who married Deucalion, Son of Prometheus. Poets likewiſe feign that Jupiter turn'd him into an Ape, and baniſh'd him to the Iſle Pithecuſæ. Hygin.

EPIPHANES, Son of the Hereſiarch Carpocrates, and Follower of his Impieties. Clemens Alexandrinus ſays, That he was ador'd as a God, after his death, by the Inhabitants of Cephalonia, his Mother being of that Country.

EPIPHANIA, the Feaſt of the Adoration of the Three Kings: Of the Baptiſm of Jeſus Chriſt; and his Miracle at the Wedding of Cana As to the Magi Kings, we muſt obſerve, That the Perſians, and moſt of the Eaſtern People, give the Name of Magi to their Doctors; and the Hebrew calls 'em Seubes; the Egyptians Prophets; the Greeks, Philoſophers; and the Latins, Sages, or Wiſe. The Church gives the Title of Kings to theſe Three Famous Men; and the ancienteſt Paintings of this Myſtery, repreſent 'em Crown'd, and in Royal Robes; for at that time the Eaſtern Nations choſe Philoſophers for their Monarchs: or if the Kingdoms were Hereditary, the preſumptive Heirs were inſtructed in ſuch Sciences as made 'em deſerve the Name of Sages. As to their Country, the moſt probable Opinion is, That they came out of Arabia the Happy; both becauſe their Gifts ſeem the Productions of that Country; and that the Royal Prophet ſays, That the Meſſias would be ador'd by the Kings of the Arabians and Saba; and, That he would be preſented with Arabian Gold. Some ſay, That after our Saviour's Aſcenſion, the Apoſtle St. Thomas going into their Country. Baptiz'd and Conſecrated 'em Biſhops; That they were afterwards Martyr'd; and that their Reliques were brought out of Perſia, to Conſtantinople, by Order of the Empreſs Helena; afterwards remov'd to Milan, in the Reign of the Emperor Emanuel; and at laſt brought to Cologne, in 1163. when the Emperor Barbaroſſa ſack'd the City of Milan. Theophylactus. Petrus Galeſinus.

EPIPHANIUS, Biſhop of Salamis, in Cyprus, flouriſh'd under Theodoſius the Great. He was a ſmart Oppoſer of Images and the Origeniſts: wrote much, and dy'd about the Year 403. after he had attain'd to a very old Age. His Works were Printed in 1622. and Tranſlated by P. Petav. See more in St. Jerom. Apol. 2. ad Ruſt. c. 114. Baronius, A.C. 372.

EPIPHANIUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, in the Sixth Age, ſucceeded John II. in 520. and dy'd in 535. A ſtout Oppoſer of the Eutychians. Pope Hormiſdas impower'd him to receive in his Name all the Biſhops that ſhould return to the Communion of Rome, upon Condition that they ſhould ſubſcribe a Formula which he had drawn up, and ſend him their Submiſſions. Baron A. C. 20.

EPIPHANIUS Biſhop of Pavia, liv'd in the Vth. Century, and was Employ'd to treat an Accommodation between the Emperor Anthemius, and Ricimer his Son-in-Law; afterwards he went Ambaſſador to Theodorick, who ſent to Gondebaud King of the Burgundians, to procure the Redemption of Captives. He ſucceeded in this Negotiation, and dyed in the Year 490. Ennodius cited by Surius.

EPIPHANIUS SCHOLASTICUS, liv'd in the Vth. Century. There was an intimate Friendſhip between him and Caſſiodorus, at whoſe requeſt, he Tranſlated the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of Theodoret, Socrates and Sozomen, into Latin; upon which he afterwards form'd his own, call'd Hiſtoria Tripartita. Caſſidor. Præf. in Hiſt. Trip. & de Divin. Lect. c. 17. Sigebert in Catal. c. 12.

EPIRUS, a Province of Greece, which ſome Geographers place in the Lower-Albany: It was ſeparated from Macedon by the River Celydnus and Mount Pindus. The moſt Famous People of the Country were the Moloſſi, that inhabited the City of Dodona, the Dryopes, Chaonians, Dolopes, &c. And their Chief Cities were Larta, Preveza, Beſtia, Orchimo, Argiro, &c. It fell under the Power of the Turk, in the Fourteenth Age; all but the Iſland of Corfu, and Torone upon the Continent, which are in the Hands of the Venetians.

☞ EPISCOPIUS (Simon) Born at Amſterdam, in 1583. Theology-Profeſſor in the Academy of Leiden, was one of the Heads of the Remonſtrants in the Low-Countries; and dy'd in 1643. His Works were Printed in two Volumes, in 1678.

EPISODE: See Comedy and Tragedy.

EPITUS, King of the Meſſenians, was the Son of Creſphonte, whom the Great Men of his Kingdom put to Death, becauſe he had took a great Kindneſs for the meaner Sort. All his Children underwent the ſame Deſtiny, except Epitus, who was brought up at his Grandfathers, being plac'd upon the Throne by the help of the Dorians and Arcadians: He puniſh'd his Fathers Murtherers; and inſinuated himſelf ſo into the Favour of the Nobility and People, that his Succeſſors were called Epitides, from his Name; whereas before, the Kings of the Meſſenians were called Heraclides. Pauſanias.

EPOCHA, the Bound or Limit of Time; which comes from the Greek word ἐπίχω, which ſignifies to ſtop, or hold. Chronologers, for the better Diſtinction of Times, and to Eaſe our Memory, have taken theſe Epocha's from ſome famous and remarkable Tranſaction; and by theſe count the Time. They are divided into Sacred and Prophane. The firſt, taken out of Scripture; as the Creation, Deluge, the Birth of Abraham, the Coming of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, the Temple of Solomon, the Return of the Jews from Babylon, &c. The principal Prophane Epochs, are taken, in fabulous Times, from the Deluge of the Ogyges, the Re-eſtabliſhment of the Olympick Games, the Foundation of Rome, the Eſtabliſhment of Conſuls, the Reign of Julius Cæſar; and every particular Kingdom forms it ſelf Epocha's, from the Beginning of their Kingdom. Scaliger, Calviſius, Riccioli.

EPOMEUS, Monte Sancto Juliano, a Burning Mountain in the middle of the Iſland of Iſchia, in the Tyrrhene-Sea, upon the Coaſt of Terra di Lavoro; whence Torrents of Fire burſting forth in the Year 1300. caus'd the Inhabitants to quit the Iſland, as they had done before in the Reigns of Auguſtus, Titus, and Diocleſian. Phri. Ferrarius.

EPPING, or Eppingſtreet, a Market-Town of Waltham-Hundred, in the Weſt of Eſſex. This Town has two great Markets Weekly for Cattel, and one on Fridays for Proviſions; 15 Miles from London.

EPPONINA, the Wife of Julius Sabinus, a moſt celebrated Example of Conjugal Affection and Fidelity. Her Husband aſſuming the Title of Cæſar, in Gaul, was worſted, and forc'd to ſhelter himſelf in a Cave under Ground, having firſt burnt his Houſe, to make it be thought that he periſh'd in the Flame. Epponina bore him Company in his Afflictions, and went ſeveral times to Rome to make Friends for him; where being oblig'd to appear in the Bath with the other Women, ſhe us'd to rub her Body with an Oyntment that made it ſwell, and ſo her Great-Belly was not taken notice of; which if it ſhould, would make People think, that either ſhe was not Honeſt; or that her Husband, whom they thought Dead, was ſtill Alive. But afterwards, Veſpaſian Condemn'd this Heroin to Death: Which ſhe ſuffer'd with great Conſtancy, and told him boldly, That ſhe had rather live under the Earth, and in Darkneſs, than ſee the unhappy Days of his Reign. Plutarch, in Erotic. Tacitus.

EPSHAM, a Town of Copthorn, or Epingham-Hundred. in Surrey, 14 Miles S. and by W. from London. This Town ſtands in a good Air, and a pleaſant Situation. But that which adds moſt to the Happineſs of it, are its Mineral Waters; which draw conſtantly there in Summer-time, a great Concourſe of People, both from City and Country. As to the Diſcovery and Nature of theſe Waters, take this Account. Theſe Waters were found, Anno 1618. by one Henry Wicker, in a dry Summer, when there was a great want of Water for Cattel: In the Concave of a Horſes or Neats Foot, he diſcover'd ſome clear Water ſtanding; which made him dig with his Pad-ſtaff a ſquare Hole about it, and ſo departed. This Hole he made a Search for the next day, and found it, though with much difficulty, fill'd, and running over with clear Water, but of an Aluminous Taſte: It was only uſed Outwardly, at firſt, for the Healing of Sores; but afterwards, it was taken Inwardly, for ſeveral Uſes.

EPULONES, certain Prieſts among the Romans appointed by the Pontiffs to preſide at the Feaſts and Sacrifices which were made in Honour of the Gods: firſt but Three; then by Sylla, made Seven; and laſtly, by Cæſar augmented to Ten.

EQUI, a People bordering upon Rome, and firſt of all Enemies to the Romans, till Quintus Cincinnatus brought 'em under the Yoke. They were frequently puniſh'd for their Rebellion by Poſthumius Tubertus; and by Fabius totally ſubdu'd, after he had taken 40 of their Cities in a little time: for which he obtain'd the Name of Maximus, and then they became Allies to the Romans. Liv. l. 3, & 4.

ERA, or ÆRA, a Word which Spaniſh Authors introduc'd into Chronology, to expreſs the Beginning of ſome extraordinary Change, as of Reigns, &c. It comes from Æra, a Tribute impos'd on Spaniards, by the Emperor Auguſtus, 39 Years before the Birth of Chriſt, under the Conſulſhip of L. Marcus Cenſorius, and C. Calviſius Sabinus, in the 715, or 16th. of Rome. It was us'd in Spain till about 1351. that the Years of Jeſus Chriſt were ſubſtituted it its place. And in Imitation of them by others; the moſt famous Era's in Chronology, are that of Nabonaſſer, generally fix'd on the 26th of February, in the 3967th. Year of the Julian Period, in the 1ſt. Year of the 8th. Olympiad, and 6th. of Rome; that of the Greek Seleucidæ, fix'd in the 442d. of Rome, 312 Years before our Saviour, when Seleucus Nicanor ſetled in Syria, 12 Years after the Death of Alexander the Great; the Chriſtian, which is placed, by different Authors, in the 448th. 49th. 50th. 51ſt. 52d. and 53d. of Rome. Torniel, Genebrard, Kepler, Petav. Spond. Scaliger, Calviſius, Salian, Riccioli.

ERASISTRATUS, a Phyſician Famous among the Diſciples of Ariſtotle, whoſe Daughters Son he was, (according to Pliny.) He liv'd at the Court of Seleucus Nicanor. He preſently perceiv'd the true Cauſe of Antiochus Soter's Fever; which was, his being in Love with Stratonice his Mother-in-Law. He wrote much in his own Science. He is often quoted by Pliny. He is ſaid to have prov'd, That Hunger proceeds from the Fibres of the Stomach and Inteſtines being empty and open. Pliny, Plutarch, Appian, Valer. Max.

ERASMUS (Deſiderius) of Rotterdam, in Holland, was Born in 1465, or 1467. His Father, Gerard of the Town of Goude, preſſed by his Friends, to become a Clergyman, ſtole away with Margaret, Eraſmus's Mother, then with Child of him. He was firſt called Gerard the Son of Gerard: which having ſome relation with the Latin, Deſiderare, he afterwards took the Name of Deſiderius; and for Sirname, Eraſmus; which is a Greek Word, that ſignifies much the ſame. He afterwards became a Singing-Boy in the Cathedral of Utrecht; and at Nine Years of Age was ſent to continue his Studies at Deventer, under Alexander Hege. His Guardians after the Death of his Father, oblig'd him to turn Canon-Regular of St. Auguſtin. After which, he went to Paris; and came thence into England, where he compos'd a Book in Praiſe of the King and Kingdom. Travelling into Italy with the King's Phyſician's Son, he took his Degrees of Doctor of Divinity at Turin; and finiſh'd his Book of Adages at Bologne; and went to Venice, to put it, with other Pieces, into the Hands of Aldus Manutius, to be Printed. Then read Rhetorick to Alexander, Son to James, King of Scotland; Choſen Archbiſhop of St. Andrews: Went to Rome: where he was honoured and eſteemed by the Great Men of that City, who omitted nothing to oblige him to ſtay there. Pope Paul III. gave him ſome hopes of a Cardinal's Hat, and offer'd him conſiderable Employments. Pope Clement VII. and Henry VIII. Francis I. Charles V. Sigiſmond, King of Poland; Ferdinand, King of Hungary, and ſeveral other Princes ſtrove equally to gain him by great Penſions; but he would never confine himſelf to any. All the Learned Men of Europe correſponded with him by Letters, and valued themſelves upon his Acquaintance. He went to Bazil at 60 Years of Age; where Froben Re-printed his Adages; he had alſo his Colloquies Re-printed there, which had run through ſeveral Editions before, and Colinet Re-printed 'em at Paris, in 1527. and ſold above 20000 Copies. Eraſmus Printed alſo the Works of St. Jerom, of Arnobius, St. Hilarius, Pliny, Seneca, with ſeveral others. Tranſlated the New-Teſtament out of Greek into Latin with Notes, and Dedicated it to Pope Leo X. He likewiſe wrote againſt Luther upon the Subject of Free-Will, and retir'd to Friburg in 1529. Eraſmus's Works in Froben's Edition are 9 Volumes. He was a very great Man, and Favour'd the Reformation in many things, though he Died in the Communion of Rome at Bazil in 1536. the 70th. Year of his Age.

ERASMUS (Joannes) a Famous Unitarian, Rector of the School of Antwerp; from whence he was forced to fly, by reaſon of his Opinion, into Poland; where he had a long Diſpute with Socinus, about the Pre-exiſtence of the Son of God before all Creatures: Printed afterwards by Socinus himſelf. F. Simon.

ERASTUS (Thomas) a Phyſician of Baden in Switzerland, where he was Born in 1524. He was a Perſon of great Reputation in his Profeſſion, and wrote ſeveral Books, among which, there are four againſt Paracelſus. The others are, De Aſtrologia Divinatrice, De Auro Potabili, De Cauſa Morborum, De Occultis Pharmacorum Poteſtatibus, De Putredine Libri Chirurgici: But his Treatiſe, for which he is moſt talk'd of, is that of Excommunication, in which he denies the Authority of the Church. This Tract has been confuted by ſeveral, particularly by Dr. Hammond, in his Book, Of the Power of the Keys. Melchior Adam. in Vit. Germ-Medic. Thuanus Hiſt. Vander Linden De Script. Med. &c.

ERATO, one of the Nine Muſes, which preſides over Love-Poems. She is generally repreſented like a young Maiden of gay Humour, crown'd with Myrtle and Roſes, holding a Harp in the Right hand, and a Bow in the other; with a little winged Cupid plac'd by her, arm'd with his Bow and Arrows. Ripa Iconal.

ERATOSTRATUS, or HEROSTRATUS, an Epheſian, who, to get him a Name, ſet fire to the Temple of Epheſus, in the 398th. of Rome. For which the Epheſians made a Law, with a ſevere Penalty, That no body ſhould preſume ſo much as to repeat his Name. Solin. Valer. Max.

EREBUS, call'd by the Poets the God of Hell, Born of Chaos and Tenebræ; 'tis likewiſe the Name of an infernal River. Erebus in the Phœnician Language ſignifying Darkneſs, gave occaſion to this Poetical Fiction. See Virgil l. 6. Heſiod. Theogon.

ERCHENBAULD de Burban, a Perſon ſo zealous for Juſtice, that he Pardon'd no Crime in any Perſon whatever. Underſtanding therefore, as he lay upon his Death-bed, that one of his Nephews had attempted the Chaſtity of certain Ladies, he order'd him to be Apprehended, and carry'd to Execution. Which the Officers neglecting, and his Nephew imprudently appearing before him within two or three Days after, he call'd him to his Bed-ſide, and pretending to take him about the Neck, in Kindneſs, cut his Throat; chuſing rather to be the Executioner of the Sentence he had pronounc'd, than that this Criminal ſhould go unpuniſh'd. This Accident happen'd in 1220. (according to Cæſarius.) They add, That the Biſhop of the Place coming to receive his Confeſſion, was ſurpriz'd, that among his other Sins, he made no mention of this Murther; and taxing him with it, the Count maintain'd, That he committed no Sin, in executing the Juſtice which he was oblig'd to render to Subjects. His Obſtinacy anger'd the Biſhop to that Degree, that he refus'd to abſolve him, and took away the Sacred Viaticum, or Hoſtie: But as he was going out of the Houſe, the Count ſent for him back, and deſir'd him to ſee whether the Hoſtie was in the Ciboire; and miſſing it, ſhew'd it him upon his Tongue, (as the Story goes,) to confirm, That God approv'd what he had done. Fulgoſus, Del-Rio.

ERECTHEUS, the Sixth King of Athens, ſucceeded Pandion, in the Year of the World, 2655. and reigned 50 Years. Cecrops II. ſucceded him. Boreas a Thracian; Son of Aſtræus, ſtole his Daughter Orithya, three Years before Eunalphus inſtituted the Ceremonies of Ceres, in Eleuſine.

EREMPERT, he liv'd in the Ninth Age, under the Reign of Lewis II. and compos'd a Hiſtory of the Lombards, often quoted by Baronius. Simler, Voſſius.

ERESBY, a Town in the Diviſion of Lindſey, in Lincolnſhire, not far from Bullingbrook, giving the Title of Baron to the Earl of Lindſey.

ERETUM, Monte Ritondo, ſeated upon a Hill, within the Pope's Territories, two Miles from the River Tiber, and twelve from Rome to the North, dignify'd with the Title of a Dukedom, in the Family of Mapheo Barbarini, Prince of Prunaſte.

ERFORD, upon the River Ger, a City of Germany, belonging to the Elector of Mentz: in Latin Erfordia, and Erfurtum. The Capital of Thuringia, Conſiderable for its Wealth, as formerly for its Univerſity, founded in 1351. It was almoſt burnt to the Ground in 1417. but afterwards recovered it ſelf to that Degree, that 'tis an uſual ſaying, That Erfort is rather a Province than a City. Erfort embracing Lutheraniſm put it ſelf under the Protection of the Dukes of Saxony, which occaſion'd great Conteſtations between 'em and the Archbiſhops, and a Diſpute among the German Doctors, Whether a Prince could without violating the Conſtitutions of the Empire, receive under his Protection the Subjects of another Prince. Sometime after Guſtavus Adolphus took it; but by the Pacification of Oſnabrug, the King was contented it ſhould be return'd into the Hands of the Elector. To which the Inhabitants refuſing to ſubmit, they were Outlaw'd by the Emperor; and at the ſame time, the Elector being aſſiſted by the French, made himſelf Maſter of the City and Citadel. (See Memoirs du Tems.) Erford lies three Leagues from Weymar, and as many from Gotha; beautify'd with fair Churches, ſeveral Abbeys; and a ſtately Caſtle, call'd Cyriarburg. Long. 33. 6. Lat. 31.4.

ERGANES, a King of Æthiopia; who finding that the Heathen Prieſts of Meroe had poyſon'd the People with their Superſtitions, to that Degree, as to threaten his Life, depriv'd 'em of their Prieſthood, and put 'em to Death.

ERICTHONIUS, the Fourth King of the Athenians, after Amphictyon, being Born with Dragons Feet, he is feign'd to be the firſt Inventor of Chariots, to hide the Deformity of his Legs. He was alſo the Inventor of Silver, and the Pan-Athênaick Games. See Selden's Comments in Marmora Arundeliana.

ERICTHONIUS, Son to Dardanus and Batæa, Daughter to Teuſa: He ſucceeded his Father in the Year of the World, 2605. In a little Country of Phrygia, in Aſia Minor, afterwards call'd Troas. He reign'd Sixty five years. Euſeb. Chron.

ERICUS, the Name of Nine Kings of Denmark; of which the two firſt are hardly known in Hiſtory. Ericus III. dy'd at Cyprus, in his way to the Holy-Land, in 1102. much eſteemed for his Piety and Prudence. Ericus IV. a Prince both Cruel and Extravagant; was murthered in 1139. Ericus V. unſucceſsful in his Wars with the Swedes, retir'd to a Monaſtery, where he died about the Year 1185. Ericus VI. a Prudent Prince, was murder'd by his Brother Abel, in 1250. Ericus VII. ſucceeded Chriſtopher I. in 1259. and was put to Death by his own Officers, after he had reigned 28 Years in great Tranquility. Ericus VIII. reveng'd the Death of his Father, took Roſtock, and dy'd in 1321. after he had reigned 35 Years. Ericus IX. began his Reign in 1412. but his Cruelties caus'd his Subjects to revolt from him: At length, being wearied with the Toyls of Government, he retir'd into Pomerania; and there, as 'tis ſuppoſed, it was that he wrote the Hiſtory of Denmark; which begins, Dani, ut teſtantur Veteres Hiſtoriographi, &c. He dy'd in the Year 1459. and 77th. of his Age. Pontanus, Olaus Magnus, Voſſius.

ERICUS, or Henricus, the Name of Fourteen Kings of Sweden. Of which the moſt Conſiderable in Hiſtory, were Ericus I. who made good Laws, Enlarg'd his Dominions, People'd the Daniſh Iſles; and finding his own Kingdom too much burthen'd with People, undertook ſeveral Expeditions, and ſack'd Rugia. Ericus III. by his Conqueſts enlarg'd his Dominions more conſiderably. Ericus IV. applauded for his Wit and Courage. Ericus IX. put to Death by his Subjects, for endeavouring to introduce Chriſtianity into his Kingdom. Ericus XII. fortunate in ſeveral Expeditions, and highly eſteem'd for his Military Conduct: reign'd 28 Years, and dy'd in 1250. Ericus XIV. Eldeſt Son of Guſtavus I. began his Reign in 1560. was a great Admirer of Learned Men, and well skill'd in Aſtronomy and Mathematicks. He confirm'd the Privileges which the Kings his Predeceſſors had granted to the Cities on the Baltick; reliev'd the Town of Revel, which had put it ſelf under his Protection, by which he diſguſted the Moſcovites. He was alſo at Variance with the Town of Lubeck, the Kings of Denmark and Poland: And being jealous of his Brother John, turn'd his Arms againſt him, and put him in Irons. This unſteady Conduct drew his Neighbours upon him; and his ill Succeſs in the War againſt theſe, incens'd him to that Degree, that he ſeiz'd and put to Death the Chief Officers of his Army, with Denys Burg his Maſter, as guilty of a Conſpiracy, without hearing what they could ſay for themſelves. To atone ſomewhat for this, he ſet his Brother at Liberty. Some time after he Marry'd his Concubine, and Crown'd her Queen of Swedeland. John and Charles, his Brothers, withdrew from the Court, unwilling to aſſiſt at a Match ſo unworthy their Birth; and were ſoon follow'd by their Uncles, and the Chief of the Kingdom. Ericus rais'd Men, and ſent after them; but his Troops revolted to them. Afterwards he was beſieg'd at Stockholm; and ſurrendring himſelf, was, with his Wife, caſt into Priſon; and John by general Conſent, Proclaimed King. Thuan. Pontanus, Puffendorf Introduct. Hiſt. &c,

ERICUS (Peter) being Commander of the Adriatick Sea, for the State of Venice, in 1584. fortun'd to take a Ship with 800000 Crowns, in Money and Goods, which the Widow of Ramadan, Baſha of Tripoli, was carrying to Conſtantinople: He kill'd 250 Men that were in this and the Ship that tended her; and with his own Sword ſlew the Baſha's young Son in his Mother's Arms; and having cauſed 40 Women that were on board to be Violated, got 'em cut in pieces, and thrown into the Sea. The Senate, incens'd at ſo barbarous a Cruelty, caus'd him to be Beheaded, and ſent the rich Prize to Amurat III. the Turkiſh Emperor. See the Hiſt. of Venice.

ERICUSA, an Iſland in the Tyrrhene-Sea, toward Sicily, 20 Miles diſtant from Lipara; 7 from Phœnicuſa, Weſtward; and 30 from Uſtica, to the Eaſt. Alſo another Iſland of the ſame Name in the Ionian-Sea, now call'd Patchſu, to the South of Corcyra, and hardly 12 Miles from the Shore of Epirus, Weſtward, under the Venetians, who give the Citizens of Parga leave to feed their Cattel in it. Ferrarius.

ERIGONE, Daughter of Icarius, Hang'd her ſelf for Grief. Poets feign, That Bacchus having taught Icarius the Art of making Wine, preſented him with a Butt of that excellent Liquor. Icarius invited ſome Shepherds of Attica to drink of it: Which they doing ſomewhat too liberally, committed ſuch Extravagances, that their Comrades thought 'em Poyſon'd; and thereupon killing Icarius, threw his Body into a deep Pit, which they fill'd up with Earth: But Icarius's Dog, call'd Mæra, by its continual Howling, diſcover'd the place: Whereupon Erigone Hang'd her ſelf on a Tree. It happen'd, ſome time after, that the Athenian Maids and Women were tranſported with ſuch Fury, that they Hang'd themſelves in great Numbers. And the Oracle being conſulted for a Remedy, order'd that they ſhould inſtitute Plays that ſhould, in ſome manner, reſemble the Death of Erigone. They invented Swings; and all the Diſorder ceas'd. And Jupiter, to recompence the Piety of this young Woman, and Fidelity of the Dog, turn'd Erigone into the Conſtellation call'd Virgo, Mæra into the Dog-Star, and Icarius into that call'd the Cow-Herd. Hygin.

ERISICTHON, a Theſſalian Lord, who Felling, almoſt a whole Foreſt, conſecrated to Ceres, The Goddeſs was ſo provok'd, that ſhe puniſh'd him with a Famine, which deſtroy'd his Cattel, and ruin'd his Eſtate to that Degree, that he was forc'd to proſtitute his Daughter for Bread: In fine, he was, at laſt brought to ſuch Diſtreſs, that after having liv'd upon his own Fleſh, he died of Deſpair. Calimachus in Himno in Cecerem. Ovid. Metam. lib. 8.

ERITH, a Market-Town of Hurſtington-Hundred, in the Eaſt of Huntingtonſhire, bordering upon Cambridge. Alſo a Town in the North-Weſt Parts of Kent, near the Thames.

ERITHREA, an Epiſcopal City of Ionia, under the Archbiſhop of Epheſus, where the Erythrean Sibyl was born, who liv'd in the time of the Trojan War, and foretold the Deſtruction of Troy. The Romans ſent Deputies to Erythrea, to gather up her Verſes: And thoſe which they brought back, condemn'd the Multiplicity of Gods, ſaying, That there was but one Creator of Heaven and Earth. Euſebius of Cæſarea quotes 27 of her Verſes; mentioning the Firſt coming of the Son of God, to aſſume Humane Nature; and the Second, to Judge the World. Theſe Verſes are Acroſticks upon theſe words; Jeſus Chriſtus, Dei Filius, Servator, Crux. Euſebius, Blond. Lactantius, lib. 1, &c.

ERIVAN, a City of Armenia, or Turcomannia, upon the Frontiers of Turkey and Perſia. The Old City being ruin'd by the Wars between the Turks and Perſians, the New one was built 800 Paces beyond it upon a Rock; at the foot of which run two Rivers, Zanguy to the North-Weſt, and Queark-boulack, or Forty-Fountains, to the South-Weſt. You croſs the River Zanguy, over a fair Stone Bridge with three Arches; upon which are built certain Chambers, where the Governor ſometimes ſpends his time in the heat of Summer. The Fortreſs looks like a little Town, inhabited by none but Natural Perſians. The Armenians have their Shops in it, where they work and trade all Day; but ſhut up in the Evening, and return into the City. The Garriſon conſiſts of 2000 Men. The Governor's Palace is in the Fort, very Magnificent; and in Summer-time very Delightful. A thouſand Paces from the City ſtands a little Fort, call'd Queutchi-cala. There are ſeveral Churches in the City; of which the Chief are the Cathedral, and another call'd Catovike. Near the great Market-place ſtands Deuf-Sultan's Moſque; ſo called, from the Name of the Founder. The Meidan is a large ſquare place, planted round with Trees, where they make their Publick Exerciſes and Divertiſements. The Caravanſera's, or Inns, are very Commodious, where the Merchants have their Lodging and Ware-houſes for nothing. When any Caravan arrives at Erivan, the Governor is bound to give the King of Perſia Notice: And if any Embaſſador arrive, he is Treated at the Governor's Charge; and convoy'd to the next Governor, who does the ſame. This is the place where all the Silk Merchants meet together, and where they pay a certain Cuſtom call'd Raderi. The Air of Erivan is wholſom; but the Winter is ſomewhat tedious. Nevertheleſs, the Country is very fertile, and produces variety of Fruits in abundance; eſpecially Wine, which is excellent and cheap. The Armenians have a Tradition, That Noah planted the Vine within a League of Erivan, and will undertake to ſhew you the Place. The Country affords great ſtore of Partridge, and Fiſh in abundance; eſpecially Carps and Trouts, much eſteemed over all the Eaſt for their Taſte and Largeneſs, of which ſome are three foot long. Theſe Fiſh are taken not only in the Rivers, but in a Lake about 3 ſmall Days Journey from the City, by the Perſians called Deria-Chirin; by the Armenians, Kiagar-couni-ſou; that is to ſay, the Sweet-Lake, 25 Leagues in compaſs, and very deep; with a ſmall Iſland in the middle, where ſtands a Monaſtery, the Prior of which is an Archbiſhop, who aſſumes the Title of Patriarch, and will not acknowledge the Patriarch of the Armenians. It croſſes one part of Armenia, and mixes with the Araxis near the Caſpian-Sea. Erivan was taken by the Turks in 1582. Re-taken by the Perſians in 1604. In 1629. the Turks poſſeſſed themſelves of it again; but were expell'd by the Sophi in 1635. Chardin, Tavernier.

ERKENWALD, the Third Biſhop of London, after the Saxons were poſſeſſed of the Iſland. He was Son of Offa, King of the Eaſt-Saxons, converted to Chriſtianity by Mellitus Biſhop of London, in the Year 642, and Conſecrated Biſhop of London by Theodorus Archbiſhop of Canterbury in 675. This Erkenwald was a Perſon of a very Holy and Exemplary Life: Built two Monaſteries with his Patrimonial Eſtate, and was ſo Happy as to convert Sebba, King of the Eaſt-Saxons. He likewiſe enlarg'd the Buildings of his Cathedral St. Paul's, enrich'd it with Endowments, and procur'd it the Grants of ſeveral Privileges from the Saxon Kings. He died in the Year of our Lord 685, and was Bury'd in St. Paul's, with a ſtately Monument. Dugdale's Hiſtory of St. Paul's Cathedral, &c.

ERMENSUL, or Irmenſul, an Idol of the Old Saxons of Weſtphalia, who had a ſtately Temple upon the Hill Eresberg, now call'd Stadtberg. The Generality believe, that this pretended Deity was Mars, worſhipped by this warlike People, as the Protector of their Country; from whence came the Name of Mersberg, or Mars's Hill, as Stadtberg was formerly call'd. Others call this Idol, Herminſul, as if it ſignified the Statue of Hermes or Mercury. Charlemagne having conquer'd the Saxons, deſtroy'd this Idol, and conſecrated the Temple to the Service of the true God, in the Year 709. Monumenta Paderbornenſia, Printed in 1672.

ERMERIC, King of the Suevians, paſſed into Spain, and Reigned there 31 Years, after he had ravaged all the Provinces of that Kingdom. Gauderic, King of the Vandals, oppos'd him firſt of all; but in ſhort time gave him over. Genſeric defeated his General Hermingaire: but Ermeric taking the Field in Perſon, harraſs'd Gallicia; and after he had grappl'd with a tedious Diſtemper, dy'd in 440. Idacius Chron.

ERMINSTREET-WAY, a Cauſey which runs from Royſton to Huntington.

ERNESTUS, Elector of Saxony, was the Grandchild of Frederick II. ſirnam'd the Warriour; under whom the Dukedom of Saxony was honour'd with the Electoral Dignity in the Poſterity of Witikind. He was a Prince of great Prudence, and admirable Conduct; and had the honour to reconcile three Kings who had great Conteſts one with another, Caſimir of Poland, Ladiſlaus of Bohemia, and Matthias of Hungary, who made him their Mediator and Umpire of their Differences. He built the Caſtle of Wettenburg, and founded an Univerſity there in 1502.

EROPUS or EROPS, a King of Macedon, ſucceeded his Father Philip I. in the Year of the World 4356, being then an Infant in the Cradle: The Illyrians taking advantage of the Minority of this Prince, attack'd the Macedonians, and defeated them. The Macedonians, being very much alarm'd at this misfortune, reſolv'd to carry their King in his Cradle into the Field, hoping this Expedient would animate the Souldiers: The Project took accordingly; for their Army, rather than leave their little Prince to the Mercy of the Enemy, fought it ſtoutly and carry'd the Day. Juſtin. lib. 7.

EROS, one of Mark Antony's Slaves; who when his Maſter, in deſpair, after the Battel of Actium, conjur'd him to run him through the Body, drew his Sword, as if it had been to do him that cruel Office; but at the ſame time turning the Point upon his own Breaſt, ran himſelf through the Heart, and fell dead at his Maſter's Feet. This Accident happen'd at Alexandria, after the Death of Cleopatra. Plutarch, Tom. 1. Pag. 951.

ERPACH, Lat. Erpachum, a ſmall City of Germany, in Franconia, with the Title of an Earldom. The Territory which belongs to it is properly in Ottenwald, or the Foreſt of Otten, between the Rhine, the Mein, and the Neckar. The Counts of Erpach are Lords of ſome neighbouring Boroughs, and have a Seat in the General Dyets of the Empire.

ERPENIUS, otherwiſe Thomas of Erp, born at Gorcum, in Holland, in 1584. He was the Wonder of his Age, for his Knowledge of the Eaſtern and the Ethiopick Languages. The King of Spain invited him to his Court, to explain certain Arabick Inſcriptions: And the King of Morocco admir'd his Epiſtles, in Arabick, to that Degree, that he could not forbear reading 'em himſelf, and ſhewing 'em to thoſe that ſpoke the Language naturally. Among other Pieces, he left behind him an Hebrew and Arabick Grammar, and a Saracene Hiſtory in Arabick and Latin. He wrote beſides Proverbia Arabica. Fabulæ Locmanni. Hiſtoria Joſephi Patriarchæ. Publiſhed the Pſalms in Syriac, and the Pentateuch in Arabick. Meurſius, Athen. Batav. lib. 2.

ERQUICO, a City of Africa, upon the Red-Sea; with a convenient Harbour, which draws a conſiderable Trade to the Town. The Turks are Maſters of the place, under the Command of the Beglerbeg of Suaquen, who at the Port is called the Baſſa of Abaſſia.

ERRIC II. King of Denmark; lived in the Xth. Century, of whom there is nothing conſiderable recorded, but that hearing of a Muſician that could raiſe what Paſſion he pleas'd in thoſe that heard him, he ſent for him, and bid him excite a Martial Paſſion in thoſe that were preſent. Which he did ſo effectually, that they all began to look out for their Weapons; and the King himſelf was put into ſuch a Fury, that he ſent for his Sword, and ran three or four of his Train through the Bodies. Saxo-Gram. Felibien.

ERRIF, a Province of the Kingdom of Fez, in Barbary, extending in Length upon the Mediterranean-Sea, between the Province of Habat to the Weſt, and that of Garet to the Eaſt. ERROL (John Hay Earl of Errol) deſcended from the ancient and noble Family of Hay, which was firſt rais'd upon this honourable Occaſion; in the Year 980, and Reign of Kenneth III. the Danes having invaded Scotland, gave Bartel to the Scots at Longcarty near Perth; the Scots being worſted in the Fight gave way, and being forc'd to paſs a Defile in their Flight, were ſtopt by a Countryman and his two Sons, and by them encourag'd to Rally, and renew the Fight: The Example, Reſiſtance, and Reproaches of theſe brave Men, who were arm'd only with what their Ploughs furniſh'd, put new Life into the routed Army, who returning to the Field, defeated the Danes by this Re-inforcement from the Plough, and deliver'd their Country from Servitude. The Battel being over, the Father, afterwards known by the Name of Hay, was, for this good Service brought into the Preſence, ennobled by the King in a Parliament at Scone, rewarded with the beſt part of the Enemies Baggage, and had a Grant of the Barony of Errol, in the Cauſey of Gowry, containing as much Land as a Faulcon flew over without Lighting, and lying in the beſt part of the Kingdom; the March Stones being about ſeven Miles diſtant, are to this day commonly called, The Faulcon Stones. The particular State of this Family, from the Reign of Kenneth III. to that of K. Robert I. is not clear upon the Records; length of Time, and accidents of War having ſunk the Hiſtory; however there are two Charters extant, Granted by King William the Lyon, of the Lands of Errol to William de Haya, and David de Haya, and in the Charters of Malcolme IV. William and Alexander II. frequent mention is made of Gulielmus de Haya, and Johannes de Haya as Witneſſes; and at Berwick, in the Diſpute betwixt Bruce and Baliol, before King Edward I. of England, Nicholas de la Haya is one of the Arbitrators; but ſince the beginning of the Reign of King Robert Bruce, the Pedegree is very clear and uninterrupted, as follows: Firſt, Gilbert de la Haya, Lord Hay of Errol, adher'd to King Robert I. in all his Troubles, when almoſt the whole Nation had ſubmitted to Baliol; in Conſideration therefore of his great Loyalty, he was created Lord High Conſtable of Scotland, in the VIth. Year of the Reign of that Prince, which Office was granted to him and his Heirs, and is ſtill enjoy'd by 'em; this King Robert I. likewiſe rewarded him with a conſiderable Grant of Lands in the Shire of Aberdeen. This Lord Gilbert died at Aberdeen in 1330, and was Bury'd in the Abbey-Church of Coopar; where ſeveral of his Succeſſours were likewiſe Interr'd. Secondly, Nicholas de la Haya, Lord Hay, and of this Family, the ſecond Great Conſtable of Scotland, Son and Heir to Gilbert Lord Hay, with 280 Gentlemen of his Family, were kill'd in the Service of King David Bruce, againſt Edward Baliol in the Battel of Duxlin, Anno 1332. He was ſucceeded in his Honour and Eſtate, by David de la Haya, who attended King David Bruce in the Wars againſt the Engliſh, and was kill'd in the Battel of Durham, in the Year 1344. His Son Thomas, Lord Hay ſucceeded him, who, in the Year 1376. Married one of the Daughters of King Robert III. in the Right of whom he became poſſeſſed of the Barony of Inchtuthill in Perthſhire. In the Year 1388. this Thomas was at the memorable Battel of Aberdeen, and died at Inchtuthill in 1406. William de la Hay, Lord Hay ſucceeded his Father Thomas, he was one of thoſe who were Deputed to treat for the Liberty of King James I. who was detain'd Priſoner in England, which Affair, Archibald Earl of Douglas, Henry Biſhop of Aberdeen, and this Lord manag'd with great Prudence and Succeſs. He died at Turriff in 1434; leaving Iſſue by his Wife Margaret Daughter to the Lord Graham, Gilbert and William, and was ſucceded by the former, who married a Lady of his own Name and Family; by whom, beſides five other Sons he had William, who ſucceeded to the Honour and Eſtate in 1436, he was created Earl of Errol by King James II. both upon the Score of his Quality, and particular Services to that Prince; he married Beatrix Douglas, Daughter to the Earl of Morton, and died at Slaines in 1461, and was ſucceeded by his Son and Heir Nicholas, Lord Hay, and ſecond Earl of Errol, who married Elizabeth Gordon, Daughter to the Earl of Huntley, and died, at Killimuir in 1467. By the Lady abovemention'd, he had Iſſue William, who ſucceeded to the Honour and Eſtate, and was third Earl of Errol, and ninth Great Conſtable of Scotland; he married Jane Stewart, Daughter to the Earl of Athol, by whom he had Iſſue William, who ſucceeded him in 1478, this William fourth Earl of Errol, married Elizabeth Leſley, Daughter to the Earl of Rothes, by whom he had Iſſue, William his Succeſſour; he died at Errol in 1495. William Lord Hay fifth Earl of Errol, Sheriff of Aberdeen, &c. Married Chriſtiana Lyon, Daughter to the Lord Glames, by whom he had Iſſue, 1ſt. William II. Sir Thomas of Logie, and two Daughters; this Earl William was kill'd with King James IV. at the fatal Battel of Flodden, together with 87 Gentlemen of his Name, in the Year 1513, and was ſucceeded by William his eldeſt Son, ſixth Earl of Errol, twelfth Great Conſtable of Scotland, and Sheriff of Aberdeenſhire; he married Helena Stewart, Daughter to John Earl of Lennox, by whom he had Iſſue, William VII. The Country produces good Store of Corn and Paſturage for Cattle. Here good Turkey-Leather is dreſt, and Cloth made which comes almoſt up to the fineneſs of that of Europe; the moſt conſiderable Towns here, are Iſadagar, d' Abmedine, d' Elemedin, and d' Bizu. Marmol de l' Afric. lib. 3.

ESCURIAL, a ſmall Village about ſix Leagues from Madrid; where ſtands one of the Palaces of the King of Spain, that encloſes a Monaſtery and a College. You aſcend to the Palace between two Rows of Elms, without any flat Court before the Gate, in regard the Building takes up all the level Ground. The Palace contains many Magnificent Apartments, but the Furniture is not very Rich. The Stone is very Beautiful, between a kind of Marble and a Brown ſhining Free-ſtone, with Grey Speckles. Nor are the Buildings embelliſh'd like thoſe of France; all that is to be admir'd in the Eſcurial being the vaſt heap of ſo many Stones that compoſe the whole Structure; which contains 17 Cloyſters, and 22 Courts. The Monaſtery contains 4 Cloyſters, beſides that which is ſet a-part for the Uſe of the Apothecaries. St. Lawrence's Church is a fair Structure, adorn'd with Pictures, and a great number of Braſs Figures Guilt, all Maſter-pieces of Art and Ingenuity. The Grand Altar is rais'd upon an Aſcent of 17 Steps, of Porphyry, environ'd with 4 rows of Jaſper Columns. The Sanctuary is enrich'd with an infinite number of Precious-Stones; and the Pyx for the Hoſt is valu'd at 500000 Crowns. ESDRAS, a Jewiſh Prieſt and Doctour of the Law: He was much in favour with Artaxerxes Longimanus, who ſent him to Jeruſalem, with very Rich Preſents, for the Service and Ornament of the Temple, lately rebuilt under Zerubbabel. The King likewiſe ſent an Order to the Governours of the Neighbouring Provinces to furniſh Eſdras with what was neceſſary for the Magnificence of the Jewiſh Religion, and to exempt the Prieſts from paying Taxes. He likewiſe gave Order to puniſh thoſe, who ſhould take the liberty to do any thing in Contempt of the True God, or the King of Perſia. This Eſdras, is generally ſuppos'd to have made a Collection of the Canon of Scripture, which he divided into 22 Books, according to the Number of the Letters of the Hebrew Alphabet; and that by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt, he added certain Relations, which happen'd after the Death of the Authors, ſuch as the laſt Chapter of Deuteronomy for Example. St. Jerome affirms, that Eſdras brought in the Uſe of the Chaldee Square Letter, leaving the Old Character to the Samaritans, and Genebrard is of Opinion, that with the Advice of the Great Synagogue, he parted the Holy Books into Verſes, being at firſt written without this Diſtinction. He founded likewiſe a School in Jeruſalem, and left a Scheme of Directions, by which the Interpreters of the Law were to proceed in their Explanations of the Difficulties of the Scriptures. Some Writers ſuppoſe the Chronicles wrote by Eſdras. There are four Books go under his Name. The Second appears to have been written after his Death, and the Two laſt are counted Apocryphal, even by the Church of Rome. Salian. Spondan. Torniel. A. The Tribe of Eſquequin is divided into ſeveral Communities, that live in Villages compos'd of Tents which they remove from one place to another. Every Village conſiſts of 150 or 200 Tents; which are pitched in a Circular Order, with a void Space in the middle, wherein they encloſe their Cattle; having only two Avenues to it, which they ſtop up in the Night-time with Briars and Buſhes, for fear of the Wild Beaſts. Marmol.

ESSECK, a City in the Eaſtern Province of Sclavonia, with a Bridge 8565 Geometrical Paces long, and 17 broad, runing over the Save, over a long Marſh, and the River Fenns, from the City to the Fort of Darda, which is on the other ſide, in the Lower Hungary. The Town ſtands low, and the Streets are plank'd with Trees, (as Dr. Brown aſſures us, who hath ſeen it.) Upon one ſide of the Gate is part of a Roman Inſcription, M. Ælian, &c. on the other, a Man's Head in Stone. In or near this place Conſtantius defeated Magnentius the Uſurper and Murderer of Conſtantine II. in 359. The Town is Great and Populous, by reaſon of the Trade and Commerce, on the Account of the Paſſage, but not Strong; and therefore the Turks have of late beſtow'd much Coſt and Pains in Fortifying it. But that which is the great Wonder, is, the Bridge over the Drave, and the Marſhes on both ſides. This Bridge is 5 Miles over, having Rails on both ſides, and Towers of Wood at every quarter of a Mile, built by Solyman the Magnificent, in 1521. as ſoon as he had taken Belgrade. It is ſo broad, that three Waggons may go a breaſt, and all built of Oaken Timber. Count Nicholas Serini burnt part of it in 1664. which neceſſitated the Turks to build that part a little nearer the Danube; becauſe they could not, without great Charges and Difficulty, pluck up the Remainder of the Trees which the Water had preſerved from the Fire. By this Bridge the Turkiſh Armies uſe to paſs between Hungary and Conſtantinople. Near this place the unfortunate Lewis, King of Hungary, was defeated, in 1526 in attempting to ſtop Solyman's Paſſage into his Kingdom. Count Leſly burnt it a ſecond time, in 1685. and poſſeſſed himſelf of the Town of Eſſeck; but the Caſtle holding out, he blew up their Magazines, plunder'd the Town, and left it. In 1686. the Turks began to build it after another manner, by driving Rows of Trees into the Earth, and filling up the ſpace with Earth, that it might not be ſubject to be ruin'd by Fire. But the Duke of Lorrain deſtroy'ed it in 1687. drove the Turks over the Drave, and in a few Days entirely ruin'd what 8000 Men had been many Months a building. Purſuing his Deſign, and paſſing the Drave to take Eſſeck, he found the Prime Viſier poſted there with all the Forces he could raiſe, very advantageouſly; with the Danube on the Left, a Wood on the Right, the Town and Drave behind, and a Moraſs before him; between which and his Camp was a Dike 20 Foot deep, 40 broad, and two Miles long, ſtrengthened with Paliſadoes and Redoubts, and defended with 100 Cannon. Whereupon the Duke retreated June the 20th. and repaſs'd the Drave at Siclos. See Mohatz. After the Unfortunate taking of Belgrade by the Turks, October 1690. they ſat down with an Army of 15000 Men before this place, but retir'd without Succeſs.

ESSEDONS, or ISSEDONS, a People of Scythia, mention'd by Herodotus, Pliny, Ptolemy, and Pomponius Mela. Their Capital was Iſſedon, now call'd Caracoran. The Eſſedons eat the Dead Bodies of their Relations, excepting the Head, which they ſet in Gold, and Sacrific'd to it as an Idol.

ESSENES, or Eſſenians, a Famous Sect among the Jews, whoſe Opinions ſymboliz'd in many things with the Pythagoreans. They profeſs'd Community of Goods. They ſhunn'd all Pleaſures, and Marriage among the reſt; wore White Garments, forbad Oaths, drank nothing but Water, us'd Inanimate Sacrifices, had their Elders in ſingular Reſpect; and were above all others ſo ſtrict in the Obſervation of the Sabbath, that they prepared their Meat on the Eve; would not remove a Veſſel out of its place, nor even eaſe or ſupply Nature, unleſs much preſs'd. Another ſort there was that allowed Marriage, for the ſake of Procreation, after they had ſtay'd three Years to try whether the Woman were Healthy, and fit to bear Children; but never lay with their Wives after Conception, to ſhew, that it was more out of a deſire to benefit the Commonwealth, than to ſatisfie their Luſt. Theſe Eſſenes were again divided into Practicks and Theoricks. The firſt liv'd in Cities, the other in ſolitary Places. The firſt ſpent their Time in Handy-crafts, the latter only in Meditation. The Practicks, had Dinner and Supper; the Theoricks, only Supper. (Joſeph Bell. Jud. l. 2: c. 12. Antiq. l. 18. Solin. c. 36. Euſeb. l. 2. c. 15, 16.) Note, That thoſe Eſſenes which liv'd under the Diſcipline of St. Mark, at Alexandria, were Chriſtians, as St. Jerom obſerves, in his Book of Eccleſiaſtical Writers. St. Jerom, St. Chryſoſtom, Solin.

ESSEQUEBE, in Lat. Eſſequebia, a River of South America in Guaiana, riſing out of the Lake Parime, whence runing Northward into the Country of the Caribbes, it receives divers other Rivers, and throws it ſelf into the North Sea, between Orenoque to the Weſt, and Dematar to the Eaſt.

ESSEX, a Maritime County in the South-eaſt Parts of England, has Suffolk and Cambridgeſhire on the North; Kent on the South; the German Ocean Eaſtward; Hartfordſhire and Middleſex Weſtward. From Kent it is divided by the Thames, from Suffolk by the Stoure, from Hartfordſhire and Middleſex, moſt part by the River Lee; beſides which Rivers, here are the Chelmer, Coln, Roden, Crouch, and others yielding Plenty of Fiſh. Its Length from Eaſt to Weſt is 40 Miles; Its Breadth from North to South 35. The whole divided into 20 Hundreds, wherein are 415 Pariſhes, and 22 Market-Towns; whoſe Inhabitants in the time of the Romans, went together with thoſe of Middleſex, by the Name of Trinobantes, and both Counties together, with part of Hartfordſhire, made the Kingdom of the Eaſt-Saxons, in the time of the Heptarchy; which makes up now the Dioceſs of London. As for the Air of this County, it is like that of Kent; in moſt Parts very good, in ſome bad and Aguiſh, and in thoſe eſpecially call'd The Hundreds of Eſſex, lying low and near unto the Sea. For which Reaſon theſe Parts are the leaſt Inhabited, tho' the moſt fruitful and rich. The particular Commodities wherein this County excels, are Hops, Saffron, and Oyſters. The Firſt in the Moiſt Grounds. The Saffron thrives beſt in the North of Eſſex, where one Acre of Ground will yield 80 or 100 Weight of moiſt Saffron in a Year, which being dried, is valued 20 Pounds Sterling, and after three Years Glebe of Saffron, 'twill yield for 18 Years more, plenty of Barley, without any Manuring, and then bear Saffron again. As for Oyſters, the beſt in England, fat, ſalt, green, finn'd, are bred near Colcheſter; where they have an excellent Art to feed them in Pits made for that purpoſe. The Chief Manufactures here, are, Bays, Sayes, Serges, and other the like Stuffs: made in and about Colcheſter, Cogſhall, Pedham, &c. Here is alſo more Gun-Powder made by Mills erected on the River Lee, betwixt Waltham and London, than in all England beſides. For Stately Buildings you will find, 1 Audley-End, a Royal Houſe, built by Thomas Howard Earl of Suffolk, and Treaſurer of England. 2. New-Hall, built by the Ratcliffs, Earls of Suſſex. 3. Copt-Hall, ſeated upon a Hill in the midſt of a Park, built by the Abbot of Waltham, now in the Poſſeſſion of the Earl of Dorſet and Middleſex, This County gave the Title of Earl to the Families of the Mandeviles, the Bohuns, the Bourchiers, Thomas Lord Cromwell, William Lord Parre, before it came to the D'Evereux's, Robert D'Evereux Viſcount Hereford, General of the Parliaments Army againſt Charles I. dying Septemb. 13. 1646. and his Son Robert an Infant, before the Reſtitution of King Charles II. Arthur Capel Baron of Hadham, was created Earl of Eſſex and Viſcount Maldon, April 20. 1661. and made Lord Lieutenant in Ireland in 1672. He died unhappily in the Tower, and his Son, then an Infant, ſucceeded him in this Honour.

ESTAMPES, in Lat. Stampa, a City of France in Beauce, Ennobled with the Title of a Dukedom, ſeated upon the River Ivine, between Paris and Orleans, in a fertile Country. There is in it a Collegiate Church, and ſeveral Religious Houſes. This City ſuffer'd much during the Civil Wars, at what time it was taken by the Proteſtants; upon which the Caſtle Surrender'd, and was afterwards ruin'd in 1652. It was Erected into a Dukedom by Francis I. in favour of John le Broſſe. The Family of Eſtampes is very conſiderable in France, and has produc'd ſeveral great Perſonages, among whom was James d'Eſtampes, Mareſchal of France, by the Name of Mareſchal de la Ferte-Imbaut, frequently mention'd in the Hiſtories of this laſt Age; who ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Seige of Soiſſons in 1617. at the Battel of Pont Ce in 1620. and in the Civil Wars, eſpecially at the Siege of Rochelle, in 1628. and of Privas in 29. afterwards at the Battel of Veillaine, and Relief of Caſal in 1630. at the Battel of Avein, in 1635. at the Sieges of Landrecie, Maubeuge and La Chapelle, in 1637. at the Battle of Mouzon, and the taking of Ivoy, in 1639. was employ'd at the Sieges of Graveline, Bourbourg, Mardick, Linck, Bergues, &c. in 1645. he was at the Sieges of Courtray, Mardick, Furnes and Dunkirk, in 1646. at the Paſſage of the Scheld, in 1649 Achilles d'Eſtampes, was Knight of Maltha, and General of the Eccleſiaſtical Army unde Urban VIII. who made him a Cardinal, in 1643. ESTOTILAND, a ſpacious Region of North America, toward the Artic Lands of Hudſon's Bay, to the North of New France; a fruitful Soil, but Mountainous and over-run with Foreſts full of Wild Beaſts; firſt diſcover'd by Nicolas and Andrew Zeni, two Venetians; and afterwards by John Scolul a Polander. But the Diſcovery reaches no farther than the Sea-ſhore, where it is by the Portugueſes call'd Terra de Labrador; by the Engliſh, New Britain. Du Val, Davity.

ESTOUTEVILLE, a Borough of France in Upper Normandy, which Francis I. erected into a Dukedom, and which derived its Name to the Noble Family of Eſtouteville. Of this Family was William d' Eſtouteville, made a Cardinal by Eugenius IV. in 1439. in great favour with him, Pius II. Sixtus IV. and Calixtus III. and died in the Year 1482. being Chamberlain of the Church, and Dean of the College; with ſeveral other Lords and great Perſonages.

ESTREES, an Ancient Noble Family of Picardy, productive of great Perſonages. Among the reſt moſt noted in Hiſtory, were John d' Eſtrees, Grand Maſter of the Artillery of France. He is ſaid to have been the firſt Gentleman in Picardy, who made publick Profeſſion of the Reformed Religion. He is reported to have walk'd upright in all his Trenches and Batteries, never ſtooping to ſhun the Bullets that flew about his Ears: And for the moſt part rode upon a tall Sorrel Horſe, 20 Years old, as bold as his Maſter. He taught the French the Art of Caſting great Guns, and made choice of Excellent Commiſſaries, that were for the moſt part Proteſtants. Francis Hannibal, Duke d' Eſtrees, Marſhal of France, ſuccour'd the Duke of Mantua, beſieged in his Capital City by the Imperialiſts, in 1630. took Treves by Compoſition in 1632. and humbled the Pope being Ambaſſador at Rome. His Works are, De Judiciali Aſtronomia. Dilucidarium Planetarum. Tractatus de Sinubus. Judiciale Aſtronomicum. De Accidentibus Mundi. Summa Anglicana. Balæus & Pitſæus. Voſſius de Math. &c.

ETEOCLES, the Son of Oedipus and Jocaſta his Mother, who agreed with his Brother Polynices to reign every other Year by Turns, but when his Year was out, refus'd to Surrender to his Brother. Upon which Polynices, aſſiſted by Tydeus and Adraſtus, made War upon Eteocles, wherein they ſlew each other, fighting hand to hand. Statius Theb.

ETEOCLES, one of the Lacedæmonian Ephori, who refus'd Antipater King of Macedon, the Hoſtages which he demanded after the Defeat of Agis, which were 50 Spartan Youths; alledging for his Excuſe, that they were young Trees that were to be well Cultivated, which could be done no where better than in their own Soil. He offer'd double the Number of Old Men or Women; but that not ſufficing, and Antipater uſing ſevere threats withal, Eteocles made anſwer, that if he requir'd of the Lacedæmonians things more difficult to bear than Death, it would be better for them to die, than give him what he demanded. Plutarch in Apophtheg.

ETFINUS, the 61ſt King of Scotland, Son to Eugenius VII. Succeeded Mordacus, A. C. 730. He kept the Kingdom in Peace for 31 Years that he adminiſtred the Government; and in his old Age appointed Four Vicegerents. Buchan.

ETHALIDES, the Son of Mercury, who, being allow'd by his Father to wiſh for what he had a mind to, Immortality excepted, deſir'd that he might have the Faculty of remembring all the Tranſmigrations of his Soul, after Death. Diogenes Laertius, who relates this Story from Heraclides Ponticus, in the beginning of Pythagoras's Life, tells us, that this Philoſopher, being deſirous to gain Credit to the Doctrine of his Metempſycoſis, affirm'd himſelf the Ethalides above mention'd: And that in virtue of his Father Mercury's Favour, he underſtood the ſeveral Ranges and Conditions, his Soul had undergone ſince the Death of his firſt Perſon Ethalides. Diog. Laert. Lib. VIII.

ETHELBALD, King of England, Succeeded to Ethelwolf his Father, Anno 857. But Ethelbert his Brother had a ſhare in the Kingdom; Kent, Eſſex, Surrey, and Suſſex, being bequeathed to him by his Father. In whoſe Life-time, Ethelbald proved unnatural and diſloyal to him; and now, after his Death, he fell into another Sin, of too much love for his Widow, inſomuch that he Married her, and took her into his Bed; whoſe coming into the Land he had ſtrongly oppos'd. The better Part of the Kingdom he had formerly uſurped from his Father, and Ruled two Years with him. And now he Reigned three Years after him with his Brother, leaving nothing Memorable of all his Reign, but his Inceſtuous Marriage with his Mother-inLaw. He had however the good luck to be all that while unmoleſted by the Danes. Matthew of Weſtminſter ſays, That he repented of his Inceſt with Judith, and diſmiſſed her: but Aſſer, who lived in thoſe Times, is ſilent in that Point. Huntingdon ſpeaks much to his Praiſe, and writes him Buried at Sherburn.

ETHELBERT, King of England, was ſecond Son to King Ethelwolf, and ſucceeded in the whole Kingdom to his Brother Ethelbald, Anno 860. In whoſe Reign the Danes began again to diſturb this Kingdom, who had been quiet all the former Reign. Having Landed in the Weſt with a great Army, they came as far as Wincheſter, and ſacked it. But they were ſoon after met by Oſric Earl of Southampton, and Ethelwolf of Barkſhire, who with their Forces beat them back to their Ships, and forced them to leave their Booty. Five Years after, about the time of Ethelbert's Death, they Landed again in Thanet. Whereupon the Kentiſh Men, wearied out with ſo frequent Alarms, agreed with them for a certain Summ of Money. But the Money not being gathered ſoon enough, the Danes grew impatient, and by a ſudden Eruption in the Night ſoon waſted all the Eaſt of Kent. About this time King Ethelbert died and was buried at Sherburn, leaving his Kingdom to his Brother Ethelred. He was a Prince of great Virtue, and given to no Vice.

ETHELBERT, the 5th. King of the Saxon Race, ſucceeded to Emeric his Father, and Reign'd in the VIth. Age; whoſe Reign is the more remarkable, becauſe himſelf and his Subjects were the firſt amongſt the Saxons that were converted to the Chriſtian Faith, Britain having been overſpread with Heatheniſm, ever ſince the Natives were driven out of their Land. Before his Converſion, he Married a Chriſtian Princeſs, Bertha, a Daughter of the King of France; who, by Contract, was to have free Exerciſe of her Religion, under the Care of Letardus a Biſhop, ſent by her Parents with her. 'Tis rational to think that ſhe did not contribute a little to the Converſion of the King her Husband; but the main occaſion of it under God's Providence, was in the manner following. It was a Cuſtom amongſt the Northumbrians in the North of England, to ſell their Children for a ſmall matter into any Foreign Land. It hapned that two comely Youths being brought thence to Rome, Gregory Arch-Deacon of that City, had a view of 'em; who admiring their fair and honeſt Countenance, and pitying their Condition, enquir'd what they were; and being anſwer'd that they were Angli of the Province Deira, under Alla King of Northumberland, and by Religion Pagans, broke out into this Alluſion to Angli, Deira, and Alla. That the Angli, ſo like Angels, ſhould be ſnatched out of Deira, that is, from the Wrath of God, to ſing Allelujah; whereupon he obtain'd Licence from Benedict the Pope, to come and preach here among the Saxons; but was prevented by his Succeſſion in the Papal See, till being admoniſhed, as Beda ſays, by Divine Inſpiration, he appointed Auſtin and other zealous Monks with him, to come over and preach the Goſpel. They came about 40 and Landed in the Iſle of Thanet; with ſome of the French Nation whom they took along with 'em as Interpreters. Being Landed there, Auſtin ſent to the King, That he was come from Rome into his Dominions, to offer him Heaven and Eternal Happineſs by another God than the Saxons knew. The King, ſurprized at the Meſſage, gave Orders that they ſhould remain where they Landed, and that Neceſſaries ſhould be provided for 'em. After ſome Days he came himſelf into the Iſland, and choſe a place to meet 'em under the open Sky, being poſſeſs'd, That all Spells, if they ſhould uſe any to deceive him, would be unavailable, ſo it were not within Doors. Being called before him, they came forward ſinging Anthems all the way, having a ſilver Croſs and the painted Image of our Saviour carried before 'em. Being come up to him, he order'd 'em to ſit down, and then Auſtin Preach'd unto him and all his Aſſembly, the things of Salvation, which he heard attentively. In anſwer whereunto, the King ſaid, That thoſe things were new and uncertain to him, that he could not haſtily forſake the Religion of his Fathers, which had been of ſo long continuance among the Saxons. Thank'd 'em for their trouble in coming ſo far to impart to him and his People the Knowledge of ſuch things as they thought, he was confident, the Trueſt and the Beſt. That he could do no leſs than retaliate their Kindneſs by a friendly Entertainment. And laſtly, That he gave 'em free leave to Preach the ſame things to his People, and make what Proſelytes they could. They were appointed to come to his Royal Seat, and reſide at Canterbury; where ſpending their Lives, as 'tis ſaid, in Prayer, Faſting and continual Labour in the Converſion of Souls, they won many by their good Example. The King himſelf, at length throughly convinced of the Truth of the Goſpel, by the Purity of its Doctrine, the good Lives of thoſe that brought it, and of them that received it, to which ſome do add Miracles, became Chriſtian and was Baptized. By which Example, Chriſtianity was ſo encouraged, that it was not long before the whole Kingdom was converted, and that without compulſion; for ſo the King was taught by Auguſtin, That Chriſtian Religion ought not to be forced, but freely received by the Conviction of its Truth. Pope Gregory joyfully hearing of his ſucceſsful Beginning, appointed the Archbiſhop of Arles to ordain Auſtin Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and ſent him more Miſſioners, who eſtabliſhed the Authority of the Church of Rome in this Iſland, which was diſowned by the Britiſh Clergy of Wales, before, and in his time, as appears by a Conference between 'em on the edge of Worceſterſhire, about ſeveral Points of Religion, particularly about Eaſter; where Auſtin demeaning himſelf haughtily to the Welch Prelates, Demothus Abbot of Bangor ſpoke to him to this Effect in the Name of his whole Party, That they own'd no other Subjection to the Pope of Rome, but what they were bound to by the Chriſtian Duties of Love and Charity, which made them all Subjects and Servants to the Church of God; and that they were govern'd under God by the Biſhop of Caer Leon, to whoſe Care the Spiritual Matters of their Church were committed. King Ethelbert died after a long Reign of 56 Years, An. 616. the firſt Chriſtian King of the Saxons, as Lucius was of the Britains. He was a great Favourer of all Civility, conſidering the rude Age he lived in. His Laws and Statutes were made after the Example of Roman Emperors, with the Advice of his Sageſt Councellors, and continued long in force after him. Gregor. Turon. l. 9. c. 26. Bede, lib. 1. & 2. Hiſt.

ETHELBERT, or Ethelbright, King of the Eaſt-Angles, ſucceeded to his Father Ethelred. About the middle of the VIIIth. Age, having reigned 41 Years, he was treacherouſly murder'd by Offa the great King of the Mercians, An. 793. who having drawn him with fair Invitations to Marry his Daughter, cauſed him to be Beheaded, and thereupon ſeized his Kingdom; which ſoon after became ſubject to Egbert the Weſt Saxon King, and then govern'd by Tributary Kings of their own Nation.

ETHELFRED, King of Bernicia in the North of England, ſucceeded to Ethelric in 593. He was a warlike Prince and very covetous of Fame. He haraſſed the Britains more than any Saxon King had done before him, and won large Territories from 'em, which he either made Tributary, or planted with his own Subjects. Therefore Edan, King of thoſe Scots that dwelt in Britain, jealous of his Succeſſes, came againſt him with a mighty Army to a place call'd Degſaſtan. But his Attempt prov'd unſucceſsful, his Army being overthrown by Ethelfred, himſelf with a few eſcaped. 'Tis true, Theobald the King's Brother, and the whole Wing which he Commanded were cut off, which leſſen'd the Victory. This King drove Edwin out of his Kingdom of Deira, and joyn'd it to his own. But Redwald, King of the Eaſt-Angles, having eſpouſed Edwin's Quarrel, who had put himſelf under his Protection, reſtor'd the Diſtreſſed Prince to his Right by force of Arms, as may be ſeen at large in the Account of Edwin. In this Quarrel Ethelfred was ſlain, having firſt killed with his own hands Reiner King Redwald's Son.

ETHELRED, King of England, was the third Son of King Ethelwolf, and Succeeded his Brother Ethelbert in the Kingdom, Anno 866. At his firſt coming to the Crown, he was entertain'd with a freſh Invaſion of Danes, who made great Progreſs in his Reign. They had by this time got footing amongſt the Eaſt-Angles; who, being forced to Terms of Peace with them, gave 'em an Opportunity to furniſh themſelves of Horſes, whereby they formed many Troops with Riders of their own. Then were the Danes under the Conduct of two Brothers, Hinguar and Hubba; by whom they were led the next Year by Land as far as York, where they found to their hands, the People imbroiled in Civil Diſſentions; their King Osbert turned out, and Ella Leader of another Faction, ſet up in his room; which proved a great Advantage to the Danes. Inſomuch that the Northumbrians were ſlaughtered every where, the City of York much indamaged by Fire, the Country over-run and vanquiſh'd as far as the River Tine, and Egbert of Engliſh Race, appointed King over them. Puffed up with this great Succeſs, they entered the following Year (being 868.) into Mercia, towards Nottingham, where they Wintered. Burhed was then King of that Country, but Tributary to King Ethelred. Who, having aſſembled ſome Forces to his Aid, went with his Brother Alfred to Mercia, and joyning with the Mercians about Nottingham, did his utmoſt to Engage the Danes. But they, not daring to come forth, kept within the Town and Caſtle, and baulked the Deſign of a Battel. At length, the Mercians, weary of their being ſo long kept in ſuſpence, entered into Conditions of Peace with their Enemies. After which, the Danes returned back to York, and the next Year came to Lincolnſhire, committing their uſual Outrages. 'Tis true, they received at firſt a great Check; Multitudes of them being ſlain in Battel, with three of their Principal Leaders. But, being ſtrongly re-inforced from ſeveral Parts, great part of the Engliſh being terrify'd therewith, began to ſlink home. Which gave the Danes a further Opportunity to Invade the Eaſt-Angles. And here they overthrew firſt Earl Wulketel with all his Forces, and next King Edmund; who, being taken, was bound by thoſe Barbarians to a Stake, and Shot to Death with Arrows. The Eaſt-Angles being thus ſubdued by the Danes, theſe marched in the Year 871. with great Supplies towards the Weſt-Saxons, the only People now left in whom Strength or Courage likely to oppoſe them might ſeem yet to remain. Being come to Reading, there they Encamped, between the Thames and the Kennet; from whence they ſent few days after great Bodies of Horſe, to Forage the Country. Who, being met by Ethelwolf, Earl of Barkſhire, with part of the King's Army were defeated by him at a Village call'd Englefield. Soon after came the King himſelf and his Brother Alfred with the main Body; Upon which the Danes came out of their Camp to fight him. Sharp was the Battel, and great the Slaughter on both Sides; but ſtill the Danes kept their Ground. Four Days after, both Armies met again with their whole Force at Aſhdown, each embattelled in two great Bodies. Alfred the King's Brother, who Commanded one of the Bodies of the Engliſh Army, gave the firſt Onſet, charging the Danes with ſo much Bravery, that he made them turn their Backs. The King, coming later into the Battel from his Prayers, fought never the worſe for it, and ſlew Baſcai (otherwiſe called Ivarus) one of their Kings, or Chief Leaders. One would think ſuch an Overthrow of the Danes ſhould have cooled their Courage. But, if the Daniſh Hiſtory be not miſtaken, they came 14 Days after, under the Conduct of Agnerus and Hubba, Brothers of the Slain Ivarus, to revenge his Death, and at Baſing obtain'd a Victory over the Engliſh Army. Certain it is, that after two Months, King Ethelred and his Brother fought them again at Merton; but it does not appear by the Saxon Annals, who had the better. This Fight was followed by a Plague, and 'tis thought the King died of it. But according to the Daniſh Hiſtory of the Year 872. he had his Deaths Wound by the Danes. Sherburn, where his two Brothers and Predeceſſors Ethelbald and Ethelbert lay Buried, was alſo the Burying-place of this King.

ETHELSTAN, King of England, Succeeded Alfred his Father about 925. being 30 Years old, and tho' Born of a Concubine, was preferr'd before his Younger Brothers the lawful Sons of Alfred, who were then under Age. As the caſe ſtood, the Nation did wiſely. The Danes reſted uneaſie, and it was to be expected they would not ſit long quiet. On the other ſide, Ethelſtan was fitteſt to keep 'em under, being a ſober, warlike and Active Prince. It fell out accordingly that the Danes rebelled, and he reduced them. Malmsbury writes, That he over-ran Scotland in queſt of Gudfort, the Raiſer of the Daniſh War, who had taken Sanctuary there, and pretends that he forced Conſtantine King of Scots, with Eugenius King of Cumberland to do Homage for their reſpective Kingdoms, at a place called Deire in Cumberland. The Reſentment of all thoſe Paſſages occaſion'd a new War, and the Bloodieſt Fight, according to ſome Authors, that ever this Iſland ſaw; in which Ethelſtan, loſt Elwin and Ethelſtan, his two Couſin-Germans, but won the Victory. This Battel was fought on the Borders of Scotland, and it's ſaid ſo many Kings were engaged in the Quarrel (the principal of which were Conſtantine King of Scots, Anlaf King of Ireland, and Eugenius King of Cumberland) that no leſs than 5 were Slain in the Field. Some ſay, that Conſtantine eſcaped home; and it's agreed that Anlaf made his eſcape to Dublin. The Welch alſo did Homage to King Ethelſtan at the City of Hereford and Covenanted to Pay him a yearly Tribute of 20 Pound; of Gold, 300 of Silver, and 25000 Oxen; beſides Hunting

Dogs and Hawks. He took Exeter from the Corniſh Britains, and bounded 'em with the River Tamer as he did the Welch with the Wey. He died after 15 Years Reign, and was Buried at Malmesbury. He was a comely Prince and of a Graceful Behaviour, endow'd with ſuch excellent Parts from his Youth, that Alfred his Grandfather, was wont to pray he might live to enjoy the Kingdom. So great was his Fame and Intereſt abroad, that the Chief Princes of Europe courted him with rich Preſents, and that he Married three of his Siſters to Otho the Emperor's Son, Hugh King of France, and Lodowick King of Aquitain.

ETHELWOLF, or Ethelwulf, the Second Monarch of England, Succeeded to King Egbert his Father, Anno 836. He was a Prince of a Mild, but no Martial Temper, which encouraged the Danes to continue their Attempts upon England, begun in his Father's Reign. In his firſt Encounter with 'em An. 839. he drove 'em back to Southampton with great Slaughter. In the Second, near Portſmouth, being reinforced upon their giving Ground, they renew'd the Fight and got the Day. In the Third, at a place called Mereſwar, Earl Herebert the King's General was Slain, with moſt of his Army. This happen'd in the Year 838. and emboldned with this Succeſs, they came next Year on to Rocheſter, Canterbury, and London, exerciſing unheard-of Cruelties, and the next Year returning again, they Landed at Charmouth in Dorſetſhire, and there got the better of the Engliſh. But in 845. they were totally routed in the Weſt, and lay ſtill for 6 Years; and renewing their Invaſion in 851. had little better Succeſs, being defeated firſt at a place called Wegganbeorch, and next at Sandwich. Yet after this, they came into the Thames, and made Excurſions as far as Canterbury, thence to London. Ethelwerd writes, that they deſtroy'd both. But as for London, Aſſer ſays, they only Plunder'd it. Bertulf the Mercian King, who held his Kingdom of Ethelwolf, they routed with all his Forces, and forced him to fly beyond Seas, but they were at laſt met withal at Okeley in Surrey, where King Ethelwolf and Ethelbald his Son, gave 'em a great Overthrow, which ſo heartned the King, that he went in Perſon the next Year, being 853. to aſſiſt Burhed the Mercian King againſt the Northern Welch, and did it effectually. The ſame Year the Danes Landing at Thanet, had another Encounter with the King's Forces, wherein both Parties came off pretty even. Ethelwolf thereupon took a Journey to Rome, with his young Son Alfred; and there ſtaid a Year, while the Danes wintered in his Dominions. Yet ſo much Manhood he had, as not to return a Monk; and that in his way home, he took to Wife Judith, Daughter of Charles the Bald King of France. In the mean time, a Conſpiracy was managed at home againſt him by Ethelbald his Eldeſt Son, Alſtan a Biſhop, and Enulf Earl of Somerſet. Whoſe Grievances were, That he had taken with him Alfred his Youngeſt Son to Rome, to be there Inaugurated King, and that he had Married an Outlandiſh Wife; for which they endeavoured to deprive him of his Kingdom. This had undoubtedly occaſioned a Civil War, had not the King prevented it by a ſoft Condeſcenſion, yielding up, for Peace-ſake, to his Eldeſt Son, the beſt Part of his Kingdom. But, whereas there was a Law made ſince the Time of Eadburga, the infamous Wife of Birthric, That no Queen ſhould ſit in State with the King, or be dignify'd with the Title of Queen, Ethelwolf would not ſuffer that Judith, his Queen, ſhould loſe any Point of Regal State by that Law. At laſt, after a Reign of about 20 Years, he died, and was Buried, as his Father, at Wincheſter. He left Four Sons, who reigned all ſucceſſively, viz. Ethelbald, Ethelbert, Ethelred, and Alfred. The Kingdom he divided between the two Eldeſt, leaving to Ethelbert, Kent, Eſſex, Surrey and Suſſex, and to the Eldeſt all the reſt. He was a Prince much addicted from his Youth to Devotion, bred up a Clergyman, and ordained Biſhop of Wincheſter in his Father's Time, whom he unwillingly ſucceeded in his Throne; but was at laſt, for want of other legitimate Iſſue, prevailed upon by the Clergy and Nobility.

ETHELWOLF, a Biſhop of Wincheſter, liv'd in the Xth Cent. He was firſt a Monk at Glaſtenbury, under St. Dunſtan, then Abbot, and afterwards Biſhop. His Works are, De Planetis, & Mundi Climatibus. De ſua in Presbyteros Poteſtate. A Treatiſe concerning the Kings and Dioceſes of England, &c. Godwin. Voſſ. Bale, &c.

ETHODIUS, the 25th. King of Scotland ſucceeded Conarus. He advanced Argadus, who had been Viceroy in the preceeding Reign to the Chief Place of Power and Truſt under himſelf; and after he had viewed all his Dominions according to Cuſtom, he ſent Argadus to Suppreſs the Diſturbers of the Publick Peace in the Iſlands, which he effected very happily. But thoſe Rebels having received Succours from the Iriſh, and Picts, revolted again; and having circumvented Argadus by Treachery, defeated him. So that the King himſelf marched againſt them, weakned them by continual Skirmiſhing, and obliged them to retire into a Valley, encompaſſed with Rocks on all ſides, where he pen'd them up, and obliged them to Surrender on theſe Conditions, That they ſhould deliver up their General, and 200 more whom he ſhould cull out, and the reſt ſhould have leave to go to their reſpective homes. The King having immediately cauſed thoſe 200 to be Hang'd, it rais'd a Tumult, the Soldiers flinging Stones at the King's Officers; nor were they Suppreſſed without Bloodſhed. Ethodius having ſetled Peace and Juſtice in the Kingdom, and for that end taken a Progreſs into each County, he eſtabliſhed Hunting Laws, many of which are ſtill obſerved. But this Gallant Prince was Murder'd in his Bed-Chamber, An. 194. by an Iriſh Muſician whom he entertain'd; the Villain pretending, That he did it to revenge the Death of a Kinſman whom the King had put to Death. And when brought to Execution, was ſo obdurate, that he thought he had acted his Part with Credit. Buchan.

ETHODIUS II. Son of the former, Succeeded Donald I. He was of too ſoft and languid a Temper to Govern ſuch a fierce and warlike People, which the Nobility being aware of, appointed Deputies to Adminiſter Juſtice in his Name in each Province; ſo that Scotland was never known to be better Governed. This King is taxed as being immoderately Covetous, and was Slain in a Tumult of his own Officers, in the 21ſt. of his Reign, about 231. Buch.

ETHUS, the 72d. King of Scotland, Succeeded his Brother Conſtantine II. and from his Swiftneſs was Surnamed Alipes; the Principal Motive of his being choſen King, was becauſe he collected the Remainders of his Brothers Army ſcattered by the Danes. In his time, great Numbers of thoſe Fiſhes called Seamonks, appeared upon the Coaſt, which was reckoned ominous. This Prince abandoning himſelf to all manner of Vice, was imitated by the Soldiery; but the Nobility combin'd and took him, and after a long Speech, recounting his wicked Life, was forced to abjure the Government in the 2d. Year of his Reign. The principal thing charged upon him, was his Neglect to recover the Country from the Danes, who were then engaged in a bloody War with the Engliſh. And there be ſome who write, that he was not forced to abjure, but died of a Wound received from Gregory, his Rival for the Crown, whereof he died in 875. Buchan.

EU, a City of France in Normandy, dignify'd with an Earldom and Peerage of France. It ſtands upon the River Breſle, which ſeparates Normandy from Picardy, about a League from the Sea; where ſtands Treſport, a ſmall Village between Dieppe and Valery. The City is very Ancient, and the Situation of it very pleaſant among Meadows; the Cauſſey of Eu lying in Picardy, on the other ſide of the River. There is in it an Old Abbey, and a College of Jeſuits. The Counts of Eu are frequently mention'd in the French Hiſtory.

EVAGORAS, King of Cyprus, ſuccour'd the Athenians againſt the Lacedæmonians, and reſtored that City to their Ancient Liberty. In acknowledgment of which, the Athenians erected a Statue to his Memory, in the place where they had ſet the Statue of Jupiter. He undertook a War againſt Artaxerxes King of Perſia, but was conſtrain'd to accept of a Peace upon diſadvantageous Conditions.

EVAGORAS IId. was ſent by Artaxerxes Ochus, to recover the Iſle of Cyprus from ſeveral Uſurpers, who had ſeiz'd on't, but being charg'd with a Deſign of Regaining this Kingdom for himſelf, (having reign'd there ſome time before) he juſtify'd himſelf at the Court of Perſia, and had another Province in Aſia aſſign'd him; but being guilty of Male-adminiſtration in his new Government, and inform'd againſt for his Misbehaviour; he fled into the Iſle of Cyprus, and was kill'd there: This Evagoras was Son of the former, as we may learn from Diodorus Siculus. Diod. Sic. Lib. XV, and XVI.

EVAGRIUS, Sirnamed Scholaſticus, a Native of Epiphania in Syria, wrote an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory in ſix Books, which he begins where Socrates and Theodoret left off, about the Year 431. and concludes in the tweſth Year of the Emperour Mauricius. He wrote other Books, and is commended by Photius for his Perſpicuity and Exactneſs.

EVAGRIUS, Patriarch of Antioch, liv'd in the IVth Cent. was intimately acquainted with St. Jerome, and put in the Place of Paulinus, in the Biſhoprick of Antioch, in 389. Flavian, at the ſame time, ſucceeding Meletius; which double Succeſſion continu'd the Schiſm in the Church of Antioch. St. Ambroſe, in a Letter to Theophilus of Alexandria, upon the Subject of this Schiſm, ſeems to hint, that the Election of Evagrius was Uncanonical. In the mean time Pope Siricius appearing ſtrongly for him, there was a Council held at Capua, in the ſame Year 389, to put an End to the Diviſion, and as for Evagrius, he liv'd but five Years after. Before his being made a Biſhop, he tranſlated the Life of St. Anthony, written by S. Athanaſius, into Latin, as St. Jerom informs us. St. Hieron. in Catal. Cap. 125. & Epiſt. 6, &c. St. Ambroſ. Epiſt. 78. Theodoret, lib. 5. cap. 23. Socrat. lib. 5. cap. 15. &c.

EVAGRIUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, to which See, he was choſen after the Death of Eudoxius an Arian Biſhop. The Emperour Valens oblig'd him to retire from his See, and afterwards baniſh'd him: This rigorous Uſage incourag'd the Arrians to treat the Catholicks with the laſt Degree of Barbarity. St. Gregory of Nazianzen deſcribes their Inhumanity, in one of his Orations: As for Evagrius, the time of his Death is not certainly known, but 'tis very likely it happen'd under Valens's Perſecution. Gregor. Nazianz. Socrat. lib. 6. cap. 13, & 14. Baron. A. C. 370.

EVANDER, whom ſome will have to be the King of Arcadia, was ſaid to be the Son of Mercury, by reaſon of his Eloquence; who having ſlain his Father unawares, by the Advice of his Mother Carmenta, a Propheteſs, ſailed into Italy in the Year of the World 2707. and 60 Years before the taking of Troy. Faunus then King of the Aborigines, received him kindly, and gave him a large Country, which he divided among his Followers, and built a ſmall Town upon the Palatine Mount, which he called Pallantium, from the Name of his Great Grandfather, and where he Erected a Statue to Pan, the God of the Arcadians. He was the firſt that taught the Latins the uſe of Letters, and Husbandry. Aurelius Victor, Juſtin, Di. Halicarnaſ. Virgil.

EVANDRIANA, Talavarvelha, a Town of Eſtremadura in Caſtile, upon the River Guadiana, 8 Leagues from Merida to the Weſt in the way to Badajoz.

EVANGELISTS, Perſons choſen, by the Apoſtles, to preach the Goſpel; it being impracticable for the Twelve, to preach Chriſtianity to all the World. Philip among others was engag'd in this Function: As for their Rank in the Church, St. Paul places them after the Apoſtles and Prophets, but before the Paſtors and Doctors, which makes Theodoret call 'em Apoſtles of the Second Claſs. They had no particular Flock aſſign'd 'em, as Biſhops or Ordinary Paſtours, but travell'd from one Place to another, according to their Inſtructions receiv'd from the Apoſtles, to whom they return'd after they had executed their Commiſſion, ſo that, in ſhort, this Office being extraordinary, expir'd with the Apoſtles: But after all, the Title of an Evangeliſt is more particularly given to thoſe four Holy Perſons, who wrote the Hiſtory of our Saviour.

EVARICUS, Euric or Eric, King of the Goths in Spain, was the Son of Theodoret I. and Brother of Theodoret II. to whom he Succeeded, as 'tis ſaid, not without ſome foul Play, in 446. He waſted all Portugal, ravag'd all the Upper Spain, and Navarre, took Arles and Marſeilles, and entring into Auvergne, laid ſiege to Clermont, defeated Anthemius the Emperour, though joyn'd with Reothimus King of the Britons; haraſſed all Auvergne, Berry, Touraine and Provence, and died about the Year 484. Iſidore and Idacius.

EVARISTUS, a Greek and Son of a Jew, the Fifth Pope after St. Peter; ſucceeded Anaclet in the Year 110. under the Reign of Adrian, in whoſe time, he ſuffered Martyrdom, after he had ſate nine Years and three Months.

EUCHERIUS, the Son of Stilico and Serena, was a Pagan and Enemy to the Chriſtians. His Father having made an Alliance with the Barbarians, and drawn a great Number into Italy, deſign'd to have advanc'd him to the Empire, and dethron'd Honorius: But his Deſigns being diſcovered, Stilico was killed at Ravenna, and Eucherius ſoon after ſtrangled at Rome.

EUCHERIUS, Biſhop of Lyons, a wealthy Senatour, who retir'd to Lerins, to prevent his being choſen to the See of that Church, to which notwithſtanding, he was promoted, in the Year 434. He afterwards aſſiſted at the firſt Council of Orange 441. He was a Perſon of great Piety and Learning, and wrote ſeveral things in Proſe and Poetry; of which Salvian, by way of Character, affirms, that they contain'd a great deal of Learning, couch'd in a few words, and that they were very inſtructive, pious and entertaining. We have two Epiſtles of Eucherius, remaining, One to Valerian, concerning the Contempt of the World, and another to St. Hilary upon the Subject of a ſolitary Life: To theſe, we may add his two Treatiſes, one to his Son Veranus, who was afterwards Biſhop of Vence, and the other to Salonius, who was likewiſe his Son, and a Biſhop, but 'tis not known of what Church. Salvian. Ep. ad Salon. St. Hilar. Paneg. de S. Honor. Sidonius Apollinaris, Lib. 2. Ep. 3. Marſelin. Chron. &c.

EUCHOLOGION, the Name of a Liturgical Book of the Greek Church, containing a Collection of Divine Service for the Adminiſtration of the Sacraments, giving of Orders and other Religious Offices. 'Tis properly their Ritual, containing every thing relating to their Religious Ceremonies, Father Simon obſerves that, under Pope Urban the VIIIth. ſeveral of the moſt conſiderable Divines of Europe, met at Rome to examine the Euchologion; Morinus, who was one of the Congregation, mentions this Ritual, in his Book de Ordinationibus: The greateſt part of the Divines, being govern'd by the Sentiments of the Schoolmen, were willing to reform this Greek Ritual, by that of the Church of Rome, as if there had been ſome Hereſies in't, or rather ſome Paſſages, which made the Adminiſtration of the Sacraments invalid. But Holſtenius, Leo Allatius, Morinus, and ſome others, who underſtood this Controverſie more perfectly, oppos'd the Cenſure of the Euchologion: They prov'd this Ritual, was agreeable to the Practice of the Greek Church, before the Schiſm of Photius, and that for this reaſon, it could not be condemn'd, without condemning all the Old Eaſtern Communion. This Euchologion has been printed ſeveral times, in Greek, at Venice; but the beſt and moſt enlarg'd Edition, is that which was publiſh'd at Paris in Greek and Latin, by Goar; for here, beſides a Collection of Excellent Notes, the Editor has inſerted ſeveral Additions which were wanting before. See Goar.

EUCLID, of Megara, a Diſciple of Socrates, whom he ſo much delighted to hear, that during the War between the Athenians and Megarenſes, he diſguiſed himſelf in Womens Apparel, that he might not be hinder'd from coming to his School. After the Death of Socrates, Plato was his Scholar, when all the reſt of the Philoſophers were fled for fear of the Tyrants. He admitted but one chief Good, which he called ſometimes Providence, ſometimes God, ſometimes Spirit, &c. He wrote ſix Dialogues, under the Names of Lamprias, Æſchines, Phænis, &c. Vid. Diog. Laert. and Gellius.

EUCLID, a Mathematician of Alexandria; where he taught in the Reign of Ptolemy Lagus in the CXX. Olympiad, and Year of Rome 454. He wrote many things relating to Muſick and Geometry. But his 15 Books of Elements are moſt generally applauded: The two laſt are attributed to Hipſicles of Alexandria, and not to him. Cardan. Voſſius.

EUCTEMON, a Mathematician, flouriſhed about the 86th. Olympiad, toward the Year of Rome 318. He was a Companion of Meto in his Solitary Obſervations, and follow'd him in his Cycle of nineteen Years; by which he pretended to adjuſt the Courſe of the Sun to that of the Moon. They both obſerved the Summer Solſtice of the firſt Year of the 87th. Olympiad, which was the Year of the World 3621. to be the 27th of June. Ælian. l. 10. Div. Hiſt. Ptolemy, l. 3. Almag. Suidas, Voſſius.

EUDEMON-JOHANNES, (Andrew,) a Jeſuit of Canea in Candia: He was a Favourite of Pope Urban VIII. and in the Quality of a Divine, aſſiſted Bellarmine, in his Legation to France. He died upon his return to Rome, in 1625. His Works are Caſtigatio Lamberti Danei. De Antichriſto, Lib. III. Confutatio Anticotoni. Refutatio Exercitationum. Cauſa boni, &c. Alegamb. De Script. Soc. Jeſ. Miræus de Script. Sæc. XVII, &c.

EUDO, Count of Paris, and Duke of France, was Son to Robert firſt call'd l' Fort, defended Paris againſt the Normans in 887. and cauſed 'em to raiſe their Siege. Sometime after he was Crown'd King of Weſt France, and the next Year after, cut to pieces 19000 Normans; and purſued the reſt as far as the very Frontiers; Conſtrained Charles the Simple to retire into Neuſtria, and died in the Year 898.

EUDO, Duke of Aquitain, lived in the VIIIth. Age. He envy'd the Grandeur of Charles Martel, and therefore ſuccour'd Chilperic II. againſt him; But being defeated by Charles, engag'd himſelf with the Saracen Munuza: Upon which, Martel entred his Country, and harraſs'd all before him as far as the Garonne; at what time Abderamus having taken Munuza Priſoner, fell into Aquitain alſo, and took Bourdeaux. But then Eudo complying with Charles Martel, joyn'd with him againſt the Barbarians, and was at the Battel of Tours. Nevertheleſs, their Old Animoſities reviv'd again; to which nothing but Eudo's Death could put an end; which happen'd in 735. Greg. Turon. Otho Friſing. There was alſo Eudo I, II, III, IV. Dukes of Bugundy, of whom I find nothing Memorable in Hiſtory.

EUDO, I. Count of Blois, ſignaliz'd in Hiſtory for his Fortitude and Piety, died about the Year 995. to whom Succeeded Eudo II. Count of Blois; who, upon the Death of Rodolphus the Idle, laying Claim to Burgundy, in Oppoſition to the Emperour Conrad the Salic, was Slain in a Battel near to Barr, by Gozzelin, Duke of Low Lorrain, in the Year 1037. and 55th of his Age.

EUDOXIA, the Wife of Arcadius, took part with Theophilus of Alexandria againſt Chryſoſtom, whom ſhe cauſed to be expelled the City, offended perhaps with his too freely inveighing againſt the Vices of the Court: However, in a ſhort time ſhe recalled him again. But he being diſturb'd at the Noiſe the People made at the ſetting up Eudoxia's Statue, could not forbear ſhewing his reſentment; which coming to Eudoxia's Ear, ſhe ſided with Theophilus, and Baniſh'd him a ſecond time in the Year 414. After which ſhe Miſcarried and died the ſame Year.

EUDOXIA, the Daughter of an Athenian Philoſopher, whoſe Name was Leontius, and Wife of Theodoſius the Younger; whom her Father had ſo well inſtructed in Philoſophy and the Mathematicks, that he left her at his Death no other Portion, believing her Learning a Dowry ſufficient. She complaining of this Injuſtice to Pulcheria, this Lady was ſo taken with her Wit, that ſhe adopted her for her Daughter, had her Baptized and her Name Athenais, chang'd to Eudoxia, and afterward Married her to her Brother. With whom ſhe lived in a long Conjugal Friendſhip, till render'd ſuſpected to him by Chryſapius the Eunuch, by reaſon of an Apple ſent to Paulinus, ſhe retir'd into Paleſtine, where ſhe fell into the Eutychian Hereſie, till better inſtructed by Simeon Stylite and the Abbot Euthymius. She died in the 67th. Year of her Age, and in the Year of Chriſt 460. leaving behind her a noble Poem of the Perſian War. Socrates, Evagrius, Nicephorus, Cyril in Vit. Euthymii.

EUDOXIA, the Daughter of Theodoſius Junior, the Wife of Valentinian III. Slain by Maximus, the Uſurper, who Married his Widow by force in 455. In revenge of which two Injuries, Eudoxia called Genſeric into Italy; who Sackt Rome, and carried her and her two Daughters into Italy; but afterwards releaſed her with Placidia her Daughter, at the Requeſt of Martian and Leo. Evagrius, Theophanes, Socrates, Idacius, &c.

EUDOXIANS, Hereticks, whoſe Founder was Eudoxius, adhering to the Error of the Aetians and Eunomians; affirming the Son to be differently affected in his Will from the Father, and made of nothing. Epiph. Hær. 76.

EUDOXIUS, firſt Patriarch of Antiochia, then of Conſtantinople, a great favourer of the Arrians; who having Baptized the Emperour Valens in 367. made him Promiſe to defend the Arrians with Vigour and Conſtancy: and ſo order'd it, that the Arrian Doctors were ſent to the Goths, who had made a Peace with Valens upon certain Conditions. Nicephorus, Socrates, Baronius.

EUDOXUS of Gnidus, the Son of Æſchines, flouriſhed in the 97th. Olympiad, according to Euſebius. He was an Aſtrologer, Geometrician, Phyſician, and Legiſlator. Architas taught him Geometry, and Philiſtion of Sicily Phyſick. He Travelled into Egypt to Conſult the Learned of that Country, and returning home, gave Laws to his own. He alſo wrote ſeveral Pieces of Aſtrology, Geometry and Hiſtory, and died about the Year of Rome 401. in the 107th. Olympiad. Diog. Laert. Cicero, l. 2. De Divinat. Suidas, Simler, Voſſius.

EVE, the Mother of all Mankind, form'd out of a Rib of Adam caſt into a deep Sleep by God on purpoſe, but being deluded by the Serpent, occaſion'd the Fall, and all the fatal Conſequences of it, Gen. 3.

EVELTHON, King of Salamine in Cyprus, was reſtored to the Throne of his Anceſtors, after an Interruption of 60 Years. However when Pheretima, the Widow of Battus King of Cyrene, came to crave Aid of him to reſtore her to her Throne, from whence her Subjects had depoſed her; Evelthon preſented her with a golden Spindle and Diſtaff, telling her, They were fitter for her than an Army. Herodotus, l. 4.

EVENUS, a River of Ætolia, according to Niger, now call'd Fidari, riſing out of the Mountain Callidromus, or Caliar, and falling into the Ionian Sea, near Calydon; formerly the Capital of Ætolia.

EVENUS I. the 12th. King of Scotland, Succeeded Durſtus, after a long Conteſt in the Aſſembly of the Nobles. Some of them urging the Ancient Cuſtom of chuſing one of Fergus's Race; and others ſuggeſting, that if they choſe any of Durſtus's Kindred, they would either imitate his bad Example, or revenge his Death; but Evenus, tho' his Nephew, being commended for his good Life, and his Voluntary Exile out of Hatred to Durſtus, was agreed on. He is ſaid to have been the firſt King of Scotland who required an Oath of Allegiance from his Subjects. That he might reform the manners of the Youth corrupted in the former Reign, he reduced them to the Ancient Parſimony in Diet and Apparel, and adminiſtred Juſtice over all the Kingdom. He aſſiſted the Picts againſt the Britains, who fought it deſperately till Night parted them; but the Britains leaving their Spoils fled, which was not perceived till the Morning. After this, Evenus appointed Itinerary Circuits and Judges, to eaſe the Kings from adminiſtring Juſtice every where in Perſon; which was the firſt time that ever Circuits were uſed in Scotland. He alſo appointed Informers to accuſe the Guilty; but the Inconveniency of that being found, it was quickly laid aſide. Evenus died in the 19th of his Reign, and 76th before the Birth of Chriſt.

EVENUS II. the 14th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Gillus, who was expelled on Account of his Male-Adminiſtration, purſued him into Ireland, where he defeated him by his General Caduallus; and Gillus being found in a Cave was ſlain there, and his Head brought to the Scottiſh General; who, as he was returning in Triumph, loſt the greateſt part of his Army in croſſing the Sea; ſo that he died of Grief. Evenus after this Married Getus the King of the Picts's Daughter, and was diſturbed with an Invaſion from Orkney, but put the Iſlanders to flight and ſlew them every Man; and their King Belus deſpairing of Quarter, killed himſelf. The War being finiſhed, the King built two Market-Towns in Convenient places, viz. Ennerlochly and Ennerneſs, upon Rivers convenient for Shipping. And having alſo reduced the Inhabitants of the Weſtern Iſlands, who were grown Tumultuous during the long Wars, he died in the 17th. Year of his Reign, about 56 before Chriſt.

EVENUS III. the 16th. King of Scotland, Succeeded Ederus: He was a Laſcivious and Luſtful Prince, having no leſs than 100 Concubines, and he Eſtabliſhed Villainy by Law, enabling every Man to have as many Wives as he was able to Maintain. That he himſelf ſhould have the firſt Night of the Wives of the Nobility, and They, of the Wives of the Plebeians; which they ſhould have in Common. This Wickedneſs was attended with Luxury, Cruelty and Covetouſneſs, which made him ſo hateful to the Nobles, that they took Arms againſt him, Defeated his Army, and Condemned him to perpetual Priſon; where one who bore him a Grudge, ſtrangled him by Night, and was Hang'd for his Pains. This hapned in the 7th. of his Reign, and about a Year before the Birth of Chriſt. Buchan. Here it is to be noted that Heylin, though he denies that ever there was ſuch a King in Scotland as this Evenus, yet upbraids the Nation with his Laſcivious Laws; which the Scots take notice of as a Contradiction, and proceeding from his Hatred to them in denying their Antiquity.

EVEPHENUS, a Pythagorean Philoſopher, who being condemn'd to Death by the Elder Dionyſius, for having diſſuaded the Metapontins to joyn in a League with him, was ſo far from being terrified at the Sentence, that he only deſired the Tyrant to let him go home and marry his Siſter, and he would return in a little time, and deliver himſelf up to Execution. At which, when the Standers-by laugh'd, and the Tyrant ask'd him, What Bail he could give for performance of his Promiſe? He offered his Friend Eucritus, who readily undertook for his return in ſix Months, and to ſtay in his place till that time, and if de fail'd, to ſuffer. The Confidence of Eucritus was much admir'd; but all the Court was much more ſurprized when Evephenus returned and preſented himſelf to the Tyrant; who being Charm'd with the vertue of two ſuch Friends, not only releas'd 'em both, but deſir'd to be admitted a third Perſon into their Friendſhip. Polyænus, l. 5. in Dionyſ. Com.

EVERS, (Sir William) deriving his Sirname from the Lordſhip of Evre in Com. Bucks, deſcended from a younger Son of the Barons of Werkwork in Com. Northumb. was made Captain of the Town and Caſtle of Berwick upon Tweed, in 30 H. 8. and afterwards by Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter 24 Febr. 35. of that ſame Reign, was advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm. Ralph, his eldeſt Son, for his good defence of Scarborough-Caſtle againſt the Rebels, that call'd their Inſurrection the Pilgrimage of Grace; and his great Service againſt the Borderers of Scotland; had by Advice of the Duke of Norfolk, a Grant of what Land he could win from the Scots. Upon which Encouragement, entering Scotland with about 4000 Men, he was met and killed by the Earl of Arran. His Grand-Son William dying iſſue-leſs, the Title fell to George Evre, Son of Horatio, the Son of Francis, Second Son to William Lord Evre; and this George dying a Batchelor in 1672. left it to Ralph his Brother. Dugdales's Baronage.

EVERSHOT, a Market-Town in Dorſetſhire, in Tollerford Hundred; from L. 106.

EVESHAM, or Eveſholm, a Market-Town in Worceſterſhire, in the Hundred of Blakenhurſt, with a Bridge over the Avon. It is eſteem'd next to Worceſter, the beſt in the County, contains 2 or 3 Pariſhes, and drives a good Trade, chiefly for Stockings; and has the Honour of chooſing two Burgeſſes for the Parliament, 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor. It's from London 73 Miles. The Vale to which this Town gives Name, may for the Fertility of the Soil deſervedly be call'd the Granary of thoſe Parts. The Right Honourable John Lord Somers, late Lord Chancellor of England, is Baron of Eveſham, and a Perſon of fine Learning, and of the greateſt Merit.

EUGANES, a People of Gallia Tranſpadana, who formerly inhabited where are now the Territories of Bergamo and Breſcia, between the Lake of Como, and Toſcolano: Tho' others place 'em more toward the River Adige and Vicenza. Baudrand.

EUGENIA, Daughter of Philip, a Noble Roman, Governour of Egypt, under the Emperours Commodus and Severus: This Lady took leave of her Relations to turn Chriſtian, and to conceal her ſelf the better, put on a Diſguiſe, but afterwards ſhe was diſcover'd and convey'd to Rome, where, having converted a great many, at laſt ſhe and her Father receiv'd the Honour of Martyrdom together, in the Year 208. Euſeb. Hiſt. lib. 6. cap. 7.

EUGENIUS I. the 39th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Fethelmachus. In his time Maximus the Roman General having a mind to Conquer the whole Iſland, found means to divide the Picts from the Scots; and then joyn'd together againſt them. The firſt Battel they had was at the River Cree in Galloway, where the Scots being fewer, were eaſily overcome; but the Romans purſuing them without any Order, as reckoning themſelves ſure of the Victory, were Aſſaulted by the Argyle-Men and thoſe of other places coming up to join their Friends, and repulſed with a great Slaughter. In the mean time Maximus being recalled to allay ſome Diſturbances in that part now called England; the Scots revenged themſelves ſeverely upon the Picts, deſtroying all before them with Fire and Sword. Maximus returning, at length, marched againſt the Scots with the Romans, Britains, and Picts; the Scots perceiving that now they were to Fight for their Country, Lives and Fortunes, aſſembled their whole Strength, Women as well as Men, and encamp'd at the River Doun, near their Enemies. Battels being at laſt joined, the Scots did quickly put the Picts and Britains to flight: but Maximus coming up with the Roman Legions, to whom the Scots were inferiour both in Number and Diſcipline, they were totally routed. Eugenius and moſt of his Nobles dying gloriouſly in the Field. Upon this great and unlook'd for Victory, Maximus was inclined to Clemency, and to have taken the Scots into his Protection upon their Submiſſion; but the Hatred of the Picts was ſo great, that they would never let him be at reſt till he Publiſh'd an Edict, Commanding the Scots to depart out of Britain by a certain Day; not ſuffering him to except the very Preachers, though the Picts at that time Profeſſed Chriſtianity. So that the Scots were diſperſed in the Weſtern Iſlands, Ireland, Scandia and Cimbrica Cherſoneſus, now Denmark, Swedeland, &c. being every where courteouſly received and applauded for their Valour. The Scots Iſlanders did afterwards make an Attempt upon the Continent, but were all cut off, and their Ships and Boats made uſe of againſt thoſe who were left behind. A little after, the Scots who had fled to Ireland ſtirred up the Iriſh Scots to aſſiſt them, and Landing in Scotland with 10000 Men, ſpread their terror far and near, waſting their Country with Fire and Sword; The Iriſh Scots being elevated with their Succeſs, were for attempting ſomething more, the Albion Scots adviſed 'em to retire with their Booty, and not to ſtay till the Romans gathered the whole Strength of Britain againſt them; adding, That the beſt way was to weary the Romans out with Toil and Labour. The Iriſh Scots upbraided thoſe of Albion, as having degenerated from the Valour of their Anceſtors, and would venture a Battel, wherein they were totally cut off: So that the Albion Scots were for ever excluded all hopes of return, and the Iriſh found themſelves obliged to ſend Ambaſſadors to offer Submiſſion to the Romans, and beg Pardon, which was obtained, ſo much the more eaſily, that Maximus was returning to Rome, having got himſelf proclaim'd Emperor by the Army. Maximus being Slain in Italy, Victorinus was ſent to rule Britain, and forbad the Picts to chooſe any King or other Chief Magiſtrate but ſuch as were ſent from Rome; which they looking upon as a Badge of Intolerable Slavery, repented of their having betray'd the Scots, and look'd upon this as a Judgment for having ſo done; hereupon they elected a King privately, and at their Aſſembly, complain'd heavily of their Bondage, acknowledging that God did juſtly puniſh them for perſecuting the Scots Miniſters, and not ſo much as ſuffering them to live in the ſame Country with them; ſo they reſolved to reconcile themſelves to the Scots, and ſent a private Embaſſy to young Fergus of the Blood Royal, who was an Exile in Scandia, to invite him home, thinking that by his Example and Authority the reſt would be alſo induced to return, which ſucceeded accordingly. Eugenius was killed about 373. Buchan.

EUGENIUS II. Succeeded his Father Fergus II. his Grandfather Graham being appointed Regent during his Minority, who finding that he was not Strong enough to make War upon the Romans, kept quiet. The Roman Legion which came to aſſiſt their Allies in Fergus II's time, having deſtroy'd the Country on the South of Severus his Wall, reſtored it, to the Britains. So that the Scots and Picts were again ſhut up betwixt the two Firths of Edinburgh and Dumbarton. The Romans being called home to defend the Seat of the Empire, did acquaint the Britains that they were not to expect any further Aſſiſtance from them, but muſt ſtand on their own Defence, and that they might be the better enabled to do it, where Severus had made a Graff, the Romans Summoned a vaſt Multitude of Workmen; and built a Wall of Stone 8 Foot broad, 12 high, and 30 Mile long; Building alſo Caſtles at proportionable diſtances. The Weſt End of the Wall was at Kirk Patrick, and the Eaſt at Abercorn, according to Bede. They alſo built Watch-Towers, and placed Garriſons along the Coaſts to prevent the Scots and Picts Landing within the Wall; and ſo left Britain. Which as ſoon as the Scots and Picts underſtood, they Aſſaulted the Wall, pulling the Britains down with Crooked Iron Hooks faſtened on long Poles, and then with their Engines overthrew the Wall, routed the Britains, and return'd loaden with Spoils. After this, they ſent Colonies to Plant the Lands which they had taken from the Britains; So that all the Exil'd Scots, with abundance of Danes and other Strangers, came and ſetled themſelves in that part of the Country, thinking that Graham would never lay down Arms till he had ſubdued all Britain; but he was willing rather to make Peace with Glory, than truſt to the Event of War; ſo that a Peace was concluded with the Britains, and Graham ſetled the Boundary at Adrian's Wall, as far as Newcaſtle upon Tine. Dividing the New Conquer'd Lands among his Followers, who then impoſed new Names upon the Countries according to their Fancies. After this, Graham built Forts for Defence againſt ſudden Invaſions, and ſetled Maintenance upon the Eccleſiaſticks. The Britains being haraſſed with all the Calamities of War, were alſo attack'd by Famine. And Eugenius King of Scots, being now of Age, and deſirous of making ſome Figure in the World, ſent Ambaſſadors to the Britains, to demand the Lands beyond Adrian's Wall, which belonged to Graham his Grandfather; who was a Britain nobly Deſcended, and fled to Scotland from the Roman Servitude. Conanus one of the Chief Men among the Britains, adviſed them to comply with his Demand, rather than exaſperate ſuch a formidable Enemy; but he was Murdered by the Multitude for his good Advice. So that Eugenius's Ambaſſadors were ſent back with a Denial, which occaſioned a Battel, the fierceſt that had ever before that time been fought in Britain. The Scots Right Wing, after a long and fierce Diſpute, were forced to give Ground; but King Eugenius bringing up the Squadrons which guarded the Baggage reſtored them; ſo that the Victory begun on that Side. And the Britains were routed with the loſs of 14000 Men on the Field; and 4000 Scots and Picts. After this Defeat, the Britains ſent Commiſſioners to treat of a Peace on any Terms whatſoever, which was obtained, on condition that the Britains ſhould yield all the Country North of Humber, That they ſhould neither ſend for Roman, nor any other Foreign Aſſiſtance; That they ſhould make a League Offenſive and Defenſive with the Scots and Picts, and neither make War nor Peace, nor ſend Supplies to any who deſired it, without their conſent; That they ſhould Pay a certain Sum to be divided forthwith among the Soldiers, and give 100 Hoſtages for Performance of the Articles. The Peace being concluded, laſted for ſome time, and the Britains ſent for one Conſtantine from Britany in France, whom they choſe for King; he was afterwards ſlain by the Treachery of Vortigern a potent Britain, leaving three Sons behind him, but none of 'em of Age. Conſtantine obſerved the Peace with the Scots during his Reign, and the Britains having ſent a lamentable Embaſſy to Ætius the Roman Conſul for Aſſiſtance againſt the Scots and Picts, Complaining, That the Barbarians drove them to Sea, and the Sea drove them back again to the Barbarians; he could give them no help, being at that time in War with Attila King of the Huns. Vortigern improved the Publick Calamity to his own Private Advantage, cut off Conſtantine's Heir, Uſurp'd the Crown, and ſent for Hengiſt the Saxon, then exerciſing Piracy upon the Coaſts, to aſſiſt him againſt the Scots and Picts, Aſſigning him Land for that end; on News of which, ſuch a Multitude of Jutes, Saxons, and Angles flocked over into Britain, that Vortigern being ſtrengthened ſufficiently, defeated the Scots and Picts in a Battel on this ſide Humber, and drove them again beyond Adrian's Wall, Anno 449. As for Eugenius King of Scots, ſome ſay he fell in this Battle, others that he died a Natural Death; but however that is, he was certainly a Valiant, Politick and Pious Prince, and is deſervedly numbred amongſt the beſt of the Scottiſh Kings. Buchan.

EUGENIUS III. the 46th. King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Uncle Goranus, whoſe Death he was ſuſpected to have haſtened; yet he Governed ſo, as none of his Predeceſſors were preferable to him; he aſſiſted the Britains againſt the Saxons, whoſe Borders he continually infeſted. He died, Anno 558. and 23d. of his Reign. Buch.

EUGENIUS IV. the 51ſt. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Kennethus I. Anno 605. He was Educated in Learning and Piety by Columba. After his coming to the Crown, he exerciſed the Saxons and Picts with continual War, was very ſevere to the Proud and Stubborn, but merciful to thoſe who ſubmitted. He entertained the Children and Kindred of Ethelfrid King of Northumberland, who fled to him for ſhelter, with great Hoſpitality, and took Care to have them Educated in the Chriſtian Religion. He died in the 16th. Year of his Reign, very much lamented. Buch.

EUGENIUS V. the 56th. King of Scotland ſucceeded Maldwin; he defeated Egfrid King of Northumberland, who had entred as far as Galloway, his Army being totally routed, and himſelf narrowly eſcaping. That ſame Egfrid made War again upon the Picts the next Year, who cut him off with all his Men, and recovered thoſe Lands which the Saxons had taken from them; and the Britains who had freed themſelves from the Bondage of the Angles, joyning the Scots, did make ſuch a havock in the Kingdom of Northumberland, that it never recovered it after. Eugenius died in the 4th. Year of his Reign, about 644. Buch.

EUGENIUS VI. the 57th. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Eugenius V. He was very Learned in Theology, according to the rate of thoſe times. And on that account lived Amicably with Alfred King of Northumberland, who was addicted to that ſame Study. He had frequent Skirmiſhes with the Picts, but by the Interceſſion of the Clergy, they were kept from a pitch'd Battel: and as he was full of Thoughts to revenge the Perfidiouſneſs of that Nation, he died in the 10th. Year of his Reign, Anno 654. It's reported, That in his time it rained Blood over Britain for 7 Days, the very Milk, Cheeſe and Butter being turn'd into Blood. Buchan.

EUGENIUS VII. the 59th. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Amberkelethus his Brother, being declared King in the Field by the Army, leſt they ſhould be without a General. He concluded a Truce with the Picts, and at laſt ſettled a Peace by Marrying Spondana, Daughter to their King Garnardus. She was not long after Murdered in her Bed by two Athol men, who deſign'd to have killed the King, and then eſcaped. None but the King being found in the Chamber, he was Accuſed of the Murder; but before he was brought out to Judgment, the Murderers were found, and he acquitted; they were Puniſh'd after an exquiſite manner. He was a Pious Prince, and delighted much in Hunting. He was the firſt who appointed that the Atchievements of Kings ſhould be Regiſtred in Monaſteries. He reigned 17 Years, during which time he had Peace with all his Neighbours. He died about 721.

EUGENIUS VIII. the 62d. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Etfinus. His firſt Enterprize was againſt Donald of the Iſles, with whom he had many bloody Battels, and at laſt took him Priſoner, and Executed him publickly. He alſo put Murdo Vicegerent of Galloway to Death for ſiding with Donald, and Fined others for that ſame Crime, with which he ſatisfied thoſe whom they had Plundered; and having ſettled Peace at home, he renewed the Leagues with Neighbouring Princes; but he who had gain'd ſo much Glory in War, abandon'd himſelf to all manner of Vice in Peace, and refuſing to be reclaimed either by the Advice of his Eccleſiaſticks or Nobles, they conſpired to deſtroy him, which they effected in a Publick Convention in the third Year of his Reign, about 764. The Aſſociates of his Wicked Practices were publickly hang'd, all Men rejoycing in their Execution. Buchan.

EUGENIUS I. a Roman by Birth, ſucceeded Martin I. who was Baniſh'd in the Year 652. and after his Death was again confirm'd by the Clergy, and acknowledged for true Pope. He dy'd after he had govern'd his Church two Years and nine Months. In his time, Clodoveus the French King, ſent to help the Sons of Aripertus againſt Grimoaldus Duke of Beneventum, who had invaded Lombardy, were thus defeated. The Lombards diſſembled a Flight, leaving their Tents, furniſhed with plenty of all manner of Proviſions, eſpecially Wine, but made a halt at a convenient diſtance, and watch'd their opportunity. The French entring their Tents, and thinking they had been really fled, fell to Feaſting, and Eat and Drank to ſuch Exceſs that they fell dead aſleep, and lying about like Beaſts were all Slaughter'd; ſo that there was ſcarce one left alive to carry the News to Clodoveus. Platina.

EUGENIUS II. a Roman ſucceeded Paſchal I. Remarkable for his Charity to the Poor, and for protecting the Cauſes of Widows and Orphans, held the Pontificate four Years, and died 827. Baronius, Platina and Ciaconius, &c.

EUGENIUS III. call'd Peter Bernard, was elected Pope in 1145. At what time a Sedition of the People conſtrain'd him to ſlip out of Rome to the Monaſtery of Tarſa, where he was Crown'd by the Cardinals, and ſo ſoon as the Tumult was appeas'd, return'd to Rome; where the Calm laſted not long, ſo that he was forced to fly into France; where he perſwaded King Lewis to engage in the Holy War againſt the Turks and Saracens, but the Expedition prov'd fruitleſs, partly through the Treachery of Emanuel Emperor of Conſtantinople, who adviſed Lewis to paſs through the Deſarts of Syria, which haraſs'd and waſted his Army extremely, and through the ill Conduct at the Siege of Damaſcus, in removing the Camp from the River, and leaving the Beſieged the Liberty of the Water, and an occaſion to ſtop Proviſions from the Chriſtian Army, which was thereupon forced to raiſe the Siege ſhamefully. He return'd hence in 1149. and after he had made Peace with the Romans, and expell'd the Male-Contents out of all their ſtrong Holds, he retir'd to Tivoli, where he dy'd, after he had ſate 8 Years, 4 Months, and 20 Days. Platina.

EUGENIUS IV. a Venetian, whoſe firſt Name was Gabrieli Gondelmerio, ſucceeded Martin V. in 1431. A Perſon during his Pontificate, ſometimes favour'd, ſometimes frown'd upon by Fortune, involv'd in Wars and Eccleſiaſtical Seditions, and harraſs'd with a moſt terrible Schiſm. At the Beginning of his Pontificate, being diſturb'd with Civil Diſſention by the Colonna's, he diſpell'd that Storm, and Crown'd the Emperor Sigiſmund in the Vatican: Perſecuted afterwards by the Arms and Stratagems of Philip Maria Duke of Milan, he fled to Florence; and in a ſhort time recovering what he had loſt by the Aſſiſtance of Cardinal Vitaleſchi, he ſuppreſs'd his Enemies, revok'd the Council by him proclaim'd to meet at Baſil, and call'd a new Synod to ſit at Ferrara; whither the Greek Emperor, the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and ſeveral of the Armenian and Oriental Prelates repair'd, in Order to Unite the Eaſtern and Weſtern Churches; but not agreeing, Eugenius remov'd his Synod to Florence, and there diſſolved it. In the mean time, being Summon'd by the Council of Bâle to appear, for his Contempt he is depoſed, and Felix IV. ſet up in his room. At length, after ten Years roaming up and down he return'd to Rome, and made ſtout Oppoſition againſt his Enemies that harraſs'd the Eccleſiaſtical State, and at the ſame time ſent a Fleet by Sea, and an Army by Land againſt the Turk, under the Command of his Legate Juliano Cæſarini. He created XXVII. Cardinals at Six Promotions, and dy'd in the 63d. Year of his Age, after he had ſate Fifteen Years, eleven Months, and two Days. Platina adds, That he was a Man of great Inconſtancy, in the beginning of his Reign, led away by ill Counſels; but that in Proceſs of time he acted very Prudently, and with good Reſolution; an indifferent Scholar though a knowing Man, eſpecially in Hiſtory. He was bountiful to all, more eſpecially to Learned Men, whoſe company he loved; for he admitted Leonard Aretinus, Charles Poggius, Auriopa Trapezuntius and Blondus, very Learned Men, to be his Secretaries; he lov'd the Religious wonderfully, and gave 'em many Privileges, beſides Revenues which he added to their Foundations. But he loved War ſo much, that beſides thoſe he was imbroiled in, in Italy, he inſtigated the Dauphin, Son to Charles the French King, to go with a great Body of Horſe againſt thoſe of Baſil, and afterwards ſent Vladiſlaus King of Poland along with Julian Cæſarinus againſt the Turks, of whom 30000 were Slain, in a Battel between Adrianople and the Danube; but the King and Cardinal were alſo kill'd at the ſame time. He was accounted very ſtrict to his word, unleſs when he had promis'd a thing which was better to revoke than perform.

EUGENIUS, Biſhop of Carthage, a great Oppoſer of the Arians; perſecuted by Genſeric King of the Vandals, and baniſh'd by Huneric, came into France and dy'd at Viviers. Baronius, A. C. 495.

EUGENIUS, firſt taught Grammar, after the Death of Valentinian, ſaluted Emperor by Arbogaſtus, in the Year 392. Overthrown and Slain the next Year by the Emperor Theodoſius. Ruffin. Zoſimus, Oroſius.

EUGIPPUS or EGIPPUS, an African Abbot, living in the Sixth Century. He was Contemporary with Fulgentius, who wrote ſeveral Epiſtles to him: This Abbot wrote two Volumes, call'd, Theſaurus Sancti Auguſtini, Printed at Venice in 1543. In the firſt Part, he has made a Collection of all that St. Auſtin wrote about difficult Points, in Divinity, as, concerning the Soul. EVIL, a Conſiderable Market-Town in Somerſetſhire, ſituate on the River Evil or Yeovil, and on the great Weſtern Road. It took its riſe from the Decay of Ilcheſter. From Lond. 123 M.

EVITERNUS, a God to whom the Ancients Sacrificed red Oxen, according to Pliny. Thoſe Gods were alſo called Eviterni, whom Plato believed to be the only true Gods immaterial, without beginning or end, that is, immortal and unalterable; as Apuleius explains it, ſpeaking of the Dæmon of Socrates.

EULÆUS, Tiritiri, according to Ortelius, and the Geographical Maps, a River of Suſiana, flowing by the Royal City of Suſa, and then continuing its Courſe through the Province of Suſiana, diſcharges it ſelf into the Perſian Bay. It is ſuppoſed to be the River Ulai, mentioned by Daniel, c. 8. where he ſaw the Viſion of the Ram and the He-Goat.

EULALIUS, (Anti-Pope,) Archdeacon of the Church of Rome, was Elected by a Faction, againſt Boniface I. in the Year 418. Symmachus Prefect or Governour of the Town, having a Fancy for him, repreſented his Election favourably in a Letter to the Emperor Honorius, which made that Prince ſend Symmachus a Reſcript to ſupport him in his Office: But the Clergy giving the Emperor to underſtand, that the Legality of the Choice fell upon Boniface, the Emperor Order'd both the Competitors to appear at Ravenna, Summoning at the ſame time, a great many Eccleſiaſticks to determine this Controverſie: While the Cauſe was depending, he forbid both of 'em to appear at Rome, but Eulalius, breaking through this Prohibition, and raiſing a Tumult in the Town, the Emperor ſent an Order to the Governor to Expel him, which was executed accordingly. Anaſtaſius in Boniface I. Baron. A. C. 418.

EULOGIA, Siſter of the Emperor Michael Palæologus, extraordinarily belov'd by him for her Care of him during his Infancy. This Paſſage is ſtoried of her, that when ſhe could not rock him to ſleep, after many other Songs, ſhe ſung one that begun thus, Take heart, Emperor of Conſtantinople, Thou ſhalt enter by the Golden Gate, and perform great Matters; and immediately the Child was ſtill. She us'd this Artifice upon all ſuch Occaſions, and had the ſame Succeſs. When he was of Age, ſhe acquainted him with that Paſſage; the Prediction being happily fulfill'd, ſhe found the Effects of his Affection; there being hardly any Favour to be had but by her means. She protected the Greek Church againſt the Weſtern, and broke quite with her Brother, and perſuaded both in Number and Diſcipline, they were totally routed. Eugenius and moſt of his Nobles dying gloriouſly in the Field. Upon this great and unlook'd for Victory, Maximus was inclined to Clemency, and to have taken the Scots into his Protection upon their Submiſſion; but the Hatred of the Picts was ſo great, that they would never let him be at reſt till he Publiſh'd an Edict, Commanding the Scots to depart out of Britain by a certain Day; not ſuffering him to except the very Preachers, though the Picts at that time Profeſſed Chriſtianity. So that the Scots were diſperſed in the Weſtern Iſlands, Ireland, Scandia and Cimbrica Cherſoneſus, now Denmark, Swedeland, &c. being every where courteouſly received and applauded for their Valour. The Scots Iſlanders did afterwards make an Attempt upon the Continent, but were all cut off, and their Ships and Boats made uſe of againſt thoſe who were left behind. A little after, the Scots who had fled to Ireland ſtirred up the Iriſh Scots to aſſiſt them, and Landing in Scotland with 10000 Men, ſpread their terror far and near, waſting their Country with Fire and Sword; The Iriſh Scots being elevated with their Succeſs, were for attempting ſomething more, the Albion Scots adviſed 'em to retire with their Booty, and not to ſtay till the Romans gathered the whole Strength of Britain againſt them; adding, That the beſt way was to weary the Romans out with Toil and Labour. The Iriſh Scots upbraided thoſe of Albion, as having degenerated from the Valour of their Anceſtors, and would venture a Battel, wherein they were totally cut off: So that the Albion Scots were for ever excluded all hopes of return, and the Iriſh found themſelves obliged to ſend Ambaſſadors to offer Submiſſion to the Romans, and beg Pardon, which was obtained, ſo much the more eaſily, that Maximus was returning to Rome, having got himſelf proclaim'd Emperor by the Army. Maximus being Slain in Italy, Victorinus was ſent to rule Britain, and forbad the Picts to chooſe any King or other Chief Magiſtrate but ſuch as were ſent from Rome; which they looking upon as a Badge of Intolerable Slavery, repented of their having betray'd the Scots, and look'd upon this as a Judgment for having ſo done; hereupon they elected a King privately, and at their Aſſembly, complain'd heavily of their Bondage, acknowledging that God did juſtly puniſh them for perſecuting the Scots Miniſters, and not ſo much as ſuffering them to live in the ſame Country with them; ſo they reſolved to reconcile themſelves to the Scots, and ſent a private Embaſſy to young Fergus of the Blood Royal, who was an Exile in Scandia, to invite him home, thinking that by his Example and Authority the reſt would be alſo induced to return, which ſucceeded accordingly. Eugenius was killed about 373. Buchan.

EUGENIUS II. Succeeded his Father Fergus II. his Grandfather Graham being appointed Regent during his Minority, who finding that he was not Strong enough to make War upon the Romans, kept quiet. The Roman Legion which came to aſſiſt their Allies in Fergus II's time, having deſtroy'd the Country on the South of Severus his Wall, reſtored it, to the Britains. So that the Scots and Picts were again ſhut up betwixt the two Firths of Edinburgh and Dumbarton. The Romans being called home to defend the Seat of the Empire, did acquaint the Britains that they were not to expect any further Aſſiſtance from them, but muſt ſtand on their own Defence, and that they might be the better enabled to do it, where Severus had made a Graff, the Romans Summoned a vaſt Multitude of Workmen; and built a Wall of Stone 8 Foot broad, 12 high, and 30 Mile long; Building alſo Caſtles at proportionable diſtances. The Weſt End of the Wall was at Kirk Patrick, and the Eaſt at Abercorn, according to Bede. They alſo built Watch-Towers, and placed Garriſons along the Coaſts to prevent the Scots and Picts Landing within the Wall; and ſo left Britain. Which as ſoon as the Scots and Picts underſtood, they Aſſaulted the Wall, pulling the Britains down with Crooked Iron Hooks faſtened on long Poles, and then with their Engines overthrew the Wall, routed the Britains, and return'd loaden with Spoils. After this, they ſent Colonies to Plant the Lands which they had taken from the Britains; So that all the Exil'd Scots, with abundance of Danes and other Strangers, came and ſetled themſelves in that part of the Country, thinking that Graham would never lay down Arms till he had ſubdued all Britain; but he was willing rather to make Peace with Glory, than truſt to the Event of War; ſo that a Peace was concluded with the Britains, and Graham ſetled the Boundary at Adrian's Wall, as far as Newcaſtle upon Tine. Dividing the New Conquer'd Lands among his Followers, who then impoſed new Names upon the Countries according to their Fancies. After this, Graham built Forts for Defence againſt ſudden Invaſions, and ſetled Maintenance upon the Eccleſiaſticks. The Britains being haraſſed with all the Calamities of War, were alſo attack'd by Famine. And Eugenius King of Scots, being now of Age, and deſirous of making ſome Figure in the World, ſent Ambaſſadors to the Britains, to demand the Lands beyond Adrian's Wall, which belonged to Graham his Grandfather; who was a Britain nobly Deſcended, and fled to Scotland from the Roman Servitude. Conanus one of the Chief Men among the Britains, adviſed them to comply with his Demand, rather than exaſperate ſuch a formidable Enemy; but he was Murdered by the Multitude for his good Advice. So that Eugenius's Ambaſſadors were ſent back with a Denial, which occaſioned a Battel, the fierceſt that had ever before that time been fought in Britain. The Scots Right Wing, after a long and fierce Diſpute, were forced to give Ground; but King Eugenius bringing up the Squadrons which guarded the Baggage reſtored them; ſo that the Victory begun on that Side. And the Britains were routed with the loſs of 14000 Men on the Field; and 4000 Scots and Picts. After this Defeat, the Britains ſent Commiſſioners to treat of a Peace on any Terms whatſoever, which was obtained, on condition that the Britains ſhould yield all the Country North of Humber, That they ſhould neither ſend for Roman, nor any other Foreign Aſſiſtance; That they ſhould make a League Offenſive and Defenſive with the Scots and Picts, and neither make War nor Peace, nor ſend Supplies to any who deſired it, without their conſent; That they ſhould Pay a certain Sum to be divided forthwith among the Soldiers, and give 100 Hoſtages for Performance of the Articles. The Peace being concluded, laſted for ſome time, and the Britains ſent for one Conſtantine from Britany in France, whom they choſe for King; he was afterwards ſlain by the Treachery of Vortigern a potent Britain, leaving three Sons behind him, but none of 'em of Age. Conſtantine obſerved the Peace with the Scots during his Reign, and the Britains having ſent a lamentable Embaſſy to Ætius the Roman Conſul for Aſſiſtance againſt the Scots and Picts, Complaining, That the Barbarians drove them to Sea, and the Sea drove them back again to the Barbarians; he could give them no help, being at that time in War with Attila King of the Huns. Vortigern improved the Publick Calamity to his own Private Advantage, cut off Conſtantine's Heir, Uſurp'd the Crown, and ſent for Hengiſt the Saxon, then exerciſing Piracy upon the Coaſts, to aſſiſt him againſt the Scots and Picts, Aſſigning him Land for that end; on News of which, ſuch a Multitude of Jutes, Saxons, and Angles flocked over into Britain, that Vortigern being ſtrengthened ſufficiently, defeated the Scots and Picts in a Battel on this ſide Humber, and drove them again beyond Adrian's Wall, Anno 449. As for Eugenius King of Scots, ſome ſay he fell in this Battle, others that he died a Natural Death; but however that is, he was certainly a Valiant, Politick and Pious Prince, and is deſervedly numbred amongſt the beſt of the Scottiſh Kings. Buchan.

EUGENIUS III. the 46th. King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Uncle Goranus, whoſe Death he was ſuſpected to have haſtened; yet he Governed ſo, as none of his Predeceſſors were preferable to him; he aſſiſted the Britains againſt the Saxons, whoſe Borders he continually infeſted. He died, Anno 558. and 23d. of his Reign. Buch.

EUGENIUS IV. the 51ſt. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Kennethus I. Anno 605. He was Educated in Learning and Piety by Columba. After his coming to the Crown, he exerciſed the Saxons and Picts with continual War, was very ſevere to the Proud and Stubborn, but merciful to thoſe who ſubmitted. He entertained the Children and Kindred of Ethelfrid King of Northumberland, who fled to him for ſhelter, with great Hoſpitality, and took Care to have them Educated in the Chriſtian Religion. He died in the 16th. Year of his Reign, very much lamented. Buch.

EUGENIUS V. the 56th. King of Scotland ſucceeded Maldwin; he defeated Egfrid King of Northumberland, who had entred as far as Galloway, his Army being totally routed, and himſelf narrowly eſcaping. That ſame Egfrid made War again upon the Picts the next Year, who cut him off with all his Men, and recovered thoſe Lands which the Saxons had taken from them; and the Britains who had freed themſelves from the Bondage of the Angles, joyning the Scots, did make ſuch a havock in the Kingdom of Northumberland, that it never recovered it after. Eugenius died in the 4th. Year of his Reign, about 644. Buch.

EUGENIUS VI. the 57th. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Eugenius V. He was very Learned in Theology, according to the rate of thoſe times. And on that account lived Amicably with Alfred King of Northumberland, who was addicted to that ſame Study. He had frequent Skirmiſhes with the Picts, but by the Interceſſion of the Clergy, they were kept from a pitch'd Battel: and as he was full of Thoughts to revenge the Perfidiouſneſs of that Nation, he died in the 10th. Year of his Reign, Anno 654. It's reported, That in his time it rained Blood over Britain for 7 Days, the very Milk, Cheeſe and Butter being turn'd into Blood. Buchan.

EUGENIUS VII. the 59th. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Amberkelethus his Brother, being declared King in the Field by the Army, leſt they ſhould be without a General. He concluded a Truce with the Picts, and at laſt ſettled a Peace by Marrying Spondana, Daughter to their King Garnardus. She was not long after Murdered in her Bed by two Athol men, who deſign'd to have killed the King, and then eſcaped. None but the King being found in the Chamber, he was Accuſed of the Murder; but before he was brought out to Judgment, the Murderers were found, and he acquitted; they were Puniſh'd after an exquiſite manner. He was a Pious Prince, and delighted much in Hunting. He was the firſt who appointed that the Atchievements of Kings ſhould be Regiſtred in Monaſteries. He reigned 17 Years, during which time he had Peace with all his Neighbours. He died about 721.

EUGENIUS VIII. the 62d. King of Scotland, ſucceeded Etfinus. His firſt Enterprize was againſt Donald of the Iſles, with whom he had many bloody Battels, and at laſt took him Priſoner, and Executed him publickly. He alſo put Murdo Vicegerent of Galloway to Death for ſiding with Donald, and Fined others for that ſame Crime, with which he ſatisfied thoſe whom they had Plundered; and having ſettled Peace at home, he renewed the Leagues with Neighbouring Princes; but he who had gain'd ſo much Glory in War, abandon'd himſelf to all manner of Vice in Peace, and refuſing to be reclaimed either by the Advice of his Eccleſiaſticks or Nobles, they conſpired to deſtroy him, which they effected in a Publick Convention in the third Year of his Reign, about 764. The Aſſociates of his Wicked Practices were publickly hang'd, all Men rejoycing in their Execution. Buchan.

EUGENIUS I. a Roman by Birth, ſucceeded Martin I. who was Baniſh'd in the Year 652. and after his Death was again confirm'd by the Clergy, and acknowledged for true Pope. He dy'd after he had govern'd his Church two Years and nine Months. In his time, Clodoveus the French King, ſent to help the Sons of Aripertus againſt Grimoaldus Duke of Beneventum, who had invaded Lombardy, were thus defeated. The Lombards diſſembled a Flight, leaving their Tents, furniſhed with plenty of all manner of Proviſions, eſpecially Wine, but made a halt at a convenient diſtance, and watch'd their opportunity. The French entring their Tents, and thinking they had been really fled, fell to Feaſting, and Eat and Drank to ſuch Exceſs that they fell dead aſleep, and lying about like Beaſts were all Slaughter'd; ſo that there was ſcarce one left alive to carry the News to Clodoveus. Platina.

EUGENIUS II. a Roman ſucceeded Paſchal I. Remarkable for his Charity to the Poor, and for protecting the Cauſes of Widows and Orphans, held the Pontificate four Years, and died 827. Baronius, Platina and Ciaconius, &c.

EUGENIUS III. call'd Peter Bernard, was elected Pope in 1145. At what time a Sedition of the People conſtrain'd him to ſlip out of Rome to the Monaſtery of Tarſa, where he was Crown'd by the Cardinals, and ſo ſoon as the Tumult was appeas'd, return'd to Rome; where the Calm laſted not long, ſo that he was forced to fly into France; where he perſwaded King Lewis to engage in the Holy War againſt the Turks and Saracens, but the Expedition prov'd fruitleſs, partly through the Treachery of Emanuel Emperor of Conſtantinople, who adviſed Lewis to paſs through the Deſarts of Syria, which haraſs'd and waſted his Army extremely, and through the ill Conduct at the Siege of Damaſcus, in removing the Camp from the River, and leaving the Beſieged the Liberty of the Water, and an occaſion to ſtop Proviſions from the Chriſtian Army, which was thereupon forced to raiſe the Siege ſhamefully. He return'd hence in 1149. and after he had made Peace with the Romans, and expell'd the Male-Contents out of all their ſtrong Holds, he retir'd to Tivoli, where he dy'd, after he had ſate 8 Years, 4 Months, and 20 Days. Platina.

EUGENIUS IV. a Venetian, whoſe firſt Name was Gabrieli Gondelmerio, ſucceeded Martin V. in 1431. A Perſon during his Pontificate, ſometimes favour'd, ſometimes frown'd upon by Fortune, involv'd in Wars and Eccleſiaſtical Seditions, and harraſs'd with a moſt terrible Schiſm. At the Beginning of his Pontificate, being diſturb'd with Civil Diſſention by the Colonna's, he diſpell'd that Storm, and Crown'd the Emperor Sigiſmund in the Vatican: Perſecuted afterwards by the Arms and Stratagems of Philip Maria Duke of Milan, he fled to Florence; and in a ſhort time recovering what he had loſt by the Aſſiſtance of Cardinal Vitaleſchi, he ſuppreſs'd his Enemies, revok'd the Council by him proclaim'd to meet at Baſil, and call'd a new Synod to ſit at Ferrara; whither the Greek Emperor, the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and ſeveral of the Armenian and Oriental Prelates repair'd, in Order to Unite the Eaſtern and Weſtern Churches; but not agreeing, Eugenius remov'd his Synod to Florence, and there diſſolved it. In the mean time, being Summon'd by the Council of Bâle to appear, for his Contempt he is depoſed, and Felix IV. ſet up in his room. At length, after ten Years roaming up and down he return'd to Rome, and made ſtout Oppoſition againſt his Enemies that harraſs'd the Eccleſiaſtical State, and at the ſame time ſent a Fleet by Sea, and an Army by Land againſt the Turk, under the Command of his Legate Juliano Cæſarini. He created XXVII. Cardinals at Six Promotions, and dy'd in the 63d. Year of his Age, after he had ſate Fifteen Years, eleven Months, and two Days. Platina adds, That he was a Man of great Inconſtancy, in the beginning of his Reign, led away by ill Counſels; but that in Proceſs of time he acted very Prudently, and with good Reſolution; an indifferent Scholar though a knowing Man, eſpecially in Hiſtory. He was bountiful to all, more eſpecially to Learned Men, whoſe company he loved; for he admitted Leonard Aretinus, Charles Poggius, Auriopa Trapezuntius and Blondus, very Learned Men, to be his Secretaries; he lov'd the Religious wonderfully, and gave 'em many Privileges, beſides Revenues which he added to their Foundations. But he loved War ſo much, that beſides thoſe he was imbroiled in, in Italy, he inſtigated the Dauphin, Son to Charles the French King, to go with a great Body of Horſe againſt thoſe of Baſil, and afterwards ſent Uladiſlaus King of Poland along with Julian Cæſarinus againſt the Turks, of whom 30000 were Slain, in a Battel between Adrianople and the Danube; but the King and Cardinal were alſo kill'd at the ſame time. He was accounted very ſtrict to his word, unleſs when he had promis'd a thing which was better to revoke than perform.

EUGENIUS, Biſhop of Carthage, a great Oppoſer of the Arians; perſecuted by Genſeric King of the Vandals, and baniſh'd by Huneric, came into France and dy'd at Viviers. Baronius, A. C. 495.

EUGENIUS, firſt taught Grammar, after the Death of Valentinian, ſaluted Emperor by Arbogaſtus, in the Year 392. Overthrown and Slain the next Year by the Emperor Theodoſius. Ruffin. Zoſimus, Oroſius.

EUGIPPUS or EGIPPUS, an African Abbot, living in the Sixth Century. He was Contemporary with Fulgentius, who wrote ſeveral Epiſtles to him: This Abbot wrote two Volumes, call'd, Theſaurus Sancti Auguſtini, Printed at Venice in 1543. EUMENES, King of Aſia and Pergamus, ſucceeded his Father Attalus in the Year of Rome 556. and agreed ſo well with his Brothers, that they were always quoted as an Example of Mutual Concord. He was deeply engaged in Friendſhip with the Romans; detected the deſigns of Perſeus, vanquiſh'd Antiochus the Son of Seleucus, made his Name famous, and reign'd Forty Years. Strabo, Livy, Juſtin, &c.

EUMENES, Born of poor Parents, of a Scribe became a famous Captain; highly eſteem'd by Alexander the Great. After whoſe Death, Perdiccas entruſting him with his Forces, he overcame Craterus, and Antipater, who ſtrove in vain to gain him by Preſents. In the Year 437. being driven out of Aſia by Antigonus, he kept his footing in the moſt Eaſtern Provinces, at the Head of the Argyraſpides, and not being able to draw Seleucus to his Party, he invaded his Territories. At length being re-inforc'd with Conſiderable Succours, he advanced againſt Antigonus, but was baſely betray'd and deliver'd into his hands by his own Soldiers, and by his Enemy put to Death, after he had Faſted three Days together. Plutarch in his Life. Cor. Nepos, Juſtin, Arrian, &c.

EUMENES, by Plutarch call'd Philo-Romæus, the Son of one Eumenes, ſucceeded his Uncle Philetærus in the Kingdom, in the Year of Rome 490. in ſtrict Amity with the Romans: And Strabo writes, that Attalus his Brother and Succeſſour, was the firſt who aſſum'd the Title of King of Pergamus.

EUNAPIUS, a Native of Sardis, in Lydia liv'd in the Reigns of Valentinian, Valens and Gratian, and wrote the Hiſtory of the Roman Emperors, beginning with Claudius, where Dexippus ended, and concluding with Arcadius and Honorius. He inveighs againſt the Monks, whom he accuſes of Tyranny, and prefers Julian the Apoſtate before Conſtanſtine the Great. His Hiſtory being loſt, there is now nothing of his Extant, excepting the Lives of the Sophiſts, the Lives of thoſe Philoſophers who were his Contemporaries, and ſome Fragments of Embaſſies. Photius gives him a good Character for the main, only complaining of him for his Heat and Partiality againſt the Chriſtians. Zoſimus ſeems to have follow'd him very cloſe, and in a manner tranſcribed his Hiſtory. Photius, Bibl. Cod. 73. 98. Voſſius, &c.

EUNOMIUS, an Arch-Heretick, liv'd in the IVth. Age, was ordain'd Biſhop of Cyzicum, and ſtoutly defended the Arian Hereſie, maintaining that the Father was of a different Nature from the Son; becauſe no Creature could be like his Creator. He affirm'd, That he knew God as well as God knew himſelf; and thoſe that were Baptiz'd in the Name of the Holy Trinity, he Re-baptiz'd. Upon divulging his Tenents, he was expell'd Cyzicum, and forced alſo to leave Samoſata, where he was obtruded by the Arrian Faction. Valens reſtor'd him to Cyzicum; but being again expell'd by the People, he apply'd himſelf to Eudoxius at Conſtantinople. He held, That the Son of God did not Subſtantially unite himſelf to Humane Nature, but only by Vertue and his Operations, re-baptiz'd all that had been Chriſten'd in the Name of the Holy Trinity; and was ſo averſe againſt this Myſtery, that he forbad the triple immerſion at Baptiſm. Epiphanius, Theodoret, Ruffinus, Baronius, Cave. Hiſt. lit. p. 1.

EVODIUS, Biſhop of Antioch, ſucceeded St. Peter, as ſome will have it, though others make Ignatius the ſecond. He ſuffer'd Martyrdom in the Year 71. Euſeb. Chron. A. C. 45. & 71. & lib. 3. Hiſt. cap. 16. &c.

EVORA, an Archiepiſcopal City of Portugal, in the Province of Alantejo, erected into a Metropolitan See, by Paul III. at the Requeſt of John III. King of Portugal. It is call'd in Latin Ebora, and look'd upon to be the Second City of the Kingdom. Cardinal Henry was the firſt Archbiſhop, and afterwards came to the Crown after the Death of Don Sebaſtian. The ſame Henry Founded alſo an Academy and ſet up a Court of Inquiſition. Reſendio, Miræus.

EUPHEMIUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, at variance with the Popes Felix and Gelaſius, becauſe he refus'd to raſe the Names of Acacius and Flavitas, out of the Diptychs of the Conſtantinopolitan Church. At length, Anaſtaſius the Emperor, from whom he had exacted a Writing, wherein he promiſed to obſerve the Decrees of the Synod of Chalcedon, baniſh'd him out of Conſtantinople, in favour of the Eutychians, in the Year 95. Evagr. Baron. A. C. 489.

EUPHORBUS, a Noble Trojan, ſlain in the Trojan War by Menelaus; whoſe Soul Pythagoras affirm'd to be tranſmigrated into Himſelf. Ovid. Metam. 15.

EUPHORION, of Chalcis, a Poet and Hiſtorian, Born in the CXXVI. Olympiad. Suetonius relates of the Emperor Tiberius, that he compoſed Verſes in Imitation of Euphorion, Rianius and Parthenius; with whom he was delighted to that Degree, that he order'd their Writings and their Pictures to be put up in all the Publick Libraries, among the moſt Ancient and Celebrated Authors. Suidas, Strabo, Sueton. in Tib.

EUPHRATES, one of the largeſt and moſt famous Rivers in the World, which riſing out of the Mountain Ararat in Armenia, keeps on its Courſe at firſt from Eaſt to Weſt, but then having left Erzerum, turns to the South, ſeparates Natolia from Armenia, and Meſopotamia from Syria and Arabia. And thus after it has waſh'd the Walls of ſeveral Cities, and ſwelled it ſelf with a vaſt number of Rivers, below Seleucia, and near to Cteſiphon, falls into the Tygris, and ſo both together diſcharge themſelves into the Perſian Gulph. This famous River has ſeveral conſiderable Branches, whereof ſome have forced their way into a new Chanel, the old ones being loſt and damm'd up by time. The Lakes alſo to the Weſt, which were deſign'd to receive the Waters in times of great Inundations, are filled up by the Mud and Sand brought down by the River. However that Branch that runs to Cufa, never comes to the Sea, but is loſt in the Sand of Arabia, and has turn'd the fruitful Plains of Babylon into a meer Moraſs, altogether unpaſſable and uninhabitable. Both Pliny and Strabo agree, that it overflows yearly as the Nile does, and much about the ſame time; which Inundation has the ſame effect as to the fertility of Meſopotamia, that the overflowing of the Nile has upon Egypt. M. Thevenot who croſs'd it at Bir, ſaith, It is in Semur no bigger than the Seine at Paris, tho' it's twice as broad. The Waters of it run very ſlowly, and are Navigable as far as to the places where it joyns the Tygris.

EUPOLIS, an Athenian and Comick Poet, lived about the LXXXV. Olympiad, toward the Year of Rome 315. He aſſum'd the Liberty of the ancient Comedy in laſhing the Vices of the People. He periſh'd in the Naval Engagement near the Helleſpont, between the Lacedæmonians and the Athenians; whoſe Death was ſo lamented by the City, that there was an Edict made, That for the future no Poet ſhould ſerve in the Wars. Others ſay, That Alcibiades had him put to Death for his Satyrical freedom in Writing. See Suidas.

EURA, in Lat. Ebura, a River of France, which riſing in Perche, falls into Beauſſe. It runs to Chartres, Nogent le Roy, Ivri and Louviers; and after it has received ſeveral other leſſer Streams, it falls into the Seine above Pont de l' Arche. Papire Maſſon.

EUREUX, upon the River Iton, an Epiſcopal City of France in Upper Normandy, a Bailywick, with a Court of Juſtice. It is very Ancient, as being mention'd in Cæſar's Commentaries, and other Authors, by the Names of Ebroica, Ebroicum, Mediolanum Aulercorum, Ebura, &c. and pleaſantly ſituated in a fertile Country; having in it a great number of Churches and Religious Houſes. It had formerly particular Counts of its own, and by Charles IX. was erected into a Dukedom, in favour of his Brother the Duke of Alencon; after whoſe Death it was united to the Crown. Du Cheſne, &c.

EURIPE, or Euripus, an Arm of the Sea between Achaia and the Negropont; ſo narrow juſt over againſt the Capital City of the Iſland, that People croſs it over a Draw-Bridge, and a Stone-Bridge of five Arches; between which ſtands a Tower built by the Venetians. The Ancients call'd it Euripus Euboicus, the Natives call it Egripos, and the Italians, Stretto di Negroponte; which is properly that part which is next the City of Negropont, where a ſingle Galley can hardly paſs between the Cittadel and Tower of the Venetians; but this Name is given to the whole Streight for twelve Miles together, where it is much Broader, and the Tides much more Regular and Conſtant. For in the Narrow part of the Streight, the Tides are Regular the Firſt 8 Days of the Moon; the 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20 Days of the Full Moon; the 27, 28, 29. the 3 laſt Days of the Laſt Quarter Regular. But the 9, 10, 11, 12, 13. of the Firſt Quarter, and the 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, and 26. of the Laſt Quarter, the Tides are Irregular. During their Irregular Motion, the Euripus Ebbs and Flows 11, 12, 13, and 14 times in Four and twenty Hours; but during their Regular Motion, they flow as in other Seas. There are alſo two particular Differences between the Tides of the Euripus, and thoſe of the Ocean. Firſt, That the Water for the moſt part never riſes above a Foot high; and that very rarely too; whereas in many Ports of the Ocean it riſes Four and twenty Cubits. Secondly, That in the Ocean the Water falls, when it Ebbs, into the Sea, and riſes when it rowls toward the Shore: Whereas the Euripus riſes when the Water Ebbs toward the Iſlands of the Archipelago, where the Sea is broadeſt; and riſes, when the Water Ebbs toward Theſſaly into the Canal, through which the Galleys paſs for Salonichi. Alſo it is obſerv'd, that at High-water, the Waters ſtand ſtill, without moving one way or other for an Hour or half an Hour together. But the reaſon of this, no body can unriddle. Nor is it better known, why in ſome places, as at Dieppe, the High Tides are 2 or 3 Days after the New and Full Moon? Why they increaſe in the New Moon, when this Planet has leſs force, and diminiſh when it begins to ſtrengthen? Why in a certain Sea in the Indies, the Water riſes for 15 Days, and falls for ſo many? Why the great Tides happen in the Ports of Cambay in the Full Moon, and in the Port of Calecut, which is not very far off it, in the New. Ba in. Spon.

EURIPIDES, a Famous Tragick Poet, born at Salamine, the ſame day that the numerous Hoſt of Xerxes was Overthrown by the Athenians. Though others will have him to be a Native of Phlia, a Village of Attica. He flouriſh'd in the Reign of Archelaus, King of Macedon, who had him in great Honour, after he left Athens, becauſe the Comick Poets, were prefer'd before him. He wrote ſeventy five Tragedies, but was Victor only in five; of the whole there are but nineteen extant now. He was a Hearer of Anaxagoras and Socrates, and Prodicus taught him Rhetorick. He travell'd with Plato into Egypt, to improve his Knowledge: And Gellius affirms, That he ſaw a Cave under Ground, in Salamine, where Euripides often wrote. He was, by ſome, call'd the Woman-Hater; perhaps, by reaſon of his unhappy Marriage, in regard his Wife was a Common Proſtitute. (See Ariſtophanes's Froggs, 4. 2. and the Scholiaſt upon the Place.) He dy'd in the ſeventy fifth Year of his Age, torn in pieces by Dogs, as (Gellius and Val. Max. have reported.) For one Decamnichus having upbraided him with his Breath, which, 'tis ſaid, was none of the ſweeteſt, Archelaus ſent him to Euripides, to inflict what Puniſhment he pleas'd upon him: In revenge of which, Decamnichus ſet ſeveral Maſtiffs upon Euripides, and had a Hand in the Murther of Archelaus: Though Others ſay, It was an Accident that happen'd by Chance: Others, That he fell into the Hands of certain barbarous Women, of whom he had given no better a Character than they deſerv'd. However it were, Archelaus order'd his Bones to be carry'd to Pella, notwithſtanding the Importunities of the Athenians, who by their Embaſſadors deſir'd the Honour of Entombing the Reliques of their Fellow-Citizen in his Native Country. Diod. Sic. Gellius. Cicero to Tyro.

EUROPA, the Daughter of Agenor, King of Phœnicia, and Siſter of Cadmus; with whom Jupiter being in Love, transform'd himſelf into the Shape of a Bull, and ran away with her into this part of the World; which, from her Name, was afterwards call'd Europe. Others, with more probability, agree, That Aſterius, or Minos, brought her away, when he wag'd War with the Phœnicians, putting her into a Ship which was call'd the Bull; and that ſhe was carry'd into Creet, and there marry'd one Aſterius, who for his Vertue and Juſtice was call'd Jupiter. Bochart holds, That the word Europe comes from the two Phœnician words Churappa, which ſignifie a White Viſage; becauſe the Europeans are White, in compariſon of Africans. He alſo derives from the ſame Origin, the Name of Agenor's Daughter. Boch. Phaleg and Canaan. Euſebius, Herodotus.

EUROPE, One of the Four Parts of the World, to the Weſt of Aſia, and the North of Africa. It extends it ſelf from the 34 Deg. of Latitude, to the 72 Deg. and from the 9 Deg. of Longitude, to the 93, or 94. By which Latitude it appears to be almoſt all within the Temperate Zone, and no part of it in or near the Torrid Zone, but ſome part of it in and near the Frozen Zone. To the South of it lies the Mediterranean-Sea, which parts it from Africa. Weſtward, it is bounded by the Atlantick-Ocean. To the North, by the Northern, or Frozen-Ocean. Eaſtward, it is divided from Aſia by the Archipelago, the Sea of Marmora, the Streight of Gallipoli, the Black-Sea, the Streight of Caffa or Voſporo, the Sea of Zabaque, and the River Don, drawing a Line from thence to the River Obi, and ſo to the Frozen-Ocean. And all that will be found on the Left-hand, to the Weſt, will be Europe; and all to the Left, Aſia. As to the Form, Strabo gives it the Reſemblance of a Dragon; but ſome of the Modern Geographers will have it to be like a Woman ſeated in a Chair; allowing Spain to be the Head; Languedoc and Gaſcoign, the Neck; the reſt of Gaul, the Breaſt; Italy and Great Britain, the Arms; Germany, the Belly; Bohemia, the Navil; and the reſt of the Body, the reſt of the Kingdoms and Provinces. The Length of Europe is taken from Cape St. Vincent, in Spain, to the Mouth of the River Obi, containing 900 German Miles. The Breadth, from South to North, is taken from the Promontory of Tenara in the Morea, to that of Rutubas in Scritofinnia, which the Modern Maps call Noortkin, comprehending 550 German Miles, which make 1100 French Leagues; others with more Probability make the Length of it 1200 or 1300 Leagues, and the Breadth of it 900. Modern Geographers divide Europe into nine Parts, or Thrice three principal Parts: Viz. The Britannick Iſlands, Scandia, or Scandinavia, where are the States of Denmark and Swedeland; White Ruſſia, or Moſcovy. To the Weſt, Spain, Italy, and European Turkey. France, Germany and Poland lying in the Middle. Others divide it according to its different Sovereignties: They conſider two Emperors, the Eaſtern and Weſtern. Seven Kings: 1. The King of France, Sirnam'd the Moſt Chriſtian, or Elder Son of the Church: 2. Of England Defender of the Faith: 3. Of Spain, or the Catholick: 4. Of Poland: 5. Of Swedeland: 6. Of Denmark: 7. Of Portugal. The Kingdoms of Hungary and Bohemia, poſſeſſed by the Emperor: That of Navarre, part in the Hands of the King of Spain, and part belonging to the French: Naples and Sicily, both in the Poſſeſſion of the Crown of Spain, are not mention'd. There are alſo in Europe two great Dukes, of Muſcovy and Florence: An Arch-Duke, of Auſtria: Eight Sovereign Dukes, viz. of Savoy, Parma, Mantua, Modena, Bavaria, Saxony, Brunſwick, and Tranſylvania. Some add, the Dukes of Lorrain, Wertemberg, and Curland. There is a Marquiſs of Brandenburg; a Count Palatine of the Rhine; the Landtgrave of Heſſe. Four Sovereign Eccleſiaſtick Princes, viz. the Pope, the Archbiſhops of Cologne, Mayence and Treves: To which are added the Archbiſhop of Bremen, and Biſhop of Munſter. Six Common-wealths; as Venice, Genoa, Luquez, Swiſſerland, the United Provinces, and Raguſa: To which may be added that of Geneva and St. Martin; and ſome Imperial Free Towns that have much the ſame Form of Government. The Iſlands, Rivers and Mountains of Europe, in the Ocean, are the Briſh Iſles; as England, Scotland and Ireland; the Orcades; the Hebrides; and ſome other. The greateſt in the Mediterranean, are Sicily, Sardaigne, Corſica, Candia; the Iſlands of Greece, and ſome on the Coaſts of Italy and Provence. The Iſlands of the Baltick, are Zeland, Finland, Rugen, Barnholm, Gotland, Oeſel, &c. The conſiderableſt Rivers, are, the Loire; the Seine; the Rhine; the Garonne in France; the Po and Tiber in Italy; the Rhine, Danube, Elbe and Oder, in Germany; the Tagus, Douro, Guadiana, Ebro and Guadalquiver, in Spain; the Viſtule and Nieper in Poland; the Volga, and the Don, or Tanais, in Muſcovy; the Thames, in England; the Tay, in Scotland; the Shannon, in Ireland; the Scheld and Meuſe, in the Low-Countries. The moſt famous Mountains of Europe, are, the Cevennes, in France; the Pirenees and Alps, upon the Frontiers; the Appennines, in Italy; Olympus and Parnaſſus, in Greece; the Sierra Morena, in Spain; Mont Gibel, or Ætna, in Sicily; the Riphean Mountains, in Muſcovy; the Carpathian between Poland, and Hungary; &c. Though Europe is the Leaſt of the Four Parts of the World, yet its many Advantages make it more Conſiderable than any of the other. The Air is very Temperate, and the Provinces very Fertile, except thoſe that lie much Northward, It abounds with all ſorts of Neceſſaries. Its Inhabitants Poliſh'd, Civiliz'd, and very Ingenious in Sciences and Handycrafts. The French are ſaid to be a Poliſh'd, Expert and Generous Nation, but Fiery and Unconſtant. The Germans Sincere and Laborious, but ſomewhat Heavy, and given to Wine. The Italians are Genteel and ſmooth, but Jealous and Treacherous. The Spaniards are Cloſe and Prudent, but Extravagant Boaſters and Formaliſts. The Inhabitants of Britain are Couragious almoſt to Raſhneſs, but Haughty and Proud. The Europeans, by their Addreſs and Courage, have ſubdued moſt of the other Parts of the World. Their Wit appears in their Works; their Prudence, in their Government; their Strength, in their Armies; their Conduct, in their Commerce: And finally, their Magnificence, in their Cities and Buildings. There are Three Chief Languages, the Latin, Teutonick, and Sclavonian. The Latin ſpoke in Italy, France and Spain, but in different Idioms; the Teutonick, in Germany, the Britiſh Iſlands, Scandinavia, &c. the Sclavonian, in Poland, Muſcovy, Bohemia, and in a great part of the Europæan Turkey. And Three Principal Religions, the Reformed, the Roman, and that of the Greeks.

EUROPS, the Son of Ægialus, the Second King of the Sicyonians, reigned about Forty five Years; from the Year of the World, 1942. to 1987. And many believe that Europe deriv'd its Name from this Europs, and not from Europa, the Siſter of Cadmus. Pauſanias, Apollodorus, Euſebius.

EUROTAS, Baſilipotamo, a River of Laconia, which riſing in Arcadia, runs through Laconia, waſhes the Walls of Sparta, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Gulph of Caſtel Rampani. Alſo a River of Theſſaly, which enters into Peneus, but mixes not with it. For, according to Homer, the Water of Eurotas ſwims like Oyl upon Peneus; which in a ſhort time leaves it, and takes another Courſe. Pliny, l.4.c.9.

EURYDICE, the Daughter of Amyntas III. King of Macedon, marry'd Aridæus, King Philip's Natural Son: ſo envious of Olympias's Grandeur, that ſhe took the Field to deſtroy her; but being defeated, and taken Priſoner, Olympias ſent her a Sword, a Long Silk Lace, and a Cup of Poyſon, to make Choice of her Death. Upon which, Eurydice, nothing terrify'd with thoſe diſmal Preſents, after ſhe had pray'd the Gods that Olympias might one day be reduc'd to the ſame Extremity, took the Lace and ſtrangled her ſelf. Diodorus, l. 19.

EURYMEDON, a River of Pamphylia, now Jercon and Zacuth; which ſpringing out of the Mountain Taurus, divides Pamphylia in the middle, and waſhes the Walls of Aſpendum. Cimon, Admiral of the Athenians, having vanquiſh'd Xerxes's Fleet, purſu'd the flying Enemy into the Mouth of this River, in the Year of Rome 284, as Mela and Thucydides atteſt.

EURYSTHEUS, the Son of Stheneleus; who, to gratifie the Hatred of Juno, put Hercules upon all the moſt difficult Enterprizes he could imagine.

EUSEBIUS, a Græcian, and Son of a Phyſician, ſucceeded Pope Marcellus, in the Reigns of Conſtantine and Maxentius; ſate ſix Years, one Month, and three Days, and dy'd in 311. During the Pontificate of Euſebius, on the 3d. of May the Croſs of our Saviour is ſaid to have been found, being very much ador'd, and had in great Veneration by Helena, Conſtantine's Mother: And one Judas who found it baptiz'd, and afterwards call'd Cyriacus. He admitted Hereticks to the Communion of the Church, upon their Retractation, by the Impoſitions of Hands only; and Ordain'd, That no Laick ſhould commence a Suit againſt a Biſhop. Platina.

EUSEBIUS, Biſhop of Nicomedia, and then of Conſtantinople, liv'd in the Fourth Age. He was a great Upholder of the Arians; made it his buſineſs to keep Conſtantine in the dark, and cruelly perſecuted Athanaſius. After the Emperor's Death, he infected Conſtans, and the whole Imperial Family; intruded himſelf into the Biſhoprick of Conſtantinople, after he had gotten Paul his Predeceſſor to be baniſh'd; and dy'd in 342. Socrat. Sozom. Theod. &c.

EUSEBIUS PAMPHILUS, Biſhop of Cæſarea, in Paleſtine; a learned Prelate, and the greateſt Writer of his Time; in great Favour with Conſtantine, whoſe Life he wrote, in Four Books; together with an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, in Ten Books; an Hiſtorical Abſtract, and a Chronology; with an infinite number of other Pieces. Particularly, Præparatio Evangelica. Demonſtratio Evangelica, &c. His Moderation, joyn'd to his Learning and Parts render'd him acceptable, and won him great Friends. He dy'd about 440. St. Jerom Tranſlated his Chronology; which ended at the Twentieth Year of Conſtantine, and continu'd it to the Conſulſhip of Valens and Valentinian; and owns, That Euſebius had read not only the Works of the Greek Hiſtorians, Philoſophers and Divines, but alſo thoſe of the Egyptians and Phœnicians. Arnald of Pontac, and Joſeph Scaliger, publiſh'd this Chronology of Euſebius: And John Chryſtophorſon, and Henry de Valois, his Ten Books of Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory: And other learned Men have Printed ſeveral of his other Writings. Monſieur L' Clark, Baronius and ſome of the Ancients charge this Euſebius with Arrianiſm; but notwithſtanding ſome uncautious Expreſſions in his Writings, Dr. Cave has ſufficiently vindicated him from this Imputation, citing ſeveral places from him, inconſiſtent with the Principles of that Hereſie; and that in the Management of this Myſterious Controverſie, he deliver'd himſelf in the Language of Alexander, Biſhop of Alexandria, St. Athanaſius, St. Baſil, St. Hilary, &c. all celebrated Champions of the Orthodox Faith. Cave Diſſertatio tertia adv. Johannem Clericum. Hiſt. Liter. Pars Altera.

EUSEBIUS, Biſhop of Verceil, liv'd in the Fourth Age; and was ſent by P. Liberius to the Emperour Conſtans, in behalf of Athanaſius. He was preſent at the Council of Milan, held in 355. where he not only refus'd to ſubſcribe himſelf to the Condemnation of Athanaſius; but perſuaded Dionyſius, the Biſhop of that Dioceſs, to ſtrike out his own Signature. For which he was baniſh'd by Conſtans, and dy'd in the Year 371. Jerom in Chron. S. Ambroſ. Ep. 82, &c.

EUSEBIUS, Biſhop of Samoſata, liv'd in the Fourth Age, and was baniſh'd by the Emperour Valens. After whoſe Death, being order'd by the Council of Antiochia to viſit the Churches of Meſopotamia, coming to Dolichæ, he was by an Arrian Woman knock'd on the Head with a Brickbat, in 378. During his Exile, he diſguis'd himſelf in a Soldier's Habit, to viſit and aſſiſt the Orthodox; And Theodoret affirms he ordain'd Prieſts in thoſe Churches which were unſupply'd, and receiv'd Letters from Gregory Nazianzen and St. Baſil. Theodoret, Greg. Nazian. Ep. 28. 30.

St. EUSTACHIUS, called Placidus before his Converſion. Baronius believes he is the Colonel of that Name, mention'd by Joſephus, in his Hiſtory of the Jewiſh Wars; who ſerved under Veſpaſian, and ſignaliz'd himſelf at the famous Siege of Jeruſalem, under his Son Titus. It's ſaid, he was Converted to the Chriſtian Faith, by ſeeing a Crucifix hang between the Horns of a Stag which he hunted, and hearing a Voice which admoniſh'd him to turn Chriſtian. He perſwaded his Wife and two Sons to embrace the ſame Faith, withdrew himſelf from Court, and liv'd a private Life. Some ſay, he ſerv'd a rich Labourer, until the Emperour Trajan, promiſing a great Reward to him that diſcover'd where he was, ſome Officers found him out, and carry'd him to Rome; where the Emperour gave him the Command of an Army; with which he brought his rebellious Subjects to their Duty. Adrian, Trajan's Succeſſor, ſhew'd him great Affection, and honour'd him with a Triumph; and withal, order'd ſolemn Sacrifices to the Gods for the Victory. Euſtachius refuſing to aſſiſt at the Ceremony, was ſent for by the Emperour: To whom declaring he was a Chriſtian, and therefore thought himſelf oblig'd to render Thanks to none but the True God; He, with his Wife and two Sons, were caſt into Priſon, and afterwards expos'd to famiſh'd Lions, who did not in the leaſt hurt 'em; but being afterwards put into a Brazen Bull, were all burn'd to death, An. Dom. 120. Manſini.

EUSTACHIUS, an Hereſiarch of the Fourth Century; a Fryar ſo extravagantly fond of his own Profeſſion, that he condemn'd all the other Conditions of Civil Life; and excluded Marry'd Folks from Eternal Bliſs, forbad Praying in Private Houſes; and oblig'd all his Sectators to quit their Goods, as incompatible with the Hope of Paradiſe; and order'd Faſts upon Sundays. Several Women, ſeduc'd by 'em, left their Husbands; and a great number of Slaves took occaſion thence to run away from their Maſters. St. Epiphan.

EUSTATHIUS, Biſhop of Theſſalonica, liv'd in the 12th Century, in the Reign of the Emperour's Emmanuel, Alexis, and Andronicus Comnenus. He was a very Eminent Grammarian, and wrote Commentaries upon Homer and upon Dionyſius the Geographer: The firſt of theſe two Pieces is very much valued. The beſt Edition of it, is that of Rome, printed in 1542. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. cap. 19.

EUSTATHIUS, Patriarch of Anticchia; wrote much againſt the Arians under Conſtantine; was preſent at the Council of Nice: but being accus'd by a Harlot, (ſet on by the Arians) of Fornication, was baniſh'd to Trajanopolis, in Thrace, where he died. He liv'd in the Fourth Age. Sozomen affirms, that he was much celebrated for the Probity of his Life, and the Elegancy of his Writings: Some of which were publiſhed by Leo Allatius, in 1629.

EUSTOCHIUM, the Daughter of one Paula, a Roman Lady; liv'd 35 Years in the Nunnery of Bethlem, under the Conduct of St. Jerom, in the Fourth Age; ſo perfectly learned in the Latin, Greek and Hebrew Languages, that ſhe was call'd, The New Prodigy of the World. St. Jerom, Ep. 10. &c.

EUSTON, a ſmall Town of Blackbourn-Hundred, in the North-Weſt of Suffolk; finely ſeated in a Flat on the South-ſide of the River Oute, in a fair Champaign Country, grac'd with Euſton-Hall, one of the fineſt Seats in the Kingdom, built by the late Earl of Arlington, and noted for giving the Title of Earl to his Grace the Duke of Grafton, Son to the ſaid Earl's Daughter, by the late Duke of Grafton.

EUTERPE, one of the Nine Muſes, ſhe's ſaid to have invented the Flute, and ſome ſay, Logick too: She's repreſented with a Crown of Flowers upon her Head, playing upon a Flute and Hautboys lying at her Feet. Baudowin Iconol. d' Ripa.

EUTHIMIUS, Firſt Patriarch of Conſtantinople in the Xth Cent. He was put in the place of Nicholaus Myſticus, whom the Emperour Leo VI. had diſpoſſeſs'd of his See. He was born in Iſauria, and liv'd a Monk: His Probity and Merits procur'd him the Favour of the Emperour Leo, who made him his Confeſſour: Some ſay, God gave him the Gift of Prophecy; and that he had an Extraordinary Call, by a Voice, to the See of Conſtantinople, without which he had never ſubmitted to that Promotion. After the Death of Leo, Alexander the IId. who ſucceeded him, baniſh'd Euthimius in the Year 911, to make way for the reſtoring of Nicholas, and upon this Occaſion, ſome Simonaical Clerks, whom he had reprimanded, treated him roughly, and outrag'd him even to Blows, which ill Uſage, he ſuffer'd very patiently. He died in his Exile, about the Year 920, and his Corps were brought with great Solemnity, to Conſtantinople, and interr'd there. Curopalates, Baronius, A.C. 901. 911. 920.

EUTHIMIUS ZIGABENUS, a Greek Monk, flouriſh'd in the beginning of the XIIth. Cent. He wrote, among other Pieces, a Book call'd Panoplia, or to give the Title more at large, Orthodoxæ Fidei Panopliæ dogmaticæ adverſus omnes Hæreſes, 'tis tranſlated into Latin, and printed at Lyons and Venice. Sixtus Senenſis, lib. 4. Bibl. Sac. Bellarm. de Script. Eccl.

EUTHYCRATES, a Famous Statuary, the Scholar of Lyſippus, who minded more the Truth of Proportion, than Curioſity of Workmanſhip. Among all his Works, his Statues of Alexander and Hercules were much applauded; as alſo the Statue of Medea, in a Chariot drawn by four Horſes; ſeveral Packs of Hounds; and a Repreſentation of a Fight on Horſeback; which was put at the Entrance of Trophonius's Cave, Pliny.

EUTROPIUS, an Italian Sophiſt, (as Suidas calls him,) wrote Ten Books of the Roman Hiſtory; wherein he recounts the moſt Memorable Things that happen'd in the Roman Empire, from the Foundation of Rome, to the Reign of Valens, to whom he dedicated his Works. Capito, a Famous Author of his Time, tranſlated theſe Books into Greek, as Scaliger, Beda and Simler obſerve.

EUTROPIUS, an Eunuch and Favourite of Arcadius; by whom being advanc'd to the higheſt Dignities in the Empire, he plotted the Ruine of his Benefactor, to ſet up himſelf; but was Detected, and Beheaded. In the Theodoſian Code, we have a remarkable Order of the Emperours Arcadius and Honorius, to Aurelian Præfectus Prætorio, by which they declar'd Eutropius's Eſtate forfeited for his Miſbehaviour, degrade him from all his Titles, and ſtrike him out of the Faſti Conſulares, declaring him ſunk into the laſt Degree of Meanneſs and Peaſantry, by his Treaſonable and Scandalous Practices. Cod. Theodoſ. lib. 17. de Pœn. S. Chryſoſtom, Hom. in Eutrop. Sozomen, Nicephorus, Ammian. Marcellin.

EUTYCHES, a Conſtantinopolitan Abbot, who contending againſt Neſtorius, fell into a New Hereſie; affirming Chriſt to be one thing, and the Word another. He deny'd the Fleſh of Chriſt to be like ours; but ſaid, He had a Celeſtial Body, which paſs'd through the Virgin, as through a Chanel; That there were Two Natures in Chriſt before the Hypoſtatical Union; but that after it, there was but One, compounded of Both: And thence concluded, That the Divinity of Chriſt both ſuffer'd and dy'd, &c. Being Condemn'd in the Synod of Conſtantinople, conven'd by Flavianus the Biſhop, he appeal'd to the Emperor. After which, by the Aſſiſtance of Dioſcurus, Biſhop of Alexandria, and Chryſaphius, he obtain'd a Synod at Epheſus, call'd Laſtrica, or, The Aſſembly of Thieves and Robbers; wherein he got his Hereſie to be approv'd. However, in the Second Oecumenical Council of Chalcedon, under Martian, A. D. 451. his Errors were a ſecond time condemned. Act. Concil. Chal. Evagr.

EUTYCHIANS, the Followers of Eutyches's Errors, who violently perſecuted the Orthodox People, under the Reign of Marcian; who therefore found himſelf conſtrain'd to make 'em liable to thoſe Puniſhments to which the Hereticks were obnoxious by the Laws of the Empire. Baron. Annal.

EUTYCHIANUS, a Native of Tuſcany, ſucceeded Felix I. in the See of Rome, in the Reign of Aurelian, in the Year 275. He ordain'd that all Fruits, eſpecially Beans and Grapes, ſhould be Conſecrated upon the Altar; and, That the Bodies of the Martyrs ſhould be buried in Purple Shrouds. He ſuffer'd Martyrdom after he had ſate One Year, One Month, and One Day, (according to Damaſus, to whom Platina adheres.) Platina.

EUTYCHIDES, a Statuary, who flouriſh'd in the 120th. Olympiad; and (as Pliny informs us) made the River Eurotas ſo naturally; that his Workmanſhip ſeem'd to be more Liquid than the River it ſelf. Plin. 34. 8.

EUTYCHIUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, ſucceeded Mennas, in the Year 553. He call'd the Fifth Oecumenical Council, wherein he preſided himſelf. Juſtinian falling into new Errours, was reprov'd by the Patriarch; which ſo offended the Emperour, that he got him depos'd in a Synod, and ſet up one John in his room: After whoſe death, Eutychius was reſtored, in 578. He wrote a Treatiſe of the Reſurrection, againſt the Gentiles, but fell into the Errour of Origen, that the Bodies of thoſe that roſe again, ſhould not be felt: But being convinc'd of his Errours by Gregory the Great, then Nuncio in the Court of Tiberius II. upon his Death-bed, taking hold of the Fleſh of his Arm, he cry'd out, I believe we ſhall all riſe with this Fleſh. He dy'd about the Year 586. Euſtathius, in his Life. Baronius.

EUTYCHIUS, Patriarch of Alexandria, liv'd about the Ninth Age, and wrote Annals in the Arabic Language; printed at Oxford, in 1658, with a Latin Verſion by Mr. Pocock. Selden printed ſomewhat of this Patriarch's before, under this Title, Eutychii Origines Eccleſiæ Alexandrinæ: Where he pretends to ſhew, that in the firſt Ages of Chriſtianity, there was no difference betwixt Prieſts and Biſhops; becauſe that, according to Eutychius, there was no other Ceremony uſed to Conſecrate Biſhops in the Church of Alexandria, but to chuſe one of the Twelve Prieſts that belonged to it; on whom the other Eleven put their Hands. Abraham Ecchellenſis writes againſt this, in a Book entituled, Eutychius Patriarcha Alexandrinus Vindicatus, wherein he confutes Selden, and proves that the Prieſts of Alexandria had no Authority to Conſecrate a Biſhop, by Impoſition of Hands: This Office being an incommunicable Branch of the Epiſcopal Character, as Ecchellenſis makes good by the Conſtitutions of the Alexandrian Church, and other Authentick matters of Fact. And here we may obſerve; that the Annals of the Patriarch Eutychius are not very exact, either in the Hiſtory or the Chronology. R. Simon.

EUZOIUS, Deacon of Alexandria, depos'd together with Arius, by the Biſhop of that City: But upon his offering to Conſtantine a Counterfeit Confeſſion of Faith, he was again received into the Church. Soon after, he was preferr'd by the Arians to the See of Antiochia; but contrary to their Expectations, proving Orthodox, he Baptiz'd the Emperor Conſtantius, in 360. Socrates, Sozomen, Theodoret.

EWELL, a Market-Town of Copthorn-Hundred, in Surrey; near which ſtood Non-ſuch, a Royal Palace, built by King Henry VIII. From London 12 Miles.

EX, Lat. Iſca, is a River of England: It has its ſource in Somerſetſhire; and paſſing by Winesford, it takes in Dunſbrook River, or Creden; from Dulverton, on the Weſt: Then entring Devonſhire, it runs directly South to Tiverton; where it takes in Loman River from the Eaſt: At Stocke, it takes in Columbe; and a little lower, Credy, from the Weſt; then incompaſſing a great part of the North-Weſt and South of Exeter; a little lower, it admits Clyſt on the Eaſt, and Kent on the Weſt, and ſo entreth the Britiſh Sea by a large Mouth.

EXARCH has not always been taken for the ſame thing: for the Modern Græcians give it a far different Signification from what it had formerly. In ancient Times, what we call Primate of a Dioceſs, was called Exarch. It was alſo a Dignity of the Empire: The Emperor's General in the Weſt, and his Vicar reſiding at Ravenna, were call'd Exarchs. The Firſt Exarch was under Juſtin the Young, in 567. after Beliſarius and Narſes had driven the Barbarians out of Italy: The laſt was Eutychius, defeated by Aſtolphus, King of the Lombards, in 751. But Pepin, King of France, outed him of the Exarchate, and made a Gift of it, to the Pope; ordering his Chaplain to lay the Keys of all the Towns on the Altar of Peter and Paul at Rome. Now Exarch, in the Greek Church, is a Viſitor, or one deputed by the Patriarch into Provinces, to ſee whether the Biſhops do their Duties, and whether the reſt of the Clergy obſerve the Canons of the Church. M. Simon, Paul Deacon, Blondus.

EXETER, Lat. Exonia, Iſca, Iſca Danmoniorum; the Chief Place of Devonſhire, lies W. S. W. from London about 130 Miles. 'Tis called Exeter, from the River Ex, on the Eaſt Banks whereof it is ſeated, 10 or 12 Miles from its fall into the Sea: A large and well-compacted City, conſiſting of 15 Pariſhes within the Walls and Suburbs. Alſo a Place of great Trade, eſpecially for Cloathing. But the River is ſo choak'd up, that the Veſſels are forc'd to Load and Unload their Goods at Topſham, about 3 Miles lower. On the Eaſt part of the City is an ancient Caſtle, formerly a Palace of the Weſt-Saxon Kings; and after them, of the Earls of Cornwal; which has a very Pleaſant Proſpect unto the Sea. Over-againſt it ſtands the Cathedral, once a Monaſtery, founded by King Ethelſtan, and dedicated by him to St. Peter: But after Exeter was made a Biſhop's See, and this Church the Cathedral, it was re-edify'd by ſeveral Patrons: The Choir by Biſhop Warlewaſt, the Third Biſhop of the Dioceſs; the Body of the Church by Biſhop Quivil, the Side-Iſles, by Grandiſon: that which is now Our Ladies Chapel, being a Remnant of the old Fabrick. At the firſt planting of the Church in theſe Weſtern Parts, it was thought convenient to erect a Biſhop's See; the one for Cornwal, at St. Germains; the other for Devonſhire, at Credington, now Kirton, a ſmall Village. But that of Cornwal being annex'd to Credington, about the Year 1032. both were not long after, viz. An. 1049. remov'd to Exeter; where it ſtill continueth. This happen'd in Edward the Confeſſor's Reign; who removing all the Monks from hence to Weſtminſter, newly founded and endowed by him, made it the Biſhop's See for Devonſhire and Cornwal The Patrimony whereof, once very large, was grievouſly impair'd by Biſhop Voiſey, alias Harman; who at his coming hither, Anno 1523. found the Church poſſeſſed of 22 great Mannors, and 14 Manſion-Houſes richly furniſh'd; whereof he left not above 7 or 8 of the worſt Mannors, Let-out in long Leaſes, and Charg'd with Penſions; and but 2 Houſes, bare and naked. Of 604 Pariſhes, which this Dioceſs contains in the two Counties of Devon and Cornwal, there are no leſs than 239 Impropriate. The Biſhoprick once valued at above 1500 Pound is now abated, in the King's Books to 500 Pound. But the Clergy's Tenths riſe high, viz. to 1200 l. 15 s. 2*d.* Laſtly, There are 4 Archdeacons belonging to this Dioceſs, diſtinguiſh'd by the Names of Cornwal, Exeter, Barnſtable, and Taunton, Here (ſays Speed) the Britains held out againſt the Saxons, 465 Years after their firſt entrance; Exeter not being abſolutely won till the Reign of Ethelſtan, the 8th. Saxon Monarch; by whom it was beautify'd, and Peopled with Saxons. But it afterwards felt the Fury of the Danes, and was by them raz'd down to the Ground, Anno 603. Yet, upon the Norman Conqueſt, it had ſo far recover'd it ſelf, that it held out a while againſt the Conqueror, till part of the Wall happen'd to fall down of it ſelf. It withſtood three Sieges ſince: The firſt laid by Hugh Courtney, Earl of Devonſhire, in the Civil Broils between the Houſes of York and Lancaſter: The ſecond by that noted Impoſtor, Perkin Warbeck, in Henry the VIIth's Reign: The third, by the Corniſh Rebels; wherein the Citizens expreſs'd, to the utmoſt, their Fidelity to King Edward VI. From which time, to this, it has flouriſh'd in Wealth, under the Government of a Mayor, and twenty four Aldermen; with a recorder, Town-Clerk, and other Officers their Attendants. Beſides the Honour of being a Biſhop's See, it has been formerly, firſt dignified with the Title of a Dukedom; ſecondly, with that of a Marquiſs; and laſtly, with the Title of Earl, in the Perſon of Thomas Cecil, Lord Burleigh, created Earl of Exeter by King James I. in the Year 1605. in whoſe Line it has continued ever ſince.

EXORCISMS, are certain Prayers us'd of old in the Church for the diſpoſſeſſing of Devils: This Cuſtom of Excrciſing is as Ancient as Chriſtianity it ſelf, being practis'd by our Saviour, the Apoſtles and the Primitive Church: And the Chriſtians were ſo well aſſur'd of the Prevalence of their Prayers upon theſe Occaſions, that they publickly offer'd the Heathens to venture their Lives upon the Succeſs. Tertul. Apol. Minutius Fœlix, St. Cyprian, &c.

EXTRAVAGANTS, a Name given to thoſe Decretal Epiſtles which were publiſh'd after the Clementines. The firſt Extravagants are John the XXIId's Succeſſour to Clement V. They were ſo call'd, becauſe at firſt, they were not digeſted, nor rang'd with the other Papal Conſtitutions, but ſeem'd to be, as it were, detach'd from the Canon Law. The ſame Name continuing upon 'em, when they were afterwards inſerted in the Body of the Canon Law. The laſt Collection of Decretals to 1483. were call'd the Common Extravagants, notwithſtanding they were likewiſe embodied with the reſt of the Canon Law. Doujat. Hiſtoir. d' Droit Canon.

EXTUCA, a Province in the Kingdom of Morocco in the Country of Sus: It reaches from the Atlantick Ocean to Mount Atlas, and the Frontiers of Biledulgerid.

EXUPERIUS, Biſhop of Tholouſe, toward the beginning of the Fifth Age; who, in a great Famine, after he had ſold his own Goods, ſold alſo all the Conſecrated Gold and Silver Plate in the Church, to relieve the Poor: ſo that St. Jerom compar'd him to the Widow of Sarepta, and dedicated to this Prelate his Comment upon Zachary. St. Jerom, Ep. 4. ad Ruſt.

EYE, or Eaye, Lat. Inſula, a ſmall Corporation in the County of Suffolk, near the Borders of Norfolk: So called (ſaith Mr. Camden) becauſe it's an Iſland; where are to be ſeen the Ruines of an old Caſtle which belong'd to Robert Mallet, a Norman Baron, and of an ancient Benedictine Abbey, called St. Peter's. This Town has been given in Joynture with the Queens of England. After many other Changes in this Honour Sir Frederick Cornwallis deſcended lineally from Sir John Cornwallis, Steward of the Houſhold to Edward VI. and Sir Thomas Cornwallis, the Privy-Councellor to Queen Mary, and Comptroller of her Houſe, was in 1661. made Baron Cornwallis of Eye, by Charles II. and had the Honour to be the Second Coronation-Baron: To whom ſucceeded Charles, Lord Cornwallis, his Son; who dying in 1673. Charles, the Second of this Family, his Son, ſucceeded, and is now living. By the Favour of this Family, this ſmall Corporation obtain'd its Charter, and the Honour of ſending Two Burgeſſes to the Houſe of Commons; otherwiſe the Place is very ſmall and inconſiderable. It ſtands 12 Miles from Ipſwich to the North, and 17 from Norwich, to the South, in the Road between theſe two Places.

EZEKIEL, the Third of the greater Prophets, was carry'd away young, among the reſt of the Captives, from Judæa into Babylon; where he began to Propheſie, in the Year of the World, 3349. before the Birth of Chriſt 613 Years; and made it his whole Buſineſs to reduce the Jews from their Idolatry, and make 'em ſenſible of the Crimes which had reduc'd 'em to that Miſery and Slavery which they endured. Which ſo incens'd the Idolatrous Jews, that they put him to a moſt cruel Death.

EZZELINO, Born at Onara, in La Marca Trevigiana, Originally of Germany, liv'd in the Thirteenth Age. He was, firſt of all ſucceſsful at the Head of the Gibellines; and having made himſelf Maſter of Verona, Padua, and ſome other Cities of Italy, became a moſt outragious Tyrant. He contemned the Anathema's of Gregory IX. Innocent IV. and Alexander IV. And hearing that the Citizens of Padua were up in Rebellion againſt him, he put 12000 of the People of the Country, which he had in his Army, to Death in one Day. At length being taken by the Confederate Princes of Lombardy, as he was going to make an Attempt upon Milan, he was carry'd to Soncin; where he died Mad, in 1259. after he had exercis'd his Tyranny for 40 Years together. The Monk of Padua, Chron. l. 1, 2. Sigonius de Reg. Ital. See alſo the Life of Ezzelin, written by Peter Gerard of Padua, his Contemporary.

F. THIS Letter, by ſome reckon'd a Mute, by others a Semivowel, is the ſame with the Eolian Digamma; i. e. a Double Γ, or Greek Gamma. It hath almoſt the ſame Sound with the Greek Φ; but ſome are of Opinion, that Ph is to be uſed in Words of Greek Original, and F in thoſe which are Latin. Suetonius ſays, That the Emperour Claudius invented this Letter, with other two; and that this had the Force of V Conſonant; and ſo it is to be found in the Inſcriptions which were made in that Emperour's Reign. Aulus Gellius gives the reaſon of this Invention. F had not ſuch a ſtrong Aſpiration as Φ: Wherefore Cicero mocks a certain Grecian, who inſtead of Fundanius, pronounced Phundanius. However, in the Declenſion of that Language, the one of thoſe Letters was taken for the other; as Falanx for Phalanx, Filoſofia for Philoſophia. Aul. Gel. Sueton. in Claud. c. 41. Priſcian.

FABARIA, in High-Dutch Pfavers, Baths of great Fame in the Griſon's Country; they are of very difficult Acceſs, and lie amongſt dreadful Mountains, as it were in a bottomleſs Gulph, where a Neighbouring River makes a terrible Noiſe by its fall from the Rocks. They were diſcovered in the Emperour Frederick IId's time by a certain Falconer who was ſeeking for Ravens Neſts. They have no ungrateful Smell of Sulphur or Nitre, becauſe they proceed from Veins of Gold and Copper. Paracelſus and others give Elegant Deſcriptions of them. Simler. in Rep. Helv.

FABIANUS, a Roman born, ſucceeded Anterus in the Biſhoprick of Rome, An. 236. In his time ſprung up the Novatian Hereſie; he ordain'd, that the Chriſm or Holy Oil, ſhould be renew'd once every Year, and the Old ſhould be burnt in the Church. He ſuffered Martyrdom in the Reign of Decius, after he had ſate 14 Years, eleven Months, and as many Days. Some Authors ſay, That during the Ceremonies of his Election, a Dove appear'd upon his Head. Platina.

FABII, an Ancient Family in Rome, and of long continuance; dignify'd with ſeven Dictatorſhips, five Maſterſhips of Horſe, ſeven Cenſorſhips, forty eight Conſulſhips, ten Tribuneſhips with Conſular Power, five Princes of the Senate, thirteen Triumphs, and two Ovations. It's ſaid, this Family was call'd Fabian, becauſe when the Romans addicted themſelves to Agriculture, there was one of it obſerv'd to have great Skill in ſetting of Beans, in Lat. Faba, as the Piſa's, Cicero's, and Lentul's deriv'd their Names from Piſa, Ciceres, and Lentuli. The Power of this Family may be gueſs'd at by the offer it made to undertake a War at its own Expence againſt the Veij, declar'd Enemies of the Romans. It's true, this honourable Deſign did not ſucceed, 306 of the Family falling in the Battel fought near Cremera, An. R. 277. there remain'd but one, who was advanced to the higheſt Employments of the Common-wealth. Q. Fabius Gurges, one of his Deſcendants, Conſul with D. Junius Brutus Scæva, An. R. 462. fought againſt the Samnites with ſo little Conduct, that the Senate was upon the point of recalling him, which Fabius Maximus his Father having an Inkling of, begg'd that he might Command under him as his Lieutenant; This being granted, Matters were quite chang'd, the Samnites defeated, and a Triumph granted to Gurges.

FABIUS Marcellinus, an Hiſtorian of the IIId. Age, who liv'd after Alexander Severus, and before Diocleſian. He is quoted by Lampridius, for having writ the Life of Alexander Mammeus; and Vopiſcus in the Life of Probus, where he ſays, That he had no deſign to imitate Salluſt, Livy, Tacitus or Trogus; but Marius Maximus, Suetonius, and Fabius Marcellinus. Voſſius alſo mentions him in l. 3. de Hiſt. Latin.

FABIUS Maximus, call'd alſo Rullianus, was the Firſt of the Family of the Fabii, who merited the Surname of Maximus. He was General of the Houſe in 429. of Rome, at what time he forced the Samnites Camp and won an abſolute Victory, being rather willing to venture his Head by fighting contrary to order, than loſe an opportunity of ſerving his Country. For which, the Dictator Papyrius would have put him to Death, becauſe he fought in his abſence, contrary to his Orders; but the People obtain'd his Pardon. He was five times Conſul, Cenſor once, and Dictator in the Year of Rome 450. He triumph'd over the Lucerians, Samnites, Gauls, Umbrians, Marſi and Tuſcans. He was the firſt who ordain'd that the Roman Knights ſhould Ride once a Year, mounted upon white Horſes, from the Temple of Honour to the Ca-

Capitol. Aurel. Victor. Livy, Eutropius, Valer. Maximus, Florus, &c.

FABIUS MAXIMUS Quintus, ſurnam'd Cunctator, becauſe that by his delays and ſtanding upon the Defenſive part he wearied out Hannibal. The Africans omitted no ſorts of Provocations to draw him to a Battel. Hannibal alſo ſent him word, That if he were ſo great a Captain as he would be thought, he ſhould come down into the open Field and accept of a fair Challenge. To which Fabius return'd Anſwer, That if Hannibal were ſo great a Captain as he would be eſteem'd, he ſhould do well to force him to fight. He was five times Conſul; in the firſt of which, he defeated the Ligurians; and in all the reſt did great Services for his Country. The great Service he did the Commonwealth when reduced very low, got him the Name of its Supporter and Buckler; he retook Tarentum, and carried the Statue of Hercules thence to the Capitol, and having made an Agreement with the Enemy about the releaſe and exchange of Priſoners, which the Senate refus'd to ratifie or ſtand by, he Sold all his own Eſtate to make good his Promiſe. Livy, Plutarch, Valer. Max. &c.

FABIUS MAXIMUS, Surnam'd Allobrogicus, for defeating Bituitus, King of the Auvergnians, ſubduing the Allobroges, and reducing into a Roman Province part of Languedoc, the Dauphinate and Savoy, by the Name of Provincia Narbonenſis. He was alſo Cenſor in 649. He left a Son of his own Name, whoſe looſe Life made him to be deprived of his Father's Eſtate. Cic. pro Font. Valer. Max. &c.

FABIUS MAXIMUS Quintus, the Son of Fabius the Dictator, who ſeeing his Father coming toward him without moving from his Saddle, ſent one of his Officers to him to bid him alight; but then the Father embracing the Son, I was willing (ſaid he) to underſtand whether thou kneweſt what it was to be a Conſul. This illuſtrious Roman, reckoning it a greater Honour to have a Son that underſtood the Dignity of his Place, than to be reſpected by a Conſul. Plutarch.

Quintus FABIUS Servillianus, High Prieſt of Rome, and Conſul with Lucius Metellus in the Year of Rome 611. was ſent into Spain againſt Viriathus whom he vanquiſh'd at firſt, purſu'd and coup'd him up in one of his Cities; but being foil'd in a Sally which Viriathus made, and forced to retire, was conſtrain'd to make a Peace upon equal Conditions; which tarniſh'd the Glory of his Victory. Livy, Florus, &c.

FABIUS Pictor, the firſt of the Romans that began to write a Hiſtory in proſe. And therefore by Livy is call'd Scriptorum Antiquiſſimus, & longe Antiquiſſimus. However that Piece which we have under his Name is an Impoſture of Annius of Viterbo. Several confound him with others of this Name, as with a learned Lawyer mention'd by Cicero. The Family he deſcended of, was ſurnam'd Pictor, becauſe the firſt of it painted the Temple of Health at Rome. Livy, Voſſius.

FABIUS MAXIMUS, Conſul with Julius Cæſar, and by him being ſent into Spain, he ſubdu'd Pompey's Faction, and took all Spain by Compoſition.

Afterwards he Compos'd the Annals of Miſnia in Verſe in Seven Books, and the Annals of Meiſſen in III. which he Printed at Leipſick in 1570. and dy'd in 1571.

FABRIANUM, Lat. Fabriano, a large wall'd Town of Italy in La Marca d' Ancona, celebrated for the Magnificence of it's Buildings and for that reaſon equall'd with Crema in Lombardy, Prato in Tuſcany, and Barulum in Apulia; ſeated at the Foot of the Appennine, under the Pope's Juriſdiction, upon the Borders of the Dukedom of Urbin, between the Ruins of Sentinum to the Weſt, Matelica, to the Eaſt, and 14 Miles from Camerino to the North.

FABRICIUS Caius, Surnamed Luſcus or Licinius, was Conſul ſeveral times. He contemn'd the Preſents of King Pyrrhus, who ſought to corrupt him, and promis'd him the next Place to himſelf in his Kingdom. Upon which he told Pyrrhus, 'Twould be no ways for his Advantage, For, ſaid he, when the Epirotes come to be acquainted with us Both, they will rather chooſe to be govern'd by me than their own King. He was ſent againſt Pyrrhus, and fought him; at what time, the firſt Day, Night Parted the Combat; but the next Day Pyrrhus was Wounded and forced to quit the Field. He dy'd ſo Poor, that the Senate was forc'd to be at the Charges of his Funeral. At what time, he warred againſt Pyrrhus, the King's Phyſician came to him, and offer'd to Poiſon the Roman Enemy for a Sum of Money. But Fabricius ſo deteſted the Treachery, that he ſent the Traitor to Pyrrhus, with a Diſcovery of the Treaſon, to do with him what he pleaſed.

FABRICIUS, (Jerome) Surnamed Acqua-Pendente, becauſe a Native of that City, Diſciple of Fallopius, was a celebrated Phyſician toward the End of the XVIth. Age. He principally applied himſelf to Chirurgery and Anatomy, which he Profeſſed for Forty Years together at Padua. The Republick of Venice ſettled upon him a yearly Revenue of a Thouſand Crowns in Gold, and honour'd him with a Statue and a Gold Chain. He dy'd about 1603. leaving ſeveral Treatiſes both of Phyſick and Chirurgery behind him. He left us theſe following Treatiſes; Opera Anatomica. De formato fætu. De venarum Oſtiolis. De Locutione & ejus Inſtrumentis. De Brutorum Loquela. De formatione Ovi & Pulli, &c. Opera Chirurgica. Medicina Practica. Conſilia Medica, &c. Vander Linden.

FABRICIUS Veiento, a Roman Prætor under Nero, who firſt put Maſtiff Dogs to the Chariots in the Circenſian Games inſtead of Horſes. This Man wrote ſeveral Scandalous Invectives againſt the Senators and the Prieſts, in certain Books, to which he gave the Title of Codicilli, and abuſing Nero's Favour, Sold Places of Truſt and Dignity; for which he was expell'd Italy, and had his Books burnt. Tacit. Annal. l. 14.

FABRICIUS, (Andrew) born in a Village near Liege, died in the Year 1581. He was a Perſon of Learning and Character, and wrote, Harmonia Confeſſionis Auguſtanæ in Folio, &c. Valer. Andr. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 16.

FABROT, (Charles Hannibal) one of the moſt Eminent Lawyers in his time; he put out in 1647. the Baſilicæ, or Conſtitutions of the Eaſtern Emperours in 7 Vol. Folio, adding a Latin Tranſlation of his own to the Greek Original: Two Years after he publiſh'd Cedrenus in 2 Vol. in Fol. Nicetas, Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius, Conſtantine Manaſſes and Glycas, all which he illuſtrated with Notes, and ſome Diſſertations of his own. In 1652. He began to reviſe the Works of Cujacius, writing Notes upon him, and adding ſome Tracts of that Authour, from Manuſcripts unpubliſh'd before. The reviſing of this great Work, which we have in ten Folios, was finiſh'd by him in 1658. and his too great Application upon this Performance threw him into a Diſtemper which occaſion'd his Death a Year after. Beſide the Works above-mention'd, he publiſh'd Notes upon ſome part of the Theodoſian Code, in 1618. He likewiſe wrote a Treatiſe againſt Salmaſius, upon ſome Caſes in the Civil Law, intitled, Replicatio adverſus Claudii Salmaſii Replicationem, &c. Juſtellus and Voel, who publiſh'd their Bibliotheca Juris-canonici 1661. inſerted, in their IId. Volume, a Collection of Eccleſiaſtical Conſtitutions of Theodorus Balſamon, which they found in Fabrot's Study with learn'd Notes of his own.

FACIO, (Bartholomew) born at Spetia, in the State of Genua, was a Perſon of Reputation and Figure, in the XVth. Cent. His Works are De Bello Veneto Clodiano, where he has ſhown ſome Partiality to his Country. De Vita fœlicitate & præſtantia. De viris ſui Ævi illuſtribus. De Immortalitate Animæ. De Origine Belli inter Gallos & Britannos, &c. Paul. Jov. in Elog. Doct. cap. 109. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Giuſtiani & Soprani Script. della Ligur. &c.

FACTIONS, The ſeveral Parties that fought on Chariots in the Cirque were call'd thus. They were diſtinguiſh'd by their different Colours; as Green, Blue, Red, and White: The Emperor Domitian added two other, one in Coats Embroider'd with Gold, the Second wearing Scarlet; but theſe did not continue a whole Century. The Emperors and People had generally a greater Inclination for ſome particular Colour than for the reſt. Caligula favour'd the Green, Vitellius the Blue, &c. Caſſiodorus ſays, that theſe Four Colours repreſented the Four Seaſons of the Year, viz. The Green, the Spring; The Blue, Winter; The Red, Summer; and the White, Autumn. Tertullian obſerves, That they marked the Superſtition of the Pagans, who conſecrated the Green to the Spring and Earth, or the Goddeſs Cybele; The Blue to the Autumn, and the Firmament, or the Sea; The Red to the Summer, or Mars; The White to the Winter, or Eaſtwardly Winds. Iſidorus will have them relate to the Four Elements. But be it how it will, there happening a Quarrel in the Emperor Juſtinian's Reign, between the Blue and the Green, wherein 40000 were kill'd on both ſides, the Name of Faction was aboliſh'd. Roſin. Antiq. Rom.

FACUNDUS, Biſhop of Hermiana in Africa, liv'd in the Vth. Age, and was in the Fifth Oecumenical Synod of Conſtantinople, where Pope Vigilius was preſent, held upon occaſion of the three Chapters; which Facundus defended in 12 Books, ſet forth by Sirmond with Notes. Baronius.

It was ruin'd by the Goths in the time of the Exarchs of Ravenna: Afterwards

Repaired and Beſieged by the Emperor Frederick II. in the Year 1240. Sometime after that the Citizens of Bologna got Poſſeſſion of it, till the Factions of the Lambertazzi and Geremei, gave Faenza an opportunity to recover her Liberty. About the Year 1286. the Manfredi ſettled themſelves in this City, till Alexander VI. cauſed Aſtorro, the laſt of the Family, to be Murder'd, and his Body to be caſt into the Tyber. From Alexander the Venetians won it; and from them Julius II. after their Defeat at Ghiara d' Adda, in 1509. Since which time, it has belong'd to the Holy See. Pliny, Antonin. Leander Alberti.

FAERNO, (Gabriel) born at Cremona in Italy in the XVIth. Cent. He was a very good Poet, and underſtood the Belles Lettres, and Languages which made him eſteem'd by the Cardinal d' Medicis, afterwards Pope Pius the IVth. He wrote Fabulæ Centum ex Antiquis Auctoribus delectæ. Cenſura Emendationum Livianarum. De Metris Comicis, &c. Thu. Hiſt. lib. 28. Mir. de Script. Sæc. 16, &c.

It is as it were a Neuter between the two Kingdoms, and therefore was made choice of for the Treaty of Peace which was there concluded between the two Crowns in 1659. To which purpoſe, a wooden Houſe was Erected in the Middle of the Iſland, where Don Louis de Haro and Cardinal Mazarine met, and where the two Kings, of France and Spain, conferr'd together. Baud.

FAKENHAM, a Market-Town in the County of Norfolk, in the Hundred of Gallow, 110 Miles from London.

FAKIRS, a ſort of Derviſes, or Vagabond religious Mahometans, who live of Alms; when they go many in Company, they have a Superior, whom they obey. This, and the other chief Fakir's Garment conſiſts in 3 or 4 Yards of Orange-colour Linen, which they tie round them; ſo that one end hangs between the Thighs to cover their Nakedneſs, and a Tygre's Skin, which hangs over their Shoulders, and is tied under their Chin; whilſt the ordinary Fakirs have but a Cord round their Waſt with a piece of Linen before their Privities. Their Hair is woven in Treſſes and forms a kind of Turban. Each carries a Hunting-Horn, which he blows when he Arrives at, or Departs from any Town, and an Iron Rack, wherewith they make clean the places they deſign to reſt in. Sometimes having rak'd all the Duſt into a heap, they make uſe of it for a Bed to lie the Eaſier. When they come to any Town, their Chief ſends ſome of the Company to Beg for the reſt, and diſtributes what they bring equally, and if any thing remains, gives it to the Poor, reſerving nothing for the next Day; deluding the vulgar ſort with this falſe Zeal, and making them believe all they ſay is an Oracle. There are ſome they call'd Idolatrous Fakirs, who having no certain Manſion, abandon themſelves to all ſorts of Impurities, pretending a Privilege to commit all ſorts of Actions without danger of Sin. Their Chief is diſtinguiſh'd from the reſt, by having a greater number of Pieces in his Garment than they, and by a Chain of Iron two yards long tied to his Leg; when he deſigns to reſt in any place, a Clothing being ſpread upon the Ground, he ſits him down thereon and gives Audience, whilſt his Diſciples publiſh his Vertues, and the Favours he receives from God in the Neighbourhood, which makes the People flock to hear him. Some of them have 200 Diſciples, which are call'd together by Beat of Drum and Sound of Horn, and when they March have a Standard, Lances, and other Weapons. The third ſort of Fakirs, are the Children of poor People, who retire into Moſques to Study the Law, in order to become Moulas or Doctors; they learn the Alcoran by heart, Marry 3 or 4 Wives out of Devotion, and in Imitation of Mahomet, to get a greater number of Children, and Obſervers of the Law of their Prophet. The Penitent Fakirs affect a certain Poſture which ſome obſerve all their Life-time, holding their Hands acroſs over their Heads; others turning them behind them, or holding their Head down without ſpeaking a word, or looking upon any Body. Some ſtand upon one Foot, holding a Chafingdiſh, in which they burn Frankincenſe to their God, in all theſe Poſtures they are quite Naked; and the Indian Women are ſo extravagantly ſuperſtitious, that they expect particular Favours in their Marriage, by a ſhameful way of Kiſſing theſe Penitents, who turn up their Eyes after a frightful manner when theſe Women approach them. They have other Fakirs that ſerve them with Neceſſaries. Some Perſons of Quality have become Fakirs; among others Five great Lords of Cha-gehan, Great Mogul of the Indies his Court; theſe had three fine Horſes, whoſe Bridles were Gold, and Saddles cover'd with Plates of the ſame. Five that had Silver Bridles, and Saddles cover'd with that Metal; their Diſciples were Arm'd with Bows and Arrows, Muſquets and Half-Pikes. Its ſaid, there are about two Millions of all theſe ſorts in the Indies. Tavernier, Voyage des Ind.

FALACA, is the Name the Algerines give a piece of Wood about five Foot long, which has two holes made in it, into which they put the Feet of their Chriſtian Slaves; who being thrown upon their Backs, and their Hands tied behind their Backs with Cords, they order two Slaves to hold the Falaca up by the ends, whilſt a third with a Stick or a Bull's Pizzle, beats the poor Chriſtian upon the Soles of the Feet until they pleaſe to order him to deſiſt.

FALETRE, (Marin) Doge of Venice in 1354. having govern'd the Commonwealth nine Months, he form'd a Deſign of rendring himſelf Abſolute, and aſſaſſinating the Senators; and in order thereunto, the reſt of the Conſpirators were to come Arm'd into the Palace in full Aſſembly the Night before this Tragedy was to be Acted: one of the Party deteſting ſo horrible a Crime, acquainted one of the Senators with their common Danger, who ſending to the reſt, things were carried ſo well, that they Seized 16 of the chief of the Gang with Faletre that Night; and in leſs than 8 hours above 400 other Accomplices, whereof ſome were Hang'd, ſome Drown'd, and others with Faletre Beheaded. They diſcover'd 500 more, who becauſe they refus'd to have a hand in the execution of the Deſign, were Pardon'd, though it was prov'd they approv'd it. He that made the Diſcovery, was not only Pardon'd, but was Honour'd with the Dignity of a noble Venetian, and had a yearly Penſion of a Thouſand Crowns ſettled upon him. He was not ſatisfied with this Recompence, ſo that upbraiding the Senators with Ingratitude, they Baniſhed him for 10 Years to Raguſa, whence, endeavouring to make his Eſcape to Hungary, he periſhed. Sab. Lib. 3.

FALETRI, (Ordelapho) Duke of Venice, Elected in the Year 1102. aſſiſted Baldwin, King of Jeruſalem, with a Potent Fleet to regain a great Part of Syria. After that, he reduc'd under the Dominion of the Venetians all Dalmatia, Croatia, and ſeveral other Provinces remote from the Sea. Sometime after, the City of Zara revolting to the King of Hungary, he Sail'd thither with a powerful Fleet, and as he was encouraging his Soldiers in the Storm of the Town, received his Deaths Wound. *John Baptiſt. FAMAGUSTA, Lat. Famagoſta, an Epiſcopal City of Cyprus, under the Archbiſhop of Nicoſia, with a Convenient Harbour. It is ſuppos'd to have been heretofore call'd Salamine, Thamaſſus or Arſinoe. It is ſeated in the fartheſt part of the Iſland, on that ſide which looks toward Syria. The City of Famagoſta in Fourſquare, two Miles in Compaſs, and environ'd with Walls and a deep Moat; the whole Circuit of the Walls being fortify'd with a Baſtion and Thirteen Towers. The Port is ſecur'd from all Winds, the Entrance into it narrow, and yet defended by a Fort at one Point of it, and a Baſtion that advances a good way into the Sea at the other. This Town was always conſiderable for its Commerce and Port, the only one in the whole Iſland, the Genoeſes made themſelves Maſters of it about 1372. and kept it about 100 Years. The Venetians were Maſters of it until 1571. when the Turks laid Siege to it after they had taken Nicoſia, and carried it notwithſtanding the Gallant Defence of the Garriſon, which having ſpent its Ammunition and Proviſions, and having no hopes of Relief, Articled with the Turkiſh General Muſtapha, who put Bragadino to Death, enrag'd that he loſt 80000 Men in the Siege. Mr. Lock, who ſaw it in 1553. ſaith, it was newly Walled and ſtrongly Rampired, having Baſtions and between them Turrions. On the Haven Side they had a Caſtle. The City had but two Gates, one to the Sea, and another to the Land. The Haven was ſecured by a Chain, and the Town by a Garriſon of 800 Men, and 46 Pieces of Canon. At the Land-Gate ſtood always 50 Men, at the Sea-Gate 25; and it had two armed Gallies ever in the Haven. The Old Famaguſta was ruin'd by the Engliſh, and was once of great Circuit, and ſhews ſtill great Ruins. It ſtands from the New Town 4 Miles on an Hill, whereas the New Town is in a Valley. The Air of the New Town is very Unwholſome, by reaſon of the Marſhes near it. Hackl. T. 2. p. 108. Tavernier ſaith, The Haven is only fit for Gallies and Small Ships; the Mole the Venetians made being ruined. This City is ſeated on the Eaſt of the Iſland, and is the Chief of it, and to that end kept in good Repair, no Chriſtian being ſuffer'd to live in the City, but have Shops and Houſes in the Neighbouring Villages. *Tavernier. FAUSTA, Daughter to Maximianus Herculeus, and Wife of Conſtantine the Great; who falling in Love with Criſpus, the Son of her Husband, by Minervina, was ſo incens'd at his Refuſal to gratifie her Paſſion, that ſhe accus'd him to his Father of attempting her Chaſtity. Upon which Conſtantine put Criſpus to Death, without any farther Examination: But afterwards diſcovering the Falſhood of his Wife, caus'd her to be ſtifl'd in a hot Bath. Euagrius and Euſebius are tax'd either of Diſſimulation or Partiality; the one for ſaying nothing of ſuch Matter of Fact, the other for denying it. Ammian. Marcell.

FAUSTINA, the Emperor Antoninus the Philoſopher's Wife, noted in Story for her Laſciviouſneſs and Debaucheries. Falling in Love with a Gladiator, ſhe confeſs'd it to her Husband: Who thereupon conſulting the Chaldeans, they adviſ'd him to put the Gladiator to Death, and order Fauſtina to waſh her ſelf with his Blood. Which when ſhe had done, it quench'd her inordinate Amours; but the ſame Night ſhe Conceiv'd Commodus, who had all the ill Qualities of a Common Fencer. Antoninus was ſo far from taking notice of her Debaucheries, that being counſell'd to Repudiate her, he only anſwer'd, That then he muſt return her Dowry, (meaning the Empire.) Jul. Capitolin.

FAYAL, an Iſland of Africa, in the Atlantick Sea, being one of the Azores, or Tercera's, belonging to the King of Portugal. 'Tis but a ſmall Iſland, but extremely Fertile, and one of the beſt of all the Azores. There is alſo a conſiderable Town in it, call'd St. Cruz. This Iſland is 18 Miles in Length, plentifully provided with all things neceſſary to the Life of Man; and above all, with Wood. It was Taken by Sir Walter Raleigh, in 1597. and Plunder'd to the Value of 40000 Crowns. In 1589. the Engliſh took 5 Ships of Spain at this Iſland; one of which was moor'd under the Caſtle, which ſhot at them all the while. The Principal Town is of the ſame Name, lying to the N. W. of the high and mighty Mountain Pico. It had then 300 Houſes, fair, ſtrongly built with Lime and Stone, and double cover'd with hollow Tiles: Every Houſe had a Garden with a Ciſtern, which were then full of ripe Grapes, Tobaco, Figs, Peach-Trees, Oranges, Lemons, Quinces: and Cedar was ſo common, that their Houſes were built with it. The Town was then Taken, Rifl'd, and Ranſom'd at the Price of 2000 Ducats.

F E, or Fo, the Name of the Chief God of the Chineſes, whom they adore as Sovereign of Heaven. They repreſent him ſhining all in Light, with his Hands hid under his Robes, to ſhew that his Power does all things inviſibly: He has at his Right-hand the Famous Confucius, placed by the Pagans among the Gods; and at his Left-hand, Lanza, or Lanca, Chief of the Second Sect of their Religion. Kirchi China Illuſtrata.

FAUSTINUS: See MARCELLINUS.

FEASTINGS of the Jews, were more than ordinary Preparations of Meats and Drinks, for the Entertainment and Good-fellowſhip of Friends and Acquaintance. The Extraordinary and more Liberal kind of Entertainment, by way of Feaſting, was call'd Miſhte, from their free Drinking at ſuch times. And there was alſo a kind of Feaſting wherein they made merry together, Eating the Remainders of their Sacrifices. In theſe greater Feaſts there were Ceremonies Preparatory; which were chiefly Salutation, either by Words, as, The Lord Bleſs you, or, Peace be upon thee, or by asking each other of their Welfare: Or elſe by Geſtures, as proſtrating the whole Body; but moſt commonly, by an ordinary Kiſs. The ſecond Preparatory-Ceremony, was, Waſhing the Feet; which was the Office of the meaneſt Servants in the Family. The third Ceremony, was, Pouring out of Oil upon the Head: And thus Chriſt reproves the Phariſee that invited him, for not anointing his Head. After the Performance of theſe Ceremonies, the Maſter of the Houſe ſitting down with the reſt of his Gueſts, took a Cup of Wine in his Hand, and thus began his Thankſgiving, which we call Grace before Meat, Bleſſed be thou, O Lord our God, which created'ſt the Fruit of the Vine. After this Bleſſing of the Cup, the Maſter of the Houſe took the Bread, which he lightly cut, but not in ſunder, for the more eaſie breaking of it, and holding it in both his Hands, he bleſs'd it with theſe words, Bleſſed be thou, O Lord our God, the King of the World, which bringeſt forth Bread out of the Earth. Which done, the Maſter brake the Bread, and diſtributed it to every one that ſate at the Table; and then they began to feed upon the Diſhes that were provided. At the End of the Feaſt, the Maſter of the Houſe; or ſome Body for him, gave Thanks again, after this manner, Let us bleſs him who has fed us of his own, and by whom we live: And then all the Gueſts anſwer'd, Bleſſed be he of whoſe Meat we have eaten, and of whoſe Goodneſs we live. Which done, he that begun, proceeded with a Bleſſed be He, and Bleſſed be his Name, 1. For their preſent Food: 2. For their Deliverance out of Servitude: 3. For the Covenant of Circumciſion: 4. For the Law given by Moſes. Concluding with a Prayer, That God would have Mercy, 1. On his People Iſrael: 2. On his own City, Jeruſalem: 3. On Sion, the Tabernacle of his Glory: 4. On the Kingdom of the Houſe of David, his Anointed: 5. That he would ſend the Prophet Elias: And laſtly, That he would make them worthy of the Days of Elias, and of the Life of the World to come. Which done, there was a Grace-Cup went round the Table, bleſs'd after the ſame manner as at the beginning. Beſide the daily Sacrifices, the Jewiſh Sabbath was a perpetual weekly Feaſt, and obſerv'd with as much Strictneſs and Religion, as any other Feſtival. The firſt Day of every Month, (which was Lunary, with the Jews) was likewiſe a Holy-day, and call'd, The New Moon: They had five other more Solemn Feſtivals, which were celebrated every Year: As for their Poſture at Table, it is apparent, that it was the ſame with the Romans; that is to ſay, lying or leaning upon Beds about a Round-Table in the Time of Ezekiel; where he ſays, Thou ſateſt upon a ſtately bed, with a table prepar'd before it. And the Cuſtom of pulling off their Shooes, implies the Antiquity of the ſame Cuſtom. In reference to the Roman Feaſts, there are three things to be conſider'd; the Time, the Place, the Manner of their Lying: The Form of their Table, and the Parts of their Suppers. The Time of their great Entertainments, was always at Supper. The Place where they ſupp'd, was uſually call'd Cœnaculum, and ſometimes Triclinium and Biclinium, from κλινὴ, a Bed; of which there were ſometimes three, ſometimes two about the Table, where the Gueſts lay. The Table for Perſons of Rank, was made of choice Timber, and ſometimes in-laid with Wood of ſeveral Colours, ſometimes with Silver, and ſtood upon one whole entire Foot of Ivory in the Form of a Leopard, or great Lyon, &c. This Table was ſometimes quite Round, or Oval, ſometimes like a Half-Moon, with a Hollow cut into it, for the more eaſie Attendance of the Waiters. And now the Beds being ready furniſh'd, the Gueſts lay down in the following manner. Each Bed contain'd three Perſons, ſometimes four; ſeldom or never more, unleſs at their great and more ſolemn Feaſts. If only one lay upon the Bed, then he reſted the Upper-part of his Body upon his left Elbow, the Lower-part lying at length upon the Bed; but if many, then the uppermoſt lay at the Bed's-head, laying his Feet behind the ſeconds's Back; the ſecond reſted his Head in the other's Boſom, having a Cuſhion put between, laying his Feet behind the third's Back; and ſo the third and fourth. Before they lay down, they uſually put off their Shooes, for fear of fouling the Bed on which they lay. They were alſo wont to bind their Heads with Fillets and Hair-laces; others us'd Garlands of Ivy, Myrtle and Roſes, the Coolneſs of which comforted their Brain. The Supper was uſually divided into three Courſes; in the firſt of which were ſerved up Mulberries, Lettice, Sauſages, but always Eggs; in the laſt, Nuts, Figs, Grapes, but always Apples. The middle Courſe was the main Supper, and the firſt Meſs was call'd the Proeme, the laſt the Epilogue. They concluded their Feaſts by drinking a Health to the Genius, or Tutelar God of every Perſon, who preſided at their Mirth and Jollity. Moreri adds, That there were ſcarce above three Beds to a Table, to leave a part free for the Waiters to ſerve and take away. That the Gueſts having bathed themſelves, put on their Feaſt-Robes, call'd Syntheſes: That when there were but two in a Bed, the Upper-end was thought the Nobler place; when Three, the Middle; and when Four, the Second place; next to that, the Upper-end. This Poſture being undecent for the Women, ſome are of Opinion, That they ſate upon the Beds at the Men's Feet: Though others will have it, That they lay all along with their Heads in their Husband's Boſoms. Their Feaſting Saloms were hung with rich Tapeſtries, and adorn'd with ſeveral Side-boards furniſh'd, or the Spoils the Family got of their Enemies. In the beginning of the Commonwealth, they had Flutes and Organs, call'd Hydrauliques; becauſe mov'd by the fall of Water. And in After-time, they introduc'd Concerts of Muſick, Jeſters, Dancers, &c. to divert their Gueſts. They that were invited, did ſometimes bring a Friend with 'em, who was call'd their Shadow: But ſuch as preſum'd to come, being neither deſir'd by the Maſter of the Feaſt, nor by any of the Gueſts, were call'd Flyes, becauſe theſe Vermin are troubleſome, and always ſwarm about Meat. As to the Number, they ſhould at leaſt equal the Graces, but not exceed the Muſes: But Eraſmus ſays there may be a Tenth Perſon, to repreſent Apollo. Macrobius joyns the Graces to the Muſes, and will have Twelve. Caſaubon obſerves, That Auguſtus made a Feaſt conſiſting of Twelve, to repreſent Jupiter, Neptune, Vulcan, Mars, Apollo, Mercury, Juno, Veſta, Ceres, Venus, Diana and Minerva. The Clerk of the Kitchin gave the Maſter of the Feaſt a Bill of the Fare and Services, that every one might reſerve his Stomach for what he lik'd beſt. The Meat being brought to the Table, the Carvers cut it into as many Parts as there were People at the Table, and theſe caſt Lots for the Liberty of chuſing firſt. Roſin. Dempſter. The Feaſts of the Greeks, eſpecially of the Athenians, who were the Politer ſort of the Græcians, were carry'd on much after the ſame Faſhion with the Romans; only when they had a mind to be merry, all the Gueſts caſt Lots who ſhould be King of the Feaſts; and he to whoſe Lot it fell, was to have the ſole Command of all, as to the Drinking and Ceremonies, without any Reſtraint. And ſometimes they prov'd too Tyrannical; as he did of whom Laertius ſays, That he Commanded a Gueſt either to take the Drink in his Mouth, or have it flung in his Face. And as for thoſe that deſire to ſee a Bill of Fare of their uſual Diſhes at the Feaſts of thoſe Times, both of Fiſh and Fleſh, they may have enough in Athenæus. See FESTIVALS.

FEATLEY, (Daniel) a Gentleman of an Ancient Family in Lancaſhire, was admitted in Corpus Chriſti Coll. in Oxford, and afterwards Fellow there; in this Univerſity, he perform'd his Exerciſes for Batchelour, Maſter and Doctour in Divinity, to great Satisfaction: Soon after his going into Holy Orders, he travell'd, as a Divine, with Sir Thomas Edmonds, ſent Ambaſſadour to France by King James the Iſt. At Paris he had frequent Conferences about Religion with the Sorboniſts, who gave him the Character of a ſmart and judicious Diſputant. Sometime after his Return to England, he was made Chaplain to Archbiſhop Abbot, who procur'd him the Living of Acton, near London; upon the breaking out of the Civil Wars, the Parliament Rebels, who quarter'd at his Houſe, burn'd his Barns, and prophan'd the Church in a horrible Manner, and afterwards, came with a Deſign to murther him in Lambeth-Church, in time of Divine Service; but the Doctour, having Notice of their Barbarity, kept out of the way. He ſtill continued Loyal, but gave himſelf the Latitude of aſſiſting at the Aſſembly of Divines, where he diſputed againſt the Covenant and Presbytery, in behalf of Epiſcopacy. He was afterwards outed of his Livings, and Impriſon'd by the Committee. He was a Learned, Pious, Generous, and Charitable Perſon, Died in the 65th Year of his Age; and wrote, Roma Ruens, againſt the Church of Rome. And the Dippers Dipp'd, againſt the Anabaptiſts, &c. See his Life by John Featley his Nephew.

FEBOURG, (John) Secretary of State to the King of Denmark, in 1524. being pufft up with this Honour, he had the Impudence to ſlight and abuſe the Nobility, and contrive the Ruine of Torbern, Governour of the Fortreſs of Copenhagen, and greateſt Man in the Kingdom. Knowing his Prince to be a weak, jealous Man, he perſuaded him that Torbern had receiv'd many Favours of Columbina, the King's Miſtreſs. The Governour having Notice of this, reveng'd himſelf by a Trick of the ſame Nature, in acquainting His Majeſty, by the Spies ſet to obſerve who frequented Columbina, That the Secretary came often to ſee her, and was made welcome. The King, diſſembling his Diſpleaſure, ſent the Secretary to deliver the Governour a Letter which contain'd poſitive Orders to put the Bearer to Death, if found Guilty of that Charge. Which he executed, and hung the Body in Gibbets near the Town. It happen'd ſoon after, that a Sentinel plac'd upon the Rampart over-againſt the Gibbet, obſerv'd a Light, in the Night-time, upon Febourg's Head; and ignorant of the Natural Cauſe of it, publiſh'd it for a Miracle: So that it coming to the King's Ear, he came to ſee it himſelf; for the Flame, nouriſh'd by the unctuous Subſtance of the Head, continu'd a conſiderable time: And perſuading the Nobility, that this Prodigy was a manifeſt Sign of Febourg's Innocence, who, he ſaid, he was ſure, was unjuſtly Condemn'd by the Governour, he order'd the Body to be cut down, and Buried with great Magnificence in the Porch of the Cathedral of Copenhagen. This the King inſiſted the more upon, to appeaſe the Nobility, who were upon the point of breaking into open Rebellion upon his putting Torbern to Death, which now they look'd upon as a Judgment, for his Injuſtice to the innocent Febourg. *Varil. FEBRUA, a Goddeſs worſhipp'd by the Romans, in the Month of February, in which they offer'd Sacrifices to her, for the Souls or Manes of the Dead. Macrobius, lib. 1. Saturn. Ovid. lib. 2. Faſt.

FECIALES, Officers at Arms, or Heralds among the Romans; to denounce War, or proclaim Peace; were at firſt Ordain'd by Numa Pompilius. The chief part of their Office, was, to diſſuade the Romans from Diſturbing any Confederate Nation, by an unjuſt War. Or if any Confederate Nation offer'd Injury to the Romans, then theſe Feciales were ſent as Embaſſadours to 'em, to perſuade and admoniſh 'em to yield the Romans their Right: Which if they refus'd to do in thirty Days, then did the Feciales denounce War againſt 'em in the preſence of three Lads of fourteen Years of Age, by caſting a Spear, either cheek'd with Iron, or elſe beſmear'd with Blood, within the Limits of their Territories. Livy.

FEILDING, Though none of this Family did arrive to the Degree of Peer of this Realm, until King Henry VIII. his Reign; yet were they Perſons of great Note and Eminency for many Ages before, and Paternally deſcended from the Earls of Habsburgh, in Germany. William Feilding, Eſq; was Knighted by King Henry VIII. and advanc'd to the Degree of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Feilding of Newham-Padox, as alſo to that of Viſcount Fielding: And in the 14th. Jac. created Earl, by the Title of Earl of Denbigh. FEKHR-ED-DIN, Emir, or Prince of the Druſians that inhabit Mount Libanus, was of the Houſe of Maan. He was a Lover of the Liberal Sciences, Painting, Poetry and Muſick: He underſtood Aſtrology, and ſeveral Secrets in Chymiſtry. The Extent of his Command reach'd from Mount Carmel to Tripoly, in Syria and Damaſcus: and under pretence of Oppoſing the Arabians, he made War upon the Turks. The Grand Signior thereupon ſent 60 Galleys to apprehend him. Upon which Fekhr-ed-din left the Care of his Affairs to Ali, his Son, and went to Malta, then to Naples, Livorn and Florence; from whence the Grand Duke ſent him to Rome, to viſit Paul V. After which, returning Home, and re-aſſuming the Government, he made War upon his Neighbours; who Complaining to the Port, he was adviſed to go to Conſtantinople, and juſtifie himſelf: But that not ſatisfying, he had his Head cut off in the Year 1633. and 70th. of his Age. Moreri.

FELDKIRK, Lat. Feldkirkia, a City of Germany, in the County of Tirol, belonging to the Houſe of Auſtria, with the Title of an Earldom. It is ſeated upon the Borders of Switzerland, toward Appenzel; ſmall, but well-peopl'd.

FELICIS LACUS, or Lacus Fælix, a Village in the Upper-Auſtria, upon the Danube, 5 German Leagues from Lintz Eaſtward, in the way to Vienna; by ſome call'd Locus Fælix, and perhaps better. It is now call'd Walſee. Baudrand.

FELICISSIMUS, a Schiſmatical Deacon of Carthage, in the IIId. Century; a great Enemy of St. Cyprian, whoſe Election he oppos'd: and during the Perſecution, and that Prelate's Abſence, he, and five other Prieſts of his Faction, joyn'd with the Pagan Magiſtrates to torment the Faithful. Some time after he did his utmoſt to ſow Diſſention between St. Cyprian and the Confeſſours, by perſuading the Latter to admit the Libellatici and Lapſi to Communion before they had gone through a proper Courſe of Penance: See Pearſon's Annales Cyprianici; but not being able to compaſs it, he broke into an open Schiſm; and aſſembling all thoſe of his Party on a Mountain without the City, Excommunicated all others that did not adhere to them. This occaſion'd the Schiſm of the Novatians and Donatiſts. About the ſame time, Privatus being refus'd a Place in a Synod held in Africa, Caball'd with five other fallen Biſhops, put Fortunatus in St. Cyprian's Place, and deputed Feliciſſimus to Cornelius, Biſhop of Rome, to obtain his Communion; but was refus'd. He held, That Sinners ſhould be receiv'd into Communion, without any Repentance. Baron. A.C. 254.

FELICITAS, a Roman Goddeſs, to whom Lucullus built a Temple; ſhe's repreſented in the Figure of a Woman of Quality, ſitting upon a Throne, with a Caduceus, or a Mercury's Wand, in one Hand; and a Cornucopia, in the other. Dion. lib. 44. Ripa Iconol. &c.

FELIN, or Velin, Lat. Felinum, a City of Livonia, in the Province of Eſthonia. It has a ſtrong Fort belonging to it, whither William of Furſtenburgh, Grand Maſter of the Teutonick-Order, retiring in his Old Age, was deliver'd up by his own People to the Muſcovites. It belongs to the King of Sweden, and lies 14 Leagues from Revel to the South, and 15 from Pernaw.

FELINUS SANDEUS, or Sanderus, a Lawyer of Ferrara, afterwards Auditor of the Ruota, under Alexander VI. He liv'd about the Beginning of the XVIth. Age, and dedicated to the ſame Pope an Abridgment of the Hiſtory of Alphonſus, King of Arragon; which is indeed a Collection out of Otho Friſingenſis, Pius II. Blondus, Poggius of Florence, Platina, &c. ſet forth by Marquardus Freherus. Voſſius, Simler, &c.

FELIX I. a Roman by Birth, ſucceeded Dionyſius in the Papal Chair, about the Year 271. He ordain'd, That Maſs ſhould only be ſaid in Conſecrated Places, and by Perſons initiated into Holy Orders. During his Pontificate, one Manes, a Perſian, had the Impudence to profeſs himſelf to be the Chriſt; and to gain the greater Credit to his Impoſture, he aſſociated to himſelf Twelve Diſciples. And at the ſame time, Saturninus, relying upon the Aſſiſtance of his Army, enterpriz'd the Building of a New Antioch; but when it appear'd that he deſign'd to Invade the Empire too, he was ſlain at Apamea. Felix ſate Four Years, Three Months, and Fifteen Days, and was Crown'd with Martyrdom in the Reign of Aurelian; we have nothing of his remaining but a little Fragment of an Epiſtle written to Maximus Biſhop of Alexandria, againſt the Hereſie of Sabellius and Paulus Samoſatenus. It is Extant among the Acts of the Council of Chalcedon where it was read, as it was likewiſe in that of Epheſus. Platina.

FELIX II. ſet up in the room of Liberius, about the Year 356. by the Arians, pronounc'd the Emperor Conſtantius a Heretick, and was Baptiz'd a ſecond time by Euſebius of Nicomedia; for which Liberius being afterwards reſtor'd by Conſtantius, Felix was taken by his Adverſaries, and put to death, after he had ſate 1 Year, 4 Months, and 2 Days. Whil'ſt the Contention between Liberius and Felix laſted, the Arian Hereſie branch'd it ſelf into two Factions; Eunomius affirming, That in all things the Son was Unequal to the Father, and that the Holy Spirit had no Community of Eſſence with the Father or the Son. On the other ſide, Macedonius, whom the Orthodox had made Biſhop of Conſtantinople, before he became Erroneous in his Opinions, was renounc'd by the Arians for holding the Son to be Equal to the Father, though he utter'd the ſame Blaſphemies againſt the Holy Spirit that themſelves did. Platina.

FELIX III. ſucceeded Simplicius I. in the Year 483. Condemn'd Peter Mongus and Acacius, in a Council call'd by his Pontifical Authority; and Ordain'd, That Churches ſhould only be Conſecrated by Biſhops. Platina adds, That three Years after, the Emperor Zeno teſtifying that they were Penitent, Felix ſent two Biſhops, Meſſinus and Vitalis, with Power, to Enquire into the Truth of their Repentance, and Abſolve 'em. Theſe Legates arriving at the City Heraclea, were ſoon corrupted with Bribes, and neglected to act according to their Commiſſion. Whereupon Felix having firſt call'd a Council upon that Occaſion, Excommunicates them too, as Simoniacks, and Betrayers of the Truſt repos'd in 'em; though Meſſinus, who confeſs'd his Fault, and begg'd Time to evince the Sincerity of his Repentance, had it accordingly granted him. He dy'd in the Year 492. after he had ſate 8 Years, 11 Months, and 17 Days. Platina.

FELIX IV. by Birth a Samnite, ſucceeded John I. Excommunicated the Patriarch of Conſtantinople for Revolting from the Faith; ordain'd Extreme Unction; ſate 4 Years, 2 Months, and 13 Days, and dy'd in the Year 530. Platina, Du Cheſne.

FELIX V. Anti-Pope. See Amadeus Duke of Savoy.

FELIX, Biſhop of Urghel, in Catalonia, by the Aſſiſtance of Elipandus reviv'd the Hereſie of Neſtorius, about the End of the eighth Century. They affirm'd that our Saviour, as Man, was no more than the Son of God by Adoption; however, all their Opinions were not of a Piece, for they likewiſe maintain'd, that the Religious Uſe of Images ought to be taken away; this Felix was condemn'd in a Synod at Ratisbon, in 792. but relapſing into his Heterodoxies, he was cenſur'd again, in the Council of Franckford, in 794. as to his belief concerning the Filiation of our Saviour: But as to what he maintain'd in relation to Images, the Council concurr'd with him, and condemn'd the Innovations of the Second Council of Nice. Sigebert, A. C. 793. Baron. A. C. 792. &c. Concil. Francfort. &c.

FELIX, Proconſul and Governour of Judæa in the firſt Age: He was the Brother of Pallas, Claudius Cæſar's Libertus, or Enfranchis'd Slave; and marry'd Druſilla, the Grand-daughter of Marc. Anton. who dying, he marry'd the Daughter of King Agrippa, whoſe Name was alſo Druſilla, and of whom mention is made in Acts 24. Tacit. Hiſt. His Male-adminiſtration in Judæa, made Nero turn him out, and put Porcius Feſtus in his Place.

FELL, (Dr. John) Son of Dr. Samuel Fell, ſometime Dean of Chriſt's Church, by Margaret his Wife, Daughter of Thomas Wylde of Worceſter, Eſq; was born at Sunningwell, near to Abendon in Barks. He was admitted in Chriſt Church, where he took the Degree of Maſter, in 1643. about which time, he carried Arms for his Majeſty in the Garriſon of Oxford, and was afterwards made an Enſign. Being in Orders, in 1648. he was deprived of his Preferment by the Parliamentarian Viſitors. During the ſeveral Uſurpations, he continu'd in Oxford, and had a private Congregation of Royaliſts, to whom he adminiſter'd the Sacraments, and perform'd all the Offices of Religion according to the Rubrical Directions of the Church of England. Upon the King's Reſtoration, he was firſt inſtall'd Canon, and ſoon afterwards Dean of Chriſt Church, being then Dr. in Divinity, and one of the King's Chaplains in Ordinary. In the Year 1675, he was Elected Biſhop of Oxford, and died in 1686. He was an Excellent Governour and Encourager of Learning, and a great Promoter of the Buildings and Privileges of the Univerſity, particularly the Preſs in Oxford was, by his Care and Intereſt improv'd to a great Degree of Beauty and Uſefulneſs: To go on with his Character, he was a pious and publick ſpirited Perſon, had a great deal of Courage to puſh on a generous Undertaking, and was very Charitable to the Poor: And, as for his Learning, he was a Celebrated Divine, a great Maſter in Greek and Latin, and an Excellent Philologer. His Works are, The Life of Dr. Hammond. The Life of Dr. Alleſtry, prefixt to his Sermons. Reſponſio ad Epiſtolam Thomæ Hobbs Malmsburienſis: Several Sermons. He alſo review'd and wrote Notes upon St. Cyprian's Works: Printed at Oxford. He publiſh'd likewiſe ſeveral Books of the Authour of the Duty of Man, not to mention many others. Athen. Oxon.

FELTRIA, Feltri an Epiſcopal City of La Marca Trevigiana, under the Patriarch of Aquileia, belonging to the Republick of Venice, ſeated at the foot of the Mountains upon a ſmall River.

FEMEREN, Lat. Femera and Femeria, an Iſland in the Baltick Sea, belonging to the King of Denmark, upon the Sea-Coaſt of Holſatia and Wagria.

FERALIA, Feaſts celebrated by the Romans on the 21ſt. of January, in Honour of their Houſhold Gods. They offer'd no Sacrifice to their Celeſtial Gods on that Day, neither did they celebrate Nuptials on it. The Ceremonies conſiſted in throwing ſmall Preſents into a Fire, which was kindl'd with Garlands and Noſegays, and laying Meat on the Tomb of the Dead, where they alſo ſacrificed Victims. Theſe Feaſts were inſtituted by Numa. Macrob. Saturn. Ovid.

FERDINAND I. The younger Brother of Charles V. He married Ann Daughter of Ladiſlaus VI. King of Hungary and Bohemia, and Siſter of Lewis the Young, who being killed in the fatal Battel of Mohats in 1526. he ſucceeded him, and was received by the States of both Kingdoms; the Electors alſo having received Charles the Vth's Reſignation, confirm'd the Empire on Ferdinand, then 55 Years of Age, and Swore Allegiance to him. Pope Paul IV. refuſed to ratifie the Election; but Pope Pius IV. after Paul's Death confirmed it. He preſided at a Diet at Worms in 1545. and at another at Augsbourg in 1547. He endeavour'd what he could to keep Peace in the Empire, concluded a Truce of 8 Years with the Turks, compoſed the Differences between the Crowns, Swedeland and Denmark. King Philip, his Nephew, made ſuit to him for the Title of King of the Romans, but without Succeſs. He was declar'd King of Hungary in the Year 1527. and the ſame Year Crown'd King of Bohemia at Prague, and acknowledged King of the Romans in 1530. He began his Imperial Reign in 1558 and held it almoſt Seven Years, dying at Vienna in the Year 1564. A learned Prince, and a great Favourer of learned Men, Affable, Temperate, and a Lover of Peace. However he ſeverely puniſhed the Bohemians, for entring into a League with John Frederick of Saxony againſt Charles V. and caus'd the Conſul of Prague's Head to be ſtruck off.

FERDINAND II. Son of Charles Archduke of Gratz in Stiria, by Mary of Bavaria, and Grandſon of the Emperor Ferdinand I. He was Born in 1578. and in 1619. ſucceeded his Couſin Matthias, who had made him King of Bohemia in 1617. and King of Hungary in 1618. In the Beginning of his Reign he gave the Command of his Arms againſt the Hungarians and Bohemians, to the Counts of Dampierre and Bucquoy. Which laſt, with the Aſſiſtance of the Duke of Bavaria, defeated Frederick Elector Palatin (whom the revolted Bohemians had choſen King) in the famous Battel fought at Prague in 1619. and gave the Electorate to Maximilian Duke of Bavaria. He alſo defeated Chriſtern IV. King of Denmark, in 1625. But the Proteſtants of the Empire, jealous of his Deſigns, took Arms for their own defence; and Leaguing themſelves with Lewis XIII. of France, and with Guſtavus Adolphus, this laſt entering Germany, defeated Tilli, Ferdinand's Lieutenant-General in the famous Battel of Leipſick in 1630. and in leſs than two Years and a half, ſubdued two thirds of the Country between the Viſtula, Danube, and the Rhine. Wallenſtein having retaken Prague, engag'd him near Lutzen; where, tho' the Swedes got the Victory, they loſt their King. Yet the Swediſh Generals continued their Conqueſts, and maintain'd the Glory of their Arms by the defeat of the Imperialiſts at Hamelen, Viſtock, and other places; but a ſtop was put to their Victories by the Defeat given 'em at Nortlingen, by Ferdinand King of the Romans, the Emperor's Son, in 1634. Whereupon a Peace was Concluded at Prague. The Year after, the Emperor died of an Apoplexy in 1637. Thuanus, Sleidan.

FERDINAND III. call'd Erneſt, was Born in 1608. Declared King of the Romans in 1625. and of Bohemia in 27. won the Battel of Nortlingen in 1634. and Succeeded his Father in 37. About which time, Gales one of his Generals, got ſome Advantages over the Swedes. But this good Fortune did not continue long; for Bernard of Saxony, Duke of Weimar, aſſiſted by the French, defeated his Army under the Command of John de Worth near Rhinsfeldt in 1638. and made himſelf Maſter of Briſſac, the Cittadel of Alſace. Banier the Swediſh General, routed General Salis in 1639. near Kemnitz in Miſnia, over-run Saxony and Bohemia, and to inſult over the Emperor, laid Siege to Ratisbone, where he held a Diet. Some time after, Mareſchal Guebriant took Lamboy, and moſt of his Men Priſoners, at the Battle of Kampen in the Dioceſe of Cullen. In 1644. Torſtenſon, Banier's Succeſſor, defeated Leopold-William Arch-Duke of Auſtria and Octavio Picolomini, and penetrated into the Hereditary Countries. The ſame Year Lewis of Anguien forced the Bavarians in their Retrenchments near Fribourg, and carried Philipsbourg in ten Days Siege. In 1645. he re-eſtabliſh'd the Elector of Treves routed the Bavarians at Nortlingen, kill'd General Mercy, and miſs'd John de Worth but narrowly. Mareſchal Turenne and Wrangel routed Melander in 1648. But the Emperor got the better at the Battels of Tutlingen in Suabia and Mariendal in Franconia, and the Swedes being forced to ſend part of their Forces againſt the Danes, he had a fair opportunity to continue the War with more Advantage: but the Empire being drain'd of Men and Money, he concluded the Peace of Munſter in 1648. and liv'd peaceably the reſt of his life. He died at Vienna, in 1657. Aged 49. Puffendorf.

FERDINAND I. of that Name, Surnam'd the Great, King of Caſtile and Leon; was the ſecond Son of Sancho King of Navarre, came to the Kingdom of Caſtile in Right of his Mother Nugna of Caſtile; and to that of Leon, by the Conqueſt of his Couſin Veremund, whoſe Siſter he Married. He took Conimbria, Viſco, and great part of Portugal from the Moors. And being unjuſtly provoked by his own Brother Garcias the IVth. King of Navarre, for detaining from him ſeveral of his Towns and deſigning miſchief againſt his Perſon, he overthrew and ſlew him in Battel. He died in the Year 1065. after he had reign'd Forty Years. Mariana, Turquet, &c.

FERDINAND II. was the Eldeſt Son of Alphonſo VIII. and had for his ſhare, the Kingdoms of Leon and Gallicia. He had Wars with Alphonſo Henriquez, King of Portugal, for the Frontier Town of Badajoz; where, in the firſt Battle, he took Sancho Prince of Portugal, Priſoner; and in the next, the King of Portugal himſelf. However he uſed his Victories with great Moderation, and died in 1188. or thereabouts. Mariana, Turquet.

FERDINAND III. Re-united the Kingdoms of Leon and Caſtile, carried his Arms againſt the Moors, took Cordova in 1236. the Kingdoms of Murcia and Sevill in 1248. and was deſigning the Conqueſt of Morocco, but died in 1252. after he had reign'd 35 Years in Caſtile, and 22 in Leon. He tranſlated the Univerſity of Valencia to Salamanca, and for his Piety was Canoniz'd in 1671. Roderic.

FERDINAND IV. the Son of Sancho III. Surnam'd the Valiant: was at the beginning of his Reign diſturb'd with Inteſtin Broils; but they being Calm'd to his Advantage, he made War upon the King of Grenada, and defeated his Army coming to the Relief of the City of Almeria. Sometime after, at the ſame time that his brother was laying Siege to a certain Town, he was found dead in his Bed in the Year 1312. in the Five and twentieth Year of his Age. Mariana, l. 15. Roderic. p. 4. Mariana lib. 12.

FERDINAND V. Surnam'd the Catholick, was the Son of John II. King of Arragon. He married Iſabella of Caſtile, Siſter of Hen. IV. Surnam'd the Impotent; and by that means joyn'd Arragon to Caſtile. He won a great Battel at Toro, from Alphonſo V. King of Portugal. Afterwards carrying his Arms againſt the Moors, he conquer'd the Kingdom of Grenada in 8 Years, and expell'd the Moors out of Spain in 1492. Afterwards he conquer'd Pignon de Velez, and Oran in Africa, the Kingdom of Naples, and that of Navarre, and died about the beginning of the Year 1516. of a Dropſie, caus'd by a Potion which his ſecond Wife had given him, to make him capable of getting Children. Much about the time that he Baniſh'd the Moors out of Spain, Chriſtopher Columbus diſcover'd America. The French diſputing his Title to the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, it was propos'd to divide 'em between the two Crowns, which the Spaniards aſſented to; but ſtarting a diſpute about the Limits, they drove the French quite out, and ſoon after poſſeſs'd themſelves of the Kingdom of Navarre, with the Aſſiſtance of King Henry VIII. of England: whom they engaged in a War with France, by promiſing to aſſiſt him with their Forces to recover Guyenne. Mariana.

FERDINAND Infant of Caſtile, Surnam'd the Juſt, King of Arragon and Sicily; was the Son of John I. King of Caſtile. He was choſen King of Sicily in 1412. and Crown'd the 3d. of Septemb. and govern'd both his Kingdoms with great Prudence; but after he had reign'd Four Years, died of the Stone in 1416. Mariana, Surita, &c.

FERDINAND I. King of Naples and Sicily, was the Natural Son of Alphonſus V. King of Arragon, legitimated by Eugenius IV. and began his Reign in 1458. He loſt his Kingdoms twice, and twice recover'd 'em by the Pope's Aſſiſtance; Pius II. obliging Scanderbeg to paſs into Italy, and defend him againſt John of Calabria. But his Ingratitude to the Popes, cauſed Innocent the VIIIth. to Excommunicate him. Upon the News of Charles VIIIth's intended Invaſion of Naples, he offer'd the King of France to become his Tributary; which offers being rejected, he died of an Apoplexy in 1494. in the 71ſt. Year of his Age; after he had reign'd near 36 Years. Guicciardin, Mariana, Mezeray.

FERDINAND II. Succeeded Alphonſus in 1494. and upon the Approach of Charles VIII. fled into the Iſland of Iſchia; but the French being retir'd, by the Aſſiſtance of the Princes of Italy, he recovered the Greateſt part of his Kingdom, which he enjoyed however but a very ſmall time, for he died in 1496.

FERDINAND, King of Portugal, ſucceeded his Father Peter in 1367. At the beginning of his Reign he had Wars with Hen. II. Surnam'd the Baſtard King of Caſtile, who made terrible Havock in Portugal, which was concluded by the Mediation of the Pope. Afterwards the War began again much more to his Advantage, under the Reign of John I. the Son of Henry; but was concluded upon the giving his only Daughter Beatrice to John. Mariana obſerves, that Alphonſus having taken Eleonor de Menenez, or Tellez, by force from her Husband Laurence d' Aucugna, he retir'd into Gallicia, where he wore Silver Horns upon his Cap, as a Teſtimony of his own diſhonour, and the Intemperance of his Prince. Ferdinand died in the Year 1383. in the 40th. Year of his Age, after he had reign'd 17 Years. Mariana, Garebay, Duard.

FERDINANDI Pai Inſula, Iſle de Fernand Pao, an Iſland of Africa, upon the Coaſt of Guinnea, in the Bay of St. Thomas; diſcover'd alſo by the Portugueſes, and by them ſtill poſſeſs'd.

LA FERE, Lat. Fara, a City of France, in Picardy, in la Fierache. It ſtands upon the River Oiſe, between St. Quintin and Noyon, 4 or 5 Leagues from the one and the other. It is a very Strong Place ſeated in a Marſhy Country, encompaſſed with ſeveral Baſtions and good Ramparts, defended with Strong Brick-Walls, by which the River runs: The City is joyn'd together by ſeveral Bridges, and lies between the two large Suburbs of St. Fermin and Noſtredame; and there is alſo belonging to it a Caſtle beſide. La Fere has ſuffer'd divers Sieges; and about the Year 1596. Hen. IV. block'd it up at the End of the Summer; The next Spring in March he beſieged it, and in May following it was ſurrender'd up to him by Capitulation.

LA FERE, call'd Champenoiſe, a little City of France in the Province of Champaign. It is ſeated between the Seine and the Maine, 7 or 8 Leagues from Chalon in Champaign, and little leſs from Vitri le Francois, and St. Dizier.

FEREDETHUS, a King of the Picts, Contemporary with Alpinus the 68th. King of Scotland againſt whom he made War. The Armies met at Reſtenot, a Village of Angus; and Feredethus perceiving his Men to fly, did with a Select Band of his Nobles, break through the Main Battel of the Scots, but was Surrounded and Slain with the Flower of his Nobility, in the beginning of the 9th. Century. Buchan.

FERENTINO, by the Italians call'd Fiorentino, by the Latins Ferentinum, an Epiſcopal City of Italy in la Campagna di Roma, ſeated upon a Hill toward the Frontiers of Naples.

FERENTO, in Latin Ferentia, Ferentinum, and Ferentium, an Ancient City of Italy in Hetruria; formerly a Biſhop's See, and ſeated near the City of Viterbo, the Inhabitants of which latter City ruin'd the former in 1074. for their Hereſie; and the Ruins of it are ſtill to be ſeen near Monte Fiaſcone. Antonius Maſſa.

FERENZUOLA, or Fierenzuela, an Epiſcopal City of Italy in La Capitanata, where Sylla overthrew M. Carbo, in the Year of Rome 672.

FERGUS I. of the Name and Firſt King of Scotland, was Son to Ferchardus, being the moſt Eminent Man among the Scots, then poſſeſſed of Ireland, both for Counſel and Action, he was ſent for by the Albion Scots, who had ſeated themſelves in the Weſtern Iſlands, and that Part of Britain then called Albion, now Scotland, on this Occaſion. The Scots living at that time in certain Tribes or Clans without any Soveraign, and falling into a War with the Picts, with whom they had intermarried, and aſſiſted them to plant themſelves in Albion, the Heads of Clans being all of Equal Authority, and unwilling to ſubmit to one another, they had recourſe to Fergus the Son of Ferchard, King or Chief of the Iriſh Scots, that they might Strengthen themſelves with his Aſſiſtance and Alliance. Whereupon Fergus arriving with Forces from Ireland, he was Unanimouſly choſen King by the publick Conſent of the People, and ordered to prepare his Army for Battel. Things being in this poſture, the Scots and Picts received Advice that the Britains watched for an opportunity to deſtroy them both, which they deſigned to Accompliſh by joyning againſt whatever Party ſhould happen to be Conquerour. Whereupon they came to a Treaty, and ſo all the three Armies returned to their ſeveral Homes. The Britains being diſappointed in their deſign at this time attempted it again by driving away the Picts Cattel privily: and when Ambaſſadors came to demand Reſtitution, they told them, That they ought to ſeek for them among the Scots, who were accuſtomed to Depredations, and not from them. Both Nations being incenſed at this Affront, they Invaded the Britains, deſtroyed a great part of their Country, and return'd with much Booty. To revenge this, the Britains entred Scotland as far as the River Down in Kyle, where they pitch'd their Tents. And Fergus having ſent the Women, Children and Moveables into inacceſſible Places, guarded all the Avenues till the coming of the Picts, who having joyn'd him, they reſolved to lengthen out the War, and make an Incurſion into the Enemies Country: Which Coilus King of the Britains being informed of, he laid 5000 Men in Ambuſh, and deſigned to march towards them; but this being diſcovered, the Scots and Picts fell upon the Britains while divided, before Day, and gave them a total Rout, Coilus himſelf falling in the Battel, and in Memory of his Death, the Country was called Coila, now Kyle. Fergus returning home Conqueror, the Scots ſettled the Crown upon him and his Poſterity by an Oath. Having thus ſettled Affairs in Scotland, He went for Ireland, to quell ſome Seditions there by his Authority; which being effected, he was Drown'd in his Return by a ſudden Tempeſt not far from Craigfergus, now Carrickfergus, which took its Name from that deplorable Accident which happened in the 25th. of his Reign. His coming into Albion, is by Hiſtorians reckoned about the time of Alexander the Great's taking Babylon, viz. 330 Years before Chriſt. Buchan. Leſly. Hoffman. Helvicus.

FERGUS II. the 40th. King of Scotland ſucceeded Eugenius who was Slain by the Romans at ſuch time as they with the Aſſiſtance of the Picts did quite expel the Scots out of Britain; whereupon Echadius or Ethodius, Brother to Eugenius, went with his Family into Scandia, his Son Erthus and Nephew Ferguſius being of the Number. The King of the Country: being moved with Compaſſion toward theſe Royal Exiles, ſhowed them great Favour. And as Fergus grew up, he improved himſelf in Military Acquirements, and ſignaliz'd himſelf in many Rencounters, and follow'd the Francks in their Expedition againſt the Gauls, wherein he acquired much Glory. So that his Fame reaching the Ears of the Scots and Picts, both of them were lifted up with hopes of Recovering their Liberty under his Conduct. So that the Picts being weary of the Roman Servitude, ſent ſecret Meſſengers to the Scots, made up a Peace with them, and joyn'd in calling Fergus to accept the Crown of his Anceſtors, at ſuch a Juncture when the Power and Authority of the Romans was on the Declenſion in Britain, which he eaſily conſented to; and having made up a conſiderable Body of the Scottiſh Exiles, beſides Danes and others who followed him, he Landed in Argyle. Thither the reſt of his Countrymen from Ireland and the Iſles flock'd to him, and then he was created King, according to the Manner of the Country, about the 8th. Year of the Reign of the Emperors Honorius and Arcadius, 27 Years after the Death of his Grandfather Eugenius, and about 403d. or 404th. of Chriſt, according to Funccius, the Black Book of Paſley and Marianus Scotus. And this, ſays Buchanan, gives riſe to the Miſtake amongſt ſeveral Engliſh Writers, who will have this to be the firſt time that the Scots ſeated themſelves in Britain; but they may be Convinced of the Contrary by the very Hiſtory of Bede, to which they Appeal. Fergus being Crown'd, prepared to make War upon his Enemies, againſt the Seaſon of the Year. The Britains hearing of his Arrival, were divided into two Factions; ſome were for joyning him, and others ſent to the Romans for Aſſiſtance, and to the Picts to withdraw them from Fergus. The Romans upon the News, ſent one Legion from Gaul to aſſiſt their Provincials, and together they repulſed the Straggling Troops of Scots with great ſlaughter; and afterward defeated them in a ſet Battel by the River of Carron, near Severus's Wall, but not without great Loſs to the Romans, who contented themſelves to Repair the Wall, Garriſon'd the Forts with Britains, and then returned to Gaul. After their departure, the Scots and Picts demoliſhed the Wall under the Conduct of Graham, Father-in-Law to Fergus, and Originally a Britain of the Noble Fulgentian Family, and waſted the Country far and near. Whereupon the Britains ſent a lamentable Complaint to Rome, and obtained another Legion under the Command of Maximianus, who arriving unexpectedly made a great Slaughter among the Scots and Picts. However they Gathered together a great Army, and being encouraged by the Aſſiſtance of Dionethus, a Britain of great Power, they march'd with their Army to prevent his being ſwallow'd up by the Romans; and having joyned their Forces, put the Romans to flight. Whereupon the Confederate Kings purſuing too eagerly, fell in amongſt the Reſerves of their Army, and were repulſed with great Slaughter; yet the Romans being diſmayed at this Check, and but few in Number, retir'd into the midſt of the Province. Hereupon Dionethus aſſum'd the Soveraignty of the Britains. The Romans underſtanding that the Confederate Forces were Separated, augmented their Forces with Britiſh Auxiliaries, on deſign to deſtroy Dionethus. But the Scots and Picts having joyned him again ſooner than the Romans were aware, they prepared for Battel. Maximianus placed the Britains in the Front, who were ſoon repulſed; then he advanced his Romans, who ſtopt their Flight, and detaching ſome Troops of Veteran Souldiers, they fell upon the Rear of the Scots; ſome of whoſe Troops being ſurrounded, they drew themſelves into a Ring, where they bravely defended themſelves againſt the whole force of the Romans, till they were over-power'd, and every man Slain; but this gave opportunity to the reſt to Eſcape. Fergus fell in this Battel, as did alſo Durſtus King of the Picts, and Dionethus hardly eſcaped, being alſo grievouſly Wounded. This happen'd in the 16th. Year of Fergus his Reign, An. 420. He was a Prince of an Heroick Spirit, and may well be reckoned the Second Founder of the Scottiſh Kingdom, and all things conſidered, Superior even to Fergus I. He left three Sons, over whom their Grandfather Graham was choſen Guardian and Viceroy of the Kingdom. Buchan.

FERGUS III. the 63d. King of Scotland ſucceeded Eugenius VIII. counterfeited Vertue at firſt, but grew extremely Vitious. His Wife having often upbraided him for keeping Company with Harlots, but finding no alteration, Strangled him at Night while aſleep, in the Third Year of his Reign. Several People were tortur'd to diſcover who put him to Death; but the Queen being mov'd with the Suffering of ſo many Innocents, acknowledged the Murder, and to prevent her being brought to publick Puniſhment, Stabb'd her ſelf, about 767.

FERIÆ, were certain Holy-Days on which the Romans diſ-continued all ſort of Work. It's true, they did thus on all Holy-Days; but the Feriæ were particularly deſtin'd to the Ceſſation of Work: to underſtand this the better, we muſt conſider they had three ſorts of Days; ſome entirely conſecrated to the Gods, and call'd Feſti; others deſtin'd wholly to Men, and call'd Profeſti; a third ſort, and the mean between both, Interciſi. The firſt ſort had under it Four Species, viz. Days of ſolemn Sacrifice, Sacrificia; the 2d. Days of publick Feaſting in honour of the Gods, Epulæ; the 3d. had Days for the Plays inſtituted by their Religion; and finally, Days on which they left off all ſort of Work in honour of their Gods, and theſe were called Feriæ. There were publick Feriæ celebrated by all the People in general, and private obſerved but by ſome particular Families, as Claudiæ Feriæ, Æmiliæ Feriæ, and beſides, each individual Perſon kept his Birth Day. The Publick were of Four ſorts. Firſt, Feriæ Stativæ, or fixt as the Agonalia, kept in January, in honour of Janus; or according to Feſtus, in Memory of the God Agon. Lupercalia, in honour of Pan in February. Secondly, There were ſome celebrated yearly, but not on the ſame Days, the Solemnity being advanced or retarded, as the Magiſtrates or Prieſts thought it convenient; ſuch were the Feriæ Latinæ inſtituted by Tarquinius Superbus. Feriæ Sementinæ, after Seed-time, to obtain of the Gods a good Harveſt. Paganalia, celebrated by the Boors in honour of Ceres, for the Preſervation of the Fruits of the Earth. Thirdly, Feriæ Imperativæ vel Indictivæ, becauſe the Conſul or Prætor order'd the Celebration upon ſome conſiderable Event. Finally, the Nundinæ, the Fourth part of the Publick, ordain'd in favour of the Country People to Sell and Buy, what they had occaſion for; they were call'd Nundinæ à Nono die, becauſe kept on the ninth Day. Pope Silveſter about A. C. 316. becauſe he would not call the Days of the Weeks as the Jews did, Sabbatum, Prima Sabbati, Secunda Sabbati, &c. nor by the Names of the Planets or falſe Gods as the Pagans did, call'd Sunday, Dies Domini; Monday, Feria Prima; Tueſday, Feria Secunda, &c. and Saturday, Dies Sabbati, in Memory of the Old Teſtament; and ſaid, he call'd them, Feriæ non quod à neceſſariis operibus, ſed quod à vitiis Chriſtiani feriarentur. The Eaſtern Pagans only counted by Weeks, the Romans counting by nine Days, and Greeks by Decads. Aul. Gell. Macrobius.

FERITHARIS, the Second King of Scotland, ſucceeded Fergus I. who left two Sons behind him, but both uncapable of Managing the Government, becauſe of their Youth. So that the Chiefs of the Clans meeting together, there was great debate about a Succeſſor; ſome urging the Oath that they had made to ſettle the Crown on Fergus's Family, and others repreſenting the Dangers which they might run under an Infant King; whereupon they fell on a Medium, and Agreed that whilſt the Children of their Kings were Infants, the fitteſt of their Kindred ſhould Govern for them, and after their Death, the former King's Son ſhould ſucceed; which Law obtain'd 1025 Years, till the time of Kennethus III. and by Vertue of this Law, Feritharis Brother to Fergus, was ſet upon the Throne and Governed 15 Years as became a good King to his Subjects, and an honeſt Guardian to his Nephews; having procured Peace abroad, and Love at home; but his eldeſt Nephew Ferlegus being ambitious to Reign, and having firſt Communicated his Deſign to the moſt turbulent of the Souldiery, and ſuch as affected Innovation, he came and demanded the Crown from his Uncle, who called an Aſſembly of the States, and declared his Willingneſs to reſign, ſpeaking at the ſame time in Commendation of his Nephew; but the States diſliking Ferlegus's too earger Deſire to Reign, would not Conſent to it; and having diſcovered a Deſign of Ferlegus againſt his Uncle, the Memory of his Father did ſo far prevail, that though they Judged him worthy of Death, yet they only Confin'd him; but he being Impatient to have the Crown, deceived his Keepers, and fled to the Picts. Where finding no Incouragement, he went to the Britains, among whom he lived obſcurely. And Feritharis being taken off a few Months after, as it was ſuppoſed by Treachery in the 15th. Year of his Reign; the States ſuſpecting Ferlegus, on the account of his former Behaviour, he was Unanimouſly Condemn'd, and his younger Brother Mainus ſet upon the Throne, who governed 29 Years with ſo much Equity and Juſtice, puniſhing Bad, and encouraging good Men, that Foreigners as well as his own Subjects eſteem'd him highly, ſo that his Reign was Peaceable and Proſperous, and when he died, he was Lamented by all good Men. He finiſhed his Reign about 286 Years before Chriſt. Buchanan.

FERMANAGH, Lat. Fermanagenſis Comitatus, a County of Ulſter in Ireland, in which lies Earne, the greateſt Lake in that Kingdom. It has no City of Note, though it's good Paſture Ground, and is water'd with Rivers that abound in Fiſh.

FERMO, in Latin Firmum or Firmium, an Archiepiſcopal City of Italy in La Marca d' Ancona. Formerly one of thoſe Cities which aſſiſted the Romans againſt Hannibal; the Ruins of which are to be ſeen a little beyond the New City.

FERNELIUS, Born in the Dioceſs of Amiens, was Chief Phyſician to Henry II. of France, and highly eſteemed at Court, more eſpecially after Mary de Medicis came once to bear Children; who for that reaſon ſent him conſiderable Preſents. He died with Grief for the loſs of his Wife, in the 52d. Year of his Age, in 1558. and left ſeveral Pieces behind him which are well known in the World. He is mention'd with great Applauſe by Thuanus. Fernelius was not only a good Phyſician, but alſo a famous Mathematician, his Latin is ſo very pure, that it's often compar'd to Cicero's. He writ, De abditis rerum cauſis. De abditis rerum Naturalium & Medicamentorum cauſis. De febrium curatione. Univerſa Medicina Scholiis Illuſtrata. Opera Medicinalia. Practica Latina Therapeutices, ſive Univerſalis medendi rationis Liber, &c.

FERNES, a City in the County of Wexford in Ireland, with an Epiſcopal See, under the Archbiſhop of Caſhel now, but formerly of Dublin. In this place Dermond the Fugitive King of Leinſter, was kindly received by his Clergy, upon his return from England in the Year 1169. In this place Dermond died, in the Year 1172. the Firſt of May, after he had laid a fair Foundation for the Conqueſt of Ireland, by marrying Eva his Daughter to Richard Strongbow.

FERO, Iſles de Fero, or de Farre, Iſlands in the Daniſh Sea, to the Weſt of Schetland, and to the North of the Orcades, belonging to the King of Denmark; they are uſually reckon'd Fifteen; of which, the Principal are, Sudro, Stromo, Oſtro, Borgo, Sando, &c.

FERONIA, a Goddeſs, which the Pagans thought to have had care of Woods, &c. They call'd her Feronia from the Town Feronia, ſituate at the foot of the Mountain Soracte, where ſhe had a Temple, and not far from it a little Wood conſecrated to her. This Mountain is now call'd, Mount St. Sylveſter in Italy. Strabo ſays, That they that Sacrificed to Feronia, walk'd upon live burning Coals, without receiving any harm; and adds, That the Enfranchiz'd call'd her their Goddeſs, becauſe it was in her Temple that they received their Cap or Hat, as a Token of their new Condition.

FERRANDINA, a ſmall City of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples, dignified with the Title of a Dukedom. It lies in the Province of Baſilicata, ſeated upon the Baſiente, Fifteen or Twenty Miles from the Gulf of Tarento.

FERRANDUS or FULGENTIUS Ferrandus, Deacon of the Church of Carthage, in the VIth. Century. He was a Diſciple of Fulgentius, and one of the greateſt Men of his Time. There is extant of his in the Bibliotheca Patrum, an Exhortation to Count Reginus; an Abridgment of the Canons. The Life of Fulgentius, with ſome other Pieces, publiſhed by Chifletius, in 1649. Facundus pro Defenſ. Trium Capit. Lib. 4. cap. 3. Iſidore Hiſpal. cap. 14. Sigebert, cap. 28, 29. De Script. Eccl.

FERRANDUS (John) Born in the Province of Anjou in France; and liv'd to the Year 1510; he wrote a Book of the Rights and Privileges of the Kingdom of France, which he Dedicated to Lewis the XIIth.

FERRARA, a City of Italy in the Ancient Æmilia, a Biſhop's See, with the Title of a Dukedom, belonging to the Holy See. It is ſeated upon an Arm of the Po, by the Natives of the place call'd Pa Morto, upon the Frontiers of the State of Venice, between Mirandola, and Comachio, about 30 Miles from Bologna. This City is about 4 Miles in Compaſs, with a fair Citadel, ſtrong Walls, and good Baſtions; the Streets are Large, and the Palaces and Churches Magnificent; but the People begin to grow Miſerable; ſo that it may be ſaid, That Ferrara having loſt her Dukes, has loſt her Grandeur and her Riches. The Palace of the Ancient Dukes ſtands in the middle of the City, with good Moats fill'd with Water. The Court is Surrounded with Galleries, where is to be ſeen the Genealogy of the Houſe of Eſte, with the Arms of the Family painted in Freſco. There is alſo another Palace in Ferrara, built of white Marble, call'd the Palace of Diamonds, becauſe the Stones are cut Diamond Faſhion. The Churches and Convents of the Benedictines, Chartreux, Carmelites, Theatins, Jacobins, and Franciſcans, are Magnificent and worthy the Curioſity of Travellers. The Cittadel was Built by Clement VIII. flank'd with ſix Baſtions, with Mills, and Magazines for Arms, Ammunition and Proviſion ſufficient for a long Siege. 'Tis ſaid, that it coſt him above Two Millions of Gold. In the middle of the Place ſtands his Statue, with this Inſcription, Ne recedente Pado, Ferrariæ Fortitudo recederet, Martem Neptuno ſubſtituit, i. e. leſt the receſs of the Po ſhould weaken Ferrara, he has brought Mars to ſupply the want of Neptune; but the Event has ſhewn that Neptune was a more auſpicious Patron than Mars. There was a League made here againſt the Proteſtants in 1586. The Council of Florence was begun here in 1438. after a Declaration of the Diſſolution of that of Baſil, made by P. Eugenius IV. John Palæologus VII. Emperor of Conſtantinople, with the Patriach, being preſent there. An Univerſity was ſettled here about 1316. by Frederick the Firſt, in averſion to Bononia. The Dukedom of Ferrara, is a part of Romandula, bounded by the Peninſula of Rhodignia, on the Weſt by the Dukedom of Mantua, on the South by Romandula, properly ſo called, and on the Eaſt by the Adriatick Sea. It was under the Family de Eſte from 1336. to 1598. when upon the Death of Alphonſus II. without Heirs Male, it was ſeized by Pope Clement VIII. as Lord of the Fee, againſt the Pretenſions of the Branch of Eſte, which are now Dukes of Mantua.

FERRARIUS (John) Baptiſta, a Jeſuite, Compiled a very profitable Syriack Dictionary, which was Printed at Rome in 1622 under the Title of Nomenclator Syriacus. The Author applied himſelf chiefly to explain the Syriack words of the Bible, and conſulted the Learnedeſt Maronites, upon what he found moſt obſcure. Father Simon.

FERRARIUS (Ottavio) Born at Milan in 1607. Taught Eloquence, Politicks, and the Greek Tongue in the Univerſity of Padua; where he acquired ſo great a Reputation, that the Republick of Venice, the King of France, Chriſtina of Sweden, and the City of Milan, enrich'd him with Conſiderable Preſents and Penſions. He wrote a very curious Treatiſe of Lamps in Sepulchres, where he Diſcourſes of Lamps and Illuminations in general. He ſhews, That the Jews kept Wax-Candles lighted in their Temples, and that the Pagans made uſe of Flambeaux in their Sacrifices; and particularly in the Celebration of the Feaſt of Ceres, ſays, That the Papiſts imitated the Jews, though he adds, That in the beginning of Chriſtianity, the Faithful aſſembled in Subterranean Vaults, where Candles were neceſſary; and that when they firſt had Liberty to build Churches, they made but few Windows in them, that the obſcurity might inſpire the greater Reſpect and Veneration for the place; ſo that it was neceſſary then to uſe Tapers or Flambeaux, which they have continued ſince, though they have Light enough without them; but Jerome ſays, It's in teſtimony of Joy, Non ad fugandas tenebras, ſed ad ſignum Lætitiæ demonſtrandum. In his Diſſertation of Sepulchral Lamps, he diſſents from the Learned Authors that were of Opinion the Ancients had the Secret of making an unconſumable Oil, or of diſpoſing their Lamps ſo, that as the ſmoak condens'd it turn'd inſenſibly into Oil again, as Fortunio Liceto endeavours to prove in his Learned Diſſertation upon this Subject. Ferrari to invalidate this opinion ſays, that the uſe of Sepulchral Lamps cannot be of ſuch ſtanding in Italy as is pretended; becauſe they us'd to burn their Dead, and put the Aſhes in Urns of ſuch narrow Necks that a Lamp could not get into them, that the Cuſtom of Burying Bodies being introduced, the Lamps were put in the Tombs, but not into the Coffins, where it's impoſſible they could hold lighted for want of Air. Then endeavours to prove that there cannot be a perpetual Flame, either by means of the Oil or Wick. He wrote other very valuable Treatiſes, as De re veſtiaria 2 Vol. Fol. Proluſiones Epiſt. &c. 2 Vol. 4to Electa in Quarto, Origines Linguæ Italicæ in Fol. Ghilini.

The ſame Year, ſays Scevola de Sancte Marthe, the City of Bourdeaux loſt Arnold of Ferron, one of her moſt noble Citizens and her greateſt Senators. His Profound Erudition extreamly oblig'd his Country by his Learned Obſervations upon her Ancient Cuſtoms, which were obſcure before, and little underſtood. Thuanus gives him a high Character, and ſays of him, That he wrote a Continuation of the Hiſtory of Paulus Æmilius, which he continued Down to the Death of Henry II. Entitled, De Rebus Geſtis Gallorum Libri IX. ad Hiſtoriam Pauli Æmilii additi, &c. He died in the 50th. Year of his Age, in 1563. Thuan. l. 35. St. Marthe, in Elog. Doct. Gall. l. 2. &c.

LA FERTE SUR AUBE, in Latin Firmitas ad Albulam, a little City of France in Champaign, ſeated upon the River Aube, toward the Frontiers of Burgundy, 3 or 4 Leagues above Barr-ſur Aube. It is a Seat of Juſtice, depending upon the Bailliage of Troye.

LA FERTE BERNARD, Firmitas Bernardi, a City of France in Maine; with the Title of a Baronie; ſeated upon the River Huiſne, towards the Frontiers of Perche, 10 or 12 Leagues above Mons. It is a Seat of Juſtice, the Appeals from whence are immediately carried to Paris.

LA FERTE-SOUS-JOVARE, Firmitas Auculphi, or Subter Jotrum, a Borough of France, in Brie Champenoiſe. It lies upon the River Marne, between Chaſteau Thierry and Meaux: Taken by the Proteſtants during the Civil Wars, about 1562.

LA FERTE-MILON, a City of the Government of the Iſland of France, in Le Valois. It ſtands upon the little River of Ourk, or Oureque, between Meaux, Soiſſons and Senlis. 'Tis ſaid to have been built under the Reign of Louis le Gros; from whom it was call'd the Fort of Milon, or Firmitas Milonis. Afterwards it belong'd to Hugo of France, ſirnam'd The Great, Count of Vermandois and Valois, &c. the Son of Hen. I. Ferte Milon is a large City, with a Caſtle, aud good Suburbs; but ſuffer'd much in the XVIth. Age, during the Civil Wars.

FESCENNIA, a City of Hetruria; the ancient Inhabitants of which (if we may believe Pliny) deriv'd their Original from the Athenians. They were of a Humour addicted to Buffoonry, and delighted in a ſort of Poetry full of Quibbles and Jeſts, but intermix'd with Obſcenity: Whence came the Proverb of Verſus Feſcennini, a Name afterwards given to thoſe ſort of Verſes, too frequent in the World, which offend modeſt Ears. Auguſtus, in his Triumvirate, made Verſes of this nature againſt Pollio. Ortelius places this City in St. Peter's Patrimony, by the Name of Citta Caſtellana. But Cluverius calls it Galeſe; under which Name Ferrarius ennobles it with the Title of a Dukedom; between Orta to the North, and Civita Caſtellana to the South.

FESOLI, or Fieſole, a Congregation of Monks; which are alſo called Fryer-Mendicaments of St. Jerom. They were founded by Charles, the Son of the Count of Mont Granello; who living a ſolitary Life in the Mountains of Fieſole, about the Year 1386. was follow'd by ſome Companions, and ſet up this Society, approv'd firſt by Innocent VII. and afterwards confirm'd by Gregory XII. and Eugenius IV. under the Rules of St. Auſtin. Spond.

FESSOLI, or Fiezzole, Lat. Feſula, an Epiſcopal City of Italy, in Hetruria, of which it was formerly One of the Twelve Conſiderable Cities; the Reſidence of the Tuſcan Augurs and Southſayers, who communicated their Superſtitions to the Romans. This City was once ſo Potent, that with the Aſſiſtance of the Inhabitants, Stilico defeated Rhadaghaiſus, King of the Goths, and kill'd (as is given out) about 100000 of his Men. But ſince, the Florentines have ruin'd this City, to aggrandize their own.

FESTIVALS: Their Original is very Ancient, as well among the Pagans and Mahometans, as among the Jews and Chriſtians. The moſt Conſiderable among the Pagans, were the Bacchanalia, Cerealia, Saturnalia, &c. Of which in their proper places. The Mahometans have alſo their Feſtivals, but in leſſer number than either the Jews or Chriſtians. Their Day of Reſt is Friday, as being the Day upon which Mahomet was born; and upon that Day they Pray Six times, whereas upon other Days they are not oblig'd to ſay above Five Prayers. They have alſo their Eaſter, or Bairam, and ſome others; which ſee in Georgiovitz and Buſekquius, who obſerve, That ſome devout Mahometans have their peculiar Saints, to whom they apply themſelves in their Neceſſities. The Jews, beſides their Sabbaths and New-Moons, obſerv'd alſo the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, 50 Days after the Paſſover, in Remembrance of the Law given them by Moſes 50 Days after their coming out of Egypt. Their Feaſt of Trumpets, according to Moreri, was one of their New-Moons, and fell upon the Firſt Day of the Tiſri, which was the Seventh Month of the Eccleſiaſtical Year, and the Firſt of the Civil. They ſound upon Horns, or Trumpets made of Horns, in Remembrance of Iſaac's being deliver'd, juſt as ready to be ſacrific'd. The Fourth Feaſt is that of the Propitiation, on the 10th. of the Month Tiſri, being the Day of Moſes's declaring to them, That God had Pardon'd their Idolatry, in the Matter of the Golden Calf. At this time the High-Prieſt let go the Scape-Goat into the Deſart. In the Feaſt of Tabernacles, they dwelt Seven Days under Tents, in remembrance of their Forty Years wandring in the Deſart. The Grand Sabbath was that which happen'd on the Seventh Day of this Feaſt. They had alſo a Feaſt of Dedication, inſtituted by Judas Maccabæus. And at the Feaſt of Purim, in remembrance of their Deliverance from Haman's Plot, they read over the whole Book of Heſter, by Night; and at mentioning of Haman's Name, made a great Noiſe, and knockt with their Feet, and ſpent thoſe Days in good Chear. The Chiefeſt and moſt Sacred of the Jewiſh Feaſts, was the Sabbath; as appears in Exodus and Leviticus, &c. They alſo kept Holy the Firſt Day of every New Month, called New-Moons. The next was the Paſſover, the Inſtitution of which ſee Exod. 12. ver. 3. and the Reaſon of it, ver. 27. The Third was, the Feaſt of Tabernacles, Lev. 23. 34. The Fourth was, the Feaſt of Unleavened Bread, Lev. 23. 6. Then there was the Feaſt of Weeks, Exod. 24. 22. and Deut. 16. 10, 16. Alſo, as every Seventh Day was a Sabbath, ſo every Seventh Year was a Sabbatical Year. And the Obſervation of this Feſtival conſiſted chiefly in Two things: Firſt, in not Tilling their Ground; and, Secondly, in Creditors Diſcharging their Debtors, and Releaſing their Debts, Lev. 25. 3. Deut. 15. 2. Moreover, every Fiftieth Year was the Year of Jubilee, Lev. 25. 8. There were alſo other leſſer Feaſts, as their Feaſts of New-Moons, and Feaſts of Trumpets. In their Ordinary New-Moons, they only offer'd two Young Bullocks, one Ram, and ſeven Lambs, &c. Numb. 28. 11, 15. But in the Feaſt of Trumpets, there was an Addition to this Offering, Numb. 29. 1, 6. Secondly, in the Ordinary New-Moons they blew no Trumpets; but in the Feaſt of Trumpets, they blew from Sun-riſing till Sun-ſetting. The Reaſon of which is ſuppos'd to be, becauſe they would make their New-Year's-Day the more Remarkable. There was alſo the Feaſt of Expiation, commanded Lev. 16. 29, &c. and 23. 27, &c. After the Captivity, there was alſo the Feaſt of Purim, inſtituted by Mordecai, Eſth. 9. 28. in remembrance of the Jews Delivery from Haman. And the Feaſt of the Dedication of the Temple, appointed by Judas Maccabæus, 1 Mac. 4. 59. Of all theſe Feſtivals of the Jews, ſee Godwin more at large, in his Moſes and Aaron. The Three Grand Feſtivals of the Chriſtians, are Chriſtmas, Eaſter, and Whitſontide. The Firſt, in remembrance of the Birth; the Second, of the Reſurrection; and the Third, in Memory of the comming of the Holy Ghoſt, after the Aſcenſion of Chriſt. The reſt, which are allow'd by the Church of England, are fewer in number than thoſe obſerv'd by the Roman Catholicks; and were ordain'd in remembrance either of ſome particular Acts, as the Conception and Purification, &c. or conſecrated to particular Angels and Saints, as St. Michael, St. Peter, &c. The Feſtival of Aſſes: A Ceremony formerly us'd in the Cathedral Church of Roan upon Chriſtmas Day. It was a Proceſſion wherein ſome of the Clergy repreſented the Prophets of the Old Teſtament that foretold the Coming of the Meſſiah; one repreſented Zachary, another St. Elizabeth, a third John the Baptiſt, a fourth Simeon, Sibylla Erythraa, and Virgil for his Eclogue, Sicilides Muſa, had alſo a Place in it, as well as Balaam mounted on his Aſs; whence the Ceremony derives its Name. Having gone round the Cloyſter, they enter'd; where ſtood People on both ſides, to repreſent the Jews and Gentiles. The Singers having ſpoken ſomewhat to both, they call'd the Prophets, one after the other: Each of whom repeated a Paſſage concerning the Meſſiah. Then having repreſented the Three Children in the Furnace, and heard Nebuchodonoſor ſpeak, the Sibyl came laſt, and the Choire and Prophet ſung, and put an end to the Ceremony. Du Cange. The Feſtival of the Parrot, is a publick Diverſion renew'd Yearly, at Montpellier, on the Beginning of May. It was Eſtabliſh'd by the Kings of Majorca, to whom this City did formerly belong, the better to keep that Warlike People to the Uſe of Arms, before the Invention of Gun-Powder. It's perform'd by a Company of 200 Archers, whoſe Captain, always a Nobleman of the Country, has under him a Lieutenant, an Enſign, and other Subaltern Officers. This is the Order of their March: Twelve Drummers clad in Green, and Six Hautboys, walk in the Front, follow'd by a very Tall Man wearing a Green Coat, charg'd with a Cupid embroider'd in Gold: This Man carries, on the top of a Stick, a piece of Wood in Form of a Parrot; and is accompany'd with a great number of Children, dreſs'd like little Cupids, and arm'd with Bows and Arrows. After theſe comes the King of the Feſtival, viz. he that carry'd the Prize the Year before, with Trumpets and Violins before him, the Captain on the Right, and the Lieutenant on his Left-hand. Being come up to the Place deſign'd for the Sport, the Parrot is put a top of a very high May-Pole? whence he that ſhoots the laſt piece of it down, is the New King, and is carried in Triumph to the Town-Houſe, where he makes a great Entertainment. Memoirs du Tems.

FESTUS PORCIUS, Proconſul and Governor of Judaa, in the Iſt. Age, ſucceeded Felix. St. Paul was accus'd before him by the High-Prieſts and Princes of the Jews: But the Apoſtle appealing, as a Roman, to Cæſar, Feſtus ſent him to Rome. Acts 25.

FETHELMACHUS, the Thirty eighth King of Scotland, ſucceeded Anguſianus. In the 2d. Year of his Reign, he invaded and waſted the Country of the Picts; who raiſing an Army againſt him, were defeated, and the Main Body of their Army taken. Three Days after, the King of the Picts died of his Wounds; and the Scots, though they had loſt abundance of Men in the Battle, improv'd their Victory, and over-run moſt of the Pictiſh Country. The Enemy not being able to make Head againſt them with an Army, attack'd the Plunderers, who went out in ſmall Parties; and Herguſtus, a crafty Man, ſucceeding as King of the Picts, ſuborned two of his Subjects, who feigning themſelves to be Scots, and corrupting one of Fethelmachus's Muſicians, who then, according to the Cuſtom, ſtay'd in the Prince's Chamber and play'd him a-ſleep, they Murther'd him in the Night; but were afterwards taken, and condignly puniſh'd. This happen'd about the Middle of the IVth. Century. Buchan.

FETICHE, the Name of the pretended Deities, worſhipp'd by the People of Guinea in Africk: They have one Fetiche for a whole Province, and others for particular Families: This Idol is a Tree, a Bird, an Ape's-head, or ſome ſuch Foppery, juſt as the Fancy takes them. O Dapper Deſcription d' l' Afrique.

FETU, a ſmall Kingdom of Africa, with a City of the ſame Name, in Guinea. It lies upon the Gold Coaſt, towards Cape Corſo and St. George de la Mine.

FEUARDENTIUS, (Francis) a Monk of the Order of St. Francis, and a Doctour of the Univerſity of Paris, was much eſteem'd in the XVIth. and Beginning of the XVIIth. Cent. He publiſh'd Irenæus with Notes upon him at Paris, in 1675. He likewiſe wrote Notes upon Arnobius Junior, De Gratia & Liberi Arbitrii Concordia, and Expoſitions on ſeveral Books of the Old and New Teſtament: He was very zealous for the Tenets of the Church of Rome, and publiſh'd a Book call'd, Theomachia Calviniſtica; an Anſwer to ſome Letters, and Queſtions of a Calviniſt, &c. In theſe Controverſial Writings, he treated his Adverſaries with a great deal of Satyr and Severity, and had Replies made him, in the ſame kind; by Perkins, Cook, and Rivett. Ca Croix du Main; Labbé, Du Verdier Vauprivas, &c.

FEVERSHAM, in Kent, a Sea-Port Town, large and well-built, not far from the Iſle of Sheppey, and inhabited by Tradeſmen, Inn-keepers and Victuallers. It's well frequented by Hoyes, and ſuch like ſmall Veſſels; it being the Principal Port-Town for all this part of Kent. From London 44 Miles. King Stephen, with his Queen, and Euſtace his Son, were all Bury'd here, in an Abbey of that King's Foundation. The Right Honourable Lewis of Duras enjoys the Title of Earl of this Place.

FEUGERUS, (William) profeſs'd Divinity at Leiden, towards the End of the XVIth. Cent. He publiſh'd a Treatiſe of Ratramnus, or Bertram, De Corpore & Sanguine Domini; and wrote an Anſwer to a Zealander, De Eccleſiæ Perpetuitate & Notis. Meurſius, Athen. Bat. lib. 2.

FEUILLIANS, a Congregation of Monks ſettl'd towards the End of the XVIth. Cent. by John d' l' Barriere. This John was a Ciſtertian, and the Plan of his New Congregation, was only a Reformation of that Order; his Method of refining upon the Old Conſtitution, was approv'd and confirm'd by Sixtus Quintus: The Feuliantines are Nuns, who follow the ſame Reformation. Spondan, A. C. 1586. N. 4. St. Marthe, Gal. Chriſt. Tom. III. P. 447. & ſeq. &c.

FEVRE, (Guy le) Lord of Boderie, and born at Falaiſe in Normandy, was a conſiderable Maſter of the Belles Lettres, and the Oriental Languages, and was choſen Præceptor to Francis Alençon, Brother to King Henry the IIId. He publiſh'd the Syriack Interpreter of the New Teſtament, with a Latin Verſion. R. Simon Crit. upon the Verſions of the New Teſtament, &c.

FEVRE, or FABER, (James) a Perſon of conſiderable Reputation in the 16th. Cent. born in Picardy in France. He was very well skill'd both in Humanity and Divinity, and his Commentaries upon Ariſtotle, with ſeveral Mathematical Treatiſes, are ſufficient Proofs of the Extent of his Learning: As to matters of Religion, he came over to the Sentiments of the Reformation, and his Writings upon that Subject, are Commentaries upon Eccleſiaſtes, the Goſpels, Epiſtles of St. Paul, &c. St. Marthe, lib. 1. Elog. Paul. Jov. in Elog. Doct. cap. 121. Spondan. A. C. 1525. N. 15. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 6. 17. &c.

FEVRE, (Andrew le) call'd Smidelin, Chancellour of the Univerſity of Tubingen in Suabia, in Germany, where his Reputation was very high. The Lutherans looking upon him, as the moſt Learned of all their Divines next Luther. He wrote a great Book, at the Inſtance of the Duke of Wertemburg, in 1558. call'd, Formula Concordiæ, in which he endeavours to reconcile all the Subdiviſions of the Lutherans; but as Moreri reports, without much Succeſs; however this Reconciling Work was for ſome time receiv'd in the Dutchy of Wertemburg, and Electorate of Saxony. Maimbourg Hiſtoire de Lutheraniſme.

FEVRE, or FABER, (Tannaquil) Regent in the Univerſity of Saumur, was born at Caen in Normandy; he was a Perſon of an Extraordinary Talent for Humanity, a conſiderable Critick in Greek and Latin, and a great Maſter in Secular and Claſſical Learning, as appears by his Latin Epiſtles; by his Notes upon Longinus, Anacreon, Apollodorus, Terence, Juſtin, Horace, Eutropius and Aurelius Victor; and upon Lucian's Timon, and Peregrinus. He wrote likewiſe the Lives of ſeveral Greek Poets in French, with ſome Tranſlations, and died at Saumur in his Poſt of Regency, in 1678.

FEURS, a City of France, in Forez, ſeated upon the Loire, where it receives the River of Lignon, between Lyon, Roanne and St. Eſtienne. M. D'Urfe makes particular mention of Feurs, in his Romance of Aſtræa. In Latin Forum Seguſianorum.

FEZ, a City and Kingdom of Africa, in Barbary, between Morocco and the Mediterranean on the one ſide, and the Ocean and the Kingdom of Algier on the other. The River Mulvia ſeparates it from Algier Eaſtward, the Ocean waſhes it to the Weſt. The Mountains of Atlas, and the River Ommirabi, divide it from Segelmeſſa and Morocco to the South; and the Streights of Gibraltar and the Mediterranean divide it from Spain to the North. Fez is a part of the ancient Mauritania Tingitana, containing Seven Provinces, Temeſna, Fez and Aſgar, upon the Ocean; Habat upon the Streights; Erriſ and Garet, upon the Mediterranean-Sea; and Chaus, all within the Land. The City of Fez is the Ornament of all the Kingdom, and indeed of all Barbary. It lies 100 Miles from the Ocean, and as many from the Mediterranean-Sea; ſeated upon the River of Perles, or Fez, which runs between the Rivers Bunaſar and Suba. The Form of it is a Four-ſquare, built upon the Deſcent of two Mountains, ſeparated by a River; the Middle is Plain; the Out-parts Hilly: with a great number of Suburbs without, of which 32 are the moſt Conſiderable; ſome of them have 500, ſome 1000, and others 2000 Houſes. The City hath 4 Principal Quarters, 62 Great Market-Places, above 200 Large and Straight Streets, with a multitude of Leſſer ones. It hath 700 Moſques, a great number of Colleges, Hoſpitals, Stores, &c. It hath 86 Gates; and 150 Publick Jakes, whoſe Filth is all carry'd off by the Water. It hath 250 Bridges, many of which are ſo cover'd with Houſes, that they are not diſcerned. It hath 86 Publick Fountains, beſides 600 Private ones. The Houſes are well built, having Moſaick Work on the Out-ſide; and are painted with Flowers, Fruits, Perſpectives and Landskips within. Of the Moſques, 50 are of a very Magnificent Structure, having many Marble Pillars; moſt of 'em are neither Vaulted, Pav'd nor Wainſcotted, but handſomely Matted; the Greateſt of them is ſaid to be Half a Mile in Circuit, has 31 Gates, and 42 Galleries. The Tower is ſuſtain'd by 35 Arches in length, and 20 in breadth; and the whole Building hath 900, and moſt of them enrich'd with Marble. Its Revenue is 200, ſome ſay 400 Ducats per Diem. Among its Colleges, the Buildings of that of King Habu Henen, coſt 500000 Ducats, being all enrich'd with Moſaick, Gold, Azure, Marble and Brazen Gates. Its Library contains 2000 Arabian Manuſcripts, beſides a great number of others. There are 200 Hoſpitals in and about the City, 25 of 'em for the Sick of the Country, and the Greateſt capable of maintaining 2000; the reſt are for Strangers; but the Revenues belonging to them are ſo much ſquander'd, that now they give only Bedding; and ſome of them, three Days Nouriſhment. This City hath moreover 200 Stores, and 200 Inns, ſome of which have above 100 Chambers. There are 400 Mills belonging to it, which employ 1200 Mules. The Great Square of the Merchants is encloſed with Walls, and ſhut up with 12 Gates, like a City. It is divided into 15 quarters, each of which have their reſpective Tradeſmen, and contains in the whole about 20000 Workmen of all ſorts. About 200 Paces from this City, is that called New Fez, where their King has his Palace, and it is chiefly inhabited by the Court. This was the Deſcription of the Ancient Fez, but the Preſent State of it is as follows. The Circuit of it is about four Leagues; but there are a great number of Gardens within the Compaſs of the Walls. It has now no Suburbs, but 7 Principal Gates. The Streets are very Narrow: with Gates that are ſhut up every Night, to prevent the People from going from one Quarter to another. The Houſes are all Terraſs'd at the Top; and though they are nothing Beautiful without, yet within they are very Neat and Handſom. All the Trade, and conſequently all the Wealth of the Country, is in this City; which is defended by two Caſtles that have no Artillery. The one is very Ancient, and the Walls of it are demoliſht in ſome Places; the other was built ſome Years ſince, by the Famous Muley-Archy, having two Baſtions on both ſides of the City, with two Iron Great Guns in each. The River which falls from Fez-Gedine, or Fez-la Neuva, runs through the Middle of Fez-Belè; where it divides it ſelf into ſix Branches, that ſupply all the Houſes of the City with Water, every Houſe having three or four Fountains. This River alſo thus divided, ſets a going 366 Mills, for the Convenience of the Inhabitants, and affords Water to as many Baths. There are alſo in the City 366 Ovens; and in regard they Bake their Bread every Day, the Ovens are always employ'd till Four a Clock in the Afternoon. There are 4 Principal Moſques, and about 500 of leſſer Bulk, and leſs Wealthy. The Grand Moſque, call'd Carouin, is the Reſidence of the Cadi, or Chief Pontiff of their Law. Near this Temple ſtand certain Colleges, where they that deſire to be Talbes, or Doctors of the Law, follow their Studies. The moſt Magnificent of all, was built by Muley-Archy. In theſe Colleges they ſtudy nothing but the moſt pure Arabick Language, wherein the Alcoran was written, and which is very different from the Vulgar; but they neither ſtudy Latin nor Philoſophy there, as ſome would make the World believe. The City of Fez-Gedine, which lies above Fez-Belè, ſerves to Command it, inſtead of a Citadel. Muley-Archy built a Palace and a Seraglio within it, where there is alſo a very Beautiful and Large Moſque. The City of Fez was founded by Muley Drice, the Firſt King of the Arabians who Commanded in the Country. He is honour'd as a Saint, becauſe he forced the Jews, with which he Peopl'd that City, to embrace the Alcoran. No Jew nor Chriſtian dare paſs the Street of his Palace. His Tomb is in the Mountains of Serhon, and ſerves for a Retreat to ſuch as flee from the King's Anger, or the Hands of Juſtice; and the Palace where he dwelt has the ſame Privilege. This Country of Fez is the beſt Cultivated of any in Barbary, hath many good Cities, and is well Water'd with Rivers. The King of Morocco is Maſter of it, and aſſumes the Title of Emperor of Africa, King of Morocco, Fez, Suz and Falette; Lord of Daro, Gago, Guinea, &c. The Country is inhabited by Moors and Arabians; who are allowed to marry Four Wives, and keep as many other Women as they pleaſe; and they bury their Dead always in New Ground, leſt at the Reſurrection they ſhould find it troubleſom to diſtinguiſh each his own Members. Sanſon. du Val. Marmol. Thuan.

FEZZEN, a Spacious and Deſart Country of Africa, in Beledulgerid, with a Town of the ſame Name. This Country lies beyond the Chain of Mountains that form the Mountain Atlas, toward Gadema, or Gademeſſa, and Angela.

St. FIACER, Son to Eugenius IV. King of Scotland, about 606. was Educated by Conanus, Biſhop of Man; who inſpir'd him with ſuch low Thoughts of the World, that though he was Heir to the Crown, he retir'd with his Siſter Sira, incognito, into France; and coming to Meaux, the Biſhop of that Place put her in a Monaſtery, and gave him a Place to build a Hermitage, near the Foreſt of Fordille; where as 'tis ſaid he wrought prodigious Miracles. His Father dying, and his Younger Son Ferchard, being dethron'd for his Male-adminiſtration, the Scots ſent Embaſſadors to Fiacer, deſiring him to come Home and take the Crown: But he lov'd his Retirement ſo well, that he would not. He died afterwards, and was interred in the Cathedral of Meaux. Henry V. of England, being defeated, at Baugy, by Charles VI. of France, who had Scottiſh Troops in his Service, Plunder'd Fiacer's Monaſtery, becauſe he was a Scotch-man. Whereupon (ſays my Author) he was immediately ſmitten with the Hæmorrhoides, then call'd St. Fiacer's Diſeaſe, of which he died, at Bois de Vincennes, in 1422. During his Sickneſs, King Henry is ſaid to have expreſſed himſelf thus, That not only the Scots who were on Earth favour'd the French, but alſo thoſe who were in Heaven. P. Giry.

FIANO, a Town of Italy, in St. Peter's Patrimony, near the River Tyber, dignify'd with the Title of a Dutchy.

FIANONE, the fartheſt Town in Iſtria, upon the Adriatick-Sea, belonging to the Venetians. It is ſeated upon a Mountain; upon the Deſcent of which there is a Fountain which drives 22 Mills before it falls into the Plain. The Latins call it Flamma and Flavona. Leander Alberti.

FICHARD (John) of Frankford, upon the Meine; Born in 1511. He was a great Lawyer himſelf, wrote the Lives of the Modern Lawyers, and died in 1581. in the 70th. Year of his Age. Thuan.

FICINUS (Marcillius) of Florence; born in 1433. apply'd himſelf particularly to the Study of the Greek and Latin Tongues; followed the Platonick Sect, and tranſlated into Latin the Works of Plato and of ſeveral Great Men who upheld the Doctrine of that Philoſophy, as Plotinus, Jamblichus, Proclus, &c. We have Marcillius Ficinus's Works, in 2 Vol. Folio, Printed at Bâle, in 1561, and 1570. Paul. Jov. Guichard. &c.

FIDELITY, or Danebrow, the Name of an Order of Knight-hood, inſtituted by Frederick III. King of Denmark, in 1670. This Order conſiſts of Nineteen of the Principal Lords and Officers of the Kingdom, who are bound to wear about their Necks a White Croſs, in a Red and White Ribband, in Memory of the Croſs which is ſaid to have appear'd to Valdemar II. when he made War againſt the Pagans in Livonia.

FIDELLUS, (Lewis) a Doctour of Paris; flouriſh'd in the XVIth. Age, and dy'd in 1562. He wrote ſeven Books de Mundi Structura, 4 de Militia Spirituali, &c. Valerius Andreas.

FIDERI, Emperour of Japan, ſucceeded his Father Taicko, in the Year 1598. not being above ſix Years of Age. Ongoſchio, his Guardian, had promis'd his Father, Taicko, by an Act ſigned with his Blood, that he would reſign the Government to the young Prince, ſo ſoon as he ſhould arrive at 15 Years of Age, and cauſe him to be Crown'd by the Dairo. But he dethron'd the young Prince, and compell'd him to Marry his Daughter. Fideri rais'd a powerful Army againſt the Uſurper; but he was reduc'd to thoſe Extremities, that he was conſtrain'd to ſend his Wife to deſire Ongoſchio to ſpare him his Life, and ſome Province where he might retire to a private Fortune: But the Tyrant would not ſee his Daughter; and having taken the City of Ozacha, where Fideri had ſhut himſelf up in the Palace, with his Wife, and ſeveral Perſons of Quality, ſet fire to it, and burnt 'em all alive. Mandeſlo.

FIDIUS, a certain Deity which the Romans borrow'd from the Sabines, and was by them greatly honour'd with Temples and Sacrifices. He was worſhipp'd upon the Quirinal-Hill, in the Month of June, according to Ovid: And was alſo call'd Sanctus Sabus, and Semi-Pater.

FIENES: This Noble and Ancient Family, though of a long time in conſiderable Favour with the Kings of England, none of it came to the Dignity of Peer of this Realm, until the Reign of King Edward IV. when Sir Richard Fienes marrying the Daughter and ſole Heir of Thomas, Son and Heir to Thomas Lord Dacre; he was, by reaſon thereof, accepted and declared Lord Dacre, by Letters Patents bearing Date 37 Hen. 6. Sir Thomas Fienes, his Grandſon, ſucceeding him in his Honour, was ſummon'd to Parliament in the Reign of Henry VII. and VIII. Dying in 1534. he left Thomas, his Couſin and Heir Apparent, to ſucceed him. Which Thomas, in 1541. being ſeduced by ſome extravagant Perſons to Courſe in the Night-time, in Langhton-Park, in the County of Suſſex, belonging to Nicholas Pelham, Eſq; at a Place call'd Pikehay, met with three Perſons; betwixt whom, and thoſe of his Company, there happen'd a Fray, wherein one of 'em was mortally wounded, and died ſoon after. Whereupon he was Indicted of Murther for the ſame: Which though he was not guilty of, it being committed by his Company in his Abſence, ſome Courtiers who gap'd for his Eſtate, perſuaded him to acknowledge it, and ſubmit himſelf to the King's Mercy. He imprudently hearkening to this, Sentence of Death paſs'd upon him, and he ſuffer'd accordingly, leaving Iſſue Gregory his Son and Heir, and a Daughter nam'd Margaret. Which Gregory being reſtor'd in 1 Eliz. died without Iſſue the 36th. of the ſame Reign. At which time Samſon Lennard, Eſq; who married the Siſter, obtain'd a Grant, 10 Jac. to himſelf and Heirs, to take Place and Precedence, as the Eldeſt Son to the Lord Dacre of the South; and his Son Henry ſucceeded him accordingly: whoſe Son Richard, Lord Dacre, departing this Life, Anno 1630. left Iſſue, by Elizabeth his Firſt Wife, Daughter and Co-Heir to Sir Arthur Throckmorton, of Paulere-Peirce, in the County of Northampton, Knight, Four Sons, viz. Francis, Richard, Thomas and Henry; and by Dorothy, his Second Wife, Daughter of Dudley, Lord North, one Son, nam'd Richard, and a Daughter Catharine. Francis, the Eldeſt Son ſucceeded him, and married Elizabeth, Daughter of Paul Viſcount Banning; and left Iſſue by her Thomas, advanced to the Dignity of Earl of Suſſex by Letters Patents bearing date 26 Car. 2. and Henry. There is alſo a Lord Say of this Name and Family; and the Title is lately devolv'd to William, the only ſurviving Son of Nathanael Fienes, Second Son to William Lord Say and Seal, by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter of Sir John Eliot, Knight: which William married Mary, one of the Daughters of his Uncle Richard Fienes, Fourth Son to William late Lord Say and Seal. Dugd.

FIENUS, of Antwerp, born in 1566. Profeſſor of Phyſick at Lovain, wrote De Viribus Imaginationis, De Formatione Fœtus, &c. and died in the Year 1631. Valerius Andreas.

FIESCHI, (John Lewis) a Young Count of Città Lavinia, the Son of Sinibaldo Fieſchi, famous for his Misfortune, who envying the riſing Grandeur of the Family of the Doria's, enter'd into a Conſpiracy to make himſelf Lord of Genoa. To which purpoſe, ſo ſoon as he had brought his Deſign to Perfection, and had all his Accomplices together in his Palace, after he had taken leave of his Wife with theſe words, Madam, Either you will never ſee me more, or to morrow you will ſee in Genoa all things at your Diſpoſal, brake out into the Streets with a numerous Train of armed Followers. At firſt all things ſucceeded well on his ſide, his People having made themſelves Maſters of the Arſenal where the Galleys lay; but then John Lewis going to ſet the Galley-Slaves at liberty, to make uſe of their Aſſiſtance, he fell, heavy armed as he was, into the Sea, and was drown'd; to the great good Fortune of the Republick. His Body being found ſome time after, was thrown back into the Sea. Jerom, his Brother, was forced into the Fortreſs of Montobia, and put to Death; the Fortreſs was afterwards demoliſh'd: And to leave a ſignal Memory of this Enterprize to Poſterity, the Ancient and Magnificent Palace of the Fieſchi in Genoa, was ras'd to the Ground; Ottobon and Cornelio Baniſh'd, after the Diſgrace of their Brothers; but Ottobon being taken in Portocole, in 1555. by the Spaniards, and deliver'd up to Andreas Doria, he caus'd him to be ſowed up in a Sack, and flung into the Sea, as a Parricide. Thuan.

FIEUBET, (Jaſpar) firſt Preſident of the Parliament of Tholouſe; of whom, after his Death, Lewis XIV. gave this Character, That he was one of the greateſt Judges of his Kingdom; adding withal, That he ſhould be much put to it to find another of his Merit to ſupply his Place.

FIFE, a large and well inhabited County of Scotland, having the Forth on one ſide, and the Tay on the other. This is one of the beſt Counties in the Kingdom, abounds with Towns and Noblemens Seats; towards the Coaſts it is very fruitful in Corn, &c. and well provided with Fiſh of all ſorts. Here is alſo plenty of Coal dug, and abundance of Salt made. The Earls of Rotheſs, of the Sirname of Leſly, are Hereditary Sheriffs of this County. There are many other Noble Families here, as the Earls of Crawford, Weems, Levin, Melvil; Lords Balcarras, Burleigh, &c. In this County ſtands the City of St. Andrews, dignify'd with an Univerſity, and was formerly the Reſidence of a Cardinal, and an Archbiſhop's Seat. It hath alſo many Port-Towns, which brings a good Trade to the Country, and makes it productive of abundance of luſty Mariners. This County gave formerly the Title of Thane to ſeveral great Families, and that of Earl afterwards to the Brothers of the Kings of Scotland. Buchan. Gordon. Camd.

FILIUCIUS, (Vincent) a Jeſuit born at Siena in Italy. He had the Office of a Penitentiary, and died in 1622. His Works are, Moralium Quæſtionum, Tom. II. De Statu Clericorum. De Beneficiis. De Penſionibus. De Spoliis Clericorum. De Simonia. De Alienatione Rerum Spiritualium, &c. Alegamb. in Bibl. Script. Soc. Jeſ. Mir. de Script. Sæc. 17.

FILLECK, a fortify'd Town of the Auſtrian Hungary, upon the Confines of the Turkiſh Dominions; 5 Leagues from Agria to the North, and as many from Caſſovia to the Weſt. It ſtands on the Road which leads from Presbourg to the Cities in the Mountains. Here was a Caſtle; and the Town being a Frontier, was Wall'd, and very Strong. The Turks took it in 1560. And being re-taken by the Imperialiſts in 1593. the Baſha of Waradin laid Siege to it, and took it again in 1682. And becauſe He and Count Teckley's Party could not agree about it, diſmantl'd and deſerted it.

FILOMARINI, (Aſcanio) of a Noble Family in the Kingdom of Naples, made a Cardinal by Urban VIII. One day, the Pope, who before that, had made him one of his Private-Chamberlains, call'd Participanti, ask'd him, Whether he thought to be a Cardinal? To whom Filomarini anſwer'd, When I conſider my ſelf, I have no reaſon to expect that Dignity; but when I reflect upon Your Generoſity, I have ſome reaſon to hope for it. Soon after, the Archbiſhoprick of Naples being vacant, he begg'd it of the Pope: who made him anſwer with a Smile, That he had deſign'd it for a Cardinal. Upon which Filomarini thought no more of it. But the next day the Pope calling a Conſiſtory, gave him the Cardinal's Cap and the Archbiſhoprick together. He rebuilt the Cathedral of Naples, the Archbiſhop's Palace, and dy'd in the Year 1666.

FIMALA DERMA, Suri Ada, King of Candy, in the Iſland of Ceylon, was the Son of one of the Chief Princes of that Kingdom; taken away Young by the Portugueſes, and carried to Colombino, in the ſame Iſland; where they Baptiz'd him, and gave him the Name of Don John of Auſtria, and then bred him up at Goa. When he was grown up, finding him to be a Handſom Perſon, the Portugueſes, after the Death of the King, made him Grand Modelier, or Conſtable of the Kingdom. Don John of Auſtria made ſo good Uſe of his Authority, that having gain'd the Affection of the Soldiery, the Cingals, or Gentlemen declar'd him King. And now being ſeated upon the Throne, the firſt thing he did, was to maſſacre all the Portugueſes that were in the City of Candy. Upon which, Pedro Lopez de Suſa, who was Governor of Malaca, and had in his Cuſtody a Princeſs that was Heireſs to the Crown, whom the Portugueſes had carry'd away into the Iſland of Manar, and Chriſten'd by the Name of Dona Catharina, enters the Kingdom of Candy, with a Deſign to ſet up the Princeſs, and then to marry her, and make himſelf King. But he was defeated in 1590. and Don John, who had aſſum'd the Name of Fimala Derma, marry'd Dona Catharina, and ſo ſecur'd to himſelf a Right to that Crown, which he poſſeſſed before only by Force of Arms. Mandeſlo.

FINAL, Lat. Finalium, a City of Italy, with the Title of a Marquiſate belonging to the King of Spain, ſeated upon the Sea-Coaſt of Genoa, between Savona and Albengua. This Marquiſate is not above 6 Miles in length, lying upon the Sea-ſide, where it's bounded by the Points of two Mountains. It belong'd a long time to the Family of Carreto; but the Spaniards ſurpriz'd it in 1600. and put to death the Laſt of the Family. Final is well Wall'd about, having alſo a good Caſtle, flank'd with 4 Towers, and built upon a Mountain; the Avenue to which is guarded by 2 Forts.

FINCOMARCHUS, the 35th, King of Scotland Succeeded Crathilinthus, he performed many Gallant Atchievements againſt the Romans, who, being weakned by their Inteſtine Wars, left him at laſt in Peace, which he improved for advancing Chriſtianity. And entertain'd the Britiſh Chriſtians, who fled to Scotland during the Perſecution of Diocleſian, kindly; many of whom being Men of eminent Sanctity and Learning their Habitations were afterwards converted into Churches, Fincomarchus having govern'd with great Equity, died in the 47th. Year of his Reign, about A. C. 321. Buchan.

FINDOCHUS, the 31ſt. King of Scotland Succeeded Nathalocus, he was of the Royal Family, a very comely Perſonage of excellent Endowments, and therefore choſen King. He govern'd with great Juſtice, and was Faithful to his Promiſes. In his Reign, Donald of the Iſles, invaded the main Land; but was defeated, and drown'd, as endeavouring his Eſcape. The Iſlanders, by the Aſſiſtance of the Iriſh, renewed the War, under the Conduct of his Son Donald; but Findochus forced them to retire, Subdued their Iſlands, and laid many of them waſte. Whereupon Donald had recourſe to Fraud, and Suborning two Aſſaſſinates who pretended to be Iſlanders of noble Extract, and much injur'd by Donald, they made ſo much intereſt at Court as to accompliſh their deſign of murdering this excellent Prince, for which they were Executed, having before-hand accuſ'd Donald and the King's own Brother Carantius, as their Complotters. So that the latter for fear of Puniſhment fled to the Romans. This happened about A. C. 269. Buchan. Helvicus.

FINIGUERA Maſo, a famous Engraver of Florence. He invented in 1460. the Art of engraving Copper-Pieces, and printing with 'em. He us'd when he prepar'd Plate for Enamel, to take its impreſſion in Earth, which being rubb'd over with Oil, and Sutt repreſented the ſame things that was Engraven in the Silver, to take this Impreſſion in Paper, having laid a wet Sheet upon the Earthen Mould, he paſs'd a Rouler upon it with that Succeſs, that the Figures appear'd as if drawn with a Pen. Maſo divulging his Secret, another Goldſmith of the ſame Town, call'd Baccio Baldini, perfected the Invention. Felibien Entretiens ſur les Vies des Pientres.

FINLAND, Lat. Finnia, and Finnonia, a large Country of Sweden, with the Title of a Dukedom, formerly the Portion allotted for the Maintenance of the Kings Sons. It lies between the Gulph of Bothnia to the Weſt, Laponia to the North, and the Gulph of Finland, to the South. It comprehends 6 Provinces, Cajania and Finland, upon the Gulph of Bothnia; Niland and Carelia, upon that of Finland; Kexholm, towards the Lakes Ladoga and Onega; Savalos and Tavaſthus, in the Middle of the Country. The Country is Fertile, abounding in Corn and Paſturage; and there are in it two Towns of ſome Note, Abo, a Biſhop's See; and Vibourgh, a Town of Trade, ſeated at the bottom of the Finnick Gulph. This Kingdom was firſt Conquer'd to the Crown of Sweden, in 1384. by Erick, one of their Kings. In 1571. the Muſcovites intending a Conqueſt, fell into it with a Savageneſs and Cruelty, hard to be expreſs'd or believ'd; but were recall'd, by an Irruption of the Tartars into their own Country. Cluverius ſaith, That it is a conſiderable Part of the Kingdom of Sweden, and that it's very Fruitful, and affords excellent Paſturage. Cluverius, Munſter.

FINMARCH, a Northern Country of Norway, very Large; the Inhabitants of which, unleſs thoſe of the Iſlands, have no fix'd Abode; but thoſe that come firſt to the Place, there ſet up their Stand. It belongs one part to the King of Denmark, the other to the King of Swedeland: Who, to reduce the Natives from their vagrant way of living, granted the Lands to the firſt Occupant; by which means ſome Parts are Improv'd, but the more barren are left ſtill in Common. The Inhabitants are a Mongrel ſort of Chriſtians; extremely Ignorant and Barbarous, Infamous for Witchcraft, Revengeful beyond belief, and very Rugged and Stubborn.

FINTENUS, Biſhop of Lindesfarn, or Holy Iſland, in Northumberland, liv'd in the VIIth. Cent. about the Year 660 he maintain'd both by Conference and Writing, that Eaſter ought to be kept on the 14th. Day of the Moon, according to the Ancient Tradition of the Britiſh Communion, which before the Converſion of the Saxons by Auguſtin the Monk, were govern'd in this Point, by the Cuſtom of the Eaſtern Churches. Bede, lib. 2. & 3. Hiſt. Angl. Uſher Antiq. Britan. Eccleſ.

FINNANUS, the Tenth King of Scotland, ſucceeded Joſina. His Government was Juſt and Moderate; and he laboured to Maintain his Authority more by Good-will than Arms. To cut up the Root of Tyranny, he made a Law, That Kings ſhould Determine or Command nothing of Concernment, without the Authority of their Great Council. He died equally Belov'd by his Subjects and Foreigners, in the 30th. Year of his Reign, about A. M. 3859. He was the Firſt who Ordain'd the Heathen Prieſts call'd Druides. Buchan.

FIONIA, Finnen, an Iſland of Denmark, in the Baltick-Sea between Jutland to the Weſt, from which it is ſeparated by a narrow Frith, call'd Middle Fort, or Clein Belt, and Seland to the Eaſt; from which it is parted by another Frith, call'd Die Belt. In this Iſland ſtands Odenſee, the Chief City; and Newburgh, a fortify'd Town with a Harbour and Caſtle; 4 German Miles from Seland. The Length of it, from Eaſt to Weſt, is 10 German Miles; the Breadth, 8 Miles; under the King of Denmark. Formerly but ill treated by the Swedes, who were thence expell'd, with a terrible ſlaughter, in the Daniſh War. There are in it 4 Royal Caſtles, Newburgh, Hagenſchow, Hinſgel, and Eſcheburgh; beſides 164 Villages, and 6 Monaſteries. It deriv'd its Name from the Figure, Beauty and Pleaſantneſs of the Situation.

FIRLEIUS (John) Palatine of Cracovia and Grand Marſhal of the Kingdom of Poland, who when Henry of France was elected King of Poland upon this, among other Conditions, that he ſhould procure ſeveral Immunities for the French Proteſtants from his Brother, and endeavour to preſerve a Reconciliation between the Diſſenters in Poland, ſeeing the King, after he was Elected endeavouring to evade his Promiſes, as he was juſt going to be Crown'd ſnatch'd up the Crown, and was going with it out of the Church, ſaying theſe words, Si non jurabis non regnabis, had not the King given him preſent Satisfaction.

FIRMIANO, a Town of Italy in Umbria, upon the River Metro, from Foſſombrone eight Miles, in the Dukedom of Urbin.

FIRMICUS MATERNUS, (Julius) liv'd under Conſtantine's Sons, and wrote a Treatiſe, De Profanarum Religionum Erroribus; ſet forth with Notes by John Wouver. Some take him to be the ſame who wrote the Eight Books of Aſtronomy. Printed by Aldus Manutius, in 1501. and afterwards at Bale, and other Places. And this Opinion carries the beſt Credit.

FIRMILIAN, Biſhop of Cæſarea in Cappadocia, liv'd in the Third Century, and was a Diſciple of Origen's. He Aſſiſted in 256. at the Council of Iconium, where the Prelates of Cilicia, Cappadocia, Galatia, and the Neighbouring Provinces, met againſt the Cataphryges, who Rebaptiz'd the Catholicks that came to 'em. Firmilian was the greateſt Promoter of the Decree made in this Aſſembly of adminiſtring this Sacrament anew to the Hereticks that left their Errors, pretending that their former Baptiſm was not Valid. Pope Stephen the Firſt, not approving this Decree, deprived the Biſhops that made it of his Communion. In the mean time, Firmilian became intimate with St. Cyprian, and in a Letter to him reflects upon the Pope for his Conduct, and treats him with great Freedom and Severity. The Greek Menology mentions Firmilian as a Saint, and St. Baſil gives him a great Character. St. Baſil de ſpir. 5. ad Amphilochium. Euſeb. lib. 7. cap. 4. Pearſon Annales Cyprian.

FIRMUS, the Emperor, laid hands upon the Empire to uphold Zenobia's falling Party; but was overcome by Aurelianus in his return from Carræ, and as ſome ſay, Hang'd himſelf. He was of an extraordinary Stature, goggle-ey'd, curl'd hair, ſcarr'd Forehead, ſwarthy Complexion and hairy Body, inſomuch, that he was call'd the Cyclops: and ſo vaſtly ſtrong withal that he would bear an Anvil upon his Breaſt, while the Smith beat upon it with his Hammer. Vopiſcus in Firmo.

FISHER, (John) Biſhop of Rocheſter, liv'd in the XVIth. Cent. and was beheaded by King Henry the VIIIth. for maintaining the Pope's Supremacy. He was a Learned and Devout Man, and much addicted to the Tenets in which he was bred, which led him into ſome Severities againſt thoſe of a contrary Opinion: He had been many Years Confeſſor to King Henry's Grandmother, the Counteſs of Richmond, and 'twas believ'd, that he perſuaded her to thoſe Noble Deſigns for the Advancement of Learning, of Founding two Colleges in Cambridge, St. John's and Chriſt's Coll. and Divinity Profeſſors in both Univerſities. Henry the VIIth. gave him the Biſhoprick of Rocheſter, which he would never change for a better, being us'd to ſay, That his Church was his Wiſe, and that he would never part with her becauſe ſhe was Poor: He continu'd in great Favour with King Henry VIIIth. till the Buſineſs of the Divorce was ſet on Foot, and then he adher'd ſo firmly to the Queen's Cauſe, and the Pope's Supremacy, that he was ſometimes overborn into ſome Miſtakes, as appears, by the Buſineſs of the Maid of Kent. Many thought that the King ought to have proceeded againſt him, rather for that, which was a Point of State, than upon the Supremacy, which was Matter of Conſcience; The King was reſolv'd to let all his Subjects ſee, there was no Mercy to be expected by any that denied his being Supreme Head of the Church, and therefore made Biſhop Fiſher, and Sir Tho. Moor two Examples, to terrify the reſt: 'Tis thought Pope Clement the VIIth's unſeaſonable Reſpect, in ſending the Biſhop a Cardinal's Hat, was the Occaſion of his Death: This Severity being much cenſur'd beyond Sea, Biſhop Gardiner wrote a Vindication of the King's Proceedings. The Biſhop wrote ſeveral Treatiſes which are in Print. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. Burnet, Reform. Vol. I. Book III. Pages 353, 354.

FISHGARD, a Market-Town in Pembrokeſhire in the Principality of Wales, and Hundred of Kemeys, ſeated on a deep Clift on the Sea ſhore, where it hath a Commodious Harbour for Ships of ſome Trade for Herrings. From London 170 Miles.

FITZ-GERALD, an Engliſh Gentlemen, who found the Secret of rendring Sea-water freſh. King Charles II. having found by ſeveral Tryals, That his Machine not only made the Water freſh, but rendred it wholſom and good to Drink, gave him a Patent for it. Upon the Experiments made of the Water drawn by this Machine in the College of Phyſicians of London, it was found much lighter than ordinary Water, and kept longer than it. That Plants water'd with it, did thrive very well, &c. The Machine us'd in the making of it, tho' not above 30 inches Diameter, will draw 80 Quarts in 24 Hours and may be ſo placed in a Ship, that there will be no Danger from the Fire, nor Inconvenience from the Smoke, and is ſo little Expenſive, that 100 Quarts may be drawn off for 15 Pence charges. Memoires du Tems.

FITZ-WILLIAM, of Milton, in the County of Northampton, now Lord Baron Fitz-William of Lyffer, now Lyfford, in the Kingdom of Ireland. By the Records of this Family it appears, that Sir William Fitz-William was Couſin in Blood to King Edward the Confeſſor, and was ſent by him into Normandy, to William then Duke of Normandy, and afterwards the Conquerour. The King ſoon after dying, he remained there, and married the Daughter of Monſieur Polabis, by whom he had Iſſue. He came back into England with William the Conquerour, and was Earl Mareſchal of his Army, and in the Great Battle in Suſſex with King Harrold, he ſo ſignaliz'd himſelf, that for his Valour, the Conquerour gave him his Scarf, which remains to this Day in the Family. This Family were ſeated at Sprotbrough in Yorkſhire, and were Lords of many Mannors round it, and in Nottinghamſhire. Sir William Fitz-William, Son of the Earl Mareſchal, married the Daughter of Sir John, Lord of Emley, and had Iſſue Sir William Fitz-William, Lord of Emley, who married the Daughter and Heir of William Earl Warren, by which Marriage he was allied to the Greateſt Kings and Princes in Europe. He had Iſſue by her Sir William Fitz-William Lord of Emley, who married Albreda de Lyſours Daughter and Heir of Lacy Earl of Lincoln, and had Iſſue Sir William Fitz-William Lord of Emley, who married the Lord Grey of Wilton's Daughter, and had Iſſue Sir Thomas Fitz-William of Sprotbrough, Lord of Emley. This Family afterwards, by their ſeveral Marriages, allied themſelves to the Greateſt and Nobleſt Families in England, and ſerv'd ſeveral of the Kings in their Wars, both at home and abroad, with great Honour and Conduct, from whom they had ſeveral noble Commands and Governments. But at length, the Head of the Family having no Heir-Male of his Body, the Great and Ancient Eſtate went to two Daughters. The Eldeſt married into the Family of the Copleys, who enjoys the Ancient Seat of Sprotbrough to this Day: And the Youngeſt married to the Family of the Savils, who have all the Nottinghamſhire Lands. This Family has the Title of Marquiſs of Hallifax. In the Reign of King Henry the Eighth, Sir William Fitz-William, (in a true Deſcent Heir-Male of the Houſe of Sprotbrough) was Privy-Councellour to that King; by whoſe Favour, and Cardinal Wolſley's, he rais'd a conſiderable Eſtate, and ſeated the Family at Gaines-Parke-Hall in Eſſex, and at Milton in Northamptonſhire; at which laſt Place it remains to this Day. In the Reign alſo of King Henry the Eighth, there was another Sir William Fitz-William of the Houſe of Aldwark, being a Branch of the ſame Family; who by his Valour and Conduct attained to the Dignities of Lord High-Admiral of England, and of Lord Privy-Seal. He was created Earl of Southampton, and made Knight of the Moſt Noble Order of the Garter. He was alſo a great General, and died at the Head of an Army ſent down againſt the Scots, at Berwick, it being the eighteenth Expedition wherein he had been General. He married the Daughter of Clyfford Earl of Cumberland, and died without Iſſue. He built a Noble Houſe in Suſſex, call'd Faire Cowdrey. In the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, Sir William Fitz-William of Milton, having been a great Officer in the Low-Countries under the famous Earl of Leiceſter; was made Lord Deputy of Ireland, in which Kingdom he continued in Command, between thirty and forty Years: During which time he had three ſeveral Deputations for Lord-Deputy, and was five times one of the Lord's-Juſtices, and Paymaſter to the Army all the time. He married Anne Sydney, Siſter of Sir Henry Sydney, afterwards Earl of Leiceſter, and Siſter alſo to the Famous Sir Philip Sydney. This Lord-Deputy, was at the ſame time Conſtable of Fotheringhay-Caſtle in Northamptonſhire, during the Impriſonment of Mary Queen of Scotland, there: and for his great Civility to her, the Morning ſhe was beheaded ſhe preſented him with her Son's Picture, afterwards King James the Firſt; and told him ſhe eſteem'd it as a great Jewel, which Picture remains in the Family to this Day. In the beginning of King James the Firſt's Reign over England, Sir William Fitz-William of Milton, and Gaines-Parke-Hall, for the great Services of his Family, was created Lord-Baron Fitz-William of Lyfford, in Ireland: And the preſent William Lord Fitz-William of Milton enjoys the Honour to this Day. Arms of this Family are, Lozenges, Argent and Gules.

FITZ-WILLIAM, of Dundran, of Baggatrath, and of Merrion, &c. Now Lord-Viſcount Fitz-William of Merrion, and Lord-Baron Fitz-William of Thornecaſtle, in the Kingdom of Ireland. This Family came into England with the Conquerour, William Fitz-William being his Earl Mareſchal, and Couſin in Blood to King Edward the Confeſſor, whoſe Iſſue were afterwards Lords of Sprotbrough, and of Emley in the County of York, from whence one of them came into Ireland with King John, the Iſſue of whom remains there ever ſince, as appears by the following Records and Evidences. FLAGELLANTES, a Name given in the XIIIth. Age, to a Sect of People that made Profeſſion of diſciplining themſelves. It was begun at Perouſa in 1260, by a certain Hermit whoſe Name was Rainerus, who exhorted People to do Penance for their Sins, and had a great Number following his heels. In 1349. they ſpread themſelves over all Poland, Germany, France, Italy, and England; carrying a Croſs in their Hands, a Cowl upon their Heads, and going naked to the Waſte. Twice a Day, and once in the Night, they laſh'd themſelves with knotted Cords ſtuck with Points or Pins, and then lay groveling upon the Ground, crying out, Mercy. At length they degenerated into Hereticks; affirming, That their Blood united in ſuch a manner with Chriſt's; That it had the ſame Vertue; That after 30 days whipping they were acquitted from the Guilt and Puniſhment of Sin, ſo that they car'd not for the Sacraments; perſwaded the common people, that the Goſpel had ceas'd, and ſuffer'd all ſort of Perjuries. This Madneſs laſted a long time, notwithſtanding the Cenſures of Prelates, the Writing of Doctors, and Edicts of Princes for Suppreſſing it.

FLAMBOROUGH-HEAD, a noted Promontory in the Eaſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, two Miles from Burlington-Bay; ſo call'd from the ſmall Town Flamborough ſtanding in it. From London 212 Miles.

FLAMINES, certain Prieſts among the Romans, ordain'd by Numa Pompilius, to perform Divine Service to Jupiter, Mars and Romulus; whence the Firſt was Flamen Dialis, the Second Martialis, and the Third Quirinalis; ſo call'd from Flama, the Mitre which theſe Prieſts were wont to wear upon their Heads. Theſe were choſen out of the Patricij or Noblemen, and were call'd Flamines Majores, or High Prieſts, and were in great Eſteem, but more eſpecially the Firſt, was in ſuch veneration, that whatever Malefactor could Eſcape to him, could not be Puniſh'd that Day. None was to be elected into this Office but ſuch as were married; ſo that if his Wife died, he reſign'd his Sacerdotal Office. This Prieſt had a Robe of State allow'd him, and a Rowling Chair. No Body might fetch Fire out of his Houſe, unleſs to perform ſome Sacrifice; None but a Freeman might Barb him, nor with any other than croſs Sciſſars. Beſides theſe greater Flamines, there were alſo ſeveral Flamines Minores, or Inferior Flamines which afterwards increaſed to that Number, that every Deity had his Flamen. Nevertheleſs, while the Regal Authority continu'd in Rome, the Kings reſerv'd their Right and Authority in Holy Matters, ſo far, that they would inſtruct the Flamens and other Inferior Prieſts, and perform ſome ſpecial Sacrifices themſelves. Till their Authority being abrogated, the Romans choſe a certain Prieſt, whom they preferr'd before the Flamen Dialis, but judged him Inferiour to the Arch-Prieſt, and call'd him Regem Sacrorum, or King-Prieſt. The Flamen Dialis preſided over all the reſt, had his Lictor, or Officer, was carried in an Ivory Chair, and clad in Royal Robes. If any Criminal came into his Houſe, or caſt himſelf at his Feet, he had Power to pardon and deliver him out of the hands of Juſtice. It was he bleſs'd the Arms and officiated in Chief; but had no Civil Office, that he might devote all his time to the Worſhip of his God. His Cap was of a white Sheep-Skin ſacrificed to Jupiter, to whom he ſacrific'd one every Month; He wore a Branch of Olive in the top of his Cap. He was choſen in a general Aſſembly, the reſt in other Aſſemblies; and were conſecrated by this great Pontiff. Tit. Liv. Aul. Gell. Roſin.

FLAMINIA Via, a High-way from Rome to Ariminum, carried on by Flaminius the Conſul, (ſlain by Hannibal at the Battel of Thraſymene,) through Otricoli, Narni, Spoleto, Forflamme, Cagli, Foſſombrone, and Peſaro. Antoninus's Itinerary.

FLAMINIO, (John Antonio) flouriſh'd in the XVIth. Age, and died in 1536. leaving behind him a Hiſtory of the Roman Emperors, III. Books entituled, Sylvæ; and II. of Epigrams. Leander Alberti.

FLAMINIO (Marc Antony) the Son of the former, in great favour with Cardinal Alexander Farneſe, and Cardinal Pole: the firſt of his Countrymen, who in Latin Verſe had the happineſs to expreſs the divine Majeſty of David's Pſalms; nor would he have ſtopped there, had he not died Young, in the Year 1551. Thuanus, l. 8.

FLAMINIUS (Caius) a Roman Conſul and General of the Romans at the Battel of Thraſymene, where he was run through the Body with a Lance, by one Decurio, a Lombard, and a great Number of Senators cut off at the ſame time by Hannibal his Troops, who alſo ſurpriz'd 4000 Horſe ſent by C. Servilius Geminus to his Collegue Flaminius. Tit. Liv. Polyb. Florus. Oroſius. Livy gives him the Character of a Raſh Man that never conſulted either the Gods or Men.

FLAMINIUS, (Titus Quintus) Conſul of Rome before he was Thirty Years of Age, was General of the Romans againſt Philip King of Macedon, whom he defeated; and then at Nemea, reſtor'd Liberty to Greece by publick Proclamation. After that being ſent to Pruſias who had entertain'd Hannibal, he ſo order'd his Affairs, that he rid the Romans of their Capital Enemy. The Family of the Flaminii, was a Branch of that of the Quinctiens, Quinctia gens. L. Q. Flaminius, Brother to the Conſul, commanded the Roman Fleet in Macedonia, took Eretrium in the Iſle of Negropont, was choſen Conſul in 562. with Cn. Domitius Ænobarbus; but being afterwards ſent into Grand Caire, the Cenſor accus'd him in the Senate of putting a Priſoner to Death at a Feaſt, at the Sollicitation of a debauch'd lewd Woman. His Son L. Q. Flaminius was Conſul in 604 and a Son of this latter A. R. 631. with Q. Cæcilius Metellus. Tit. Liv. Plutarch. Cicero.

FLAMINIUS Nobilius, of Luca, a famous Divine and Critick, employ'd by Sixtus V. in the ſetting forth of that Bible which goes under his Name. His main Buſineſs was to reſtore the Ancient Latin Verſion that was in Uſe before the Vulgar one, which he did partly by a Collection of Citations of that Tranſlation in the Fathers; partly by Tranſlating the Septuagint Verbatim. F. Simon. Crit. Old Teſt.

FLANDERS, in Latin Flandria, a Province, and the chief County of the Low-Countries, bounded to the South by Artois and Hanault, and a part of Picardy; to the North by the German Ocean, and the Mouth of the Scheld, which is called the Hont, that ſeparates Flanders from Zealand: to the Weſt by the Engliſh Sea, part of the River Aa, and ſome part of Artois, that looks towards Bologne and Calais. The Country is extreamly fertile, eſpecially in Paſturage, and very proper for Tillage. There are in it 28 or 30 Principal Wall'd Cities, a great Number of Conſiderable Cities that are not Wall'd; beſides 1154 Villages, 40 Abbeys, with an Infinite Number of Priories, Colleges and Monaſteries. All the Cities and Towns are ſo cloſe one to another, that the Spaniards who follow'd Philip II. thought that all Flanders had been but one City. But it has been very much waſted by continual Wars. There are reckon'd to be in it Five Viſcounties, Ghant, Ypres, Furnes, Bergh St. Winock, and Haerlebeck; Three Principalities, Steenbuſe, Gaure, and Eſpinois: Four Havens, Sluys, Newport, Dunkirk and Oſtend; and One and Thirty ancient Caſtellanies. Flanders is uſually divided into three Parts. Flemiſh-Flanders, where the Language of the Country is ſpoken. 2. French-Flanders, where French is generally ſpoken. 3. Imperial-Flanders, by reaſon of the County of Aloſt, which has been a long time under the Emperors's Juriſdiction. The Firſt, which is comprehended between the North Sea and the River Lis, contains the Cities of Ghant, Bruges, Ypres, Scluſe, Oſtend, Newport, Dunkirk, Bergh St. Winock, Gravelin, Courtray, &c. The Second, which has to the North Flemiſh-Flanders, to the South Cambreſis, to the Eaſt the Scheld, to the Weſt the Lis, contains the Cities of Liſle, Douay, Tournay, &c. Imperial Flanders, between the Scheld and the Dender; contains the County of Aloſt, and the Four Offices belonging to it. Flanders, ſaith Ortelius, is moſt excellent for Paſture, eſpecially towards the Weſt; affords Kine, and War-like Horſes, and abounds in Butter, Cheeſe, and excellent Wheat. The People are much given to Merchandice and Cloathing. Their Linen exceeds all other Countries. The ancient Earls of Flanders did Homage to the Kings of France, as did alſo Philip Duke of Burgundy, which fell to him by marrying Margaret Daughter of Lewis Malatin, Earl of Flanders, in 1369. paſſing afterwards into the Houſe of Auſtria, by the Marriage of Mary Daughter and Heir of Charles the Hardy Duke of Burgundy, to Maximilian Emperour of Germany. Charles V. when he took Francis I. Priſoner, in the Battel of Pavia in Italy, by a Treaty of Madrid, enfranchis'd it from that Servitude. But afterwards in K. Philip II's. time, it was extreamly curtail'd and harraſs'd, which made many of the Inhabitants retire into England; and this did not only depopulate it, but impoveriſh'd it conſiderably, by carrying away a great part of its Trade. The Hollanders revolting at the ſame time, added to its Calamities by a War of 40 years continuance, and the French have of late made great Conqueſts in it.

FLATHOM, an Iſland in the Severn, over againſt Somerſetſhire.

FLAVIAN I. Patriarch of Antioch in the IVth. Age; was a Perſon of Noble Extraction and Exemplary Life obtain'd a General Pardon of Theodoſius for the Inhabitants of the City, who, in a popular Tumult, had thrown down the Statue of the Empreſs Placilla, and dragged it about the Streets, expell'd the Meſſalian Hereticks out of his Dioceſs, and died in the Year 404. highly applauded by St. Chryſoſtom, in his Sermon ad Pop. Antioch. Sozomen, Theodoret.

FLAVIAN II. Succeeded Palladius in the ſame Patriarchate, Anno 496. and became a ſtout Defender of the Council of Chalcedon, for which he was Baniſh'd by the Emperor Anaſtaſius, in 512.

FLAVIAN, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, was a Prelate of great Merit and Piety. He was Prieſt and Treaſurer of the Great Church when he was choſen Succeſſor to Proclus in 447. Chryſuphius Favourite to the Emperor Theodoſius the Younger, had a Pique againſt him, and endeavour'd to deprive him of his See, becauſe he refus'd to preſent him after his Election. In his time ſprang up the Eutychian Hereſie, which he Condemn'd in a Synod held at Conſtantinople; for which he was depos'd in another Pſeudo-Synod held at Epheſus by Dioſcorus of Alexandria; and not only ſo, but kickt by him in the Aſſembly after that cruel manner, that he died of his Bruiſes within few Days after. Nicephorus Liberatus, Evagrius, l. 1. c. 10.

FLAVIGNI, Flaviniacum, a ſmall City of France in Burgundy, in the Country of Auxois, ſeated upon a ſmall River between Dijon and Samur.

FLAVIGNI, (Valerian de) Sorbon Doctor and King's Profeſſour of Hebrew at Paris, liv'd in the XVIIth. Cent. He wrote with a great deal of Heat againſt Jay's Polyglott-Bible, in a Letter of his, Printed in 1646. He pretends there are an Infinite Number of groſs Faults in this great Work, and that none of the Languages were rightly underſtood by the Editor. He falls upon the Samaritan Pentateuch, and particularly upon Morinus, who revis'd the Impreſſion, and inſerted it into the Polyglott: He commends Gabriel Sionita a Learned Maronite, to whom the Publick is oblig'd for the Syriac and Arabic Verſions in this Bible, and at the ſame time, gives a diſparaging Character of Abraham Ecchellenſis, who came from Rome, to ſupply ſome Defects in the Syriack and Arabick; in a word, Flavigni, in this Letter, and in ſome others written by him, upon the ſame Subject, runs a ſevere Critick upon Jay's Polyglott, and diſcovers ſome Miſtakes in it. Father Simon affirms, that if Flavigni's Capacity had been greater, he might have found a great many more, which he has cenſur'd in the Engliſh Polyglott, being but a Copy as it were from that of Paris. Flavigni has likewiſe writ ſeveral Letters againſt Abraham Ecchellenſis upon the Syriack Verſion of the Bible, but his skill in this Language appears ſomewhat ſhort, and Ecchellenſis has the better of him in his Reply. R. Simon.

FLAVITAS, a Prieſt of the Vth. Age, famous for the Cheat which he put upon Zeno the Emperor; who, after the Death of Acacius Patriarch of Conſtantinople, proclaimed a Faſt of 40 Days, and cauſing a blank Paper to be laid under the Altar, deſir'd of God to permit an Angel to write the Name of the Perſon whom he deſign'd to be Succeſſor to Acacius. Flavitas, no leſs Ambitious than Politick, fiſh'd this Myſtery with a Golden Hook out of the Eunuch that Zeno had entruſted with Keeping the Church, and having written his own Name upon the blank Paper, laid it a gain where he had it. Upon which, he was immediately advanc'd. Tis true, the Impoſture was afterwards diſcover'd; but he prevented his Puniſhment by his Death, which happen'd ſoon after, in the Year 589. Niceph. Evagr. l. 3.

FLAVIUM, St. Andres, a City of the Dukedom of Carinthia, under the Biſhop of Saltsburg, upon the River Lavant, which two Leagues below empties it ſelf into the Drave; Nine German Miles from Laubach to the North, in the Mid-way between Clauſen Weſtward, and Gracz Eaſtward. Baudrand.

FLAVONA, or Flanona, now Fianona, a Town of Iſtria, upon the Adriatick-Sea, under the Venetian, 11 Miles from the Mouth of the River Arſa, to the North. Baudrand.

La FLECHE, a City of France in Anjou, ſeated upon the River [illegible], toward the Frontiers of Main; famous for the College of Jeſuits there, Founded by Henry the IVth. where the Heart of that Monarch lies interr'd.

FLEMING, (Sir Daniel) of Rydall-Hall in Weſtmorland Son of William Fleming, Eſq; who was Son of Daniel Fleming of Skipwith-Hall, in Com. Cumbr. whoſe Father was William Fleming, Son and Heir of Anthony Fleming, Son of Hugh Fleming, Eſqs; which Hugh was the Son of John Fleming, Eſq; who in the Reign of Richard the IIId. paſt his Accounts in the Exchequer, as Eſcheator for the Counties of Weſtmorland and Cumberland; the Father of this John was Sir Thomas, who was Son and Heir to another Sir Thomas, Son to Sir Richard, whoſe Father was Sir John le Fleming, Son to another Sir John, whoſe Father was Rainerus le Fleming, Son of John, which John attended King Edward the Firſt, in his Expedition into Scotland, as appears by his Protection under the Great Seal of England, dated at Carlavoroke-Caſtle, in the 18th Year of his Reign. The next Anceſtor is Sir Richard le Fleming, Knight, Son to Sir John, whoſe Father was Sir Richard, Son of Sir Michael; the Father of which Sir Michael was William le Fleming, Son to Michael le Fleming, who being related to Baldwin the Vth. Earl of Flanders, was ſent by him into England, with ſome Forces to aſſiſt William the Coquerour his Son-in-Law. King William, after his Succeſs, granted to this Michael, the Caſtles of Gleſton and Caernarvan with the Mannors of Aldingham, Beckermet, &c. in the Counties of Lancaſter and Cumberland, ſome of which are ſtill in the Poſſeſſion of the Family. Though the Elder Houſe of this Family always kept the Sirname of Fleming, the younger Branches often chang'd theirs, and took the Names of the Lands aſſign'd them, or of the Places where they dwelt, as Rottington, Artokenden, Friſington, Oſmunderley, &c. which was anciently a common Cuſtom with other Families of good Account. The Flemings intermarried with theſe conſiderable following Families, (viz.) with that of Sir John Lancaſter of Rydal-Hall, Sir Hugh Lowther of Lowther, Richard Huddleſton of Millum-Caſtle, Eſq; Sir John Lamplugh of Lamplugh, with that of Sir Francis Ducket of Grayrigg; with Brathwait of Ambleſide, Eſq; Kirkby of Kirkby, Eſq; and with that of Sir Henry Fletcher of Hoten in Com. Cumbr. Bar. &c. The Arms of this Family are, Gules, a Fret Argent. The Creſt a Serpent Nowed, holding a Garland of Olives and Vines in her Mouth, all Proper, with this Motto, Sapientia. Pax. Copia.

FLENSBURGH, in Latin Flensburgum, a City of Denmark in the Dutchy of Sleſwick, which makes a part of Sud-Jutland; ſeated upon a Bay of the Baltick-Sea, to which it gives its Name, with a good Harbour and a Caſtle, between the City of Sleſwick to the South, and the Iſle of Alſen to the Eaſt.

FLESSINGUE, by the Natives Vleſſingen, in Lat. Fleſſinga; a City of the Low-Countries in Zealand, with a good Haven within a League of Middleburgh, firſt Wall'd about in the XVth. Age by Adolphus of Burgundy, who was Lord of it. It is now the Third City of Walcheren, and the Prince of Orange is Lord of it. 'Tis ſaid, that Fleſſing was only a Champaign place formerly, that ſerv'd for a Paſſage for Flanders; but now it is become ſo famous, that ſome call it, The Key of the Sea of the Low-Countries. The People of Scluſe Plundered it in 1485. and in the XVIth. Age, the States of the United Provinces deliver'd it up in Hoſtage, to Queen Elizabeth. The Dukes of Alba and Parma, in vain, attempted it at the ſame time. Strada.

FLESSINGUE, or New Fleſſingue, a Fortreſs in the Iſland of Tabago, in South America; built ſome Years ago by the Hollanders; but taken and demoliſhed by the French in 1677.

FLEVO, or as ſome will have it Fletio, an Iſland of the Frieſlanders, in the Lake Flevum, where are now the Iſlands Ens and Vik, in the Bay of Zuyderzee, according to Ortelius. But Cluverius affirms, The Iſland to be now ſwallow'd up in the Sea, where now is the Flat, call'd Het Bredeſandt, between Weſt Frieſlandt and Vieringhen, perhaps more in the Right. Baudrand.

FLEVUM, or Flevi Lacus, according to Tacitus, a Bay of the German Sea, between the Hollanders and Frieſlanders, into which the Eaſtern Arm of the Rhine, together with the Iſſel diſcharge themſelves near the City Campen, between that and Volenhove; vulgarly call'd Zuyderzee. Baudrand.

FLEVUM Caſtellum, where now the Village Ooſteynde, in the North part of the Iſland of Vlielandt, near the Mouth of the Eaſtern Arm of the Rhine, call'd Het Vlie; hardly 3 Leagues from the Shore of Weſt Freſlandt; according to Sanſon, and others.

FLEURY, or St. Benedict upon the Loire, a Town of France, with a famous Abbey, upon the Right ſide of the River Loire, in the Dioceſs of Orleans, between Sulli, and Jargeau.

FLEURY, in Latin Floriacum, a Borough of France in the Dutchy of Burgundy; ſeated upon the River Ouſche, about 3 Leagues below Dijon, and 4 or 5 from Beaune.

FLEURY or Fleurus, a little Village near the Sambre above Charleroy, memorable for the Battle there fought, between the Dutch and the French, upon the 1ſt. of July, 1690. wherein the latter were Victorious.

FLINS, an Idol of the ancient Vandals, who inhabited that part of Germany that is now call'd Luſace. This word in the Saxon Language, ſignifies a Stone; for they repreſented their God by a great Stone ſhap'd in the Figure of Death, cover'd with a long Cloak, holding a ſtick in its Hand, with a blown Bladder, with a Lion upon its left Shoulder; by which theſe Barbarians think they will be brought to live again. Chron. Saxo-Germ.

FLINT, a Caſtle in North Wales, which gives Name to Flintſhire, a County thereof. It ſtands on the River Dee, near its influx into the Iriſh Sea, begun by Henry II. and finiſh'd by Edw. I. It was in this Caſtle that Rich. II. was by Henry Piercy Earl of Northumberland, betray'd to his Couſin Henry Duke of Lancaſter; from whence being brought up Priſoner to London, he ſoon after loſt his Crown and Life.

FLINTSHIRE, a Maritime County of North Wales, ſo call'd from Flint, the chief place thereof. It borders Northward upon the Iriſh Sea; Southward, on Shropſhire; Eaſtward, upon Cheſhire, and Weſtward, upon Denbighſhire. In Length from Eaſt to Weſt, not above 24 Miles. In Breadth from North to South 8. The whole divided into Five Hundreds, wherein are 21 Pariſhes, and but 2 Market-Towns, anciently inhabited by the Ordovices who were poſſeſs'd of N.W. and now in the Dioceſs of St. Aſaph. This is the ſmalleſt County in all Wales, but one of the fruitfulleſt; for as it is nothing near ſo Mountainous as the other Parts, ſo it brings forth plenty both of Corn and Graſs, as alſo great ſtore of Cattel. 'Tis true, they be but ſmall; but that defect is abundantly ſupplied by their Numbers. Here is alſo great plenty of Honey, of which they make excellent Metheglin, and in this County is St. Winifred's Well, ſome Tracts of that famous Ditch commonly called Offa's Dike; both which ſee in their proper place. Flintſhire was formerly reckoned a part of the County Palatine of Cheſter, paying 2000 Marks, called a Mize, at the Change of every Earl of Cheſter, till 1568. when, upon occaſion of one Tho. Radford, committed to Priſon by the Chamberlain of Cheſter, it diſ-joyn'd it ſelf from the Palatinate, and united with the Principality of Wales. Flint, its chief Town, though no Market-Town, by reaſon of its vicinity to Cheſter, and the conveniency of going thither by Water on the River Dee, ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

FLODOARD, Frodard or Flodard, Abbot of St. Remi in Rheims, flouriſh'd in the Tenth Age. He wrote a Chronicle from 917. to 966. As alſo the Hiſtory of the Church of Rheims in IV. Books: This Hiſtory was firſt printed by Sirmondus in 1611, and after wards by George Colen in 1617. with Learned Notes, and dy'd in 966.

FLORA, ſaid to be the Wife of Zephyrus, and Goddeſs of Flowers. Lactantius is of Opinion, that Flora was a Courteſan, who having got good ſtore of Wealth by her Proſtitutions, inſtituted the Floralia, or Ludos Florales. Wherefore the Romans aſham'd to pay ſo much honour to a Perſon of ill Fame, advanc'd her to be the Goddeſs of Flowers, and ſolemniz'd her Feſtivals at the beginning of May.

FLORALE, Games of Tholouſe, a City of Languedoc in France, were Inſtituted in 1323. by ſeven Wealthy Men of that City, who invited all the Poets round about to try their Wits for a Prize, and he who carried it had a Golden Violette for Reward. The Firſt of May was the Day appointed for this Solemnity; and at laſt the Society form'd themſelves into a College, and added two other Flowers as Prizes; and admitted the Candidates to Degrees, as Batchelor and Doctor of the Gay Science or Poeſie, and gave them their Letters in Verſe. There were alſo ſeveral Ladies, who being mov'd with this Poetick fury, compos'd Verſes, but without any Claim to the Prize; leſt the Judges might be thought Guilty of too much Complaiſance towards any of them. And in 1540. a Lady of Quality in the City, left a great Eſtate to maintain thoſe Floral Games on the Firſt and Third of May, for three Flowers worth 15 Piſtols each, and gave her own Habitation, which is now the Town-Houſe, for the Solemnity. At which, a Preſident, a Maſter, and Four Counſellors of Parliament aſſiſt. The Conquerours are treated with great Honour. Convoy'd to their ſeveral Homes, with Muſick and Guards; and they, with all the other Candidates nobly treated. La Faille, Annales de Tholouſe.

FLORALES Ludi, or Floralia, certain Sports in Honour of the Goddeſs Flora, or rather inſtituted by her ſelf; which were obſerv'd upon the four laſt Days of April, and firſt of May; upon which it was the Cuſtom for Shameleſs Strumpets to run up and down the Streets naked, uſing many Laſcivious Geſtures and Obſcene Speeches: and theſe Harlots were uſually call'd together by the Sound of a Trumpet, to which Juvenal alludes, when he ſays, Digniſſima prorſus Florali Matrona Tuba. Moreover, for the more Civil Recreation of the People, Goats and Hares, &c. were publickly Bated, and hunted, and Elephants taught to walk backward and forward upon the Ropes, were brought forth to delight the Spectators; as Pliny teſtifies.

FLORENCE, the Capital City of Tuſcany, where the Grand Duke keeps his Court; the Seat alſo of an Archbiſhop erected in 1421. by Martin V. It is ſeated upon the River Arno, which divides it into two unequal parts joyn'd together by four fair and very large Stone-Bridges. It is eſteemed one of the biggeſt Cities of Italy, as being near ſix Miles in Compaſs. So well peopled, as to contain above a Hundred thouſand Souls, and as many in the Houſes within the Territory belonging to it. The Streets are Pav'd with broad Stones, the Palaces are Sumptuous, the Churches Magnificent, and all the Houſes ſo Neat and Beautiful, that it may well deſerve the Name of Florence the Fair. The Church of St. Laurence is a wonderful Structure, deſign'd by Brunelliſchi. Two Rows of round Pillars ſupport the Bulk of the Building. And upon the Roof of the Quire is to be ſeen a Picture of the Laſt Judgment; being a bold Piece of Pontorno's hand. There are alſo the Portraictures of St. Anne, and the Holy Virgin Painted in Freſco by Fra. Bartholomeo: a Piece ſo Noble, that one of the Dukes of Mantua offer'd a vaſt Sum of Money for it. The Chapel of St. Laurence is built of Marble, and the Walls are fac'd with Jaſper. This Chapel is round, and about it ſtand the Tombs of the Dukes of Florence. Near St. Laurence's, is the famous Library of Manuſcripts call'd Bibliotheca Laurentiana, the Catalogue of which was Printed at Amſterdam, in 1622. The Gallery of the Old Palace of the Duke and his Cloſet, are full of Pieces no leſs conſiderable for their Rarity, than for their Riches. The Paintings and Statues in the Prince's Palace, are Maſter-pieces of the beſt Artiſts, and all his Furniture ſhews a particular Magnificence. There are in Florence three Citadels. The Firſt, which is the Strongeſt, built by Alexander, the firſt Duke, with five Baſtions: The Second built by Coſmo, commands the City: And the Third which is a Star with ſix Points, by Ferdinand. Florence had ſeveral Maſters, before it fell under the Government of the Houſe de Medicis; of which Family there have been alſo four Popes; Leo X. Clement VII. Pius IV. and Leo XI. Beſides that, Florence is the place where the Italian Language is moſt perfectly ſpoken, though the Utterance of the Romans be much better: whence the Proverb of Lingua Toſcana in Bocca Romana. Laſtly, The Florentines are Witty, fair Dealers, and good Husbands. This City hath produc'd abundance of Learned Men, of all ſorts, and has the famous Academy of La Cruſca. Authors are not agreed as to the time of the Building of Florence, though ſome ſay, that it was built by Sylla's Soldiers, during the Civil War, upon the Arne and the Main; whence it was at firſt called Fluentia; but afterwards, becauſe of the fruitfulneſs of its Territory, it was called Florentia. Pope Eugenius IV. held a Council here againſt that of Baſle with the Fathers, of which he could not agree. It was firſt indicted at Ferrara, but removed hither, becauſe of the Plague. The Emperor of the Eaſt, and the moſt noted Perſons of the Greek Church aſſiſted here, and Subſcribed to the Sentiments of the Weſtern Church, concerning the Proceſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, and after two fine Harangues made by Cardinal Beſſarion upon this Argument they all Subſcrib'd to the Belief of the Weſtern Church, excepting the Biſhop of Epheſus. Afterwards ſome other Matters relating to Purgatory were determin'd, and an Union between the Greek and Latin Church concluded, but the Conduct of the Eaſtern Biſhops being not approv'd by their Party, when they came home, hinder'd this Accommodation from taking effect. In ſuch Union the Abyſſines and Jacobites deſired to be comprehended; this was about 1439. But others are of Opinion, That the preſſing Neceſſity which the Emperor of the Eaſt had of Supplies againſt the Victorious Turks, had more Influence on this pretended Union, than any Agreement in Opinion. In 1055. a Council was held here againſt Berengarius; who withſtood the Errors of the Church of Rome, and in 1105. againſt Biſhop Fluentius, for ſaying, That Antichriſt was already Born. Act. Concil. Floren. Bzovius. Spondan. Annal. A.C. 1430, 1440, 1442, &c.

FLORENTIUS I. Count of Holland, the Son of Thierry III. ſucceeded his Brother Thierry IV. in 1048. He defeated the Archbiſhop of Cologne, the Biſhop of Liege, the Count of Lovain, and ſeveral other Princes confederated againſt him; but after the Fight, as he lay under a Willow, was ſurpriz'd and ſlain by his Enemies, in 1062.

FLORENTIUS II. ſurnam'd the Fat, was the Son of Thierry V. and rul'd from 1091. to 1123. He had Wars with the revolted Friſons, who had the better in the firſt Fight; but afterwards he prov'd Victorious, and dy'd with the Reputation of a Religious Prince.

FLORENTIUS III. Son of Thierry VI. Began his Government in 1163. and follow'd the Emperor Frederick into the Holy Land, where he ſignaliz'd his Courage at the Siege of Damiata, and dying in 1190. was Buried at Antioch.

FLORENTIUS IV. ſucceeded his Father William I. and was kill'd in a Turnament by the Count of Clermont in 1235. 'Tis ſaid, That one of his Daughters married to the Count of Henneberg, was brought to Bed upon a Palm-Sunday of 365 Children, as a Puniſhment for Scoffing at a poor Widow that had born no more than two at a time.

FLORENTIUS V. the Son of William II. King of the Romans, had Wars with the rebellious Griſons, and was Aſſaſſinated by one Girard de Velſen, whoſe Wife he had debauch'd. This happen'd in 1296. after he had govern'd 40 Years.

FLORENTIUS, call'd, Bravonius or Wigornienſis, a Monk of Worceſter, liv'd in the XIIth. Century. He wrote a Book call'd, Chronicon Chronicorum, reaching from the beginning of the World to his own time, i. e. to 1118; which another Monk of the ſame Monaſtery continu'd to 1163. Florentius likewiſe work'd upon a Continuation of Marianus Scotus, and wrote a Treatiſe of the Royal Family of England, &c. Simler Bibl. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2. cap. 28. Pitſ. de Script. Angl.

FLORIANUS, ſurnam'd St. Peter, an Italian born at Bononia, flouriſh'd about the middle of the XVth. Century. Trithemius gives him the Character of being one of the moſt Learned Perſons of his Time; that he underſtood the Canon and Civil Law, Philoſophy, and the Learning of the Scriptures; that he was a good Orator, an extraordinary Diſputant, and had an admirable Head for Counſel and Advice. His Works are, Super-codice Lib. IX. Super F. Novo Lib. XII. Super F. Veteri, Lib. XXIV. Super F. Inforciati, Lib. XIV. Trithem. de Script. Eccl.

FLORIANUS caus'd himſelf to be Crown'd after the Death of his Brother Tacitus, believing the Empire had been Hereditary. However, he enjoy'd it not above two Months, being ſlain at Tarſus by the Soldiers, ſo ſoon as they heard that Probus was Proclaim'd by the Senate. Vopiſcus.

FLORIDA, a Part of America, between New France, Virginia and Mexico, firſt diſcover'd by Sebaſtian Cabot, whom Hen. VII. King of England ſent to ſee if he could find a Way through the Weſt Paſſage into the Eaſt; but he did no more than take a ſlight View of the Country. John Ponce of Leon was ſent thither by the King of Caſtile, but was chas'd away by the Inhabitants. Ferdinand Soto, after the Conqueſt of Peru, entred there May 25. 1538. with 230 Horſe and 400 Foot, and gave it the Name of Florida, becauſe he came thither when the Flowers were upon the Ground; but died of Grief, becauſe he was diſappointed of the Treaſures which he expected. The French ſettled firſt there, in 1562. in the Reign of Charles IX. contracted Friendſhip with the Inhabitants, and built the Fort of Charleſort and Carolin. The Caſtillians being Angry at the French's good Entertainment, fell upon them unawares, flea'd the Governor Alive, and Hang'd the reſt, ſays Leſcarbot. In 1567. Dominick de Gourgues a Gaſcon, fitted out a Veſſel at his own Charge, re-took the ſaid Forts, and hang'd the Spaniards on the ſame Trees, whereon they had hang'd the French. The Air is very pure and temperate, and the Earth fruitful, becauſe of frequent Dews. Their Bread is made of Maize. After the Harveſt, the Natives burn the Graſs and Roots, which they think the beſt ſort of Husbandry. Their Vines only want Dreſſing. Their Pullets there are as big Peacocks. They have many great Rivers, and among others, Chucagua Rio Grande, where they fiſh for Pearl, and whoſe Sand is mixt with Gold. The Inland Country is level, and well water'd with Rivers; but toward the Sea the Soil is altogether Sandy. The Foreſts are full of Pines, but the Apples have no Kernels: There are alſo a vaſt number of Cedars, Cypreſs, Laurels and Palms. Wild Vines alſo grow about the Trees, and Medlar-Trees there are in abundance, the Fruit of which is bigger and better than in France. Saſſafras alſo is very plentiful, which the Savages call Pavame, the Wood and Bark of which yields a pleaſant Smell. The Earth produces likewiſe a ſort of Root call'd Haſez, of which the Natives make uſe inſtead of Wheat. Their four-footed Beaſts, are, Deer, Goats, Harts, Lions, Leopards, Bears, Wolves, Ounces, Otters, Hares and Rabbets. Their Fowl, Turkies, Partridge, Pidgeons, Turtles, Geeſe, Ducks, Herons and Birds of Prey. Their Rivers alſo breed Crocodiles, and their Waters and Woods ſeveral ſorts of Serpents. There is great Store of Gold and Silver among the Savages; but 'tis thought they gather it up from the Wrecks of the Spaniſh Ships that are caſt away upon the Coaſt, for that no Mines have as yet been diſcover'd; though the Savages aſſure ye, that the Mountains of Apalatci are full of Mines of a ſhining yellow Metal. The Men Dye themſelves of an Olive Complexion, though naturally Fair and Tall, without any Deformity. They cover the Parts of Nature with Deer Skins, neatly fitted together, leaving the reſt of their Bodies naked; and Painting their Arms and Legs with certain Marks which are never to be rubbed out, being as it were engrav'd in the Skin. Their Hair is generally Black, which they wear down to their Waſts. Their Arms are Bows and Arrows, headed with the Teeth of Fiſh, or ſharp Stones. They are great Diſſemblers and Liars; and their chief Employment is Hunting and Fiſhing. The Women Paint like the Men, and are ſo nimble, that they will Swim a great River, holding their Children above water, and Climb to the Tops of the higheſt Trees with an extraordinary ſwiftneſs. They have two Harveſts of Maiz in a Year; that is to ſay, in March and June; which the Cacicque or Commander of every Village Locks up in a Publick Granary, whence he diſtributes it to every Family proportionably. They are under ſeveral Cacicques, who frequently make War one upon another, not openly, but by Surprize and Ambuſcado. When they march, the Cacicque goes firſt, with a Club in one hand, his Bow in the other, and his Quiver at his Back. When they hold a Conſultation, the Cacicque ſits upon a Place ſomewhat higher than the reſt, and if it be a Matter of Moment, they call their Prieſts to Council. Theſe Prieſts they call Jawa's, and have a great Veneration for 'em; and when they die they Bury 'em in their Houſes, which afterwards they Burn with all their Moveables. When a Cacicque dies, they Bury him ſolemnly and lay upon his Tomb the Cup wherein he drank, with a great number of Arrows. Thoſe who inhabit the Plains are nimbler and taller than the Inhabitants of the Mountains; and thoſe who inhabit the Inland Country, than they who dwell on the Borders, which are Poor and Barren. They love War, and are under Captains whom they Name Paraouſtis. They kill all that they can take of their Enemies, and carry their Heads about in Triumph; but ſometimes ſave the Women and Children to be Slaves. After a Victory, they keep Feaſts for three Days, with Dancing and Singing, the old Men leading the Dance, and being adorn'd with the Hair of their Enemies, whoſe Heads they cut off. They Attribute their Victory to the Sun, and accordingly return thanks to it, for they Worſhip no other Deity excepting this Planet and the Moon. Private Perſons have but one Wife each, but the Cacicques have more. Their Prieſts are Magicians, and enchant the People by their Witchcraft, they do alſo act the Phyſician, and inſtead of letting Blood as we do, they Suck the Blood of their Patients. Charles the Vth. ſent ſeveral Monks and Friars to try whether they could tame theſe Savages by the way of Converſion, but the Infidels cut their Throats.

FLORIMOND De Raymond, Councellour of the Parliament of Bourdeaux, he liv'd in the XVI. Century; he was once of the Opinion of Calvin, but afterwards went over to the Church of Rome. He has written ſeveral Treatiſes againſt the Proteſtants, of which, thoſe two, concerning Antichriſt and the Origen of Hereſies, are the moſt conſiderable. He died in the Year 1600. Spondan. A. C. 1566. N. 31. Genebrard in Chron. &c.

FLORINUS, a Heretick, in the 2d. Age, who ridiculouſly taught, That God did not only permit, but do Evil, &c. His Followers were called Floriani. Euſebius, Irenæus, Theodoret.

FLORUM, Flores, a large Iſland of Aſia in the Indian-Sea, ſtretching out from Eaſt to Weſt, between Java and the Iſlands of Fear, 40 Spaniſh Leagues from Macaſſar to the South, known by Name only to the Europeans.

FLORUS, Surnam'd Magiſter, and ſometimes Drepanius, Deacon of the Church of Lyons, was an Author of Character, in the IXth. Century, in the time of Agobardus Archbiſhop of that City: Thoſe who have publiſh'd Catalogues of Eccleſiaſtical Writers ſpeak much to his advantage. This Learned Deacon wrote a Treatiſe call'd, Expoſitio Miſſæ, Extant in the 6th. Tomb of the Bibliotheca Patrum, and ſome think that 'twas this Florus who wrote againſt Johannes Scotus, call'd Erigena, and againſt Hincmar Archbiſhop of Rheims, and that he is the Author of the Commentaries upon St. Peter and St. Paul. Florus likewiſe wrote a Treatiſe, De Electionibus Epiſcoporum, inſerted at the end of Agobardus's Works by Papyrius Maſſonus, and afterwards by Baluzius. He wrote alſo, an Epiſtle to the Church of Lyons, upon the Subject of Predeſtination. Sigebert, de Script. Eccl. cap. 49. Matth. Weſtminſter ad Ann. 883. de Marca Lib. 8. de Concord. Sacerd. & Imper. cap. 14. Baluz. in præf. & Not. ad Agob. &c.

FLORUS, (Annæus) a well known Latin Hiſtorian, liv'd 200 Years after Auguſtus's Reign. 'Tis thought that Spartian makes mention of him under the Name of a Poet, in the Life of Adrian, where he gives an Account of a very entertaining Copy of Verſes of Florus, together with a return of the Emperours. The Probability of this Conjecture I have obſerv'd already under Adrian, and that which confirms me further in my Opinion, is the Poetical ſtile of the Hiſtorian, Lucius Florus, which beſide the florid peculiarity of the Expreſſion, looks more like a Panegyrick than a juſt Relation of the Roman Empire. Voſſius Lib. 1. De Hiſt. Lat cap. 30. la Mothe. John George Grævius in Præfat in Author. prædict.

FLORUS (Geſſius) Governour of Judæa in the 1ſt. Age, which Favour he obtain'd of Nero, by the Sollicitation of his Wife Cleopatra, who was an intimate Friend of Poppæa's. His Avarice and Cruelty occaſion'd the War of the Jews with the Romans. Joſephus, l. 2. de Bell. Jud. Tacit. Hiſt. l. 5.

FLORUS (Julianus) an Orator in the time of Tiberius. Seneca ſpeaks of him in his Controverſies, and Quintilian calls him the Prince of Eloquence.

FOCHIEN, or Fokien, a Province of China lying upon the Sea, between the Provinces of Chequian and Cantan. The Capital City of it is Focheu, where there is a Court of Mandarins: the reſt are Chancheu, Xaow, Tingcheu, &c. This Province is very fertile, and abounds in Paper, Sugar, &c.

FOEROE, Lat. Feroæ Provincia ferventis, a Province ſubject to the King of Denmark, as King of Norway, conſiſting of 17 Iſlands, which have Norway on the Eaſt, Orkney and Scotland on the South-eaſt, Greenland on the Weſt, and Iſeland on the North-weſt, under 62. Deg. 10. Min. of Lat. extending from North to South 60 Miles, and in breadth about 40, ſeparated from each other by deep and rapid Waters; they are all cultivated and inhabited, their Commodities are Skins, Feathers, Tallow, Train Oil, Fiſh, but eſpecially Stockkings, whereof they Export yearly above 600000 Pair, in their Trade to Iſeland, Norway and Denmark. FORMENTERA, an Iſland of Spain, in the Mediterranean-Sea, the Ophiuſa of the Latins; which breeds a great number of wild Aſſes, ſo weak, that they cannot bear the leaſt Burthen, but lie down ſo ſoon as they are loaden; From whence the Catalonians call all Idle, Lazy People, Aſſes of Formentera.

FORMOSA, Belle-Iſle, an Iſland of the Oriental-Sea, toward the Coaſts of Fokien and Quantung, Provinces of China, and to the North of the Philippine Iſlands. The Natives call it Talieukieu; the Portugueſes, Lequeio; and the Spaniards, Formoſa, from the Fertility and Beauty of the Soyl. It lies 24 Leagues from China, and 150. from Japan, being about 130 in Circuit. It abounds in Cinnamon and Ginger. The Iſlanders obey neither King nor Sovereign; but live like a ſort of Republicans, giving the Government of every Town to 12 Senators, which they change every two Years. The People ſeem to be Savages, but are Courteous, Civil and Witty. The Men go ſtark Naked in the Summer; as do the Women, only with ſome ſlight Covering before them. They live upon Hunting the Stag and Wild Boar; whoſe Skins and dried Fleſh they ſell to the Zangleys, who are the Original Merchants of China ſetled in the Philippines. The Women are their Prieſts, and perform all the Functions of their Pagan Worſhip. Their Exerciſes are Shooting in Bows, Lancing of Javelins, and Swimming. They are alſo extreme Swift of Foot. The Iſland is very much ſubject to Earthquakes. The Principal City of Formoſa, is Theovan, or Tayoan; where there is a Fort built by the Hollanders. There are beſides the Fortreſſes of Farbrou, Quilam, and Tamſuy, built by the Portugueſes, who ſetled there firſt, and poſſeſs'd 'em till 1635. At what time they were expell'd by the Dutch, who peopled the Iſland, which furniſh'd 'em with Cattle, Hydes, Stags, and Bufalo's Horns, of which the Japannois and Chineſes make great Uſe in their Manufactures. They were alſo working in a Mine of Gold, which they thought ſo Rich, that they ſent Word to the Company in Holland, That they thought it would ſuffice for the Trade of the Indies, without ſending any Money from thence. But Coxinga, K. of China, who was retir'd into the neighbouring Iſlands, after the Invaſion of China by the Tartars, beſieged Tayoan, in 1661. and after the taking of that Place, drove the Dutch out of the whole Iſland, who built ſome ſmall Forts in the petty Iſlands that lie near Formoſa. Theovan, and the Fort of Zeland, are built upon a little Iſland about 2 Leagues long, and about a Quarter of a League diſtant from Formoſa, to the Weſt. The Fort ſtands a little above the City, and has 6 Baſtions; within which are the Governors Lodgings, the Magazines, and other buildings, encompaſs'd with good Walls. The City is within Musket-ſhot of the Fort, inhabited by a good number of rich Chineſe Merchants. The Harbour is always full of Chineſe Veſſels, which they call Tonks. Thither they bring their Merchandizes; which are all ſorts of Silks well wrought, Gold in Bars, and ſome Porcellanes; and carry back Cottens, Scarlets, Spices, and Silver. There are about 30000 Chinois in the Iſland, and in Theovan, who Till the Ground, and make Sugar. Theſe Cheneſes are no Chriſtians; but believe there is an Omnipotent Deity whom they call Iſhy. The Devil they call, Kouy, and Sacrifice to him for fear he ſhould do them ſome Miſchief. They believe likewiſe the Immortality of the Soul, Heaven and Hell, but follow the Superſtitions of Paganiſm. They adore principally four Gods; the firſt of whom preſides over the South; the ſecond, over the North; and the two other, in Battels. They are very Swift in Runing, and can hold-out longer than any Horſe. The Iſland is very ſubject to Earthquakes; which they aſcribe to the Effects of the Devil's Anger, and do thereupon ſacrifice to him. Tavernier, Mandeſlo.

FORMOSUS, Biſhop of Porto, in Hetruria, ſucceeded Stephen VI. As Platina ſays, Stephen V. Or, as others ſay, obtain'd it by Simony, in Oppoſition to one Sergius, who in vain aſpir'd to the Pontificate. He Crown'd Guy of Spoleto, and the Emperor Arnulph; who therefore protected him in the Chair, which he held Six Years; or, as Platina ſays, Five Years and Six Months. Stephen VII. or (as Platina ſays) Stephen VI. caus'd his Body to be taken up again, deſpoil'd him of his Pontifical Ornaments, cut off his Fingers with which he had given the Benediction, and threw him into the Tiber with a Stone about his Neck. Which Hatred was occaſion'd in Stephen, becauſe that Formoſus, by his Simony, had hinder'd him from the Chair, which he thought his Due long before. However, John X. condemn'd theſe Acts of Stephen, confirm'd the Acts of Formoſus, and reſtor'd him to a full Reputation among the Roman Pontiffs.

FORNACALES, Fornacalia, Roman Feaſts which Numa Pompilius did inſtitute in Honour of the Goddeſs Fornax, who preſided over the Ovens. During thoſe Feaſts, certain Cakes were made, and Sacrifices offer'd before the Ovens. Whence Ovid, l. 2. Faſt. ſays, Orant ut vires temperet illa ſuas.

Curio Legitimis tunc Fornacalia Verbis
Maximus indicit, nec ſtata ſacra facit.

FORNOVO, a ſmall Town in the Territory of Parma, call'd Parmigiano: Famous for the Battle which Charles VIII. won in 1495. in his Return from the Conqueſt of Naples, not having above 9000 to fight 40000 of the Confederates againſt him. See Charles VIII.

FORSTER, (John) a Lutheran Divine, born at Augſburg, in 1495. He was a great Hebrician, which Language he profeſs'd at Wittemburg, and left behind him a Hebrew Dictionary.

FORSTER, (Valentine) wrote the Lives of the Civil Lawyers in three Books, under the Title of Hiſtoria Juris Civilis. Thuanus. Hiſt. lib. 17. Melchior Adam, in Vit. Germ. Theol.

FORTAVENTURA, an Iſland of Africa, in the Atlantick-Sea, one of the Canaries, to the South of the Iſland of Wolves, and to the Eaſt of Canaria. It is about 70 Leagues in Circuit; but ſo irregular as to the Breadth, that in the Middle it is not above 4 Leagues Broad. However it contains the Towns, Fortaventura, Lanegala, Richeroque, Pozo-Negro, &c. It is under the King of Spain.

FORT-LEWIS, a Citadel of the Southern America, in the Iſland of Cayenne, built by the French, in 1643. at the Mouth of a River of the ſame Name. This Fort was taken by the Dutch in 1675. but the next Year, the Count de Eſtres, Vice-Admiral of France retook it. Baudrand.

FORTH, one of the greateſt Rivers in Scotland, which riſes in the County of Menteith, near to Logh-Lowmond. It waſhes the Rock on which the Caſtle of Sterlin, one of the Nobleſt Structures in Britain, is built; where it is paſs'd by a Noble Bridge, Memorable for a great Overthrow given to the Engliſh there, by Sir William Wallace. From thence, croſſing the County, it meets the Tyde about the confines of the Carſe of Mentieth: which is a very Fruitful Valley, and formerly all cover'd with the Sea: As a Teſtimony whereof, it's alledg'd, That Anchors have been dug up at Falkirk, which is now 6 Miles from the Sea, upon a riſing Ground. This retreat of the Sea, is ſaid to have happen'd at the ſame time when ſome Iſlands belonging to the Dutch were overflow'd, near Walcheren, where the Spires of ſome Steeples are ſtill to be ſeen above Water. From the Head of the Forth, to its Mouth at St. Ebbs, it is about 90 Miles; and at Leith, it is about 3 Leagues Broad. It enlarges gradually, till it comes to the Mouth; where it is about 30 Leagues over. There are many Iſlands in this River; as Garvy, which had a Fort that defended the River at the Queen's-Ferry, where it is not above 2 Miles over: Inch-Colm, Famous for an ancient Monaſtery:

naſtery: Inch-Keeth, over-againſt Leeth, which was ſome time fortified: The May, which has a Light-Houſe upon it: And the Baſs, (which ſee in its proper place.) This River, or rather Bay of the Sea, is ennobled with many fine Towns, and the beſt Inhabited part of Scotland on both ſides of it.

FORTIGUERRA (Nicholas) Biſhop of Theano, born at Piſtoia in Tuſcany; and of a Noble Family, he was made a Cardinal by Pius II. who ſent him his Legate to Naples, to treat with Ferdinand of Arragon, concerning the Conditions upon which he was to receive the Inveſtiture of the Kingdom of Naples. At what time he procur'd of Ferdidand to ſurrender Beneventum and Terracina to the Holy See; and concluded a Marriage between Antonio Picolomini, the Pope's Nephew, and Ferdinand's Niece; with whom the King gave in Dowry the Dukedom of Melſi, and the Earldom of Cellano. Afterwards being made General of the Eccleſiaſtical Forces, he took from the Malateſti, then very Potent, Fani, and ſeveral other Places in Romagna, and la Marca d' Ancona, and conſtrain'd 'em to ſue for Peace. After this Paul II. ſent him againſt the French, and Deiphobus, Count of Anguillaria, an Enemy of the Church, from whom he took ten or twelve Towns in fifteen Days, took Francis the Brother of Deiphobus, Priſoner, and drave the Count himſelf out of his Country. He died in 1473. in the 55th. Year of his Age. Pius II. in Comment. L. 1, 2. Ciaconius, &c.

FORTIUS, vulgarly call'd Sterk, known by the Name of Joachimus Fortius Ringelbergius, a great Græcian, Arithmetician, Coſmographer and Mathematician, highly eſteem'd in the Court of the Emperour Maximilian, liv'd in the XVIth. Age. He died in the Year 1536. leaving ſeveral Treatiſes behind, under the Titles of Chaos Mathematicum, De Vſu Vocum, Inſtructiones Aſtronomica, Optica, Coſmographia, &c.

FORTUNATÆ INSULÆ. See Canaries.

FORTUNE, a Goddeſs, which the Ancients believ'd the Governour of their Affairs, and that ſhe diſtributed Wealth and Honour at her Pleaſure; ſhe's commonly repreſented in the Figure of a blind Woman, ſtanding upon the Top of a Wheel, with Wings at her Feet; ſhe's likewiſe repreſented under ſeveral other Figures. St. Auguſt. lib. 4. de Civ. cap. 18.

FORUM CLAUDII, formerly a Town of La Toſcana; in the place of which now ſtands Oriolo, a Caſtle in St. Peter's Patrimony, five Miles from Braciano to the North-Eaſt, in the Dukedom of Braciano. Alſo an Archiepiſcopal City, and the Capital of Tarautaiſe, in the Dukedom of Savoy, upon the River Iſere, now Mouriers en Tarantaiſe, 4 Leagues from St. Jean to the North, and 8 from Chambery to the Eaſt, by the Teſtimony of Sanſon.

FORUM GALLORUM, Caſtel-Franco, a Town within the Territory of Bologna, under the Pope, ſcarce 2 Miles from the Borders of Modena, and the River Pannaro. Cloſe adjoining ſtands a Caſtle well fortify'd by Vrban VIII. for the Defence of that part of the Country, and from his Name, call'd Forte Vrbano.

FORUM TIBERII, Keiſurſtul, a Town of Switzerland, under the Biſhop of Conſtance, in the Mid-way between Baſil to the Weſt, and Conſtance to the Eaſt, 5 Helvetian Leagues from both, upon the River Rhine.

FOSCARO, (Peter) Biſhop of Padua; privately made a Cardinal by Paul II. For which reaſon, after the Death of that Pope, the reſt of the Cardinals refus'd to acknowledge him. But Sixtus IV. compaſſionating his Diſgrace, receiv'd him into the Sacred College, in 1477. Ciaconius and Onuphrius.

FOSSA CORBULONIS, a River of Holland, (according to Ortelius,) cut out of the Rhine, 23 Miles in Length, and joining with the Moſelle, cloſe by Crimpen.

FOSSA DRUSIANA, a Part of the Rhine, cut by Druſus through the Land into the Iſſel, and carried on as far as Doesburgh. Ferrarius.

FOSSANO, Lat. Foſſanum, a City of Italy, in Piedmont, with a Biſhop's See, erected by Gregory XIII. under the Archbiſhop of Turin; ſeated upon the River Stura, between Saluces and Mondovi.

FOSSIGNI, Lat. Fociniacum, and Fociniacenſis Tractus; a Province of Savoy, with the Title of a Barony. It lies between Genevois and Le Valais, in a Mountainous Country, having for its Capital City Bonneville; or, as others ſay, Cluſe, upon the Arva; and for its Principal Town, Salanche, Taning, St. Gervaiſe, Bonne, St. Joire, &c. formerly the Seat of the Ancient Focunates, or Focuates.

FOSSOMBRONE, Lat. Forum Sempronii, an Epiſcopal City of Vmbria, under the Metropolis of Vrban; ſeated upon the Metro, about 9 or 10 Miles from Vrbin. It was ruin'd by the Goths and Lombards, but afterwards re-built in a more convenient place than where the Ruines of the former Town are now to be ſeen. The Malateſti and Galeazzi were a long time Maſters of it, but ſurrender'd it to the Count of Vrbin, in 1440.

FOUCKERS, the Name of a conſiderable Family of Augsburg in Germany: They were the moſt wealthy Merchants of that Town, in the Time of Charles the Vth. and had a Patent from that Emperour for a Monopoly of Spices, which they only had the Privilege of bringing from Venice for the furniſhing of all France, and the Neighbouring Countries: And being this Commodity, at that time, was only brought by the way of the Red-Sea, and from thence to the Mediterranean, 'twas very ſcarce and dear in compariſon of what it is at preſent, inſomuch that this Privilege made the Fouckers accounted the richeſt Family in all Germany: There goes a Story, that the Emperour Charles the Vth. at his Return from Tunis, by the way of Italy, and ſo through Augsburgh, lodg'd at their Houſe; where to ſhow themſelves more ſenſible of the Honour they had of entertaining ſo great a Prince, amongſt other Inſtances of Magnificence and Expence, they burnt a Faggot of Cinnamon in his Chamber, and after having produc'd a Bill which they had of the Emperour for a very great Summ of Money, they lighted the Faggot with it: This Circumſtance made the Cinnamon ſmell richer, and burn clearer to the Emperour than otherwiſe it would have done, becauſe by this Civil Curioſity, he found himſelf diſcharg'd of a conſiderable Debt, which he was then in no good Condition to pay. Felibien entretiens ſur les Vies des Peintres, 4 Partie.

FOUGERES, a City of France, in Bretagne, ſeated upon the River Coeſnon, toward the Frontiers of Normandy, between Dol and Avvranches. Raoul de Fougeres fortified it, and built a good Caſtle to ſecure it.

FOULK, the Chriſtian Name of five Counts of Anjou; of Four of which I find nothing memorable in Hiſtory, only that the Third of the Name made three Journeys to Jeruſalem, where he caus'd himſelf to be drawn naked upon a Hurdle with a Rope about his Neck, and whipt till the Blood came, for his Sins. Foulk V. Count of Anjou, accompany'd the Croiſado's into Paleſtine; where he marry'd Meliſenda, the Daughter of Baldwin, King of Jeruſalem; and by that means ſucceeding his Father in the Kingdom, made ſtout Reſiſtance againſt the Infidels, William of Tyre, Du Haillan.

FOULK, Archbiſhop of Rheims, ſucceeded Hincmar, in 883. and took part with Charles the Simple. He alſo oppos'd the Nicolaitans, who at that time began to gather new ſtrength. At length having excommunicated Winomach, Lord of Iſleers for Plundering his Abbey of St. Vaſt, Foulk was by him aſſaſſinated in the Year 900.

FOX, (John) the Martyrologiſt, was born at Boſton, in Lincolnſhire, Anno 1617. He was firſt a Student of Brazen-Noſe-College in Oxford, and afterwards choſen Fellow of Magdalen. He was counted a good Scholar and well vers'd in the Fathers, Councils, and School-Divinity: Not being ſatisfied with the State of Religion, he travel'd into Germany, in the latter End of King Henry the Eighth's Reign, and ſettled at Bazil, in the Houſe of Oporinus, an Eminent Printer. After the Death of King Henry, he return'd into England, where he ſtaid till Queen Mary came to the Crown, and then travell'd again to Bazil, where he ſtudied till the Death of that Princeſs. Now Queen Elizabeth being at the Helm, he came back for England, and ſettled in London, where be publiſh'd his Acts and Monuments of the Church: He was a Perſon of good natural Parts, of an Exemplary Life, and particularly very charitable, but a very rigid Calviniſt, always averſe to ſubſcribe the Canons, and diſſatisfied with ſome Ceremonies of the Church. His Acts and Monuments were Reprinted in 1684. in three Volumes Folio, with Copper-Cuts. In this Book the Authour has ſhewn a great deal of Induſtry with ſome Remarks judicious enough, but then he is ſaid to have fallen into a great many Miſtakes, by truſting the Relations of poor People of very moderate Underſtandings, which poſſibly might be the occaſion of his making ſome Martyrs, who were living after the firſt Edition of his Book: 'Tis true, he omitted theſe Inſtances afterwards. Thoſe that have a mind to examine this Work farther, may conſult Father Parſons in his Treatiſe, of the three Converſions of England, &c. wherein he charges Fox with wilful Miſtakes, falſe Citations, inconcluſive Reaſoning, and Diſreſpect to Antiquity and Engliſh Hiſtory; but as to the Truth or Falſhood of theſe Imputations, I ſhall determine nothing, but leave it to the Reader's Examination. Mr. Fox wrote ſeveral other Treatiſes in Engliſh, and Latin. As, De Cenſura ſeu Excommunicatione Eccleſiaſtica, Interpellatio ad Archiep. Cantuar. De Chriſto gratis juſtificante contra Jeſuitas, &c. Athenæ Oxonienſes.

FOX MORZILLO, known by the Name of Sebaſtianus Foxus Morzillus, was of Sevil, in Spain, where he was born in 1528. and began to write at 20 Years of Age. He was appointed Tutor to Don Carlos, by Philip II. but was caſt away, in his Paſſage for Spain, in the flower of his Age. However, he left ſeveral Pieces behind him; as Commentaries upon Plato's Timæus and Phædo; De Regno & Regis Inſtitutione, lib. 3. De Conſentione Plat. & Ariſtot. lib. 5. De Conſcribenda Hiſtoria, &c.

FOY, in Cornwall, a good Haven, ſtrongly fortified at the Entrance with Blockhouſes. From London 240 Miles.

FRACASTORIUS, (Jerom) a Famous Phyſician, Poet and Aſtrologer, born at Verona. 'Tis ſaid, that while he was an Infant, his Mother carrying him in her Arms, was ſtruck with a Thunderbolt, that did not the leaſt harm to the Child. The Hiſtory of his Time, informs us, that he enforc'd forc'd the Fathers aſſembl'd at Trent, to remove the Council to Bologn, for fear of a Contagious Diſeaſe which he foreſaw. Though others ſay, that Paul IV. oblig'd him to give out that Advice; believing it would be more to his Advantage to have the Council in Italy, than in Germany, under the Power of Charles V. However it were, certain it is, that the Ninth and Tenth Seſſion of that Council was at Bolonia, in April, 1547. and June following. Fracaſtorius was intimate with Cardinal Bembo; to whom he ſent his Poem of the Neapolitan Diſeaſe, entituled Siphilis. He died at Padua, of an Apoplexy, in the Year 1553. and in the 71ſt. of his Age, leaving ſeveral excellent Pieces behind him, as De Cauſis Criticorum Dierum, De Contagioſis Morbis; De Cura Canum Venaticorum, De Sympathia & Antipathia, &c. And after his Death, the City of Verona erected a Statue in his Memory. Hieronymo Fracaſtorio Pauli Philippi F. ex publica Auctoritate Anno M.D. LIX.

FRAGA, a Town of Arragon, in the Kingdom of Spain, upon the River Cinca, in the Frontiers of Catalogna, four Leagues from Ilerda to the Weſt, with a ſtrong Caſtle.

FRAMLINGHAM, a ſmall Market-Town in the County of Suffolk, in the Hundred of Loos, near the River Ore, where was anciently a large ſtrong Caſtle of Saxon Work,in which Robert Earl of Leiceſter took his Quarters, in the Rebellion againſt King Henry the IId. To this Caſtle in 1553. Queen Mary retreated, and by the Aſſiſtance of the Proteſtant Gentry of that County, recover'd the Crown of England. Baker's Chron.

FRAMPTON, a Market-Town in Dorſetſhire, pleaſantly ſeated on the River. 102 Miles from London.

FRANCE, one of the faireſt Countries, and largeſt Kingdoms of Europe; lies much about the 45th. Deg. of Lat. which is in the Middle of the Temperate Zone. It is waſh'd by the Ocean, to the Weſt; by the Mediterranean, to the South. It is contiguous to the Low-Countries toward the North; which way it is alſo bounded by the Chanel. Germany and Italy lie to the Eaſt, Spain to the South; the Alpes divide it from Italy; the Pyreneans, from Spain; and the River Rhine, from Germany. It extends from near the 42d. Deg. of Lat. to the 51ſt. and from the 15th. of Longit. to the 29th. So that the Length and Breadth may amount to about 200, or 225 Leagues each. The Emperour Auguſtus divided France into four great Provinces, Belgic, Celtic, Aquitanic, and Narbonnenſis. Others, according to the Diviſion obſerv'd by the moſt Able of the Ancient Geographers, have ſub-divided the Firſt into French, Flemiſh and German. The Second, which is the Celtic, into Maritime, Pariſian and Burgundian. Aquitanic, into Firſt, Second and Third. And Narbonnenſis, into Weſtern on this ſide, and Eaſtern on the other ſide the Rhone. But when the King aſſembles the States-General of the Kingdom, compos'd of the three Bodies of the Clergy, Nobility, and third Eſtate; the Ancient Order, is, to divide all France into twelve Principal Governments; the Deputies of which have a Right to ſit in the States. Theſe Governments have ſeveral other particular ones under 'em. And in regard the Loire runs the longeſt courſe, and flowing through the Middle of the Kingdom, divides it almoſt into Two Equal Parts, theſe Governments are conſider'd as 4 on the right-ſide of the River toward the North; 4 on the left-hand to the South; and 4 that lie about it, and upon the Banks of it. The 4 firſt are Picardy, Normandy, the Iſland of France, and Champagne. The 4 to the South of the Loire, are Guienne and Gaſcoign, Languedoc, Provence and the Dauphinate: And the other 4 are Burgundy, Auvergne and Lyonnois, Bretaign and Orleanois: All which Governments, have other Governments under 'em. But more truly the 4 Governments may be thus marked out: 4 to the North, and bordering upon the Seine, Picardy, Normandy, the Iſland of France and Champagne: 4 in the Middle of the Kingdom, and bordering about the Loire, Bretagne, Orleanois, Burgundy, and Lyonnois, with Auvergne; and 4 others, on the South-ſide, toward the Rhone, or Garonne, viz. Provence, Dauphinate, Languedoc, and Guyenne. France is alſo divided by her Metropolis's; of which there are 16, without counting either Avignon or Beſanzon; Lyons, Paris, Rheims, Sens, Bourges, Tours, Narbon, Auſch, Bourdeaux, Toulouſe, Rouen, Vienne, Ambrun, Arles, Aix, and Albi, lately erected into a Metropolis. Under theſe Metropolitans are 105 Suffragans. Seven of the Metropolitans pretend to Primacy, Sens, Lyons, Bourges, Narbonne, Rouen, Bourdeaux, and Vienne; but Lyons is the only City which enjoys that Privilege. France may be alſo divided by her Ten Parliaments; of Paris, the largeſt of all in Juriſdiction, Tholouſe, Grenoble, Bourdeaux, Dijon, Rouen, Aix, Rennes, Pau and Metz: Under which are an infinite number of Leſſer Courts, Seneſchalſhips, Preſidials, Elections, &c. The 10 Univerſities of France, are Paris, Tholouſe, Bourdeaux, Poictiers, Orleans, Bourges, Caen, Montpelier, Cahors, Nantes, Rheims, Valence, Aix, and Avignon.

The Mountains, Rivers, Iſlands, Sea-Ports and Towns of France, &c.

Its Chief Mountains are the Alpes, the Pyrenees, the Cevennes, call'd by the Ancients Gebennæ, Mont Jura, towards Swiſſerland, and the Vogeſus, towards the Dioceſs of Langres. Its Chief Rivers are the Loire, the Rhone, Garonne and Seine, which receive in their courſe an infinite number of leſſer, yet prety conſiderable Streams. Its Iſlands are Belle-Iſle, on the Coaſts of Britany; Noir-Mouſtier, on the Coaſts of Poictou; the Iſlands of Rhee and Oleron, over-againſt the Country of Auny and Xaintonge, &c. In the Mediterranean are the Iſles of Hieres, of St. Margaret, and St. Honoret, on the Coaſts of Provence, &c. The Sea-Ports in the Ocean are Breſt, Blavet, Morbian, St. Paul de Leon, Lucon, Rochelle, Brovage, Havre de Grace, Dieppe, Calais, St. Valeri, Treport, &c. Thoſe of the Mediterranean, are Marſeilles and Toulon, &c. As for the number of its Cities and Conſiderable Towns, ſome Authors make it 3000; counting 50000 Pariſhes, whoſe Inhabitants, in King Charles IXth's Reign, were reckon'd to conſiſt of 20000000 of Souls. The Chief Town of the whole is Paris; next are Lyons, Tholouſe, Bourdeaux, Roan, Poictiers, Orleans, Aix, Dijon, Grenoble, &c. The Country in general abounds in Corn, Vines, Oils, Hemp, Salt, Saffron, Fruits, Paſture, Cattle, Fowl, Game of all kind: In a word, It wants nothing that is neceſſary for the Life of Man: which made the Emperor Maximilian ſay, That if it were poſſible that he himſelf were God, his Eldeſt Son ſhould ſucceed him, and the Second ſhould be King of France. The French are Induſtrious, their Gentry Well-bred, Civil to Strangers, Martial, but impatient of Toil. In former Times the French Infantry was but indifferent, but now their Foot are very good, and in Attacking of a Place they ought to be preferr'd before other Nations. They have always had a great Veneration for their King, and are ready to Sacrifice Life and Fortune in his Service. The French are alſo brisk, Enterprizing, and of an airy, Entertaining Temper; as to their Apparel and Behaviour, they generally hit the Points of Decency and Nature, and ſome other Nations, whoſe Temper is more enclin'd to gravity, in attempting to imitate 'em, often times make but an indifferent Copy, there being a vaſt difference in theſe matters, betwixt what is natural and what is affected. They are of a Genius fit to undertake any thing whether it be in Learning, Trade, or Manufacture; eſpecially in thoſe things which depend more on Dexterity and Ingenuity, than hard labour. As for their Perſons, they are commonly of a Middle Stature, and for the moſt part, of a Slight Make. Their Women are more Perſonable, of Streight Bodies, Slender Waſte, and a fit Symmetry or Proportion of all the reſt; though there are not many Countreys in the Chriſtian World to whom nature has been ſo liberal of her choiceſt Bleſſings, as ſhe has been to this. The Fields thereof being large and open, and thoſe ſo intermix'd with Corn and Vines, and every Hedge ſo beſet with choice Fruits, that Eyes can hardly have fairer Objects. Yet ſo miſerable is the Condition of the Common People, by reaſon of the great Taxes laid upon 'em by the King, that few Subjects in Europe live poorer. The Franks originally a German Nation, inhabiting Franconia, which is ſtill call'd Eaſtern-France, to diſtinguiſh it from this Country. This Nation joyning with many others upon the declining of the Roman Empire, under Pharamond, about 413 obtain'd that part of Belgium which contain'd Zutphen, Utrecht, Over-Yſſel, both the Frieſelands, and that part of Holland that lies on the ſame ſide of the Rhine. But whether Pharamond ever croſs'd the Rhine, is uncertain; however, in 420. he became their Firſt King, and form'd this Potent Monarchy. Clodion, his Son, in 433. croſs'd the Rhine, and took Cambray, Tournay, and all Belgium, to the River Soam: But he dying whil'ſt his Children were young, commended them to Meroveus; who diſpoſſeſſed them, to make himſelf King of France, in 441. or thereabouts. This Meroveus was the Author of the Merovingian Line, and is by ſome made the Firſt that ſeated himſelf in Gaul. His Son went farther; he took all the Netherlands, Picardy, Champaigne, and the Iſle of France; with Paris, which he made the Seat of his Empire. This Race, under 19 Princes, continu'd to 742. when Pepin, Son of Charles Martel, uſurp'd upon Chilperick V Son of Theodorick, and depos'd him. This Second, or Carolovingian Line, under 13 Princes, laſted till 977. when Hugh Capet put an end to it, and ſet up a Third. Charles IV. the Fourteenth of this Race, dying in 1328. without Iſſue, Edward III. of England, claim'd that Crown, as Son and Heir of Iſabel the Daughter of King Philip the Fair, and Siſter to the three laſt Kings. Againſt him, Philip de Valois ſet up a Title, by colour of the Salique Law, which had excluded all Females. The whole Reign of this Prince and of John his Son, was dy'd in Blood by the Engliſh Valour. But Charles V. taking the Advantage of the Engliſh Diviſions, expell'd 'em; yet they return'd again in Charles VIth's Reign with more Vigour and Rage, and were, under Henry V. in a fair way of reducing France; but he dying young, Henry VI. his Son, was Crown'd at Paris, in 1422. The Minority at firſt, and Weakneſs afterwards, of this Prince, gave Charles VII. of France, the opportunity of recovering all from the Engliſh a ſecond time, in 1449. The Houſe of Valois ended in Henry III. ſtabb'd at St. Clou, in 1589. to whom Henry IV. the Firſt of the Houſe of Bourbon, and Grand-father of Lewis XIV. now King of France, ſucceeded Lewis XIII. his Father, in 1642. who how much he has extended the Limits of his Kingdom, ſee in his Article. M. Puffendorff in his Introduction to Hiſtory, obſerves, That tho' there are no Gold or Silver Mines in France, yet the

the Vigilance and Induſtry of its Inhabitants draws into it vaſt Sums from the Neighbouring Countries, eſpecially in time of Peace; ſome having calculated that they ſell 14 Millions of Livres worth of Silks into Foreign Countries every Year. That their Wine brings 'em 15, their Brandy 5, and their Salt 10 Millions, and ſo of ſeveral others; and it's well known, they have a conſiderable part of what the Spaniards draw from America, for the ſeveral Commodities they ſerve that Nation with. France has no great Matter in the other parts of the World, beſides ſome Colonies in the Caribby Iſlands, in the Northern Parts of Hiſpaniola, with the Fiſhery in New-found-Land, ſome Colonies in Canada and New France. It's true, they have often form'd a Deſign of getting footing in the Eaſt-Indies, but the Hollanders are too Potent in thoſe Parts to ſuffer it. As for the Revenues of France, the Clergy who are ſaid to have three Fifths of the whole have a Hundred and four millions and Five hundred thouſand Livres Yearly Income. The King, by the heavy Impoſitions he has laid upon the poor Subjects, has rais'd his to an Hundred and fifty millions; whereas in King Henry IVth's Reign, the Revenue of the Crown did not exceed Nineteen millions of Livres. As for the number of its Inhabitants, Cardinal Richelieu having order'd as exact a Supputation as could be well made, bragg'd that it might furniſh 600000 Foot, and 150000 Horſe: But the late Perſecution has made it much thinner. There were formerly Dukes, Counts, and other Lords in France, that were very powerful; who though they pay'd the King Homage, obey'd him but when they thought fit. Now there is no ſuch thing, all thoſe Lands being incorporated in the Demeſns of the Crown; the Dutchies and Counties now being only Lordſhips, honour'd with the ſpecious Titles, without Sovereignty or Juriſdiction. And Richelieu and Mazarine have ſo weakned the other Gentry, that they are ſcarce a Shadow of what they were. The Laws of this Kingdom are either Temporary, or Alterable; or Fundamental, which neither King nor Parliament, as they ſay, can alter: As the Salique Law, and Law of Appennages. By the firſt, Women cannot enjoy the Crown, nor any in their Right: And by the ſecond, the Younger Sons of Kings are not to have Partage in the Kingdom with their Elder Brothers; but muſt content themſelves with a certain Revenue ſetled upon them, with the Title of Dukes, Counts, or as the King pleaſes. As for the Clergy of France, they ſtand more againſt the Encroachments of the See of Rome, than any other that lives under the Pope's Authority; which they acknowledge ſo far only as is conſiſtent with their own Privileges, and the Right of their Sovereign, over whom they deny any Temporal Power in the Pope. In formet Times, the Election of Archbiſhops, Biſhops Abbots, &c. belong'd to the Chapters and Convents, which was confirm'd by the Council of Bale; according to which, the pragmatical Sanction of Charles VII. was modell'd. It's true, this was aboliſh'd by the Concordate made between Francis I. and Pope Leo X. in 1515. Now the King, in 6 Months after the Deceaſe of any Prelate or Abbot, names a fit Perſon to ſucceed, who is confirm'd by the Pope, and during the Vacancy, the King enjoys the Revenues, and all other things belonging to the vacant See; which is call'd Regalia, or the Prerogative Royal. The manner of holding an Aſſembly of the Eſtates-General of the Kingdom, is as follows. Theſe States, which are much the ſame with our Engliſh Parliaments, conſiſt of three Orders, or Ranks of Men, viz. The Clergy, the Nobleſs, and the third Eſtate. The King calls them together at his pleaſure, by a Summons ſent to the reſpective Parliaments, or Courts of Juſtice, which Parliaments tranſmit the Edict, or Summons to the Bailiffs, and other inferiour Judges: Every Town draws up a Bill or Schedule of what they intend to propoſe in the Aſſembly; The Clergy likewiſe, and the Nobleſs obſerve the ſame Method: Theſe three Schedules being ſent to the reſpective Bailiff, are contracted or form'd into one, which is carried to the Parliament of the Diſtrict, where a general Bill for each Province is drawn up. The Deputies of the Three Eſtates of each Province being preſent, the Bills or Articles of the whole Kingdom are reduc'd to three, one for the Clergy, another for the Nobleſs, and a third for the third Eſtate. At the laſt Aſſembly of the Eſtates-General, held at Paris in 1614. The Clergy had a hundred and forty Repreſentatives, conſiſting of Cardinals, Archbiſhops, Biſhops, and other inferiour Eccleſiaſticks; The Nobleſs were repreſented by a hundred and thirty two of their Order; and the third Eſtate, had a hundred and ninety two Deputies, who had, moſt of 'em, Commiſſions in the Courts of Juſtice, or in the Treaſury and Royal Revenues. In the ſolemn Proceſſion of this Aſſembly; The third Eſtate goes firſt, the Nobleſs next, and the Clergy laſt: In the great Hall where they attend the King. There are two Benches of each ſide; where the Eccleſiaſticks ſit on the Right, and the Nobleſs on the Left-hand, having the third Eſtate plac'd behind them. Theſe three Orders, or Chambers, have each their reſpective Preſident, and in the Aſſembly above-mention'd, the Cardinal of Joyeuſe was for the Clergy; the Baron d' Senecy, for the Nobleſs, and the Prevoſt des Merchans, or Mayor of Paris for the third Eſtate. Some Authors will have this Aſſembly conſiſt of four Orders, making the Officers of Juſtice the fourth; but theſe, in reality, by the French Conſtitution, are but part of the third. The Aſſembly of the Eſtates-General has not been conven'd ſince Lewis the XIIIth. the Royal Prerogative being ſo much enlarged ſince that time, that 'tis now the Method of that Court to raiſe Taxes, and ſettle affairs without them. The Kings of France ſtile themſelves Moſt Chriſtian, pretend a Right of Precedency for their Embaſſadours, before thoſe of all other Crown'd Heads in Europe, except the Pope and Emperour. They are Crown'd at Rheims, and Bury'd at St. Denys; the Ceremonies of both which Solemnities are too many to be inſerted here. The Emperour Charles V. us'd to ſay, The Italians appear Wiſe, and are really ſo; the Spaniards ſeem Wiſe, but are not: but the French are Wiſe, without appearing ſo. If we will believe their own Authors, the good Qualities and Moral Vertues of the Chief Parts of Europe, are found eminently in ſome one of their Provinces; as, the Freeneſs of Germany, in Picardy; the Generoſity of the Swede, in Champagne; the Activity of Poland, in Languedoc; the Prudence of Italy, in Provence; the Gravity of Spain, in Gaſcony; the Faithfulneſs of Swiſſerland, in Dauphiné; the Subtilty of Greece, in Normandy; and the Induſtry of Flanders, in Burgundy. Their Language is a Mixture of the Greek, Latin aud German Tongues: The Latin was formerly much us'd in the Provinces about the Loire; and the Publick Acts were in that Tongue, until 1535. that Francis I. order'd they ſhould be made in French. The Duration of this Monarchy is reckon'd 1300 Years; and Lewis XIV. is their 64th. King. See The Preſent State of France. Puffendorff, Introduct. Hiſt.

FRANCFORT upon the Mein, in Latin Francofurtum, an Imperial City of Germany in Franconia, within the Dioceſs of Mayence, is divided into two parts by the River, of which the larger part retains the Name which is common to the whole City; The other, which is a kind of Suburb, is call'd by the Name of Saxen-Hauſen, or the Houſe of the Saxons. Both parts are very ſtrong, and ſurrounded with wide Moats full of Water, and well faced. The moſt conſiderable Structures are, St. Bartholomew's Church. The Town-Houſe, where the Golden Bull is kept; The Imperial Palace; the Fortreſs; the Bridge between two Towers; the Haven, &c. The Cathedral is ſuppos'd to have been built by King Pepin, or rather by Lewis the Pious, King of Germany, who died at Francfort. The Houſes are built of Wood cover'd with Plaiſter, and Painted on the out-ſide. There are in it ſeveral fair Squares, inhabited by wealthy Merchants. Three things make her famous; the Election of the Emperours, who have been always choſen there ſince the Conſtitution of the Golden Bull; it's being the place where the ſame Golden Bull is preſerv'd; and the place where two of the greateſt Fairs in Germany are kept for the Utterance of all ſorts of Commodities, and particularly for Books, both printed and Sold in that Town. This City was call'd thus before the Reign of Charles the Great, upon the Account of the Paſſage the Franks had here over the Mein; though it was a City long before under another Name. But the Suburbs was call'd Saxen-Hauſen, the Dwelling of the Saxons. The greateſt part of the Citizens are Lutherans, though Roman Catholicks and Calviniſts are tolerated, as alſo the Jews. The Town is govern'd by Conſuls, Senators and Sheriffs choſen by the Tradeſmen. In the Year 794. there was a General-Council of the Weſtern-Church, held at Francfort, under Charles the Great; at which, Theophylactus and Stephanus, the Pope's Legates, and about 300 Biſhops were preſent. The two principal Points diſputed, determin'd and condemn'd in this Synod, were, Firſt, The Hereſie of Elipandus Biſhop of Toledo, and Felix Biſhop of Urghell. They maintain'd that our Saviour was only the Son of God by Adoption. Secondly, The Controverſie about Images being examin'd to the Bottom; it was, at laſt, decreed, that they might be retained in Churches for refreſhing the Hiſtory of what they repreſented upon the Memory, and for Ornament-ſake, but by no means to be ador'd or worſhipp'd, in any Meaſure; Inſomuch that the Acts of the ſecond Council of Nice, drawn up with Indiſcretion and Arrogancy, for the Adoration of Images, or to uſe the words of the Opus Carolinum, Quæ in partibus Græciæ, pro adorandis Imaginibus ſtolidè ſive arroganter geſta eſt, upon a full Debate of the Caſe, were condemn'd and revers'd: The Teſtimonies of the Fathers and other Eccleſiaſtical Authors, made uſe of by the Nicene Aſſembly, were brought upon the Board, and all the Sophiſtry and falſe Colouring of that Council ſolidly refuted; ſo that upon the whole matter, this Council of Francfort pronounc'd the ſecond Council of Nice, no General-Council, neither was it eſteem'd any other than a Pſeudo or pretended Synod, by the Writers of that Age. This, beſides other Inſtances, may be prov'd from a French Annaliſt, where mentioning the Year 794. p. 13. he ſpeaks of the Council of Francfort, in theſe words, Pſeudo-Synodus Græcorum pro adorandis Imaginibus habita, & falſo ſeptima vocata, ab Epiſcopis damnatur, which words are repeated by the Author of Charles the Vth's Life, pag. 56. That matters were thus tranſacted, in the Council of Francfort, appears, not only by the Teſtimony of almoſt all the conſiderable Writers of that, and the next ſucceeding Ages, viz. Of Adrian, a Synod held at Paris, Hincmar, Haymo, Ado Viennenſis, Vrſpergenſis, Hermannus Contractus, Aventinus,&c. but likewiſe from the ſecond Canon of the Council it ſelf; And to add another Authority beyond all Exception, the Four Caroline Books- which if not wholly written by Charles the Great, were at leaſt, drawn up by his Direction, and upon his Minutes, by the Biſhops, who made part of this Synod: Theſe Four Books, I ſay, were revis'd by that Emperour, read and approv'd in the Council, and afterwards tranſmitted by his Imperial Majeſty, to Pope Adrian: The Cauſe being carried in this manner 'tis ſomewhat ſurprizing to ſee the more modern Editours of the Councils, place the following Contents at the Head of the Council of Francfort: In quo Hæreſis Fæliciana tertio damnata eſt, Actaque Concilii Nicæni in cauſa Imaginum confirmata: Now ſince the Decrees and Reſolutions of this Council cannot be better known than by appealing to the Opus Carolinum above-mention'd, it may not be amiſs to give the Reader two or three General Strokes of the Contents of this Work: In the firſt Book, after the Preface, and ſome Exceptions to the Letters of Conſtantine and Irene, the Texts of Holy Scripture produc'd to defend Image-worſhip, are brought to the Teſt, and the Interpretations of them, prov'd abſurd and inconcluſive. The Second Book proceeds to a further Examination of Scripture-Authorities, together with the Teſtimonies of the Holy Fathers, alledged by the Nicene Synod; and after having ſettled a Diſtinction between Civil and Religious Worſhip, the falſe reaſoning of the Nicene Fathers, is demonſtrated at large: In the third Book, the dangerous and unſound Opinions of ſeveral of the Nicene Biſhops, both in reference to the Article of the Holy Ghoſt, and alſo with reſpect to Image-worſhip, are further'd examin'd, and the Miracles pretended to be wrought in Confirmation of that Point, fully conſider'd. The fourth Book, proceeding upon the ſame Subject, examines the remaining Arguments and Objections, and in the laſt Chapter concludes roundly, that the Nicene Fathers were miſtaken in calling their Aſſembly a General Council, in regard it was neither Univerſal nor Oecumenical in its Repreſentatives,nor yet held to the Doctrines and Traditions of the Catholick Church: This is a ſhort Abſtract of the Opus Carolinum, and therefore, 'tis poſſible ſome People may the leſs wonder that it is not publiſh'd in the Tomes of the Councils, nor in the Capitulars of Baluzius. Beſide the Argument above-mention'd, there were LVI. Canons made in the Council of Francfort, relating chiefly to Diſcipline and Reformation of Manners, which the Reader may ſee, in the VIIth Tome of the Councils. The Roman Catholicks endeavour to invalidate the Credit of theſe Caroline Books, by excepting againſt the Genuineneſs of them; but the Authority of this Capitular, is ſo firmly eſtabliſh'd, by the Ancient and almoſt contemporary Authours above-mention'd, that it betrays rather a prejudice and partiality to conteſt it: Some of the Church of Rome are ſo hardy as to affirm, that the Opus Carolinum was forg'd either by Caroloſtadius, or ſome other modern Lutheran or Calviniſt, when 'tis publickly known that Johannes Tilius a Roman Catholick, Biſhop of Meaux, in France, was the firſt that printed it at Paris, in 1549: This Edition agreeing exactly with an Old Vatican Copy written in Lombard Characters; to ſay nothing, that the very Stile and Diction of the Book carries it up to the Age it pretends to. The Objections of Poſſevin and le Cointe, are very ſlender and inſignificant, and only prove themſelves not pleas'd with the Contents of the Book. Cave Hiſt. Liter. pars prima, p. 492. Et pars altera, p. 264, 265.

FRANCFORT, uponthe Oder, in Latin Francofurtum ad Oderam; remarkable for its Univerſity, Founded there by Joachim Marqueſs of Brandenburgh. It is ſeated toward the Frontiers of Luſatia, Poland, and Sileſia, between Croiſſeir and Kuſtrin; which are both upon the Oder. It was at firſt but a place for Ware-houſes where the Merchants brought their Goods that were to be carried by Water up and down the River. But John I. Marquis of Brandenburgh aggrandiz'd it in 1253. Waldemar ſettled a Senate in it in 1318. and other Princes of the ſame Family gave it ſeveral Privileges. It ſuffer'd much under the Emperor Charles IV. who proſcribed it for Diſobedience, and forc'd the Inhabitants to pay 12000 Marks in Silver before he would take off the Out-Lawry. It is a large Town and of great Trade, divided into two parts by the Oder, which are joyn'd together by a Wooden-Bridge. It hath two Marts yearly as well as the other. It ſtands upon the Borders of Sileſia and Luſatia, and 4 German Miles from the Confines of Great Poland to the Weſt, 10 from Berlin; heretofore an Imperial free City, but now exempt.

FRANCHINI, (Francis) Biſhop of Coſenza in Italy, of whom Thuanus. At that time Francis Franchini died Young. He married Mars to the Muſes; Accompanied Charles V. in his Expedition to Algier, and wrote in Verſe the Fatal Succeſs of it. We have ſome Dialogues of his, not Inferior to Lucian's, &c. l. 13. He died in the Year 1554.

FRANCIA, a Famous Painter of Vrbin, who died for Grief at the ſight of a Picture of Raphael Vrbin's, deſpairing to be able ever to imitate it. Vaſari, Baglioni, &c.

FRANCIS I. ſurnam'd the Great and Reſtorer of Learning, ſucceeded Louis XII. in 1515. Being Crown'd, he aſſum'd the Title of Duke of Milan, in right of his Great-great-Grand-mother Valentina of Milan, Wife of Lewis Duke of Orleans, ſlain at Paris in 1407. To make good his Claim, he rais'd an Army, and fought the Battel of Marignan with the Switzers which laſted two Days, and got the Victory at laſt: Upon which Milan open'd her Gates, and all Lombardy ſubmitted to the French. At the ſame time he alſo took Parma and Placentia from the Pope, who, joyning afterwards with the Spaniards, drave the French Garriſon out of Milan. Thereupon Francis returns into Italy in the Year 1525. and recovers Milan again; but being overthrown by the Imperialiſts at Pavia, was taken Priſoner and carried into Spain, where he was kept till he had ſign'd Conditions to reſtore the Kingdom of Naples, reſign the Counties of Flanders and Burgundy, and given his two Sons for Performance of Covenants. But notwithſtanding all this, upon his return into France, he made a League againſt Charles V. with the Pope and the Venetians, and began a new War with various Succeſs. On the one ſide, the Imperialiſts under Bourbon and Fronſperg, take and Plunder Rome. On the other ſide, the French under Lautrec and de Foix beſiege Naples, and take the Imperial Generals, and had alſo taken the City, but that a Contagious Diſeaſe ſwept away both the Army and the General. Upon which enſued the Peace of Cambray, concluded in 1529. and confirm'd by the King's Marriage with Eleonor of Auſtria the Emperor's Siſter. Nevertheleſs, Francis after this, makes himſelf Maſter of Savoy, in 1535 and 1536. The Emperor enters Provence in Perſon, and Picardy, by his Generals. Francis raiſes the Sieges of Peronne and Turin, and making a League with Solyman II. takes Heſdin and St. Paul, and forces the Paſs of Suza; but loſes Guiſe and Montrevil. Upon which a Truce for Nine Years was concluded at Nice in Provence, in 1538. which laſted not long: For the Emperor having promiſed Francis the Inveſtiture of the Dukedom of Milan, upon his refuſal to perform his Promiſe, Francis enters Italy, Luxemburgh, and Rouſſillon, and Francis of Bourbon gains the Battel of Cerizoles; upon which follow'd the Peace of Creſpi in Laonnois, and ſoon after the Death of King Francis, who died at the Caſtle of Rambouillet, in the Year 1547. after he had reigned 32 Years and 3 Months. Being 52 Years of Age. 'Twas obſervable, That notwithſtanding the magnificent living of this Prince, his vaſt Expences in War, Buildings, and Purchaſes of Things of Great Value; yet he left behind him at his Death, above Four hundred thouſand Crowns, and all his Debts paid. Francis I. Succeeded Lewis XII. as next Heir-Male, and Firſt Prince of the Royal Blood, and Married his Daughter Claude of France, tho' ſhe had been promiſed to Charles of Auſtria. It is obſerv'd, that in his memorable Battel againſt the Swiſſers, he reſted all Night in a Cannon-Carriage, and contented himſelf with dirty bloody Water to quench his Thirſt. He aboliſh'd the Pragmatical Sanction at the Solicitation of Pope Leo X. in 1515. His misfortune at Pavia was attributed to his Mothers unkind Uſage of Charles of Bourbon, who there upon revolted to the Emperor and his own ill Conduct in weakning his Army by ſending a great Detachment towards Naples. He founded the Royal College at Paris, and was a great Countenancer of Learning in his Kingdom, ſent ſeveral able Men into foreign Countries to buy curious Manuſcripts; Furniſh'd all the Royal Palaces with Painting, Statues, Tapeſtries, and other rich Furniture. He was alſo a great Lover of his People, recommended them to his Son at his Death, ordering him to eaſe them of the Impoſitions which he himſelf was forc'd to lay upon them to carry on the War againſt his Enemies. His Device was a Salamander in a Fire with theſe words, Nutriſco & extinguo. Thuan. Mez.

FRANCIS II. Son of Hen. II. born at Fontainbleau, the 20th. of Jan. 1543. At that time his Father was no more than Dauphin. This Francis at the Age of 15 Years, married Mary Stewart of Scotland, only Daughter of James the Vth. King of Scotland, being Crown'd King of France after the Death of his Father, in 1559. The Duke of Guiſe, and the Cardinal his Brother, the Queens Uncles, making advantage of the minority and weakneſs of the young Prince, rendred themſelves Abſolute, managing all things as they pleaſed, which highly diſguſted Anthony of Bourbon King of Navarre, and Lewis his Brother, Prince of Conde; which laſt, upon the diſcovery of the Conſpiracy of Amboiſe, was condemn'd to loſe his Head; but the ſudden Death of the King ſaved his Life. The King died in the 17th. Year of his Age, in 1560. and his Death quite alter'd the Face of Affairs. Thuanus, d' Avila.

FRANCIS, King of Navarre, Count of Foix, ſurnam'd Phæbus, by reaſon of his Beauty, was Son to Gaſton de Foix the Vth. of that name, and of Magdalen of France Daughter to Charles the VIIth. ſucceeded his Grandmother Eleonor of Navarre, and reign'd under the Tuition of his Mother and his Uncle, Peter Cardinal of Foix. He was Crown'd at Pampelona in 1482. and returning into Bearn, was poiſon'd at Pau, at the beginning of the next Year. Mariana.

FRANCIS, Dauphin of France, Duke of Bretagne Crown'd Duke of Bretaigne at Rheims in 1532. a Brave and Generous Prince, poiſon'd at Valence, or Leyon by Sebaſtian Count of Montecuculi of Ferrara. Du Bellay. Mezeray.

FRANCIS, Duke of Alençon, Anjou, &c. youngeſt Son of Hen. II. King of France, a troubleſome diſcontented prince, being refus'd the Employment of Lieutenant General of the Kingdom, he headed the Reyters, which Caſimir Count Palatin led into France, againſt Hen. III. his Brother. But that difference being reconcil'd, and he made Lieutenant-General of the King's Armies, he was call'd into the Low-Countries, where he was received into ſome Cities, and took Bins in 1578. Returning into France his Brother caus'd him to be Arreſted in the Louvre, but by the means of his Favourite Buſſi d' Amboiſe, he made his Eſcape. Soon after he was acknowledged Prince of the Low-Countries, whither he march'd with 4000 Horſe and 10000 Foot, raiſed the Siege of Cambray, drave the Enemy out of Sluſe, and Arleux, and compelled Chaſteau Cambreſis to Surrender at diſcretion. In the mean time he made a Voyage into England, in hopes to have Married Queen Elizabeth; but without Succeſs. In 1582. being preſs'd by the States, he return'd into the Low-Countries, and was Crown'd Duke of Brabant at Antwerp, and Count of Flanders at Gaunt. Afterwards led away by ill Counſel, he reſolved to Deſtroy thoſe he came to Protect; and to that purpoſe, he ſeiz'd upon Vilvord, Dunkirk, and ſome other Towns where the French Garriſons lay; but being repuls'd from Antwerp, he fled back into France, and died at Chaſteau Thierry in 1584. Thuan. d' Avila, Strada, Mezeray, &c.

FRANCIS of Bourbon, Duke of Montpenſier, &c. ſignaliz'd his Courage at the Siege of Rouen, and Battels of Jarnac and Moncontour, and in many Rencounters defeated ſeveral Parties of the Leaguers. After the Death of Hen. III. he ſided with Hen. IV. Commanded the Vanguard at the Battel of Arques, ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Battel of Yvry, reduc'd Avranches; but falling Sick at the Siege of Rouen, was carried to Liſieux, where he died in 1592. D' Avila, St. Marthe, Matthieu, &c.

FRANCIS of Bourbon, Prince of Conti, &c. was the Younger Son of Lewis of Bourbon I. of that Name, Prince of Conde, and follow'd the Fortunes of Henry IV. to whom he was reconcil'd after the Death of Henry III. He fought at the Battel of Yvry, and upon ſeveral other important Occaſions; and died in the Year 1614. Thuan. Mezeray, D' Avila, Sulli's Memoires, &c.

FRANCIS of Bourbon, Count of St. Paul and Chaumond, Duke of Eſtouteville, &c. accompanied Francis I. into Italy, and ſignalizing himſelf at the Battel of Marignan, was Knighted by the famous Bayard. Afterwards he reliev'd Mezieres, Beſieg'd by the Imperialiſts, took Mouzon and Bapaume, but was taken Priſoner at the Battel of Pavia. Making his Eſcape, he re-enter'd Milanois, where he prov'd ſucceſsful at firſt; but being ſurpriz'd at Landriana by Antonio di Leva, and forſaken by his Soldiers, he was a ſecond time taken Priſoner, and not releas'd till the Treaty of Cambray. In 1536. he ſerved in the War of Savoy, reliev'd Landrecy, and died at Cotignan in 1545. Du Bellay, P. Jovius, &c.

FRANCIS of Bourbon, Duke of Anguien, gave ſuch early marks of his Courage, that Francis I. in the Year 1543. entruſted him very Young with an Army; at what time, joyning with Barbaroſſa the pirate, he took the City of Nice. After that, the King ſent him into Piedmont, where he took Creſcentin, Dexana, &c. and entirely defeated the Marquis of Guaſt at Cerizoles, killing 10000 upon the place and taking 4000 Priſoners with the Enemy's Baggage and Artillery with the loſs of no more than 200 Men. After which he took all Montferrat, except Caſal. He was killed by the fall of a Cheſt which for want of due care fell upon his Head. In the Caſtle of Roche Guyon in 1546. Du Bellay, Monluc, Thuanus, &c.

FRANCIS I. Duke of Bretagne ſucceeded his Father John VI. in 1442. He inſtituted the Order of Hermine, took from the Engliſh, Pont de l' Arche, Conches, Gerbroy and Cognac, and died of a Dropſie in 1450.

FRANCIS II. Duke of Bretagne, ſucceeded his Uncle Arthur III. in 1458. He join'd with the Count of Charolois againſt Lewis XI. in the War for the Publick Good, as it was then ſtil'd, and entering Normandy, took Caen and Bayeux; but being recall'd to defend his own Country, he made a League with the Engliſh and diſcontented Princes, againſt Charles VIII. but being defeated at St. Aubin de Cormier in 1488. was conſtrain'd to ſue for Peace, and died the ſame Year.

FRANCIS d' Eſte, Duke of Modena and Reggio, ſucceeded his Father Alphonſus III. was made General for the Confederate Princes of Italy in 1643. In 1656 he Commanded the French Army that took Valence upon the Po, govern'd his Territories with much Prudence in a Troubleſome Conjuncture, and died in 1658.

FRANCIS d' Eſte II. Duke of Modena and Reggio, Prince of Carpi, the Son of Alphonſo IV. and Laura Martinozzi, Cardinal Mazarine's Niece, ſucceeded his Father, under the Regency of his Mother, and died in 1662. not above two Years of Age.

FRANCIS Duke of Lorrain and Barr, a Prudent and couragious Prince, married Chriſtina, of Denmark, the Widow of Francis Sforza II. Duke of Milan, in 1540. and died of an Apoplexy in 1545. and in the 28th. Year of his Age. St. Marthe, Vignier, &c.

FRANCIS of Lorrain, Duke of Guiſe and Aumale, &c. ſignaliz'd his Courage at the taking of Montmedy, the Relief of Landrecy, and the Defence of St. Dezier, and defended the City of Metz againſt all the Forces of the Empire, conſtraining Charles V. to raiſe his Siege. He took Calais from the Engliſh, and Thionville from the Spaniards; and after the Death of Hen. II. in the Reign of Francis II. He and the Cardinal his Brother govern'd all the Affairs of France, which drew upon him the Envy of the French Nobility, and occaſion'd the Conſpiracy of Amboiſe. He defeated the Imperialiſts at the famous Battel of Renty, forced the Spaniards to a Peace with Paul IV. and being ſent for out of Italy after the French were defeated at the Battel of St. Quintin in 1557. he rais'd their drooping Spirits, and did ſuch Service, that it was propos'd to give him the Title of Vice-Roy; but that appearing too Ambitious, he was made Lieutenant-General of that King's Armies, both in and out of the Kingdom; which was confirm'd to him by King Henry II. and Francis II. to which the Parliament of Paris added that more glorious one, of Preſerver of his Country. But Charles IX. in the beginning of his Reign, not ſhewing him that Favour, he join'd with the Conſtable Montmorency and the Mareſchal of St. Andrew, and left the Court becauſe the famous Admiral Coligni had the Kings Ear: returning to Paris again in 1561. his Retinue quarrelling with the Proteſtants at Vaſſy, Kill'd above 60, and Wounded 200; whereupon both Parties taking Arms, the Duke took Roan and Bourges, and having defeated the Huguenots at the Battel of Dreux in 1562. lay Siege to Orleans, where he was ſhot; or as other's ſay Aſſaſſinated by John Poltrot Mere, and died Six Days after. His Children revenged his Death barbarouſly on the Admiral and his Party in the Bartholomew Maſſacre; pretending, That Poltrot when tortur'd with burning Pincers, &c. confeſs'd that he was ſet on by 'em. Thuan. Mezeray.

FRANCIS of Lorrain, Knight of Maltha, ſignaliz'd himſelf in the defence of Metz and Battel of Renty; being choſen General of the Galleys of Maltha, he defeated the Turkiſh Fleet before Rhodes; and at his return into France, being made Admiral of the Galleys of the Kingdom, in 1557. ſailed into Scotland with the Succours that were ſent to Mary Queen of Scots, his Siſter. Afterwards he was at the Battel of Dreux, where having fought all Day, he caught Cold upon an extream Heat, which threw him into a Pleuriſie, of which he died in 1652. Thuanus, D' Avila.

FRANCIS of Vendoſm, Duke of Beaufort, &c. Admiral of France, ſail'd into Africa in 1664. where the Enterprize of Gigery prov'd unfortunate to him. However, the next Year he defeated the Turks near Tunis and Algier. In 1669. he went to the Siege of Candia, where he was ſlain the ſame Year.

St. FRANCIS of Aſſiſe, an Epiſcopal Town in Ombria in Italy; firſt a Merchant, became afterwards Patriarch and Founder of the Order that bears his Name. In 1206. approv'd by Pope Innocent III. in 1215. and confirm'd by Honorius III. in 1223. It has ſince branch'd into ſeveral others, as Minims, Recolets, Capuchins, &c. So that there is now an infinite Number of theſe fratres Minores, as they call 'em in France, Spain, and other Popiſh Countries. The Founder died in 1226. Aged 46. Bzovius. Rainaldi.

FRANCIS de Paule, Founder of the Order of the Minims, approv'd by Pope Sixtus IV. in 1473. and confirm'd by Julius II. in 1506. He died in 1507. and was Canoniz'd in 1519.

FRANCIS SONNIUS, Biſhop of Bois l' Duc, and afterwards of Antwerp, was a Celebrated Divine in the XVIth. Cent. being one of the moſt Eminent of that Faculty in the Univerſity of Louvaine; by the Order of the Emperour Ferdinand, he had a Conference about Religion with Melanchton, Flacius Illyricus, and ſome others; he aſſiſted alſo at the Council of Trent, where he gave conſiderable proofs of his Learning and Sufficiency. There are extant of his, four Books, of the Demonſtration of the Chriſtian Religion, by the Word of God. A Treatiſe of the Sacraments. A Catechiſm, or Chriſtian Inſtitution, &c. He died at Antwerp, in 1576. Mir. in Elog. Belg. & de Script. Sæc. XVI. Strada de Bello Belg. lib. 1, &c.

FRANCIS VICTORIA, an eminent Divine born in a Town of that Name in Navarre: He liv'd in the XVth. and XVIth. Centuries, and was a very conſiderable Dominican. His Works are, De Poteſtate Eccleſiæ. De Civili Poteſtate. De Poteſtate Conſilii & Pontificis. De Indis & Jure Belli. De Matrimonio. De Augmento Charitatis. De Temperantia. De Homicidio. De eo ad quod tenetur perveniens ad Uſum Rationis. De Arte Magica. De Simonia. De Silentii Obligatione. Summa Sacramentorum Eccleſiæ. Confeſſionaria, &c. Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. Antonio de Siena. De Vir. Illuſt. Domin. Andreas Schotus & Nichol. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

FRANCIS Xavier, Sirnam'd the Apoſtle of the Indies, born in the Kingdom of Navarre, ſtudied at Paris, and was choſen to teach Philoſophy in the Univerſity, where he and Ignatius Loyola form'd the Deſign of Founding the Order of the Jeſuits; being ſent by Pope Paul III. at the requeſt of John King of Portugal to Preach in the Indies, he made it his Buſineſs to convert the People of Goa, Comorin, the Moluccas and Japan; for which he was Canoniz'd by Gregory XV. in 1622. He converted a great Number of the Infidels, and as Varenius a Dutchman obſerves, Preach'd the Chriſtian Religion to the Japoneſe in its Primitive Simplicity. Varen. Account of the Perſecutions of Japan.

FRANCON, born at Liege, was much eſteem'd for his Learning in the XIth. Century. He wrote, De Quadratura Circuli. De Computo Eccleſiaſtico. De Jejunio Quatuor Temporum. De Laudibus B. Mariæ, &c. Sigebert de Script. Eccl. Valer. Andr. &c.

FRANCONIA, or Francia Orientalis, by the Natives call'd Frankenland, is one of the ſix Circles of the Empire which comprehends the Biſhopricks of Wirtsbourg, and Bamberg, Aſchaffenburgh one of the Reſidencies of the Biſhop of Mayence, the Grand Seigniory of the Teutonick Order, whoſe Reſidence is at Mariendal. The Dutchy of Cobourg, the Marquiſates of Cullembach and Onſpach, the Earldoms of Henneberg, Holac, Erpach, Vertheim, Senſheim, Caſtell, Lor, and Reineck; the Imperial Cities of Francfort, Norimberg, Winſheim, &c. Franconia lies along the Main, water'd by the Rivers Sala, Regnitz, Tauber, &c. having the Palatinate of Bavaria to the Eaſt, the Palatinate of the Rhine to the Weſt, Suabia to the South, and Haſſia and Turingia to the North. The whole Country encompaſſed with Woods and Mountains is fruitful in Corn, Wine and Paſturage, and withal plentiful in Liquorice. Wirtzburgh claims to be the Capital City of the Province, and the Biſhop of the City aſſumes the Title of Duke of Franconia. Nevertheleſs, Francfort ſeems to enjoy that Honour. Many Authours believe that the French came out of Franconia; that it was Pharamond's Country, and that the Salick Law deriv'd its Original from Franconia. Charlemaigne extreamly delighted in this Country; and in 793. deſign'd to have joyn'd the Rhine and Danube, and ſo make a Communication between the Ocean and Black Sea, this was to be done by cutting a Canal from the River Altmul, which empties it ſelf into the Danube to the Regnitz, which falls into the Main. The Work was actually begun near Onſpach in Franconia, but diſcontinued by reaſon of the Wars that broke out ſoon after. Cluvier. Bertius. Zeillier.

FRANEQUER, or Franeker, a City of the Low-Countries in Eaſt Frieſe in the Quarter of Weſtergo, two Leagues from Leewarden. It is a handſome City, where the Gentlemen of the Country make their uſual Abode, enjoying fair Privileges and an Univerſity.

FRANGIPANI, Francis-Chriſtopher, Brother-in-Law to Count Serini, and one of thoſe that conſpir'd with him to make themſelves Maſters of Hungary, and one of the Chief Ringleaders of the Revolt of the Hungarians, that began in 1665. for which he was Beheaded at Neuſtadt, in 1671. dying with much Reſolution. The Executioner miſs'd his blow, and cut off his Shoulder, but at a ſecond ſtroke cut off his Head. Hiſtorie des troubles de Hongrie.

FRANKENDALE, in Lat. Franchendalia; formerly no more than an Abby, where there was a Conference or Diſputation held between the Orthodox Reformed and the Anabaptiſts, by the Authority of the Elector Frederick III. Sirnamed, the Pious, in 1571. Afterwards a Place of Refuge for the Belgian Exiles about 1574. Now a New City, which was well fortified in the Lower-Palatinate, ſcarce a League diſtant from the Rhine, Four Leagues from Heidelbergh to the Weſt, and as many from Spier to the North; afterwards taken by the Spaniards, and reſtor'd to the Elector Palatine by the Pacification of Munſter. But in the preſent Wars moſt cruelly laid in Aſhes by the French.

FRANZA-CURTA, in Latin Francia Parva, a ſmall Country of Italy in the State of Venice, neighbouring upon Breſcia, and deriving its Name from the French, who ſettled therein about the End of the Eighth Age, after Charlemaign had vanquiſh'd Didier King of the Lombards.

FRASCATA, (Gabriel) a Phyſician, Native of Breſcia, liv'd in the Sixteenth Age. He compoſed a Treatiſe concerning the Baths of Returbin, not far from Pavia, and died in 1582.

FRASCATI, an Epiſcopal City of Italy in the Campagna di Roma, from whence it lies diſtant about 12 Miles, and near unto it are to be ſeen the Ruins of the Ancient Tuſculum; as alſo Cicero's Tuſculanum, where he wrote his Tuſculan Queſtions, together with Lucullus's Country Houſe. Fraſcati is neither handſome, nor well peopled; but there is ſomething ſo delightful in the Palace and the Gardens, as makes it belov'd by all that behold 'em. The Country Houſe of Ludoviſio, that of Borgheſe, call'd Monte Dragone, by reaſon of the Dragon quarter'd in the Arms of that Family, and that of Aldobrandini, call'd Belvedere di Fraſcati, are Structures to be admired. On the one ſide this Palace you have a Proſpect of Rome; and the Campagna di Roma; on the other lies a Hill cover'd with Laurels, Fountains, Water-falls, Water-works, and other ſorts of Hydraulicks; as Water-Organs, &c. with the Hall of Apollo, where he ſits upon Parnaſſus, with the Nine Muſes under him. There belongs a ſmall Caſtle to the City of Fraſcati, and the Cathedral Church of St. Peter's is the Title which belongs to one of the ſix Ancient Cardinals, call'd Epiſcopus Tuſculanus.

FRATICELLI, certain Hereticks of Italy, who had their riſe in the Marquiſate of Ancona about 1294. they were moſt of them Apoſtate Monks under a Superiour called Herman of Pongiloup. They drew Women after them on pretext of Devotion, and were accus'd of Uncleanneſs with them in their Night-Meetings. They are charged with maintaining a Community of Wives and Goods, and denying Magiſtracy. Abundance of Libertines flock'd after them, becauſe they countenanced their Licentious Way of Living. The Corps of their Superiour Herman was Dug up and Burnt 20 Years after his Death. Bzovius.

FRAUD, a Goddeſs, worſhipped by the Ancient Pagans, either when they had a Mind to deceive, or were afraid of being deceived. She was of a very Monſtrous Shape, having the Countenance of a very handſom young Woman, the Body of a party-colour'd Serpent, and a Scorpions Tail. Her Countenance denoted the ſpecious Pretences made uſe of to cover their Cheats, the Spotted Body ſignify'd her different Wiles, and the Scorpions Tail the Malice which is always found at the bottom of their Deſigns.

FRAWENBURGH, in Lat. Frawenburgum, a Town of Poland in Royal Pruſſia, upon a Bay of the Baltick Sea, which the Natives call Friſch Haff, in Lat. Habus, with a convenient Harbour, at the Mouth of the little River of Schon. Frawenburgh lies between Elbing to the Weſt, and Braunsburgh to the Eaſt; and cloſe by it upon a Hill ſtands the Cathedral Church of Warmia, of which Cardinal Hoſius was Biſhop, and Nicolas Copernicus, a Canon. Baudrand.

FRAXINET, in Lat. Fraxinetum, a famous Sculking hole of the Saracens in the IXth. and Xth. Ages. Modern Authors are at a loſs, where that Fraxinetum was, of which Luitprand ſo often makes mention. For Fraſſineto is a Town of Italy, upon the River Po, between Valencia and Caſal; and this Baronius would have to be the Saracen's Lurking Hole. But Chorier, who compoſ'd the Hiſtory of the Dauphinate, will have it rather to be in Provence, where now ſtands Fraiſnes. No doubt but the Saracens had ſeveral of theſe Places of Retreat. However 'tis certain, their moſt famous Lurking Hole was in Provence, toward the Sea, in the Dioceſs of Frejus, and toward the Bay of Grimaut or Grimaldi, where there is ſtill a place call'd La Garde du Fraxinet, or the Fort of Fraxinet. It ſtood in a Wood, and is at this Day encompaſſed about with Foreſts, which the Inhabitants of the Country call Les Maures. The Navies which were ſent againſt the Saracens of Fraxinet, and the Succours which themſelves received by Sea, are Arguments ſufficient of the Probability of this Conjecture. William I. Count of Provence, utterly expell'd the Saracens out of his Country, and ruin'd their Lurking Hole of Fraxinet in 980.

FRECULFUS, Biſhop of Liſieux, liv'd in the IXth. Age, and wrote a Chronicle, in Two Parts. The Firſt, in Seven Books from the Beginning of the World to the Birth of Chriſt. The Second containing Five Books; from the Birth of Chriſt to the Coming of the Franks and Lombards, in the Year 600. Sigebert. Bellarmin, &c.

FREDEGARIUS, call'd Scholaſticus, liv'd in the VIIIth. Cent. At the Inſtance of Childebrand, Brother to Charles Martel, and Uncle to King Pepin the Short, wrote a Chronicle, which begins where Gregory of Tours left off, and is carried on to the Death of the aforeſaid Pepin. This Piece has hitherto been publiſh'd as an Addition to the ten Books of the Hiſtory written by Gregory of Tours, being it ſelf the XIth. The Learned Reader will take notice, that here I ſpeak only of what Marquardus Freherus has publiſh'd of Fredegarius, afterwards inſerted into the Bibliotheca Patrum. Du Cheſne has ſince revis'd Fredegarius, and plac'd him in the firſt Volume of the Writers of the Hiſtory of France. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Mir. in Auct.

FREDEGUNDA, the Wife of Chilperic I. to whoſe Queen ſhe was but a Servant at firſt. She perſwaded Chilperic to Divorce his Wife Audovaire, already the Mother of Five Children by him, to oppreſs his Subjects with Exactions, and make War upon his Brothers. Which having done four times, he prov'd unſucceſsful in the Fourth War, and was Beſieged by Sigebert in Tournay; but Fredegund made a ſhift to have Sigebert diſpatcht by two Ruffians with Poiſon'd Daggers. Some-time after ſhe Murder'd Meroveus, the Son of Chilperic. Audoveus his Brother, Prætextatus Biſhop of Rouen, whom ſhe caus'd to be aſſaſſinated one Day in the Church, as he was Performing Divine Service; And laſtly, ſhe Murder'd her own Husband, who had diſcover'd her looſe Amours, with one Landry of Tours, her Favourite. Afterwards retiring to Paris under the Protection of Guntran, ſhe continu'd her Perſecutions of Brunehault and Childebert her Son, and not being able to compaſs his Life by Treachery, ſhe took the Field and Vanquiſh'd him by open Force with the Slaughter of 30000 of his Men, waſted Champaigne, retook Paris, and thus every where Triumphant, died at length in the Year 596. leaving the Affairs of her Son Clothaire the IId. in a good and ſettl'd Condition; which was a thing to be admir'd. Gregor. Turon.

FREDERICK I. Surnam'd Barbaroſſa, ſucceeded Conrade III. his Uncle, in the Empire of Germany, in the Year 1152. His firſt Buſineſs was to pacifie the Affairs of Germany; which having ſucceſsfully accompliſh'd, he march'd into Italy, took and ras'd Tortona that ſhut her Gates againſt him, oblig'd Verona to acknowledge him, and Pay him a Sum of Money, compell'd Tivoly to ſubmit to the Church; beſieg'd Milan, that aſpir'd to the Dominion of Italy, and was Crown'd at Rome by Adrian IV. Returning into Germany, he compos'd the Difference between Arnold Biſhop of Mayence, and Herman the Palatine, conſtraining the latter to carry in publick a live Dog, with his hinder Legs tied about his Shoulders; which was then the Puniſhment of Princes that diſturb'd the Publick Peace, as among the Perſians, a Deſerter of his Station, was obliged to carry a naked Curteſan. He conſtrain'd the King of Poland to ſue for Peace, which he granted upon Conditions of paying his Annual Tributes, and a Sum of ready Money to Buy off the War. Being provok'd by Adrian's Anſwer, That it was his Right to Diſpoſe of the Empire as he pleas'd; he re-paſſes into Italy, takes Milan, and had certainly deſtroy'd it then, but that the Citizens ſu'd for Pardon with their naked Swords hanging about their Necks, Adrian threatens to Anathematize the Emperor, but dies in the mean time; His Succeſſor, Alexander III. continues the Feud, thunders out his Anathema's, and excites the Venetians againſt Frederick; who thereupon renewing the War with more vigour, takes Milan, levels it, and ſtrews it with Salt, and returns into Germany. But hearing that the Venetians, the Pope and the Milanois reſolving to Rebuild their City, were in a Confederacy againſt him, he Re-enters Italy, takes Rome, and ſets up Calixtus inſtead of Alexander; who eſcaped in diſguiſe to Venice. Thither Otho the Emperor's Son purſu'd him, but was vanquiſh'd and taken Priſoner by the Venetian Fleet. Frederick, thus reduc'd into ſtraits, by the Captivity of his Son, and the Succeſſes of Saladin in Aſia, goes to Venice, and begs for Abſolution, proſtrate at the Feet of Alexander, who proudly ſet his Foot upon the Emperor's Neck, uſing this Expreſſion of the Pſalmiſt at the ſame time, 'Tis ſaid, Thou ſhalt walk upon the Aſp and the Baſilisk, &c. To which the Emperor anſwering, Not to thee, but Peter; the Pope retorted, To Me and Peter too. But Baronius endeavours to prove this Story fabulous. This done, he made a Peace with William of Sicily, ſubdues the Lombards, and returning into Germany, paſſes into Aſia, defeats Saladin in two Combats, takes ſeveral Cities from the Infidels; but going to Bath himſelf in the River of Cydnus that runs by Tarſus, as ſome ſay, fell into a Diſeaſe of the Liver, which Kill'd him in a few Days; but as others ſay, was drown'd in the Year 1190. after he had reigned 38 Years. Otho Friſingen. Æneas Sylvius, &c.

FREDERICK II. the Son of Hen. VI. was elected Emperor in 1210. and twice Crown'd at Aix la Chapelle, in 1212. and 1215. His Competitor Otho dyed in 1218, ſo that he was left in quiet, without having any Rival in the Empire; after this he held an Aſſembly of the Eſtates at Nuremburgh, where ſeveral Proviſions were made for the Pacification of Germany, and then according to the Cuſtom of thoſe times, he went to Rome to be Crown'd by Honorius III. There he renounc'd his Pretenſions to the Dutchies of Spoleto and Tuſcany, in Favour of the Holy See, to whom he gave the Earldom of Fondi, and promis'd at the ſame time to attempt nothing againſt the Rights of the Church, and march'd within two years at the Head of an Army, againſt the Sarazens in Aſia; but he happen'd not to keep his Word, which made a miſunderſtanding between him and the Pope, which was heighten'd likewiſe upon another occaſion; for in the Year 1221, Frederick marched his Forces againſt Richard and Thomas, Counts of Agnani Princes of Tuſcany, and Brothers of Pope Innocent III. who had ſeiz'd ſome Towns in Puglia, and tamper'd with others to revolt. The Emperor took the firſt Priſoner, routed the other, and baniſh'd the Biſhops, who had been concern'd in the Defection, putting others in their Place. Pope Honorius, who own'd both the Princes and Biſhops under his Protection, ſent Frederick word, that being King of Sicily, and holding of the Church, he had no Power to Depoſe them; that he was no Legal Judge of Eccleſiaſticks, and that if he did not perform his Promiſe and fight the Infidels, His Holineſs would proceed to Excommunication; Frederick anſwered him, that as Emperor and King of Sicily, he was the Soveraign Judge of his Subjects, and even of Eccleſiaſticks in Secular Cauſes, and was reſolv'd to maintain his Prerogative, which had been handed down to him from his Predeceſſors, promiſing withal, that when his own Dominions were ſettled, he would march againſt the Saracens. The Pope being diſſatisfied with this Anſwer, Excommunicated him in 1222. however this Difference was taken up the next year, and in 1227, he Embark'd at Brindiſi, accompany'd with St. Lewis of France; but after three days Sail; either falling Sick, or pretending to be ſo, he made a Tack homewards, and Landed at Otranto. Upon the hearing of this 40000 Men, who had Croſs'd themſelves for the Holy-Land, and ſet forwards, return'd home, and the whole Expedition came to nothing; upon which, the Emperor was again Ecommunicated by Pope Gregory IXth. Frederick having gain'd the Counts of Frangipani to his Intereſt, attack'd the Territories of the Church, with an Army conſiſting moſtly of Saracens, tranſported from Sicily into Puglia: The year after, the Emperor went for the Holy-Land; Gregory the IXth. who was very hot and paſſionate follow'd him to Paleſtine: The Patriarch, the grand Maſter of the Templars, and of the Hoſpital of St. John refus'd to obey the Emperor, and the Chriſtian Army Commanded by Henry Duke of Limbourg, receiv'd their Orders only from the Emperor's Lieutenant Generals, who, in a particular Stile, were ſaid to Command under God and Chriſtianity. The Knights of the Teutonick Order, the Genoeſe, Piſans, Germans and Venetians, ſecretly Favouring the Emperor. In February, in 1229. Frederick concluded a Peace with Meladin Sultan of Babylon, who reſtor'd him Jeruſalem, Bethlehem, Nazareth, Thoron, Sidon, and the Chriſtians which he had taken Priſoners. The Emperor at the ſame time, quitting the great Church of Jeruſalem, to the Saracens, to Exerciſe their Religion in, and promiſing that there ſhould be no Aſſiſtance given to the Chriſtians of Antioch, Tripoli, nor any others not comprehended in this Treaty; theſe Articles were look'd upon by many, as diſadvantageous to Religion, the Emperor thinking himſelf diſoblig'd by the Templars, ſeiz'd upon their Eſtates, in ſeveral Places, at his return Home; and after having Conquer'd a great part of the Patrimony of St. Peter, inveſted Rome with the Pope in it, and having frighted His Holineſs, retir'd to Capua without attempting any thing further. The Year after, in 1230, the Pope and he came to an Accommodation, the Emperor engaging to reſtore the Church Lands, and Effects ſeiz'd on by him, and to be more inoffenſive for the future, but it ſeems he forgat both the one, and the other branch of his Promiſe, for he renew'd his violent Courſes, with more heat than ever, and wrote, as our Author obſerves, both againſt the Pope and Religion; inſomuch, that Gregory the IXth. Excommunicated him once more; this Treatment, did but provoke him further, ſo that in the Year 1238, he paſs'd the Alps with a Hundred thouſand Men, routed the Milaneſe, and made ſo horrible a Slaughter of them, that as he Expreſſes it himſelf, the Country was hardly big enough to bury them; and after having Conquer'd Sardinia, the Venetians, Genoeſe, &c. he attempted Rome in 1240; and during theſe Diſturbances, he clap'd a hot Iron, in the Form of a Croſs, upon the Foreheads of the Priſoners he took, becauſe they took the Croiſado againſt him. He likewiſe made a great Ravage in other places of Italy. Innocent IV. who was now Pope, fearing the Forces of the Emperor, retir'd into France, and conven'd a General Council, as the Roman Catholicks call it, at Lyons. Here the Pope Excommunicates Frederick, and ventures to degrade him from his imperial Dignity, charging him with Uſurpation, Heterodoxy and Correſpondence with the Saracens, Frederick Remonſtrates publickly againſt theſe violent and extraordinary Methods, and in a Letter written to Lewis King of France, complains of his being Condemn'd againſt all manner of Law and Juſtice, that the Pope is Head of Eccleſiaſticks, but not of Princes, and that all the Soveraigns of the Earth ought to think themſelves concern'd in his Cauſe: However after this Depoſition, his Affairs immediately run to Ruin, the Confederates of Italy beat his Forces, and all Princes look'd upon him as an impious and unconverſible Perſon, inſomuch that in 1245, the Germans Elected Henry of Thuringia in his Place, and afterwards William Earl of Holland. St. Lewis endeavour'd to make up the matter and reſtore the Emperor, but without Succeſs; ſo that this unfortunate Prince, ſeeing himſelf Deſerted on all ſides, died of Diſappointment and the Spleen, in Puglia in 1250, being 57 years of Age. Theſe Differences between Frederick and the Popes of Rome, gave beginning to the Faction of the Guelphs and Gibelins; which was ſo long unfortunate to Italy. As for his Character, 'tis ſaid, That Frederick ſpoke ſix Languages very well, that he had a great deal of Force and Penetration in his Genius, and was very ſtout and magnificent; but theſe good Qualities, had a very bad Alloy; for he is ſaid to have had no Principles, was a Libertine, Cruel, and one that little minded his word. Vrſpergenſis, Matt. Paris, Platina, Sabellicus, Spondanus, Bzovius, &c.

FREDERICK, Surnam'd the Fair, Arch-Duke of Auſtria; ſet up by ſome of the Electors in Oppoſition to Lewis of Bavaria, in the Year 1314. againſt whom he fought five ſet Battels; but being taken in the laſt, was detain'd three Years in Priſon, and at laſt releas'd, upon Condition that he ſhould relinquiſh the Imperial Authority, and only keep the Title. He died about the Year 1330. Nor is he reckon'd among the Emperors.

FREDERICK IV. or rather III. ſirnam'd the Pacifick, the Son of Erneſtus, Duke of Auſtria, elected after the Deceaſe of Albert II. his Couſin-German. He began his Reign in 1440. and reigned 53 Years. A Prince of a generous Ingenuity, genuity, and great Prudence, who naturally abhorr'd War; and what he wanted in Power, he ſupply'd in Policy and Cunning. He diſſembl'd the Affronts which ſeveral Popes put upon him, to that degree, that the Italians were wont to ſay of him, That he had a Dead Soul in a Living Body. In the 12th. Year of his Reign he went into Italy, and receiv'd the Crown from the Hands of Nicholas V. But upon his return, John Hunniades invaded Auſtria with 12000 Horſe, and waſted all before him with Fire and Sword, between Vienna and the Mountains of Stiria; ſo that he was forced to ſurrender Ladiſlaus, his Pupil, and Heir of Hungary, Bohemia and Auſtria, to his Uncle Ulrick, Count of Cylley, who demanded him. He perſwaded Amadeus, who was choſen Pope by the Council of Bale, under the Name of Felix, to quit the Pontificate, and put an end to the Schiſm. Soon after, another War broke out between Him and Matthias Corvinus: To whom Frederick deny'd the Inveſtiture of the Kingdom of Bohemia, deſign'd him by the Pope, in Oppoſition to Podiebrachius, who was a Favourer of the Huſſites. Matthias took Vienna, while Frederick, in a careleſs kind of ſloth, wander'd up and down in Germany, writing upon the Walls of the Inns, Rerum Irrecuperabilium ſumma, Felicitas, Oblivio. But Albert, Duke of Saxony, conſtrain'd Matthias to accept of Peace upon Conditions, and Matthias's retaining Vienna. After which, a new War aroſe between Him and Charles Duke of Burgundy; which was ended by an Interview, and the Marriage of Charles's only Daughter, to Maximilian, the Emperor's Son. Upon the Death of Matthias, Frederick return'd into Auſtria, and dy'd at Lintz, in 1493. Cuſpiniar. Nauclerus, &c.

FREDERICK I. King of Denmark, ſirnam'd the Paciſick, Duke of Holſtein, was Elected in 1523. in the place of his Nephew Chriſtian, Expell'd for his Cruelties. He introduc'd the Reformation of Luther into his Kingdom, and dy'd in the Year 1533. Chytræus, Thuan. &c.

FREDERICK II. ſucceeded Chriſtian III. in 1559. He reduc'd the Province of Ditmarſen, and defended Livonia. and the Liberty of the Baltick Sea, againſt Lubeck, and Erick, Kings of Sweden. Pius IV. deſir'd him to ſend ſome Perſon in his Behalf to the Council of Trent. But he return'd him for Anſwer, That neither his Father nor He had held any Correſpondence with the Roman Pontiffs. This Abbey was founded by St. Boniface, in the VIIIth. Age.

FULGENTIUS, Biſhop of Ruſpæ, in Africa, a great Oppoſer of the Arians; for which he was baniſh'd into Sardinia by Thraſimund: where, while he liv'd in Exile, he wrote many Treatiſes; of which ſome are ſtill extant, eſpecially his Works De Prædeſtinatione & Gratia. He was counted the St. Auſtin of his Age, and dy'd in 533.

FULGOSUS, (Raphael) a Famous Lawyer in the XVth. Age. He wrote much upon ſeveral Subjects of the Civil Law, and dy'd at Padua.

FULLERTON, (John) Lieutenant-Colonel to the Earl of Angus's Regiment, in the Service of King William and Queen Mary; was of the Family of Carlton, in Galloway, in Scotland; of Comely Perſonage, Good Parts, and Great Courage. He was alſo a very Pious Man, and a great Sufferer for his Non-conformity, during the late Reign. He was an Officer in that Inſurrection in Scotland by the late Earl of Argile: where he gave ſignal Proofs of his Courage, and Love to the ſaid Earl, retiring with him after the Defeat; and ſuffer'd himſelf to be taken for him, by thoſe who thought he had been the Earl; which contributed to his Eſcape for that time: and afterwards, Mr. Fullerton fought his way through thoſe that took him. After which, he retired into Holland; whence he came over a Captain in his preſent Majeſty's Service. He alſo behaved himſelf gallantly at Gilſcranky, againſt Dundee; and ſucceeded the Brave Cleland, as Lieutenant-Colonel to the Earl of Angus. He afterwards defeated a Party of Highlanders at Dunblane: And being Commanded to Flanders with the Regiment, acquitted himſelf with undaunted Courage at the Battle of Steenkirk, where he was unfortunately kill'd.

FULLO, (Peter) an Heretical pretended Biſhop of Antioch, in the Vth. Cent. He had been a Monk, and expell'd his Monaſtery, for being an Eutychian Heretick. His Life was faulty as well as his Doctrine, being but a ſort of a Libertine at Conſtantinople: However, making an acquaintance with ſeveral People of Quality, who were perverted to his own Miſperſuaſion, by their Intereſt, he was entertain'd in the Family of Zeno, Son-in-Law to the Emperour Leo, and quickly got into his Favour, by a ſhew of Piety. Soon after Zeno being made Comes Orientis, came to Antioch the Capital of his Government, having this Peter Fullo in his Company: Here this Fullo found a great many of the Abettors of Apollinarius, with whom he join'd againſt Martyrius, Biſhop of the Town, whom he charg'd with Neſtorianiſm, cited him to Conſtantinople, and uſurp'd his See: Afterwards he was depos'd from the Biſhoprick into which he had intruded, but continuing ſtill in the Town, notwithſtanding the Intereſt Pope Simplicius made with the Emperour Zeno, to expel him, his Party were ſo bold as to aſſaſſinate the Biſhop Stephen, at the Altar. In the Year 482, Zeno the Emperour, baniſhing Calendion from Antioch, reſtor'd this Peter to that See. Aſſoon as this unhappy Man was plac'd there again, he publiſh'd a new Hereſie, added to the Hymn call'd Triſagion, theſe Words, Who was crucified for us, making the three Perſons of the Trinity to have ſuffer'd, and by this means he became guilty of a complicated Hereſie, i. e. of that of Valentinus, Eutyches, Apollinarius, and Sabellius. He was frequently admoniſh'd by the Biſhops of the Church to Retract, but continued obſtinate. Theodoret, lib. 1. Baron. In Annal. Godeau. Hiſt. Eccl. &c.

FULVIA, the Mother of Mark Antony; a Woman of great Eloquence and Courage, and who was wont frequently to make Orations to the Soldiers. Dion. Caſſius, Plutarch.

FULVII, or Gens Fulvia, the Family of the Fulvii, was one of the Noble Families of Ancient Rome: To which the City was beholding for ſeveral Conſuls, who by their Victories enlarg'd the Limits of her Empire. L. Fulvius Curvus, in the Year of Rome, 432. Conſul with Fabius Rullus, triumph'd over the Samnites. C. Fulvius Maximus Centumalus, Conſul in the Year of Rome, 456. defeated the Samnites near Bovianum: And his Son of the ſame Name, Dictator in 490. and Conſul in 524. ſubdu'd Corſica, defeated the Illyrians, and won other Remarkable Victories. Fulvius Nobilior, Conſul, took Ambracia, near the Golf of Larta; and conſtrain'd the Etolians to ſue for Peace. Q. Fulvius Flaccus, one of the greateſt Captains of his Time; and Four times Conſul, with ſeveral others. Marcus Fulvius Flaccus, Conſul with Plautius Hypſæus, in 609. defeated the Ligurians; but joining with M. Gracchus, to the Diſturbance of the Commonwealth, Opimius Nepos fell upon them in the City of Rome, where they had entrench'd themſelves under Mount Aventine, and ſlew 'em both. Fulvius had alſo one Son kill'd in the ſame Place, and another put to Death in Priſon. By which means the whole Family became Extinct. Livy, Polybius, Florus, Paterculus, Valerius Maximus, &c.

FUNCCIUS, (John) a Proteſtant Miniſter of Germany, born at Werden near Nurenburg, in 1518. Amongſt other Pieces, he wrote a Chronology, which in the laſt Edition, reaches from the beginning of the World to 1560. Moreri pretends, there are ſome ſtrokes of partiality towards Lutheraniſm in this Authour. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 38. Melchior Adam in Vit. Germ. Theol.

FUNCHAL, an Epiſcopal City of Africa, Capital of the Iſland of Madera; ſeated in the Eaſtern part of the Iſland, and is under the Archbiſhop of Lisbon.

FUNEN, is one of the Iſlands of Denmark, next to Zealand, whether its Bigneſs or the Goodneſs of its Soil be conſidered; it has plenty of Corn, Hogs, Lakes, and Woods: The Chief Town of it is Odenſee, a well ſeated and formerly a flouriſhing little City, but at preſent much fallen to Decay: This Iſland produces nothing for the Merchants to export, except ſome few Horſes, the Inhabitants uſually conſuming their own Commodities: This is a principal Government called a Stifts Ampt.

FUNERALS, the laſt Offices paid to the Dead. The Cuſtoms of the Old Romans, upon this Occaſion, were as follows. After they had clos'd the Eyes of the dead, they call'd out to him ſeveral times to ſee, if he was not faln into a ſwoon, or ſome Lethargical Diſtemper. After this, they waſh'd the Corps with warm Water, and rubb'd it with Perfumes. This being done, they put a ſort of white Gown upon him, and brought him to the Door, with his Feet to the Street; then they ſtuck Branches of Cypreſs before the Houſe: This Ceremony continu'd ſeven Days, and upon the Eighth they carried the Corps to the place where it was to be burnt: Amongſt People of Fortune, the Bier or Coffin was generally carried by Relations: And at the Funerals of Emperours and Conſuls, the Senatours and Magiſtrates of the Republick did this Office; but the Common People were carried by Veſpillones or common Bearers. When Perſons of Blood, or who were eminent for Poſts in Government or Remarkable Actions, were brought to the Pile, the Diſtinctions of their Quality were carried before their Coffin, as the Conſular Faſces, or Sword and Mace; their Anceſtours in Wax-work, the Plunder they had gain'd upon the Enemy, the Civick, Mural, &c. Crowns, which they had deſerv'd, and every thing elſe that might add to their Figure. Servius obſerves, that in the beginning of the Republick, they buried their dead in their Houſes, but by a Law of the twelve Tables, it was forbidden either to bury or burn any Corps within the City of Rome; but afterwards the Veſtal Virgins, and Emperours had a Privilege of Exception; as for other People, they were either interr'd in the Highways, or in their Ground, out of the Town. At the burning of the Corps, they laid it firſt upon a Pile of Wood of Pines, Yew, and other reſembling Trees, which lay one upon another in the Figure of an Altar; the Corps being dreſs'd and ſprinkl'd with rich Liquours, lay in a Coffin made of purpoſe, with his Face upwards, and a Piece of Silver in his Mouth, to pay Charon, for his Fare: The Pile was ſurrounded with Cypreſs, an Emblem of Grief, and Death; after this, ſome of the neareſt Relations, turning their Back to the Pile, ſet fire to it with a Torch, which they held behind them: And the Fire being lighted, they threw in the Clothes, Arms, and other rich Goods, which the deceas'd Perſon had the greateſt fancy for. When the Corps was burnt, they wetted the Bones and the Aſhes with Milk and Wine, and then put them into an Urn, which they buried in a Sepulchre for that purpoſe. Before this Urn, they ſet a little Altar, where they burnt Perfumes. Their Mourning laſted ten Months, which was Romulus's Year, but 'twas poſſible to ſhorten this Term by ſome publick Succeſs of the State, or any extraordinary good Fortune, which happen'd to a private Family. Roſin. Antiq. Rom. lib. 5. cap. 39. John Kirchman, de Funeribus Romanorum.

FUNGENI, a People of Africa, in the Lower-Æthiopia, toward the Lake of Zaire, under the Dominion of the Emperour of Macoco. Voſſius.

FURETIERE, (Anthony) Abbot of Chalivoy, oblig'd the Commonwealth of Learning, by his Univerſal Dictionary, explaining the Terms in all Arts and Sciences: Though he were not ſo happy as quite to finiſh it. He died in 1688. in the 68th. Year of his Age.

FURIUS Bibaculus, a Latin Poet, born in the CLXXth. Olympiad. He wrote Annals in Verſe, of which Macrobius recites ſome Fragments. Suetonius alſo repeats certa in Verſes of his upon Valerius Cato, in his Illuſtrious Grammarians.

FURNES, which the Flemings call Wernen, a City of Flanders, on that ſide next to Newport, three Leagues from Dixmuyde, four from Berguen St. Wynock, and ſomewhat leſs from Dunkirk: A well-built and pleaſant City, though but ſmall. The Canals ſupport the Trade of the Town; which conſiſts in Linen, and other Manufactures. The City is dignify'd with the Title of a Viſcountſhip, and the Juriſdiction of a Lord Caſtellain. It was three times taken by the French; and at length reſign'd to that Crown by the Peace of Aix la Chapelle, in 1668. It was afterwards taken by the French; but is now in the Poſſeſſion of the Spaniards.

FURSTEMBERG, a City of Germany, in Suabia, with the Title of a Principality, and formerly of an Earldom. It is ſeated in the Black Foreſt, in the Country of Bor, or Baur, and deriv'd its Name to the Family of Furſtemberg, which has produc'd ſeveral great Perſonages, made Princes of the Empire, and ſignaliz'd by their Alliances. Of late Years, William Egon, Count of Furſtemburg, Canon of Cologne and Strasburg; afterwards made a Cardinal, and Biſhop of Straſburg, has made a great Noiſe through his Conteſts for the Electorſhip of Cologne; upheld with all his might by the King of France, but oppos'd by the Empire.

FURSTEMBERG (William) Grand Maſter of the Order in Livonia, call'd the Porteglaives: He oppos'd the Muſcovites in Livonia, and took the Archbiſhop of Riga Priſoner. But in the Year 1560. the Muſcovites took the Fortreſs of Velin, and carry'd away the Grand-Maſter Priſoner into Muſcovy, where he died.

FURSTIUS (Walter) a Swiſs of the Canton of Uri: He was One of the Three that ſhook off the Yoak, or revolted from the Archdukes of Auſtria, and united the three Cantons of Uri, Switz, and Underwald, in the League that has laſted till this time. This was done about the Year 1308.

FUSCHIUS, (Leonard) a German Phyſician, born in 1501. at Wembdingen, in Bavaria. He wrote ſundry Treatiſes both in Phyſick and Chirurgery, as Hippocrates Epidemiorum, Lib. VI. Difficilium aliquot Quæſtionum, Lib. IV. Medicinæ Methodus. Annotationes in Libros Galeni. De Hiſtoria Stirpium Comment. De Curandi Ratione. De Compoſitione Medicamentorum. De Fabrica humani Corporis, &c. and died in 1566. Melchior Adam. Vand. Lind.

G.

G THIS Mute is chang'd by Latin Authors in their preterperfect Tenſes into C, and ſometimes into S, or X. The Ancients made frequent uſe of N, for Gn; as the Spaniards do at this time, who write Senor for Segnor, and Nino for Nigno, &c. The French change V into G, as Gaſcons for Vaſcons, &c.

Upon the Emperor's favouring Eutropius, he became ſo jealous, that he call'd the Barbarians out of Aſia, and forc'd Arcadius to deliver up his Favourite into his hands, and farther conſtrain'd him to give him the Heads of Aurelianus, Saturninus, and John, his faithful Miniſters. Being an Arian, he demanded a Church for the Arians in Conſtantinople, and had a deſign to have burnt the Imperial Palace, and to have made himſelf Maſter of the Empire. All theſe Inſolencies compell'd the Emperor to Proclaim him an Enemy of the Publick Weal; upon which, he ravaged all Thrace, but being vanquiſh'd by Sea in the Helleſpont, and taken in his Flight, his Head was ſent to Conſtantinople. Theodoret, Zoſimus, Sozomenus.

GAINSBOROUGH, a large well-built-Market-Town in Lincolnſhire, in Lindſey Diviſion, and Hundred of Gartree upon the River Trent; Memorable for the Death of Swane ſtabb'd here by an unknown hand. It drives a conſiderable Trade, and gives the Title of Earl to the Family of the Noels.

GALANUS, (Clement) a Theatin Monk, who having liv'd ſeveral Years in Armenia, collected what he could of all the Acts written in the Armenian Language, which he tranſlated into Latin, with Obſervations of his own; and which was Printed at Rome, in 1650. under the Title of A Reconciliation of the Armenian with the Church of Rome, upon the Teſtimony of the Armenian Fathers and Doctors. In 1686. was Printed at Cologne, Hiſtoria Armena, Eccleſiaſtica & Politica, written by the ſame Author, being a Tranſlation out of the Armenian Language by Galanus, with Notes, where is to be ſeen what Patriarchs the Armenians have had, with their preſent Condition and Opinions. Biblioth. Univerſelle.

GALANTHIS, Alcmena's Woman. 'Tis ſaid that Juno turn'd her into a Weeſel, for being ſo bold as to get her Lady deliver'd. Ovid. lib. 9 Metam.

GALAS, (Matthew) a Native of Trent, from a Page to the Baron of Beaufremont, Chamberlain to the Duke of Lorrain, roſe to be a General of the Imperial Armies. His firſt Attempts upon Burgundy in 1636. prov'd unſucceſsful, the Duke of Lorrain and He being beaten at St. John de Luna. He was more Fortunate upon other Occaſions againſt the King of Sweden: But being at laſt utterly defeated by Torſtenſon, and diſgraced with the Emperor, he died in 1647.

GALATA, by another Name call'd Pera, a City directly oppoſite to Conſtantinople, of which indeed it is accounted but the Suburbs, lies on the other ſide of the Port of Conſtantinople; from whence you may go to Galata by Land, only taking a compaſs round the Haven, and croſſing a River that falls into the farther end of the Canal. This Place belong'd formerly to the Genoeſes; and there is ſtill ſtanding a great Tower, which they held out a long time after the Turks were Maſters of Conſtantinople. The Houſes are well built, and there are alſo within it Five Convents of Latin Monks of different Orders. But the chiefeſt part of the Inhabitants are Greeks, who keep a ſort of Publick Houſes that draw to 'em all the Rabble of Conſtantinople, who are oftentimes very diſorderly. Thevenot. Voyage du Levant.

GALATÆA, a Nymph and Sea Goddeſs, Daughter to Nereus and Doris. Ovid mentions another of that Name, with whom Polyphemus was in Love. Some ſay, there was alſo a third, Wife to Hercules Lybicus, ſhe reign'd in Gaul, and was the Mother of Galate. Herod. lib. 2. Ammian. lib. 15. &c.

GALATIA, a Province of the Leſſer Aſia, by the Turks call'd Gelas, as Leunclavius witneſſes, derived its Name from the Gauls; who, after they had burnt Rome, and waſted Italy, ſettled themſelves in this Country. It is alſo call'd Gallo-Græcia, to denote, that it was inhabited both by Gauls and Greeks; before whom the Phrygians gave the Name of Paphlagonia to one part of that Country. Galatia was bounded to the Eaſt, by Cappadocia; to the South, by Pamphylia; to the Weſt, by Aſia the Leſs, Pontus and Bithynia; and to the North, by the Euxine Sea. The Galatians or Gallo-Gracians, have wag'd conſiderable Wars, eſpecially under Brennus. Their chiefeſt Cities were Ancira, ſtill the Reſidence of the Sangiac, Sinope, Amiſus, &c. This Country was ſubdu'd by the Turks in 1537. The Galatians were Converted by St. Paul who wrote an Epiſtle to them. Pauſanias, Ptolemy, Juſtin.

GALATINUS, (Peter) a Franciſcan of Note, in the beginning of the XVIth. Cent. He wrote, De Arcanis Catholicæ Veritatis, againſt the Jews: And here we may obſerve, that this Galatinus tranſcrib'd Porchetus's Book, call'd Victoria adverſus Judæos, Printed at Geneva in 1520; Porchetus himſelf having taken the ſame Liberty in borrowing from Raymond Martin, Printed at Paris in 1651.
